le-ger-i-ty (lə-jěr'ī-tē) n. Quickness or agility of mind or body. [French légèreté, from Old French legerete, from leger, light. See LEGERDEMAIN.]

le-ges (lē'jēz') n. Plural of lex.

leg-ged (ləg'ɪd, ləgd) adj. Having a specified kind or number of legs. Often used in combination: long-legged; four-legged.

leg-ging (ləg'ɪŋ) n. 1. A leg covering usually extending from the ankle to the knee and often made of material such as leather or canvas, worn especially by soldiers and workers. 2. leggings. a. Close-fitting usually knit trousers, often worn under a skirt for warmth. b. Warm outerwear trousers for children.

leg-gy (ləg'ē) adj. leg-gi-er, leg-gi-est. 1. Having disproportionately long legs: a leggy colt. 2. Informal. Having attractively long, slender legs: a leggy dancer.

3. Having long, spindly, often leafless stems: a leggy houseplant. —leg'gi-ness n.

leg-horn (ləg'hôrn', -ərn) n. 1. a. The dried and bleached straw of an Italian variety of wheat. b. A plaited fabric made from this straw. c. A hat made from this fabric. 2. Often Leghorn. Any of a breed of small, hardy domestic fowl of Mediterranean origin, noted for prolific production of eggs. [After Leghorn.]

Leghorn or Li-vor-no (lē-vōr'nō) A city of northwest Italy on the Ligurian Sea southeast of Genoa. A fortified town in the Middle Ages, Leghorn was developed into a flourishing community by the Medici. Population, 175,371.

leg-i-ble (ləj'ə-bəl) adj. 1. Possible to read or decipher. 2. Plainly discernible; apparent: legible weaknesses in character and disposition. [Middle English, from Late Latin legibilis, from Latin legere, to read. See leg- in Appendix.]

—leg'i-bil'i-ty, leg'i-ble-ness n. —leg'i-bly adv.

le-gion (lē'jən) n. 1. The major unit of the Roman army consisting of 3,000 to 6,000 infantry troops and 100 to 200 cavalry troops. 2. A large military unit trained for combat; an army. 3. A large number; a multitude. See Synonyms at multitude. 4. Often Legion. A national organization of former members of the armed forces. — adj. Constituting a large number; multitudinous: Her admirers were legion. His mistakes were legion. [Middle English legioun, from Old French legion, from Latin legiō, legiōn-, from legere, to gather. See leg- in Appendix.]

le-gion-ar-y (lē'jə-nēr'ē) adj. Of, relating to, or constituting a legion. — n. pl. le-gion-ar-ies. A soldier of a legion.

legionary ant (lē'jə-nēr'ē änt) n. See army ant.

le-gion-naire (lē'jə-nâr') n. A member of a legion. [French légiionnaire, from Old French, from legion, legion. See LEGION.]

Le-gion-naires' disease (lē'jə-nârz' dĩ-zēz') n. An acute, sometimes fatal respiratory disease caused by a bacterium of the genus Legionella, especially L. pneumophila, and characterized by severe pneumonia, headache, and a dry cough. [So called because it was first recognized when an outbreak occurred during an American Legion Convention in Philadelphia in 1976.]

Legion of Honor (lē'jən ũv ðn'ər) n. A high French civilian and military decoration, instituted in 1802. [Translation of French Légion d'honneur.]

Legion of Merit (lē'jən ũv mēr'it) n. Abbr. LM A U.S. military decoration awarded for exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services.

legis. abbr. Legislation; legislative; legislature.

leg-is-late (ləj'ĩ-slāt') v. leg-is-lat-ed, leg-is-lat-ing, leg-is-lates. — v. intr. To create or pass laws. — v. tr. To create or bring about by or as if by legislation. [Back-formation from LEGISLATOR.]

leg-is-la-tion (ləj'ĩ-slā'shən) n. Abbr. leg., legis. 1. The act or process of legislating; lawmaking. 2. A proposed or enacted law or group of laws.

leg-is-la-tive (ləj'ĩ-slā'tiv) adj. Abbr. leg., legis. 1. Of or relating to the enactment of laws. 2. Resulting from or decided by legislation. 3. Having the power to create laws; intended to legislate. 4. Of or relating to a legislature. — n. The legislative body of a government; a legislature. —leg'is-la'tive-ly adv.

leg·is·la·tor (ləj'ī-slā'tər) n. One that creates or enacts laws, especially a member of a legislative body. [French législateur, from Old French, from Latin lēgis lātor: lēgis, genitive of lēx, law; see leg- in Appendix + lātor, proposer, bearer (from lātus, past participle of ferre, to propose, bear); see telə- in Appendix.] —leg'is·la·to'ri·al (-lə-tōr'ē-əl, -tōr'-) adj. —leg'is·la'tor·ship' n.

leg·is·la·ture (ləj'ī-slā'chər) n. Abbr. leg., legis. An officially elected or otherwise selected body of people vested with the responsibility and power to make laws for a political unit, such as a state or nation.

le·gist (lē'jɪst) n. A specialist in law. [Middle English legiste, from Old French, from Medieval Latin lēgista, from Latin lēx, lēg-, law. See leg- in Appendix.]

le·git (lə-jɪt') adj. Slang. Legitimate.

le·git·i·ma·cy (lə-jɪt'ə-mə-sē) n. The quality or fact of being legitimate.

le·git·i·mate (lə-jɪt'ə-mɪt) adj. 1. Being in compliance with the law; lawful: a legitimate business. 2. Being in accordance with established or accepted patterns and standards: legitimate advertising practices. 3. Based on logical reasoning; reasonable: a legitimate solution to the problem. 4. Authentic; genuine: a legitimate complaint. 5. Born of legally married parents: legitimate issue. 6. Of, relating to, or ruling by hereditary right: a legitimate monarch. 7. Of or relating to drama of high professional quality that excludes burlesque, vaudeville, and some forms of musical comedy: the legitimate theater. — v. tr. le·git·i·mat·ed, le·git·i·mat·ing, le·git·i·mates (-māt'). To make legitimate, as: a. To give legal force or status to; make lawful. b. To establish (a child born out of wedlock) as legitimate by legal means. c. To sanction formally or officially; authorize. d. To demonstrate or declare to be justified. [Middle English legimat, born in wedlock, from Medieval Latin lēgitimātus, past participle of lēgitimāre, to make lawful, from Latin lēgitimus, legitimate, from lēx, lēg-, law. See leg- in Appendix.]

—le·git'i·mate·ly adv. —le·git'i·mate·ness n. —le·git'i·ma'tion n.

—le·git'i·mat'or (-māt'ər) n.

le·git·i·ma·tize (lə-jɪt'ə-mə-tīz') v. tr. le·git·i·ma·tized, le·git·i·ma·tiz·ing, le·git·i·ma·tiz·es. To legitimate.

le·git·i·mist (lə-jɪt'ə-mɪst) n. One that believes in or advocates rule by hereditary right. —le·git'i·mism n. —le·git'i·mist adj.

le·git·i·mize (lə-jɪt'ə-mīz') v. tr. le·git·i·mized, le·git·i·miz·ing, le·git·i·miz·es. To legitimate. —le·git'i·mi·za'tion (-mī-zā'shən) n.

—le·git'i·miz'er n.

leg·man (ləg'män', -mən) n. Informal. 1. A reporter whose job is to gather information at the scene of an event or by visiting various news sources. 2. An assistant, as in an office, who performs tasks such as gathering information or running errands especially outside the workplace.

Leg-ni-ca (ləg-nēt'sə) A city of southwest Poland west of Wrocław. Chartered in 1252, it was acquired by Prussia in 1742 and was the site of Frederick the Great's victory over the Austrians (August 15, 1760). Population, 97,700.

leg-of-mut-ton (ləg'ə-müt'n, ləg'əv-) or leg-o'-mut-ton (ləg'ə-) adj.

Resembling a leg of mutton in shape; tapering sharply from one large end to a point or smaller end, as a sleeve or sail.

leg-pull (ləg'pūl') n. A comical hoax or practical joke. —leg'-pull'er n.

leg-room (ləg'rōom', -rōom') n. Room in which to stretch the legs while seated.

Le-guía y Sal-ce-do (lə-gē'ə ē' sāl-sā'dō, lə-gē'ä ē sāl-sě'thō), Augusto Bernardino. 1863-1932. Peruvian politician who served as president from 1908 to 1912 and from 1919 to 1930, when he was overthrown.

leg-ume (ləg'yōom', lə-gyōom') n. 1. a. A pod, such as that of a pea or bean, that splits into two valves with the seeds attached to one edge of the valves.

b. Such a pod or seed used as food. 2. A plant of the pea family. [French légume, from Latin legūmen, bean.]

legume family (ləg'yōom' fām'ə-lē) n. The pea family.

le-gu-mi-nous (lə-gyōom'mə-nəs) adj. 1. Of, belonging to, or characteristic of the family Leguminosae, which includes peas, beans, clover, alfalfa, and other plants. 2. Resembling a legume. [From Middle English, and from French légumineux both from Latin legūminosus, from legūmen, legūmin-, bean.]

leg warmer also leg-warm-er (ləg'wôr'mər) n. A knitted covering for the leg, resembling a stocking but without a foot, usually worn over tights or pants, as by dancers.

leg-work (ləg'wûrk') n. Informal. Work, such as collecting information or doing research in preparation for a project, that involves much walking or traveling about.

Le-hár (lə'här), Franz. 1870-1948. Hungarian composer of light operas, most notably The Merry Widow (1905).

Le Ha-vre (lə hä'vrə, häv') A city of northern France on the English Channel west-northwest of Paris. It has been a major port since the 16th century. Population, 199,388.

Le-high River (lə'hī' rīv'ər) A river, about 166 km (103 mi) long, of eastern Pennsylvania flowing generally southeast to the Delaware River.

Leh-man (lə'mən, lā'-), Herbert Henry. 1878-1963. American banker and public official who directed (1943-1946) the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. As a U.S. senator from New York (1949-1957), Lehman was one of the first to oppose McCarthyism.

Leh-mann (lə'mən, -män), Lotte. 1888-1976. German-born American soprano known for her performances in operas by Richard Strauss. She sang with the Metropolitan Opera in New York City from 1934 to 1945.

Lehn (lĕn), Jean Marie. Born 1939. French chemist. He shared a 1987 Nobel Prize for creating artificial molecules that can mimic vital chemical reactions.

le·hu·a (lā-hōō'ə) n. An ornamental evergreen shrub or tree (Metrosideros collinus) of Hawaii and other Pacific islands, having showy red flowers. [Hawaiian.] lei¹ (lā, lā'ē) n. pl. leis. A garland of flowers, especially one worn around the neck. [Hawaiian.]

lei² (lā) n. Plural of leu.

Leib-nitz or Leib-niz (lib'nīts, lip'-), Baron Gottfried Wilhelm von. 1646-1716. German philosopher and mathematician. He invented differential and integral calculus independently of Newton and proposed the metaphysical theory that we live in "the best of all possible worlds."

Leices-ter¹ (lĕs'tər) A borough of central England east-northeast of Birmingham. Built on the site of a Roman settlement, it is an important industrial center in a mining and sheep-raising district. Population, 283,000.

Leices-ter² (lĕs'tər) n. 1. Any of a breed of large, white-faced sheep having long coarse wool, developed in Leicestershire, a county of central England. 2. A hard cheese similar to Cheddar and usually orange.

Leices-ter (lĕs'tər), First Earl of Title of Robert Dudley. 1532?-1588. English courtier who was privy councilor to Elizabeth I and the captain general of her armies from 1587.

Lei-den also Ley-den (līd'n) A city of southwest Netherlands northeast of The Hague. Dating from Roman times, Leiden has had an important textile industry since the 16th century. Its university, founded in 1575, was a noted center for the study of theology, science, and medicine in the 17th and 18th centuries. Population, 104,261.

Lei-dy (lī'dē), Joseph. 1823-1891. American naturalist and anatomist known for his fossil studies in the western United States.

Leigh (lē), Vivien. 1913-1967. British actress who won the Academy Award as best actress for her roles in Gone With the Wind (1939) as Scarlett O'Hara and in A Streetcar Named Desire (1951) as Blanche DuBois.

Leigh-ton (lāt'n), Frederick Baron Leighton of Stretton. 1830-1896. British painter noted for his simple and precise style. Among his works are Venus Disrobing (1867) and The Garden of the Hesperides (1892).

Leins-dorf (līnz'dôrf', līns'-), Erich. Born 1912. Austrian-born American conductor who led the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, the New York City Opera Company, and the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Lein-ster (lĕn'stər) A historical region of southeast Ireland. Its wealth and accessibility made it an early prey to Danish and Anglo-Saxon invasions.

Leip-zig (līp'sīg, -sīk, -tsīk) A city of east-central Germany south-southwest of Berlin. Originally a Slavic settlement called Lipsk, it developed by the early Middle Ages into a major commercial and cultural center. At the so-called Battle of the Nations (October 16-19, 1813), Austrian, Russian, and Prussian forces decisively defeated Napoleon I. Population, 558,994.

leish·man·i·a·sis (lēsh'mə-nī'ə-sīs) n. 1. An infection caused by any of the flagellate protozoans of the genus Leishmania, transmitted to human beings and animals by bloodsucking sand flies. 2. A disease, such as kala-azar or either of two clinically distinct ulcerative skin diseases, caused by flagellate protozoans of the genus Leishmania. [From New Latin Leishmania, genus of protozoans, after Sir William Boog Leishman (1865-1926), British medical officer.]

leis·ter (lē'stər) n. A three-pronged spear used in fishing. — v. tr. leis·tered, leis·ter·ing, leis·ters. To spear (a fish) with a leister. [Of Scandinavian origin.]

lei·sure (lē'zhər, lēzh'ər) n. Freedom from time-consuming duties, responsibilities, or activities. See Synonyms at rest¹. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: leisure time; leisure travel. — idiom. at (one's) leisure.

When one has free time; at one's convenience: I'll return the call at my leisure.

[Middle English, from Norman French leisour, from Old French leisir, to be permitted, from Latin licēre.]

Lei·sure City (lē'zhər sīt'ē) An unincorporated community of southeast Florida southwest of Miami. It is a resort center near Biscayne Bay. Population, 19,379.

lei·sured (lē'zhərd, lēzh'ərd) adj. Characterized by leisure.

lei·sure·ly (lē'zhər-lē, lēzh'ər-) adj. Acting, proceeding, or done without haste; unhurried. See Synonyms at slow. — adv. In an unhurried manner; slowly. — lei'sure·li·ness n.

leisure suit (lē'zhər sōt) n. A man's suit for informal wear, consisting of a shirtlike jacket and matching slacks.

lei·sure·wear (lēzh'ər-wâr', lēzh'ər-) n. Informal, comfortable clothing designed for wear during times of rest and relaxation.

Leith (lēth) A district of Edinburgh, Scotland, on the southern shore of the Firth of Forth. It is a noted seaport and shipbuilding center.

leit·mo·tif also leit·mo·tiv (līt'mō-tēf') n. 1. Music. A melodic passage or phrase, especially in Wagnerian opera, associated with a specific character, situation, or element. 2. A dominant and recurring theme, as in a novel. [German Leitmotiv: leiten, to lead (from Middle High German, from Old High German leitan); see leit- in Appendix + Motiv, motif (from French motif); see MOTIF.]

Lei·zhou Peninsula (lā'jō' pə-nīn'syə-lə) also Lui·chow Peninsula (lwē'jō') A peninsula of southern China between the Gulf of Tonkin and the South China Sea. A narrow strait separates it from the island of Hainan.

lek (lĕk) n. A basic unit of currency in Albania. See Table at currency. [Albanian, after Lek Dukagjin, Albanian feudal lord and lawgiver.]

lek·var (lĕk'vār) n. A sweet spread or pastry filling made of prunes or apricots. [Hungarian lekvár, jam, from Slovak, from Czech lektvar, electuary, from Middle

High German lactwārje, latwērgē, from Old French leituaire, from Late Latin ēlēctuārium, electuary. See ELECTUARY.]

Le-land (lē'lənd) or Ley-land (lā' -), John. 1506?-1552. English antiquarian who made a tour (1533-1545) of Britain to collect historical documents and relics. His notes provided valuable information for later historians.

Le-loir (lə-lwä'r, lě-), Luis Federico. Born 1906. French-born Argentine biochemist. He won a 1970 Nobel Prize for the discovery of sugar nucleotides and their role in the biosynthesis of carbohydrates.

Le-ly (lē'lē, lā' -), Sir Peter. 1618-1680. Dutch painter in England. He was principal painter to Charles II.

LEM (ləm) n. pl. LEMs. A lunar excursion module. [L(UNAR) E(XCURSION) M(ODULE).]

Le-maî-tre (lə-mět'rə), Georges Henri or Édouard. 1894-1966. Belgian astrophysicist who proposed the big bang theory of the origin of the universe (1927).

lem-an (ləm'ən, lē'mən) n. Archaic. 1. A sweetheart; a lover. 2. A mistress. [Middle English leofman, lemman : leof, dear (from Old English lēof); see leubh- in Appendix + man, man; see MAN.]

Le-man (lē'mən, lə-män'), Lake. See Lake Geneva.

Le Mans (lə män') A city of northwest France west-southwest of Paris. Settled in pre-Roman times, it is famous for its annual (since 1906) 24-hour sports car races. Population, 147,697.

Le-may (lə-mā', lē-) A community of east-central Missouri, a suburb on the southern border of St. Louis. Population, 35,424.

lem-ma¹ (ləm'ə) n. pl. lem-mas or lem-ma-ta (ləm'ə-tə). 1. A subsidiary proposition assumed to be valid and used to demonstrate a principal proposition. 2. A theme, an argument, or a subject indicated in a title. 3. A word or phrase treated in a glossary or similar listing. [Latin lemma, from Greek, from lambanein, to take.]

lem-ma² (ləm'ə) n. Botany. The outer or lower of the two bracts that enclose the flower in a grass spikelet. [Greek, husk, from lepein, to peel.]

lem-ma-ta (ləm'ə-tə) n. A plural of lemma¹.

lem-ming (ləm'ing) n. Any of various small, thickset rodents, especially of the genus Lemmus, inhabiting northern regions and known for periodic mass migrations that sometimes end in drowning. [Norwegian.]

lem-nis-cus (ləm-nis'kəs) n. pl. lem-nis-ci (-nis'ī', -nis'kī', -nis'kē). Anatomy. A bundle or band of sensory nerve fibers. [Latin lemniscus, ribbon, from Greek lēmniskos.]

Lem-nos (ləm'nös, -nös, lēm'nôs) also Lím-nos (lēm'nôs) An island of north-east Greece in the Aegean Sea off the coast of Turkey northwest of Lesbos. Occu-ped in ancient times by Greeks, the island was later held by Persians, Romans, Byzantines, and Ottoman Turks. It became part of modern Greece in 1913.

lem·on (ləm'ən) n. 1. a. A spiny, Asian evergreen tree (Citrus limon) widely cultivated for its yellow, egg-shaped fruit. b. The fruit of this tree, having a yellow aromatic rind and juicy, acid pulp. 2. Color. Lemon yellow. 3. Informal. One that is unsatisfactory or defective: Their new car turned out to be a lemon. — adj. 1. Color. Lemon-yellow. 2. a. Made from lemons. b. Tasting or smelling like lemons. [Middle English limon, from Old French, from Old Italian limone, from Arabic laymūn, līmūn, from Persian līmūn.]

WORD HISTORY: Although we know neither where the lemon was first grown nor when it first came to Europe, we do know from its name alone that it came to us from the Middle East, because we can trace its etymological path. One of the earliest if not the earliest occurrences of our word is found in a Middle English customs document of 1420-1421. The Middle English word, which was of the form limon, goes back to Old French limon, showing that yet another delicacy passed into England through France. The Old French word probably came from Italian limone, another step on the route that leads back to the Arabic word laymūn or līmūn, which comes from the Persian word līmūn.

lem·on·ade (ləm'ə-nād') n. A drink made of lemon juice, water, and sugar.

lemonade berry (ləm'ə-nād' bĕr'ĕ) n. An evergreen shrub or tree (Rhus integrifolia) native to southern California and Baja California, having opposite leaves, dark red fruit, and white flowers clustered in a panicle.

lemon balm (ləm'ən bām) n. See balm (n., sense 1a).

lem·on·grass also lemon grass (ləm'ən-gräs') n. A tropical grass (Cymbopogon citratus) native to southern India and Sri Lanka, yielding an aromatic oil used as flavoring and in perfumery and medicine.

Lem-on Grove (ləm'ən grōv) An unincorporated community of southern California, a residential suburb of San Diego. Population, 23,984.

lemon law (ləm'ən lô) n. A law obligating manufacturers or sellers to repair, replace, or refund the price of motor vehicles that prove to be defective.

lemon stick (ləm'ən stĭk) n. Baltimore. A lemon half garnished with a peppermint stick through which the lemon juice is sucked: "Who but a Baltimorean would know how to eat a lemon stick?" (Marian Burros).

lemon verbena (ləm'ən vĕr-bĕ'nə) n. An aromatic shrub (Aloysia triphylla) native to Argentina and Chile, cultivated for its fragrant foliage and flowers.

lem·on·y (ləm'ə-nĕ) adj. Having the characteristic odor, flavor, or color of lemons.

lemon yellow (ləm'ən yĕl'ō) n. Color. A moderate to brilliant vivid yellow. — lem'on-yel'low (ləm'ən-yĕl'ō) adj.

lem·pi·ra (ləm-pîr'ə) n. A basic unit of currency in Honduras. See Table at currency. [American Spanish, after Lempira (1497-1537), Honduran Indian leader who resisted the Spanish conquistadors.]

le·mur (lē'mər) n. Any of several small arboreal, mostly nocturnal primates chiefly of the family Lemuridae of Madagascar and adjacent islands, having large eyes, a long slim muzzle, and a long tail. [New Latin Lemur, genus name, from Latin lemurēs, lemures (from their ghostly appearance and their nocturnal habits).]

lem·u·res (ləm'ə-rās', ləm'yə-rēz') pl.n. The spirits of the dead considered in ancient Rome as frightening specters and often exorcised from the homes in religious rituals. [Latin Lemurēs.]

Le·na (lē'nə, lyě'-) A river of eastern Russia rising near Lake Baikal and flowing about 4,296 km (2,670 mi) northeast and north to the Laptev Sea. Its delta is some 402 km (250 mi) wide.

Len·a·pe (lən'ə-pē) n. pl. Lenape or Len·a·pes. See Delaware¹ (n., sense 1).

Le·nard (lē'närd, -närt), Philipp. 1862-1947. German physicist. He won a 1905 Nobel Prize for his work on cathode rays.

Len·clos or L'En·clos (läN-klō'), Anne. 1620-1705. French courtesan. Her salon was a meeting place for many prominent literary and political figures.

lend (lənd) v. lent (lənt), lend·ing, lends. — v. tr. 1. a. To give or allow the use of temporarily on the condition that the same or its equivalent will be returned. b. To provide (money) temporarily on condition that the amount borrowed be returned, usually with an interest fee. 2. To contribute or impart: Books and a fireplace lent a feeling of warmth to the room. 3. To accommodate or offer (itself) to; be suitable for: The Bible lends itself to various interpretations. — v. intr. To make a loan. See Usage Note at loan. — idiom. lend a helping hand. To be of assistance. [Middle English lenden, from Old English lænan. See leik^w- in Appendix.] — lend'er n.

lend·a·ble (lən'də-bəl) adj. Available for lending: lendable funds; lendable resources.

lend·ing library (lən'dĩŋg lī'brēr'ē) n. A library from which books may be borrowed or rented for a minimal fee. Also called circulating library

Le·nex·a (lə-něk'sə) A city of eastern Kansas, a suburb of Kansas City. Population, 34,034.

L'En·fant (läN-fänt', läN-fän'), Pierre Charles. 1754-1825. French-born architect who designed the basic city plan for Washington, D.C.

length (ləŋkth, lěŋth) n. Abbr. l. 1. The state, quality, or fact of being long. 2. The measurement of the extent of something along its greatest dimension: the length of the boat. 3. A piece, often of a standard size, that is normally measured along its greatest dimension: a length of cloth. 4. A measure used as a unit to estimate distances: won the race by a length. 5. Extent or distance from beginning to end: the length of a novel; the length of a journey. 6. The amount of time between specified moments; the duration: the length of a meeting. 7. Often lengths. Extent or degree to which an action or a policy is carried: went to great lengths to prove his point. 8. Linguistics. a. The duration of a vowel. b. The duration of a syllable. 9. The vertical extent of a garment. Often used in combination: knee-length; floor-length. —idiom. at length. 1. After some time; eventually: At length we arrived at our destination. 2. For a considerable time; fully: spoke at length about the court ruling. [Middle English, from Old English lengthu. See del-¹ in Appendix.]

length·en (lěngk'thən, lěng'-) v. tr. intr. length·ened, length·en·ing, length·ens. To make or become longer. —length'en·er n.

length·ways (lěngkth'wāz', lěngth'-) adv. Lengthwise.

length·wise (lěngkth'wīz', lěngth'-) adv. & adj. Of, along, or in reference to the direction of the length; longitudinally.

length·y (lěngk'thē, lěng'-) adj. length·i·er, length·i·est. 1. Of considerable length, especially in time; extended: a lengthy convalescence. 2. Tediously long; drawn-out: a lengthy explanation. —length'i·ly adv. —length'i·ness n.

le·ni·ence (lē'nē-əns, lēn'yəns) n. Leniency.

le·ni·en·cy (lē'nē-ən-sē, lēn'yən-) n. pl. le·ni·en·cies. 1. The condition or quality of being lenient. See Synonyms at mercy. 2. A lenient act.

le·ni·ent (lē'nē-ənt, lēn'yənt) adj. Inclined not to be harsh or strict; merciful, generous, or indulgent: lenient parents; lenient rules. [Obsolete French, from Latin leniēns, lenient- present participle of lenīre, to pacify, from lēnis, soft. See lē- in Appendix.] —le'ni·ent·ly adv.

Len·i Len·a·pe (lěn'ē lěn'ə-pē) n. Variant of Lenni Lenape.

Le·nin (lěn'in, lyě'nyin), Vladimir Ilich. Known as “Nikolai Lenin.” 1870-1924. Russian founder of the Bolsheviks, leader of the Russian Revolution (1917), and first head of the U.S.S.R. (1917-1924). As a communist theoretician Lenin held that workers could not develop a revolutionary consciousness without the guidance of a vanguard party and that imperialism was a particular stage of capitalist development.

Le·nin·a·bad (lěn'ī-nə-bād', lyī-nī-nəbāt') A city of northwest Tadzhikistan on the Syr Darya River south of Tashkent. One of the oldest towns of central Asia, it marked the farthest eastward expansion of Alexander the Great. Russia annexed the city in 1866. Population, 150,000.

Le·nin·a·kan (lěn'ī-nə-kän', lyī-nī-) A city of northwest Armenia south-southeast of Tbilisi. It was founded on the site of a Turkish fortress. Population, 223,000.

Len·in·grad (lěn'in-grād', lyī-nin-grät') See Saint Petersburg.

Len·in·ism (lěn'ə-nĭz'əm) n. The theory and practice of proletarian revolution as developed by Lenin. — Len'in·ist adj., n. — Len'in·ite' (lěn'ə-nĭt') adj. & n.

Lenin Peak (lěn'in pēk) A mountain, 7,138.5 m (23,405 ft) high, in the Trans Alai on the Kirghiz-Tadzhikistan border. It is the highest peak in the range.

le·nis (lē'nĭs, lā'-) adj. Linguistics. Articulated with relatively low pressure of the airstream below the glottis, as English (b) and (d) compared with (p) and (t). [Latin lēnis, soft. See lē- in Appendix.]

len·i·tive (lěn'ĭ-tĭv) adj. Capable of easing pain or discomfort. — n. A lenitive medicine. [Middle English lenitif, from Old French, from Medieval Latin lēnitivus, from Latin lēnitus, past participle of lēnĭre, to soothe, from lēnis, soft. See lē- in Appendix.] — len'i·tive·ly adv.

len·i·ty (lěn'ĭ-tē) n. The condition or quality of being lenient; leniency. See Synonyms at mercy. [Latin lēnitās, from lēnis, soft. See lē- in Appendix.]

Len·ni Len·a·pe or Len·i Len·a·pe (lěn'ē lěn'ə-pē) n. See Delaware¹ (n., sense 1).

Len·non (lěn'an), John. 1940-1980. British musician and composer who was a member of the Beatles. With Paul McCartney he wrote many of the group's songs, including "Day Tripper."

Len·nox (lěn'əks) An unincorporated community of southern California, an industrial suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 18,445.

le·no (lē'nō) n. pl. le·nos. 1. Weaving in which the warp yarns are paired and twisted. 2. A fabric having such a weave. [Perhaps from French linon, linen fabric, from lin, flax, from Old French, from Latin lĭnum. See LINEN.]

lens (lěnz) n. pl. lens·es. 1. A ground or molded piece of glass, plastic, or other transparent material with opposite surfaces either or both of which are curved, by means of which light rays are refracted so that they converge or diverge to form an image. 2. A combination of two or more such pieces, sometimes with other optical devices such as prisms, used to form an image for viewing or photographing. Also called compound lens 3. A device that causes radiation other than light to converge or diverge by an action analogous to that of an optical lens. 4. A transparent, biconvex body of the eye between the iris and the vitreous humor that focuses light rays entering through the pupil to form an image on the retina. — v. tr. lensed, lens·ing, lens·es. Informal. To make a photograph or movie of. [New Latin lēns, from Latin, lentil (from the shape of a double convex lens).] — lensed adj.

lent (lěnt) v. Past tense and past participle of lend.

Lent (lěnt) n. The 40 weekdays from Ash Wednesday until Easter observed by Christians as a season of fasting and penitence in preparation for Easter. [Middle English lenten, lente, spring, Lent, from Old English lencten. See del¹ in Appendix.]

len·ta·men·te (lĕn'tə-mĕn'tā) adv. & adj. Music. Lento. [Italian, from lento, slow. See LENTO.]

len·tan·do (lĕn-tān'dō) adv. & adj. Music. Slowing gradually. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, present participle of lentare, to make slow, from lento, slow. See LENTO.]

Lent·en (lĕn'tən) adj. 1. Of or relating to Lent: Lenten observances.

2. Characteristic of or appropriate to Lent; meager: Lenten meals.

len·ti·cel (lĕn'tī-sĕl') n. One of the small, corky pores or narrow lines on the surface of the stems of woody plants that allow the interchange of gases between the interior tissue and the surrounding air. [New Latin lenticella, diminutive of lĕns, lent-, lens. See LENS.] —len'ti·cel'late (-sĕl'it) adj.

len·tic·u·lar (lĕn-tĭk'yə-lər) adj. 1. Shaped like a biconvex lens. 2. Of or relating to a lens. [Latin lenticularis, lentil-shaped, from lenticula, lentil. See LENTIL.]

len·ti·go (lĕn-tī'gō) n. pl. len·tig·i·nes (-tĭj'ə-nĕz'). A small, flat, pigmented spot on the skin. [Latin lentigō, lentigin-, from lĕns, lent-, lentil.]

—len·tig'i·nous (-tĭj'ə-nəs), len·tig'i·nose' (-nōs') adj.

len·til (lĕn'təl) n. 1. A leguminous plant (Lens culinaris) native to southwest Asia, having flat pods containing lens-shaped, edible seeds. 2. The round, flattened seed of this plant. [Middle English, from Old French lentille, from Vulgar Latin lentĭcula*, from Latin lenticula, diminutive of lĕns, lent-, lentil.]

len·tisk (lĕn'tĭsk') n. See mastic tree. [Middle English lentiske, from Latin lentiscus.]

len·tis·si·mo (lĕn-tĭs'ī-mō', -tĕ'sĕ-) adv. & adj. Music. Very slowly. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, superlative of lento, slow. See LENTO.]

len·ti·vi·rus (lĕn'tə-vī'rəs) n. pl. len·ti·vi·rus·es. See slow virus. [New Latin Lentivirus, genus name : Latin lentus, slow + VIRUS.]

len·to (lĕn'tō) Music. adv. & adj. In a slow tempo. Used chiefly as a direction. — n. pl. len·tos. A lento passage or movement. [Italian, from Latin lentus, slow.]

Len·ya (lān'yə, lĕn'-), Lotte. 1898-1981. Austrian singer and actress who popularized the music of her husband, Kurt Weill, and appeared in a number of plays by Bertolt Brecht.

Le·o (lē'ō) n. 1. A constellation in the Northern Hemisphere near Cancer and Virgo, containing the bright stars Regulus and Denebola. 2. a. The fifth sign of the zodiac in astrology. b. One who is born under this sign. Also called Lion [Latin Leō, from leō, lion. See LION.]

Le·o I (lē'ō), Saint Known as “Leo the Great.” A.D. 400?-461. Pope (440-461). His negotiations with Attila (452) and Genseric the Vandal (455) saved Rome from barbarian invasion.

Le·o III (lē'ō), Saint. Died 816. Pope (795-816) who crowned Charlemagne emperor (800), causing the division between the Eastern and Western empires.

- Le-o X (lē'ō), Originally Giovanni de Medici. 1475-1521. Pope (1513-1521). During his reign the Reformation began and Martin Luther was excommunicated (1521).
- Leo Minor (lē'ō mī'nər) n. A constellation in the Northern Hemisphere near Leo and Ursa Major. [New Latin Leō Minor : Latin leō, lion; see LION + Latin minor, lesser; see MINOR.]
- Leom-in-ster (lēm'in-stər) A city of north-central Massachusetts south-south-east of Fitchburg. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 38,145.
- Le-ón (lā-ōn') 1. A historical region and former kingdom of northwest Spain. United first with Asturias (eighth-ninth century), it was conquered by Castile in 1037, became independent in 1157, and was rejoined with Castile in 1230. 2. A city of central Mexico east-northeast of Guadalajara. It was founded in the 1570's and today is a commercial and industrial center in a rich mining area. Population, 593,002. 3. A city of western Nicaragua northwest of Managua. Founded in 1524 on Lake Managua, it was moved to its present site after a severe earthquake in 1610. Population, 92,764. 4. A city of northwest Spain at the foot of the Cantabrian Mountains south-southeast of Oviedo. Reconquered from the Moors in 882, it is now a popular tourist center. Population, 133,658.
- Leon-ard (lɛn'ərd), William Ellery. 1876-1944. American poet and educator who wrote the sonnet sequence Two Lives (1925) and translated Beowulf and the works of Lucretius.
- Le-o-nar-do da Vin-ci (lē'ə-när'dō də vɪn'chē, də, lā'-), 1452-1519. Italian painter, engineer, musician, and scientist. The most versatile genius of the Renaissance, Leonardo filled notebooks with engineering and scientific observations that were in some cases centuries ahead of their time. As a painter Leonardo is best known for The Last Supper (c. 1495) and Mona Lisa (c. 1503).
- Le-on-ca-val-lo (lā'ōn-kə-vā'lō, -kə-vāl'-), Ruggiero. 1858-1919. Italian composer who wrote the opera Pagliacci (1892).
- le-one (lē-ōn') n. A basic unit of currency in Sierra Leone. See Table at currency. [After Sierra Leone.]
- Le-o-ne (lā-ō'nā), Monte. A peak, 3,563.3 m (11,683 ft) high, of the Lepontine Alps on the Swiss-Italian border near the Simplon Pass. It is the highest elevation in the range.
- Le-o-nid (lē'ə-nɪd) n. pl. Le-o-nids or Le-on-i-des (lē-ōn'ī-dēz'). One of the falling stars of the meteor shower recurring annually in mid-November. [From Latin Leō, Leōn-, Leo. See LEO.]
- Le-on-i-das I (lē-ōn'ī-dəs), Died 480 B.C. Spartan king (490-480) who led a small force against a huge Persian army at the pass of Thermopylae (480). All of the Spartans, including Leonidas, were killed.

le·o·nine (lē'ə-nīn') adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a lion. [Middle English, from Old French leonin, from Latin leōnīnus, from leō, leōn-, lion. See LION.]

leonine rhyme (lē'ə-nīn' rīm) n. A form of internal rhyme in which the word preceding the caesura rhymes with the final word in the line, as in: "For the moon never beams without bringing me dreams" (Edgar Allan Poe). [Probably after Leo or Leonius, name of an unknown medieval poet.]

Le-on·tief (lē-ôn'tyēf, -ōn'-), Wassily. Born 1906. Russian-born American economist. He won a 1973 Nobel Prize for devising the input-output technique of economic analysis.

leopard (lēp'ərd) n. 1. a. A large, ferocious cat (Panthera pardus) of Africa and southern Asia, having either tawny fur with dark rosettelike markings or black fur. b. Any of several felines, such as the cheetah or the snow leopard. c. The pelt or fur of this animal. 2. Heraldry. A lion in side view, having one forepaw raised and the head facing the observer. [Middle English, from Old French leupart, from Late Latin leopardus, from Greek leopardos: Greek leōn, lion; see LION + Greek pardos, pard; see PARD.]

leopard·ess (lēp'ər-dīs) n. A female leopard.

leopard flower (lēp'ərd flou'ər) n. See blackberry lily.

Le·o·par·di (lā'ə-pär'dē, lē'ō-), Conte Giacomo. 1798-1837. Italian writer whose major prose work is Essays, Dialogues, and Thoughts (1824-1832).

leopard lily (lēp'ərd līl'ē) n. A tall plant (Lilium pardalinum) native to California and southwest Oregon, having nodding, dark-spotted, orange-red flowers.

leopard moth (lēp'ərd môth) n. A large moth (Zeuzera pyrina) having white wings with black spots and larvae that damage trees by boring into the wood.

leopard's bane (lēp'ərdz bān) n. 1. Any of several widely cultivated ornamental plants of the genus Doronicum native to Eurasia, having rayed, yellow flower heads borne on long stalks. 2. Any of several similar or related plants.

Le·o·pold I (lē'ə-pōld'), 1640-1705. King of Hungary (1655-1705) and Bohemia (1656-1705) and Holy Roman emperor (1658-1705). He fought with the Turks and the French for most of his reign and consolidated his authority in the empire.

Le·o·pold II (lē'ə-pōld'), 1835-1909. King of Belgium (1865-1909) who also reigned in the Congo Free State (now Zaire) from 1876 to 1904, when he was forced to abdicate because of his harsh treatment of the native population.

Le·o·pold·ville (lē'ə-pōld-vīl', lā'-) See Kinshasa.

le·o·tard (lē'ə-tärd') n. 1. A snugly fitting, stretchable one-piece garment with or without sleeves that covers the torso, worn especially by dancers, gymnasts, acrobats, and those engaging in exercise workouts. 2. leotards. Tights. [After Jules Léotard (1830-1870), French aerialist.] —le'·o·tard'ed adj.

Le·pan·to (lē-pän'tō, lē'pän-tō), Gulf of. See Gulf of Corinth.

Lep·cha (ləp'chə) n. pl. Lepcha or Lep·chas. 1. A member of a Buddhist people living in Sikkim. 2. The Tibeto-Burman language of the Lepcha.

lep·er (ləp'ər) n. 1. A person affected by leprosy. 2. A person who is avoided by others; a pariah. [Middle English, from lepre, leprosy, from Old French, from Late Latin lepra, from Greek lepros, scaly, from lepis, lepos, scale.]

lepido- pref. Scale; flake: lepidopteran. [Greek, from lepis, lepid-.]

le·pid·o·lite (lī-pīd'ī-īt') n. A lilac or pink to gray mineral of the mica group, $K(\text{Li},\text{Al})_3(\text{Si},\text{Al})_4\text{O}_{10}(\text{F},\text{OH})_2$, used as lithium ore and in ceramic production. [LEPIDO- + -LITE.]

lep·i·dop·ter·an (ləp'ī-dōp'tər-ən) n. An insect belonging to the large order Lepidoptera, which includes the butterflies and moths, characterized by four membranous wings covered with small scales. — adj. Lepidopterous. [From New Latin Lepidoptera, order name : LEPIDO- + Greek ptera, pl. of pteron, wing, winged creature; see -PTER.]

lep·i·dop·ter·ist (ləp'ī-dōp'tər-īst) n. An entomologist specializing in the study of butterflies and moths.

lep·i·dop·ter·ous (ləp'ī-dōp'tər-əs) adj. Of or belonging to the order Lepidoptera, which includes insects such as the butterflies and moths.

lep·i·dote (ləp'ī-dōt') adj. Covered with small, scurfy scales. [Greek lepidōtos, scaly, from lepis, lepid-, scale.]

Lep·i·dus (ləp'ī-dəs), Marcus Aemilius. Died 13 B.C. Roman leader. He was a member of the triumvirate with Augustus and Mark Antony (43-36 B.C.).

Le·pon·tic (lī-pōn'tik) n. An ancient Indo-European language of northeast Italy and southern Switzerland, known from inscriptions dated from the third century B.C. [From Latin Lēpontīi, a people of Cisalpine Gaul.] — Le·pon'tic adj.

Le·pon·tine Alps (lī-pōn'tīn' əlps) A range of the central Alps in southern Switzerland and along the Swiss-Italian border. The highest point is Monte Leone, rising to 3,563.3 m (11,683 ft).

lep·o·rine (ləp'ə-rīn', -ər-īn) adj. Of or characteristic of rabbits or hares. [Latin leporīnus, from lepus, lepor-, hare.]

lep·re·chaun (ləp'rī-kōn', -kōn') n. One of a race of elves in Irish folklore who can reveal hidden treasure to someone who catches him. [Irish Gaelic luprachán, alteration of Middle Irish luchrupán, from Old Irish luchorpān : luchorp (lū-, small; see leg^wh- in Appendix + corp, body from Latin corpus); see k^wrep- in Appendix + -ān, diminutive suff.] — lep're·chaun'ish adj.

WORD HISTORY: Nothing seems more Irish than the leprechaun; yet, hiding within the word leprechaun is a word from another language entirely. If we look back beyond Modern Irish Gaelic luprachán and Middle Irish luchrupán to Old Irish luchorpān, we can see the connection. Luchorpān is a compound of Old Irish lū, meaning “small,” and the Old Irish word corp, “body.” Corp is borrowed from Latin corpus (which we know from habeas corpus). Here is a piece of evidence attesting to the deep influence of Church Latin on the Irish language. Although the word is old in Irish it is fairly new in English, being first recorded in 1604.

lep·ro·sar·i·um (ləp' rə-sâr' ē-əm) n. pl. lep·ro·sar·i·ums or lep·ro·sar·i·a (-ē-ə). A hospital for the treatment of leprosy. [Medieval Latin leprōsārium, from Late Latin leprōsus, leprous. See LEPROUS.]

lep·rose (ləp' rōs') adj. Scuffy or scaly; leprous. [Late Latin leprōsus. See LEPROUS.]

lep·ro·sy (ləp' rə-sē) n. A chronic, mildly contagious granulomatous disease of tropical and subtropical regions, caused by the bacillus Mycobacterium leprae, characterized by ulcers of the skin, bone, and viscera and leading to loss of sensation, paralysis, gangrene, and deformation. [Middle English lepruse, from leprus, leprous. See LEPROUS.] —lep·rot'ic (lə-prōt'ik) adj.

lep·rous (ləp' rəs) adj. 1. Having leprosy. 2. Of, relating to, or resembling leprosy. 3. Biology. Having or consisting of loose, scuffy scales. [Middle English leprus, from Old French lepros, from Late Latin leprōsus, from lepra, leprosy. See LEPER.] —lep'rous-ly adv. —lep'rous-ness n.

-lepsy suff. Fit; seizure: narcolepsy. [New Latin -lēpsia, from Greek, from lēpsis, seizure, from lambanein, lēp-, to take, seize.]

lept- pref. Variant of lepto-.

lep·ta (ləp' tə) n. Plural of lepton¹.

Lep·tis Mag·na (ləp' tīs mäg' nə) An ancient city of northern Africa in present-day Libya east of Tripoli. Founded by Phoenicians, it flourished as a port during Roman times and is today noted for its impressive ruins.

lepto- or lept- pref. Slender; thin; fine: leptocephalus. [Greek, from leptos, fine, thin, from lepein, to peel.]

lep·to·ceph·a·lus (ləp' tə-sĕf' ə-ləs) n. pl. lep·to·ceph·a·li (-lī'). One of the small, flat, transparent larvae of eels and certain other fishes, characterized by a long, narrow head. [New Latin : LEPTO- + cephalus, head (from Greek -kephalos, -headed); see -CEPHALOUS.]

lep·ton¹ (ləp' tōn') n. pl. lep·ta (-tə). A unit of currency in Greece. See Table at currency. [Modern Greek, from Greek, small coin, from neuter of leptos, fine, small. See LEPTO-.]

lep·ton² (ləp' tōn') n. Any of a family of elementary particles that participate in the weak interaction, including the electron, the muon, and their associated neutrinos. [LEPTO- + -ON¹.] —lep·ton'ic (-tōn'ik) adj.

lep·to·some (ləp' tə-sōm') n. A person with a slender, thin, or frail body. —lep' to·so·mat'ic (-sō-măt'ik) adj.

lep·to·spi·ro·sis (ləp' tō-spī-rō'sīs) n. An infectious disease of domestic animals, especially cattle, swine, and dogs, caused by spirochetes of the genus Lep- tospira and characterized by jaundice and fever. Also called swamp fever [New Latin Leptospiira, genus name (LEPTO- + Latin spīra, coil); see SPIRAL + -OSIS.]

Le-pus (lē'pəs) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Orion and Columba. [Latin, from lepus, hare.]

Lé-ri-da (lā'rī-də, lě'rē-thä) A city of northeast Spain west of Barcelona. Julius Caesar defeated Pompey's generals here in 49 B.C. During the Spanish Civil War it was a key defense point for Barcelona but fell to the Nationalists (April 1938) after a nine-month battle. Population, 87,800.

Ler-mon-tov (lěr'mən-tôf', lyěr'mən-təf), Mikhail Yurievich. 1814-1841. Russian writer who is remembered for the novel A Hero of Our Time (1840) and his many poems. He died in a duel.

Ler-ner (lûr'nər), Alan Jay. 1918-1986. American playwright and lyricist. He wrote a number of musicals with the composer Frederick Loewe, including Brigadoon (1947) and My Fair Lady (1956).

Le-sage (lə-sāzh'), Alain René. 1668-1747. French writer. His novel Gil Blas (1715-1735) had a major influence on modern realistic fiction.

les-bi-an (lěz'bēən) n. A gay or homosexual woman. — adj. Of, relating to, or being a lesbian. [From the putative homosexuality of Sappho, lyric poet of Lesbos.]

Les-bi-an (lěz'bē-ən) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Lesbos. 2. The ancient Greek dialect of Lesbos. — adj. Of or relating to Lesbos. [From Latin Lesbius, from Greek Lesbios, from Lesbos.]

les-bi-an-ism (lěz'bē-ə-nīz'əm) n. Sexual orientation of women to other women.

Les-bos (lěz'bös, -bōs) also Lés-vos (-vōs) An island of eastern Greece in the Aegean Sea near the northwest coast of Turkey. An important Aeolian settlement, Lesbos was noted for its lyric poets, including Sappho, in the seventh century B.C. After occupation by various powers, the island was annexed by Greece in 1913.

Le-sche-titz-ky (lěsh'ə-tīt'skē), Theodor. 1830-1915. Polish pianist and teacher whose pupils included Artur Schnabel and Ignace Paderewski.

lese maj-es-ty also lèse ma-jes-té (lěz' məj'ī-stē) n. pl. lese maj-es-ties or lèse ma-jes-tés. 1. An offense or a crime committed against the ruler or supreme power of a state. 2. An affront to another's dignity. [Partial translation of French lèse-majesté, from Latin (crimen) laesae māiestātis, (the crime) of injured majesty : laesae, feminine genitive of laesus past participle of laedere, to injure + māiestātis, genitive of māiestās, majesty.]

le-sion (lē'zhən) n. 1. A wound or an injury. 2. A localized pathological change in a bodily organ or tissue. 3. An infected or diseased patch of skin. [Middle English lesioun, from Old French lesion, from Latin laesiō, laesiōn-, from laesus, past participle of laedere, to injure.]

Le-so-tho (lə-sō'tō, -sōō'tōō) Formerly Ba-su-to-land (bə-sōō'tō-länd'). A country of southern Africa forming an enclave within east-central South Africa. It became a British protectorate in 1868 and achieved its independence in 1966. Maseru is the capital. Population, 1,213,960.

les-pe-de-za (ləs'pī-dē'zə) n. See bush clover. [New Latin Lespedeza, genus name, after V.M. de Céspedes (misread as Léspedes; fl. 1785), Spanish governor of Florida.]

less (ləs) adj. A comparative of little. 1. Not as great in amount or quantity: had less time to spend with the family. 2. Lower in importance, esteem, or rank: no less a person than the ambassador. 3. Consisting of a smaller number. See Usage Note at few. — prep. With the deduction of; minus: Five less two is three. — adv. Comparative of little. To a smaller extent, degree, or frequency: less happy; less expensive. — n. 1. A smaller amount: She received less than she asked for. 2. Something not as important as something else: People have been punished for less. — idioms. less than. Not at all: He had a less than favorable view of the matter. much less (or still less). Certainly not: I'm not blaming anyone, much less you. [Middle English lesse, from Old English læssa (adj.), and læs (adv.); see leis-² in Appendix.]

-less suff. 1. Without; lacking: blameless. 2. Unable to act or be acted on in a specified way: dauntless. [Middle English -lesse, from Old English -lēas, from lēas, without. See leu- in Appendix.]

les-see (lə-sē') n. One that holds a lease. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, from past participle of lesser, to let out, lease. See LEASE.]

less-en (ləs'ən) v. less-ened, less-en-ing, less-ens. — v. tr. 1. To make less; reduce. 2. Archaic. To make little of; belittle. — v. intr. To become less; decrease. See Synonyms at decrease. [Middle English lessen, lessenen, from lesse, less. See LESS.]

Les-seps (ləs'əps, lə-sěps'), Vicomte Ferdinand Marie de. 1805-1894. French diplomat and engineer who supervised the construction of the Suez Canal (1859-1869). He directed the company that began the Panama Canal (1878) but abandoned the project because of bankruptcy (1888).

less-er (ləs'ər) adj. A comparative of little. 1. Smaller in amount, value, or importance, especially in a comparison between two things: chose the lesser evil. 2. Of a smaller size than other, similar forms: the lesser anteatr. [Middle English, from lesse, less. See LESS.]

Less-er An-til-les (ləs'ər ən-tīl'ēz) An island group of the eastern West Indies extending in an arc from Curaçao to the Virgin Islands.

lesser celandine (ləs'ər səl'ən-dīn') n. A Eurasian plant (Ranunculus ficaria) having heart-shaped leaves, solitary yellow flowers, and tuberous roots.

lesser omentum (ləs'ər ō-měn'təm) n. Anatomy. A fold of the peritoneum joining parts of the stomach and duodenum to the liver.

lesser panda (ləs'ər pän'də) n. See panda (n., sense 2).

Lesser Slave Lake (ləs'ər slāv lāk) A lake of central Alberta, Canada, drained by the Lesser Slave River, a tributary of the Athabasca River.

Lesser Sun-da Islands (ləs'ər sūn'də ī'ləndz, sōōn'-) See Sunda Islands.

Les-sing (ləs'ɪŋ), Doris. Born 1919. British writer known for her five-volume series Children of Violence (1952-1969) and for The Golden Notebook (1962).

Les-sing (ləs'ɪŋ), Gotthold Ephraim. 1729-1781. German playwright and critic. A leader of the Enlightenment, he wrote the plays Minna von Barnheim (1763) and Nathan the Wise (1779).

les-son (ləs'ən) n. 1. Something to be learned: lessons from observing nature.

2. a. A period of instruction; a class. b. An assignment or exercise in which something is to be learned. c. The act or an instance of instructing; teaching.

3. a. An experience, example, or observation that imparts beneficial new knowledge or wisdom. b. The knowledge or wisdom so acquired. 4. A rebuke or reprimand. 5. Often Lesson. A reading from the Bible or other sacred text as part of a religious service. — v. tr. les-soned, les-son-ing, les-sons. 1. To teach a lesson to; instruct. 2. To rebuke or reprimand. [Middle English lessoun, from Old French leson, from Latin lēctiō, lēctiōn-, a reading, from lēctus, past participle of legere, to read. See leg- in Appendix.]

les-sor (ləs'ôr', lě-sôr') n. One that lets property under a lease. [Middle English lessour, from Anglo-Norman, from lesser, to let out, lease. See LEASE.]

lest (lēst) conj. For fear that: tiptoed lest the guard should hear her; anxious lest he become ill. [Middle English, from Old English thȳ lāes the, so that not, from lāes, less. See LESS.]

Lés-vos (ləz'vôs) See Lesbos.

let¹ (lēt) v. let, let-ting, lets. — v. tr. 1. To give permission or opportunity to; allow: I let them borrow the car. The inheritance let us finally buy a house. See Usage Note at leave¹. 2. To cause to; make: Let the news be known. 3. a. Used as an auxiliary in the imperative to express a command, request, or proposal: Let's finish the job! Let x equal y. b. Used as an auxiliary in the imperative to express a warning or threat: Just let her try! 4. To permit to enter, proceed, or depart: let the dog in. 5. To release from or as if from confinement: let the air out of the balloon; let out a yelp. 6. To rent or lease: let rooms. 7. To award, especially after bids have been submitted: let the construction job to a new firm. — v. intr.

1. To become rented or leased. 2. To be or become assigned, as to a contractor. — phrasal verbs. let down. 1. To cause to come down gradually; lower: let down the sails. 2. a. To withdraw support from; forsake. b. To fail to meet the expectations of; disappoint. 3. a. To withdraw support from; forsake. b. To fail to meet the expectations of; disappoint. let on. 4. To allow to be known; admit: Don't let on that you know me. 5. To pretend. let out. 6. To come to a close; end: School let out early. The play let out at 11 P.M. 7. To make known; reveal: Who let that story out? 8. To increase the size of (a garment, for example): let out a coat.

let up. 9. To slow down; diminish: didn't let up in their efforts. 10. To come to a stop; cease: The rain let up. —idioms. let alone. Not to mention; much less: "Their ancestors had been dirt poor and never saw royalty, let alone hung around with them" (Garrison Keillor). let go. To cease to employ; dismiss: had to let 20 workers go. let off on. Informal. To cause to diminish, as in pressure; ease up on: Let off on the gas so that we do not exceed the speed limit. let (one's) hair down. To drop one's reserve or inhibitions. let up on. To be or become more lenient with: Why don't you let up on the poor child? [Middle English leten, from Old English lātan. See lē- in Appendix.]

let² (lēt) n. 1. Something that hinders; an obstacle: free to investigate without let or hindrance. 2. Sports. An invalid stroke in tennis and other net games that must be repeated. — v. tr. let-ted or let, let-ting, lets. Archaic. To hinder or obstruct. [Middle English lette, from letten, to hinder, from Old English lettan. See lē- in Appendix.]

-let suff. 1. Small one: craterlet. 2. Something worn on: armlet. [Middle English, from Old French -elet, diminutive suff. : -el (from Latin -ellus) + -et, -et.]

letch also lech (lēch) n. 1. A strong, especially sexual desire or craving. 2. A lecher. [Perhaps back-formation from obsolete letcher, variant of LECHER.]

let-down (lēt'doun') n. 1. A decrease, decline, or relaxation, as of effort or energy. 2. A disappointment: The cancellation of the game was a real letdown. 3. The descent made by an aircraft in order to land.

le-thal (lē'thəl) adj. 1. Capable of causing death. 2. Of, relating to, or causing death. See Synonyms at fatal. 3. Extremely harmful; devastating: accusations lethal to the candidate's image. [Late Latin lēthālis, alteration (probably influenced by Lēthē, Lethe), of Latin lētālis, from lētum, death.] —le-thal'i-ty (lē-thāl'i-tē) n. —le'thal-ly adv.

lethal gene (lē'thəl jēn) n. A gene whose expression results in the death of the organism.

le-thar-gic (lə-thär'jĭk) adj. Of, causing, or characterized by lethargy. —le-thar'gi-cal-ly adv.

leth-ar-gy (lēth'ər-jē) n. pl. leth-ar-gies. 1. A state of sluggishness, inactivity, and apathy. 2. A state of unconsciousness resembling deep sleep. [Middle English letargie, from Old French, from Late Latin lēthārgia, from Greek lēthargia, from lēthargos, forgetful : lēthē, forgetfulness + argos, idle (a-, without; see a-¹ + ergon, work); see ERG.]

SYNONYMS: lethargy, lassitude, torpor, torpidity, stupor, languor. These nouns refer to a deficiency in mental and physical alertness and activity. Lethargy, a state of sluggishness and inactivity, may be caused by factors such as illness, fatigue, or overwork, but it manifests itself in drowsy dullness or apathy: A surprise military attack roused the nation from its lethargy. Lassitude implies weariness or diminished energy such as might result from physical or mental strain: “His anger had evaporated; he felt nothing but utter lassitude” (John Galsworthy). Torpor and torpidity suggest the suspension of activity characteristic of an animal in hibernation; they imply lethargy or inertia: “My calmness was the torpor of despair” (Charles Brockden Brown). Nothing could dispel the torpidity of the indifferent audience. Stupor, which is marked by cessation or great decrease of mental activity or feeling, is often produced by sleepiness, illness, or the effects of alcohol or narcotics; it suggests a benumbed or dazed state: “The huge height of the buildings... the hubbub and endless stir... struck me into a kind of stupor of surprise” (Robert Louis Stevenson). Languor is the lack of energy or spirit typical of one who is indolent or satiated by a life of luxury or pleasure: “But for the criminal... languor which characterized that commander’s movements... the honor of France might still have been saved” (John Lothrop Motley).

Leth·bridge (lēth’brīj’) A city of southern Alberta, Canada, south-southeast of Calgary. It is a commercial center in an irrigated farming region. Population, 54,072.

le·the (lē’tlē) n. 1. Lethe. Greek Mythology. The river of forgetfulness, one of the five rivers in Hades. 2. A condition of forgetfulness; oblivion. [Greek Lēthē.] — le·the·an adj.

Le·to (lē’tō) n. Greek Mythology. A consort of Zeus and the mother of Apollo and Artemis.

let·out (lē’t’out’) n. Chiefly British. A means of evasion or avoidance.

let’s (lēts) Let us.

Lett (lēt) n. A member of a Baltic people constituting the main population of Latvia. [German Lette, from Latvian Latvi.]

let·ter (lē’t’ər) n. 1. A written symbol or character representing a speech sound and being a component of an alphabet. 2. A written or printed communication directed to a person or an organization. 3. Often letters. A certified document granting rights to its bearer. 4. Literal meaning: had to adhere to the letter of the law. 5. letters. (used with a sing. verb). a. Literary culture; belles-lettres. b. Learning or knowledge, especially of literature. c. Literature or writing as a profession. 6. Printing. a. A piece of type that prints a single character. b. A specific style of type. c. The characters in one style of type. 7. An emblem in the shape of the initial of a school awarded for outstanding performance, especially in varsity athletics. — v. let·tered, let·ter·ing, let·ters. — v. tr. 1. To write letters on. 2. To write in letters. — v. intr. 1. To write or form letters. 2. To earn a school letter, as for outstanding athletic achievement: She lettered in three collegiate sports. — idiom. to the letter. To the last detail; exactly: followed instructions to the letter. [Middle English, from Old French lettre, from Latin littera, perhaps from Etruscan, from Greek diphthera, hide, leather, writing surface.] —let'ter·er n.

SYNONYMS: letter, epistle, missive, note. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a written communication directed to another”: received a letter of complaint; the Epistles of the New Testament; a missive of condolence; a thank-you note.

letter bomb (lět'ər böm) n. An explosive mailed in an envelope to a designated victim.

let·ter·box (lět'ər-böks') n. See mailbox (n., sense 2).

letter carrier (lět'ər kăr'ē-ər) n. A person, especially a postal worker, who delivers mail. Also called mail carrier let·tered (lět'ərd) adj. 1. a. Educated to read and write; literate. b. Highly educated; learned. 2. Of or relating to literacy or learning. 3. Inscribed or marked with or as if with letters.

let·ter·form (lět'ər-fôrm') n. The development or design of the shape of an alphabet letter.

let·ter·head (lět'ər-hěd') n. 1. The heading at the top of a sheet of letter paper, usually consisting of a name and an address. 2. Stationery imprinted with such a heading.

let·ter·ing (lět'ər-ĩng) n. 1. The act, process, or art of forming letters. 2. Letters inscribed, as on a sign.

let·ter·man (lět'ər-măn', -mən) n. A secondary or college student who has earned a letter in a particular activity, especially a varsity sport.

letter of credence (lět'ər ÷v krəd'ns) n. An official document conveying the credentials of a diplomatic envoy to a foreign government. Also called letters of credence letter of credit (lět'ər ÷v krəd'it) n. pl. letters of credit. Abbr. L/C A letter issued by a bank authorizing the bearer to draw a stated amount of money from the issuing bank, its branches, or other associated banks or agencies.

letter of intent (lět'ər ÷v ĩn-těnt') n. pl. letters of intent. A written statement expressing the intention of the undersigned to enter into a formal agreement, especially a business arrangement or transaction.

letter of marque (lět'ər ÷v märk) n. See letters of marque.

let·ter·per·fect (lět'ər-pûr'fikt) adj. Correct to the last detail, especially being in or following the exact words.

let·ter·press (lět'ər-prěs') n. 1. a. The process of printing from a raised inked surface. b. Something printed in this fashion. 2. Chiefly British. The text, as of a book, distinct from illustrations or other ornamentation.

let-ter-qual-i-ty (lĕt'ər-kwŏl'ī-tē) adj. Of or producing printed characters similar in clarity to those produced by a conventional typewriter: a letter-quality computer printer; letter-quality output.

let-ters of administration (lĕt'ərz ŭv ăd-mĭn'ī-strā'shən) pl.n. A legal document entrusting an individual with the administration of the estate of a deceased person.

letters of credence (lĕt'ərz ŭv krĕd'nŭs) pl.n. See letter of credence.

letters of marque (lĕt'ərz ŭv mārĕk) pl.n. 1. A document issued by a nation allowing a private citizen to seize citizens or goods of another nation. 2. A document issued by a nation allowing a private citizen to equip a ship with arms in order to attack enemy ships. Also called letter of marque [Middle English letters of mark, from Old French marque, mark, seizure, reprisal. See MARQUETRY.]

letters patent (lĕt'ərz păt'nt) pl.n. A document issued by a government to a patentee granting an exclusive right to the enjoyment or possession of an invention.

letters testamentary (lĕt'ərz tĕs'tə-mĕn'tə-rĕ) pl.n. A document issued by a probate court or officer informing an executor of a will of his or her appointment and empowering the executor to discharge the appointed responsibilities.

Let-tish (lĕt'ish) adj. Of or relating to the Letts or their language or culture. — n. See Latvian (n., sense 2).

let-tuce (lĕt'əs) n. 1. a. Any of various plants of the genus Lactuca, especially L. sativa, cultivated for their edible leaves. b. The leaves of L. sativa, used especially in salads. 2. Slang. Paper money. [Middle English lettuse, from Old French laitues, pl. of laitue, from Latin lactūca, from lac, lact-, milk (from its milky juice). See melg- in Appendix.]

let-up (lĕt'ŭp') n. 1. A reduction in pace, force, or intensity; a slowdown. 2. A temporary stop; a pause.

le-u (lĕ'ŭ) n. pl. lei (lā). A basic unit of currency in Romania. See Table at currency. [Romanian, from Latin leō, lion (from the image of a lion on a coin used in the late Ottoman Empire). See LION.]

leuc- pref. Variant of leuko-.

leu-cine (lō'ŭsĕn') n. An essential amino acid, C₄H₉CH(NH₂)COOH, derived from the hydrolysis of protein by pancreatic enzymes during digestion and necessary for optimal growth in infants and children and for the maintenance of nitrogen balance in adults. [LEUC(O)- + -INE².]

leu-cite (lō'ŭsīt') n. A white or gray mineral of potassium aluminum silicate, KAlSi₂O₆. — leu-cit'ic (-sīt'ik) adj.

leuco- pref. Variant of leuko-.

leu-co-cyte (lō'ŭkə-sīt') n. Variant of leukocyte.

leu-co-cy-to-sis (lō'ŭkə-sī-tō'sis) n. Variant of leukocytosis.

leu-co-der-ma (lō'ŭkə-dŭr'mə) n. Variant of leukoderma.

leu·co·pe·ni·a (lōō'kə-pē'nē-ə) n. Variant of leukopenia.

leu·co·plast (lōō'kə-pläst') also leu·co·plas·tid (lōō'kə-pläs'tid) n. A colorless plastid in the cytoplasm of plant cells around which starch collects.

leu·cor·rhe·a (lōō'kə-rē'ə) n. Variant of leukorrhea.

leu·cot·o·my (lōō-kōt'əmē) n. Variant of leukotomy.

Leuc·tra (lōōk'trə) A village of ancient Greece southwest of Thebes. It was the site of a major Spartan defeat by the Thebans (371 B.C.).

leuk- pref. Variant of leuko-.

leu·ke·mi·a (lōō-kē'mē-ə) n. Any of various acute or chronic neoplastic diseases of the bone marrow in which unrestrained proliferation of white blood cells occurs, usually accompanied by anemia, impaired blood clotting, and enlargement of the lymph nodes, liver, and spleen. —leu·ke'mic adj. & n.

leuko- or leuk- also leuco- or leuc- pref. 1. White; colorless: leukoderma. 2. Leukocyte: leukopenia. [Greek, from leukos, clear, white. See leuk- in Appendix.]

leu·ko·cyte also leu·co·cyte (lōō'kə-sīt') n. See white blood cell.

—leu'ko·cyt'ic (-sīt'ik) adj. —leu'ko·cy'toid' adj.

leu·ko·cy·to·sis also leu·co·cy·to·sis (lōō'kə-sī-tō'sis) n. pl.

leu·ko·cy·to·ses (-sēz). An abnormally large increase in the number of white blood cells in the blood, often occurring during an acute infection or inflammation. —leu'ko·cy·tot'ic (-tōt'ik) adj.

leu·ko·der·ma also leu·co·der·ma (lōō'kə-dûr'mə) n. Partial or total loss of skin pigmentation, often occurring in patches. Also called vitiligo leu·ko·pe·ni·a also leu·co·pe·ni·a (lōō'kə-pē'nē-ə) n. An abnormally low number of leukocytes in the circulating blood. —leu'ko·pe'nic adj.

—leu'ko·der'mal, leu'ko·der'mic adj.

leu·ko·pla·ki·a (lōō'kə-plā'kē-ə) n. An abnormal condition characterized by white spots or patches on mucous membranes, especially of the mouth and vulva. Also called leukoplasia [New Latin : LEUKO- + Greek plax, plak-, flat area; see plāk⁻¹ in Appendix + -IA¹.]

leuk·o·pla·sia (lōō'kə-plā'zhə, -zhē-ə, -zē-ə) n. See leukoplakia.

leu·kor·rhe·a also leu·cor·rhe·a (lōō'kə-rē'ə) n. A thick, whitish discharge from the vagina or cervical canal. —leu'kor·rhe'al adj.

leu·kot·o·my also leu·cot·o·my (lōō-kōt'ə-mē) n. pl. leu·kot·o·mies.

Chiefly British. A prefrontal lobotomy. [LEUKO- (referring to the white matter of the brain) + -TOMY.]

leu·ko·tri·ene (lōō'kə-trī'ēn) n. Any of several lipid compounds that contain 20 carbon atoms, are related to prostaglandins, and mediate the inflammatory response. [LEUKO(CYTE) + triene, a compound containing three double bonds (TRI- + -ENE).]

Leut-ze (loi'tsə), Emanuel Gottlieb. 1816-1868. German painter of historical scenes, most notably Washington Crossing the Delaware (1851).

Leu-ven (lěv'ən) See Louvain.

Leu-wen-hoek (lā'vən-hoök', lā'ü-wən-hoök'), Anton van. See Anton van Leeuwenhoek.

lev (lěf) n. pl. lev-a (lěv'ə). A basic unit of currency in Bulgaria. See Table at currency. [Bulgarian, lion, lev, from Old Church Slavonic livŭ, lion, probably from Old High German lewo, from Latin leō. See LION.]

lev- pref. Variant of levo-.

Lev. abbr. Bible. Leviticus.

lev-a (lěv'ə) n. Plural of lev.

Lev-al-loi-si-an (lěv'ə-loi'zē-ən) adj. Of or relating to a western European stage in lower Paleolithic culture, characterized by a distinctive method of striking off flake tools from pieces of flint. [After Levallois(-Perret).]

Le-val-lois-Per-ret (lə-väl-wä'pě-rā') A city of north-central France, a residential and industrial suburb of Paris on the Seine River. Population, 53,500.

le-vant (lə-vänt') v. intr. le-vant-ed, le-vant-ing, le-vants. Chiefly British. To leave hurriedly or in secret to avoid unpaid debts. [Possibly from Spanish levantar (el campo), to lift, break (camp), from Vulgar Latin levantāre*, from Latin levāns, levant- present participle of levāre, to raise. See LEVER.]

Le-vent¹ (lə-vänt') The countries bordering on the eastern Mediterranean Sea from Turkey to Egypt. — Le/van-tine' (lěv'ən-tīn', -tēn', lə-vän'-) adj. & n.

Le-vent² (lə-vänt') n. A heavy, coarse-grained morocco leather often used in bookbinding. Also called Levant morocco [After Levant¹.]

le-vant-er (lə-vän'tər) n. 1. A strong easterly wind of the Mediterranean area. 2. Levanter. A native or inhabitant of the Levant.

Levant morocco (lə-vänt' mə-rōk'ō) n. See Levant².

le-va-tor (lə-vā'tər) n. pl. lev-a-to-res (lěv'ə-tōr'ēz, -tōr'-). 1. Anatomy. A muscle that raises a bodily part. 2. A surgical instrument for lifting the depressed fragments of a fractured skull. [New Latin, from Medieval Latin levātor, one that raises, from Latin levāre, to raise. See LEVER.]

lev-ee¹ (lěv'ē) n. 1. An embankment raised to prevent a river from overflowing. 2. A small ridge or raised area bordering an irrigated field. 3. A landing place on a river; a pier. — v. tr. lev-ee-d, lev-ee-ing, lev-ees. To provide with a levee. [French levée, from Old French levee, from feminine past participle of lever, to raise. See LEVER.]

lev-ee² (lěv'ē, lə-vē', -vā') n. 1. A reception held, as by royalty, upon arising from bed. 2. A formal reception, as at a royal court. [From French lever, a rising, from Old French, from lever, to raise, rise. See LEVER.]

lev-el (lěv'əl) n. 1. a. Relative position or rank on a scale: the local level of government; studying at the graduate level. b. A relative degree, as of achievement, intensity, or concentration: an unsafe level of toxicity; a high level of frustration.

2. A natural or proper position, place, or stage: I finally found my own level in the business world. 3. Position along a vertical axis; height or depth: a platform at knee level. 4. a. A horizontal line or plane at right angles to the plumb. b. The position or height of such a line or plane. 5. A flat, horizontal surface. 6. A land area of uniform elevation. 7. a. An instrument for ascertaining whether a surface is horizontal, vertical, or at a 45° angle, consisting essentially of an encased, liquid-filled tube containing an air bubble that moves to a center window when the instrument is set on an even plane. Also called spirit level b. Such a device combined with a telescope and used in surveying. c. A computation of the difference in elevation between two points by using such a device. 8. Computer Science. A bit, an element, a channel, or a row of information. — adj. 1. Having a flat, smooth surface. 2. Being on a horizontal plane. 3. a. Being at the same height or position as another; even. b. Being at the same degree of rank, standing, or advantage as another; equal. 4. Exhibiting no abrupt variations; steady: spoke in a level tone. 5. Rational and balanced; sensible: came to a level appraisal of the situation; keeps a level head in an emergency. 6. Filled evenly to the top: a level tablespoon of cough medicine. — v. lev·eled or lev·elled, lev·el·ing or lev·el·ling, lev·els or lev·els. — v. tr. 1. To make horizontal, flat, or even: leveled the driveway with a roller; leveled off the hedges with the clippers. 2. To tear down; raze. 3. To knock down with or as if with a blow: The challenger leveled the champion with a mighty uppercut. 4. To place on the same level; equalize. 5. To aim along a horizontal plane: leveled the gun at the target. 6. To direct emphatically or forcefully toward someone: leveled charges of dishonesty. 7. To measure the different elevations of (a tract of land) with a level. — v. intr. 1. To bring persons or things to an equal level; equalize. 2. To aim a weapon horizontally. 3. Informal. To be frank and open: advised the suspect to level with the authorities. — adv. Along a flat or even line or plane. — phrasal verb. level off. 1. To move toward stability or consistency: Prices leveled off. 2. To maneuver an aircraft into a flight attitude that is parallel to the surface of the earth after gaining or losing altitude. — idioms. (one's) level best. The best one can do in an earnest attempt: I did my level best in math class. on the level. Informal. Without deception; honest. [Middle English, an instrument to check that a surface is horizontal, from Old French livel, from Vulgar Latin libellum*, from Latin libella, diminutive of libra, balance.] — lev'el·ly adv. — lev'el·ness n.

SYNONYMS: level, flat, even, plane, smooth, flush. These adjectives are applicable to surfaces without irregularities in the form of elevations or depressions. Level implies being parallel with the line of the horizon: acres of level farmland. Flat applies to surfaces without curves, protuberances, or indentations: a flat desk; flat country; a flat rock. Even refers to flat surfaces in which no part is higher or lower than another: The water in the pool is as even as a mirror. Plane is principally a mathematical term and refers to a surface containing all the straight lines connecting any two points on it: a plane figure. Smooth describes a surface on which the absence of even slight irregularities can be established by sight or touch: smooth marble; a smooth skin. Flush applies to a surface that is on an exact level with an adjoining one, forming a continuous surface: a door that is flush with the wall. See also Synonyms at aim level compensator (ləv'əl kɔm'pən-sā'tər) n. Electronics. An automatic gain control device used in the receiving equipment of telegraphic circuits.

level crossing (ləv'əl krô'sɪŋ) n. Chiefly British. A grade crossing.

lev·el·er also lev·el·ler (ləv'ə-lər) n. 1. One that levels: a leveler of boards.

2. a. One who advocates the abolition of social inequities. b. Leveller. A member of an English radical political movement arising in the Parliamentary forces of the 1640's and advocating universal male suffrage, equality before the law, parliamentary democracy, and religious tolerance.

lev·el·head·ed (ləv'əl-hĕd'ĭd) adj. Characteristically self-composed and sensible. — lev'el·head'ed·ness n.

lev·el·ing rod (ləv'ə-lɪŋ rɔd) n. A graduated pole or stick with a movable marker, used with a surveyor's level to measure differences in elevation. Also called leveling pole, leveling staff.

lev·el·ler (ləv'ə-lər) n. Variant of leveler.

level of significance (ləv'əl ïv sɪg-nĭf'ĭ-kəns) n. pl. levels of significance. Statistics. The probability of a false rejection of the null hypothesis in a statistical test. Also called significance level

Le·ven (lē'vən), Loch. A lake of eastern Scotland north-northwest of Edinburgh. Mary Queen of Scots was imprisoned on an island in the lake from 1567 to 1568.

lev·er (ləv'ər, lē'vər) n. 1. A simple machine consisting of a rigid bar pivoted on a fixed point and used to transmit force, as in raising or moving a weight at one end by pushing down on the other. 2. A projecting handle used to adjust or operate a mechanism. 3. A means of accomplishing; a tool: used friendship as a lever to obtain advancement. — v. tr. lev·ered, lev·er·ing, lev·ers. To move or lift with or as if with a lever. [Middle English, from Old French levier, from lever, to raise, from Latin levāre, from levis, light. See leg^wh- in Appendix.]

lev·er·age (ləv'ər-ĭj, lē'vər-) n. 1. a. The action of a lever. b. The mechanical advantage of a lever. 2. Positional advantage; power to act effectively: "started his... career with far more social leverage than his father had enjoyed" (Doris Kearns Goodwin). 3. The use of credit or borrowed funds to improve one's speculative capacity and increase the rate of return from an investment, as in buying securities on margin. — v. tr. lev·er·aged, lev·er·ag·ing, lev·er·ag·es. 1. To provide (a company) with leverage. a. To supplement (money, for example) with leverage. 2. To affect as if by leverage: a lifestyle that was leveraged by business responsibilities.

lev·er·aged buyout (ləv'ər-ɪjd bɪ'out', lē'vər-ɪjd) n. Abbr. LBO The use of a target company's asset value to finance the debt incurred in acquiring the company.

lev·er·et (ləv'ər-ɪt) n. A young hare, especially one less than a year old. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, diminutive of levere, hare, from Latin lepus, lepor-.]

Le·ver·ku·sen (lā'vər-kōō'zən) A city of west-central Germany on the Rhine River north of Cologne. It is an industrial center. Population, 155,411.

Lé·vesque (lə-věk'), René. 1922-1987. Canadian politician who cofounded (1967) the Parti Québécois to further the cause of French-Canadian separatism. He served as premier of Quebec (1976-1985).

Le·vi (lē'vī') In the Old Testament, a son of Jacob and Leah and the forebear of one of the tribes of Israel.

Le·vi (lā'vē), Carlo. 1902-1975. Italian writer best known for his novel Christ Stopped at Eboli (1945). Levi was exiled to southern Italy (1935-1936) for his anti-fascist activities.

lev·i·a·ble (ləv'ē-ə-bəl) adj. 1. That can be levied: leviable taxes. 2. Liable to be taxed: leviable imports.

lev·i·a·than (lə-vī'ə-thən) n. 1. Something unusually large of its kind, especially a ship. 2. A very large animal, especially a whale. 3. Bible. A monstrous sea creature mentioned in the Old Testament. [Middle English, huge biblical sea creature, from Late Latin, from Hebrew liwyātān; akin to Canaanite ltn, Lotan, the Hydra.]

lev·i·gate (ləv'ī-gāt') v. tr. lev·i·gat·ed, lev·i·gat·ing, lev·i·gates. 1. a. To make into a smooth, fine powder or paste, as by grinding when moist. b. To separate fine particles from coarse by grinding in water. 2. To suspend in a liquid. 3. To make smooth; polish. — adj. (-gāt', -gīt) Smooth. [Latin lēvigāre, lēvigāt- : lēvis, smooth; see lei- in Appendix + agere, to make, do; see ag- in Appendix.] — lev'·i·ga'tion n.

Le·vi·Mon·tal·ci·ni (lē'vē-mōn'tl-chē'nē, lē'vē-mōn'täl-), Rita. Born 1909. Italian-American developmental biologist. She shared a 1986 Nobel Prize for the discovery of nerve growth factor.

lev·in (ləv'in) n. Archaic. Lightning. [Middle English levene, levin. See leuk- in Appendix.]

Le·vine (lə-vēn'), Jack. Born 1915. American painter whose work is noted for its biting social satire. His paintings include Brain Trust (1936) and The Feast of Pure Reason (1937).

lev·i·rate (lěv'ər-īt, -ə-rāt', lē'vər-īt, -və-rāt') n. The practice of marrying the widow of one's brother to maintain his line, as required by ancient Hebrew law. [From Latin lēvir, husband's brother. See daiwer- in Appendix.] —lev'i·rat'ic (-rāt'ik), lev'i·rat'i·cal adj.

Le·vi's (lē'vīz') A trademark used for close-fitting trousers of heavy denim.

Lé·vis (lē'vis, lā-vē') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, on the St. Lawrence River opposite Quebec City. Settled in the mid-17th century, it is a port and ship-building center. Population, 17,895.

Lé·vi-Strauss (lā'vē-strous'), Claude. Born 1908. French social anthropologist and leading exponent of the theory of structuralism. His works include Structural Anthropology (1958) and Totemism (1962).

Levit. abbr. Bible. Leviticus.

lev·i·tate (lěv'ī-tāt') v. intr. tr. lev·i·tat·ed, lev·i·tat·ing, lev·i·tates. To rise or cause to rise into the air and float in apparent defiance of gravity. [From Latin levis, light (on the model of GRAVITATE). See LEVITY.] —lev'i·ta'tion n. —lev'i·ta'tion·al adj. —lev'i·ta'tor n.

Le·vite (lē'vīt') n. Bible. A member of the tribe of Levi but not descended from Aaron, chosen to assist the Temple priests. [Middle English, from Late Latin Lēvītēs, Lēvīta, from Greek Leuitēs, from Leui, Levi, from Hebrew Lēwī.]

Le·vit·i·cal (lə-vīt'ī-kəl) also Le·vit·ic (-vīt'ik) adj. Bible. 1. Of or relating to the Levites. 2. Of or relating to Leviticus.

Le·vit·i·cus (lə-vīt'ī-kəs) n. Abbr. Lev., Levit., Lv Bible. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible. [Middle English, from Late Latin Levīticus, from Greek Leuitikos, Levitical, from Leuitēs, Levite. See LEVITE.]

Lev·it·town (lěv'īt-toun') 1. An unincorporated community of southeast New York on western Long Island east-southeast of Mineola. It was founded in 1947 as a low-cost housing development for World War II veterans. Population 53,286. 2. A community of southeast Pennsylvania near the Delaware River northeast of Philadelphia. Population, 55,362.

lev·i·ty (lěv'ī-tē) n. pl. lev·i·ties. 1. Lightness of manner or speech, especially when inappropriate; frivolity. 2. Inconstancy; changeableness. 3. The state or quality of being light; buoyancy. [Latin levitās, from levis, light. See leg^{wh}- in Appendix.]

le·vo (lē'vō) adj. Levorotatory.

levo- or lev- pref. 1. To the left: levorotatory. 2. Levorotatory: levulose. [French lévo-, from Latin laevus, left.]

le·vo·do·pa (lē'və-dō'pə) n. See L-dopa.

le·vo·ro·ta·ry (lē'və-rō'tə-rē) adj. Variant of levorotatory.

le·vo·ro·ta·tion (lē'və-rō-tā'shən) n. A counterclockwise rotation, especially of the plane of polarized light.

le·vo·ro·ta·to·ry (lē'və-rō'tə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) also le·vo·ro·ta·ry (-tə-rē) adj.

1. Turning or rotating the plane of polarization of light to the left, or counterclockwise. 2. Of or relating to a chemical solution that rotates the plane of polarized light to the left, or counterclockwise.

lev·u·lose (lĕv'yə-lōs', -lōz') n. See fructose. [LEV(O)- + -UL(E) + -OSE².]

lev·y (lĕv'ē) v. lev·ied, lev·y·ing, lev·ies. — v. tr. 1. To impose or collect (a tax, for example). 2. To draft into military service. 3. To declare and wage (a war). — v. intr. To confiscate property, especially in accordance with a legal judgment. — n. pl. lev·ies. 1. The act or process of levying. 2. Money, property, or troops levied. [Middle English levien, from leve, levy, tax, from Old French levee, from feminine past participle of lever, to raise. See LEVER.]

—lev·i·er n.

lewd (lōōd) adj. lewd·er, lewd·est. 1. a. Preoccupied with sex and sexual desire; lustful. b. Obscene; indecent. 2. *Obsolete. Wicked. [Middle English leued, unlearned, lay, lascivious, from Old English læwede, ignorant, lay.]

—lewd·ly adv. —lewd·ness n.

Lew·es (lōō'is), George Henry. 1817-1878. British philosopher and critic who was the first editor (1865-1866) of the Fortnightly Review.

Lewes River (lōō'is rĭv'ər) The upper course of the Yukon River above its junction with the Pelly River in southern Yukon Territory, Canada. It is about 544 km (338 mi) long.

lew·is (lōō'is) n. A dovetailed iron tenon made of several parts and designed to fit into a dovetail mortise in a large stone so that it can be lifted by a hoisting apparatus. Also called lewisson [Perhaps from the name Lewis.]

Lew·is (lōō'is), Sir W(illiam) Arthur. 1915-1991. West-Indies-born British economist. He shared a 1979 Nobel Prize for work on the economic problems of developing countries.

Lew·is (lōō'is), Cecil Day. See Cecil Day Lewis.

Lew·is (lōō'is), C(live) S(taples). 1898-1963. British writer and critic. His works include The Allegory of Love (1936) and a series of fictional books for children collectively known as The Chronicles of Narnia (1950-1956).

Lew·is (lōō'is), (Harry) Sinclair. 1885-1951. American novelist who satirized middle-class America in his 22 works, including Babbitt (1922) and Elmer Gantry (1927). He was the first American to receive (1930) a Nobel Prize for literature.

Lew·is (lōō'is), John Llewellyn. 1880-1969. American labor leader who was president of the United Mine Workers of America (1920-1960) and the Congress of Industrial Organizations (1935-1940).

Lew·is (lōō'is), (Mary) Edmonia. 1843-1909. American sculptor whose works deal with political and social issues, including the abolition of slavery and the preservation of Native American cultures in the United States.

Lew·is (lōō'is), Matthew Gregory. 1775-1818. British gothic writer who is remembered for the novel The Monk (1796), for which he was known as “Monk Lewis.”

Lew·is (lōō'is), Meriwether. 1774-1809. American soldier and explorer who led the Lewis and Clark expedition (1803-1806) from St. Louis to the mouth of the Columbia River and served as governor of the Louisiana Territory (1806-1809).

Lew·is (lōō'is), (Percy) Wyndham. 1884-1957. British writer and artist. He wrote the novels The Apes of God (1930) and Revenge for Love (1937) and painted portraits of T.S. Eliot and Ezra Pound.

lew·is·ite (lōō'ī-sīt') n. An oily, colorless to violet or brown liquid, C₂H₂AsCl₃, used to make a highly toxic gas weapon. [After Winford Lee Lewis (1878-1943), American chemist.]

Lewis Range (lōō'is rānj) A section of the Rocky Mountains in northwest Montana rising to 3,192.1 m (10,466 ft) at Mount Cleveland.

lew·is·son (lōō'ī-sən) n. See lewis. [From LEWIS.]

Lew·is·ton (lōō'ī-stən) 1. A city of northwest Idaho on the border south-southeast of Spokane, Washington. A commercial and industrial center in a timber, grain, and livestock region, it was the first capital (1863-1864) of the Idaho Territory. Population, 28,082. 2. A city of southwest Maine on the Androscoggin River north of Portland. Settled in 1770, it became a textile center in the early 19th century. Population, 40,481.

Lew·is·ville (lōō'is-vīl', lōō'ē-) A city of northeast Texas, an industrial and residential suburb in the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolitan area. Population, 46,521.

Lewis with Har·ris (lōō'is wīth hār'is) An island of northwest Scotland. The largest and northernmost of the Outer Hebrides, it is noted for its tweeds.

lex (lēks) n. pl. le·ges (lē'jēz'). Law. [Latin lēx. See leg- in Appendix.]

lex. abbr. Lexicon.

lex·eme (lēk'sēm') n. The fundamental unit of the lexicon of a language. Find, found, and finding are members of the English lexeme find. [LEX(ICON) + -EME.]

lex·i·ca (lēk'sī-kə) n. A plural of lexicon.

lex·i·cal (lēk'sī-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to the vocabulary, words, or morphemes of a language. 2. Of or relating to lexicography or a lexicon. [LEX(ON) + -AL¹.] —lex'·i·cal'·i·ty (-kəl'ī-tē) n. —lex'·i·cal·ly adv.

lex·i·cog·ra·phy (lēk'sī-kōg'rə-fē) n. The process or work of writing or compiling a dictionary. —lex'·i·cog'ra·pher n. —lex'·i·co·graph'ic (-kə-grāf'ik), lex'·i·co·graph'·i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj. —lex'·i·co·graph'·i·cal·ly adv.

lex·i·col·o·gy (lēk'sī-kōl'ə-jē) n. The branch of linguistics that deals with the lexical component of language. —lex'·i·co·log'·i·cal (-kə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj. —lex'·i·co·log'·i·cal·ly adv. —lex'·i·col'o·gist n.

lex·i·con (lĕk'sī-kōn') n. pl. lex·i·cons or lex·i·ca (-kə). Abbr. lex. 1. A dictionary. 2. A stock of terms used in a particular profession, subject, or style; a vocabulary: the lexicon of surrealist art. 3. Linguistics. The morphemes of a language considered as a group. [Medieval Latin, from Greek lexikon (biblion), word(book), from neuter of lexikos, of words, from lexis, word, from legein, to speak. See leg- in Appendix.]

Lex·ing·ton (lĕk'sīng-tən) 1. A city of northeast-central Kentucky east-southeast of Louisville. A noted center for the raising of thoroughbred horses, it was named in 1775 after the Battle of Lexington. Population, 204,165. 2. A town of northeast Massachusetts, a residential suburb of Boston. The Battle of Lexington (April 19, 1775) marked the beginning of the American Revolution. Population, 28,974. 3. A city of central North Carolina south of Winston-Salem. It is a trade and processing center in a farming region. Population, 16,581.

lex·is (lĕk'sīs) n. The total set of words in a language as distinct from morphology; vocabulary. [Greek, speech, word. See LEXICON.] ley (lā, lē) n. Variant of lea.

Ley·den (līd'n) See Leiden.

Leyden jar (līd'n jār) n. An early form of capacitor consisting of a glass jar lined inside and out with tinfoil and having a conducting rod connected to the inner foil lining and passing out of the jar through an insulated stopper. [After Leyden (Leiden).]

Ley·land (lā'lænd) An urban district of northwest England north-northeast of Liverpool. It is an industrial center. Population, 97,700.

Ley·land (lā'lænd), John. See John Leland.

Ley·poldt (lī'pōlt'), Frederick. 1835-1884. German-born American editor and publisher who founded (1868) the magazine now known as Publishers Weekly.

Ley·ster (lī'stər), Judith. 1609-1660. Dutch painter known for her portraits and genre paintings. Much of Leyster's work has been mistaken until recently as that of her contemporary, Frans Hals.

Ley·te (lā'tē, -tĕ) An island of the east-central Philippines in the Visayan group north of Mindanao. It was discovered in 1521 by Ferdinand Magellan.

Leyte Gulf (lā'tē gūlf) An inlet of the western Pacific Ocean in the Philippines south of Samar and east of Leyte. An invasion force led by Gen. Douglas MacArthur decisively defeated the Japanese here on October 25-26, 1944.

lf abbr. Printing. Lightface.

LF 1. Baseball. Left field; left fielder. 2. Or lf. Low frequency.

lg. abbr. 1. Large. 2. Long.

lge. abbr. Large.

LH abbr. Luteinizing hormone.

Lha·sa (lǎ'sə, lǎs'ə) A city of southwest China, the capital of Xizang (Tibet). Because of its remoteness and exclusivity as the center of Tibetan Buddhism, Lhasa was long closed to foreign visitors and known as “the Forbidden City.” Population, 105,897.

Lha·sa ap·so (ǎp'sō) n. pl. Lha·sa ap·sos. Any of a breed of small dog originating in Tibet and having a long, straight coat. [Lhasa + Tibetan apso, Lhasa apso.]

Lho·tse (lō'tsě') A peak, 8,506.5 m (27,890 ft) high, of the central Himalaya Mountains on the Nepal-Tibet border.

LHRH abbr. Luteinizing hormone releasing hormone.

li¹ (lē) n. pl. li. A traditional Chinese measure of distance, today standardized at 500 meters (547 yards). [Chinese (Mandarin) lǐ.]

li² abbr. Link.

Li The symbol for the element lithium.

L.I. abbr. Long Island.

li·a·bil·i·ty (lī'ə-bīl'ī-tē) n. pl. li·a·bil·i·ties. 1. The state of being liable.

2. a. Something for which one is liable; an obligation, a responsibility, or a debt.

b. liabilities. The financial obligations entered in the balance sheet of a business enterprise. 3. Something that holds one back; a handicap. 4. Likelihood.

li·a·ble (lī'ə-bəl) adj. 1. Legally obligated; responsible: liable for military service. See Synonyms at responsible. 2. At risk of or subject to experiencing or suffering something unpleasant. Used with to: liable to criminal charges; liable to diabetes. 3. Often used with reference to an unfavorable outcome: In a depression banks are liable to fail. [Middle English, probably from Old French lier, to bind, from Latin ligāre. See leig- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Liable, apt, and likely are often used interchangeably in constructions with following infinitives, as in John is liable to lose, John is apt to lose, and John is likely to lose. The three words are distinct in meaning. A widely repeated rule holds that liable should only be used if the subject would be adversely affected by the outcome expressed by the infinitive. The rule therefore permits John is liable to fall out of his chair if he doesn't sit up straight but not The chair is liable to be slippery, though constructions of the latter type have long been common in reputable writing. Apt usually suggests that the subject has a natural tendency enhancing the probability of an outcome, and that the speaker is in some way apprehensive about the outcome. Thus apt is more naturally used in a sentence like The fuel pump is apt to give out at any minute than in Even the clearest instructions are apt to be misinterpreted by those idiots (since the instructions are not at fault) or in The fuel pump is apt to give you no problems for the life of the car (since there is no reason that the speaker should regard such an outcome as unfortunate). Likely is more general than either liable or apt. It ascribes no particular property to the subject that enhances the probability of the outcome: while John is apt to lose the election may suggest that the loss will result from something John does or fails to do, John is likely to lose the election does not. Nor does it suggest anything about the desirability of the outcome from the point of view of either the speaker or the subject. A football coach who says We are apt to win may be suspected of sarcasm, and one who says We are liable to win may be suspected of having bet on the opposition; only We are likely to win is consistent with the expression of an unambivalent expectation of victory. See Usage Note at likely.

- li-aise (lē-āzʹ) v. intr. li-aised, li-ais-ing, li-ais-es. 1. To effect or establish a liaison. 2. To act or serve as a liaison officer. [Back-formation from LIAISON.]
- li-ai-son (lēʹā-zǒnʹ, lē-āʹ-) n. 1. a. An instance or a means of communication between different groups or units of an organization, especially in the armed forces. b. One that maintains communication: served as the President's liaison with Congress. 2. a. A close relationship, connection, or link. b. An adulterous relationship; an affair. 3. Linguistics. Pronunciation of the usually silent final consonant of a word when followed by a word beginning with a vowel, especially in French. [French, from Old French, from Latin ligātiō, ligātiōn-, from ligātus, past participle of ligāre, to bind. See LIGATE.]
- li-an-a (lē-äʹnə, -änʹə) also li-ane (-änʹ, -änʹ) n. Any climbing, woody, usually tropical vine. [Alteration of French liane, probably from lier, to bind. See LIABLE.]
- Liang (lyängʹ) The name of two Chinese dynasties, the Earlier Liang Dynasty (502-557) and the Later Liang Dynasty (907-923).
- Lian-yun-gang (lyänʹyōönʹgängʹ, -yœnʹ-) also Lien-yün-kang (lyünʹyünʹkängʹ) A city of eastern China near the Yellow Sea south-southwest of Qingdao. It is an industrial center. Population, 275,000.
- Liao (lyouʹ) A Chinese dynasty that ruled from 916 to 1125.
- Liao-dong (lyouʹdüngʹ) also Liao-tung (-töongʹ), Gulf of. The northern part of the Gulf of Bo Hai in northeast China. It borders on the Liaodong Peninsula, a land area projecting southwest into the Yellow Sea.
- Liao He (həʹ) A river of northeast China flowing about 1,448 km (900 mi) northeast and southwest to the Gulf of Liaodong.
- Liao-ning (lyouʹningʹ) A province of northeast China on the Gulf of Bo Hai and Korea Bay. It was under Japanese control from 1932 until 1945. Shenyang is the capital. Population, 36,860,000.
- Liao-tung (lyouʹtöongʹ), Gulf of. See Gulf of Liaodong.
- Liao-yang (lyouʹyängʹ) A city of northeast China south-southwest of Shenyang. One of the oldest cities in Manchuria, it was the site of a Russian victory (August-September 1904) in the Russo-Japanese War. Population, 275,000.
- Liao-yu-an (lyouʹyöǒʹänʹ, -yüänʹ) A city of northeast China south of Changchun. It is a coal-mining center with iron and steel works. Population, 300,000.

li·ar (lī'ər) n. One that tells lies.

Li·ard (lē'ərd, lē-ärd') A river rising in southeast Yukon Territory, Canada, and flowing about 1,215 km (755 mi) southeast into northern British Columbia then northeast to the Mackenzie River in southwest Northwest Territories.

lib (lib) n. Informal. A movement that seeks to achieve equal rights for a group; liberation.

lib. abbr. 1. Or Lib.. Liberal; Liberalism. 2. Librarian. 3. Library.

li·ba·tion (lī-bā'shən) n. 1. a. The pouring of a liquid offering as a religious ritual. b. The liquid so poured. 2. Informal. a. A beverage, especially an intoxicating beverage. b. The act of drinking an intoxicating beverage. [Middle English libacioun, from Latin libātiō, libātiōn-, from libātus, past participle of libāre, to pour out as an offering.] —li·ba'tion·ar'y (-shə-nēr'ē) adj.

lib·ber (lib'ər) n. Informal. A proponent of liberation for a group.

Lib·by (lib'ē), Willard Frank. 1908-1980. American chemist. He won a 1960 Nobel Prize for developing the method of radiocarbon dating.

li·bel (lī'bəl) Law. n. 1. a. A false publication in writing, printing, or typewriting or in signs or pictures that maliciously damages a person's reputation. b. The act or an instance of presenting such a statement to the public. 2. The written claims presented by a plaintiff in an action at admiralty law or to an ecclesiastical court. — v. tr. li·beled or li·belled, li·bel·ing or li·bel·ing, li·bels or li·bels. To communicate a false statement about in writing or by means of signs or pictures. See Synonyms at malign. [Middle English, litigant's written complaint, from Old French, from Latin libellus, diminutive of liber, book.] —li'·bel·er, li'bel·ist n.

li·bel·ant also li·bel·lant (lī'bə-lənt) n. Law. The plaintiff in a case of ecclesiastical or admiralty libel.

li·bel·ee also li·bel·lee (lī'bə-lē') n. Law. The defendant in a case of ecclesiastical or admiralty libel.

li·bel·ous also li·bel·lous (lī'bə-ləs) adj. Law. Involving or constituting a libel; defamatory. —li'bel·ous·ly adv.

Lib·er·a·ce (lib'ə-rā'chē), (Wladziu). 1919-1987. American pianist and entertainer who is remembered for his virtuosity and flamboyant style.

lib·er·al (lib'ər-əl, lib'rəl) adj. Abbr. lib. 1. a. Not limited to or by established, traditional, orthodox, or authoritarian attitudes, views, or dogmas; free from bigotry. b. Favoring proposals for reform, open to new ideas for progress, and tolerant of the ideas and behavior of others; broad-minded. c. Of, relating to, or characteristic of liberalism. d. Liberal. Abbr. Lib. Of, designating, or characteristic of a political party founded on or associated with principles of social and political liberalism, especially in Great Britain, Canada, and the United States. 2. a. Tending to give freely; generous: a liberal benefactor. b. Generous in amount; ample: a liberal serving of potatoes. 3. Not strict or literal; loose or approximate: a liberal translation. 4. Of, relating to, or based on the traditional arts and sciences of a college or university curriculum: a liberal education.

5. a. Archaic. Permissible or appropriate for a person of free birth; befitting a lady or gentleman. b. Obsolete. Morally unrestrained; licentious. — n. 1. A person with liberal ideas or opinions. 2. Liberal. Abbr. Lib. A member of a Liberal political party. [Middle English, generous, from Old French, from Latin liberālis, from liber, free. See leudh- in Appendix.] — lib'er-al-ly adv.

—lib'er-al-ness n.

SYNONYMS: liberal, bounteous, bountiful, freehanded, generous, handsome, munificent, openhanded. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “willing or marked by a willingness to give unstintingly”: a liberal backer of the arts; a bounteous feast; bountiful compliments; a freehanded host; a generous donation; a handsome offer; a munificent gift; a fond and openhanded grandfather. See also Synonyms at broad-minded liberal arts (lib'ər-əl ɑrts) pl.n. 1. Academic disciplines, such as languages, literature, history, philosophy, mathematics, and science, that provide information of general cultural concern: “The term ‘liberal arts’ connotes a certain elevation above utilitarian concerns. Yet liberal education is intensely useful” (George F. Will). 2. The disciplines comprising the trivium and quadrivium. [Middle English, translation of Medieval Latin artēs liberālēs, the trivium and quadrivium : Latin artēs pl. of Latin ars, art-, subject of study + liberālēs, pl. of liberālis, proper to free persons.]

ANTONYM: stingy

lib'er-al-ism (lib'ər-ə-līz'əm, lib'rə-) n. Abbr. lib. 1. The state or quality of being liberal. 2. a. A political theory founded on the natural goodness of human beings and the autonomy of the individual and favoring civil and political liberties, government by law with the consent of the governed, and protection from arbitrary authority. b. Often Liberalism. Abbr. Lib. The tenets or policies of a Liberal party. 3. An economic theory in favor of laissez-faire, the free market, and the gold standard. 4. a. A 19th-century Protestant movement that favored free intellectual inquiry, stressed the ethical and humanitarian content of Christianity, and de-emphasized dogmatic theology. b. A 19th-century Roman Catholic movement that favored political democracy and ecclesiastical reform but was theologically orthodox. — lib'er-al-ist n. — lib'er-al-is'tic (-līs'tik) adj.

lib'er-al-i-ty (lib'ə-rāl'ī-tē) n. pl. lib'er-al-i-ties. 1. The quality or state of being liberal or generous. 2. An instance of being liberal.

lib'er-al-ize (lib'ər-ə-līz', lib'rə-) v. lib'er-al-ized, lib'er-al-iz-ing, lib'er-al-iz-es. — v. tr. To make liberal or more liberal: “Our standards of private conduct have been greatly liberalized... over recent years” (Meg Greenfield).

— v. intr. To become liberal or more liberal. —lib'er-al-i-za'tion (-lī-zā'shən)
n. —lib'er-al-iz'er n.

lib·er·ate (līb'ə-rāt') v. tr. lib·er·at·ed, lib·er·at·ing, lib·er·ates. 1. To set free, as from oppression, confinement, or foreign control. 2. Chemistry. To release (a gas, for example) from combination. 3. Slang. To obtain by illegal means, as by looting: some fine brandy we had liberated from the Germans during World War II. [Latin liberāre, liberāt-, from liber, free. See leudh- in Appendix.] —lib'er-at'ing·ly adv. —lib'er-a'tor n.

lib·er·a·tion (līb'ə-rā'shən) n. 1. The act of liberating or the state of being liberated. 2. The act or process of trying to achieve equal rights and status. —lib'er-a'tion·ist n.

liberation theology (līb'ə-rā'shən thē-ōl'ə-jē) n. A school of theology, especially prevalent in the Roman Catholic Church in Latin America, that finds in the Gospel a call to free people from political, social, and material oppression. —liberation theologian n.

Li·be·rec (līb'ə-rĕts') A city of north-central Czech Republic north-northeast of Prague. Founded c. 1350, it has been a textile center since the 16th century. Population, 100,048.

Li·be·ri·a (lī-bīr'ē-ə) A country of western Africa on the Atlantic Ocean. It was founded (1821) through the efforts of the American Colonization Society and settled mainly by freed slaves from 1822 to the 1860's. Liberia is the oldest independent country in Africa (established 1847). Monrovia is the capital and the largest city. Population, 1,911,000. —Li·be'ri·an adj. & n.

lib·er·tar·i·an (līb'ər-tār'ē-ən) n. 1. One who believes in freedom of action and thought. 2. One who believes in free will. [From LIBERTY.] —lib'er-tar'i-an·ism n.

lib·er·tin·age (līb'ər-tē'nij) n. Libertinism.

lib·er·tine (līb'ər-tĕn') n. 1. One who acts without moral restraint; a dissolute person. 2. One who defies established religious precepts; a freethinker. — adj. Morally unrestrained; dissolute. [Middle English, freedman, from Latin libertinus, from libertus, from liber, free. See leudh- in Appendix.]

lib·er·tin·ism (līb'ər-tĕ-nīz'əm) n. 1. The state or quality of being libertine. 2. The behavior characteristic of a libertine; promiscuity.

lib·er·ty (līb'ər-tĕ) n. pl. lib·er·ties. 1. a. The condition of being free from restriction or control. b. The right and power to act, believe, or express oneself in a manner of one's own choosing. c. The condition of being physically and legally free from confinement, servitude, or forced labor. See Synonyms at freedom. 2. Freedom from unjust or undue governmental control. 3. A right and power to engage in certain actions without control or interference: the liberties protected by the Bill of Rights. 4. Often liberties. a. A breach or overstepping of propriety or social convention. b. A statement, an attitude, or an action not warranted by conditions or actualities: a historical novel that takes liberties with chronology.

c. An unwarranted risk; a chance: took foolish liberties on the ski slopes. 5. A period, usually short, during which a sailor is authorized to go ashore. —idiom.
at liberty. 1. Not in confinement or under constraint; free. 2. Not employed, occupied, or in use. [Middle English liberte, from Old French, from Latin libertās, from liber, free. See leudh- in Appendix.]

Lib-er-ty (lĭb'ər-tē) A city of western Missouri, an industrial suburb of Kansas City. Population, 20,459.

liberty cap (lĭb'ər-tē kăp) n. A brimless, limp, conical cap fitting snugly around the head and given to a slave in ancient Rome upon manumission. It was used as a symbol of liberty by the French revolutionaries and was also worn in the United States before 1800. Also called Phrygian cap

Liberty Island (lĭb'ər-tē ɪ'lənd) Formerly Bed-loe's Island (bĕd'lōz). An island of southeast New York in Upper New York Bay southwest of Manhattan. The Statue of Liberty was placed on the island in 1885, using the star-shaped Fort Wood (built in 1841) as a base. Congress officially renamed the island in 1956.

Lib-er-ty-ville (lĭb'ər-tē-vĭl') A village of northeast Illinois southwest of Waukegan. It is an industrial center. Population, 19,174.

li-bid-i-nous (lĭ-bĭd'n-əs) adj. Having or exhibiting lustful desires; lascivious. [Middle English, from Old French libidineux, from Latin libĭdinōsus, from libĭdō, libĭdin-, lust, desire. See LIBIDO.] —li-bid'i-nous-ly adv. —li-bid'i-nous-ness n.

li-bi-do (lĭ-bĕ'dō, -bĭ-) n. pl. li-bi-dos. 1. The psychic and emotional energy associated with instinctual biological drives. 2. a. Sexual desire.

b. Manifestation of the sexual drive. [Latin, desire. See leubh- in Appendix.]

—li-bid'i-nal (-bĭd'n-əl) adj. —li-bid'i-nal-ly adv.

Li Bo (lē' bō) See Li Po.

li-bra (lē'brə) n. pl. li-brae (-brē'). Abbr. lb. A unit of weight in ancient Rome equivalent to about 12 ounces. [Middle English, from Latin libra.]

Li-bra (lē'brə, lĭ'-) n. 1. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Scorpius and Virgo. Also called Balance, Scales. 2. a. The seventh sign of the zodiac in astrology. Also called Balance, Scales. b. One who is born under this sign.

[Middle English, from Latin libra, balance, the constellation Libra.]

li-brae (lē'brē') n. Plural of libra.

Li-bran (lē'brən, lĭ'-) n. One who is born under the sign of Libra.

li-brar-i-an (lĭ-brâr'ē-ən) n. Abbr. lib. 1. A person who is a specialist in library work. 2. Computer Science. A program used in maintaining a library, especially that of an operating system. —li-brar'i-an-ship' n.

li-brar-y (lĭ'brēr'ē) n. pl. li-brar-ies. Abbr. lib. 1. a. A place in which literary and artistic materials, such as books, periodicals, newspapers, pamphlets, prints, records, and tapes, are kept for reading, reference, or lending. b. A collection of such materials, especially when systematically arranged. c. A room in a private home for such a collection. d. An institution or a foundation maintaining such a collection. 2. A commercial establishment that lends books for a fee. 3. A series or set of books issued by a publisher. 4. A collection of recorded data or tapes arranged for ease of use. 5. Computer Science. A collection of standard programs, routines, or subroutines, often related to a specific application, that are available for general use. [Middle English librarie, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin librārium, bookcase, from neuter of librārius, of books, from liber, libr-, book.]

library science (lī'brēr'ē sī'əns) n. The principles, practice, or study of library administration.

li·bra·tion (lī-brā'shən) n. A very slow oscillation, real or apparent, of a satellite as viewed from the larger celestial body around which it revolves. [Latin librātio, librātiōn-, oscillation, from librātus, past participle of librāre, to balance, from libra, balance.] —li·bra'tion-al adj. —li'bra-to'ry (-brə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

li·bret·ti (lī-brēt'ē) n. Music. A plural of libretto.

li·bret·tist (lī-brēt'ist) n. Music. The author of a libretto.

li·bret·to (lī-brēt'ō) n. pl. li·bret·tos or li·bret·ti (-brēt'ē). Music. 1. The text of a dramatic musical work, such as an opera. 2. A book containing such a text. [Italian, diminutive of libro, book, from Latin liber, libr-.]

Li·bre·ville (lē'brə-vīl', -vēl') The capital and largest city of Gabon, in the northwest part of the country on the Gulf of Guinea. Founded as a French trading post in 1843, it was named Libreville after freed slaves settled here (1848). Population, 235,700.

Lib·ri·um (līb'rē-əm) A trademark used for preparations of chlordiazepoxide hydrochloride.

Lib·y·a (līb'ē-ə) A country of northern Africa on the Mediterranean Sea. It achieved independence in 1951 and became an important oil producer during the 1960's. Libya has been ruled by Muammar al-Qaddafi since 1969. Tripoli is the capital and the largest city. Population, 3,096,000.

Lib·y·an (līb'ē-ən) adj. Of or relating to Libya or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Libya. 2. A Berber language of ancient northern Africa.

Libyan Desert (līb'ē-ən dēz'ərt) A desert of northeast Africa in Egypt, Libya, and Sudan. It is the northeast section of the Sahara Desert.

lice (līs) n. Plural of louse (n., sense 1).

li·cence (lī'səns) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of license.

li·cense (lī'səns) n. 1. a. Official or legal permission to do or own a specified thing. See Synonyms at permission. b. Proof of permission granted, usually in the form of a document, card, plate, or tag: a driver's license. 2. Deviation from normal rules, practices, or methods in order to achieve a certain end or effect: poetic license. 3. Latitude of action, especially in behavior or speech. See Synonyms at freedom. 4. a. Lack of due restraint; excessive freedom: "When lib- erty becomes license, dictatorship is near" (Will Durant). b. Heedlessness for the precepts of proper behavior; licentiousness. — v. tr. li-censed, li-cens-ing, li-cens-es. 1. To give or yield permission to or for. 2. To grant a license to or for; authorize. See Synonyms at authorize. [Middle English licence, from Old French, from Medieval Latin licentia, authorization, from Latin, freedom, from licēns, licent- present participle of licēre, to be permitted.] —li'cens-a-ble adj. —li'cens-er, li'cen-sor' (-sən-sôr') n.

li-censed practical nurse (lī'sənst prăk'tī-kəl nûrs) n. Abbr. LPN, L.P.N. A nurse who has completed a practical nursing program and is licensed by a state to provide routine patient care under the direction of a registered nurse or a physician.

licensed vocational nurse (lī'sənst vō-kă'shə-nəl nûrs) n. Abbr. LVN, L.V.N. A licensed practical nurse who is permitted by license to practice in California or Texas.

li-cens-ee (lī'sən-sē') n. One to whom or to which a license is granted.

li-cen-sure (lī'sən-shər, -shōor') n. The act or an instance of granting a license, usually to practice a profession.

li-cen-ti-ate (lī-sĕn'shē-ĭt) n. Abbr. L. 1. One who is granted a license by an authorized body to practice a specified profession. 2. a. A degree from certain European universities ranking just below that of a doctor. b. One holding such a degree. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin licentiātus, from past participle of licentiāre, to allow, from licentia, authorization. See LICENSE.]

li-cen-tious (lī-sĕn'shəs) adj. 1. Lacking moral discipline or ignoring legal restraint, especially in sexual conduct. 2. Having no regard for accepted rules or standards. [Latin licentiōsus, from licentia, freedom, license. See LICENSE.]

—li-cen'tious-ly adv. —li-cen'tious-ness n.

li-chee (lē'chē) n. Variant of litchi.

li-chen (lī'kən) n. 1. A fungus, usually of the class Ascomycetes, that grows symbiotically with algae, resulting in a composite organism that characteristically forms a crustlike or branching growth on rocks or tree trunks. 2. Pathology. Any of various skin diseases characterized by patchy eruptions of small, firm papules. — v. tr. li-ched, li-chen-ing, li-chens. To cover with lichens. [Latin lichēn, a kind of plant, from Greek leikhēn, from leikhein, to lick. See leigh- in Appendix.] —li'chen-ous adj.

li-chen-ol-o-gy (lī'kə-nōl'ə-jē) n. The branch of biology that deals with the study of lichens. —li'chen-ol'o-gist n.

Lich-field (lĭch'fēld') A municipal borough of west-central England north-northeast of Birmingham. Samuel Johnson was born here in 1709. Population, 25,800.

lich gate (lĭch gāt) n. Variant of lych-gate.

Lich·ten·stein (lĭk'tən-stĭn', -stĕn'), Roy. Born 1923. American pop artist who is best known for his large-scale depictions of comic book panels.

lic·it (lĭs'it) adj. Permitted by law; legal. [Middle English, from Old French licite, from Latin licitus, past participle of licĕre, to be permitted.] —lic'it·ly adv.

—lic'it·ness n.

lick (lĭk) v. licked, lick·ing, licks. — v. tr. 1. To pass the tongue over or along: lick a stamp. 2. To lap up. 3. To lap or flicker at like a tongue: The waves licked the sides of the boat. 4. Slang. To punish with a beating; thrash. 5. Slang. To get the better of; defeat: licked her weight problem. — v. intr. To pass or lap quickly and rapidly: The flames licked at our feet. — n. 1. The act or process of licking. 2. A small quantity; a bit: hasn't got a lick of common sense. 3. A deposit of exposed natural salt that is licked by passing animals. 4. A sudden hard stroke; a blow. 5. Informal. Speed; pace: moving along at a good lick. 6. Music. A phrase improvised by a soloist, especially on the guitar or banjo. —idioms. lick and a promise. A superficial effort made without care or enthusiasm. lick into shape. Informal. To bring into satisfactory condition or appearance. lick (one's) chops. To anticipate delightedly. lick (one's) wounds. To recuperate after a defeat. [Middle English licken, from Old English liccian. See leigh- in Appendix.] —lick'er n.

lick'er·ish (lĭk'ər-ĭsh) adj. 1. Lascivious; lecherous. 2. Greedy; desirous. 3. a. Archaic. Relishing good food. b. Obsolete. Arousing hunger; appetizing. [Middle English likerous, perhaps from Old French lecheor, lekier. See LECHER.] —lick'er·ish·ness n.

lick·e·ty·split (lĭk'ĭ-tĕ-splĭt') adv. Informal. With great speed. [lickety, very fast alteration of LICK, fast (dialectal) + SPLIT.]

lick·ing (lĭk'ĭng) n. Slang. 1. A beating, thrashing, or spanking. 2. A severe loss or defeat.

Lick·ing River (lĭk'ĭng rĭv'ər) A river of northeast Kentucky flowing about 515 km (320 mi) northwest to the Ohio River at Covington.

lick·spit·tle (lĭk'spĭt'l) n. A fawning underling; a toady.

lic·o·rice (lĭk'ər-ĭs, -ĭsh) n. 1. a. A Mediterranean perennial plant (Glycyrrhiza glabra) having blue flowers, pinnately compound leaves, and a sweet, distinctively flavored root. b. The root of this plant, used as a flavoring in candy, liqueurs, tobacco, and medicines. c. A confection made from or flavored with the licorice root. 2. Any of various similar plants. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin liquiritia, alteration (influenced by Latin liquĕre, to flow), of Latin glycyrrhīza, root of licorice, from Greek glukurrhiza : glukus, sweet + rhiza, root; see wrād- in Appendix.]

lic·tor (lĭk'tər) n. A Roman functionary who carried fasces when attending a magistrate in public appearances. [From Middle English littoures, lictors, from Latin lictōrēs, pl. of lictor. See leig- in Appendix.]

lid (lĭd) n. 1. A removable or hinged cover for a hollow receptacle or box. 2. An eyelid. 3. Biology. A flaplike covering, such as an operculum. 4. A curb, restraint, or limit: approved a new lid on corporate spending. 5. Informal. An act of concealment; a cover: told us to keep a lid on the report until the campaign was over. 6. Slang. A hat. 7. Slang. An ounce of marijuana. — v. tr. lid-ded, lid-ding, lids. To cover with or as if with a lid. [Middle English, from Old English hlid. See klei- in Appendix.]

Lid-dell Hart (lĭd'l härt'), Sir Basil Henry. 1895-1970. British military authority and an early advocate of both tank and air warfare.

Li-di-ce (lĭd'ĭ-sē, -chā', lyĭ'dĭ-tsě) A village of northwest Czech Republic west-northwest of Prague. In reprisal for the murder of a Nazi official, German forces killed its male population, deported the women and children to concentration camps, and burned the village to the ground (June 9-10, 1942).

lid-less (lĭd'lĭs) adj. Having no lid or lids.

Li-do (lē'dō) An island reef of northeast Italy separating the lagoon of Venice from the Adriatic Sea. The town of Lido, at the northern end of the island, is a fashionable resort.

li-do-caine (lĭ'də-kān') n. A synthetic amide, $C_{14}H_{22}N_2O$, used chiefly in the form of its hydrochloride as a local anesthetic and antiarrhythmic agent. [(ACETANI)LID(E) + -CAINE.]

lie¹ (lĭ) v. intr. lay (lā), lain (lān), ly-ing (lĭ'ĭng), lies. 1. To be or place oneself at rest in a flat, horizontal, or recumbent position; recline: lay under a tree to sleep. 2. To be placed on or supported by a surface that is usually horizontal: Dirty dishes lay on the table. See Usage Note at lay¹. 3. To be or remain in a specified condition: The dust has lain undisturbed for years. He lay sick in bed. 4. To exist; be inherent: The solution lies in research. 5. To occupy a position or place: The lake lies beyond this hill. 6. To extend: Our land lies between these trees and the river. 7. Law. To be admissible or maintainable. 8. Archaic. To stay for a night or short while. — n. 1. The manner or position in which something is situated. 2. A haunt or hiding place of an animal. 3. Sports. The position of a golf ball that has come to a stop. — phrasal verbs. lie down. To do little or nothing: He's lying down on the job. lie in. To be in confinement for childbirth. lie to. Nautical. To remain stationary while facing the wind. lie with. 4. To be decided by, dependent on, or up to: The choice lies with you. 5. Archaic. To have sexual intercourse with. — idiom. lie low (or lay low). 1. To keep oneself or one's plans hidden. 2. To bide one's time but remain ready for action. [Middle English lien, from Old English licgan. See legh- in Appendix.]

lie² (lĭ) n. 1. A false statement deliberately presented as being true; a falsehood. 2. Something meant to deceive or give a wrong impression. — v. lied, ly-ing (lĭ'ĭng), lies. — v. intr. 1. To present false information with the intention of deceiving. 2. To convey a false image or impression: Appearances often lie. — v.

tr. To cause to be in a specific condition or affect in a specific way by telling falsehoods: You have lied yourself into trouble. [Middle English, from Old English lyge. See leugh- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: lie, equivocate, fib, palter, prevaricate. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to evade or depart from the truth”: a witness who lied under oath; didn’t equivocate about her real purpose in coming; fibbed to escape being scolded; paltering with an irate customer; didn’t prevaricate but answered forthrightly and honestly.

Lie (lē), Trygve Halvden. 1896-1968. Norwegian politician and first secretary-general of the United Nations (1946-1953).

Lie-big (lē’bīg, -bīKH), Baron Justus von. 1803-1873. German chemist who made a number of contributions to organic chemistry and pioneered laboratory-based scientific education (1826).

Lieb-knecht (lēp’knēkt’, -knēKHt’), Karl. 1871-1919. German journalist and politician who founded (1918) the Spartacus Party, the precursor of the German Communist Party. He was arrested and murdered after a Spartacist uprising in 1919.

Liech-ten-stein (lik’tən-stīn’, līKH’tən-shtīn’) Abbr. Liech. A small Alpine principality in central Europe between Austria and Switzerland. The principality was created in 1719 and became independent in 1866. Vaduz is the capital. Population, 27,076.

lied (lēt) n. pl. lie-der (lē’dər). Music. A German art song in the style of a ballad for solo voice and piano. [German Lied, from Middle High German liet, from Old High German liod.]

Lie-der-kranz (lē’dər-kränts’, -kränts’) A trademark for a soft cheese resembling a mild Limburger.

lie detector (lī dī-tēk’tər) n. A polygraph used to detect possible deception during an interrogation.

lief (lēf) adv. lief-er, lief-est. Readily; willingly: I would as lief go now as later. — adj. liefer, liefest. Archaic. 1. Beloved; dear. 2. Ready or willing. [Middle English leve, lef, dear, willingly, from Old English lēof, dear. See leubh- in Appendix.]

liege (lēj) n. 1. A lord or sovereign to whom allegiance and service are due according to feudal law. 2. A vassal or subject owing allegiance and services to a lord or sovereign under feudal law. 3. A loyal subject to a monarch. — adj.

1. a. Entitled to the loyalty and services of vassals or subjects: a liege lord.

b. Bound to give such allegiance and services to a lord or monarch. 2. Loyal; faithful. [Middle English, from Old French, entitled to feudal allegiance, from Late Latin læticus, being a semifree colonist in Gaul, from lætus, a semifree colonist, of Germanic origin. See lē- in Appendix.]

Li-ège (lē-āzh', lyězh) A city of eastern Belgium near the Dutch and German borders. First mentioned in 558, it was a noted intellectual center in the Middle Ages. Liège was held by France from 1794 to 1815 and by the Netherlands from 1815 to 1830. Population, 207,496.

liege-man (lēj'mən) n. 1. A feudal vassal or subject. 2. A loyal supporter, follower, or subject.

lien (lēn, lē'an) n. Law. The right to take and hold or sell the property of a debtor as security or payment for a debt or duty. [French, tie, bond, from Old French, constraint, from Latin ligāmen, bond, from ligāre, to bind. See leig- in Appendix.]

Lien-yün-kang (lyün'yün'kāng') See Lianyungang.

Lie-pa-ja (lē-ěp'ə-yə, lyě'pä-yä) A city of southwest Latvia on the Baltic Sea southwest of Riga. Founded by the Teutonic Knights in 1263, it passed to Russia in 1795, was briefly the capital of the Latvian provisional government (1918), and was annexed by the U.S.S.R along with the rest of Latvia after World War II. Population, 112,000.

li-erne (lē-urn') n. Architecture. A reinforcing rib used in Gothic vaulting to connect the intersections and bosses of the primary ribs. [French, from lier, to bind, from Old French. See LIABLE.]

lieu (lō) n. Archaic. Place; stead. —idiom. in lieu of. In place of; instead of. [French, from Old French, from Latin locus.]

lieu-ten-ant (lō-těn'ənt) n. 1. a. Abbr. Lt. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Navy or Coast Guard that is above lieutenant junior grade and below lieutenant commander. b. A first lieutenant. c. A second lieutenant. d. One who holds the rank of lieutenant, first lieutenant, or second lieutenant. 2. (lēf-těn'ənt) A commissioned officer in the British and Canadian navies ranking just below a lieutenant commander. 3. An officer in a police or fire department ranking below a captain. 4. One who acts in place of or represents a superior; an assistant or a deputy: the organized crime figure and his lieutenants. See Synonyms at assistant. [Middle English, deputy, from Old French : lieu, lieu; see LIEU + tenant, present participle of tenir, to hold (from Latin tenēre); see ten- in Appendix.] —lieu-ten'an-cy n.

WORD HISTORY: What is the connection between a lieutenant governor and a lieutenant in the army? In the etymology of the word lieutenant, at least, the connection lies in their holding a place; that is, the word lieutenant is from an Old French compound made up of lieu, “place,” and tenant, “holding,” the present participle of the verb tenir, “to hold.” The word in Old French and the borrowed Middle English word lieutenant, first recorded near the end of the 14th century, referred to a person who acted for another as a deputy. This usage has survived, for example, in our term lieutenant governor, the deputy of the governor and the one who replaces the governor if need be. In military parlance lieutenant appears by itself as well as in compounds such as first lieutenant and second lieutenant, which muddy the water a bit, but the original notion of the word in military usage was that the officer it referred to ranked below the next one up and could replace him if need be. A lieutenant in the U.S. Army could thus step into the shoes of a captain.

lieutenant colonel (lōō-tĕn'ənt kūr'nəl) n. Abbr. Lt. Col., LTC 1. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Army, Air Force, or Marine Corps that is above major and below colonel. 2. One who holds this rank.

lieutenant commander (lōō-tĕn'ənt kə-mān'dər) n. Abbr. Lt. Comdr.

1. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Navy or Coast Guard that is above lieutenant and below commander. 2. One who holds this rank.

lieutenant general (lōō-tĕn'ənt jĕn'ər-əl) n. Abbr. Lt. Gen., LTG 1. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Army, Air Force, or Marine Corps that is above major general and below general. 2. One who holds this rank.

lieutenant governor (lōō-tĕn'ənt gŭv'ər-nər) n. Abbr. Lt. Gov. 1. An elected official ranking just below the governor of a state in the United States.

2. The nonelective chief of government of a Canadian province. —lieutenant governorship n.

lieutenant junior grade (lōō-tĕn'ənt jōōn'yər grād) n. pl. lieutenants junior grade. Abbr. LTJG 1. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Navy or Coast Guard that is above ensign and below lieutenant. 2. One who holds this rank.

Liè-vre (lē-ĕv'rə, lyĕv'-) A river, about 322 km (200 mi) long, of southern Quebec, Canada, flowing generally southwest to the Ottawa River.

Li-far (lē-fār', lyī-), Serge. 1905-1986. Russian dancer and choreographer who was premier danseur and ballet master of the Paris Opéra Ballet (1929-1944).

life (lif) n. pl. lives (līvz). 1. Biology. a. The property or quality that distinguishes living organisms from dead organisms and inanimate matter, manifested in functions such as metabolism, growth, reproduction, and response to stimuli or adaptation to the environment originating from within the organism. b. The characteristic state or condition of a living organism. 2. Living organisms considered as a group: plant life; marine life. 3. A living being, especially a person: an earthquake that claimed hundreds of lives. 4. The physical, mental, and spiritual experiences that constitute existence: the artistic life of a writer. 5. a. The interval of time between birth and death: She led a good, long life. b. The interval of time between one's birth and the present: has had hay fever all his life. c. A particular segment of one's life: my adolescent life. d. The period from an occurrence until death: elected for life; paralyzed for life. e. Slang. A sentence of imprisonment lasting till death. 6. The time for which something exists or functions: the useful life of a car. 7. A spiritual state regarded as a transcending of corporeal death. 8. An account of a person's life; a biography. 9. Human existence, relationships, or activity in general: real life; everyday life. 10. a. A manner of living: led a hard life. b. A specific, characteristic manner of existence. Used of inanimate objects: "Great institutions seem to have a life of their own, independent of those who run them" (New Republic). c. The activities and interests of a particular area or realm: musical life in New York. 11. a. A source of vitality; an animating force: She's the life of the show. b. Liveliness or vitality; animation: a face that is full of life. 12. a. Something that actually exists regarded as a subject for an artist: painted from life. b. Actual environment or reality; nature.

13. Christian Science. God. —idioms. as big as life. 1. Life-size. 2. Actually present. bring to life. 3. To cause to regain consciousness. 4. To put spirit into; to animate. 5. To make lifelike. come to life. To become animated; grow excited. for dear life. Desperately or urgently: I ran for dear life when I saw the tiger. for life. Till the end of one's life. for the life of (one). Though trying hard: For the life of me I couldn't remember his name. not on your life. Informal. Absolutely not; not for any reason whatsoever. take (one's) life. To commit suicide. take (someone's) life. To commit murder. the good life. A wealthy, luxurious way of living. the life of Riley. Informal. An easy life. the life of the party. Informal. An animated, amusing person who is the center of attention at a social gathering. to save (one's) life. No matter how hard one tries: He can't ski to save his life. true to life. Conforming to reality. [Middle English, from Old English līf. See leip- in Appendix.]

life-and-death (līf'ən-dēth') or life-or-death (līf'ər-) adj. 1. Involving or ending in life or death: a mongoose in a life-and-death battle with a cobra.

2. Vitally important: a life-and-death struggle between union and management.

life belt (līf bēlt) n. A life preserver worn like a belt.

life-blood (līf'blūd') n. 1. Blood regarded as essential for life. 2. An indispensable or vital part: Capable workers are the lifeblood of the business.

life-boat (līf'bōt') n. Nautical. 1. A boat carried on a ship for use if the ship has to be abandoned. 2. A boat used for rescue service.

life buoy (līf bōō'ē) n. A buoyant device, such as a cork or polystyrene ring, for keeping a person afloat in water.

life cycle (līf sī'kəl) n. 1. The course of developmental changes through which an organism passes from its inception as a fertilized zygote to the mature state in which another zygote may be produced. 2. A progression through a series of differing stages of development.

life expectancy (līf īk-spēk'tən-sē) n. The number of years that an individual is expected to live as determined by statistics.

life force (līf fōrs) n. See élan vital.

life form (līf fôrm) n. The characteristic morphology of a mature organism.

life-guard (līf'gärd') n. An expert swimmer trained and employed to watch over other swimmers, as at a beach or swimming pool. Also called lifesaver — v. intr. life-guard-ed, life-guard-ing, life-guards. To work or serve as a life-guard.

life history (līf hīs'tə-rē) n. 1. The history of changes undergone by an organism from inception or conception to death. 2. The developmental history of an individual or a group in society.

life insurance (līf ĩn-shōōr'əns) n. Insurance that guarantees a specific sum of money to a designated beneficiary upon the death of the insured or to the insured if he or she lives beyond a certain age.

life jacket (līf jāk'ĭt) n. A life preserver in the form of a sleeveless jacket or vest.

life-less (līf'lis) adj. 1. Having no life; inanimate. 2. Having lost life; dead. See Synonyms at dead. 3. Not inhabited by living beings; not capable of sustaining life. 4. Lacking vitality or animation; dull: a lifeless party. —life/less-ly adv. —life/less-ness n.

life-like (līf'lik') adj. Accurately representing real life: a lifelike statue. See Synonyms at graphic. —life/like/ness n.

life-line (līf'līn') n. 1. a. An anchored line thrown as a support to someone falling or drowning. b. Nautical. A line shot to a ship in distress. c. A line used to raise and lower deep-sea divers. 2. a. A means or route by which necessary supplies are transported. b. One that is or is regarded as a source of salvation in a crisis. 3. A diagonal line crossing the palm of the hand and believed to indicate the length and major events of one's life.

life list (līf list) n. A cumulative record of the species seen and identified by a naturalist, especially a bird watcher.

life-long (līf'lōng', -lōng') adj. Continuing for a lifetime.

life-or-death (līf'ər-dēth') adj. Variant of life-and-death.

life preserver (līf prī-zûrv'ər) n. 1. A buoyant device, usually in the shape of a ring, belt, or jacket, designed to keep a person afloat in the water. 2. Chiefly British. A weapon, such as a blackjack.

lif·er (lī'fər) n. Slang. 1. a. A prisoner serving a life sentence. b. One who makes a career in one of the armed forces. 2. A right-to-lifer.

life raft (līf räft) n. Nautical. A raft usually made of inflatable material or wood and used in an emergency at sea.

life-sav·er (līf'sā'vər) n. 1. One that saves a life. 2. See lifeguard. 3. One that provides help in a crisis or emergency. 4. A life preserver shaped like a ring. —life/sav'ing n.

life science (līf sī'əns) n. Any of several branches of science, such as biology, medicine, anthropology, or ecology, that deal with living organisms and their organization, life processes, and relationships to each other and their environment. Also called bioscience life-size (līf'sīz') also life-sized (-sīzd') adj. Being of the same size as an original: a life-size statue.

life span (līf spän) n. 1. A lifetime. 2. The average or maximum length of time an organism, a material, or an object can be expected to survive or last.

life-style also life-style or life style (līf'stīl') n. A way of life or style of living that reflects the attitudes and values of a person or group: "It was a millionaire's lifestyle on the pocketbook of a hairdresser" (People).

USAGE NOTE: When lifestyle began to gain wide currency a generation ago, a number of critics objected to it as vogueish and superficial, perhaps because it appeared to elevate habits of consumption, dress, and recreation to a primary basis of social classification. Nonetheless, the word has proved durable and useful, if only because such categories do in fact figure importantly in the schemes that Americans commonly invoke in explaining social values and social behavior, whether appropriately or not, as in Rachel Brownstein's remark that "an anticonventional lifestyle is no sure sign of feminist politics, or indeed, of any politics at all." As such, the word has won the occasionally grudging acceptance of the Usage Panel. Fifty-three percent of the Panelists accepts the word in the sentence Bohemian attitudes toward conventional society have been outstripped and outdated by the lifestyles of millions of young people, and fully 70 percent accepts the word in the sentence Salaries in the Bay Area may be higher, but it may cost employees as much as 30 percent more to maintain their lifestyles, where the economic context makes more apparent the need for a word that denotes categories based on consumption practices.

life-support system (līf'sə-pōrt' sīs'təm, -pōrt') n. 1. Equipment that creates a viable environment under conditions otherwise incompatible with life.

2. Medical equipment that augments or substitutes for an essential bodily function, such as respiration or excretion, enabling a patient who otherwise might not survive to live.

life-time (līf'tīm') n. 1. The period of time during which an individual is alive.

2. The period of time during which property, an object, a process, or a phenomenon exists or functions. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a lifetime guarantee; lifetime membership.

life-work (līf'wûrk') n. The chief or entire work of a person's lifetime.

life zone (līf zōn) n. Ecology. A geographic region or area defined by its characteristic life forms.

LIFO (lī'fō) n. Accounting. See last-in, first-out.

lift (lɪft) v. lift-ed, lift-ing, lifts. — v. tr. 1. a. To direct or carry from a lower to a higher position; raise: lift one's eyes; lifted the suitcase. b. To transport by air: The helicopter lifted the entire team to the meet. 2. a. To revoke by taking back; rescind: lifted the embargo. b. To bring an end to (a blockade or siege) by removing forces. 3. To cease (artillery fire) in an area. 4. a. To raise in condition, rank, or esteem. b. To uplift; elate: Your telephone call really lifted my spirits. 5. To remove (plants) from the ground for transplanting. 6. To project or sound in loud, clear tones: lifted their voices in song. 7. Informal. To steal; pilfer: A thief lifted my wallet. 8. Informal. To copy from something already published; plagiarize: lifted whole paragraphs from the encyclopedia. 9. To pay off or clear (a debt or mortgage, for example). 10. To perform cosmetic surgery on (the face), especially in order to remove wrinkles or sagging skin. 11. a. Sports. To hit (a golf ball) very high into the air. b. To pick up (a golf ball) to place it in a better lie. — v. intr. 1. a. To rise; ascend. b. To yield to upward pressure: These windows lift easily. 2. a. To disappear or disperse by or as if by rising: By afternoon the smog had lifted. b. To stop temporarily: The rain lifted by morning. 3. To become elevated; soar: Their spirits lifted when help came. — n. 1. The act or process of rising or raising to a higher position. 2. Power or force available for raising: the lift of a pump. 3. An amount or a weight raised or capable of being raised at one time; a load. 4. a. The extent or height to which something is raised or rises; the amount of elevation. b. The distance or space through which something is raised or rises. 5. A rise or an elevation in the level of the ground. 6. An elevation of the spirits: The good news gave us a lift. 7. A raised, high, or erect position, as of a part of the body: the lift of his chin. 8. A machine or device designed to pick up, raise, or carry something. 9. One of the layers of leather, rubber, or other material making up the heel of a shoe. 10. Chiefly British. A passenger or cargo elevator. 11. A ride in a vehicle given to help someone reach a destination: gave my friend a lift into town. 12. Assistance or help: gave her a lift with her heavy packages. 13. A set of pumps used in a mine. 14. The component of the total aerodynamic force acting on an airfoil or on an entire aircraft or winged missile perpendicular to the relative wind and normally exerted in an upward direction, opposing the pull of gravity. —phrasal verb. lift off. To begin flight: The spacecraft lifted off at noon. —idiom. lift fire. To increase the range of artillery fire by elevating the muzzle of a piece. [Middle English liften, from Old Norse lyfta.] —lift'a-ble adj. —lift'er n.

SYNONYMS: lift, raise, rear, elevate, hoist, heave, boost. These verbs mean to move something from a lower to a higher level or position. Lift sometimes stresses the expenditure of effort: a trunk too heavy to lift; requires three men to lift the piano. Raise often implies movement to an approximately vertical position: raised the window slightly; raising a monument to the war dead. Rear is frequently interchangeable with raise: rear a ladder; rear a flagpole. “Her family reared a sumptuous mausoleum over her remains” (Macaulay). Elevate is sometimes synonymous with the preceding terms (used two pillows to keep his head elevated), but it more often suggests exalting, ennobling, or raising morally or intellectually: “A generous and elevated mind is distinguished by nothing more certainly than an eminent degree of curiosity” (Samuel Johnson). Hoist is applied principally to the lifting of heavy objects, often by mechanical means: hoist a sunken ship; uses a crane to hoist the construction beams. To heave is to lift or raise with great effort or force: heaved the pack onto his back. Boost suggests upward movement effected by or as if by pushing from below: boosted the child into the saddle; boost sales; boost morale. See also Synonyms at steal lift-ing body (lɪf'tɪŋ bɔd'ē) n. An aircraft or a spacecraft that has no wings and gains lift by the action of aerodynamic forces on its body.

lift-off (lɪft'ɔf', -ɔf') n. The initial movement by which or the instant in which a rocket or other such craft commences flight.

lig-a-ment (lɪg'ə-mənt) n. 1. Anatomy. A sheet or band of tough, fibrous tissue connecting bones or cartilages at a joint or supporting an organ. 2. A unifying or connecting tie or bond. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin ligāmentum, from Latin, bandage, from ligāre, to bind. See LIEN.] — lig'a-ment'al (-mɛn'tl), lig'a-men'ta-ry (-mɛn'tə-rē, -mɛn'trē), lig'a-men'tous adj.

li-gan (lɪ'gən) n. Variant of lagan.

li-gand (lɪ'gænd, lɪg'ænd) n. An ion, a molecule, or a molecular group that binds to another chemical entity to form a larger complex. [From Latin ligandus, gerundive of ligāre, to bind. See LIGATE.]

li-gase (lɪ'gās', -gāz') n. Any of a class of enzymes, including the carboxylases, that catalyze the linkage of two molecules, generally utilizing ATP as the energy donor. Also called synthetase [Latin ligāre, to bind; see leig- in Appendix + -ASE.]

li-gate (lɪ'gāt') v. tr. li-gat-ed, li-gat-ing, li-gates. To tie or bind with a ligature. [Latin ligāre, ligāt-. See leig- in Appendix.]

li-ga-tion (lɪ-gā'shən) n. 1. a. The act of binding or of applying a ligature. b. The state of being bound. 2. Something that binds; a ligature.

lig-a-ture (lɪg'ə-čɔɔr', -čər) n. 1. The act of tying or binding. 2. A cord, wire, or bandage used for tying or binding. 3. A thread, wire, or cord used in surgery to close vessels or tie off ducts. 4. Something that unites; a bond. 5. A character, letter, or type, such as æ, combining two or more letters. 6. Music. a. A group of notes intended to be played or sung as one phrase. b. A curved line indicating such a phrase; a slur. — v. tr. lig-a-tured, lig-a-tur-ing, lig-a-tures. To ligate. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin ligātūra, from Latin ligātus, past participle of ligāre, to bind. See leig- in Appendix.]

li-ger (lī'gər) n. The product of crossbreeding between a male lion and a female tiger, having features of both but generally being larger than either. [LI(ON) + (TI)GER.]

light¹ (līt) n. 1. Physics. a. Electromagnetic radiation that has a wavelength in the range from about 4,000 (violet) to about 7,700 (red) angstroms and may be perceived by the normal unaided human eye. b. Electromagnetic radiation of any wavelength. 2. The sensation of perceiving light; brightness: a sudden light that made me blink. 3. a. A source of light, especially a lamp, a lantern, or an electric lighting fixture: Turn out the lights when you leave. b. The illumination derived from a source of light: by the light of the moon. c. The particular quantity or quality of such illumination: moved the lamp closer to get better light. d. The pathway or route of such illumination to a person: You're standing in his light. 4. A mechanical device that uses illumination as a signal or warning, especially a beacon or traffic signal. 5. a. Daylight. b. Dawn; daybreak. 6. Something, such as a window, that admits illumination. 7. A source of fire, such as a match or cigarette lighter. 8. Spiritual awareness; illumination. 9. a. Something that provides information or clarification: threw some light on the question. b. A state of awareness or understanding, especially as derived from a particular source: in the light of experience. 10. Public attention; general knowledge: brought the scandal to light. 11. A way of looking at or considering a matter; an aspect: saw the situation in a different light. 12. Archaic. Eyesight. 13. lights. One's individual opinions, choices, or standards: acted according to their own lights. 14. A person who inspires or is adored by another: My daughter is the light of my life. 15. A prominent or distinguished person; a luminary: one of the leading lights of the theater. 16. An expression of the eyes: a strange light in her eyes. 17. Light. In Quaker doctrine, the guiding spirit or divine presence in each person. 18. The representation of light in art. — v. light-ed or lit (līt), light-ing, lights. — v. tr. 1. To set on fire; ignite or kindle. 2. To cause to give out light; make luminous: lit a lamp. 3. To provide, cover, or fill with light; illuminate: fireworks lighting the sky. 4. To signal, direct, or guide with or as if with illumination. 5. To enliven or animate: A smile lit her face. — v. intr. 1. To start to burn; be ignited or kindled: Green wood does not light easily. 2. To emit light; be lighted: Wait until the indicator lights up. — adj. light-er, light-est. 1. Color. a. Having a greater rather than lesser degree of lightness. b. Of or being an additive primary color. 2. Characterized by or filled with light; bright: a room that is light when the shutters are open. 3. Not dark in color; fair: light hair and skin. 4. Served with milk or cream. Used of coffee. — phrasal verb. light up. 1. To become or cause to become animated or cheerful. 2. To start smoking a cigarette, cigar, or pipe. — idiom. in (the) light of. In consideration of; in relationship to. [Middle English, from Old English lēoht, līht. See leuk- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Lighted and lit are equally acceptable as past tense and past participle of light. Both forms are well established as adjectives also: a lighted (or lit) cigarette.

light² (līt) adj. light-er, light-est. 1. a. Of relatively little weight; not heavy: a light load. b. Of relatively little weight for its size or bulk: Balsa is a light wood. c. Of less than the correct, standard, or legal weight: a light pound. 2. Exerting little force or impact; gentle: a light pat. 3. a. Of little quantity; scanty: light snow. b. Consuming or using relatively moderate amounts; abstemious: a light eater; a light smoker. c. Not harsh or severe: gave the offender a light sentence. 4. Demanding little exertion or effort; not burdensome: light household tasks. See Synonyms at easy. 5. Having little importance; insignificant: light, idle chatter. 6. Intended primarily as entertainment; not serious or profound: a light comedy. 7. Free from worries or troubles; blithe: a light heart. 8. Characterized by frivolity; silly or trivial. 9. Liable to change; fickle. 10. Mildly dizzy or faint: felt light in the head. 11. Lacking in ethical discrimination. 12. Moving easily and quickly; nimble: The dancer was light and graceful. 13. Designed for ease and quickness of movement; having a relatively slim structure and little weight: light aircraft. 14. Designed to carry relatively little weight: a light truck. 15. Carrying little equipment or armament: light cavalry; light tanks. 16. Requiring relatively little equipment and using relatively simple processes to produce consumer goods: light industry. 17. Easily awakened or disturbed: a light sleeper. 18. a. Easily digested: a light supper. b. Having a spongy or flaky texture; well-leavened: light pastries. 19. Having a loose, porous consistency: light soil. 20. Containing a relatively small amount of a potentially harmful ingredient, such as alcohol, fat, or sodium: light beer; light mayonnaise. 21. Linguistics. a. Of, relating to, or being a syllable ending in a short vowel or a short vowel plus a consonant. b. Of, relating to, or being a vowel or syllable pronounced with little or no stress. — adv. lighter, lightest. 1. In a light manner; lightly. 2. With little weight and few burdens: traveling light. — v. intr. light-ed or lit (līt), light-ing, lights. 1. To get down, as from a vehicle or horse; dismount. 2. To descend to the ground after flight; land. 3. To come upon one unexpectedly: Misfortune lighted upon him. 4. To come upon by chance or accident. Used with on or upon: lit on the perfect solution to the problem. — phrasal verbs. light into. Informal. To attack verbally or physically; assail. light out. Informal. To leave hastily; run off. — idiom. go light on. To treat casually or gingerly. [Middle English, from Old English lēoht, līht. See leg^wh- in Appendix.]

light adaptation (līt ād'āp-tā'shən) n. The process, chiefly involving constriction of the pupil, by which the eye adapts to an increase in illumination.

—light'-a-dapt'ed (līt'ə-dāp'tīd) adj.

light air (līt âr) n. Meteorology. A wind with a speed of from 1 to 3 miles (2 to 5 kilometers) per hour, according to the Beaufort scale.

light bread (līt brēd) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. See white bread.

light breeze (līt brēz) n. Meteorology. A wind with a speed of from 4 to 7 miles (6 to 11 kilometers) per hour, according to the Beaufort scale.

light bulb (līt būlb) n. An electric light in which a filament is heated to incandescence by an electric current.

light-e-mit-ting diode (līt'ī-mīt'īng dī'ōd') n. LED.

light-en¹ (līt'n) v. light-ened, light-en-ing, light-ens. — v. tr. 1. a. To make light or lighter; illuminate or brighten. b. To make (a color) lighter.

2. Archaic. To enlighten. — v. intr. 1. To become lighter; brighten. 2. To be luminous; shine. 3. To give off flashes of lightning.

light-en² (līt'n) v. light-ened, light-en-ing, light-ens. — v. tr. 1. To make less heavy. 2. To lessen the oppressiveness, trouble, or severity of. See Synonyms at relieve. 3. To relieve of cares or worries; gladden. — v. intr. 1. To become less in weight. 2. To become less oppressive, troublesome, or severe. 3. To become cheerful.

light-er¹ (lī'tər) n. 1. One that ignites or kindles. 2. A mechanical device for lighting a cigarette, cigar, or pipe.

light-er² (lī'tər) Nautical. n. A large flat-bottomed barge, especially one used to deliver or unload goods to or from a cargo ship or transport goods over short distances. — v. tr. light-ered, light-er-ing, light-ers. To convey (cargo) in a lighter. [Middle English, perhaps from lighten, to make less heavy, from Old English līhtan. See leg^{wh}- in Appendix.]

light-er-age (lī'tər-ij) n. Nautical. 1. Transportation of goods on a lighter. 2. The fee charged for lightering.

light-er-than-air (lī'tər-thən-âr') adj. Having a weight less than that of the air displaced. Used of certain aircraft.

light-face (līt'fās') n. Abbr. If Printing. A typeface or font of characters having relatively thin, light lines. —light'faced' adj.

light-fin-gered (līt'fīng'gərd) adj. 1. Having quick and nimble fingers. 2. Skilled at or given to petty thievery. —light'-fin'gered-ness n.

light-foot-ed (līt'foōt'īd) also light-foot (-foōt') adj. Treading with light and nimble ease. —light'-foot'ed-ly adv. —light'-foot'ed-ness n.

light-hand-ed (līt'hān'dīd) adj. Having a light, delicate touch. —light'-hand'ed-ly adv. —light'-hand'ed-ness n.

light-head-ed (līt'hĕd'ĭd) adj. 1. Faint, giddy, or delirious: lightheaded with wine. 2. Given to frivolity; silly. —light/head/ed-ly adv. —light/head/ed-ness n.

light-heart-ed (līt'hār'tĭd) adj. Not being burdened by trouble, worry, or care; happy and carefree. See Synonyms at glad¹. —light/heart/ed-ly adv. —light/heart/ed-ness n.

light heavyweight (līt'hĕv'ē-wāt') n. Sports. 1. A professional boxer weighing more than 160 and not more than 175 pounds (approximately 72.5-79.5 kilograms), heavier than a middleweight and lighter than a heavyweight. 2. A contestant in various other sports in a similar weight class.

light-house (līt'hous') n. Nautical. A tall structure topped by a powerful light used as a beacon or signal to aid marine navigation.

light-ing (līt'tĭng) n. 1. The state of being lighted; illumination. 2. a. The method or equipment used to provide artificial illumination. b. The illumination so provided. 3. The act or process of igniting.

light-ly (līt'lē) adv. 1. With little weight or force; gently. 2. To a slight extent or amount: apply paint lightly. 3. a. With little difficulty; easily. b. With agility and grace; nimbly. 4. a. In a carefree manner; cheerfully: took the news lightly. b. Without sufficient care or consideration; indifferently: treated the situation much too lightly.

light machine gun (līt mə-shĕn' gŭn) n. An air-cooled machine gun not greater than .30 caliber.

light meter (līt mē'tər) n. See exposure meter.

light-mind-ed (līt'mĭn'dĭd) adj. Frivolous, silly, or inanely giddy. —light/mind/ed-ly adv. —light/-mind/ed-ness n.

light-ness¹ (līt'nĭs) n. 1. The quality or condition of being illuminated. 2. Color. The dimension of the color of an object by which the object appears to reflect or transmit more or less of the incident light, varying from black to white for surface colors and from black to colorless for transparent volume colors.

light-ness² (līt'nĭs) n. 1. The state or quality of having little weight or force. 2. Ease or quickness of movement; agility. 3. Ease or cheerfulness in manner or style. 4. Freedom from worry or trouble. 5. Lack of appropriate seriousness; levity. 6. Delicacy or subtlety in craft, performance, or effect.

light-ning (līt'nĭng) n. 1. a. An abrupt, discontinuous natural electric discharge in the atmosphere. b. The visible flash of light accompanying such a discharge. 2. Informal. A sudden, usually improbable stroke of fortune. — v. intr.

light-ninged (-nĭngd), light-ning, light-nings. To discharge a flash of lightning. — adj. Moving or occurring with remarkable speed or suddenness. [Middle English, gerund of lightnen, to illuminate,, lighten (lightnen, from lighten) from Old English lihtan. See leuk- in Appendix.]

lightning arrester (līt'nīng ə-rēs'tər) n. A protective device for electrical equipment that reduces excessive voltage resulting from lightning to a safe level by grounding the discharge.

lightning bug (līt'nīng būg) n. See firefly.

lightning rod (līt'nīng rōd) n. 1. A grounded metal rod placed high on a structure to prevent damage by conducting lightning to the ground. 2. One that attracts and absorbs powerful, typically negative feelings and reactions, thereby diverting interest from other issues: “[His] business dealings have become a lightning rod for criticism” (Walter Shapiro).

light opera (līt ɔp'ər-ə) n. Music. See operetta.

light pen (līt pēn) n. Computer Science. A small, photosensitive device connected to a computer and moved by hand over an output display in order to manipulate information in the computer. Also called electronic stylus, light stylus.

light-proof (līt'prōōf') adj. Impenetrable by light: film stored in lightproof containers.

light reaction (līt rē-āk'shən) n. The first stage of photosynthesis, occurring only in the presence of light, during which energy captured from light drives the production of ATP.

light reflex (līt rē'flēks') n. Contraction of the pupil of the eye in response to an increase in light.

lights (līts) pl.n. The lungs, especially the lungs of an animal slaughtered for food. [Middle English lightes, from light, light in weight (from the lightness of the lungs compared to other organs). See LIGHT².]

light-ship (līt'shīp') n. Nautical. A ship with a powerful light or warning signals that is anchored in dangerous waters to alert other vessels.

light show (līt shō) n. A display of colored lights in shifting patterns, often accompanied by slides and film loops.

light-some¹ (līt'səm) adj. 1. Providing light; luminous. 2. Covered with or full of light; bright. —light/some-ly adv. —light/some-ness n.

light-some² (līt'səm) adj. 1. Light, nimble, or graceful in movement. 2. Free from worry or care; cheerful. 3. Frivolous; silly. —light/some-ly adv. —light/some-ness n.

lights out (līts out) n. 1. A signal or command to extinguish lights for the night. 2. Bedtime.

light-struck (līt'strūk') adj. Fogged by accidental exposure. Used of photosensitive materials.

light stylus (līt stī'ləs) n. Computer Science. See light pen.

light water (līt wō'tər) n. Chemistry & Physics. Ordinary water, H₂O.

light-weight (līt'wāt') n. 1. One that weighs relatively little or less than average. 2. Sports. a. A professional boxer weighing more than 126 and not more than 135 pounds (approximately 57-61 kilograms), heavier than a featherweight and lighter than a welterweight. b. A contestant in various other sports in a similar weight class. 3. A person of little ability, intelligence, influence, or importance. — adj. 1. Weighing relatively little; not heavy: lightweight clothing; a lightweight wood. 2. Sports. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a lightweight: the lightweight title. 3. Having no significance or influence: a lightweight intellect.

light-wood (līt'wōd') n. Chiefly Southern U.S. See kindling.

REGIONAL NOTE: There are a number of regional equivalents for small pieces of easily ignited wood used to start a fire, what Standard English calls kindling. Lightwood, derived from the verb to light (a fire), probably originated in Virginia, according to Craig M. Carver in American Regional Dialects, and is now used throughout the South Midland. Fat pine, fatwood, and rich pine all refer to the resinous pine native to the Gulf States. The resin makes even a small sliver of the wood easily kindled.

light-year also light year (līt'yīr') n. 1. The distance that light travels in a vacuum in one year, approximately 9.46 trillion (9.46×10^{12}) kilometers or 5.88 trillion (5.88×10^{12}) miles. 2. Often light-years. Informal. A long way: a small town light-years away from the action of the capital.

lign- pref. Variant of ligni-.

lig-ne-ous (līg'nē-əs) adj. Consisting of or having the texture or appearance of wood; woody. [From Latin ligneus, from lignum, wood. See leg- in Appendix.]

ligni- or ligno- or lign- pref. Wood: lignocellulose. [From Latin lignum, wood. See leg- in Appendix.]

lig-ni-fy (līg'nə-fī') v. lig-ni-fied, lig-ni-fy-ing, lig-ni-fies. — v. intr. To turn into wood or become woody through the formation and deposit of lignin in cell walls. — v. tr. To make woody or woodlike by the deposit of lignin.

—lig'ni-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

lig-nin (līg'nīn) n. A complex polymer, the chief noncarbohydrate constituent of wood, that binds to cellulose fibers and hardens and strengthens the cell walls of plants.

lig-nite (līg'nīt') n. A soft, brownish-black coal in which the alteration of vegetable matter has proceeded further than in peat but not as far as in bituminous coal. Also called brown coal —lig-nit'ic (-nīt'ik) adj.

ligno- pref. Variant of ligni-.

lig-no-cel-lu-lose (līg'nō-sēl'yə-lōs') n. A combination of lignin and cellulose that strengthens woody plant cells.

lig-num vi-tae (līg'nəm vī'tē) n. pl. lignum vitae. 1. Either of two tropical American trees (Guaiacum officinale or G. sanctum) having evergreen leaves and very heavy, durable, resinous wood. 2. The wood of either of these trees, the hardest of commercial woods. [New Latin lignum vitæ : Latin lignum, wood + Latin vitæ, genitive of vīta, life.]

lig-ro-in (lĭg'rō-ĭn) n. A volatile, flammable fraction of petroleum, obtained by distillation and used as a solvent. [Origin unknown.]

lig-u-la (lĭg'yə-lə) n. pl. lig-u-lae (-lē') or lig-u-las. A strap-shaped or tongue-like structure, especially a mouth part in certain insects. [Latin, diminutive of lingua, tongue. See ḍṅghū- in Appendix.]

lig-u-late (lĭg'yə-līt, -lāt') adj. 1. Strap-shaped. 2. Having a ligule.

lig-ule (lĭg'yool) n. A straplike structure, such as the corolla of a ray flower or a membranous or hairy appendage between the sheaf and blade of a grass leaf.

[Latin ligula, diminutive of lingua, tongue. See ḍṅghū- in Appendix.]

lig-ure (lĭg'yoor') n. A precious stone of ancient Israel. [Middle English liguri, from Late Latin ligūrius, from Greek ligurion, diminutive of liguros, clear, from ligus.]

Li-gu-ri-a (lĭ-gyoor'ē-ə) A region of northwest Italy on the Ligurian Sea, an arm of the Mediterranean Sea between northwest Italy and Corsica. Named for an ancient pre-Indo-European people, the Ligurii, the region was subdued by the Romans in the 2nd century B.C. and was later (16th-19th century) controlled by Genoa. A small section of the coastline surrounding Genoa formed the Ligurian Republic from 1797 until 1815. —Li-gu'ri-an adj. & n.

Li Hong-zhang (lē hŭng'jāng') also Li Hung-chang (hōong'chāng'), 1823-1901. Chinese politician who was China's chief representative in international matters (1870-1894) and prime minister (1895-1898).

lik-a-ble also like-a-ble (lĭ'kə-bəl) adj. Pleasing; attractive. —lik'a-ble-ness, like'a-ble-ness n.

like¹ (lĭk) v. liked, lik-ing, likes. — v. tr. 1. To find pleasant or attractive; enjoy. 2. To want to have: would like some coffee. 3. To feel about; regard: How do you like her nerve! 4. Archaic. To be pleasing to. — v. intr. 1. To have an inclination or a preference: If you like, we can meet you there. 2. Scots. To be pleased. — n. Something that is liked; a preference: made a list of his likes and dislikes. [Middle English likēn, from Old English līcian, to please. See lik- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: like, love, enjoy, relish, fancy, dote. These verbs mean to be attracted to or to find agreeable. Like, the least forceful, suggests mere interest, approval, or favor: "I may like him well enough; but you don't love your servants" (Harriet Beecher Stowe). Love implies a strong attachment or intense affection and deep involvement on an emotional level: "All his faults are such that one loves him still the better for them" (Oliver Goldsmith). Enjoy is applied to what gives personal satisfaction or pleasure: "There are two things to aim at in life: first, to get what you want; and after that, to enjoy it" (Logan Pearsall Smith). Relish applies to what moves one to keen or zestful appreciation: “Every great and original writer... must himself create the taste by which he is to be relished” (William Wordsworth). One fancies what appeals to one’s taste, inclination, imagination, or notion of what a person or thing should be: She fancies elegant clothes and jewelry. Caviar is a delicacy, but few children fancy it. Dote implies foolish, extravagant attachment: He dotes on his grandchildren and indulges their every whim.

like² (lik) prep. 1. Possessing the characteristics of; resembling closely; similar to. 2. a. In the typical manner of: It’s not like you to take offense. b. In the same way as: lived like royalty. 3. Inclined or disposed to: felt like running away. 4. As if the probability exists for: looks like a bad year for farmers. 5. Such as; for example: saved things like old newspapers and pieces of string. — adj. 1. Possessing the same or almost the same characteristics; similar: on this and like occasions. 2. Alike: They are as like as two siblings. 3. Having equivalent value or quality. Usually used in negative sentences: There’s nothing like a good night’s sleep. — adv. 1. In the manner of being; as if. Used as an intensifier of action: worked like hell; ran like crazy. 2. Informal. Probably; likely: Like as not she’ll change her mind. 3. Non-Standard. Used to provide emphasis or a pause: Like let’s get going. — n. 1. One similar to or like another. Used with the: was subject to coughs, asthma, and the like. 2. Often likes. Informal. An equivalent or similar person or thing; an equal or match: I’ve never seen the likes of this before. We’ll never see his like again. — conj. Usage Problem. 1. In the same way that; as: To dance like she does requires great discipline. 2. As if: It looks like we’ll finish on time. [Middle English, from like, similar (from Old English gelīc, and Old Norse likr), and from like, similarly (from Old English gelīce, from gelīc, similar); see lik- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Writers since Chaucer’s time have used like as a conjunction, but 19th-century and 20th-century critics have been so vehement in their condemnations of this usage that a writer who uses the construction in formal style risks being accused of illiteracy or worse. Prudence requires The dogs howled as (not like) we expected them to. Like is more acceptably used as a conjunction in informal style with verbs such as feel, look, seem, sound, and taste, as in It looks like we are in for a rough winter. But here too as if is to be preferred in formal writing. There can be no objection to the use of like as a conjunction when the following verb is not expressed, as in He took to politics like a duck to water. See Usage Note at as¹. See Usage Note at together.

like³ (lik) also liked (likt) v. aux. Chiefly Southern U.S. To be just on the point of; be or come near to: I like to have killed him when he said that. [Middle English liken, to compare, from like, similar. See LIKE².]

-like suff. Resembling or characteristic of: ladylike. [Middle English, from like, similar. See LIKE².]

like-a-ble (lī'kə-bəl) adj. Variant of likable.

like-li-hood (līk'lē-hōod') n. 1. The state of being probable; probability.

2. Something probable.

like-ly (līk'lē) adj. like-li-er, like-li-est. 1. Possessing or displaying the qualities or characteristics that make something probable: They are likely to become angry with him. 2. Within the realm of credibility; plausible: not a very likely excuse.

3. Apparently appropriate or suitable: There were several likely candidates for the job. 4. Apt to achieve success or yield a desired outcome; promising: a likely topic for investigation. 5. Attractive; pleasant: found a likely spot under a shady tree for the picnic. — adv. Usage Problem. Probably. [Middle English likly, from Old English gelīclīc (from gelīc, similar), and from Old Norse līkligr (from līkr, similar); see lik- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Used as an adverb likely is most commonly preceded by a qualifier such as very or quite: He will quite likely require some help with his classes. But the unmodified use of likely is common enough in educated writing, and though it might be better avoided in highly formal style, it should not be regarded as incorrect: They'll likely buy a new car this year. See Usage Note at liable.

like-mind-ed (līk'mīn'dīd) adj. Of the same turn of mind.

lik-en (lī'kən) v. tr. lik-ened, lik-en-ing, lik-ens. To see, mention, or show as similar; compare. [Middle English liknen, from like, similar. See LIKE².]

like-ness (līk'nīs) n. 1. The state, quality, or fact of being like; resemblance.

2. An imitative appearance; a semblance. 3. A pictorial, graphic, or sculptured representation of something; an image.

SYNONYMS: likeness, similarity, similitude, resemblance, analogy, affinity.

These nouns denote agreement or conformity, as in character, nature, or appearance between persons or things. Likeness implies close agreement: “There is a devil haunts thee in the likeness of a fat old man” (Shakespeare). It was your uncanny likeness to my sister that made me stare at you. Similarity and similitude suggest agreement only in some respects or to some degree: They were drawn to each other by similarity of interests. “A striking similitude between the brother and sister now first arrested my attention” (Edgar Allan Poe). Resemblance refers to similarity in appearance or in external or superficial details: “The child... bore a remarkable resemblance to her grandfather” (Lytton Strachey). Analogy is similarity, as of properties or functions, between unlike things that are otherwise not comparable: The operation of a computer presents an interesting analogy to the working of the human brain. Affinity is likeness deriving from kinship or from the possession of shared or compatible properties, characteristics, or sympathies: There is a discernible stylistic affinity between the compositions of Brahms and those of Dvořák.

like-wise (līk'wīz') adv. 1. In the same way; similarly: "Some have little power to do good, and have likewise little strength to resist evil" (Samuel Johnson). 2. As well; also. See Synonyms at also.

lik-ing (lī'kɪŋ) n. 1. A feeling of attraction or love; fondness. 2. Preference or taste.

li-ku-ta (lē-kōō'tä) n. pl. ma-ku-ta (mä-kōō'tä). A unit of currency in Zaire. See Table at currency. [Alteration of Portuguese macuta, an old West African unit of currency consisting originally of a piece of cloth : Bantu li-, sing. n. pref. + Kimbundu and Kongo kuta, cloth.]

li-lac (lī'læk, -lök, -läk) n. 1. Any of various shrubs of the genus Syringa, especially S. vulgaris, widely cultivated for its clusters of fragrant purplish or white flowers. 2. Color. A pale to light or moderate purple. [Obsolete French, from Arabic līlak, from Middle Persian nīlak, from nīl, indigo, from Sanskrit nīlī, from nīla-, dark blue.] —li'lac adj.

li-lan-ge-ni (lī-läng'gě-nē) n. pl. em-a-lan-ge-ni (ēm'ə-läng-gěn'ē). A basic unit of currency in Swaziland. See Table at currency. [Nguni (Siswati) : li-, sing. n. pref. + langeni, money.]

Lil-ien-thal (līl'yən-thôl'), David Eli. 1899-1981. American lawyer and public official. He was a director (1933-1941) and the chair (1941-1946) of the Tennessee Valley Authority and head of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission (1946-1950).

Lil-ien-thal (līl'yən-thôl', -täl'), Otto. 1848-1896. German aeronautical pioneer who designed and tested a number of gliders using curved wings.

Lil-ith (līl'ith) n. 1. An evil female spirit in ancient Semitic legend, alleged to haunt deserted places and attack children. 2. The first wife of Adam in Hebrew folklore, believed to have been in existence before the creation of Eve.

Li-li-u-o-ka-la-ni (lə-lē'ə-ō-kä-lä'nē, lē-lē'ōō-ō-kä-lä'nē), Lydia Kamekeha Paki. 1838-1917. Queen of the Hawaiian Islands (1891-1893). She was the last Hawaiian ruler to govern the islands.

Lille (lēl) A city of northern France north-northeast of Paris near the Belgian border. Founded c. 1030, it was the medieval capital of Flanders and is now a commercial, cultural, and manufacturing center. Population, 168,424.

Lil-lie (līl'ē), Beatrice Lady Peel. 1898-1989. Canadian-born British comedienne who appeared on stage in such productions as Auntie Mame (1958) and High Spirits (1964).

Lil-li-pu-tian also lil-li-pu-tian (līl'ə-pyōō'shən) n. A very small person or being. — adj. 1. Very small; diminutive. 2. Trivial; petty. [After the Lilliputians, a people in Gulliver's Travels by Jonathan Swift.]

Lil·lo (līl'ō), George. 1693-1739. British playwright whose works include The London Merchant (1731) and Marina (1738).

Li·long·we (lī-lông'wā) The capital of Malawi, in the south-central part of the country. It was founded in the 1940's as an agricultural market town. Population, 103,000.

lilt (līlt) n. 1. A cheerful or lively manner of speaking, in which the pitch of the voice varies pleasantly. 2. A light, happy tune or song. 3. A light or resilient manner of moving or walking. — v. lilt-ed, lilt-ing, lilts. — v. tr. To say, sing, or play (something) in a cheerful, rhythmic manner. — v. intr. 1. To speak, sing, or play with liveliness or rhythm. 2. To move with lightness and buoyancy. [From Middle English lulten, liltten, to sound an alarm.]

lil·y (līl'ē) n. pl. lil·ies. 1. Any of various plants of the genus Lilium, having variously colored, often trumpet-shaped flowers. 2. Any of various similar or related plants, such as the day lily or the water lily. 3. The flower of any of these plants. [Middle English lilie, from Old English, from Latin līlium.]

lily family (līl'ē fām'ə-lē) n. A large family of plants, the Liliaceae, characterized by showy flowers with six perianth segments, six stamens, and a superior ovary and usually producing bulbs or rhizomes.

lil·y·liv·ered (līl'ē-līv'ərd) adj. Cowardly; timid.

lily of the Nile (līl'ē ūv thē nīl) n. pl. lilies of the Nile. See African lily.

lily of the valley (līl'ē ūv thē vāl'ē) n. pl. lilies of the valley. A widely cultivated ornamental European plant (Convallaria majalis) having one-sided racemes of fragrant, bell-shaped white flowers.

lily pad (līl'ē pād) n. One of the floating leaves of a water lily.

lil·y·trot·ter (līl'ē-trōt'ər) n. See jaçana.

lil·y·white (līl'ē-hwīt', -wīt') adj. 1. White as a lily. 2. Beyond reproach; blameless. 3. Informal. Excluding or seeking to exclude Black people.

lim. abbr. Limit.

Li·ma 1. (lē'mə) The capital and largest city of Peru, in the west-central part of the country near the Pacific Ocean. Founded by Francisco Pizarro in 1535, it was the capital of Spain's New World empire until the 19th century. The city was largely rebuilt after earthquakes in 1687 and 1746. Population, 371,122. 2.

(lī'mə) A city of northwest Ohio south-southwest of Toledo. It is a processing and marketing center for a rich farm area. Population, 45,549.

li·ma bean (lī'mə bēn) n. 1. Any of several varieties of a tropical American plant (Phaseolus limensis) having flat pods containing large, light green, edible seeds. 2. The seed of this plant. Regional. Also called butter bean [After Lima, Peru.]

lim·a·cine (līm'ə-sēn', lī'mə-) adj. Of, relating to, or resembling a slug. [From Latin līmāx, līmāc-, slug, snail; akin to līmus, slime. See lei- in Appendix.]

limb¹ (lĭm) n. 1. One of the larger branches of a tree. 2. One of the jointed appendages of an animal, such as an arm, a leg, a wing, or a flipper, used for locomotion or grasping. 3. An extension or a projecting part, as of a building or mountain range. 4. One that is considered to be an extension, a member, or a representative of a larger body or group. 5. Informal. An impish child. — v. tr. limbed, limb-ing, limbs. To dismember. — idiom. (out) on a limb. Informal. In a difficult, awkward, or vulnerable position. [Alteration (probably influenced by LIMB²), of Middle English lim, from Old English.]

limb² (lĭm) n. 1. Astronomy. The circumferential edge of the apparent disk of a celestial body. 2. Mathematics. The edge of a graduated arc or circle used in an instrument to measure angles. 3. Botany. The expanded tip of a plant organ, such as a petal or corolla lobe. [Middle English, graduated edge of an astronomical instrument, from Old French limbe, from Latin limbus, border.]

lim·bate (lĭm'bat') adj. Botany. Having an edge or a margin of a different color. [Late Latin limbātus, bordered, from Latin limbus, border.]

lim·ber¹ (lĭm'bər) adj. 1. Bending or flexing readily; pliable. 2. Capable of moving, bending, or contorting easily; supple. — v. lim·bered, lim·ber-ing, lim·bers. — v. tr. To make limber: limbered up his legs. — v. intr. To make oneself limber: players limbering up before the game. [Origin unknown.] — lim·ber-ly adv. — lim·ber-ness n.

lim·ber² (lĭm'bər) n. A two-wheeled, horse-drawn vehicle used to tow a field gun or a caisson. [Alteration of Middle English limour, shaft of a cart, perhaps from limon, from Old French.]

lim·bers (lĭm'bərz) pl.n. Nautical. Gutters or channels on each side of a ship's keelson that drain bilge water into the pump well. [Probably alteration of French lumière, one of the limbers, from Old French lumiere, opening, light, from Late Latin lumināria, pl. of lumināre, window, from Latin, lamp. See LUMINARY.]

lim·bi (lĭm'bī') n. Biology. Plural of limbus.

lim·bic (lĭm'bĭk) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characterized by a limbus. 2. Of or relating to the limbic system. [French limbique, from limbe, edge, from Old French, graduated edge of an astronomical instrument. See LIMB².]

limbic system (lĭm'bĭk sĭs'təm) n. A group of interconnected deep brain structures, common to all mammals, and involved in olfaction, emotion, motivation, behavior, and various autonomic functions.

lim·bo¹ (lĭm'bō) n. pl. lim·bos. 1. Often Limbo. Theology. The abode of just or innocent souls excluded from the beatific vision but not condemned to further punishment. 2. A region or condition of oblivion or neglect: Management kept her promotion in limbo for months. 3. A state or place of confinement. 4. An intermediate place or state. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin (in) limbō, (in) Limbo, ablative of limbus, Limbo, from Latin, border.]

WORD HISTORY: Our use of the word limbo to refer to states of oblivion, confinement, or transition is derived from the theological sense of Limbo as a place where souls remain that cannot enter heaven, for example, unbaptized infants. Limbo in Roman Catholic theology is located on the border of Hell, which explains the name chosen for it. The Latin word limbus, having meanings such as “an ornamental border to a fringe” and “a band or girdle,” was chosen by Christian theologians of the Middle Ages to denote this border region. English borrowed the word limbus directly, but the form limbo that caught on in English, first recorded in a work composed around 1378, is from the ablative form of limbus, the form that would be used in expressions such as in limbō, “in Limbo.”

lim·bo² (lĭm'bō) n. pl. lim·bos. A West Indian dance in which the dancers keep bending over backward and passing under a pole that is lowered slightly each time. [Probably ultimately of African origin.]

Lim·burg (lĭm'bûrg', -bœrkH') A former duchy of northwest Europe. Founded in the 11th century, it was incorporated into the Netherlands in 1815 and divided into the Dutch and Belgian provinces of Limburg in 1839.

Lim·burg·er (lĭm'bûr'gær) n. A soft white cheese with a very strong odor and flavor. [Flemish, one from Limburg, after Limburg, a province of northeast Belgium.]

lim·bus (lĭm'bəs) n. pl. lim·bi (-bī'). Biology. A distinctive border or edge, such as the junction between the cornea and sclera of the eyeball. [Latin, border.]

lime¹ (lĭm) n. 1. A spiny evergreen shrub or tree (Citrus aurantifolia), native to Asia and having leathery leaves, fragrant white flowers, and edible fruit. 2. The egg-shaped fruit of this plant, having a green rind and acid juice used as flavoring. [Probably French, from Spanish lima, from Arabic lĭmah, lĭm, probably from lĭmūn, lemon. See LEMON.]

lime² (lĭm) n. See linden. [Alteration of Middle English lind, line, from Old English lind.]

lime³ (lĭm) n. 1. a. See calcium oxide. b. Any of various mineral and industrial forms of calcium oxide differing chiefly in water content and percentage of constituents such as silica, alumina, and iron. Also called quicklime 2. Birdlime. — v. tr. limed, lim-ing, limes. 1. To treat with lime. 2. To smear with birdlime. 3. To catch or snare with or as if with birdlime. [Middle English lim, from Old English lĭm, birdlime. See lei- in Appendix.] — lim'y adj.

lime·ade (lĭ-mād') n. A sweetened beverage of lime juice and plain or carbonated water.

Li·mei·ra (lĭ-mā'rä) A city of southeast Brazil northwest of São Paulo. Citrus fruits and silkworm cultivation are important to its economy. Population, 137,809.

lime-kiln (līm'kīl', -kīln') n. A furnace used to reduce naturally occurring forms of calcium carbonate to lime.

lime-light (līm'līt') n. 1. A focus of public attention. 2. a. An early type of stage light in which lime was heated to incandescence producing brilliant illumination. b. The brilliant white light so produced. In this sense, also called calcium light li·men (lī'mən) n. pl. li·mens or lim·i·na (līm'ə-nə). The threshold of a physiological or psychological response. [Latin, threshold.] —lim'i·nal (līm'ə-nəl) adj.

lim·er·ick (līm'ər-īk) n. A light humorous, nonsensical, or bawdy verse of five anapestic lines usually with the rhyme scheme aabba. [After Limerick.]

WORD HISTORY: Etymologies can sometimes be a bit disappointing, as, for example, when one is told that limerick is named after a city or county in Ireland without being told why it is so named. Unfortunately, we run into a difficulty here that is not uncommonly faced by etymologists, namely, that no one is precisely sure why this piece of humorous verse was so named. One theory is that it was named for a group of poets who wrote in Limerick in the 18th century; another, that it came from a custom at parties of making up a nonsense verse and following it with a chorus of “Will you come up to Limerick.” In any case, the first limericks appeared in books published in 1820 and 1821, and the form was popularized by Edward Lear in a collection published in 1846. The word itself, however, is not recorded until 1896. Let us sum up by saying: “There once was a verse form named limerick./No one can account for the name of it./Some think from a game/Or from poets it came./If you know please come up to Limerick.”

Lim·er·ick (līm'ər-īk, līm'rīk) A borough of southwest Ireland on the Shannon River estuary. It was an important Norse settlement in the 9th and 10th centuries and was taken by the English in the late 12th century. The city is noted for its fine lace. Population, 60,736.

li·mes (lī'mēz) n. pl. lim·i·tes (līm'ī-tēz'). A fortified boundary or border, especially of the Roman Empire. [Latin līmes.]

lime-stone (līm'stōn') n. A common sedimentary rock consisting mostly of calcium carbonate, CaCO₃, used as a building stone and in the manufacture of lime, carbon dioxide, and cement. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: limestone cliffs; limestone walls.

lime·wa·ter (līm'wô'tər, -wöt'ər) n. A clear colorless alkaline aqueous solution of calcium hydroxide, used in calamine lotion and other skin preparations and sometimes as an antacid.

lim·ey (lī'mē) n. pl. lim·eys. Slang. 1. A British sailor. 2. An English person. [Short for lime juicer (from the use of lime juice on British warships in order to prevent scurvy).]

li·mic·o·line (lī-mīk'ə-līn', -līn) adj. Of or relating to shore birds, especially the plovers, sandpipers, and phalaropes. [From New Latin Limicolae, group name, from pl. of Late Latin limicola, living in mud : Latin limus, slime; see lei- in Appendix + Latin -cola, inhabitant; see -COLOURS.] li·mic·o·lous (lī-mīk'ə-ləs) adj. Living in mud. [From Late Latin limicola. See LIMICOLINE.]

lim·i·na (līm'ə-nə) n. A plural of limen.

lim·it (līm'it) n. Abbr. lim. 1. The point, edge, or line beyond which something cannot or may not proceed. 2. limits. The boundary surrounding a specific area; bounds: within the city limits. 3. A confining or restricting object, agent, or influence. 4. The greatest or least amount, number, or extent allowed or possible: a withdrawal limit of \$200; no minimum age limit. 5. Games. The largest amount which may be bet at one time in games of chance. 6. Mathematics. A number or point k that is approached by a function $f(x)$ as x approaches a if, for every positive number ϵ , there exists a number δ such that $|f(x)-k| < \epsilon$ if $0 < |x-a| < \delta$. Also called limit point, point of accumulation. 7. Informal. One that approaches or exceeds certain limits, as of credibility, forbearance, or acceptability: He is the limit of irresponsibility. — v. tr. lim·it·ed, lim·it·ing, lim·its. 1. To confine or restrict within a boundary or bounds. 2. To fix definitely; to specify. [Middle English limite, from Old French, border, from Latin līmes, līmit-, border, limit.] — lim'it·a·ble adj.

SYNONYMS: limit, restrict, confine, circumscribe. These verbs mean to establish or keep within specified bounds. Limit refers principally to the establishment of a maximum, as of quantity, degree, or time, beyond which a person or thing cannot or may not go: The Constitution limits the President's term of office to four years. "Liberty, too, must be limited in order to be possessed" (Edmund Burke). To restrict is to keep within prescribed limits, as of choice or action: "a pardon, so restricted that none were likely to be forgiven save those who had done no wrong" (John Lothrop Motley). The sale of alcoholic beverages is restricted to those over 21. Confine suggests limits that imprison, restrain, or impede: All prisoners will be confined to their cells. Interest in Asia is no longer confined to scholars. Circumscribe connotes an encircling or surrounding line that confines and especially that confines narrowly: "A man... should not circumscribe his activity by any inflexible fence of rigid rules" (John Stuart Blackie). See also Synonyms at boundary lim·i·tar·y (līm'ī-tēr'ē) adj. Archaic. 1. a. Of or relating to a limit or boundary. b. Limiting; restrictive. 2. Limited.

lim-i-ta-tion (līm'ī-tā'shən) n. 1. The act of limiting or the state of being limited. 2. A restriction. 3. A shortcoming or defect. 4. Law. A specified period during which, by statute, an action may be brought.

lim-it-ed (līm'ī-tīd) adj. 1. Confined or restricted within certain limits: has only limited experience. 2. a. Not attaining the highest goals or achievement: a limited success. b. Having only mediocre talent or range of ability: a popular but limited actor. 3. Having governmental or ruling powers restricted by enforceable limitations, as a constitution or a legislative body: limited monarchy. 4. Abbr.

ltd., Ltd., Ld. Of, relating to, or being a limited company. 5. Abbr. ltd., Ltd., Ld. Of, relating to, or being transportation facilities, such as trains or buses, that make few stops and carry relatively few passengers. — n. Abbr. ltd., Ltd., Ld.

A limited train or bus. —lim'i-ted-ly adv. —lim'i-ted-ness n.

limited company (līm'ī-tīd kŭm'pə-nē) n. Abbr. ltd., Ltd., Ld. A firm, usually associated with British registration, that is organized in such a way as to give its owners limited liability.

limited edition (līm'ī-tīd ỹ-dīsh'ən) n. An edition, as of a book or print, restricted to a specified number of copies.

limited liability (līm'ī-tīd lī'ə-bīl'ī-tē) n. The liability of a firm's owners for no more capital than they have invested in the business.

limited war (līm'ī-tīd wôr) n. A war whose objective is of smaller scope than total defeat of the enemy.

lim-it-er (līm'īt-ər) n. 1. One that limits: a limiter of choices. 2. Electronics. A circuit that prevents the amplitude of a waveform from exceeding a specified value. In this sense, also called clipper lim-i-tes (līm'ī-tēz') n. Plural of limes.

lim-it-ing (līm'ī-tīng) adj. 1. Acting as a limit. 2. Grammar. Restricting the range of application of the noun modified.

lim-it-less (līm'īt-līs) adj. Having no limit or limits; unrestricted: limitless authority; the limitless reaches of outer space. —lim'it-less-ly adv. —lim'it-less-ness n.

limit point (līm'īt point) n. Mathematics. See limit (n., sense 6).

limn (līm) v. tr. limned, limn-ing (līm'nīng), limns. 1. To describe. 2. To depict by painting or drawing. See Synonyms at represent. [Middle English limnen, to illuminate (a manuscript), probably alteration (influenced by limnour, illustrator, from Anglo-Norman lymnour), of luminen, from Old French luminer, from Latin lūmināre, to illuminate, adorn, from lūmen, lūmin-, light. See leuk- in Appendix.] —limn'er (līm'nər) n.

lim-net-ic (līm-nēt'ik) adj. Of or occurring in the deeper, open waters of lakes or ponds. [From Greek limnētēs, marsh-dwelling, from Greek limnē, lake.]

lim-nol-o-gy (līm-nōl'ə-jē) n. The scientific study of the life and phenomena of fresh water, especially lakes and ponds. [Greek limnē, lake + -LOGY.]

—lim'no·log'i·cal (-nə-lŏj'ī-kəl) adj. —lim'no·log'i·cal·ly adv.

—lim·nol'o·gist n.

Lím·nos (lēm'nôs) See Lemnos.

lim·o (lĭm'ō) n. pl. lim·os. Informal. A limousine.

Li·moges (lē-mōzh') A city of west-central France northeast of Bordeaux. Its ceramic industry dates to the 18th century. Population, 140,400.

Li·món (lĭ-mōn', lē-môn'), José Arcadio. 1908-1972. Mexican-born American dancer and choreographer. He was artistic director of the American Dance Theater (1964).

lim·o·nene (lĭm'ə-nēn') n. A liquid, C₁₀H₁₆, with a characteristic lemonlike fragrance, used as a solvent, wetting agent, and dispersing agent and in the manufacture of resins. [French limonène, from French limon, lemon (obsolete), from Old French. See LEMON.]

li·mo·nite (lī'mə-nīt') n. Any of a group of widely occurring yellowish-brown to black iron oxide minerals, essentially FeO(OH)·nH₂O, used as a minor ore of iron. [German Limonit, from Greek leimōn, meadow.] —li'mo·nit'ic (-nīt'ĭk) adj.

Li·mou·sin (lē-mōō-zǎn') A historical region and former province of central France west of the Auvergne Mountains. It was included in the dowry given by Eleanor of Aquitaine to Henry II of England in 1152 and was eventually reconquered by France (1370-1374).

lim·ou·sine (lĭm'ə-zēn', lĭm'ə-zēn') n. Any of various large passenger vehicles, especially a luxurious automobile usually driven by a chauffeur and sometimes having a partition separating the passenger compartment from the driver's seat. [French, perhaps after Limousin.]

limp (lĭmp) v. intr. limped, limping, limps. 1. To walk lamely, especially with irregularity, as if favoring one leg. 2. To move or proceed haltingly or unsteadily: The project limped along with half its previous funding. — n. An irregular, jerky, or awkward gait. — adj. limp·er, limp·est. 1. Lacking or having lost rigidity, as of structure or substance. 2. Lacking strength or firmness; weak or spiritless: a limp handshake; limp opposition. [Probably from obsolete lymphault, lame, from Old English lemphealt : lemp-, hanging loosely + -healt, lame, limping.]

—limp'ly adv. —limp'ness n.

SYNONYMS: limp, flabby, flaccid, floppy. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “lacking in stiffness or firmness”: a limp shirt collar; flabby, wrinkled flesh; flaccid cheeks; a floppy hat brim.

ANTONYM: firm

lim·pet (lĭm'pĭt) n. 1. Any of numerous marine gastropod mollusks, as of the families Acmaeidae and Patellidae, characteristically having a conical shell and adhering to rocks of tidal areas. 2. One that clings persistently. 3. A type of explosive designed to cling to the hull of a ship and detonate on contact or signal. [Possibly Middle English lempet, European limpet (sense uncertain).]

lim·pid (līm'pīd) adj. 1. Characterized by transparent clearness; pellucid. See Synonyms at clear. 2. Easily intelligible; clear: writes in a limpid style. 3. Calm and untroubled; serene. [Latin limpidus.] —lim·pid'·i·ty, lim'pid·ness n.
—lim'pid·ly adv.

limp·kin (līmp'kīn) n. A large brownish wading bird (Aramus guarauna) of warm, swampy regions of the New World, having long legs, a drooping bill, and a distinctive wailing call. Also called courlan [From its gait.]

Lim·po·po (līm-pō'pō) also Croc·o·dile River (krōk'ə-dīl') A river of south-east Africa rising near Johannesburg in northeast South Africa and flowing about 1,770 km (1,100 mi) in a northeast-southeast arc to the Indian Ocean in southern Mozambique.

lim·u·lus (līm'yə-ləs) n. pl. lim·u·li (-lī, -lē). See horseshoe crab. [Latin līmulus, sidelong (from its motion), diminutive of līmus.]

Lin (līn), Maya. Born 1959. American sculptor and architect whose public works include the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C. (1982).

lin. abbr. 1. Lineal. 2. Linear.

lin·ac (līn'āk') n. See linear accelerator. [LĪN(EAR) AC(CELERATOR).]

lin·age also line·age (lī'nīj) n. 1. The number of lines of printed or written material. 2. Payment for written work at a specified amount per line.

lin·al·o·ol (lī-nāl'ō-ōl', -ōl', -ōl') n. A colorless, fragrant liquid, (CH₃)₂CCH(CH₂)₂CCH₃OCOCH₃CHCH₂, distilled from the oils of rosewood, bergamot, and other plants and trees and used in perfume manufacture. [Spanish lináloe, aloe (from Late Latin lignum aloēs, wood of the aloe : Latin lignum, wood; see ligni- + Latin aloēs, genitive of aloē, aloe); see ALOE + -OL¹.]

Li·na·res (lī-nār'īs, lē-nār'rēs) A city of southern Spain east-northeast of Córdoba. It is a center for lead and silver mining. Population, 51,800.

Lin Biao (līn'byou') or Lin Piao (pyou', byou'), 1907-1971. Chinese political leader. He fought to achieve a Communist takeover in China (1949) and became minister of defense (1959). Lin Biao compiled Quotations from Chairman Mao Tse-tung, the well-known "Little Red Book."

linch·pin or lynch·pin (līnch'pīn') n. 1. A locking pin inserted in the end of a shaft, as in an axle, to prevent a wheel from slipping off. 2. A central cohesive element: Reduced spending is the linchpin of their economic program. [Middle English linspin : lins, linchpin (from Old English lynis) + pin, pin (from Old English pin); see PIN.]

Lin·coln¹ (līng'kən) 1. A borough of eastern England northeast of Nottingham. Located on the site of Roman, Saxon, and Danish settlements, it was first chartered in 1157. Population, 75,900. 2. A city of central Illinois north-northeast of Springfield. It was platted (1853) with the aid of Abraham Lincoln, who practiced law here from 1847 to 1859. Population, 15,418. 3. The capital of Nebraska, in the southeast part of the state southwest of Omaha. Founded in 1864 as Lancaster, it was renamed when it was chosen as the state capital in 1867. Population, 191,972.

Lin·coln² (lɪŋg'kən) n. Any of a breed of sheep with long wool, developed in Lincolnshire, a county of eastern England.

Lin·coln (lɪŋg'kən), Abraham. 1809-1865. The 16th President of the United States (1861-1865), who led the Union during the Civil War and emancipated slaves in the South (1863). He was assassinated shortly after the end of the war by John Wilkes Booth.

Lin·coln (lɪŋg'kən), Benjamin. 1733-1810. American general who commanded the troops that put down Shays's Rebellion (1787).

Lin·coln (lɪŋg'kən), Mary Todd. 1818-1882. First Lady of the United States (1861-1865) as the wife of President Abraham Lincoln. Born in the South, she was criticized during the Civil War for allegedly having Confederate sympathies.

Lin·coln (lɪŋg'kən), Mount. A peak, 4,357.2 m (14,286 ft) high, in the Rocky Mountains of central Colorado. It is the highest elevation of the Park Range.

Lin·coln·esque (lɪŋg'kə-něsk') adj. Suggestive of Abraham Lincoln.

Lin·coln Park (lɪŋg'kən pɑrk) A city of southeast Michigan, a residential suburb of Detroit. Population, 41,832.

lin·co·my·cin (lɪŋg'kə-mī'sɪn) n. An antibiotic derived from cultures of the bacterium Streptomyces lincolnensis, used in the treatment of certain penicillin-resistant infections. [lincolnensis, specific epithet + -MYCIN.]

Lind (lɪnd), Jenny. Known as "the Swedish Nightingale." 1820-1887. Swedish soprano who toured the United States (1850-1852) under the management of P.T. Barnum.

lin·dane (lɪn'dān) n. A white crystalline powder, C₆H₆Cl₆, used chiefly as an agricultural pesticide but also used topically in the treatment of scabies and pediculosis. [After Teunis van der Linden, 20th-century Dutch chemist.]

Lind·bergh (lɪnd'bûrg', lɪn'-), Anne Spencer Morrow. Born 1906. American aviator and writer. She accompanied her husband, Charles Lindbergh, on many of his flights and wrote North to the Orient (1935) and Listen! the Wind (1938).

Lind·bergh (lɪnd'bûrg', lɪn'-), Charles Augustus. Known as "Lucky Lindy." 1902-1974. American aviator who made the first solo transatlantic flight (May 20-21, 1927). His books include We (1936) and an autobiography, The Spirit of St. Louis (1953).

lin·den (lɪn'dən) n. Any of various deciduous shade trees of the genus Tilia having heart-shaped leaves, drooping cymose clusters of yellowish, often fragrant flowers, and peduncles united into a large lingulate bract. Also called basswood, *lime*². [Middle English, made of linden wood, from Old English, from lind, linden.]

Lin·den (lĭn'dən) A city of northeast New Jersey, an industrial center adjacent to Elizabeth. Population, 36,701.

Lin·den·hurst (lĭn'dən-hûrst') A village of southeast New York on southern Long Island near Babylon. It is mainly residential. Population, 26,879.

Lin·den·wold (lĭn'dən-wōld') A borough of southwest New Jersey southeast of Camden. It was settled in 1742. Population, 18,734.

Lin·des·nes (lĭn'dīs-nēs') A cape of extreme southern Norway projecting into the North Sea.

Lin·dis·farne (lĭn'dīs-fārn') See Holy Island.

Lind·ley (lĭnd'lē, lĭn'-), John. 1799-1865. British botanist and horticulturist who wrote The Theory and Practice of Horticulture (1840) and The Vegetable Kingdom (1846).

Lind·say (lĭn'zē), Howard. 1889-1968. American playwright and producer who collaborated with Russel Crouse on a number of musical comedies, including Red, Hot, and Blue (1936) and State of the Union (1946).

Lind·say (lĭn'zē), John Vliet. Born 1921. American politician who was mayor of New York City from 1966 to 1974.

Lind·say (lĭn'zē), (Nicholas) Vachel. 1879-1931. American poet who traveled the United States exchanging poems for room and board. His volumes include General William Booth Enters Heaven and Other Poems (1913) and The Congo and Other Poems (1914).

Lind·sey (lĭn'zē), Benjamin Barr. Known as "Ben." 1869-1943. American jurist and social reformer. In Denver, Colorado, he established (1899) and presided over (1900-1927) the first juvenile court in the United States.

lin·dy or Lin·dy (lĭn'dē) n. pl. lin·dies. A lively swing dance for couples. Also called lindy hop [After the name Lindy, nickname of Charles Augustus LINDBERGH.]

line¹ (lĭn) n. Abbr. l. 1. The path traced by a moving point. 2. a. A thin continuous mark, as that made by a pen, pencil, or brush applied to a surface. b. A similar mark cut or scratched into a surface. c. A crease in the skin, especially on the face; a wrinkle. 3. a. A real or imaginary mark positioned in relation to fixed points of reference. b. A degree or circle of longitude or latitude drawn on a map or globe. c. The equator. Used with the. 4. a. A border or boundary: the county line. b. A demarcation: a line of darker water beyond the reef. c. A contour or an outline: the line of the hills against the evening sky. 5. a. A mark used to define a shape or represent a contour. b. Any of the marks that make up the formal design of a picture. 6. a. A cable, rope, string, cord or wire. b. Nautical. A rope used aboard a ship. c. A fishing line. d. A clothesline. e. A cord or tape used, as by builders or surveyors, for measuring, leveling, or straightening. 7. A pipe or system of pipes for conveying a fluid: gas lines. 8. An electric-power transmission cable. 9. a. A wire or system of wires connecting telephone or telegraph systems. b. An open or functioning telephone connection: tried to get a free line. 10. a. A passenger or cargo system of public or private transportation, as by ship, aircraft, or bus, usually over a definite route. b. A company owning or managing such a system. 11. a. A railway track or system of tracks. b. A particular section of a railway network: the Philadelphia-Trenton line. 12. A course of progress or movement; a route: a line of flight. 13. a. A general method, manner, or course of procedure: different lines of thought; took a hard line on defense. b. A manner or course of procedure determined by a specified factor: development along socialist lines. c. An official or prescribed policy: the party line. 14. Often lines. A general concept or model: a trilogy along the lines of the Oresteia. 15. A condition of agreement; alignment: brought the front wheels into line; a wage agreement in line with current inflation. 16. a. One's trade, occupation, or field of interest: What line of work are you in? b. Range of competence: not in my line. 17. Merchandise or services of a similar or related nature: carries a complete line of small tools. 18. A group of persons or things arranged in a row or series: long lines at the box office; a line of stones. 19. a. Ancestry or lineage. b. A series of persons, especially from one family, who succeed each other: a line of monarchs; comes from a long line of bankers. c. A strain, as of livestock or plants, developed and maintained by selective breeding. 20. a. A sequence of related things that leads to a certain ending: a line of argument. b. An ordered system of operations that allows a sequential manufacture or assembly of goods at all or various stages of production. c. The personnel of an organization or a business who actually make a product or perform a service. 21. a. A horizontal row of printed or written words or symbols. b. One of the horizontal scans forming a television image. 22. A brief letter; a note: I'll drop you a line. 23. a. A unit of verse ending in a visual or typographic break and generally characterized by its length and meter: a line of iambic pentameter. b. Often lines. The dialogue of a theatrical presentation, such as a play: spent the weekend learning her lines. 24. Informal. Glib or insincere talk, usually intended to deceive or impress: He kept on handing me a line about how busy he is. 25. lines. Chiefly British. a. A marriage certificate. b. A usually specified number of lines of prose or verse to be written out by a pupil as punishment. 26. Games. A horizontal demarcation on a scorecard in bridge dividing the honor score from the trick score. 27. a. A source of information. b. The information itself: got a line on the computer project. 28. a. Music. One of the five parallel marks constituting a staff. b. A sustained melodic or harmonic part in a piece: a rock song with a driving bass line. 29. a. A formation in which elements, such as troops, tanks, or ships, are arranged abreast of one another. b. The battle area closest to the enemy; the front. c. The combat troops or warships at the front, arrayed for defense or offense. d. The regular forces of an army or a navy, in contrast to staff and support personnel. e. The class of officers in direct command of warships or of army combat units. f. A bulwark or trench. g. An extended system of such fortifications or defenses: the Siegfried line. 30. Sports. a. A foul line. b. A real or imaginary mark demarcating a specified section of a playing area or field. c. A real or imaginary mark or point at which a race begins or ends. d. The center and two wings making up a hockey team's offensive unit. 31. Football. a. A line of scrimmage. b. The linemen considered as a group. 32. Informal. The odds a bookmaker gives, especially for sports events. 33. a. A kind of coverage available in insurance. b. The proportion of an insurance risk assumed by a particular underwriter or company.

34. Slang. A small amount of cocaine arranged in a thin, usually tightly rolled strip for sniffing. 35. Archaic. One's lot or position in life. — v. lined, lin-ing, lines. — v. tr. 1. To mark, incise, or cover with a line or lines. 2. To represent with lines. 3. To place in a series or row. 4. To form a bordering line along: Small stalls lined the alley. 5. Baseball. To hit (a ball) sharply, usually in a straight line. — v. intr. Baseball. To hit a line drive: lined out to shortstop. — phrasal verb. line up. 1. To arrange in or form a line. 2. To organize and make ready: lined up considerable support for the bill. — idioms. all along the line. 1. In every place. 2. At every stage or moment. down the line. 3. All the way; throughout: Errors are to be found down the line. 4. At a point or an end in the future. in line for. Next in order for: in line for the presidency. on the line. 6. Ready or available for immediate payment. 7. So as to be risked; in jeopardy: "Careers were on the line once again" (Seymour M. Hersh). out of line.

8. Uncalled-for; improper. 9. Unruly and out of control. [Middle English, from Old English līne, and from Old French ligne both from Latin līnea, feminine sing. of līneus, of linen, from līnum, thread, linen. See līno- in Appendix.]

line² (līn) v. tr. lined, lin-ing, lines. 1. To fit a covering to the inside surface of: a coat lined with fur. 2. To cover the inner surface of: Moisture lined the walls of the cave. 3. To fill plentifully, as with money or food. [Middle English linen, from line, flax, linen cloth, from Old English līn, from Latin līnum. See līno- in Appendix.]

lin·e·age¹ (līn'ē-īj) n. 1. a. Direct descent from a particular ancestor; ancestry. b. Derivation. 2. The descendants of a common ancestor considered to be the founder of the line. [Middle English linage, lineage, from Old French lignage, from ligne, line. See LINE¹.]

line·age² (lī'nīj) n. Variant of linage.

lin·e·al (līn'ē-əl) adj. Abbr. lin. 1. Belonging to or being in the direct line of descent from an ancestor. 2. Derived from or relating to a particular line of descent; hereditary. 3. Linear. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin lineālis, consisting of lines, from Latin līnea, line. See LINE¹.] — lin'·e·al·ly adv.

lin·e·a·ment (lɪn'ē-ə-mənt) n. 1. A distinctive shape, contour, or line, especially of the face. 2. Often lineaments. A definitive or characteristic feature. [Middle English liniament, from Latin līnēamentum, from līnea, line. See LINE¹.]
lin·e·ar (lɪn'ē-ər) adj. Abbr. lin. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a line; straight. 2. a. In, of, describing, described by, or related to a straight line. b. Having only one dimension. 3. Characterized by, composed of, or emphasizing drawn lines rather than painterly effects. 4. Botany. Narrow and elongated with nearly parallel margins: a linear leaf. [Latin līnēāris, from līnea, line. See LINE¹.]
—lin'·e·ar·ly adv.

Lin·e·ar A (lɪn'ē-ər;) n. An undeciphered writing system used in Crete from the 18th to the 15th century B.C. linear accelerator (lɪn'ē-ər äk-səl'ə-rā'tər) n. An electron, a proton, or a heavy-ion accelerator in which the paths of the particles accelerated are essentially straight lines rather than circles or spirals. Also called linac linear algebra (lɪn'ē-ər äljə-brə) n. Mathematics. 1. The branch of mathematics that deals with the theory of systems of linear equations, matrices, vector spaces, determinants, and linear transformations. 2. A mathematical ring and vector space with scalars from an associated field, the multiplication of which is of the form $(a\mathbf{A})(b\mathbf{B}) = (ab)(\mathbf{AB})$, where a and b are scalars and \mathbf{A} and \mathbf{B} are vectors.

Linear B (lɪn'ē-ər bē) n. A syllabic script used in Mycenaean Greek documents chiefly from Crete and Pylos, mostly from the 14th to the 12th century B.C.

linear combination (lɪn'ē-ər kōm'bə-nā'shən) n. Mathematics. An expression of first order, composed of the sums and differences of elements with non-zero coefficients.

linear dependence (lɪn'ē-ər dī-pən'dəns) n. Mathematics. The property of a set with the coefficients of another set of having at least one linear combination equal to zero when at least one of the coefficients is not equal to zero.

linear equation (lɪn'ē-ər ɪ-kwā'zhən) n. Mathematics. An algebraic equation, such as $y = 2x + 7$, in which the highest degree term in the variable or variables is of the first degree. The graph of such an equation is a straight line.

linear independence (lɪn'ē-ər ɪn'dī-pən'dəns) n. Mathematics. The property of a set with the coefficients of another set of having no linear combinations equal to zero unless all of the coefficients are equal to zero.

lin·e·ar·ize (lɪn'ē-ər-rīz') v. tr. lin·e·ar·ized, lin·e·ar·iz·ing, lin·e·ar·iz·es. To put or project in linear form. —lin'·e·ar·i·za'tion (-ər-ɪ-zā'shən) n.

linear measure (lɪn'ē-ər məzh'ər) n. 1. The measurement of length. 2. A unit or system of units for measuring length. Also called long measure linear momentum (lɪn'ē-ər mō-məntəm) n. See momentum (n., sense 1).

linear perspective (līn'ē-ər pər-spĕk'tiv) n. A form of perspective in drawing and painting in which parallel lines are represented as converging so as to give the illusion of depth and distance.

lin·e·a·tion (līn'ē-ā'shən) n. 1. The act of marking or outlining with lines. 2. An outline. 3. An arrangement of lines. [Middle English lineacioun, from Latin lineātiō, lineātiōn-, from lineātus, past participle of lineāre, to make straight, from linea, thread, line. See LINE¹.]

line·back·er (līn'băk'ər) n. Football. Any of the defensive players forming a second line of defense behind the ends and tackles. —line'back'ing n.

line breeding (līn brē'dīng) n. Selective inbreeding to perpetuate certain desired qualities or characteristics in a strain of livestock.

line cut (līn kūt) n. A letterpress printing plate made from a line drawing by a photoengraving process. Also called line engraving line drawing (līn drô'ing) n. A drawing made with lines only, especially one used as copy for a line cut.

line drive (līn drīv) n. Baseball. A batted ball hit sharply so that its path roughly describes a straight line.

line engraving (līn ĕn-grā'vīng) n. 1. a. A metal plate, used in intaglio printing, on the surface of which design lines have been engraved by hand. b. The process of making such an engraving. c. A print made from such an engraving. 2. See line cut.

Line Islands (līn ī'ləndz) A group of islands in the central Pacific Ocean south of Hawaii and astride the equator. First visited in 1798 by American sailors, the islands are now part of Kiribati.

line item (līn ī'təm) n. A single item, especially of a legislative appropriations bill: Most governors have the power to veto line items of the proposed state budget. —line'-i'tem (līn'ī'təm) adj.

line·man (līn'mən) n. 1. A person employed to install or repair telephone, telegraph, or electric power lines. Also called linesman 2. A man employed to inspect and repair railroad tracks. 3. Football. A player positioned on the forward line.

lin·en (līn'ən) n. 1. a. Thread made from fibers of the flax plant. b. Cloth woven from this thread. 2. Also linens. Articles or garments made from linen or a similar cloth, such as cotton; bed sheets and tablecloths. 3. Paper made from flax fibers or having a linenlike luster. — adj. 1. Made of flax or linen.

2. Resembling linen. [Middle English, from Old English līnen, made of flax, from Germanic līnin-, from līnam, flax, probably from Latin līnum. See līno- in Appendix.]

line of credit (līn ūv krĕd'it) n. pl. lines of credit. See credit line (n., sense 2).

line officer (līn ô'fī-sər) n. A commissioned officer in the armed forces who is assigned to the line for duty.

line of force (līn ūv fōrs) n. pl. lines of force. A theoretical line in a field of force, such that a tangent at any point gives the direction of the field at that point.

line of scrimmage (līn ūv skrīm'ij) n. pl. lines of scrimmage. Abbr. LOS Football. An imaginary line across the field on which the ball rests and at which the teams line up for a new play.

line of sight (līn ūv sīt) n. pl. lines of sight. Abbr. LOS 1. An imaginary line from the eye to a perceived object. 2. An unobstructed path between sending and receiving antennas.

lin-e-o-late (līn'ē-ə-lāt') adj. Marked with fine lines. [New Latin lineolātus, from Latin lineola, diminutive of linea, thread, line. See LINE¹.]

line printer (līn prīn'tər) n. A high-speed printing device, primarily used in data processing, that prints an entire line of type as a unit instead of printing each character individually.

lin-er¹ (lī'nər) n. 1. One that draws or makes lines. 2. A large commercial ship or airplane, especially one carrying passengers on a regular route. 3. Baseball. A line drive.

lin-er² (lī'nər) n. 1. One that makes or puts in linings. 2. a. A lining. b. Material used as a lining. 3. A jacket for a phonograph record.

lin-er-board (lī'nər-bōrd', -bōrd') n. A type of paperboard used in making corrugated cartons.

line score (līn skôr) n. Sports. A summary of the scoring by period in a game displayed in the form of a horizontal table, especially an inning-by-inning record of the runs scored in a baseball game followed by the total of each team's runs, hits, and errors.

lines-man (līnz'mən) n. 1. a. Football. An official who marks the downs and the position of the ball and watches for certain violations from the sidelines.

b. Sports. A man in various court games whose chief duty is to call shots that fall out of bounds. 2. See lineman (n., sense 1).

line spectrum (līn spēk'trəm) n. A spectrum produced by a luminous gas or vapor and appearing as distinct lines characteristic of the various elements constituting the gas.

line squall (līn skwôl) n. A squall or a series of squalls occurring along a narrow band of thunderstorms.

line storm (līn stôrm) n. A violent storm or a series of storms of rain and wind believed to take place during the equinoxes.

lines-wom-an (līnz'wōm'ən) n. Sports. A woman in various court games whose chief duty is to call shots that fall out of bounds.

line-up also line-up (līn'ŭp') n. 1. A line of people that is formed for inspection or identification. 2. Sports. a. The members of a team chosen to start a game. b. A list of such players. 3. A group of people, organizations, or things enlisted or arrayed for a purpose: a candidate with an impressive lineup of endorsements.

ling¹ (lɪŋ) n. pl. ling or lings. Any of various marine food fishes related to or resembling the cod, especially Molva molva of northern European waters. [Middle English, possibly of Low German origin. See del¹ in Appendix.]

ling² (lɪŋ) n. See heather (n., sense 1). [Middle English, from Old Norse lyng.]

ling. abbr. Linguistics.

-ling¹ suff. 1. One connected with: worldling. 2. One having a specified quality: underling. 3. One that is young, small, or inferior: duckling. [Middle English, from Old English.]

-ling² suff. In a specified direction, manner, or condition: darkling. [Middle English, from Old English.]

lin-ga (lɪn'gə) n. Hinduism. Variant of lingam.

Lin-ga-la (lɪŋ-gä'lə) n. A creole based on Bantu, widely spoken as a lingua franca in Zaire.

lin-gam (lɪŋ'gəm) also lin-ga (lɪn'-gə) n. Hinduism. A stylized phallus worshipped as a symbol of the god Shiva. [Sanskrit liṅgam, mark, penis.]

Lin-ga-yen Gulf (lɪŋ'gä-yĕn' gülf) An inlet of the South China Sea on the western coast of Luzon, Philippines. It was captured by the Japanese in December 1941 and retaken by American forces in January 1945.

ling-ber-ry (lɪŋ'bĕr'ĕ) n. See cowberry. [Variant of LINGONBERRY.]

ling-cod (lɪŋ'kɔd') n. pl. lingcod or ling-cods. A large, northern Pacific food fish (Ophiodon elongatus) related to the greenling.

lin-ger (lɪŋ'gər) v. lin-gered, lin-ger-ing, lin-gers. — v. intr. 1. To be slow in leaving, especially out of reluctance; tarry. See Synonyms at stay¹. 2. To remain feebly alive for some time before dying. 3. To persist: an aftertaste that lingers. 4. To proceed slowly; saunter. 5. To be tardy in acting; procrastinate. — v. tr. To pass (a period of time) in a leisurely or aimless manner. [Middle English lengeren, frequentative of lengen, to prolong, from Old English lengan. See del¹ in Appendix.] — lin'ger-er n. — lin'ger-ing-ly adv.

lin-ge-rie (län'zhə-rā', län'zhə-rĕ, län-zhə-rĕ') n. 1. Women's underclothes. 2. Archaic. Linen articles, especially garments. [French, from Old French, from linge, linen, from Latin līneus, made of linen, from līnum, flax. See līno- in Appendix.]

lin-go (lɪŋ'gō) n. pl. lin-goes. 1. Language that is unintelligible or unfamiliar. 2. The specialized vocabulary of a particular field or discipline: spoke to me in the lingo of fundamentalism. See Synonyms at dialect. [Probably from Portuguese lingoa, from Latin lingua, language. See ḍŋghū- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: A look at the entry in the Indo-European roots entry for

d̥ŋghū- will show that the words tongue, language, and lingo are related, all going back to the Indo-European root d̥ŋghū-, “tongue.” The relationship between language and lingo is not particularly surprising given their related meanings and common root, but one might be curious as to the routes by which these two words came into English. Language, as did so many of our important borrowings from Latin, passed through French into English during the Middle Ages, the forms involved being Latin lingua, “language,” its descendant, Old French langue, and its derivative, langage. Lingo, on the other hand, entered English after the end of the Middle Ages when Europe had opened itself to the larger world. We have probably borrowed lingo from lingoa, a Portuguese descendant of Latin lingua. The Portuguese were great traders before the English were, and it is not unlikely that the sense “foreign language” was strengthened as the Portuguese traveled around the world. Interestingly enough, the first recorded instance of lingo in English is in the New World (1660) in a reference to the “Dutch lingo.” The development in sense to “unintelligible language” and “specialized language” is an obvious one.

lin-gon-ber-ry (lɪŋ'ən-bɛr'ē) n. See cowberry. [Swedish lingon, a kind of berry + BERRY.]

lin-gua (lɪŋ'gwə) n. pl. lin-guae (-gwē'). A tongue or tonguelike organ. [Latin, tongue, language. See d̥ŋghū- in Appendix.]

lingua fran-ca (lɪŋ'gwə fræŋ'kə) n. pl. lingua fran-cas (-kəz) also lin-guae fran-cae (-kē). 1. A medium of communication between peoples of different languages. 2. A mixture of Italian with Provençal, French, Spanish, Arabic, Greek, and Turkish, formerly spoken on the eastern Mediterranean coast. [Italian : lingua, language + franca, Frankish (that is, European).]

lin-gual (lɪŋ'gwəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or situated near the tongue or a tonguelike organ. 2. Linguistics. Pronounced with the tongue in conjunction with other organs of speech. 3. Of languages; linguistic: lingual diversity. — n. Linguistics. A sound, such as (t), (l), and (n), that is pronounced with the tongue and other organs of speech. —lin'gual-ly adv.

lin-gui-ça (lɪŋ-gwē'sə, -sə, lɪn-) n. A highly seasoned Portuguese pork sausage flavored with garlic, onions, and pepper. [Portuguese.]

lin-gui-ne also lin-gui-ni (lɪŋ-gwē'nē) n. Pasta in the form of long, flat, thin strands. [Italian, pl. of linguina diminutive of lingua, tongue, from Latin. See LINGUA.]

lin-guist (lɪŋ'gwɪst) n. 1. A person who speaks several languages fluently. 2. A specialist in linguistics. [Latin lingua, language; see d̥ŋghū- in Appendix + -IST.]

lin-guis-tic (lɪŋ-gwɪs'tɪk) adj. Of or relating to language or linguistics. —lin-guis'ti-cal-ly adv.

linguistic atlas (lɪŋ-gwɪs'tɪk ăt'ləs) n. A set of maps recording the geographic distribution of variations in speech. Also called dialect atlas linguistic form (lɪŋ-gwɪs'tɪk fɔrm) n. A meaningful unit of speech, such as an affix, a word, a phrase, or a sentence.

linguistic geography (lɪŋ-gwɪs'tɪk jē-ɔg'rə-fē) n. The branch of linguistics that involves the study of regional variations of speech forms. Also called dialect geography —linguistic geographer n.

lin-guis-tics (lɪŋ-gwɪs'tɪks) n. (used with a sing. verb). Abbr. ling. The study of the nature and structure of human speech.

lin-gu-late (lɪŋ'gyə-lāt') adj. Shaped like a tongue: lingulate antennae. [Latin lingulātus, from lingula, diminutive of lingua. See LINGUA.]

lin-i-ment (lɪn'ə-mənt) n. A medicinal fluid rubbed into the skin to soothe pain or relieve stiffness. [Middle English, from Late Latin linimentum, from Latin linere, linīre, to rub over, anoint. See lei- in Appendix.]

li-nin (lī'nɪn) n. The filamentous, achromatic material in the nucleus of a cell that interconnects chromatin granules. [Latin linum, thread; see lino- in Appendix + -IN.]

lin-ing (lɪ'nɪŋ) n. 1. A covering or coating for an inside surface: The jacket had a patterned lining. 2. Material used for such covering or coating.

link¹ (lɪŋk) n. 1. One of the rings or loops forming a chain. 2. a. A unit in a connected series of units: links of sausage; one link in a molecular chain. b. A unit in a transportation or communications system. c. A connecting element; a tie or bond: grandparents, our link with the past. 3. a. An association; a relationship: The Alumnae Association is my link to the school's present administration. b. A causal, parallel, or reciprocal relationship; a correlation: Researchers have detected a link between smoking and heart disease. 4. A cuff link. 5. Abbr. li. A unit of length used in surveying, equal to 0.01 chain, 7.92 inches, or about 20.12 centimeters. 6. A rod or lever transmitting motion in a machine. 7. Computer Science. An identifying term attached to an element in a system to facilitate connection to other identified elements. — v. tr. intr. linked, link-ing, links. To connect or become connected with or as if with a link. See Synonyms at join. [Middle English linke, of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse hlekkkr, ·hlenkr.] —link'er n.

link² (lɪŋk) n. A torch formerly used for lighting one's way in the streets. [Possibly from Medieval Latin linchinus, lichnus, candle, from Latin lychnus, from Greek lukhnos, lamp. See leuk- in Appendix.]

link-age (lɪŋ'kɪj) n. 1. a. The act or process of linking. b. The condition of being linked. 2. A connection or relation; an association. 3. A negotiating policy of making agreement on one issue dependent on progress toward another objective. 4. A system of interconnected machine elements, such as rods, springs, and pivots, used to transmit power or motion. 5. Electricity. A measure of the induced voltage in a circuit caused by a magnetic flux and equal to the flux times the number of turns in the coil that surrounds it. 6. Genetics. An association between two or more genes such that the traits they control tend to be inherited together.

linkage group (lɪŋg'kɪj grōp) n. A pair or set of genes on a chromosome that tend to be transmitted together.

linked (lɪŋkt) adj. 1. Connected, especially by or as if by links. 2. Genetics. Exhibiting linkage. 3. Computer Science. Provided with links.

link-ing verb (lɪŋg'kɪŋ vûrb) n. See copula (n., sense 1).

Lin·kø·ping (lɪn'chœ'pɪŋ) A city of southeast Sweden southwest of Stockholm. It was a noted intellectual and religious center during the Middle Ages. Population, 115,600.

links (lɪŋks) pl.n. 1. Sports. A golf course. 2. Scots. Relatively flat or undulating sandy turf-covered ground usually along a seashore. [From Middle English link, ridge of land, hill, from Old English hlinc, ridge.]

link-up (lɪŋk'ʊp') n. 1. The act of linking or connecting: a linkup of two orbiting spacecraft. 2. Something that serves to link or join; a connection. 3. A set of linked elements that forms a functioning system: broadcast the event on a closed-circuit TV linkup.

linn (lɪn) n. Scots. 1. A waterfall. 2. A steep ravine. [Scottish Gaelic linne, pool, waterfall.]

Lin·nae·an also Lin·ne·an (lɪ-nē'æn) adj. Abbr. L. Of or relating to Carolus Linnaeus or to the system of taxonomic classification and binomial nomenclature that he originated.

Lin·nae·us (lɪ-nē'æs, -nā'-), Carolus. Known as "Karl Linné." 1707-1778. Swedish botanist and founder of the modern classification system for plants and animals.

lin·net (lɪn'ɪt) n. 1. A small Old World finch (Carduelis cannabina) having brownish plumage. 2. A similar bird (Carpodacus mexicanus) of Mexico and the western United States. In this sense, also called house finch [Obsolete French linette, from Old French, from lin, flax (from its feeding on flax seed), from Latin linum. See lino- in Appendix.]

Linn·he (lɪn'ē), Loch. An inlet of the Atlantic Ocean on the western coast of Scotland. It is part of the Caledonian Canal waterway.

lin·o·le·ic acid (lɪn'ə-lē'ɪk əs'ɪd) n. An unsaturated fatty acid, C₁₇H₃₁COOH, considered essential to the human diet, that is an important component of drying oils, such as linseed oil. [Greek linon, flax; see lino- in Appendix + OLEIC ACID.]

lin·o·len·ic acid (lɪn'ə-lēn'ɪk əs'ɪd) n. An unsaturated fatty acid, C₁₇H₂₉COOH, considered essential to the human diet, that is an important component of natural drying oils. [Blend of LINOLEIC ACID, and -ENE.]

li·no·le·um (lɪ-nō'lē-əm) n. A durable, washable material made in sheets by pressing a mixture of heated linseed oil, rosin, powdered cork, and pigments onto a burlap or canvas backing. Linoleum is used as a covering especially for floors.

[Originally a trademark.]

Li·no·type (lī'nə-tīp') A trademark used for a machine that sets type on a metal slug, operated by a keyboard.

Lin Piao (līn' pyou', byou') See Lin Biao.

lin·sang (līn'sāng') n. Any of several Asian or African catlike carnivorous mammals of the genera Poiana or Prionodon, having a spotted coat and a long banded tail. [Malay.]

lin·seed (līn'sēd') n. The seed of flax, especially when used as the source of linseed oil; flaxseed. [Middle English linsed, from Old English līnsæd: līn, flax (from Latin līnum); see līno- in Appendix + sæd, seed; see SEED.]

linseed oil (līn'sēd' oil) n. A yellowish oil extracted from the seeds of flax and used as a drying oil in paints and varnishes and in linoleum, printing inks, and synthetic resins.

lin·sey·wool·sey (līn'zē-wōōl'zē) n. pl. lin·sey·wool·seys. A coarse, woven fabric of wool and cotton or of wool and linen. [Middle English līnsiwolsie: alteration of linen, linen; see LINEN + wolle, wool; see WOOL.]

lin·stock (līn'stōk') n. A long forked stick for holding a match, formerly used to fire cannon. [Obsolete lyntstock, alteration (possibly influenced by LINT, used for tinder), of Dutch lontstok: lont, match + stok, stick (from Middle Dutch stoc).]

lint (līnt) n. 1. Clinging bits of fiber and fluff; fuzz. 2. Downy material obtained by scraping linen cloth and used for dressing wounds. 3. The mass of soft fibers surrounding the seeds of unginning cotton. [Middle English, variant of linet (from Old French linette, grain of flax, diminutive of lin, flax), or from Medieval Latin līnteum, lint (from Latin, linen cloth) both from Latin līnum, flax. See līno- in Appendix.] —lint'less adj. —lint'y adj.

lin·tel (līn'tl) n. The horizontal beam that forms the upper member of a window or door frame and supports the structure above it. [Middle English, from Old French, probably alteration of lintier, from Vulgar Latin līmitāris*, of a threshold (meaning influenced by Latin līmen, threshold), from Latin, on a border, from līmes, līmit-, boundary.]

lint·er (līn'tər) n. 1. Often linters. The short fibers that cling to cottonseeds after the first ginning. 2. A machine that removes these short fibers from the seeds of cotton.

Lin·ton (līn'tən), Ralph. 1893-1953. American anthropologist who synthesized elements of anthropology and psychology in an attempt to determine the ways in which cultures are formed. His works include The Study of Man (1936) and The Tree of Culture (1955).

lint·white (lɪnt'hwīt', -wīt') n. A linnet. [By folk etymology from Middle English linkwhitte, alteration of Old English līnetwige : līn, flax; see LINSEED + -twige, plucker, eater.]

lin·u·ron (lɪn'yə-rŏn') n. A herbicide, C₉H₁₀Cl₂N₂O₂, used to kill weeds selectively. [Origin unknown.]

Lin Yu·tang (lɪn'yō'tāng'), 1895-1976. Chinese-born American philologist who wrote a number of books on China, including My Country and My People (1936) and Moment in Peking (1939).

Linz (lɪnts) A city of northern Austria on the Danube River west of Vienna. Originally a Roman settlement, it was a provincial capital of the Holy Roman Empire in the late 15th century. Population, 199,910.

li·on (lɪ'ən) n. 1. A large, carnivorous, feline mammal (Panthera leo) of Africa and northwest India, having a short tawny coat, a tufted tail, and, in the male, a long heavy mane around the neck and shoulders. 2. Any of several large wildcats related to or resembling the lion. 3. a. A very brave person. b. A person regarded as fierce or ferocious. c. An eminent person; a celebrity: a literary lion. —idiom. lion's share. The greatest or best part. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin leō, leōn-, from Greek leōn, of Semitic origin; akin to Hebrew lābī'.]

Li·on (lɪ'ən) n. See Leo.

li·on·ess (lɪ'ə-nɪs) n. A female lion.

li·on·fish (lɪ'ən-fɪsh') n. pl. lionfish or lion·fish·es. Any of various brightly colored tropical Pacific scorpion fishes of the genus Pterois, having venomous spines in the dorsal fin.

li·on·heart·ed (lɪ'ən-här'tɪd) adj. Extraordinarily courageous.

li·on·ize (lɪ'ə-nīz') *v. tr. li·on·ized, li·on·iz·ing, li·on·iz·es. To look on or treat (a person) as a celebrity. —li'·on·i·za'tion (lɪ'ə-nī-zā'shən) *n.

—li'·on·iz'er n.

Li·ons (lɪ'ənz), Gulf of. A wide inlet of the Mediterranean Sea on the southern coast of France.

lip (lɪp) n. 1. Anatomy. Either of two fleshy folds that surround the opening of the mouth. 2. A structure or part that encircles or bounds an orifice, as: a. Anatomy. A labium. b. The margin of flesh around a wound. c. Either of the margins of the aperture of a gastropod shell. d. A rim, as of a vessel, bell, or crater. 3. Botany. One of the two divisions of bilabiate corolla or calyx, as in the snapdragon, or the modified upper petal of an orchid flower. 4. The tip of a pouring spout, as on a pitcher. 5. Slang. Insolent talk. — v. tr. lip·ped, lip·ping, lips. 1. a. To touch the lips to. b. To kiss. 2. To utter. 3. To lap or splash against. 4. Sports. To hit a golf ball so that it touches the edge of (the hole) without dropping in. [Middle English, from Old English lippa. See leb- in Appendix.] —lip'less adj.

lip- pref. Variant of lipo-.

Li·pan (lī-pän') n. pl. Lipan or Li·pans. 1. a. An Apache tribe formerly inhabiting western Texas, with a present-day population in southern New Mexico. b. A member of this tribe. 2. The Apachean language of this tribe.

Lip·a·ri Islands (līp'ə-rē ī'lændz, lē'pä-) Formerly Ae·o·li·an Islands (ē-ō'lē-ən). A group of volcanic islands of Italy off the northeast coast of Sicily in the Tyrrhenian Sea. The islands have been inhabited since the Neolithic Period.

lip·ase (līp'ās', lī'pās') n. Any of a group of enzymes that catalyze the hydrolysis of fats into glycerol and fatty acids.

Lip·chitz (līp'shīts), Jacques. 1891-1973. Russian-born French sculptor who was associated with the cubists. His works include Rape of Europa (1941) and Prayer (1943).

lip·ec·to·my (lī-pĕk'tə-mē, lī-) n. pl. lip·ec·to·mies. Surgical excision of subcutaneous fatty tissue.

Li·petsk (lē'pĕtsk', lyē'pyĭtsk) A city of west-central Russia south-southeast of Moscow. Originally founded in the 13th century, it was rebuilt in 1707 as a metallurgical center by orders of Peter the Great. Population, 447,000.

lip·gloss (līp'glōs', -glōs') n. A cosmetic that gives shine or gloss to the lips.

lip·id (līp'īd, lī'pīd) also lip·ide (līp'īd', lī'pīd') n. Any of a group of organic compounds, including the fats, oils, waxes, sterols, and triglycerides, that are insoluble in water but soluble in common organic solvents, are oily to the touch, and together with carbohydrates and proteins constitute the principal structural material of living cells. [French lipide: Greek lipos, fat; see LIPO- + French -ide, -ide.] —lip·id'ic adj.

Lip·mann (līp'mən), Fritz Albert. 1899-1986. German-born American biochemist. He shared a 1953 Nobel Prize for studies of metabolic processes.

Li Po (lē'pō', bō') or Li Bo (bō'), Died c. 762. Chinese poet who spent much of his time wandering and composing romantic, wine-inspired verse.

lipo- or lip- pref. Fat; fatty; fatty tissue: lipolysis. [From Greek lipos, fat. See leip- in Appendix.]

lip·oid (līp'oid', lī'poid') n. 1. A lipid. 2. Any of various substances, such as lecithin, that resemble fat. — adj. also li·poi·dal (lī-poid'l, lī-) Resembling fat; fatty.

li·pol·y·sis (lī-pōl'ī-sīs, lī-) n. pl. li·pol·y·ses (-sēz'). The hydrolysis of lipids. —lip·o·lyt'ic (līp'ə-līt'ik, lī'pə-) adj.

li·po·ma (lī-pō'mə, lī-) n. pl. li·po·ma·ta (-mə-tə) or li·po·mas. A benign tumor composed chiefly of fat cells. —li·pom'a·tous (-pōm'ə-təs) adj.

lip·o·phil·ic (līp'ə-fīl'ik, lī'pə-) adj. Having an affinity for, tending to combine with, or capable of dissolving in lipids.

lip·o·pol·y·sac·cha·ride (līp'ō-pōl'ē-sāk'ə-rīd', lī'pō-) n. Any of a group of polysaccharides in which a lipid constitutes a portion of the molecule.

lip·o·pro·tein (lĭp'ō-prō'tēn', -tē-ĭn, lĭ'pō-) n. Any of a group of conjugated proteins in which at least one of the components is a lipid. Lipoproteins, classified according to their densities and chemical qualities, are the principal means by which lipids are transported in the blood.

lip·o·some (lĭp'ə-sōm', lĭ'pə-) n. An artificial microscopic vesicle consisting of an aqueous core enclosed in one or more phospholipid layers, used to convey vaccines, drugs, enzymes, or other substances to target cells or organs. —lip·o·so·mal adj.

lip·o·suc·tion (lĭp'ō-sŭk'shən, lĭ'pō-) n. A usually cosmetic surgical procedure in which excess fatty tissue is removed from a specific area of the body, such as the thighs or abdomen, by means of suction. Also called suction lipectomy lip·o·trop·ic (lĭp'ō-trōp'ĭk, -trō'pĭk, lĭ'pō-) adj. 1. Preventing abnormal or excessive accumulation of fat in the liver. 2. Having an affinity for lipids.

—li·pot'ro·py (lĭ-pōt'rə-pē, lĭ-), li·pot'ro·pism n.

lip·o·tro·pin (lĭp'ə-trō'pĭn, lĭ'pə-) n. A hormone produced by the anterior pituitary gland that promotes the utilization of fat by the body and is a precursor to the endorphins. [LIPOTROP(IC) + -IN.]

Lip·pi (lĭp'ē), Filippino. 1457?-1504?. Italian painter who completed Masaccio's frescoes in the Brancacci Chapel, Florence.

Lip·pi (lĭp'ē), Fra Filippo. 1406?-1469?. Italian Renaissance painter whose works, including Madonna Enthroned (1437), display a bold three-dimensional style.

Lip·pin·cott (lĭp'ĭn-kōt', -kət), Sara Jane Clarke. 1823-1904. American writer whose works include Haps and Mishaps of a Tour in Europe (1854) and Queen Victoria: Her Childhood and Womanhood (1883).

Lipp·mann (lēp-män'), Gabriel. 1845-1921. French physicist. He won a 1908 Nobel Prize for developing a method of reproducing colors by photography.

Lipp·mann (lĭp'mən), Walter. 1889-1974. American journalist. He cofounded (1914) the weekly New Republic and won a Pulitzer Prize in 1958 and 1962.

Lipp·stadt (lĭp'stät', -shtät') A city of west-central Germany east-northeast of Dortmund. Founded in 1168, it became a member of the Hanseatic League in 1280 and was sold to Prussia in 1850. Population, 60,106.

lip·read (lĭp'rēd') v. lip--read (-rēd'), lip--read·ing, lip--reads. — v. tr. To interpret (utterances) by lip reading. — v. intr. To interpret utterances by lip reading.

lip reading (lĭp rē'dĭng) n. A technique for understanding unheard speech by interpreting the lip and facial movements of the speaker. —lip reader n.

Lip·scomb (lĭp'skəm), William Nunn, Jr. Born 1919. American chemist. He won a 1976 Nobel Prize for his contributions to the theory of molecular structure.

lip service (lĭp sŭr'vĭs) n. Verbal expression of agreement or allegiance, unsupported by real conviction or action; hypocritical respect: "Lip service continues to be paid to resolving regional conflicts, but there is no sense of urgency" (Henry A. Kissinger).

lip-stick (lĭp'stĭk') n. A small stick of waxy lip coloring enclosed in a cylindrical case.

lipstick tree (lĭp'stĭk' trē) n. See annatto (n., sense 1).

lip-synch also lip-sync (lĭp'sĭngk') v. lip--synched also lip--synced, lip--synch-ing also lip--sync-ing, lip--synchs also lip--syncs. — v. intr. To move the lips in synchronization with recorded speech or song. — v. tr. To move the lips in synchronization with (recorded speech or song): She lip-synched the songs for the movie.

Lip-tau-er (lĭp'tou'ər) n. 1. A soft cheese originating in Hungary. 2. A cheese spread made of Liptauer or a cream cheese substitute and seasonings. [German, after Liptau (Liptó), Hungary.]

Lip-ton (lĭp'tən), Sir Thomas Johnstone. 1850-1931. British merchant and yacht racer who opened a successful chain of grocery stores in Great Britain and established tea processing factories in England and the United States.

liq. abbr. 1. Liquid. 2. Liquor.

li-quate (lĭ'kwāt') v. tr. li-quat-ed, li-quat-ing, li-quates. To separate (the metals in an alloy) by melting the more fusible constituents while leaving the less fusible ones solid. [Latin liquāre, liquāt-, to melt.] — li-qua'tion n.

li-que-fac-tion (lĭk'wə-fāk'shən) n. 1. The process of liquefying. 2. The state of being liquefied. [Middle English liquefaction, from Old French liquefacion, from Late Latin liquefactiō, liquefactiōn-, from Latin liquefactus, past participle of liquefacere, to make liquid. See LIQUEFY.]

li-que-fy also li-quefy (lĭk'wə-fĭ') v. li-que-fied, li-que-fy-ing, li-que-fies. — v. tr. To cause to become liquid, especially: a. To melt (a solid) by heating. b. To condense (a gas) by cooling. — v. intr. To become liquid. See Synonyms at melt. [Middle English liquefien, from Old French liquefier, from Latin liquefacere: liquēre, to be liquid + facere, to make; see FACT.] — li-que-fi'er n.

li-ques-cent (lĭ-kwēs'ənt) adj. Becoming or tending to become liquid; melting. [Latin liquēscēns, liquēscēt- present participle of liquēscere, to become liquid inchoative of liquēre, to be liquid.] — li-ques'cence, li-ques'cen-cy n.

li-queur (lĭ-kŭr', -kyōōr') n. Any of various strongly flavored alcoholic beverages typically served in small quantities after dinner. [French, from Old French licour, a liquid. See LIQUOR.]

li-uid (lĭk'wĭd) n. Abbr. liq. 1. a. The state of matter in which a substance exhibits a characteristic readiness to flow, little or no tendency to disperse, and relatively high incompressibility. b. Matter or a specific body of matter in this state. 2. Linguistics. A consonant articulated without friction and capable of being prolonged like a vowel, such as English l and r. — adj. Abbr. liq. 1. Of or being a liquid. 2. Having been liquefied, especially: a. Melted by heating: liquid wax. b. Condensed by cooling: liquid oxygen. 3. Flowing readily; fluid: added milk to make the batter more liquid. 4. Having a flowing quality without harshness or abrupt breaks: liquid prose; the liquid movements of a Balinese dancer. 5. Linguistics. Articulated without friction and capable of being prolonged like a vowel. 6. Clear and shining: the liquid brown eyes of a spaniel. 7. Readily convertible into cash: liquid assets. [From Middle English, of a liquid, from Old French liquide, from Latin liquidus, from liquēre, to be liquid.] —liq'uid-ly adv. —liq'uid-ness n.

liquid air (lĭk'wĭd âr) n. Air in its liquid state, intensely cold and bluish, obtained by cooling and compression.

liq·uid·am·bar (lĭk'wĭd-âm'bər) n. Any of several deciduous trees of the genus Liquidambar, such as the sweet gum. [New Latin, genus name : Latin liquidus, liquid; see LIQUID + Medieval Latin ambar, amber; see AMBER.]

liq·ui·date (lĭk'wĭ-dāt') v. liq·ui·dat·ed, liq·ui·dat·ing, liq·ui·dates. — v. tr. 1. a. To pay off (a debt, a claim, or an obligation); settle. b. To settle the affairs of (a business firm, for example) by determining the liabilities and applying the assets to their discharge. 2. To convert (assets) into cash. 3. To put an end to; abolish. 4. To put to death; kill. — v. intr. 1. To settle a debt, a claim, or an obligation. 2. To settle the affairs of a business or an estate by disposing of its assets and liabilities. See Synonyms at eliminate. [Late Latin liquidāre, liquidāt-, to melt, from Latin liquidus, liquid. See LIQUID.] —liq'ui-da'tion n. —liq'ui-da'tor n.

liquid crystal (lĭk'wĭd krĭs'təl) n. Any of various liquids in which the atoms or molecules are regularly arrayed in either one dimension or two dimensions, the order giving rise to optical properties, such as anisotropic scattering, associated with the crystals.

liq·uid·crys·tal display (lĭk'wĭd-krĭs'təl dĭ-splā') n. Abbr. LCD An alphanumeric display on calculators and digital watches, made up of a liquid sandwiched between layers of glass or plastic, that becomes opaque when an electric current is passed through it. The contrast between the opaque and transparent areas forms visible characters.

li·quid·i·ty (lĭ-kwĭd'ĭ-tē) n. 1. The state of being liquid. 2. The quality of being readily convertible into cash: an investment with high liquidity. 3. Available cash or the capacity to obtain it on demand: a bank that is increasing its liquidity by shortening the average term of its loans.

liquid measure (lĭk'wĭd mēzh'ər) n. 1. The measurement of liquid capacity. 2. A unit or system of units of liquid capacity.

liq·ui·fy (lĭk'wə-fī') v. Variant of liquefy.

liq·uor (lĭk'ər) n. Abbr. liq. 1. An alcoholic beverage made by distillation rather than by fermentation. 2. A liquid substance, such as broth, produced in cooking. 3. An aqueous solution of a nonvolatile substance. 4. A solution, an emulsion, or a suspension for industrial use. — v. tr. liq·uored, liq·uor·ing, liq·uors.

1. To steep (malt, for example). 2. Slang. To make drunk with alcoholic liquor. Often used with up: was all liquored up. [Middle English licour, a liquid, from Old French, from Latin liquor, from liquēre, to be liquid.]

li·quo·rice (lĭk'ər-ĭs, -ĭsh) n. Chiefly British. Variant of licorice.

li·ra (lĭr'ə, lē'rā) n. pl. li·re (lĭr'ā, lē'rē) or li·ras. Abbr. l. A basic unit of currency in Italy, Malta, San Marino, Turkey, and Vatican City. See Table at cur·rency. [Italian, from Old Italian, from Old Provençal liura, from Latin libra, a unit of weight, pound.]

lir·i·pipe (lĭr'ə-pĭp') n. A long scarf or cord attached to and hanging from a hood. [Medieval Latin liripipium.]

Lis·bon (lĭz'bən) The capital and largest city of Portugal, in the western part of the country on the Tagus River estuary. An ancient Iberian settlement, it was held by the Phoenicians and Carthaginians, taken by the Romans in 205 B.C., and conquered by the Moors c. A.D. 714. Reconquered by the Portuguese in 1147, it flourished in the 16th century during the heyday of colonial expansion in Africa and India. The city was devastated by a major earthquake in 1755. Population, 807,167.

li·sen·te (lē-sĕn'tā) n. Plural of sente.

lisle (lĭl) n. 1. A fine, smooth, tightly twisted thread spun from long-stapled cotton. 2. Fabric knitted of this thread, used especially for hosiery and underwear. [After Lisle (Lille), France.]

lisp (lĭsp) n. 1. A speech defect or mannerism characterized by mispronunciation of the sounds (s) and (z) as (th) and (th). 2. A sound of or like a lisp: "The carpenter[']s... plane whistles its wild ascending lisp" (Walt Whitman). — v. lisped, lisp·ing, lisps. — v. intr. 1. To speak with a lisp. 2. To speak imperfectly, as a child does. — v. tr. To pronounce with a lisp. [From Middle English lispēn, to lisp, from Old English -wlispian, from wlisp, lisp·ing.] — lisp'er n.

LISP (lĭsp) n. Computer Science. A programming language designed to process data consisting of lists. It is widely used in artificial intelligence research. [lis(t) p(rocessing).]

lis·some also lis·som (lĭs'əm) adj. 1. Easily bent; supple. 2. Having the ability to move with ease; limber. [Alteration of LITHESOME.] — lis/some·ly adv. — lis/some·ness n.

list¹ (lĭst) n. 1. A series of names, words, or other items written, printed, or imagined one after the other: a shopping list; a guest list; a list of things to do. 2. A considerable number; a long series: recited a list of dates memorized. — v.

list·ed, list·ing, lists. — v. tr. 1. To make a list of; itemize: listed his previous jobs. 2. To enter in a list; register: listed each item received. 3. To put (oneself) in a specific category: lists herself as an artist. 4. Archaic. To recruit. — v. intr.

1. To have a stated list price: a radio that lists for ten dollars over the sale price.

2. Archaic. To enlist in the armed forces. [French liste, from Old French, from Old Italian lista, of Germanic origin.] — list'er n.

list² (lɪst) n. 1. a. A narrow strip, especially of wood. b. Architecture. See listel.

c. A border or selvage of cloth. 2. A stripe or band of color. 3. Often lists.

a. An arena for jousting tournaments or other contests. b. A place of combat.

c. An area of controversy. 4. A ridge thrown up between two furrows by a lister in plowing. 5. Obsolete. A boundary; a border. — v. tr. list-ed, list-ing, lists.

1. To cover, line, or edge with list. 2. To cut a thin strip from the edge of. 3. To furrow or plant (land) with a lister. [Middle English, from Old English līste.]

list³ (lɪst) n. An inclination to one side, as of a ship; a tilt. — v. intr. tr. list-ed, list-ing, lists. To lean or cause to lean to the side: The damaged ship listed badly to starboard. Erosion first listed, then toppled the spruce tree. [Origin unknown.]

list⁴ (lɪst) v. intr. tr. list-ed, list-ing, lists. Archaic. To listen or listen to. [Middle English listen, from Old English hlýstan. See kleu- in Appendix.]

list⁵ (lɪst) Archaic. v. list-ed, list-ing, lists. — v. tr. To be pleasing to; suit. —

v. intr. To be disposed; choose. — n. A desire or an inclination. [Middle English listen, to desire, please, from Old English lystan. See las- in Appendix.]

lis-tel (lɪs'tɛl) n. Architecture. A narrow border, molding, or fillet. Also called *list*² [French, from Italian listello, diminutive of lista, border, of Germanic origin.]

lis-ten (lɪs'tɛn) v. intr. lis-tened, lis-ten-ing, lis-tens. 1. To make an effort to hear something: listen to the radio; listening for the bell. 2. To pay attention; heed: “She encouraged me to listen carefully to what country people called mother wit”

(Maya Angelou). — phrasal verb. listen in. 1. To listen to a conversation between others; eavesdrop. 2. To tune in and listen to a broadcast. [Middle English listenen, alteration (influenced by listen); see LIST⁴, of Old English hlýsnan. See kleu- in Appendix.] — lis'ten-er n.

lis-ten-a-ble (lɪs'tɛ-nə-bəl) adj. Being such that listening is pleasurable: an undistinguished but listenable soundtrack. — lis'ten-a-bil/i-ty n.

lis-ten-er-ship (lɪs'tɛ-nər-ʃɪp', lɪs'nər-) n. The people who listen to a radio program or station.

list-er (lɪs'tɛr) n. A plow equipped with a double moldboard that turns up the soil on each side of the furrow, often having an attached drill for seed planting. [From LIST².]

Lis-ter (lɪs'tɛr), Joseph First Baron Lister. 1827-1912. British surgeon. He demonstrated in 1865 that carbolic acid was an effective antiseptic agent, decreasing postoperative fatalities from infection.

lis-te-ri-a (lĭ-stĭr'ē-ə) n. Any of various rod-shaped, gram-positive bacteria of the genus Listeria, which includes the causative agent of listeriosis. [New Latin Listeria, genus name, after Joseph LISTER.]

lis-te-ri-o-sis (lĭ-stĭr'ē-ō'sĭs) n. A bacterial disease caused by Listeria monocytogenes, affecting wild and domestic animals and occasionally human beings and characterized by fever, meningitis, and encephalitis.

list-ing (lĭs'tĭng) n. 1. An entry in a list or directory: the first listing in the telephone book. 2. A list: a listing of physicians. 3. Computer Science. A printout of a program or data set.

list-less (lĭs'tlĭs) adj. Lacking energy or disinclined to exert effort; lethargic: reacted to the latest crisis with listless resignation. [Middle English listles : probably from liste, desire (from listen, to desire); see LIST⁵ + -les, -lesse, -less.] —list'-less-ly adv. —list'/less-ness n.

list price (lĭs prĭs) n. A basic published or advertised price, often subject to discount. Also called sticker price Liszt (lĭst), Franz. 1811-1886. Hungarian composer who achieved fame in his lifetime as a piano virtuoso. His best-known compositions include the Dante Symphony (1856) and the Faust Symphony (1853-1861).

lit¹ (lĭt) v. A past tense and a past participle of light¹. See Usage Note at light¹.

lit² (lĭt) v. A past tense and a past participle of light².

lit. abbr. 1. Liter. 2. a. Literal. b. Literally. 3. Literary. 4. Literature.

lit-a-ny (lĭt'n-ē) n. pl. lit-a-nies. 1. A liturgical prayer consisting of a series of petitions recited by a leader alternating with fixed responses by the congregation.

2. A repetitive or incantatory recital: a litany of praise for the new professor.

[Middle English letanie, from Old French, from Medieval Latin letanĭa, from Late Latin litaniā, from Late Greek litaneia, from Greek, entreaty, from litaneuein, to entreat, from litanos, entreating, from litē, supplication.]

Lit.B. abbr. Latin. Litterarum Baccalaureus (Bachelor of Letters; Bachelor of Literature).

li-tchi also li-chee or ly-chee (lē'chē) n. 1. A Chinese tree (Litchi chinensis) that bears bright red fruits, each of which has a large single seed with a white, fleshy, edible aril. 2. The nutlike fruit of this tree. In this sense, also called litchi nut [Chinese (Mandarin) lì zhī.]

Lit.D. abbr. Latin. Litterarum Doctor (Doctor of Letters; Doctor of Literature).

lite (lĭt) adj. Slang. Having less substance or weight or fewer calories than something else: "lite music, shimmering on the surface and squishy soft at the core" (Mother Jones). [Alteration of LIGHT².]

-lite suff. Stone; mineral; fossil: coprolite. [French, alteration of -lithe, from Greek lithos, stone.]

li-ter (lē'tər) n. Abbr. l, lit. A metric unit of volume equal to approximately 1.056 liquid quarts, 0.908 dry quart, or 0.264 gallon. See Table at measurement.

[French litre, from obsolete litron, measure of capacity, from Medieval Latin litra, from Greek litra, unit of weight.]

lit·er·a·cy (lĭt'ər-ə-sē) n. The condition or quality of being literate, especially the ability to read and write. See Usage Note at literate.

lit·er·al (lĭt'ər-əl) adj. Abbr. lit. 1. Being in accordance with, conforming to, or upholding the exact or primary meaning of a word or words. 2. Word for word; verbatim: a literal translation. 3. Avoiding exaggeration, metaphor, or embellishment; factual; prosaic: a literal description; a literal mind. 4. Consisting of, using, or expressed by letters: literal notation. — n. Computer Science. A letter or symbol that represents a particular constant or number, known or unknown, and is not programmer-defined. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin litterālis, of letters, from Latin littera, letter.] —lit'·er·al·ness n.

lit·er·al·ism (lĭt'ər-ə-lĭz'əm) n. 1. Adherence to the explicit sense of a given text or doctrine. 2. Literal portrayal; realism. —lit'·er·al·ist n.

—lit'·er·al·is'tic adj.

lit·er·al·ize (lĭt'ər-ə-lĭz') v. tr. lit·er·al·ized, lit·er·al·iz·ing, lit·er·al·iz·es. To make literal.

lit·er·al·ly (lĭt'ər-ə-lē) adv. 1. In a literal manner; word for word: translated the Greek passage literally. 2. Abbr. lit. In a literal or strict sense: Don't take my remarks literally. 3. Usage Problem. a. Really; actually: "There are people in the world who literally do not know how to boil water" (Craig Claiborne). b. Used as an intensive before a figurative expression.

USAGE NOTE: For more than a hundred years, critics have remarked on the incoherency of using literally in a way that suggests the exact opposite of its primary sense of “in a manner that accords with the literal sense of the words.” In 1926, for example, H.W. Fowler cited the example “The 300,000 Unionists... will be literally thrown to the wolves.” The practice does not stem from a change in the meaning of literally itself—if it did, the word would long since have come to mean “virtually” or “figuratively”—but from a natural tendency to use the word as a general intensive meaning “without exaggeration,” as in They had literally no help from the government on the project, where no contrast with the figurative sense of the words is intended. This looser use of the word literally does not usually create problems, but it can lead to an inadvertently comic effect when the word is used together with an idiomatic expression that has its source in a frozen figure of speech, such as in I literally died laughing.

lit·er·ar·y (lĭt'ə-rēr'ē) adj. Abbr. lit. 1. Of, relating to, or dealing with literature: literary criticism. 2. Of or relating to writers or the profession of literature: literary circles. 3. Versed in or fond of literature or learning. 4. a. Appropriate to literature rather than everyday speech or writing. b. Bookish; pedantic. [Latin litterārius, of reading and writing, from littera, letter. See LETTER.] —lit'er-ar'i-ly (-râr'ə-lē) adv. —lit'er-ar'i-ness n.

lit'er-ate (līt'ər-īt) adj. 1. a. Able to read and write. b. Knowledgeable or educated in several fields or a particular field. 2. Familiar with literature; literary. 3. Well-written; polished: a literate essay. — n. 1. One who can read and write. 2. A well-informed, educated person. [Middle English litterate, from Latin litterātus, from littera, letter. See LETTER.] —lit'er-ate-ly adv. —lit'er-ate-ness n.

USAGE NOTE: For most of its long history in English, literate has meant only “familiar with literature,” or more generally, “well-educated, learned”; it is only during the last hundred years that it has also come to refer to the basic ability to read and write. Its antonym illiterate has an equally broad range of meanings: an illiterate person may be incapable of reading a shopping list or perhaps may only be unable to grasp an allusion to Shakespeare or Keats. The term functional illiterate is often used to describe a person who can read or write to some degree, but below a minimum level required to function in even a limited social situation or job setting. More recently, the meanings of the words literacy and illiteracy have been extended from their original connection with reading and literature to any body of knowledge. For example, “geographic illiterates” cannot identify the countries on a map, and “computer illiterates” are unable to use a word-processing system. None of these uses of literacy or illiteracy are incorrect, but it might be preferable to use another word in instances where the context does not make the meaning clear.

lit'er-a-ti (līt'ə-rā'tē) pl.n. The literary intelligentsia. [Latin litterātī, līterātī, pl. of litterātus, literate. See LITERATE.]

lit'er-a-tim (līt'ə-rā'tīm, -rā'-) adv. Letter for letter: a word transcribed literally. [Medieval Latin līterātīm, litterātīm, from Latin littera, letter. See LETTER.]

lit'er-a-ture (līt'ər-ə-čhōr', -chər) n. Abbr. lit. 1. A body of writings in prose or verse. 2. Imaginative or creative writing, especially of recognized artistic value: “Literature must be an analysis of experience and a synthesis of the findings into a unity” (Rebecca West). 3. The art or occupation of a literary writer. 4. The body of written work produced by scholars or researchers in a given field: medical literature. 5. Printed material: collected all the available literature on the subject.

6. Music. All the compositions of a certain kind or for a specific instrument or ensemble: the symphonic literature. [Middle English, book learning, from Old French litterature, from Latin litterātūra, from litterātus, lettered. See LITERATE.]

lith. abbr. 1. Lithograph; lithography. 2. Lithographic.

Lith. abbr. Lithuania; Lithuanian.

lith- pref. Variant of litho-.

-lith suff. 1. Rock; stone: xenolith. 2. Stone implement or structure: megalith.

3. Mineral concretion; calculus: cystolith. [From Greek lithos, stone.]

lith-arge (lĭth'ärj', lĭ-thärj') n. A yellow lead oxide, PbO, used in storage batteries and glass and as a pigment. Also called lead monoxide [Middle English litarge, from Old French, alteration of litargire, from Latin lithargyrus, from Greek lithargyros: lithos, stone + argyros, silver; see arg- in Appendix.]

lithe (lĭth) adj. lith-er, lith-est. 1. Readily bent; supple: lithe birch branches.

2. Marked by effortless grace: a lithe ballet dancer. [Middle English, from Old English lĭthe, flexible, mild.] —lithe/ly adv. —lithe/ness n.

lithe-some (lĭth'səm) adj. Lithe; lissome.

lith-i-a (lĭth'ē-ə) n. See lithium oxide. [New Latin, from lithion, from Greek lithos, stone.]

li-thi-a-sis (lĭ-thī'ə-sĭs) n. pl. li-thi-a-ses (-sēz'). Pathological formation of mineral concretions in the body.

lithia water (lĭth'ē-ə wō'tər) n. Mineral water containing lithium salts.

lith-ic¹ (lĭth'ĭk) adj. Consisting of or relating to stone or rock.

lith-ic² (lĭth'ĭk) adj. Of or relating to lithium.

-lithic suff. Relating to or characteristic of a specified stage in the use of stone by human beings: Eolithic. [From LITHIC¹.]

lith-i-um (lĭth'ē-əm) n. Symbol Li A soft, silvery, highly reactive metallic element that is used as a heat transfer medium, in thermonuclear weapons, and in various alloys, ceramics, and optical forms of glass. Atomic number 3; atomic weight 6.939; melting point 179°C; boiling point 1,317°C; specific gravity 0.534; valence 1. [From LITHIA.]

lithium carbonate (lĭth'ē-əm kär'bə-nāt') n. A white, granular powder, LiCO₃, used in the manufacture of glass and ceramics and in the treatment of depression and manic-depressive illness.

lithium oxide (lĭth'ē-əm ōk'sĭd') n. A strongly alkaline white powder, Li₂O, used in ceramics and glass. Also called lithia litho. abbr. 1. Lithograph; lithography. 2. Lithographic.

litho- or lith- pref. 1. Stone: lithosphere. 2. Lithium: lithic. 3. Mineral concretion; calculus: lithotomy. [Greek, from lithos, stone.]

lithog. abbr. 1. Lithograph; lithography. 2. Lithographic.

lith-o-graph (lĭth'ə-gräf') n. Abbr. lith., litho., lithog. A print produced by lithography. — v. tr. lith-o-graphed, lith-o-graph-ing, lith-o-graphs. To produce by lithography. [Back-formation from LITHOGRAPHY.]

—li-thog'raph-er (lĭ-thög'rə-fər) n. —lith'o-graph'ic, lith'o-graph'i-cal adj. —lith'o-graph'i-cal-ly adv.

li-thog-ra-phy (lĭ-thög'rə-fē) n. Abbr. lith., litho., lithog. A printing process in which the image to be printed is rendered on a flat surface, as on sheet zinc or aluminum, and treated to retain ink while the nonimage areas are treated to repel ink.

li·thol·o·gy (lĭ-thŏl'ə-jē) n. 1. The gross physical character of a rock or rock formation. 2. The microscopic study, description, and classification of rock. —lith' o·log'ic (lĭth'ə-lŏj'ĭk), lith' o·log' i·cal adj. —lith' o·log' i·cal·ly adv. —li·thol' o·gist n.

lith·o·phyte (lĭth'ə-fĭt') n. 1. Botany. A plant that grows on rock and derives its nourishment chiefly from the atmosphere. 2. Zoology. An organism, such as coral, that has a stony structure. —lith' o·phyt'ic (-fĭt'ĭk) adj.

lith·o·pone (lĭth'ə-pŏn') n. A white pigment consisting of a mixture of zinc sulfide, zinc oxide, and barium sulfate. [LITHO- + Greek ponos, toil, product; see (s)pen- in Appendix.]

lith·o·sphere (lĭth'ə-sfĭr') n. 1. The solid part of the earth. 2. The rocky crust of the earth.

lith·o·stra·tig·ra·phy (lĭth'ŏ-strə-tĭg'rə-fē) n. 1. Stratigraphy based on the physical and petrographic properties of rocks. 2. Interpretation of the physical characters of sedimentary rocks. —lith' o·strat' i·graph'ic (-străt'ĭ-grăf'ĭk) adj.

li·thot·o·my (lĭ-thŏt'ə-mē) n. pl. li·thot·o·mies. Surgical removal of a stone or stones from the urinary tract.

lith·o·trip·sy (lĭth'ə-trĭp'sē) n. pl. lith·o·trip·sies. Pulverization of kidney stones by means of a lithotripter. [LITHO- + Greek tripsis, a rubbing, pounding (from tribein, to rub, pound); see LITHOTRIPTER + -y².]

lith·o·trip·ter (lĭth'ə-trĭp'tər) n. A device that pulverizes kidney stones by passing shock waves through a water-filled tub in which the patient sits. The device creates stone fragments small enough to be expelled in the urine. [Alteration of obsolete lithotripter, lithonripter, from lithonriptic, breaking up kidney stones, from New Latin lithonripticus, alteration (influenced by Greek tribein, trip-, to rub, pound); see TRYPSIN, of lithonthrypticus, from Greek (pharmaka tōn en nephrois) lithōn thruptika, (drugs) crushing stones (in the kidneys) : lithōn, accusative pl. of lithos, stone + thruptikos, crushing (from thruptein, to crush); see dhreu- in Appendix.]

li·thot·ri·ty (lĭ-thŏt'rĭ-tē) n. pl. li·thot·ri·ties. A surgical procedure to pulverize stones in the urinary bladder or urethra so that they can be passed out of the body in the urine. [From lithotritor, lithotripter, alteration (influenced by Latin trĭtor, pounder, grinder); see TRITURATE, of obsolete lithotripter. See LITHOTRIPTER.]

Lith·u·a·ni·a (lĭth'ŏŏ-ā'nē-ə) Abbr. Lith. A country of northern Europe on the Baltic Sea. Perhaps settled as early as 1500 B.C., the area was formed into a strong unified state in the 13th century and became one of the largest territories of medieval Europe. Lithuania merged with Poland in 1569 but was absorbed into Russia by three partitions of Poland (1772, 1793, and 1795). The independent country of Lithuania (1918-1940) was officially proclaimed a constituent republic of the U.S.S.R. in August 1940. Lithuania again achieved independence in 1991. Vilnius is the capital. Population, 3,570,000.

Lith·u·a·ni·an (lĭth'ōō-ā'nē-ən) adj. Abbr. Lith. Of or relating to Lithuania or its people, language, or culture. — n. Abbr. Lith. 1. a. A native or inhabitant of Lithuania. b. A person of Lithuanian ancestry. 2. The Baltic language of the Lithuanians.

lit·i·gant (lĭt'ĭ-gənt) Law. n. A party engaged in a lawsuit. — adj. Engaged in a lawsuit. [French, from Old French, from Latin lītīgāns, lītīgant-, a disputant, from present participle of lītīgāre, to bring suit. See LITIGATE.]

lit·i·gate (lĭt'ĭ-gāt') v. lit·i·gat·ed, lit·i·gat·ing, lit·i·gates. Law. — v. tr. To subject to legal proceedings. — v. intr. To engage in legal proceedings. [Latin lītīgāre, lītīgāt- : līs, līt-, lawsuit + agere, to drive; see ag- in Appendix.]

—lit'ĭ-ga·ble (-gə-bəl) adj. —lit'ĭ-ga'tion n. —lit'ĭ-ga'tor n.

li·ti·gious (lĭ-tĭj'əs) adj. Law. 1. Of, relating to, or characterized by litigation. 2. Tending to engage in lawsuits. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin lītigiōsus, from lītīgium, dispute, from lītīgāre, to quarrel. See LITIGATE.] —li·ti'gious·ly adv. —li·ti'gious·ness n.

lit·mus (lĭt'məs) n. A water-soluble blue powder derived from certain lichens that changes to red with increasing acidity and to blue with increasing basicity. [Middle English litmose, of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse litmosi, dyer's herbs : litr, color, dye + mosi, bog, moss.]

litmus paper (lĭt'məs pā'pər) n. An unsized white paper impregnated with litmus and used as a pH or acid-base indicator.

litmus test (lĭt'məs tĕst) n. 1. A test for chemical acidity or basicity using litmus paper. 2. A test that uses a single indicator to prompt a decision: "The word 'hopefully' has become the litmus test to determine whether one is a language snob or a language slob" (William Safire).

li·to·tes (lĭ'tə-tēz', lĭt'ə-, lĭ-tō'tēz) n. pl. litotes. A figure of speech consisting of an understatement in which an affirmative is expressed by negating its opposite, as in This is no small problem. [Greek litotēs, from litos, plain. See lei- in Appendix.]

li·tre (lĭ'tər) n. Chiefly British. Variant of liter.

Litt.B. abbr. Latin. Litterarum Baccalaureus (Bachelor of Letters; Bachelor of Literature).

Litt.D. abbr. Latin. Litterarum Doctor (Doctor of Letters; Doctor of Literature).

lit·ter (lĭt'ər) n. 1. a. A disorderly accumulation of objects; a pile. b. Carelessly discarded refuse, such as wastepaper: the litter in the streets after a parade.

2. The offspring produced at one birth by a multiparous mammal. See Synonyms at flock¹. 3. a. Material, such as straw, used as bedding for animals.

b. An absorbent material, such as granulated clay, for covering the floor of an animal's cage or excretory box. 4. An enclosed or curtained couch mounted on shafts and used to carry a single passenger. 5. A flat supporting framework, such as a piece of canvas stretched between parallel shafts, for carrying a disabled or dead person; a stretcher. 6. The uppermost layer of the forest floor consisting chiefly of fallen leaves and other decaying organic matter. — v. lit-tered, lit-ter-ing, lit-ters. — v. tr. 1. To give birth to (a litter). 2. To make untidy by discarding rubbish carelessly: Selfish picnickers litter the beach with food wrappers. 3. To scatter about: littered towels all over the locker room. 4. To supply (animals) with litter for bedding or floor covering. — v. intr. 1. To give birth to a litter. 2. To scatter litter. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman litere, from Medieval Latin lectāria (influenced by Old French lit, bed), from Latin lectus, bed. See legh- in Appendix.] — lit'ter-er n.

lit-tér-a-teur also lit-ter-a-teur (lĭt'ər-ə-tūr', lĭt'rə-) n. One who is devoted to the study or writing of literature. [French, from Latin litterātor, critic, lettered person, from littera, letter. See LETTER.] lit-ter-bag (lĭt'ər-băg') n. A bag used, as in an automobile, for disposal of trash.

lit-ter-bug (lĭt'ər-büg') n. Informal. One who litters public areas with waste materials.

lit-ter-mate (lĭt'ər-māt') n. One member of a given litter of animal offspring.

lit-tle (lĭt'l) adj. lit-tler or less (lĕs) also less-er (lĕs'ər), lit-tlest or least (lēst). 1. Small in size: a little dining room. See Synonyms at small. 2. Short in extent or duration; brief: There is little time left. 3. Small in quantity or degree: little money. 4. Unimportant; trivial: a little matter. 5. Narrow; petty: mean little comments; a little mind consumed with trivia. 6. Without much power or influence; of minor status. 7. Being at an early stage of growth; young: a little child. — adv. less, least. 1. Not much; scarcely: works long hours, sleeping little. 2. Not in the least; not at all: They little expected such a generous gift. — n. 1. A small quantity or amount: Give me a little. 2. Something much less than all: I know little of their history. 3. A short distance or time: a little down the road; waited a little. — idioms. a little. Somewhat; a bit: felt a little better. little by little. By small degrees or increments; gradually. [Middle English, from Old English lytel.] — lit'tle-ness n.

Lit-tle Al-föld (lĭt'l ôl'fəld) See Alföld.

Little A-mer-i-ca (lĭt'l ə-mĕr'ĭ-kə) A U.S. base for explorations in Antarctica on the Ross Ice Shelf. Richard E. Byrd established and named the settlement in 1929.

little auk (lĭt'l ôk) n. See dovekie.

Little Bear (lĭt'l bâr) n. See Ursa Minor.

Little Big-horn River (lĭt'l bĭg'hôrn' rĭv'ər) A river, about 145 km (90 mi) long, rising in the Bighorn Mountains of northern Wyoming and flowing north to the Bighorn River in southern Montana. Sioux and Cheyenne warriors defeated the forces of Gen. George A. Custer in the Little Bighorn valley on June 25, 1876.

Little Cay·man (lĭtʹl k̄ā-mănʹ, k̄āʹmən) See Cayman Islands.

Little Col·o·ra·do River (lĭtʹl kōlʹə-rădʹō rĭvʹər, -răʹdō) A river of northeast Arizona flowing about 507 km (315 mi) northwest to the Colorado River just above the Grand Canyon.

Little Di·o·mede Island (lĭtʹl dīʹə-mēdʹ īʹlənd) See Diomede Islands.

Little Dipper (lĭtʹl dĭpʹər) n. The seven bright stars that form the constellation Ursa Minor.

little finger (lĭtʹl fĭngʹgər) n. The smallest finger of the human hand; the last finger as counted from the thumb.

Little Fork River (lĭtʹl fōrk rĭvʹər) A river of northern Minnesota flowing about 212 km (132 mi) northward to the U.S.-Canadian border.

Little Ka·na·wha River (lĭtʹl kə-nôʹwə rĭvʹər) A river rising in central West Virginia and flowing about 257 km (160 mi) north and northwest to the Ohio River.

Little Kar·roo (lĭtʹl kə-rōōʹ) See Karoo.

little magazine (lĭtʹl mǎgʹə-zēnʹ) n. A literary magazine that publishes the work of relatively unknown writers.

Little Minch (lĭtʹl mĭnch) See Minch.

Little Mis·sou·ri River (lĭtʹl mĭ-zōōrʹē rĭvʹər, -zōōrʹə) 1. A river, about 233 km (145 mi) long, of southwest Arkansas flowing generally southeast to the Ouachita River. 2. A river of the northern United States rising in northeast Wyoming and flowing about 901 km (560 mi) through southeast Montana and northwest South Dakota to the Missouri River in western North Dakota.

Little Na·ma·qua·land (lĭtʹl nə-măʹkwə-ländʹ) See Namaqualand.

lit·tle-neck (lĭtʹl-nĕkʹ) n. The quahog clam when small and suitable for eating raw. Also called littleneck clam [After Little Neck Bay, off western Long Island, New York.]

little owl (lĭtʹl oul) n. A small European owl (Athene noctua) having streaked brownish plumage.

Little Pee Dee River (lĭtʹl pēʹ dēʹ rĭvʹər) A river, about 169 km (105 mi) long, of southern North Carolina and northern South Carolina flowing south then southeast to the Pee Dee River.

Little Rock (lĭtʹl rōk) The capital and largest city of Arkansas, in the central part of the state on the Arkansas River. It became territorial capital in 1821 and state capital in 1836. Federal troops were sent to the city in 1957 to enforce a 1954 U.S. Supreme Court ruling against segregation in the public schools. Population, 175,795.

Little Saint Bernard Pass (lĭt' sǎnt' bər-nārd' pās) A mountain pass through the Savoy Alps between Italy and France south of Mont Blanc. It rises to 2,189.9 m (7,180 ft).

Little Sark (lĭt' sǎrk) See Sark.

Little Sioux River (lĭt' sōō rĭv'ər) A river rising in southwest Minnesota and flowing about 356 km (221 mi) generally southwest to the Missouri River in northwest Iowa.

little slam (lĭt' slām) n. Games. The winning of all but one of the tricks during the play of one hand of bridge.

Little Ten-nes-see River (lĭt' tĕn'ĭ-sē' rĭv'ər) A river, about 217 km (135 mi) long, of northeast Georgia, southwest North Carolina, and eastern Tennessee, where it joins the Tennessee River.

little theater (lĭt' thē'ə-tər) n. A small theater usually for a community, collegiate, or experimental drama group.

little toe (lĭt' tō) n. The smallest and outermost toe of the human foot.

Lit-tle-ton (lĭt' l-tən) A city of north-central Colorado, a residential and industrial suburb of Denver. Population, 33,685.

Little Wa-bash River (lĭt' wô'bāsh' rĭv'ər) A river, about 322 km (200 mi) long, of eastern Illinois flowing southeast to the Wabash River.

lit-to-ral (lĭt'ər-əl) adj. Of or on a shore, especially a seashore: a littoral property; the littoral biogeographic zone. — n. A coastal region; a shore. [Latin lĭtorālis, from lĭtus, lĭtor-, shore. N., from Italian littorale from Latin lĭtorālis.]

Lit-tré (lĭ-trā', lē-), Maximilien Paul Émile. 1801-1881. French philosopher and lexicographer whose chief work is the Dictionnaire de la Langue Française (1863-1872).

li-tur-gi-cal (lĭ-tūr'jĭ-kəl) also li-tur-gic (-tūr'jĭk) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or in accordance with liturgy: a book of liturgical forms. 2. Using or used in liturgy. — li-tur'gi-cal-ly adv.

li-tur-gics (lĭ-tūr'jĭks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of liturgies. Also called liturgiology li-tur-gi-ol-o-gy (lĭ-tūr'jĕ-ōl'ə-jĕ) n. See liturgics. — li-tur'gi-ol'o-gist n.

lit-ur-gist (lĭt'ər-jĭst) n. 1. One who uses or advocates the use of liturgical forms. 2. A scholar in liturgics.

lit-ur-gy (lĭt'ər-jĕ) n. pl. lit-ur-gies. 1. A prescribed form or set of forms for public Christian ceremonies; ritual. 2. Often Liturgy. The sacrament of the Eucharist. [Late Latin lĭtūrgia, from Greek leitourgia, public service, from leitourgos, public servant : lēos, leit-, people (variant of laos) + ergon, work; see werg- in Appendix.]

Lit-vi-nov (lĭt-vē'nōf, lĭt-vē'nəf), Maxim Maximovich. 1876-1951. Russian diplomat who was commissar for foreign affairs (1930-1939) and ambassador to the United States (1941-1943).

Liu-chow (lyōō'chō') See Liuzhou.

Liu Shao-qi also Liu Shao-chi (lyōō' shou'chē'), 1898?-1968?. Chinese politician who became chairman of the People's Republic of China in 1959 and was removed from power during the Cultural Revolution (1968). His death was confirmed in 1974.

Liu-zhou (lyōō'jō') also Liu-chow (-chō') A city of southern China north-northeast of Nanning. It is an industrial and transportation center with a large integrated iron and steel complex. Population, 375,000.

liv-a-ble also live-a-ble (lĭv'ə-bəl) adj. 1. Suitable to live in; habitable: a livable dwelling. 2. Possible to bear; enduring: livable trials and tribulations.

—liv'a-ble-ness n.

live¹ (lĭv) v. lived, liv-ing, lives. — v. intr. 1. To be alive; exist. 2. To continue to be alive: lived through a bad accident. 3. To support oneself; subsist: living on rice and fish; lives on a small inheritance. 4. To reside; dwell: lives on a farm. 5. To conduct one's life in a particular manner: lived frugally. 6. To pursue a positive, satisfying existence; enjoy life: those who truly live. 7. To remain in human memory: an event that lives on in our minds. — v. tr. 1. To spend or pass (one's life). 2. To go through; experience: lived a nightmare. 3. To practice in one's life: live one's beliefs. See Synonyms at be. —phrasal verbs. live down. To overcome or reduce the shame of (a misdeed, for example) over a period of time. live in. To reside in the place where one is employed: household servants who live in. live out. To live outside one's place of domestic employment: household servants who live out. live with. To put up with; resign oneself to: disliked the situation but had to live with it. —idioms. live it up. Slang. To engage in festive pleasures or extravagances. live up to. 2. To live or act in accordance with: lived up to their parents' ideals. 3. To prove equal to: a new technology that did not live up to our expectations. 4. To carry out; fulfill: lived up to her end of the bargain. [Middle English liven, from Old English libban, lifian. See leip- in Appendix.]

live² (lĭv) adj. 1. Having life; alive: live animals. See Synonyms at living. 2. Of current interest or relevance: a live topic; still a live option. 3. Glowing; burning: live coals. 4. Not yet exploded but capable of being fired: live ammunition. 5. Electricity. Carrying an electric current or energized with electricity. 6. Not mined or quarried; in the natural state: live ore. 7. a. Broadcast while actually being performed; not taped, filmed, or recorded: a live television program. b. Involving performers or spectators who are physically present: live entertainment. 8. Printing. Not yet set into type: live copy. 9. Sports. In play: a live ball. — adv. At, during, or from the time of actual occurrence or performance: The landing on the moon was telecast live. [Short for ALIVE.] —live'ness n.

live-a-ble (lĭv'ə-bəl) adj. Variant of livable.

live·bear·er (līv'bâr'ər) n. A fish, especially of the family Poeciliidae, that bears live young rather than depositing eggs. —live'-bear'ing adj.

live-for-ev-er (līv'fər-ĕv'ər) n. 1. See orpine. 2. See houseleek.

live-in (līv'ɪn') adj. 1. Residing in the place where one is employed: a live-in cook. 2. Residing together with another, especially in sexual intimacy.

live·li·hood (līv'lē-hōöd') n. Means of support; subsistence. [Middle English livelyhed, alteration (influenced by liflihed, energy, vigor, from lifli, lively), of livelode, from Old English līflād : līf, life; see LIFE + lād, course; see leit- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: livelihood, living, subsistence, sustenance, maintenance, support, keep. These nouns denote the means needed to provide the necessities of life. Livelihood and living are often interchangeable, but livelihood may specify the occupation by means of which one earns an income: Painting is her livelihood. He earns a precarious living as a window washer. Subsistence is sometimes equivalent to living: “The principal part of our subsistence was to be had by our guns” (Daniel Defoe). Very often, however, it suggests resources barely sufficient to support life: “They [the Pilgrims] fell upon an ungenial climate... that called out [their] best energies... to get a mere subsistence out of the soil” (Ulysses S. Grant). Sustenance applies to what is necessary to sustain life and especially to the food needed for health and comfort: The urban homeless are often in desperate need of sustenance. Maintenance, support, and keep are usually reckoned as the equivalent in money of what is needed to supply necessities such as food, lodging, and clothing: Both parents contribute to the maintenance of their children. He lives in an opulent apartment but has no visible means of support. “Long before they reached their teens they were earning their keep” (J.M. Barrie). Support also applies to one that provides the necessities, means, or funds to sustain others: Her earnings are the only support of her aged parents.

live load (līv lōd) n. A moving, variable weight added to the dead load or intrinsic weight of a structure or vehicle.

live·long (līv'lōng', -lōng') adj. Complete; whole: the livelong day. [Middle English : leve, lefe, dear, used as an intensive (from Old English lēof, dear); see leubh- in Appendix + long, long; see LONG¹.]

live·ly (līv'lē) adj. live·li·er, live·li·est. 1. Full of life and energy; vigorous: a lively baby. 2. Full of spirit; gay and animated: a lively tune. 3. Marked by animated intelligence: a lively discussion. 4. Invigorating; refreshing. 5. Effervescent; sparkling. 6. Keen; brisk: gave the kitchen floor a lively sweeping. 7. Rebounding readily upon impact; resilient: a lively tennis ball. See Synonyms at active. — adv. With energy or vigor; briskly: Step lively! [Middle English lifli, from Old English liflic, from lif, life. See leip- in Appendix.] —live/li·ly

adv. —live/li·ness n.

li·ven (līvən) v. tr. intr. li·vened, li·ven·ing, li·vens. To make or become more lively: liven up a party; a discussion that livened up.

live oak (līv ōk) n. Any of several American evergreen oaks, such as Quercus virginiana of Mexico and the southeast United States or Q. agrifolia of California. Also called encina liv·er¹ (līv'ər) n. 1. Anatomy. A large, reddish-brown, glandular vertebrate organ located in the upper right portion of the abdominal cavity that secretes bile and is active in the formation of certain blood proteins and in the metabolism of carbohydrates, fats, and proteins. 2. An organ in invertebrates that is similar to the vertebrate liver. 3. The bile-secreting organ of an animal, used as food. 4. Color. A dark reddish brown. — adj. 1. Made of or flavored with liver: liver pâté; liver sandwiches. 2. Of a dark reddish brown. [Middle English, from Old English lifer. See leip- in Appendix.]

liv·er² (līv'ər) n. One who lives in a specified manner: a high liver.

liver extract (līv'ər ĩk-sträkt') n. A dry, brownish powder containing the soluble thermolabile fraction of mammalian livers that is capable of stimulating the production of red blood cells.

liver fluke (līv'ər floōk) n. 1. Any of several parasitic trematode worms, especially Clonorchis sinensis, that infest the liver of various animals, including human beings. 2. Infestation with such parasitic worms. In this sense, also called rot liv·er·ied (līv'ər-rēd, līv'rēd) adj. Wearing livery: Liveried footmen stood on the palace steps.

liv·er·ish (līv'ər-ĭsh) adj. 1. Resembling liver, especially in color. 2. Having a liver disorder; bilious. 3. Having a disagreeable disposition; irritable. —liv'er·ish·ness n.

liv·er·leaf (līv'ər-lēf') n. See hepatica.

Liv·er·more (līv'ər-mōr', -mōr') A city of western California east-southeast of Oakland. There are wineries in the area. Population, 56,741.

Liv·er·more (līv'ər-mōr', -mōr'), Mary Ashton Rice. 1820-1905. American suffragist, reformer, and lecturer. She founded (1869) The Agitator and edited (1869-1872) the Woman's Journal.

Liv·er·pool (līv'ər-pōol') A borough of northwest England on the Mersey River near its mouth on the Irish Sea. First colonized by Norsemen in the late eighth century, Liverpool received a charter from King John in 1207. Today it is highly industrialized and a major port. Population, 518,900.

liver spot (līv'ər spōt) n. A benign, localized brownish patch on the skin, often occurring in old age and in people with sun-damaged skin.

liv·er·wort (līv'ər-wŭrt', -wōrt') n. Any of numerous small, green, nonvascular plants of the class Hepaticae within the division Bryophyta.

liv-er-wurst (lĭv'ər-wŭrst', -wŏorst') n. A sausage made of or containing ground liver. [Partial translation of German Leberwurst : Leber, liver + Wurst, sausage; see WURST.]

liv-er-y (lĭv'ə-rĕ, lĭv'rĕ) n. pl. liv-er-ies. 1. A distinctive uniform worn by the male servants of a household. 2. The distinctive dress worn by the members of a particular group; uniform: ushers in livery. 3. The costume or insignia worn by the retainers of a feudal lord. 4. a. The boarding and care of horses for a fee. b. The hiring out of horses and carriages. c. A livery stable. 5. A business that offers vehicles, such as automobiles or boats, for hire. 6. Law. Official delivery of property, especially land, to a new owner. [Middle English liveri, from Old French livree, delivery, from feminine past participle of livrer, to deliver, from Latin liberāre, to free, from liber, free. See leudh- in Appendix.]

liv-er-y-man (lĭv'ə-rĕ-mən, lĭv'rĕ-) n. A man who is employed in or keeps a livery stable.

livery stable (lĭv'ə-rĕ stā'bəl) n. A stable that boards horses and keeps horses and carriages for hire.

lives (lĭvz) n. Plural of life.

live steam (lĭv stēm) n. Steam coming from a boiler at full pressure.

live-stock (lĭv'stŏk') n. Domestic animals, such as cattle or horses, raised for home use or for profit, especially on a farm. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: livestock prices; a livestock auction.

live wire (lĭv wĭr) n. 1. A wire carrying electric current. 2. Informal. A vivacious, alert, or energetic person.

liv-id (lĭv'ĭd) adj. 1. Discolored, as from a bruise; black-and-blue. 2. Ashen or pallid: a face livid with shock. 3. Extremely angry; furious. [Middle English livide, from Old French, from Latin lividus, from livĕre, to be bluish. See slĭ- in Appendix.] —li-vid'i-ty, liv'id-ness n. —liv'id-ly adv.

liv-ing (lĭv'ĭŋ) adj. 1. Possessing life: famous living painters; transplanted living tissue. 2. In active function or use: a living language. 3. Of persons who are alive: events within living memory. 4. Full of life, interest, or vitality: made history a living subject. 5. True to life; realistic: the living image of her mother. 6. Informal. Used as an intensive: beat the living hell out of his opponent in the boxing match. — n. 1. The condition or action of maintaining life: the high cost of living. 2. A manner or style of life: preferred plain living. 3. A means of maintaining life; livelihood: made their living by hunting. 4. Chiefly British. A church benefice, including the revenue attached to it.

SYNONYMS: living, alive, live, animate, animated, vital. These adjectives mean possessed of or exhibiting life. Living, alive, and live refer principally to organisms that are not dead but continue to live: living plants and animals; the happiest woman alive; a live canary. Animate applies to living animal as distinct from living plant life: early peoples worshiping animate and inanimate objects. Animated suggests renewed life, vigor, or spirit: became very animated when he heard the good news. Vital refers to what is characteristic of or necessary to the continuation of life: eating to maintain vital energy. See also Synonyms at livelihood living death (lĭv'ing dĕth) n. A situation or period of time characterized by unremitting pain and suffering.

living fossil (lĭv'ing fōs'əl) n. An organism, such as a coelacanth or the ginkgo, that is the sole surviving member of an otherwise extinct taxonomic group.

living room (lĭv'ing rōōm) n. Abbr. LR A room in a private residence intended for general social and leisure activities. Also called front room Liv-ing-ston (lĭv'ing-stən) A community of northeast New Jersey northwest of Newark. It is in a truck-farming area. Population, 26,609.

Liv-ing-ston (lĭv'ing-stən), Henry Brockholst. 1757-1823. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1806-1823).

Liv-ing-ston (lĭv'ing-stən), Robert. 1654-1728. Scottish-born American colonist and public official who served as secretary for Indian affairs (1695-1728).

Liv-ing-ston (lĭv'ing-stən), Robert R. 1746-1813. American Revolutionary leader and diplomat who served in the Continental Congress (1775-1781) and as minister to France (1801-1804). He helped draft the Declaration of Independence, administered the presidential oath to George Washington, and with James Madison purchased the Louisiana Territory (1803).

Liv-ing-stone (lĭv'ing-stən), David. 1813-1873. Scottish missionary and African explorer. He discovered the Zambezi River (1851) and Victoria Falls (1855). Henry M. Stanley found him in Tanzania (1871), and together they attempted to find the source of the Nile.

living unit (lĭv'ing yōō'nĭt) n. A dwelling for use by one family.

living wage (lĭv'ing wāj) n. A wage sufficient to provide minimally satisfactory living conditions. Also called minimum wage living will (lĭv'ing wĭl) n. A will in which the signer requests not to be kept alive by medical life-support systems in the event of a terminal illness.

Li-vo-ni-a (lĭ-vō'nĕ-ə, -vōn'yə) 1. A region comprising southern Estonia and northern Latvia. The Livonian Brothers of the Sword conquered the area in the 13th century and converted the inhabitants to Christianity. After the dissolution of the order (1561), Livonia was contested by Poland, Russia, and Sweden, finally passing to Russia in 1721. 2. A city of southeast Michigan, an industrial suburb of Detroit. Population, 100,850.

Li-vo-ni-an (lĭ-vō'nĕ-ən) adj. Of or relating to the region of Livonia or its people or culture. — n. A native or inhabitant of the region of Livonia.

Li-vor-no (lĕ-vōr'nō) See Leghorn.

li·vre (lē'vər, lē'vrə) n. Abbr. lv. A money of account formerly used in France and originally worth a pound of silver. [French, from Old French, from Latin libra, a unit of weight, pound.]

Liv·y (lĭv'ē), 59 B.C.-A.D.17. Roman historian. His history of Rome originally consisted of 142 volumes, of which only 35 survive.

lix·iv·i·ate (lĭk-sĭv'ē-āt') v. tr. lix·iv·i·at·ed, lix·iv·i·at·ing, lix·iv·i·ates. To wash or percolate the soluble matter from. [Late Latin lixivium, lye (from Latin lixivius, of lye, from lix, lye) + -ATE¹.] —lix·iv·i·a'tion n.

liz·ard (lĭz'ərd) n. 1. Any of numerous reptiles of the suborder Sauria or Lacertilia, characteristically having a scaly elongated body, movable eyelids, four legs, and a tapering tail. 2. Leather made from the skin of one of these reptiles. [Middle English, from Old French lesarde, from Latin lacertus, lacerta.]

liz·ard·fish (lĭz'ərd-fĭsh') n. pl. lizardfish or liz·ard·fish·es. Any of various bottom-dwelling, large-mouthed fishes of the family Synodontidae of warm seas, having a lizardlike head.

Liz·ard Point or Liz·ard Head (lĭz'ərd point) A cape of southwest England at the southern tip of The Lizard, a peninsula extending southward into the English Channel. It is the southernmost point of Great Britain.

Lju·blja·na (lōō'blē-ä'nə, lyōō'blyä-nä) The capital of Slovenia, on the central part on the Sava River west-northwest of Zagreb, Croatia. Founded by Augustus in 34 B.C., it came under Hapsburg rule in A.D. 1277 and passed to Yugoslavia in 1919. Population, 205,600.

Lk abbr. Bible. Luke.

ll or ll. abbr. Lines.

'll Shall; will: We'll arrive later.

lla·ma (lä'mə) n. 1. A domesticated South American ruminant mammal (Lama glama) related to the camel, raised for its soft, fleecy wool and used as a beast of burden. 2. Any of various other mammals of the genus Lama, such as the alpaca and guanaca. [Spanish, from Quechua.]

lla·no (lä'nō, län'ō) n. pl. lla·nos. A large, grassy, almost treeless plain, especially one in Latin America. [Spanish, plain, from Latin plānum, from neuter of plānus, level. See pelə-² in Appendix.]

Lla·no Es·ta·ca·do (län'ō ēs'tə-kä'dō, lä'nō) An extensive, semiarid plateau region of the southern Great Plains in southeast New Mexico, western Texas, and northwest Oklahoma. The grazing lands also have resources of oil and natural gas.

LL.B. abbr. Latin. Legum Baccalaureus (Bachelor of Laws).

LL.D. abbr. Latin. Legum Doctor (Doctor of Laws).

Llew·el·lyn (lōō-əl'in), Richard. 1906-1983. Welsh-born British writer noted for his novel How Green Was My Valley (1940), a portrait of life in a Welsh mining village.

LL.M. abbr. Latin. Legum Magister (Master of Laws).

Lloyd (loid), Harold Clayton. 1894-1971. American silent film actor. His most famous stunt was hanging from a clock face at the top of a building in Safety Last (1923).

Lloyd (loid), Henry Demarest. 1847-1903. American journalist. As a financial writer and editor at the Chicago Tribune (1872-1885) he wrote many stories attacking monopolies and became one of the first muckraking journalists.

Lloyd George (loid jôrj'), David First Earl of Dwyfor. 1863-1945. British politician who served as prime minister from 1916 to 1922. He introduced (1911) Great Britain's National Health Insurance program.

Lloyd-min-ster (loid'mîn'stər) A city on the Alberta-Saskatchewan border, Canada, east of Edmonton. The city, chartered by both provinces, is in a farming and ranching region with oil and natural gas deposits. Population, 15,031.

Llu-llai-lla-co (yōō'yī-yä'kō) A volcano, 6,727.4 m (22,057 ft) high, in the Andes of northern Chile near the Argentine border.

lm abbr. Physics. Lumen.

Lm abbr. Bible. Lamentations.

LM abbr. 1. Legion of Merit. 2. Lunar module.

LMT abbr. Local mean time.

ln The symbol for natural logarithm.

LNG abbr. Liquefied natural gas.

lo (lō) interj. Used to attract attention or to show surprise. [Middle English, from Old English lā.]

loach (lōch) n. Any of various Eurasian and African freshwater fishes of the family Cobitidae, having barbels around the mouth. [Middle English loche, from Old French, perhaps from Vulgar Latin laukka*, fish, slug, possibly of Celtic origin.]

load (lōd) n. Abbr. ld. 1. a. A weight or mass that is supported: the load on an arch. b. The overall force to which a structure is subjected in supporting a weight or mass or in resisting externally applied forces. 2. a. Something that is carried, as by a vehicle, a person, or an animal: a load of firewood. b. The quantity that is or can be carried at one time. 3. a. The share of work allocated to or required of a person, a machine, a group, or an organization. b. The demand for services or performance made on a machine or system. 4. The amount of material that can be inserted into a device or machine at one time: The camera has a full load of film. 5. A single charge of ammunition for a firearm. 6. a. A mental weight or burden: Good news took a load off my mind. b. A responsibility regarded as oppressive. 7. The external mechanical resistance against which a machine acts. 8. Electricity. a. The power output of a generator or power plant. b. A device or the resistance of a device to which power is delivered. 9. A front-end load. 10. Often loads. Informal. A great number or amount: loads of parties during the holiday season. 11. Slang. A satisfying view; an eyeful: Get a load of that new car!

12. Genetic load. — v. load-ed, load-ing, loads. — v. tr. 1. a. To put (something) into or onto a structure, device, or conveyance: loading grain onto a train. b. To put something into or onto (a structure, device, or conveyance): loaded the tanker with crude oil. 2. To provide or fill nearly to overflowing; heap: loaded the table with food. 3. To weigh down; burden: was loaded with worries. 4. To charge (a firearm) with ammunition. 5. To insert a necessary material into: loaded tape into the recorder. 6. Games. To make (dice) heavier on one side by adding weight. 7. To charge with additional meanings, implications, or emotional import: loaded the question to trick the witness. 8. To dilute, adulterate, or doctor. See Synonyms at adulterate. 9. To raise the power demand in (an electrical circuit), as by adding resistance. 10. To increase (an insurance premium or a mutual fund share price) by adding expenses or sale costs. 11. Baseball. To have or put runners on (all three bases). 12. Computer Science. a. To transfer (data) from a storage device into a computer's memory. b. To mount (a diskette) onto a floppy disk drive. c. To mount (a magnetic tape) onto a tape drive. — v. intr. 1. To receive a load: Container ships can load rapidly. 2. To charge a firearm with ammunition. 3. To put or place a load into or onto a structure, device, or conveyance. [Middle English lode, alteration (influenced by laden, to load); see LADE, of lade, course, way, from Old English lād. See leit- in Appendix.]

load-ed (lō'dēd) adj. 1. Carrying a load. 2. Heavy with meaning or emotional import: The psychoanalyst specialized in asking loaded questions. 3. Slang. Intoxicated; drunk. 4. Slang. Having a great deal of money. See Synonyms at rich.

load-er (lō'dər) n. Computer Science. A program that transfers data from off-line memory into internal storage.

load-ing (lō'dɪŋ) n. Abbr. ldg. 1. A weight placed on something else; a burden. 2. A substance added to something else; a filler. 3. An addition to an insurance premium. 4. Electricity. The addition of inductance to a transmission line to improve its transmission characteristics.

loading program (lō'dɪŋ prō'grām') n. Computer Science. A sequence of instructions that starts the processing of a program entered by means of an automatic input device.

load line (lōd līn) n. Nautical. See Plimsoll mark.

load-mas-ter (lōd'mäs'tər) n. An aircraft crew member in charge of loading and unloading cargo or heavy weapons.

load-star (lōd'stär') n. Variant of lodestar.

load-stone (lōd'stōn') n. Variant of lodestone.

loaf¹ (lōf) n. pl. loaves (lōvz). 1. A shaped mass of bread baked in one piece. 2. A shaped, usually rounded or oblong, mass of food: veal loaf. [Middle English lof, from Old English hlāf.]

loaf² (lōf) v. intr. loafed, loaf-ing, loafs. To pass time at leisure; idle. [Probably back-formation from LOAFER.]

loaf-er (lō'fər) n. One who is habitually idle: disliked loafers on the job. [Short for obsolete land-loafer, vagabond, idler, possibly partial translation of obsolete German Landläufer, from Middle High German landlōufer: land, land + lōufer, runner (from loufen, to run, from Old High German hlouffan).]

Loaf-er (lō'fər) A trademark used for a low leather step-in shoe with an upper resembling a moccasin but with a broad, flat heel. This trademark often occurs in print in lowercase: "Under the... private label, there is a simple black patent loafer for $175" (New York Times). "Popular looks for men include: knee-length shorts worn with a blazer, white socks and loafers; or turtlenecks, often white" (San Francisco Chronicle). "The groom wore jeans, loafers and no socks" (Sports Illustrated).

loam (lōm) n. 1. Soil composed of a mixture of sand, clay, silt, and organic matter. 2. A mixture of moist clay and sand, together with straw, used especially in making bricks and foundry molds. — v. tr. loamed, loam-ing, loams. To fill, cover, or coat with loam. [Middle English lam, lom, clay, from Old English lām. See lei- in Appendix.] — loam'y adj.

loan (lōn) n. 1. a. Something lent for temporary use. b. A sum of money lent at interest. 2. An act of lending; a grant for temporary use: asked for the loan of a garden hose. 3. A temporary transfer to a duty or place away from a regular job: an efficiency expert on loan from the main office. — v. tr. loaned, loan-ing, loans. Usage Problem. To lend. [Middle English lan, lon, from Old Norse lān. See leik^w- in Appendix.] — loan'er n.

USAGE NOTE: The verb loan is well established in American usage and cannot be considered incorrect. The frequent objections to the form by American grammarians may have originated from a provincial deference to British critics, who long ago labeled the usage a typical Americanism. But loan is used only to describe physical transactions, as of money or goods. For figurative transactions, lend is the only possible form: Distance lends enchantment. The allusions lend the work a classical tone. Lend is also required in fixed expressions such as lend-lease and moneylender.

Lo-an-da (lō-än'də) See Luanda.

loan shark (lōn shärk) n. Informal. One who lends money at exorbitant interest rates, especially one financed and supported by an organized crime network.

loan-shark-ing (lōn'shär'kīng) n. Informal. The practice of lending money at usurious, often illegal interest rates.

loan translation (lōn trāns-lā'shən) n. A form of borrowing from one language to another whereby the semantic components of a given term are literally translated into their equivalents in the borrowing language. English superman, for example, is a loan translation from German Übermensch. Also called calque loan word or loan-word (lōn'wŭrd') n. A word adopted from another language and completely or partially naturalized, as very and hors d'oeuvre, both from French.

loath also loth (lōth, lōth) adj. Unwilling or reluctant; disinclined: I am loath to go on such short notice. [Middle English loth, displeasing, loath, from Old English lāth, hateful, loathsome.]

loathe (lōth) v. tr. loathed, loath-ing, loathes. To dislike (someone or something) greatly; abhor. [Middle English lothen, from Old English lāthian.] —loath'er n.

loath-ing (lō'thɪŋ) n. Great dislike; abhorrence. —loath'ing-ly adv.

loath-ly (lōth'lē, lōth'-) adj. Loathsome. [Middle English lothly, from Old English lāthlic: lāth, hateful + -lic, like; see *-LY*¹.]

loath-some (lōth'səm, lōth'-) adj. Arousing loathing; abhorrent. See Synonyms at offensive. [Middle English lothsome: loth, hateful; see LOATH + -som, adj. suff.; see *-SOME*¹.] —loath'some-ly adv. —loath'some-ness n.

loaves (lōvz) n. Plural of loaf¹.

lob (lɒb) v. lobbed, lob-bing, lobs. — v. tr. To hit, throw, or propel in a high arc: lob a beach ball; lob a tennis shot over an opponent's head. — v. intr. 1. To hit a ball in a high arc. 2. To move heavily or clumsily. — n. 1. A ball hit, thrown, or propelled in a high arc. 2. Chiefly British. A clumsy dull person; a lout. [From Middle English, pollack, lout, probably of Low German origin.] —lob'ber n.

Lo-ba-chev-ski (lō'bə-chĕf'skē, lə-bə-chyĕf'-), Nikolai Ivanovich. 1792-1856. Russian mathematician who developed (1826) hyperbolic geometry, a system that challenged Euclidean theory.

lo-bar (lō'bər, -bär') adj. Of or relating to a lobe or lobes, as of the lungs: lobar pneumonia.

lo-bate (lō'bāt') also lo-bat-ed (-bā'tĭd) adj. 1. Having lobes; lobed. 2. Shaped like a lobe. 3. Having separate toes, each bordered by a weblike lobe. Used of the feet of certain birds. —lo'bate'ly adv.

lo-ba-tion (lō-bā'shən) n. 1. The state of being lobed. 2. A structure or part resembling a lobe. 3. A lobe.

lob-by (lɒb'ē) n. pl. lob-bies. 1. A hall, foyer, or waiting room at or near the entrance to a building, such as a hotel or theater. 2. A public room next to the assembly chamber of a legislative body. 3. A group of persons engaged in trying to influence legislators or other public officials in favor of a specific cause: the banking lobby; the labor lobby. — v. lob-bied, lob-by-ing, lob-bies. — v. intr. To try to influence the thinking of legislators or other public officials for or against a specific cause: lobbying for stronger environmental safeguards; lobbied against the proliferation of nuclear arms. — v. tr. 1. To try to influence public officials on behalf of or against (proposed legislation, for example): lobbied the bill through Congress; lobbied the bill to a negative vote. 2. To try to influence (an official) to take a desired action. [Medieval Latin lobia, monastic cloister, of Germanic origin.] —lob'by-er, lob'by-ist n. —lob'by-ism n.

lobe (lōb) n. 1. A rounded projection, especially a rounded, projecting anatomical part: the lobe of an ear. 2. A subdivision of a bodily organ or part bounded by fissures, connective tissue, or other structural boundaries. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin lobus, hull, pod, from Greek lobos, lobe, pod.]

lo·bec·to·my (lō-bĕk'tə-mē) n. pl. lo·bec·to·mies. Surgical excision of a lobe, as of the lung.

lobed (lōbd) adj. Having a lobe or lobes: lobed leaves.

lobe·fin (lōb'fīn') n. Any of various mostly extinct bony fishes of the subclass Crossopterygii, of which the coelacanth is a living representative.

—lobe'finned' adj.

lo·be·li·a (lō-bē'lē-ə, -bēl'yə) n. Any of numerous plants of the genus Lobelia, having terminal racemes of variously colored flowers with a bilabiate corolla. [New Latin Lobelia, genus name, after Matthias de Lobel (1538-1616), Flemish botanist and physician.]

Lo·bi·to (lō-bē'tō) A city of west-central Angola on Lobito Bay, an inlet of the Atlantic Ocean. It is the country's chief port. Population, 120,000.

lob·lol·ly (lōb'lōl'ē) n. pl. lob·lol·lies. 1. Chiefly Southern U.S. A mudhole; a mire. 2. The loblolly pine. [Perhaps dialectal lob, to bubble + lolly, broth.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Loblolly is a combination of lob, probably an onomatopoeia for the thick, heavy bubbling of cooking porridge, and lolly, an old British dialect word for “broth, soup, or any other food boiled in a pot.” Thus, loblolly originally denoted thick porridge or gruel, especially that eaten by sailors on board ship. In the southern United States, the word is used to mean “a mudhole; a mire,” a sense derived from an allusion to the consistency of porridge. The name loblolly has become associated with several varieties of trees as well, all of which favor wet bottomlands or swamps in the Gulf and South Atlantic states.

loblolly pine (lōb'lōl'ē pīn) n. A pine (Pinus taeda) of the southeast United States, having needles in fascicles of three, oblong cones, and strong wood used as lumber and for paper pulp.

lo·bo (lō'bō) n. pl. lo·bos. Western U.S. The gray wolf. [Spanish, wolf, from Latin lupus. See w|k^wo- in Appendix.]

lo·bo·la (lō'bə-lə) n. A set amount paid by a prospective husband to the bride's family among certain peoples in southern Africa.

lo·bot·o·mize (lə-bōt'ə-mīz', lō-) v. tr. lo·bot·o·mized, lo·bot·o·miz·ing, lo·bot·o·miz·es. 1. To perform a lobotomy on (a patient). 2. To deprive (a person) of energy or vitality.

lo·bot·o·my (lə-bōt'ə-mē, lō-) n. pl. lo·bot·o·mies. Surgical incision into the frontal lobe of the brain to sever one or more nerve tracts, a technique formerly used to treat certain mental disorders but now rarely performed. [LOBE + -TOMY.]

lob·scouse (lɒb'skous') n. A sailor's stew made of meat, vegetables, and hard-tack. [Perhaps dialectal lob, to bubble + scouse, of unknown origin.]

lob·ster (lɒb'stər) n. 1. Any of several edible marine crustaceans of the family Homaridae, especially of the genus Homarus, having stalked eyes, long antennae, and five pairs of legs, the first pair of which is modified into large pincers. 2. Any of several crustaceans, such as the spiny lobster, that are related to the lobsters.

3. The flesh of a lobster used as food. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a lobster dinner; lobster boats. — v. intr. lob·stered, lob·ster·ing, lob·sters. To search for and catch lobsters. [Middle English lopster, lobster, from Old English loppestre, alteration (perhaps influenced by loppe, lobbe, spider), of Latin locusta.] —lob'ster·er n.

WORD HISTORY: A lobster and a locust may share a common source for their name, that is, the Latin word locusta, which was used for the locust and also for a crustacean that was probably a kind of lobster. We can see that locusta would be the source of locust, but it looks like an unlikely candidate as the source of lobster. It is thought, however, that Old English loppestre, the ancestor of lobster, was formed from locusta and the suffix -estre used to make agent nouns (our -ster). The change from Latin locusta to Old English loppestre may have been influenced by Old English loppe, meaning “spider.”

lob·ster·man (lɒb'stər-mən) n. 1. A man whose occupation is catching lobsters. 2. Nautical. A ship used in locating and catching lobsters.

lobster pot (lɒb'stər pɒt) n. A slatted cage with an opening covered by a funnel-shaped net, used for trapping lobsters.

lobster ther·mi·dor (lɒb'stər θûr'mī-dôr') n. A dish consisting of cooked lobster meat mixed with a cream sauce, put into a lobster shell, sprinkled with cheese, and browned. [After French Thermidor, the 11th month of the calendar used during the French Revolution : Greek thermē, heat; see THERM + Greek dōron, gift; see dō- in Appendix.]

lob·u·late (lɒb'yə-lāt') also lob·u·lat·ed (-lā'tid) adj. Having or consisting of lobules. —lob'u·la'tion n.

lob·ule (lɒb'yool) n. 1. A small lobe. 2. A section or subdivision of a lobe. —lob'u·lar (-yə-lər), lob'u·lose' (-yə-lōs') adj. —lob'u·lar·ly adv.

lob-worm (lɒb'wûrm') n. See lugworm. [Alteration (influenced by LOB, lump, something hanging), of LUGWORM.]

lo-cal (lɒ'kæl) adj. 1. a. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a particular place: a local custom; the local slang. b. Of or relating to a city, town, or district rather than a larger area: state and local government. 2. Not broad or general; not widespread: local outbreaks of flu. 3. Medicine. Of or affecting a specific part of the body: a local infection. 4. Making all possible or scheduled stops on a route; not express: a local train. — n. 1. A public conveyance that makes several intermediate stops before the final destination is reached: changed trains to a local. 2. A local chapter or branch of an organization, especially of a labor union. 3. Informal. A person from a particular locality. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin locālis, from Latin locus, place.] —lo'cal·ly adv. —lo'cal-ness n.

local anesthetic (lɒ'kæl ən'is-thət'ɪk) n. An anesthetic that induces loss of sensation only on and around the point where it is applied or injected.

local area network (lɒ'kæl âr'ē-ə nēt'wûrk') n. LAN.

local color (lɒ'kæl kûl'ər) n. 1. The interest or flavor of a locality imparted by the customs and sights peculiar to it. 2. The use of regional detail in a literary or an artistic work.

lo·cale (lɒ-kāl') n. 1. A place, especially with reference to a particular event: the locale of a crime. 2. The scene or setting, as of a novel. [From French local, local, locale, from Old French. See LOCAL.]

lo·cal·ism (lɒ'kə-līz'əm) n. 1. a. A local linguistic feature. b. A local custom or peculiarity. 2. Devotion to local interests and customs. —lo'cal·ist n.

lo·cal·i·ty (lɒ-kāl'ī-tē) n. pl. lo·cal·i·ties. 1. A particular neighborhood, place, or district: "Localities, even individual villages, developed their own languages" (Wall Street Journal). See Synonyms at area. 2. The fact or quality of having position in space. [French localité, from Late Latin locālitās, from locālis, local. See LOCAL.]

lo·cal·ize (lɒ'kə-līz') v. lo·cal·ized, lo·cal·iz·ing, lo·cal·iz·es. — v. tr. 1. To make local: decentralize and localize political authority. 2. To confine or restrict to a particular locality: localized the infection. 3. To attribute to a particular locality: sought to localize the origin of the rumor. — v. intr. To become local, especially to become fixed in one area or part. —lo'cal·i·za'tion (-kə-lī-zā'shən) n.

local option (lɒ'kæl ɒp'shən) n. The power granted to a local political subdivision to decide whether to apply a law, such as a ban on liquor sales, within its jurisdiction.

Lo·car·no (lɒ-kär'nō) A town of southern Switzerland at the northern end of Lake Maggiore. First mentioned in 749, it passed to Milan in 1342 and was taken by the Swiss in 1512. The Locarno Pact between Germany and various European powers was signed here on December 1, 1925, in an effort to promote peace and maintain existing territorial borders. The city is today a popular resort. Population, 14,300.

lo·cate (lō'kāt', lō-kāt') v. lo·cat·ed, lo·cat·ing, lo·cates. — v. tr. 1. To determine or specify the position or limits of: locate Albany on the map; managed to locate the site of the old artists' colony. 2. To find by searching, examining, or experimenting: locate the source of error. 3. To place at a certain location; station or situate: locate an agent in Rochester. — v. intr. To become established; settle. [Latin locāre, locāt-, to place, from locus, place.] —lo'cat'a·ble adj. —lo'cat'er n.

lo·ca·tion (lō-kā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of locating. 2. A place where something is or could be located; a site. 3. A site away from a studio at which part or all of a movie is shot: filming a Western on location in the Mexican desert. 4. A tract of land that has been surveyed and marked off. [Latin locātiō, locātiōn-, a placing, from locātus, past participle of locāre, to place. See LOCATE.] —lo·ca'tion·al adj.

loc·a·tive (lŏk'ə-tiv) adj. Of, relating to, or being a grammatical case in certain inflected languages that indicates place in or on which or time at which, as in Latin domī, “at home.” — n. 1. The locative case. 2. A word in the locative case. [New Latin locātīvus, from Latin locātus, past participle of locāre, to place. See LOCATE.]

lo·ca·tor (lō'kātər) n. One that locates, as a person who fixes the boundaries of mining claims.

loc. cit. abbr. Latin. Loco citato (in the place cited).

loch (lŏKH, lŏk) n. Scots. 1. A lake. 2. An arm of the sea similar to a fjord. [Middle English louch, from Scottish Gaelic loch, from Old Irish.]

Loch (lŏk, lŏKH) See Lake.

lo·chi·a (lō'kē-ə, lŏk'ē-ə) pl.n. Medicine. The normal uterine discharge of blood, tissue, and mucus from the vagina after childbirth. [Greek lokhia, from neuter pl. of lokhios, of childbirth, from lokhos, childbirth. See legh- in Appendix.] —lo'chi·al adj.

lo·ci (lō'sī', -kē, -kī') n. Plural of locus.

lock¹ (lŏk) n. 1. A device operated by a key, combination, or keycard and used, as on a door, for holding, closing, or securing. 2. A section of a waterway, such as a canal, closed off with gates, in which vessels in transit are raised or lowered by raising or lowering the water level of that section. 3. A mechanism in a firearm for exploding the charge. 4. An interlocking or entanglement of elements or parts. 5. a. Sports. A hold in wrestling or self-defense that is secured on a part of an opponent's body. b. A secure hold or grip: The distributor has a lock on most of the market. — v. locked, lock·ing, locks. — v. tr. 1. a. To fasten the lock of: close and lock a drawer. b. To shut or make secure with or as if with locks:

locked the house. 2. To confine or exclude by or as if by means of a lock: locked the dog in for the night; locked the criminal up in a cell. 3. To fix in place so that movement or escape is impossible; hold fast: The ship was locked in the ice through the winter. She felt that she had become locked into a binding agreement.

4. a. To sight and follow (a moving target) automatically: locked the enemy fighter in the gun sights. b. To aim (a weapon or other device) at a moving target so as to follow it automatically: "The pilot had locked his targeting radar on the slow-moving frigate" (Ed Magnuson). 5. To engage and interlock securely so as to be immobile. 6. To clasp or link firmly; intertwine: locked arms and walked away. 7. To bind in close struggle or battle: The two dogs were locked in combat.

8. a. To equip (a waterway) with locks. b. To pass (a vessel) through a lock.

9. Printing. a. To secure (letterpress type) in a chase or press bed by tightening the quoins. b. To fasten (a curved plate) to the cylinder of a rotary press. 10. To invest (funds) in such a way that they cannot easily be converted into cash.

11. Computer Science. To end the processing of (a magnetic tape or disk) in such a way as to deny access to its contents. — v. intr. 1. To become fastened by or as if by means of a lock: The door locks automatically when shut. 2. To become entangled; interlock. 3. To become rigid or immobile: The mechanism tends to lock in cold weather. 4. To pass through a lock or locks in a waterway. — phrasal verb.

lock out. To withhold work from (employees) during a labor dispute.

— idioms. lock horns. To become embroiled in conflict. lock, stock, and barrel. To the greatest or most complete extent; wholly: an estate that was auctioned off lock, stock, and barrel. [Middle English, from Old English loc, bolt, bar.]

— lock'a-ble adj.

lock² (lɒk) n. 1. a. A length or curl of hair; a tress. b. Often locks. The hair of the head. 2. A small wisp or tuft, as of wool or cotton. [Middle English, from Old English loc.]

lock-age (lɒk'ɪj) n. 1. The passage of a ship through a lock. 2. A toll paid for the use of a lock. 3. A system of locks.

Locke (lɒk), Alain LeRoy. 1886-1954. American educator and writer who was a leader of the Harlem Renaissance. His works include Four Negro Poets (1927) and Negro Art: Past and Present (1936).

Locke (lɒk), David Ross. Pseudonym Petroleum V. Nasby. 1833-1888. American satirist who edited the Toledo Blade (1865-1871).

Locke (lɒk), John. 1632-1704. English philosopher. In An Essay Concerning Human Understanding (1690) he set out the principles of empiricism, and his Two Treatises on Government (1690) influenced the Declaration of Independence.

lock-er (lɒk'ər) n. 1. One that locks: a locker of windows and doors. 2. A small, usually metal compartment that can be locked, especially one at a gymnasium or public place for the safekeeping of clothing and valuables. 3. A flat trunk for storage. 4. A heavily insulated refrigerated cabinet, compartment, or room for storing frozen foods.

locker room (lɒk'ər rōm) n. A room furnished with lockers, as in a gymnasium, school, or workplace, used as a place in which to change clothes and store equipment.

lock-er-room (lɒk'ər-rōm', -rōm') adj. Relating to, found in, or appropriate for a locker room: locker-room interviews; locker-room stories that could not be told in mixed company.

lock-et (lɒk'ɪt) n. A small ornamental case for a picture or keepsake, usually worn as a pendant. [Middle English loket, crossbar, from Old French loquet, latch, diminutive of loc, lock, of Germanic origin.]

Lock-hart (lɒk'hɑrt, -hɑrt'), John Gibson. 1794-1854. Scottish writer who edited the Quarterly Review (1825-1853). His best-known work is the seven-volume Memoirs of the Life of Sir Walter Scott (1837-1838).

lock-jaw (lɒk'jəʔ) n. 1. See tetanus (n., sense 1). 2. An early sign of tetanus, in which the jaw is locked closed because of a tonic spasm of the muscles of mastication. Also called trismus lock-keep-er (lɒk'kē'pər) n. One who is in charge of a lock on a waterway. Also called lockmaster lock-mas-ter (lɒk'mäs'tər) n. See lockkeeper.

lock-nut also lock nut (lɒk'nüt') n. 1. A usually thin nut screwed down on another nut to prevent it from loosening. 2. A self-locking nut.

lock-on (lɒk'ɔn', -ɔn') n. The start of the automatic tracking of a target, as by a missile.

lock-out (lɒk'out') n. The withholding of work from employees and closing down of a workplace by an employer during a labor dispute. Also called shutout

Lock-port (lɒk'pɔrt', -pɔrt') A city of western New York north-northeast of Buffalo. An industrial center, the city was built around a series of locks on the Erie Canal. Population, 24,426.

lock-set (lɒk'sět') n. A set of hardware for shutting or locking a door.

lock-smith (lɒk'smɪθ') n. One that makes or repairs locks.

lock step or lock-step (lɒk'stēp') n. 1. A way of marching in which the marchers follow each other as closely as possible. 2. A standardized procedure that is closely, often mindlessly followed.

lock stitch (lɒk stɪç) n. A stitch made on a sewing machine by the interlocking of the upper thread and the bobbin thread.

lock-up (lɒk'ʊp') n. 1. Informal. A jail, especially one in which offenders are held while awaiting a court hearing. 2. a. The act or an instance of locking. b. The state of being locked.

Lock·wood (lɒk'wɔd'), Belva Ann Bennett. 1830-1917. American lawyer and suffragist. She was the first woman admitted to practice before the U.S. Supreme Court (1879).

Lock·yer (lɒk'yər), Sir Joseph Norman. 1836-1920. British astronomer who founded and was the first editor (1869-1919) of Nature magazine.

lo·co¹ (lō'kō) adj. Slang. Mad; insane. — n. pl. lo·cos. 1. See locoweed. 2. See loco disease. — v. tr. lo·coed, lo·co·ing, lo·cos. 1. To poison with locoweed. 2. Slang. To make insane; craze. [Spanish, crazy, possibly from Arabic lawqā, foolish, from 'alwaq, stupid.]

lo·co² (lō'kō) adv. & adj. Music. At the pitch written. Used chiefly as a direction. [From Italian loco, from Latin locō, ablative of locus, place.]

loco disease (lō'kō dī-zēz') n. A disease of livestock caused by locoweed poisoning and characterized by weakness, lack of coordination, trembling, and partial paralysis. Also called *loco*¹, locoism.

lo·co·ism (lō'kō-iz'əm) n. See loco disease.

lo·co·mo·tion (lō'kə-mō'shən) n. 1. The act of moving from place to place. 2. The ability to move from place to place. [Latin locō, from a place, ablative of locus, place + MOTION.]

lo·co·mo·tive (lō'kə-mō'tiv) n. 1. A self-propelled vehicle, usually electric or diesel-powered, for pulling or pushing freight or passenger cars on railroad tracks. 2. A driving or pulling force; an impetus: "The US could no longer serve as the locomotive for the world economy" (George Soros). — adj. 1. a. Of, relating to, or involved in locomotion. b. Serving to put into motion or propel forward: "It may be that the founding fathers overestimated the locomotive force of the collective and mutual self-interest" (Ian Davidson). 2. Able to move independently from place to place. 3. Of or relating to a self-propelled locomotive. 4. Of or relating to travel. [Latin locō, from a place, ablative of locus, place + Medieval Latin mōtīvus, causing motion; see MOTIVE.]

lo·co·mo·tor (lō'kə-mō'tər) adj. Of or relating to locomotion; locomotive. [Latin locō, from a place, ablative of locus, place + MOTOR.]

locomotor ataxia (lō'kə-mō'tər ə-tāk'sē-ə) n. See tabes dorsalis.

lo·co·weed (lō'kō-wēd') n. Any of several plants of the genera Oxytropis and Astragalus in the pea family, which are widespread in the western and central United States and cause severe poisoning when eaten by livestock. Also called crazyweed, *loco*¹.

loc·u·lar (lɒk'yə-lər) also loc·u·late (-lāt', -līt) or loc·u·lat·ed (-lā'tīd) adj. Having, formed of, or divided into small cavities or compartments. [LOCUL(US) + -AR.] — loc'·u·la'tion n.

loc·ule (lɒk'yōl) or loc·u·lus (-yə-ləs) n. pl. loc·ules or loc·u·li (-lī'). A small cavity or compartment within an organ or a part of an animal or a plant, as any of the cavities within a plant ovary. [Latin loculus, little place, diminutive of locus, place.]

loc·u·li·cid·al (lɒk'yə-lə-sīd'l) adj. Botany. Longitudinally dehiscent along the capsule wall between the partitions of the locule, as in the fruits of irises and lilies. [LOCUL(US) + Latin -cida, one who cuts; see -CID(E) + -AL¹.]

loc·u·lus (lɒk'yə-ləs) n. Variant of locule. [Latin, little place, diminutive of locus, place.]

lo·cum te·nens (lō'kəm' tē'nənz', tēn'ənz) n. pl. locum te·nen·tes (tə-nən'tēz). A person, especially a physician or cleric, who substitutes temporarily for another. [Medieval Latin locum tenēns: Latin locum, accusative of locus, place + Latin tenēns, present participle of tenēre, to hold.]

lo·cus (lō'kəs) n. pl. lo·ci (-sī', -kē, -kī'). 1. A locality; a place. 2. A center or focus of great activity or intense concentration: “the cunning exploitation of loci of power; the insulation from normal American society” (Clifton Fadiman).

3. Mathematics. The set or configuration of all points whose coordinates satisfy a single equation or one or more algebraic conditions. 4. The position that a given gene occupies on a chromosome. [Latin.]

locus clas·si·cus (lō'kəs klās'ī-kəs) n. pl. loci clas·si·ci (klās'ī-sī', -kī'). A passage from a classic or standard work that is cited as an illustration or instance. [New Latin: Latin locus, place + Latin classicus, belonging to the highest class.]

lo·cust (lō'kəst) n. 1. Any of numerous grasshoppers of the family Acrididae, often migrating in immense swarms that devour vegetation and crops. 2. The seventeen-year locust. 3. a. Any of several North American deciduous trees of the genus Robinia, especially R. pseudoacacia, having compound leaves, drooping clusters of fragrant white flowers, and durable hard wood. b. Any of several similar or related trees, such as the honey locust or the carob. c. The wood of one of these trees. [Middle English, from Old French locuste, from Latin locusta. Sense 3a, probably from the resemblance of its fruit to a locust.]

lo·cu·tion (lō-kyōō'shən) n. 1. A particular word, phrase, or expression, especially one that is used by a particular person or group. 2. Style of speaking; phraseology. [Middle English locucion, from Old French locution, from Latin locūtiō, locūtiōn-, from locūtus, past participle of loquī, to speak. See talk^w- in Appendix.]

lode (lōd) n. 1. a. The metalliferous ore that fills a fissure in a rock formation. b. A vein of mineral ore deposited between clearly demarcated layers of rock. Also called lead^l 2. A rich source or supply. [Middle English lode, way, load, from Old English lād, way. See leit- in Appendix.]

lode·star also load·star (lōd'stār') n. 1. A star, especially Polaris, that is used as a point of reference. 2. A guiding principle, interest, or ambition. [Middle English lodesterre: lode, way; see LODE + sterre, star; see STAR.]

lode·stone also load·stone (lōd/'stōn') n. 1. A piece of magnetite that has magnetic properties and attracts iron or steel. 2. One that attracts strongly. [Middle English lode, way; see LODE + STONE (from its use by sailors to show the way).]

lodge (lōj) n. 1. a. A cottage or cabin, often rustic, used as a temporary abode or shelter: a ski lodge. b. A small house on the grounds of an estate or a park, used by a caretaker or gatekeeper. c. An inn. 2. a. Any of various Native American dwellings, such as a hogan, wigwam, or longhouse. b. The group living in such a dwelling. 3. Abbr. L. a. A local chapter of certain fraternal organizations. b. The meeting hall of such a chapter. c. The members of such a chapter. 4. The den of certain animals, such as the dome-shaped structure built by beavers. — v. lodged, lodg·ing, lodg·es. — v. tr. 1. a. To provide with temporary quarters, especially for sleeping: lodged travelers in the shed. b. To rent a room to. c. To place or establish in quarters: lodged the children with relatives after the fire. 2. To serve as a depository for; contain: This cabinet lodges our oldest wines. 3. To place, leave, or deposit, as for safety: documents lodged with a trusted associate. 4. To fix, force, or implant: lodge a bullet in a wall. 5. To register (a charge or complaint, for example) before an authority, such as a court; file. 6. To vest (authority, for example). 7. To beat (crops) down flat: rye lodged by the cyclone. — v. intr. 1. a. To live in a place temporarily. b. To rent accommodations, especially for sleeping. 2. To be or become embedded: The ball lodged in the fence. [Middle English, from Old French loge, of Germanic origin.]

Lodge (lōj), Henry Cabot. 1850-1924. American politician. As Senate majority leader (1918-1924) and head of the foreign relations committee (1918-1924) he successfully opposed United States membership in the League of Nations.

Lodge (lōj), Henry Cabot, Jr. 1902-1985. American politician and diplomat. He was Richard Nixon's running mate in the 1960 presidential election and later served as ambassador to South Vietnam (1963-1967).

Lodge (lōj), Sir Oliver Joseph. 1851-1940. British physicist known for his pioneering work in radio receivers.

Lodge (lōj), Thomas. 1558?-1625. English writer. His pastoral romance Rosalynde (c. 1584) provided the plot for Shakespeare's play As You Like It.

lodge·ment (lōj/'mənt) n. Variant of lodgment.

Lodge·pole Creek (lōj/'pōl' krēk) A river, about 341 km (212 mi) long, of southeast Wyoming and southwest Nebraska flowing generally east to the South Platte River at the Colorado border.

lodge·pole pine (lōj/'pōl' pīn) n. A pine (Pinus contorta var. latifolia) of western North America, having light wood used in construction.

lodg·er (lōj'ər) n. One that lodges, especially one who rents and lives in a furnished room.

- lodg-ing (lɒdʒɪŋ) n. 1. A place to live: found lodging near her new job. 2. Often lodgings. Sleeping accommodations: We found the lodgings on the tour rather primitive. 3. lodgings. Furnished rooms in another's house rented for accommodation.
- lodg-ment also lodge-ment (lɒdʒmənt) n. 1. a. The act of lodging. b. The state of being lodged. 2. A place for lodging. 3. An accumulation or a deposit. 4. A foothold or beachhead gained by troops in enemy or neutral territory.
- Lo-di (lə'diː) 1. A city of central California north of Stockton. It is a processing center in a rich farming area. Population, 51,874. 2. A borough of northeast New Jersey northeast of Passaic. The city has varied industries. Population, 23,956.
- lod-i-cule (ləd'i-kyoʊl) n. One of two or three small scales at the base of the ovary in a grass flower, believed to be a rudimentary perianth. [Latin lōdicula, small blanket, diminutive of lōdix, lōdic-, blanket.]
- Lódź (lədz, wōoch) A city of central Poland west-southwest of Warsaw. Chartered in 1423, it passed to Prussia in 1793 and to Russia in 1815. It became part of Poland after World War I. Population, 849,400.
- Loeb (ləb), Jacques. 1859-1924. German-born American physiologist noted for his work on parthenogenesis.
- Loeb (ləb), Sophie Irene Simon. 1876-1929. Russian-born American journalist and social-welfare advocate noted for her work on behalf of widowed mothers.
- lo-ess (lə'æs, lēs, lūs) n. A buff to gray windblown deposit of fine-grained, calcareous silt or clay. [German löss, from German dialectal Lösch, from lösch, loose. See leu- in Appendix.] —lo-es'/si-al (lə-ēs'ē-əl, lēs'ē-əl, lūs'-) adj.
- Loes-ser (ləs'ər), Frank Henry. 1910-1969. American composer of film scores and Broadway musicals, including Where's Charley? (1948) and Guys and Dolls (1950).
- Loewe (lə), Frederick. 1901-1987. Austrian-born American composer who collaborated with Alan Jay Lerner on a number of musicals, including My Fair Lady (1956).
- Loe-wi (lə'ē, læ'vē), Otto. 1873-1961. German-born American pharmacologist. He shared a 1936 Nobel Prize for work on the chemical transmission of nerve impulses.
- Loe-wy (lə'ē), Raymond Fernand. 1893-1986. French-born American industrial designer. His practical designs include a 1934 Sears refrigerator and the interiors of NASA spacecraft.
- Löff-ler (ləf'lər, læf'-), Friedrich August Johannes. 1852-1915. German bacteriologist who discovered the bacteria that causes diphtheria (1884).
- loft (ləft, löft) n. 1. a. A large, usually unpartitioned floor over a factory, warehouse, or other commercial or industrial space. b. Such a floor converted into an apartment or artist's studio. 2. An open space under a roof; an attic or a garret. 3. A gallery or balcony, as in a church. 4. A hayloft. 5. Sports. a. The backward slant of the face of a golf club head, designed to drive the ball in a high arc. b. A golf stroke that drives the ball in a high arc. c. The upward course of a ball driven in a high arc. 6. a. The thickness of a fabric or yarn. b. The thickness of an item, such as a down comforter, that is filled with compressible insulating material. — v. loft-ed, loft-ing, lofts. — v. tr. 1. To put, store, or keep in a loft. 2. To propel in a high arc: lofted the ball into the outfield. 3. Nautical. To lay out a full-size drawing of (the parts of a ship's hull, for example). — v. intr. 1. To propel something, especially a ball, in a high arc. 2. To rise high into the air. [Middle English, sky, upstairs room, from Old English, air, from Old Norse loft, upstairs room, sky, air.]

loft-y (lôf'tē, lôf'-) adj. loft-i-er, loft-i-est. 1. Of imposing height. 2. Elevated in character; exalted. See Synonyms at high. 3. Affecting grandness; pompous. 4. Arrogant; haughty. [Middle English, noble, from loft, upstairs room, sky. See LOFT.] — loft'i-ly adv. — loft'i-ness n.

log¹ (lôg, lôg) n. 1. a. A usually large section of a trunk or limb of a fallen or felled tree. b. A long, thick section of trimmed, unhewn timber. 2. Nautical. a. A device trailed from a ship to determine its speed through the water. b. A record of a ship's speed, its progress, and any shipboard events of navigational importance. c. The book in which this record is kept. 3. A record of a vehicle's performance, as the flight record of an aircraft. 4. A record, as of the performance of a machine or the progress of an undertaking: a computer log; a trip log. — v. logged, log-ging, logs. — v. tr. 1. a. To cut down, trim, and haul the timber of (a piece of land). b. To cut (timber) into unhewn sections. 2. To enter in a record, as of a ship or an aircraft. 3. To travel (a specified distance, time, or speed): logged 30,000 air miles in April. 4. To spend or accumulate (time): had logged 25 years with the company. — v. intr. To cut down, trim, and haul timber. — phrasal verbs. log in (or log on). Computer Science. To enter into a computer the information required to begin a session. log out (or log off). Computer Science. To enter into a computer the command to end a session. [Middle English logge.]

log² (lôg, lôg) n. Mathematics. A logarithm.

log. abbr. Logic.

log- pref. Variant of logo-.

-log suff. Variant of -logue.

Lo-gan (lô'gən) A city of northern Utah north of Ogden. Settled in the 1850's, it is the seat of Utah State University (chartered 1888). Population, 32,762.

Lo-gan (lô'gən), James or John. 1725?-1780. Iroquois leader. After his family was massacred by settlers (1774), he became an ally of the British during the American Revolution.

Logan, Mount. A peak, 5,954.8 m (19,524 ft) high, of the St. Elias Mountains in southwest Yukon Territory, Canada, near the Alaska border. It is the highest elevation in Canada.

lo-gan-ber-ry (lō'gən-bēr'ē) n. 1. A trailing, prickly plant (Rubus ursinus var. loganobaccus) native to Oregon and south to Baja California, cultivated for its acid, edible fruit. 2. The red fruit of this plant. [After James Harvey Logan (1841-1928), American jurist and horticulturist.]

Lo-gans-port (lō'gənz-pōrt', -pōrt') A city of north-central Indiana north-northwest of Kokomo. It is an agricultural trade center with diversified industries. Population, 17,731.

log-a-rithm (lō'gə-rīth'əm, lög'ə-) n. Mathematics. The power to which a base, usually 10, must be raised to produce a given number. If $n^x = a$, the logarithm of a , with n as the base, is x ; symbolically, $\log_n a = x$. For example, $10^3 = 1,000$; therefore, $\log_{10} 1,000 = 3$. The kinds most often used are the common logarithm and the natural logarithm. [New Latin logarithmus: Greek logos, reason, proportion; see leg- in Appendix + Greek arithmos, number; see ar- in Appendix.]

—log'a-rith'mic (-rīth'mīk), log'a-rith'mi-cal (-mī-kəl) adj.

—log'a-rith'mi-cal-ly adv.

log-book (lōg'bōōk', lög'ə-) n. 1. The official record book of a ship or an aircraft. 2. A record book with periodic entries.

loge (lōzh) n. 1. A small compartment, especially a box in a theater. 2. The front rows of the mezzanine in a theater. [French, from Old French, covered walk, lodge. See LODGE.]

log-ger (lō'gər, lög'ər) n. 1. a. One who logs trees; a lumberjack. b. One engaged in the logging business. 2. A machine, such as a crane or tractor, that is used for hauling or loading logs.

log-ger-head (lō'gər-hēd', lög'ər-) n. 1. A loggerhead turtle. 2. An iron tool consisting of a long handle with a bulbous end, used when heated to melt tar or warm liquids. 3. Nautical. A post on a whaleboat used to secure the harpoon rope. 4. Informal. a. A blockhead; a dolt. b. A disproportionately large head. —idiom. at loggerheads. Engaged in a dispute: The question of car privileges put Sam and his parents at loggerheads. [Probably dialectal logger, wooden block (probably from LOG¹) + HEAD.]

loggerhead shrike (lō'gər-hēd' shrīk) n. A common North American bird (Lanius ludovicianus) having gray, black, and white plumage, a black facial mask, and a hooked beak. [From its large head.]

loggerhead turtle (lō'gər-hēd' tūr'tl) n. A very large marine turtle (Caretta caretta) inhabiting warm ocean waters and having a large, beaked head.

log-gi-a (lō'jē-ə, löj'ē-ə) n. 1. An open-sided, roofed gallery or arcade along the front or side of a building, often at an upper level. 2. An open balcony in a theater. [Italian, from Old Italian, from Old French loge. See LOGE.]

log-ging (lô'gǐng, lö'g'ing) n. The work or business of felling and trimming trees and transporting the logs to a mill.

lo-gi-a (lô'gē-ə) n. Bible. Plural of logion.

log-ic (löj'ik) n. Abbr. log. 1. The study of the principles of reasoning, especially of the structure of propositions as distinguished from their content and of method and validity in deductive reasoning. 2. a. A system of reasoning: Aristotle's logic. b. A mode of reasoning: By that logic, we should sell the company tomorrow. c. The formal, guiding principles of a discipline, school, or science. 3. Valid reasoning: Your paper lacks the logic to prove your thesis. 4. The relationship between elements and between an element and the whole in a set of objects, individuals, principles, or events: There's a certain logic to the motion of rush-hour traffic. 5. Computer Science. a. The nonarithmetic operations performed by a computer, such as sorting, comparing, and matching, that involve yes-no decisions. b. Computer circuitry. c. Graphic representation of computer circuitry. [Middle English, from Old French logique, from Latin logica, from Greek logikē (tekhne), (art) of reasoning, logic, feminine of logikos, of reasoning, from logos, reason. See leg- in Appendix.]

log-i-cal (löj'i-kəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, in accordance with, or of the nature of logic. 2. Based on earlier or otherwise known statements, events, or conditions; reasonable: Rain was a logical expectation, given the time of year. 3. Reasoning or capable of reasoning in a clear and consistent manner. —log'i-cal'i-ty (-käl'i-tē), log'i-cal-ness n. —log'i-cal-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: logical, analytic, ratiocinative, rational. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “capable of or reflecting the capability for correct and valid reasoning”: a logical mind; an analytic thinker; the ratiocinative process; a rational being.

ANTONYM: illogical

logical atomism (löj'i-kəl ät'ə-miz'əm) n. A philosophy asserting that knowledge consists in awareness of individual facts and in an understanding of the logical relations among them.

logical positivism (löj'i-kəl pöz'i-tiv'əm) n. A philosophy asserting the primacy of observation in assessing the truth of statements of fact and holding that metaphysical and subjective arguments not based on observable data are meaningless. Also called logical empiricism logic circuit (löj'ik sûr'kit) n. Computer Science. A computer switching circuit that performs problem-solving functions.

lo-gi-cian (lô-jish'ən) n. 1. A practitioner of a system of logic. 2. A student or scholar of logic.

logic operator (lədʒ'ɪk ɒp'ə-rā'tər) n. Computer Science. An instruction in a program in which the quantity being operated on and the result of the operation each can have one of two values. Logic operators include AND, OR, NAND, EXCLUSIVE OR, and NOR.

lo-gi-on (lə'gē-ɔn') n. pl. lo-gi-a (-gē-ə). Bible. One of the sayings of Jesus not recorded in the Gospels but supposed to have belonged to the source material from which they were compiled. [Greek, oracle, from legein, to speak. See leg- in Appendix.]

lo-gis-tic (lə-jɪs'tɪk) also lo-gis-ti-cal (-tɪ-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to symbolic logic. 2. Of or relating to logistics. [Medieval Latin logisticus, of calculation, from Greek logistikos, skilled in calculating, from logistēs, calculator, from logizesthai, to calculate, from logos, reckoning, reason. See leg- in Appendix.]

—lo-gis'ti-cal-ly adv. —lo'gis-ti'cian (-jɪ-stɪʃ'ən) n.

lo-gis-tics (lə-jɪs'tɪks, lə-) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. The branch of military operations that deals with the procurement, distribution, maintenance, and replacement of materiel and personnel. 2. The management of the details of an operation. [French logistiques, from logistique, logic (perhaps influenced by loger, to quarter), from Medieval Latin logisticus, of calculation. See LOGISTIC.]

log-jam (lədʒ'jəm', lɔdʒ'-) n. 1. An immovable mass of floating logs crowded together. 2. A deadlock, as in negotiations; an impasse.

log line (ləg lɪn) n. Nautical. The line by which the log is trailed from a ship to determine its speed.

log-nor-mal (ləg-nɔr'məl, lɔg-) adj. Mathematics. Of, relating to, or being a logarithmic function with a normal distribution. —log'nor-mal/i-ty (-mə'l'i-tē) n. —log-nor'mal-ly adv.

lo-go (lə'gō') n. pl. lo-gos. A name, symbol, or trademark designed for easy and definite recognition, especially one borne on a single printing plate or piece of type. [Short for LOGOGRAM, and LOGOTYPE.]

LO-GO (lə'gō) n. Computer Science. A programming language developed for teaching young children. Elementary exercises involve drawing geometric shapes. [Alteration of Greek logos, word. See LOGOS.]

logo- or log- pref. Word; speech: logogram. [Greek, from logos, word, speech. See leg- in Appendix.]

log-o-gram (lə'gə-grəm', lɔg'ə-) n. A written symbol representing an entire spoken word without expressing its pronunciation; for example, for 4 read “four” in English, “quattro” in Italian. Also called ideogram, logograph.

—log'o-gram-mat'ic (-grə-măt'ɪk) adj. —log'o-gram-mat'i-cal-ly adv.

log-o-graph (lə'gə-grăf', lɔg'ə-) n. See logogram. —log'o-graph'ic adj.

—log'o-graph'i-cal-ly adv.

lo-gog-ra-phy (lə-gɔg'rə-fē) n. The use of logotypes in design and printing.

log-o-griph (lô'gə-grif', lõg'ə-) n. Games. A word puzzle, such as an anagram or one in which clues are given in a set of verses. [LOGO- + Greek griphos, fishing basket, riddle.]

lo-gom-a-chy (lə-gõm'ə-kē) n. pl. lo-gom-a-chies. 1. A dispute about words. 2. A dispute carried on in words only; a battle of words. [Greek logomakhia, from logomakhein, to fight about words : logo-, logo- + makhē, battle.]

log-or-rhe-a (lô'gə-rē'ə, lõg'ə-) n. Excessive use of words. —log'or-rhe'ic adj.

Lo-gos (lô'gõs', lõg'õs') n. 1. Philosophy. a. In pre-Socratic philosophy, the principle governing the cosmos, the source of this principle, or human reasoning about the cosmos. b. Among the Sophists, the topics of rational argument or the arguments themselves. c. In Stoicism, the active, material, rational principle of the cosmos; nous. Identified with God, it is the source of all activity and generation and is the power of reason residing in the human soul. 2. Judaism. a. In biblical Judaism, the word of God, which itself has creative power and is God's medium of communication with the human race. b. In Hellenistic Judaism, a hypostasis associated with divine wisdom. 3. Theology. In Saint John's Gospel, especially in the prologue (1:1-14), the creative word of God, which is itself God and incarnate in Jesus. In this sense, also called Word [Greek. See leg- in Appendix.]

lo-go-type (lô'gə-tīp', lõg'ə-) n. 1. Printing. A single piece of type bearing two or more usually separate elements. 2. A logo.

log-roll (lôg'rõl', lõg'-) v. log-rolled, log-roll-ing, log-rolls. — v. tr. To work toward the passage of (legislation) by logrolling. — v. intr. To engage in political logrolling.

log-roll-ing (lôg'rõ'lıng, lõg'-) n. 1. The exchanging of political favors, especially the trading of influence or votes among legislators to achieve passage of projects that are of interest to one another. 2. The exchanging of favors or praise, as among artists, critics, or academics. 3. See birling. [From the early American practice of neighbors gathering to help clear land by rolling off and burning felled timber.] —log'roll'er n.

Lo-gro-ño (lə-grõn'yə, lô-grô'nyô) A city of northern Spain on the Ebro River north-northeast of Madrid. Wood products, textiles, and wine are important to its economy. Population, 113,576.

-logue or -log suff. Speech; discourse: travelogue. [French, from Greek -logos, from legein, to speak. See leg- in Appendix.]

log-wood (lôg'wõd', lõg'-) n. 1. A spiny tropical American tree (Haematoxylon campechianum) in the pea family, having dark heartwood from which a dye-stuff is obtained. 2. The heartwood of this tree. 3. The purplish-red dye obtained from the heartwood of this tree.

lo-gy (lō'gē) adj. lo-gi-er, lo-gi-est. Characterized by lethargy; sluggish. [Perhaps from Dutch log, heavy, or variant of English loggy, heavy, sluggish from LOG¹.]

-logy suff. 1. Discourse; expression: phraseology. 2. Science; theory; study: dermatology. [Middle English -logie, from Old French, from Latin -logia, from Greek (from logos, word, speech); see leg- in Appendix, and from -logos, one who deals with (from legein, to speak); see leg- in Appendix.]

loin (loin) n. 1. The part of the body of a human being or quadruped on either side of the backbone and between the ribs and hips. 2. One of several cuts of meat, such as tenderloin, taken from this part of an animal's body, typically including the vertebrae of the segment from which it is taken. 3. loins. a. The region of the hips, groin, and lower abdomen. b. The reproductive organs. [Middle English loine, from Old French loigne, from Vulgar Latin lumbea* (carō), loin (meat), feminine of ·lumbeus, of the loin, from Latin lumbus.]

loin-cloth (loin'klōth', -klōth') n. A strip of cloth worn around the loins.

Loir (lwär) A river, about 311 km (193 mi) long, of northwest France flowing generally westward to the Sarthe River.

Loire (lwär) The longest river of France, rising in the Cévennes and flowing about 1,014 km (630 mi) north, northwest, and west to the Bay of Biscay.

loi-ter (loi'tər) v. intr. loi-tered, loi-ter-ing, loi-ters. 1. To stand idly about; linger aimlessly. 2. To proceed slowly or with many stops: loitered all the way home. 3. To delay or dawdle: loiter over a job. [Middle English loitren, probably from Middle Dutch loteren, to totter, be loose.] —loi'ter-er n.

Lo-ki (lō'kē) n. Mythology. A Norse god who created discord, especially among his fellow gods.

Lo-li-ta (lō-lē'tə) n. A seductive adolescent girl. [After Lolita, the heroine of Lolita, a novel by Vladimir Nabokov.]

loll (löl) v. loll-ed, loll-ing, lolls. — v. intr. 1. To move, stand, or recline in an indolent or relaxed manner. 2. To hang or droop laxly: a pennant lolling from the mast. — v. tr. To permit to hang or droop laxly: loll-ed his head on the armrest. — n. Archaic. An act or attitude of lolling. [Middle English lollen, probably from Middle Dutch, to doze.] —loll'er n. —loll'ing-ly adv.

Lol-land (löl'ənd, löl'län) An island of southeast Denmark in the Baltic Sea south of Sjaelland.

lol-la-pa-loo-za also lal-a-pa-loo-za or lal-la-pa-loo-za (löl'ə-pə-lōō'zə) n. Slang. Something outstanding of its kind. [Origin unknown.]

Lol-lard (löl'ərd) n. A member of a sect of religious reformers in England who were followers of John Wycliffe in the 14th and 15th centuries. [Middle English, from Middle Dutch Lollaerd, mumblor, mutterer, heretic, from lollen, doze, to mumble.]

lol·li·pop also lol·ly·pop (ləl'ē-pöp') n. A confection consisting of a piece of hard candy attached to the end of a small stick. [Perhaps dialectal lolly, tongue (from LOLL, to dangle the tongue) + POP¹.]

lol·lop (ləl'əp) v. intr. lol·loped, lol·lop·ing, lol·lops. 1. To move with a bobbing motion. 2. Chiefly British. To lounge about; loll. [Alteration of LOLL.] —lol'lop·y adj.

lol·ly (ləl'ē) n. pl. lol·lies. Chiefly British. 1. a. A piece of candy, especially hard candy. b. A lollipop. 2. Money. [Short for LOLLIPOP.]

lol·ly·gag (ləl'ē-gäg') also lal·ly·gag (ləl'ē-) v. intr. lol·ly·gagged, lol·ly·gag·ging, lol·ly·gags. To waste time by puttering aimlessly; dawdle. [Origin unknown.]

lol·ly·pop (ləl'ē-pöp') n. Variant of lollipop.

Lo·ma·mi (lō-mä'mē) A river of Zaire flowing about 1,448 km (900 mi) northward to the Congo River.

Lo·mas de Za·mo·ra (ləmäs də zə-mô'rə, -môr'ə, thě sà-mô'rä) A city of eastern Argentina, an industrial suburb of Buenos Aires. Population, 508,620.

Lo·max (lə'mäks'), John Avery. 1867-1948. American folklorist and musicologist. With his son Alan Lomax (born 1915) he toured the country recording blues and folk musicians for the Library of Congress and various record companies.

Lom·bard¹ (ləm'bärd, -bärd', lüm'-) n. 1. A member of a Germanic people that invaded northern Italy in the sixth century A.D. and established a kingdom in the Po River valley. Also called Langobard. 2. A native or inhabitant of Lombardy. 3. A banker or moneylender. [Middle English Lumbarde, from Old French lombard, from Old Italian lombardo, from Medieval Latin lombardus, from Latin Langobardus, Longobardus; see del-¹ in Appendix. Sense 3, from the prominence of Lombards in 13th-century banking.] —Lom·bar·dic (-bär'dik) adj.

Lom·bard² (ləm'bärd') A village of northeast Illinois, a residential suburb of Chicago. Population, 39,408.

Lom·bard (ləm'bärd', lüm'-), Carole. 1908-1942. American actress known for her comic performances in a number of films, including Man of the World (1931) and My Man Godfrey (1936).

Lom·bard (ləm'bärd', lüm'-), Peter. 1100?-1160?. Italian theologian whose Sententiarum Libri IV (1148-1151) had an important influence on official Catholic doctrine concerning the sacraments.

Lom·bar·di (ləm-bär'dē, lüm-), Vincent Thomas. Known as "Vince." 1913-1970. American football coach who led the Green Bay Packers to six conference titles and five league championships between 1961 and 1968.

Lom·bar·do (ləm-bär'dō, lüm-), Guy Albert. 1902-1977. Canadian-born American bandleader remembered for his New Year's Eve performances in New York City.

Lom·bar·dy (lŏm' bər-dē, lŭm'-) A region of northern Italy bordering on Switzerland. First inhabited by a Gallic people, it became the center of the kingdom of the Lombards in the sixth century A.D. and part of Charlemagne's empire in 774. The Lombard League of cities defeated Emperor Frederick I in 1176.

Lombardy poplar (lŏm' bər-dē pŏp'lər) n. A deciduous tree (Populus nigra var. italica) having upward-pointing branches that form a slender, columnar outline. [After Lombardy.]

Lom·bok (lŏm-bŏk') An island of south-central Indonesia in the Lesser Sundas Islands east of Bali, from which it is separated by the Lombok Strait. The island was first visited by the Dutch in 1674.

Lom·bro·so (lŏm-brŏ'sō), Cesare. 1836-1909. Italian criminologist who suggested that some individuals are born with criminal dispositions and can be identified by certain physical characteristics.

Lo·mé (lŏ-mā') The capital and largest city of Togo, in the southern part of the country on the Gulf of Guinea. It is Togo's administrative, communications, and transportation center. Population, 369,926.

lo·ment (lŏ'mĕnt') n. An indehiscent legume, as of the tick trefoil, usually constricted between the seeds and separating at maturity into one-seeded segments. [Latin lōmentum, skin conditioner made of bean meal, from lavere, to wash. See leu(ə)- in Appendix.]

Lo·mi·ta (lŏ-mē'tə) A city of southern California, a residential suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 19,382.

Lo·mond (lŏ'mənd), Loch. A lake in south-central Scotland. Surrounded by mountains, it is the largest lake in Scotland and a popular tourist region for its associations with the 18th-century outlaw Rob Roy.

Lom·poc (lŏm'pŏk') A city of southern California west-northwest of Santa Barbara. Vandenburg Air Force Base is nearby. Population, 37,649.

Lon·don (lŭn'dən) 1. A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, southwest of Toronto. Settled in 1826, it is an industrial city whose streets and bridges are named after those of London, England. Population, 254,280. 2. The capital and largest city of the United Kingdom, on the Thames River in southeast England. Greater London consists of 32 boroughs surrounding the City of London, built on the site of a Roman outpost named Londinium. Its growth as an important trade center dates from 886, under the rule of Alfred the Great. During the Elizabethan period (1558-1603) London achieved new heights of wealth, power, and influence and has continued to dominate its country's political, economic, and cultural life. The old city was devastated by the plague in 1665 and by the Great Fire of 1666; the modern city was damaged severely by bombs during World War II. Population, 6,851,400.

Lon·don (lŭn'dən), John Griffith. Pen name Jack London. 1876-1916. American writer of rugged adventure novels, including The Call of the Wild (1903) and The Sea Wolf (1904).

London broil (lŭn'dən broil) n. Broiled flank steak cut into thin slices. [After London, England.]

Lon·don·der·ry (lŭn'dən-dĕr'ē, lŭn'dən-dĕr'ē) also Der·ry (dĕr'ē) A borough of northwest Northern Ireland northwest of Belfast. Built on the site of an abbey founded by Saint Columba in 546, it is a port and manufacturing center. Population, 68,000.

Lon·dri·na (lôn-drĕ'nə) A city of southern Brazil east of São Paulo. Founded in 1932, it is a trade and processing center. Population, 257,899.

lone (lōn) adj. 1. a. Without accompaniment; solitary: a lone skier on the mountain. b. Without companionship; isolated or lonely. 2. Being the only one; sole: the lone doctor in the county. See Synonyms at single. 3. Situated by itself: a lone tree on the prairie; a lone blue tile in a white floor. [Middle English, short for alone. See ALONE.]

lone hand (lōn hănd) n. 1. Games. a. A hand played without help from a partner's hand. b. A card player without a partner. 2. See lone wolf.

lone·ly (lōn'lē) adj. lone·li·er, lone·li·est. 1. a. Without companions; lone. b. Characterized by aloneness; solitary. 2. Unfrequented by people; desolate: a lonely crossroads. 3. a. Dejected by the awareness of being alone. See Synonyms at alone. b. Producing such dejection: the loneliest night of the week.

—lone/li·ly adv. —lone/li·ness n.

WORD HISTORY: Henry Bradley, one of the four editors of the Oxford English Dictionary, said “It is a truth often overlooked, but not unimportant, that every addition to the resources of a language must in the first instance have been due to an act (though not necessarily to a voluntary or conscious act) of some one person.” In many cases this one person may have been an author, since the first recorded instance of a word is often found in an author's work. Of course, as Bradley warns, this is the first recorded instance; it is possible that a given author picked up the word or sense somewhere else or that these reside undiscovered in an earlier work. In any case it might be a minor relief of our condition the next time we feel lonely to know that the first recorded instance of the word lonely occurs in the works of Shakespeare. The passage appears in Coriolanus (1607-1608) in a speech by Coriolanus to his mother Volumnia: “My mother, you wot [know] well/My hazards still have been your solace, and/Believe't not lightly—though I go alone,/Like to a lonely dragon, that his fen/Makes fear'd and talk'd of more than seen—your son/Will or exceed the common or be caught/With cautelous [crafty] baits and practice.” Lonely here, of course, has the sense “solitary.” The dragon does not feel dejected, or if he does, he does not seem to know how to reach out to others effectively.

lone·ly·hearts or lone·ly·hearts (lōn'lē-hārts') adj. Of or relating to people who are looking for companions or marriage partners: a lonely-hearts column in the newspaper.

lon·er (lō'nər) n. One who avoids the company of other people.

lone·some (lōn'səm) adj. 1. a. Dejected because of a lack of companionship. See Synonyms at alone. b. Producing such dejection: a lonesome hour at the bar. 2. Deserted; unfrequented: a lonesome valley. 3. Solitary; lone: a lonesome pine. — n. Informal. Self: He ate the meal all by his lonesome. —lone'some·ly adv. —lone'some·ness n.

lone wolf (lōn wōōlf) n. One who prefers to go without the company or assistance of others. Also called lone hand long¹ (lông, lǒng) adj. long·er, long·est. Abbr. lg. 1. a. Extending a relatively great distance. b. Having relatively great height; tall. c. Having the greater length of two or the greatest length of several: the long edge of the door. 2. Of relatively great duration: a long time. 3. Of a specified linear extent or duration: a mile long; an hour long. 4. Made up of many members or items: a long shopping list. 5. Extending beyond an average or a standard: a long game. 6. Tediously protracted; lengthy: a long speech. 7. Concerned with distant issues; far-reaching: took a long view of the geopolitical issues. 8. Involving substantial chance; risky: long odds. 9. Having an abundance or excess of: “politicians whose résumés are long on competence” (Margaret Garrard Warner). 10. Having a holding of a commodity or security in expectation of a rise in price: long on soybeans.

11. Linguistics. a. Having a comparatively great duration. Used of a vowel or consonant. b. Of, relating to, or being a vowel sound in English, such as the vowel sound in mate or feet, that is historically descended from a long vowel.

12. a. Stressed or accented. Used of a syllable in accentual prosody. b. Being of relatively great duration. Used of a syllable in quantitative prosody. — adv.

1. During or for an extended period of time: The promotion was long due. 2. At or to a considerable distance; far: She walked long past the end of the trail. 3. For or throughout a specified period: They talked all night long. 4. At a point of time distant from that referred to: That event took place long before we were born.

5. Into or in a long position, as of a commodity market. — n. 1. A long time: This won't take long. 2. Linguistics. A long syllable, vowel, or consonant. 3. One who acquires holdings in a security or commodity in expectation of a rise in price. 4. a. A garment size for a tall person. b. longs. Trousers extending to the feet or ankles. —idioms. any longer. For more time: can't wait any longer.

as long as (or so long as). 2. During the time that: I'll stay as long as I can. 3. Inasmuch as; since: As long as you're up, get me a drink. 4. Under the condition that; provided that: “So long as we don't understand it too well, every other lan- guage is poetry” (Anatole Broyard). before long. Soon. long ago. 6. At a time or during a period well before the present: I read that book long ago. 7. A time well before the present: heroes of long ago. long in the tooth. Growing old. no longer. Not now as formerly: He no longer smokes. not long for. Unlikely to remain for much more time in: not long for this world. the long and the short of it. The substance or gist: You can look on the front page of the paper for the long and the short of it. [Middle English, from Old English lang. See del-¹ in Appendix.]

long² (lông, lǒng) v. intr. longed, long-ing, longs. To have an earnest, heart-felt desire, especially for something beyond reach. See Synonyms at yearn.

[Middle English longen, from Old English langian. See del-¹ in Appendix.]

Long (lông, lǒng), Crawford Williamson. 1815-1878. American surgeon and pioneer anesthetist who was among the first (1842) to use ether as an anesthetic.

Long (lông, lǒng), Huey Pierce. Called “the Kingfish.” 1893-1935. American politician. As governor of Louisiana (1928-1932) and U.S. senator (1930-1935) he established dictatorial control over the state.

Long (lông, lǒng), Stephen Harriman. 1784-1864. American railroad engineer and explorer. He led expeditions to the upper Mississippi River (1817) and the Rocky Mountains (1820).

long. abbr. Longitude.

long-gan (lǒng'gən, lǒng'-) n. 1. An Indian evergreen tree (Euphoria longan) having yellowish-brown drupes with white, juicy, edible flesh. 2. The fruit of this plant. [New Latin longanum, specific epithet, from Chinese (Mandarin) lóng yǎn : lóng, dragon + yǎn, eye.]

long-ga-nim-i-ty (lǒng'gə-nim'ī-tē, lǒng'-) n. Calmness in the face of suffering and adversity; forbearance. [Middle English longanimite, from Old French, from Late Latin longanimitās, from longanimis, patient : Latin longus, long; see LONGITUDE + Latin animus, mind, reason; see anə- in Appendix.]

Long Beach (lông bēch) 1. A city of southern California on an arm of the Pacific Ocean southeast of Los Angeles. It is a thriving port and year-round resort and convention center. The city's main growth occurred after the discovery of oil in 1921. Population, 429,433. 2. A city of southeast New York on an island off southern Long Island. It is a residential and resort community. Population, 33,510.

long-boat (lông'bōt', lǒng'-) n. Nautical. The longest boat carried by a sailing ship, especially by a merchant ship.

long bone (lông bōn) n. Any of several elongated bones of vertebrate limbs that have a roughly cylindrical shaft containing marrow.

long-bow (lông'bō', lǒng'-) n. A long, hand-drawn bow, such as that used in medieval England, which sometimes exceeded 6 feet (1.8 meters) in length.

Long Branch (lông brănch) A city of east-central New Jersey on the Atlantic Ocean north of Asbury Park. It has been a popular ocean resort since the 19th century. Population, 26,609.

long distance (lông đĩs'təns) n. 1. An operator or a system that places long-distance telephone calls. 2. A long-distance telephone call.

long-dis-tance (lông'dĩs'təns, lǒng'-) adj. 1. Covering a long distance: a long-distance runner; operating under long-distance supervision. 2. Of, relating to, or being telephone communication to a distant station: a long-distance call.
—long'-dis'tance adv.

long division (lông đĩ-vĩzh'ən) n. Mathematics. A process of division in arithmetic, usually used when the divisor is a large number, in which each step of the division is written out.

long dozen (lông dũz'ən) n. A baker's dozen; thirteen.

long-drawn-out (lông'drôn'out', lǒng'-) adj. Greatly extended or protracted; prolonged: a long-drawn-out speech.

lon-ge-ron (lǒn'jər-ən) n. A major structural member of an aircraft fuselage, running from front to rear. [French, from Old French, beam, from long, long, from Latin longus. See del¹ in Appendix.]

lon-gev-i-ty (lǒn-jěv'ĩ-tē, lôn-) n. pl. lon-gev-i-ties. 1. a. Long life; great duration of life: His longevity vexed his heirs. b. Length or duration of life: comparing the longevities of the two peoples. 2. Long duration or continuance, as in an occupation: had unusual longevity in the company; her longevity as a star. [Late Latin longaevitās, from Latin longaevus, ancient : longus, long; see del¹ in Appendix + aevum, age; see aiw- in Appendix.] —lon-ge'vous (-jě'vəs) adj.

long face (lông fās) n. A discontented or sullen facial expression.

Long-fel-low (lông'fě'l'ō, lǒng'-), Henry Wadsworth. 1807-1882. American writer. The best-known 19th-century poet in the United States, he wrote The Song of Hiawatha (1855) and a translation (1865-1867) of Dante's Divine Comedy.

long green (lông grēn) n. Slang. Paper money.

long-hair (lông'hâr', lǒng'-) n. Informal. 1. One dedicated to the arts and especially to classical music. 2. One whose taste in the arts is considered to be overrefined. 3. A person with long hair, especially a hippie. —long'hair', long'haired' adj.

long-hand (lông'händ', lǒng'-) n. Cursive writing.

long haul (lông hôi) n. Informal. 1. A long distance: It is a long haul from New York to Los Angeles. 2. A long period of time: Over the long haul the candidates performed well. —long'-haul' (lông'hôi', lǒng'-) adj.

long-head (lông'hěd', lǒng'-) n. Anthropology. 1. A head having a cephalic index less than 76. 2. A person having such a head.

long-head-ed also long-head-ed (lông'hěd'id, lǒng'-) adj. 1. Anthropology. Dolichocephalic. 2. Foresighted; wise.

long-horn (lông'hôn', lǒng'-) n. 1. Any of a breed of cattle with long horns, formerly bred in great numbers in the southwest United States. 2. A variety of Cheddar cheese molded into a long cylinder.

long-horned beetle (lông'hôrnd' bêt'l, lǒng'-) n. Any of numerous beetles of the family Cerambycidae, having long antennae. Also called longicorn long-horned grasshopper (lông'hôrnd' grăsh'öpf'ər) n. Any of various large, usually greenish insects of the family Tettigoniidae, having very long, slender antennae.

long-house or long house (lông'hous') n. A long communal dwelling, especially of the Iroquois, typically built of poles and bark and having a central corridor with family compartments on either side.

lon-gi-corn (lǒn'jĩ-kôrn') n. See long-horned beetle. — adj. 1. Having long antennae. 2. Of or belonging to the family Cerambycidae, which includes the long-horned beetles. [From New Latin Longicornia, former group name : Latin longus, long; see LONGITUDE + Latin cornū, horn; see ker-¹ in Appendix.]

long-ing (lông'ing, lǒng'-) n. A strong persistent yearning or desire, especially one that cannot be fulfilled. — long'ing-ly adv.

Lon-gi-nus (lǒn-jĩ'nəs), Dionysius Cassius. A.D. 210?-273. Greek philosopher. The volume of literary criticism On The Sublime is attributed to him.

Long Island (lông ī'lənd) Abbr. L.I. A long, narrow island of southeast New York bordered on the south by the Atlantic Ocean. Long Island Sound, an arm of the Atlantic, separates it from Connecticut on the north. The western part of Long Island includes two boroughs of New York City. The rest of the island has seen tremendous industrial and residential growth since 1945, although there are still countless resort communities along its shoreline.

lon-gi-tude (lǒn'jĩ-tōōd', -tyōōd', lôn'-) n. Abbr. long. 1. Angular distance on the earth's surface, measured east or west from the prime meridian at Greenwich, England, to the meridian passing through a position, expressed in degrees (or hours), minutes, and seconds. 2. Celestial longitude. [Middle English, length, a measured length, from Old French, from Latin longitūdō, longitūdin-, from longus, long. See del-¹ in Appendix.]

lon-gi-tu-di-nal (lǒn'jĩ-tōōd'n-əl, -tyōōd'-, lôn'-) adj. 1. a. Of or relating to longitude or length: a longitudinal reckoning by the navigator; made longitudinal measurements of the hull. b. Concerned with the development of persons or groups over time: a longitudinal study of twins. 2. Placed or running lengthwise: longitudinal stripes. — lon'gi-tu'di-nal-ly adv.

long johns (lông jǒnz) pl.n. Informal. Long, warm underwear. [From the name John.]

long jump (lông jümp) n. Sports. A jump in track and field that is made for distance rather than height, performed either from a stationary position or a moving start. Also called broad jump

- long-leaf pine (lông/'lēf' pīn, lǒng/'-) n. An evergreen tree (Pinus palustris) of the southeast United States, having long needles and heavy, tough, resinous wood valued as a source of timber, pulp, and turpentine. Also called yellow pine
- long-lived (lông/'līvd', -līvd', lǒng/'-) adj. 1. Having a long life: a long-lived aunt. 2. Lasting a long time; persistent: a long-lived rumor. 3. Functioning a long time; durable: a long-lived light bulb. —long-lived/ness n.
- Long-mea-dow (lông/'mēd'ō, lǒng/'-) A town of southwest Massachusetts, a residential suburb of Springfield on the Connecticut River. Population, 15,467.
- long measure (lông mēzh'ər) n. 1. See linear measure. 2. See long meter.
- long meter (lông mē'tər) n. A quatrain in iambic tetrameter, rhyming in the second and fourth lines and often in the first and third. Also called long measure
- Long-mont (lông/'mōnt', lǒng/'-) A city of north-central Colorado north-northeast of Boulder. It is a trade and processing center for an irrigated farming region. Population, 42,942.
- long-neck (lông/'nēk', lǒng/'-) n. Texas. A glass beer bottle with an elongated neck.
- long-play-ing (lông/'plā'īng, lǒng/'-) adj. Relating to or being a phonograph record that turns at 333 revolutions per minute.
- long-range (lông/'rānj', lǒng/'-) adj. 1. Of, suitable for, or reaching long distances: long-range missiles. 2. Requiring or involving an extended span of time: long-range planning.
- long run (lông rŭn) n. A rather lengthy period of time: We expect a substantial increase in sales of the book in the long run. The paint must not deteriorate in quality over the long run.
- long-shore (lông/'shōr', -shōr', lǒng/'-) adj. Occurring, living, or working along a seacoast. [Short for ALONGSHORE.]
- long-shore-man (lông/'shōr'mən, -shōr'-, lǒng/'-) n. A dock worker who loads and unloads ships.
- long shot (lông shōt) n. 1. Sports & Games. An entry, as in a horserace, with only a slight chance of winning. 2. a. A bet made at great odds. b. A venture that offers a great reward if successful but has very little chance of success. 3. A photograph or a film or television shot taken at relatively long range. —idiom. by a long shot. Informal. By any means. Usually used in negative sentences: She doesn't do her share of the work by a long shot.
- long-sight-ed (lông/'sī'tīd, lǒng/'-) adj. Farsighted. —long'-sight/ed-ly adv. —long'-sight/ed-ness n.
- long-some (lông/'səm, lǒng/'-) adj. Tiresomely long.
- Longs Peak (lôngz pēk, lǒngz) A mountain, 4,347.8 m (14,255 ft) high, in the Front Range of the Rocky Mountains in north-central Colorado. It was discovered in 1820.

long-spur (lông'spûr', lǒng'-) n. Any of several birds, especially of the genus Calcarius of the northern United States, Canada, and the Arctic, having brownish plumage and long-clawed hind toes.

long-standing (lông'stăn'ding, lǒng'-) adj. Of long duration or existence: a long-standing friendship.

Long-street (lông'strêt', lǒng'-), James. 1821-1904. American Confederate general. His delay in carrying out Gen. Robert E. Lee's orders contributed to the Confederate defeat at Gettysburg (1863).

long-suf-fer-ing (lông'sũf'ər-ĩng, lǒng'-) adj. Patiently enduring wrongs or difficulties. — n. Patient endurance. See Synonyms at patience. —long'-suf-fer-ing-ly adv.

long suit (lông sōt) n. 1. Games. The suit in which a player holds the most cards in a given hand. 2. The personal quality or talent that is one's strongest asset.

long-tailed duck (lông'tăld' dũk, lǒng'-) n. See oldsquaw.

long-term (lông'tũrm', lǒng'-) adj. Involving, maturing after, or being in effect for a long time: a long-term investment.

long-time or long-time (lông'tĩm', lǒng'-) adj. Having existed or persisted for a long time.

long ton (lông tũn) n. See ton (n., sense 2).

Lon-gueil (lông-găil') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, on the St. Lawrence River opposite Montreal. It is an industrial center. Population, 124,320.

lon-gueur (lông-gũr', lǒng-) n. A tedious passage in a work of literature or performing art: "longueurs and passages of meretricious vulgarity" (Stephen Schiff). [French, from Old French longor, a protracted discussion, from long, long, from Latin longus. See LONGITUDE.]

Long-view (lông'vyōō', lǒng'-) 1. A city of northeast Texas west of Shreveport, Louisiana. The city produces varied manufactures. Population, 70,311. 2. A city of southwest Washington on the Columbia River north of Vancouver. A port of entry, it has a large lumber and pulp industry. Population, 31,499.

long-wind-ed (lông'wĩn'dĩd, lǒng'-) adj. 1. Wearisomely verbose: a long-winded speaker. See Synonyms at wordy. 2. Able to maintain breathing power during exertion: a long-winded swimmer. —long'-wind'ed-ly adv. —long'-wind'ed-ness n.

long-wise (lông'wĩz', lǒng'-) adv. & adj. Lengthwise.

Long-worth (lông'wũrth', lǒng'-), Alice Roosevelt. 1884-1980. American socialite. The daughter of Theodore Roosevelt, she was a favorite subject of the press because of her active social life and her caustic wit.

Long-worth (lông'wũrth', lǒng'-), Nicholas. 1869-1931. American politician who was speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives from 1925 to 1931.

lon-gyi (lǒng'gē, lǒng'-) n. Variant of lungi.

Lönn-rot (lĕn'rōt, -rōot, lœn'rôt), Elias. 1802-1884. Finnish scholar and anthropologist. He collected Finnish epic songs and compiled Kalevala (1835), a national epic.

loo¹ (lōo) n. pl. loos. Games. A card game in which each player contributes stakes to a pool. [Short for obsolete lanterloo, from French lanturlu, a meaningless refrain, loo.]

loo² (lōo) n. pl. loos. Chiefly British. A toilet. [Origin unknown.]

loo-fa or loo-fah (lōo'fə) also luf-fa (lōo'fə, lŭf'ə) n. 1. Any of several Old World tropical vines of the genus Luffa, having cylindrical fruit with a fibrous, spongelike interior. 2. The dried, fibrous part of the loofa fruit, used as a washing sponge or as a filter. In this sense, also called dishcloth gourd, vegetable sponge. [Arabic lūf, lūfah.]

look (lōok) v. looked, look-ing, looks. — v. intr. 1. a. To employ one's sight, especially in a given direction or on a given object: looking out the window; looked at the floor. b. To search: We looked all afternoon but could not find it. 2. a. To turn one's glance or gaze: looked to the right. b. To turn one's attention; attend: looked to his neglected guitar during vacation. c. To turn one's expectations: looked to us for a solution. 3. To seem or appear to be: look morose. See Synonyms at seem. 4. To face in a specified direction: The cottage looks on the river. — v. tr. 1. To turn one's eyes on: looked him in the eye. 2. To convey by one's expression: looked annoyance at the judge; looked his devotion to me. 3. a. To have an appearance of conformity with: He looks his age. She dressed up to look the part. b. To appear to be: looked the fool in one version of the story. — n. 1. a. The act or instance of looking: I took just one look and I was sure. b. A gaze or glance expressive of something: gave her a mournful look. 2. a. Appearance or aspect: a look of great age. b. looks. Physical appearance, especially when pleasing. c. A distinctive, unified manner of dress or fashion: the preferred look for this fall. — phrasal verbs. look after. To take care of: looked after his younger brother. look for. 2. To search for; seek: looking for my gloves. 3. To expect: Look for a change of weather in March. look on (or look upon). To regard in a certain way: looked on them as incompetents. look out. To be watchful or careful; take care: If you don't look out, you may fall on the ice. We looked out for each other on the trip. look to. 6. To expect: He looked to hear from her. 7. To seem about to; promise to: "an 'Action Program,' which... looked to reduce tariffs on over 1,800 items" (Alan D. Romberg). look up. 8. To search for and find, as in a reference book. 9. To visit: look up an old friend. 10. To become better; improve: Things are at last looking up. — idioms. look a gift horse in the mouth. Informal. To be critical or suspicious of something one has received without expense. look alive (or look sharp). Informal. To act or respond quickly: Look alive! We leave in five minutes. look down on (or look down upon). To regard with contempt or condescension. look down (one's) nose at (or look down (one's) nose on). To regard with contempt or condescension. look forward to. To think of (a future event) with pleasurable, eager anticipation: looking forward to graduation. look up to. To admire: looked up to the older poet. [Middle English loken, from Old English lōcian.]

look-a-like (lōök'ə-līk') n. One that closely resembles another; a double. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: look-alike computers; look-alike cars.

look-down (lōök'doun') n. An iridescent, silvery marine fish (Selene vomer) of Atlantic waters, having a compressed body and a steep frontal profile.

look-er (lōök'ər) n. 1. One that looks, especially a spectator or an onlooker.

2. Slang. A very attractive person.

look-er-on (lōök'ər-ŏn', -ŏn') n. pl. look-ers-on (lōök'ərz-). A spectator; an onlooker.

look-in (lōök'in') n. 1. A short visit. 2. A quick glance.

look-ing glass (lōök'ing glās) n. See mirror (n., sense 1).

look-out (lōök'out') n. 1. The act of observing or keeping watch. 2. A high place or structure commanding a wide view, used for observation. 3. One who keeps watch. 4. Outlook; view. 5. An object of concern or worry. See Synonyms at affair.

Look-out (lōök'out'), Cape. A point on a sandy reef off eastern North Carolina southwest of Cape Hatteras. A lighthouse was built here in 1859.

look-see (lōök'sē') n. Informal. A quick survey or glance.

look-up (lōök'üp') n. Computer Science. A procedure in which a table of values stored in a computer is searched until a specified value is found.

loom¹ (lōōm) v. intr. loomed, loom-ing, looms. 1. To come into view as a massive, distorted, or indistinct image. See Synonyms at appear. 2. To appear to the mind in a magnified and threatening form: "Stalin looms over the whole human tragedy of 1930-1933" (Robert Conquest). 3. To seem imminent; impend: Revolution loomed but the aristocrats paid no heed. — n. A distorted, threatening appearance of something, as through fog or darkness. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin.]

loom² (lōōm) n. An apparatus for making thread or yarn into cloth by weaving strands together at right angles. [Middle English lome, from Old English gelōma, tool; ge-, collective pref.; see YCLEPT + -lōma, tool as in andlōman, tools.]

loon¹ (lōōn) n. Any of several fish-eating, diving birds of the genus Gavia of northern regions, having a short tail, webbed feet, and a laughlike cry. [Of Scandinavian origin.]

loon² (lōōn) n. Informal. One who is crazy or deranged. [Middle English louen, rogue.]

loon-y or loon-ey also lun-y (lōō'nē) Informal. adj. loon-i-er, loon-i-est.

1. Extremely foolish or silly. 2. Crazy; insane. — n. pl. loon-ies also loon·eys. A foolish or crazy person. [Shortening and alteration (probably influenced by LOON¹), of LUNATIC.] —loon/i·ly adv. —loon/i·ness n.

loony bin (lōō'nē bīn) n. Offensive Slang. A mental health facility.

loop¹ (lōōp) n. 1. a. A length of line, thread, ribbon, or other thin material that is curved or doubled over making an opening. b. The opening formed by such a doubled line. 2. Something having a shape, order, or path of motion that is circular or curved over on itself. 3. Electricity. A closed circuit. 4. Computer Science. A sequence of instructions that repeats either a specified number of times or until a particular condition prevails. 5. A type of loop-shaped intrauterine device. 6. A flight maneuver in which an aircraft flies a circular path in a vertical plane with the lateral axis of the aircraft remaining horizontal. 7. Sports. See league¹ (n., sense 2). — v. looped, loop·ing, loops. — v. tr. 1. To form into a loop. 2. To fasten, join, or encircle with loops or a loop. 3. To fly (an aircraft) in a loop. 4. To move in a loop or an arc. 5. Electricity. To join (conductors) so as to complete a circuit. 6. To add or substitute (words) in a film by altering the sound track. — v. intr. 1. To form a loop. 2. To move in a loop: “The couple looped constantly around the international social circuit” (Walter Isaacson). 3. To make a loop in an aircraft. [Middle English loupe, probably from Middle Irish lúb (perhaps influenced by Middle English lep, basket).]

loop² (lōōp) n. Archaic. A loophole through which small arms may be fired. [Middle English loupe.]

Loop (lōōp) The central business district of Chicago, Illinois. The Loop was originally named for a loop in the elevated railroad tracks.

looped (lōōpt) adj. 1. Formed into or having a loop or loops. 2. Slang. Intoxicated; drunk.

loop·er (lōō'pər) n. 1. One that makes loops. 2. See measuring worm.

loop·hole (lōōp'hōl') n. 1. A way of escaping a difficulty, especially an omission or ambiguity in the wording of a contract or law that provides a means of evading compliance. 2. A small hole or slit in a wall, especially one through which small arms may be fired.

loop of Hen·le (lōōp ūv hēn'lē) n. The segment of the nephron of a vertebrate kidney that is situated between the proximal and distal convoluted tubules. It plays a role in the transport of ions and water and the concentrating of urine. [After Friedrich Gustav Jacob Henle (1809-1885), German pathologist.]

loop·y (lōō'pē) adj. loop·i·er, loop·i·est. 1. Consisting of or covered with loops. 2. Offbeat; crazy: “the loopy energy of Harpo Marx” (Michael Wood).

Loos (lōōs), Anita. 1893?-1981. American writer who is best known for her novel Gentlemen Prefer Blondes (1925).

loose (lōōs) adj. loos·er, loos·est. 1. Not fastened, restrained, or contained: loose bricks. 2. Not taut, fixed, or rigid: a loose anchor line; a loose chair leg. 3. Free from confinement or imprisonment; unfettered: criminals who were loose in the neighborhood; dogs that are loose on the streets. 4. Not tight-fitting or tightly fitted: loose shoes. 5. Not bound, bundled, stapled, or gathered together: loose papers. 6. Not compact or dense in arrangement or structure: loose gravel. 7. Lacking a sense of restraint or responsibility; idle: loose talk. 8. Lacking conventional moral restraint in sexual behavior. 9. Not literal or exact: a loose translation. 10. Characterized by a free movement of fluids in the body: a loose cough; loose bowels. — adv. In a loose manner. — v. loosed, loos-ing, loos-es. — v. tr. 1. To let loose; release: loosed the dogs. 2. To make loose; undo: loosed his belt. 3. To cast loose; detach: hikers loos-ing their packs at camp. 4. To let fly; discharge: loosed an arrow. 5. To release pressure or obligation from; absolve: loosed her from the responsibility. 6. To make less strict; relax: a leader's strong authority that was loos-ed by easy times. — v. intr. 1. To become loose. 2. To discharge a missile; fire. — idiom. on the loose. 1. At large; free. 2. Acting in an uninhibited fashion. [Middle English louse, los, from Old Norse lauss. See leu- in Appendix.] — loose'ly adv. — loose'ness n.

SYNONYMS: loose, lax, slack. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “not tautly bound, held, or fastened”: loose reins; a lax rope; slack sails.

ANTONYM: tight

loose cannon (lōos kăn'an) n. Slang. One that is uncontrolled and therefore poses danger: “[His] bloopers in the White House seem to make him... a political loose cannon” (Tom Morgenthau). [From the threat posed by loose cannon rolling about a warship under sail.]

loose end (lōos ěnd) n. A minor unresolved problem or difficulty, especially a final detail preceding the completion of something. Often used in the plural.

loose-joint-ed (lōos'join'tid) adj. 1. Having freely articulated, highly mobile joints. 2. Limber or agile in movement. — loose'-joint'ed-ness n.

loose-leaf (lōos'lĕf') adj. Relating to, having, or being leaves that can be easily removed, rearranged, or replaced: a loose-leaf notebook; loose-leaf paper.

loos-en (lōo'sən) v. loos-ened, loos-en-ing, loos-ens. — v. tr. 1. To untie or make looser. 2. To free from restraint, pressure, or strictness. 3. To free (the bowels) from constipation. — v. intr. To become loose or looser. [Middle English lousnen, losnen, from losen, from los, loose. See LOOSE.]

loose-strife (lōos'strif') n. 1. Any of various plants of the genus Lysimachia, having usually yellow flowers. 2. Any of various plants of the genus Lythrum, having purple or white flowers. [Mistranslation of Latin lysīmachīa (as if from Greek lusis, loosening, and Greek makhē, battle), from Greek lusimakheios, perhaps after Lusimakhos, Lysimachos, Greek physician of the fifth or fourth century B.C.]

loot (lōōt) n. 1. Valuables pillaged in time of war; spoils. 2. Stolen goods. 3. Informal. Goods illicitly obtained, as by bribery. 4. Informal. Things of value, such as gifts, received on one occasion. 5. Slang. Money. — v. loot-ed, loot-ing, loots. — v. tr. 1. To pillage; spoil. 2. To take as spoils; steal. — v. intr. To engage in pillaging. [Hindi lūt, from Sanskrit loptram, lotram, plunder. See reup- in Appendix.] — loot'er n.

lop¹ (löp) v. tr. lopped, lop-ping, lops. 1. To cut off (a part) from; trim: lopped her long curls. 2. To cut off from a tree or shrub: lopped dead branches. 3. To eliminate or excise as superfluous: lopped him from the payroll. [Perhaps from Middle English loppe, small branches and twigs.] — lop'per n.

lop² (löp) v. intr. tr. lopped, lop-ping, lops. To hang or let hang loosely; droop. [Origin unknown.]

lope (löp) v. intr. loped, lop-ing, lopes. To run or ride with a steady, easy gait. — n. A steady, easy gait. [Middle English lopen, to leap, from Old Norse hlaupa.] — lop'er n.

lop-eared (löp'ird') adj. Having bent or drooping ears: a lop-eared hound.

Ló·pez Ma·te·os (lō'pěz mə-tā'əs, lō'pěs mə-tě'òs), Adolfo. 1910-1969. Mexican politician who as president (1958-1964) encouraged U.S. investment and made a number of agrarian reforms.

López Por·til·lo (lō'pěz pôr-tě'ō, -yò,), José. Born 1920. President of Mexico (1976-1982). The country became a leading petroleum producer under his administration.

Lop Nur (löp' nōör') also LoP Nor (nôr') A marshy depression of northwest China. Once a large salt lake, the area has been used since 1964 for nuclear testing.

lop-py (löp'ē) adj. lop-pi-er, lop-pi-est. Hanging limp; pendulous.

lop-sid-ed (löp'sī'dīd) adj. 1. Heavier, larger, or higher on one side than on the other. 2. Sagging or leaning to one side. — lop'sid'ed-ly adv. — lop'sid'ed-ness n.

loq. abbr. Latin. Loquitur (speaks).

lo·qua·cious (lō-kwā'shəs) adj. Very talkative; garrulous. See Synonyms at talkative. [From Latin loquāx, loquāc-, from loquī, to speak. See talk^{w-} in Appendix.] — lo·qua'cious-ly adv. — lo·qua'cious-ness, lo·quac'i·ty (lō-kwäs'ī-tē) n.

lo·quat (lō'kwöt', -kwät') n. 1. A small evergreen tree (Eriobotrya japonica) native to China and Japan, having fragrant white flowers and pear-shaped yellow fruit with large seeds. 2. The edible fruit of this plant. [Chinese (Cantonese) lo kwat: lo, kind of tree + kwêt, an orange.]

Lo·rain (lə-rān', lô-) A city of northern Ohio on Lake Erie west of Cleveland. Settled in 1807, it is now highly industrialized. Population, 71,245.

lo·ran (lôr'ăn', lôr'-) n. A long-range navigational system in which position is determined by an analysis involving the time intervals between pulsed radio signals from two or more pairs of ground stations of known position. [lo(nge) n(avigation).]

Lor-ca (lôr'kə, -kă), Federico García. See Federico García Lorca.

lord (lôrd) n. 1. A man of high rank in a feudal society or in one that retains feudal forms and institutions, especially: a. A king. b. A territorial magnate. c. The proprietor of a manor. 2. Lords. See House of Lords. 3. Lord. Abbr. Ld.

Chiefly British. The general masculine title of nobility and other rank: a. Used as a form of address for a marquis, an earl, or a viscount. b. Used as the usual style for a baron. c. Used as a courtesy title for a younger son of a duke or marquis.

d. Used as a title for certain high officials and dignitaries. e. Used as a title for a bishop. 4. Lord. a. God. b. Jesus. c. A man of renowned power or authority.

d. A man who has mastery in a given field or activity. e. Archaic. The male head of a household. f. Archaic. A husband. — v. intr. lord-ed, lord-ing, lords.

To act like a lord; domineer. Often used with the indefinite it: lorded it over their subordinates. [Middle English, from Old English hlāford: hlāf, bread + weard, guardian; see wer-³ in Appendix.]

Lord Chancellor (lôrd chăn'sə-lər) n. pl. Lords Chancellor. The presiding officer of the House of Lords.

Lord Howe Island (lôrd hou' î'lənd) A volcanic island of Australia in the Tasman Sea east-northeast of Sydney. Discovered by the British in 1788, it was settled in 1834.

lord-ing (lôr'dĩng) n. 1. Archaic. Used as a form of address for a lord.

2. Obsolete. A lordling.

lord-ling (lôrd'lĩng) n. A lord regarded as immature or insignificant.

lord-ly (lôrd'lē) adj. lord-li-er, lord-li-est. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a lord. 2. Very dignified and noble: a lordly and charitable enterprise.

3. Pretentiously arrogant and overbearing. — adv. 1. In a dignified, noble fashion befitting or characteristic of a lord. 2. In a pretentiously arrogant and overbearing manner. — lord/li-ness n.

Lord of Misrule (lôrd ũv mīs-rōol') n. pl. Lords of Misrule. One who presided at traditional Christmas revelry in England during the 15th and 16th centuries.

lor-do-sis (lôr-dō'sis) n. pl. lor-do-ses (-sēz). An abnormal forward curvature of the spine in the lumbar region. [Greek lordōsis, from lordos, bent backward.]

— lor-dot'ic (-dōt'ik) adj.

lords-and-la-dies (lôrdz'ən-lā'dēz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). See cuckoopint. [From its dark (lords) and light (ladies) spadices.]

Lord's Day or Lord's day (lôrdz dā) n. The Christian Sabbath; Sunday.

lord-ship (lôrd'shĩp') n. 1. Often Lordship. Used with Your, His, or Their as a title and form of address for a man or men holding the rank of lord. 2. The position or authority of a lord. 3. The territory belonging to a feudal lord.

Lord's Prayer (lôrdz prâr) n. The prayer taught by Jesus to his disciples. Also called Our Father Lord's Supper (lôrdz sÿp'ər) n. 1. See Last Supper. 2. The sacrament of the Eucharist.

Lord's Table (lôrdz tã'bəl) n. The table or altar used by Christians to celebrate the Eucharist.

lore¹ (lôr, lôr) n. 1. Accumulated facts, traditions, or beliefs about a particular subject. See Synonyms at knowledge. 2. Knowledge acquired through education or experience. 3. Archaic. Material taught or learned. [Middle English, from Old English lār. See leis-¹ in Appendix.]

lore² (lôr, lôr) n. The space between the eye and the base of the bill of a bird or between the eye and nostril of a snake. [Latin lōrum, thong.]

Lo-re-lei (lôr'ə-lī', lô'rə-) n. A siren of Germanic legend whose singing lures sailors to shipwreck.

Lo-rentz (lôr'ənts, lôr'-, lô'rěnts), Hendrik. 1853-1928. Dutch physicist. He shared a 1902 Nobel Prize for researching the influence of magnetism on radiation.

Lorentz contraction (lôr'ənts kən-trăk'shən) n. See Lorentz-Fitzgerald contraction.

Lo-rentz-Fitz-ger-ald contraction (lôr'ənts-fīts-jěr'ld kən-trăk'shən, lôr'-) n. The contraction in length of a moving body as it approaches the speed of light, as measured by an observer at rest with respect to the body. Also called Lorentz contraction [After Hendrik LORENTZ, and George Francis FITZGERALD.]

Lo-renz (lô'rěnts'), Konrad Zacharias. 1903-1989. Austrian psychologist. He shared a 1973 Nobel Prize for studies of individual and social behavior patterns.

Lor-en-zet-ti (lôr'ən-zět'tē, lô'rěn-dzět'tē), Ambrogio. Died 1348. Sienese painter who is remembered for Good and Bad Government (1337-1339), a series of frescoes at Siena.

Lo-rette-ville (lə-rět'vīl', lô-) A city of southern Quebec, Canada, a manufacturing suburb of Quebec City. Population, 15,060.

lor-gnette (lôrn-yět') n. A pair of eyeglasses or opera glasses with a short handle. [French, from lorgner, to peer at, from Old French, from lorgne, squinting, of Germanic origin.]

lo-ri-ca (lô-rī'kə, lô-) n. pl. lo-ri-cae (-sē). 1. Zoology. A protective external shell or case, as of a rotifer or any of certain other microscopic animals. 2. A cuirass or corselet worn by Roman soldiers. [Latin lōrica, leather cuirass, perhaps from lōrum, thong.] —lor'i-cate' (lôr'i-kāt', lôr'-), lor'i-ca'ted (-kã'tīd) adj.

Lo-rient (lô-ryän') A city of northwest France on the Bay of Biscay southeast of Brest. Established as a port in the 17th century, it was developed as a naval base by Napoleon I. Population, 62,554.

- lor·i·keet (lôr'î-kēt', lör'-) n. Any of several small, often brilliantly colored Australasian parrots that feed primarily on soft fruits or the nectar and pollen of flowers and blooming trees. [LOR(Y) + (PARA)KEET.]
- lo·ris (lôr'îs, lör'-) n. Any of several small, slow-moving, nocturnal prosimian primates of the genera Loris and Nycticebus of tropical Asia, having dense woolly fur, large eyes, and a vestigial tail. [French, possibly from obsolete Dutch loeris, simpleton, from loer, from Old French lourt, from Latin lūridus, pale. See LURID.]
- lorn (lôrn) adj. Bereft; forlorn. [Middle English, from Old English -loren, past participle of -lēosan, to lose, as in forlēosan. See leu- in Appendix.]
- Lorne also Lorn (lôrn), Firth of. An inlet of the Atlantic Ocean on the western coast of Scotland between Mull Island and the mainland.
- Lor-rain (lô-rân', lô-răN'), Claude. 1600-1682. French painter known especially for his skill in depicting light in his landscapes and seascapes.
- Lor-raine (lô-rân', lô-, lô-rĕn') A historical region and former province of northeast France. Originally part of a kingdom belonging to Charlemagne's grandson Lothair I, the region passed to France in 1766 but was ceded with Alsace to Germany after the Franco-Prussian War (1871). The area was returned to France by the Treaty of Versailles (1919).
- Lor-re (lôr'ē), Peter. 1904-1964. Czechoslovakian-born American actor. In the German film M (1931) he portrayed a psychotic killer, establishing his trademark role as a sinister villain. His other films include The Maltese Falcon (1941) and Casablanca (1942).
- lor-ry (lôr'ē, lör'ē) n. pl. lor-ries. Chiefly British. A motor truck. [Perhaps akin to dialectal lurry, to lug, haul.]
- lo·ry (lôr'ē, lör'ē) n. pl. lo-ries. Any of various brightly colored Australasian parrots having a tongue with a brushlike tip that is used to feed on nectar and pollen. [Malay luri.]
- LOS abbr. 1. Length of stay. 2. Football. Line of scrimmage. 3. Line of sight.
- Los Al-a-mos (lôs ăl'ə-mōs', lōs) An unincorporated community of north-central New Mexico northwest of Santa Fe. It was chosen in 1942 as a nuclear research site to produce the first atomic bombs. The Atomic Energy Commission governed the town from 1947 to 1962. Population, 11,039.
- Los Al-tos (lôs ăl'təs, -tōs) A city of western California south of Palo Alto. It is mainly residential. Population, 26,303.
- Los An-ge-les (lôs ăn'jə-ləs, -lēz', ăng'gə-ləs) Abbr. L.A., LA A city of southern California on the Pacific Ocean in a widespread metropolitan area. The so-called City of the Angels was founded by the Spanish in 1781 and served several times as a colonial capital. Its real growth began after the coming of the railroads in the 1870's and 1880's and the discovery of oil in the 1890's. Today it is a major shipping, manufacturing, communications, financial, and distribution center noted for its entertainment industry. Population, 3,485,398.

lose (lōōz) v. lost (lōst, löst), los-ing, los-es. — v. tr. 1. To be unsuccessful in retaining possession of; mislay: He's always losing his keys on the way out the door. 2. a. To come to be deprived of the ownership, care, or control of (something one has had), as by negligence, accident, or theft: I've lost three umbrellas this year. Britain lost its American colonies in a revolution. b. To be deprived of (something one has had): lost their lives; lost her youth through hardship. c. To be bereaved of: lost his wife. d. To be unable to keep alive: a doctor who has lost very few patients. 3. To be unable to maintain, sustain, or keep: lost everything in the stock market crash; is losing supporters by changing his mind. 4. To fail to win; fail in: lost the game; lost the court case. 5. To fail to use or take advantage of: Don't lose a chance to improve your position. 6. To fail to hear, see, or understand: We lost the plane in the fog. I lost her when she started speaking about thermodynamics. 7. a. To let (oneself) become unable to find the way. b. To remove (oneself), as from everyday reality into a fantasy world. 8. To rid oneself of: lost five pounds. 9. To consume aimlessly; waste: lost a week in idle occupations. 10. To stray or wander from: lose one's way. 11. a. To elude or outdistance: lost their pursuers. b. To be outdistanced by: chased the thieves but lost them. 12. To become slow by (a specified amount of time). Used of a timepiece. 13. To cause or result in the loss of: Failure to reply to the advertisement lost her the job. 14. To cause to be destroyed. Usually used in the passive: Both planes were lost in the crash. 15. To cause to be damned. — v. intr. 1. To suffer loss. 2. To be defeated. 3. To operate or run slow. Used of a timepiece. — phrasal verb. lose out. To fail to achieve or receive an expected gain. — idioms. lose out on. To miss (an opportunity, for example). lose time. 2. To operate too slowly. Used of a timepiece. 3. To delay advancement. [Middle English losen, from Old English losian, to perish, from los, loss. See leu- in Appendix.]

lo-sel (lō'zəl, lōō'-, löz'əl) n. One that is worthless. [Middle English, from lōsen, past participle of lēsen, to lose, from Old English -lēosan. See LORN.]

los-er (lōō'zər) n. 1. a. One that fails to win: the losers of the game. b. One who takes loss in a specified way: a graceful loser; a poor loser. 2. a. One that fails consistently, especially a person with bad luck or poor skills: "losers at home seeking wealth and glory in undeveloped countries" (Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr.). b. One that is bad in quality: That book is a real loser.

Los Ga-tos (lōs gät'əs, lös) A city of western California, a residential suburb of San Jose. Population, 27,357.

los-ing (lōō'zɪŋ) adj. 1. Failing to win, as in a sport or game: a losing team; a losing lottery ticket. 2. Of or relating to one that fails to win: a losing season; a losing battle. — n. 1. The act of one that loses; loss. 2. Often losings. Something lost, such as money at gambling.

los-ing-est (lōō'zǐng-ĭst) adj. Slang. Less successful or losing more often than any others of its kind: “help turn around one of the network’s losingest nights of the week” (Washington Post).

Los Mo-chis (lōs mō'chĭs, mō'chēs) A city of northwest Mexico near the Gulf of California south-southeast of Hermosillo. It is a resort in a farming area. Population, 122,531.

loss (lōs, lōs) n. 1. The act or an instance of losing: nine losses during the football season. 2. a. One that is lost: wrote their flooded house off as a loss. b. The condition of being deprived or bereaved of something or someone: mourning their loss. c. The amount of something lost: selling at a 50 percent loss. 3. The harm or suffering caused by losing or being lost. 4. losses. People lost in wartime; casualties. 5. Destruction: The war caused incalculable loss. 6. Electricity. The power decrease caused by resistance in a circuit, circuit element, or device. 7. The amount of a claim on an insurer by an insured. —idiom. at a loss. 1. Below cost: sold the merchandise at a loss. 2. Perplexed; puzzled: I am at a loss to understand those remarks. [Middle English los, from Old English. See LOSE.]

loss leader (lōs lē'dər) n. A commodity offered especially by a retail store at cost or below cost to attract customers.

loss ratio (lōs rā'shō) n. The ratio between the premiums paid to an insurance company and the claims settled by the company.

lost (lōst, lōst) v. Past tense and past participle of lose. — adj. 1. Unable to find one’s way: a lost child. 2. a. No longer in the possession, care, or control of someone or something: a lost pen. b. No longer known or practiced: a lost art. 3. Unable to function, act, or make progress. 4. Spiritually or physically destroyed. 5. Completely involved or absorbed; rapt: lost in thought.

lost and found or lost-and-found (lōst'ən-found', lōst'-) n. A repository in a public place, as in a school or theater, where found items are kept for reclaiming by their owners.

Los Te-ques (lōs tē'kēs) A city of northern Venezuela, a residential and industrial suburb of Caracas. Population, 112,857.

Lost River Range (lōst rĭv'ər rānj, lōst) A chain of mountains in east-central Idaho rising to 3,861.9 m (12,662 ft) at Borah Peak, the highest elevation in the state.

lot (lōt) n. 1. An object used in making a determination or choice at random: casting lots. 2. a. The use of objects in making a determination or choice at random: chosen by lot. b. The determination or choice so made. 3. Something that befalls one because of or as if because of determination by lot. 4. One’s fortune in life; fate. See Synonyms at fate. 5. A number of associated people or things: placating an angry lot of tenants; kids who made a noisy lot. 6. Kind; type: That dog is a contented lot. 7. Miscellaneous articles sold as one unit. 8. Informal. A large extent, amount, or number: is in a lot of trouble; made lots of new friends.

Often used adverbially with a or in the plural: felt a lot better; ran lots faster.

9. a. A piece of land having specific boundaries, especially one constituting a part of a city, town, or block. b. A piece of land used for a given purpose: a parking lot. c. A film studio. — v. tr. lot·ted, lot·ting, lots. 1. To apportion by lots; allot. 2. To divide (land) into lots. [Middle English, from Old English hlot.]

Lot¹ (lõt) In the Old Testament, Abraham's nephew, whose wife was turned into a pillar of salt when she looked back as they fled Sodom.

Lot² (lõt, lôt) A river of southern France rising in the Cévennes and flowing about 483 km (300 mi) westward to the Garonne River.

loth (lōth, lōth) adj. Variant of loath.

Lo-thair I (lō-thâr', -târ'), 795?-855. Holy Roman emperor (840-855). In the Treaty of Verdun (843) the empire was divided into three parts, and Lothair received the Middle Kingdom.

Lo-thair II (lō-thâr', -târ'), 1070?-1137. King of Germany (1125-1137) and Holy Roman emperor (1133-1137). He invaded Italy in 1136.

Lo-thar·i·o also lo-thar·i·o (lō-thâr'ē-ō) n. pl. Lo-thar·i·os. A man who seduces women. [After Lothario, a character in The Fair Penitent, a play by Nicholas Rowe.]

Lo-throp (lō'thrəp), Alice Louise Higgins. 1870-1920. American social worker. She was general secretary of Associated Charities in Boston, Massachusetts, and helped establish the Boston School for Social Workers (1904).

Lo-throp (lō'thrəp), Harriet Mulford Stone. Pen name Margaret Sidney. 1844-1924. American writer remembered for her popular series of children's stories about the Pepper family (1877-1916).

lo·ti (lō'tē) n. pl. ma·lo·ti (mä-). A basic unit of currency in Lesotho. See Table at currency. [Sotho, from Maloti, a range of mountains in Lesotho.]

Lo-ti (lō-tē', lô-), Pierre. 1850-1923. French writer whose novels, including Aziyadé (1879) and Ramuntcho (1897), are noted for their exotic settings.

lo·tic (lō'tik) adj. Of, relating to, or living in moving water. [From Latin lōtus, past participle of lavere, to wash. See LOTION.]

lo·tion (lō'shən) n. 1. A medicated liquid for external application. 2. Any of various externally applied cosmetic liquids. [Middle English locion, from Old French lotion, from Latin lōtiō, lōtiōn-, a washing, from lōtus, past participle of lavere, to wash. See leu(ə)- in Appendix.]

lo·tos (lō'təs) n. Variant of lotus.

lot·ter·y (lõt'ə-rē) n. pl. lot·ter·ies. 1. Games. A contest in which tokens are distributed or sold, the winning token or tokens being secretly predetermined or ultimately selected in a random drawing. 2. A selection made by lot from a number of applicants or competitors: The state uses a lottery to assign spaces in the campground. 3. An activity or event regarded as having an outcome depending on fate: They considered combat duty a lottery. [French loterie, probably from Dutch loterije, from Middle Dutch, from lot, lot.]

lot·to (lɒt'ō) n. pl. lot·tos. Games. 1. A game of chance similar to bingo. 2. A lottery, typically with an accumulating jackpot, in which participants play numbers of their choice in a random drawing. [Italian, and French loto both from French lot, lot, from Old French, from Frankish lot*.]

lo·tus also lo·tos (lō'təs) n. 1. a. An aquatic plant (Nelumbo nucifera) native to southern Asia and Australia, having large leaves, fragrant, pinkish flowers, a broad, rounded, perforated seedpod, and fleshy rhizomes. b. The edible seed, leaf, or rhizome of this plant. c. Any of several similar or related plants, such as the water lilies Nymphaea caerulea or N. lotus. 2. A representation of any of various lotuses or similar or related plants in Egyptian or classical sculpture, architecture, or art. 3. Any of several leguminous plants of the genus Lotus. 4. Greek Mythology. a. A small Mediterranean tree or shrub whose fruit was eaten by the lotus-eaters. b. The fruit of this plant. [Latin lōtus, name of several plants, from Greek lōtos, perhaps of Semitic origin.]

lo·tus·eat·er (lō'təs-ē'tər) n. 1. Greek Mythology. One of a people described in the Odyssey who fed on the lotus and hence lived in a drugged, indolent state. 2. A lazy person devoted to pleasure and luxury.

lotus land (lō'təs länd) n. Informal. A place or condition of irresponsibility and luxury.

lotus position (lō'təs pə-zīsh'ən) n. A cross-legged sitting position used in yoga. [From its resemblance to a lotus.]

louche (lōōsh) adj. Of questionable taste or morality: a louche night club; a louche painting. [French, from Old French losche, squint-eyed, feminine of lois, from Latin luscus, blind in one eye.]

loud (loud) adj. loud·er, loud·est. 1. Characterized by high volume and intensity. Used of sound. 2. Producing sound of high volume and intensity. 3. Clamorous and insistent: loud denials. 4. a. Having offensively bright colors: a loud necktie. b. Having an offensively strong odor. c. Offensive in manner. — adv. louder, loudest. In a loud manner. [Middle English, from Old English hlūd. See kleu- in Appendix.] —loud/ly adv. —loud/ness n.

SYNONYMS: loud, earsplitting, stentorian, strident. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “marked by or producing great volume and often disagreeable intensity of sound”: loud trumpets; earsplitting shrieks; stentorian tones; strident, screeching brakes. See also Synonyms at gaudy¹ loud·en (loud'n) v. tr. intr. loud·ened, loud·en·ing, loud·ens. To make or become louder.

ANTONYM: soft

loud·mouth (loud'mouth') n. Informal. One given to loud, irritating, or indiscreet talk. —loud/mouthed' (-mouthd', -moutht') adj.

loud pedal (loud pɛd'l) n. Music. See sustaining pedal.

loud·speak·er (loud'spē'kær) n. A device that converts electric signals to audible sound.

Lou Gehrig's disease (lō' gēr'ɪgz dī-zēz') n. See amyotrophic lateral sclerosis. [After Henry Louis ("Lou") GEHRIG.]

lough (lōKH, lōk) n. Irish. 1. A lake. 2. A bay or an inlet of the sea. [Middle English, from Old English luh, ultimately from Old Irish loch.]

Lou·is VII (lō'ē, lō-ē'), 1120?-1180. King of France (1137-1180) who led the unsuccessful Second Crusade (1147-1149) and frequently fought against Henry II of England.

Lou·is IX (lō'ē, lō-ē'), Known as "Saint Louis." 1214-1270. King of France (1226-1270) who led the Seventh Crusade (1248-1254) and died in a subsequent crusade to Tunisia.

Lou·is XIII (lō'ē, lō-ē'), 1601-1643. King of France (1610-1643) who relied heavily on his political adviser Cardinal Richelieu to overcome familial insurrection and war with Spain and the Hapsburgs.

Lou·is XIV (lō'ē, lō-ē'), Known as "Louis the Great" and "the Sun King." 1638-1715. King of France (1643-1715). His reign, the longest in French history, was characterized by a magnificent court and the expansion of French influence in Europe. Louis waged three major wars: the Dutch War (1672-1678), the War of the Grand Alliance (1688-1697), and the War of the Spanish Succession (1701-1714).

Lou·is XV (lō'ē, lō-ē'), 1710-1774. King of France (1715-1774) who led France into the War of the Austrian Succession (1740-1748) and the Seven Years' War (1756-1763).

Lou·is XVI (lō'ē, lō-ē'), 1754-1793. King of France (1774-1792). In 1789 he summoned the Estates-General, but he did not grant the reforms that were demanded and revolution followed. Louis and his queen, Marie Antoinette, were executed in 1793.

Lou·is XVIII (lō'ē, lō-ē'), 1755-1824. King of France (1814-1824). His reign was interrupted by Napoleon (1815), but he returned to power after Napoleon's defeat at Waterloo in the same year.

Lou·is (lō'is), Joe. 1914-1981. American prizefighter who held the heavy-weight title for nearly 12 years (1937-1949), successfully defending it for a record 25 times.

Lou·is·burg or Lou·is·bourg (lō'is-bûrg') A town of Nova Scotia, Canada, on eastern Cape Breton Island. It is near the site of the fortress of Louisbourg, built c. 1712-1740 by the French to guard the entrance to the Gulf of St. Lawrence. In 1758 the fort fell to a British land and sea attack, which reduced it to rubble. A national historical park here includes reconstructed portions of the complex.

Lou·ise (lōō-ēz'), Lake. A lake of southwest Alberta, Canada, in the Rocky Mountains near Banff. Surrounded by high peaks and glaciers, it is noted for its scenic beauty.

Lou·si·an·a (lōō-ē'zē-ān'ə, lōō'zē-) Abbr. LA, La. A state of the southern United States on the Gulf of Mexico. It was admitted as the 18th state in 1812. Part of the vast region claimed by La Salle for France in 1682, it was first successfully settled in 1718 with the foundation of New Orleans. Control of the area passed to the United States in 1803, and the Territory of Orleans was created in 1804 when the northern part was split off to form the District of Louisiana (later the Territory of Louisiana and the Missouri Territory). Baton Rouge is the capital and New Orleans the largest city. Population, 4,238,216.

Louisiana French (lōō-ē'zē-ān'ə frēnch) n. French as spoken by the descendants of the original French settlers of Louisiana.

Louisiana Purchase (lōō-ē'zē-ān'ə pûr'chīs) A territory of the western United States extending from the Mississippi River to the Rocky Mountains between the Gulf of Mexico and the Canadian border. It was purchased from France on April 30, 1803, for $15 million and officially explored by the Lewis and Clark expedition (1804-1806).

Lou·is Na·po·le·on (lōō'ē nə-pō'lē-ən) See Napoleon III.

Lou·is Phi·lippe (lōō'ē fī-lēp', lōō-ē' fē-lēp'), Known as "the Citizen King." 1773-1850. King of France (1830-1848). He ruled after the overthrow of the Bourbons in the July Revolution (1830) and abdicated during the Revolution of 1848.

Louis Qua·torze (lōō'ē kă-tôrz') adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the baroque style in architecture, furniture, and decoration of the reign of Louis XIV. [French.]

Louis Quinze (lōō'ē kănz') adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the rococo style in architecture, furniture, and decoration of the reign of Louis XV. [French.]

Louis Seize (lōō'ē sēz') adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the neoclassic style in architecture, furniture, and decoration of the reign of Louis XVI. [French.]

Louis Treize (lōō'ē trēz') adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the heavy late-Renaissance style in architecture, furniture, and decoration of the reign of Louis XIII. [French.]

Lou·is·ville (lōō'ē-vīl', -ə-vəl) The largest city of Kentucky, in the north-central part of the state on the Ohio River west of Lexington. On the site of a fort built by George Rogers Clark in 1778, it is a port of entry and a major industrial, financial, and marketing center. Population, 269,063.

lounge (louŋj) v. lounged, lounge-ing, lounge-es. — v. intr. 1. To move or act in a lazy, relaxed way; loll: lounging on the sofa; lounged around in pajamas. 2. To pass time idly: lounged in Venice till June. — v. tr. To pass (time) in a lazy, relaxed, or idle way: lounged the day away. — n. 1. A public waiting room, as in a hotel or an air terminal, often having smoking or lavatory facilities. 2. An establishment or a room in an establishment, as in a hotel or restaurant, where cocktails are served. 3. a. A living room. b. A lobby. 4. A long couch, especially one having no back and a headrest at one end. [Possibly from French s'allonger, to stretch out, from Old French alongier, to lengthen, from Medieval Latin allongāre: Latin ad-, ad- + Latin longus, long; see LONG¹.] — lounge'er n.

lounge car (louŋj kār) n. See club car.

lounge lizard (louŋj lɪz'ərd) n. Slang. 1. A generally idle man who haunts establishments or gatherings frequented by the rich or fashionable; a social parasite. 2. A habitué of cocktail lounges.

lounge-wear (louŋj'wâr') n. Clothing suitable for relaxing.

loupe (lōöp) n. A small magnifying glass usually set in an eyepiece and used chiefly by watchmakers and jewelers. [French, from Old French, flawed gem, probably of Germanic origin.]

loup-ga-rou (lōō'gə-rōō', -gä-) n. pl. loups-ga-rous (lōō'gə-rōōz', -gä-rōō'). A werewolf. [French, from Old French leu garoul: leu, wolf (from Latin lupus); see wl̥k^wo- in Appendix + garoul, werewolf (of Germanic origin); see wi-ro- in Appendix.]

loup-ing ill (lou'pɪŋ ɪl, lō'-) n. See tremble (n., sense 3a). [From Scots loup, to leap, from Middle English loupen. See LOPE.]

Loup River (lōöp rɪv'ər) A river of east-central Nebraska rising in three branches and flowing a total length of about 451 km (280 mi) eastward to the Platte River.

loups-ga-rous (lōō'gə-rōōz', -gä-rōō') n. Plural of loup-garou.

lour (lour) v. & n. Variant of lower¹.

Lourdes (lōörd, lōördz) A town of southwest France at the foot of the Pyrenees. It is noted for its Roman Catholic shrine marking the site where the Virgin Mary is said to have appeared to Saint Bernadette in 1858. Population, 17,425.

Lou-ren-ço Mar-ques (lə-rɛn'sō mār'kɛs, lô-rɛn'sōō mār'kɛsh) See Maputo.

lou-ry (lour'ē) adj. Variant of lowery.

louse (lous) n. 1. pl. lice (līs). Any of numerous small, flat-bodied, wingless biting or sucking insects of the orders Mallophaga or Anoplura, many of which are external parasites on various animals, including human beings. 2. pl. lous-es.

Slang. A mean or despicable person. — v. tr. loused, louse-ing, louse-es.

Slang. To bungle: loused the project; louse up a deal. [Middle English, from Old English lūs. See lūs- in Appendix.]

louse·wort (lous'wûrt', -wôrt') n. Any of numerous plants of the genus Pedicularis, having clusters of irregular, variously colored flowers. Also called wood betony [From the belief that sheep feeding on it were prone to lice.]

lous·y (lou'zē) adj. lous·i·er, lous·i·est. 1. Infested with lice. 2. Extremely contemptible; nasty: a lousy trick. 3. Very painful or unpleasant: a lousy headache. 4. Inferior or worthless: a lousy play. 5. Slang. Abundantly supplied: lousy with money. —lous'·i·ly adv. —lous'·i·ness n.

lout¹ (lout) n. A person regarded as awkward and stupid; an oaf. See Synonyms at boor. [Possibly from LOUT².]

lout² (lout) v. intr. lout·ed, lout·ing, louts. 1. To bow or curtsy. 2. To bend or stoop. [Middle English louten, from Old English lūtan.]

lout·ish (lou'tish) adj. Having the characteristics of a lout; awkward, stupid, and boorish. —lout'ish·ly adv. —lout'ish·ness n.

Lou·vain (lō-vān') also Leu·ven (lēv'ən) A city of central Belgium east of Brussels. First mentioned in the 9th century, it was a center of the wool trade in the Middle Ages but declined in the late 14th century because of civil strife. Its famed university dates from the 15th century. Population, 85,068.

lou·ver also lou·vre (lō'vər) n. 1. a. A framed opening, as in a wall, door, or window, fitted with fixed or movable horizontal slats for admitting air and light and shedding rain. b. One of the slats used in such an opening. c. One of the narrow openings formed by such slats. 2. A slatted, ventilating opening, as on the hood of a motor vehicle. 3. A lantern-shaped cupola on the roof of a medieval building for admitting air and providing for the escape of smoke. [Middle English lover, skylight, chimney, from Old French, from Middle Dutch love, gallery, from Middle High German lauble.] —lou'·vered adj.

Lou·ÿs (lō-ē', lwē), Pierre. 1870-1925. French writer whose novels include Aphrodite (1896) and Woman and Puppet (1908). Several of his love poems were set to music by Debussy.

lov·a·ble also love·a·ble (lŭv'ə-bəl) adj. Having characteristics that attract love or affection. —lov'a·bil'·i·ty, lov'a·ble·ness n. —lov'a·bly adv.

lov·age (lŭv'ij) n. A Mediterranean perennial plant (Levisticum officinale) having small, aromatic, seedlike fruit used as seasoning. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman luvesche, from Old English lufestice, from Medieval Latin levistica, from Late Latin levisticum, alteration of Latin ligusticum, from neuter of ligusticus, Ligurian.]

love (lŭv) n. 1. A deep, tender, ineffable feeling of affection and solicitude toward a person, such as that arising from kinship, recognition of attractive qualities, or a sense of underlying oneness. 2. A feeling of intense desire and attraction toward a person with whom one is disposed to make a pair; the emotion of sex and romance. 3. a. Sexual passion. b. Sexual intercourse. c. A love affair. 4. An intense emotional attachment, as for a pet or treasured object. 5. A person who is the object of deep or intense affection or attraction; beloved. Often used as a term of endearment. 6. An expression of one's affection: Send him my love.

7. a. A strong predilection or enthusiasm: a love of language. b. The object of such an enthusiasm: The outdoors is her greatest love. 8. Love. Mythology. Eros or Cupid. 9. Often Love. Theology. Charity. 10. Love. Christian Science. God. 11. Sports. A zero score in tennis. — v. loved, lov-ing, loves. — v. tr. 1. To have a deep, tender, ineffable feeling of affection and solicitude toward (a person): We love our parents. I love my friends. 2. To have a feeling of intense desire and attraction toward (a person). 3. To have an intense emotional attachment to: loves his house. 4. a. To embrace or caress. b. To have sexual intercourse with. 5. To like or desire enthusiastically: loves swimming. 6. Theology. To have charity for. 7. To thrive on; need: The cactus loves hot, dry air. — v. intr. To experience deep affection or intense desire for another. — idioms. for love. Out of compassion; with no thought for a reward: She volunteers at the hospital for love. for love or money. Under any circumstances. Usually used in negative sentences: I would not do that for love or money. for the love of. For the sake of; in consideration for: did it all for the love of praise. no love lost. No affection; animosity: There's no love lost between them. [Middle English, from Old English lufu. See leubh- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: love, affection, devotion, fondness, infatuation. These nouns denote feelings of warm personal attachment or strong attraction to another person. Love suggests a more intense feeling than that associated with the other words of this group: married for love. Affection is a less ardent and more unvarying feeling of tender regard: parental affection. Devotion is earnest, affectionate dedication; it implies a more selfless, often more abiding feeling than love: The devotion of the aged couple is inspiring. Fondness is strong liking or affection: showed their fondness for their grandchildren by financing their education. Infatuation is foolish or extravagant attraction, often of short duration: Their infatuation blinded them to the fundamental differences in their points of view. See also Synonyms at like¹ love-a-ble (lŭv'ə-bəl) adj. Variant of lovable.

love affair (lŭv ə-fâr') n. 1. An intimate sexual relationship or episode between lovers. 2. A strong enthusiasm: America's love affair with the automobile.

love apple (lŭv əp'əl) n. A tomato. [Probably translation of French pomme d'amour, (from the former belief in the tomato's aphrodisiacal powers) : pomme, apple + de, of + amour, love.]

love beads (lŭv bēdz) pl.n. Small beads on a necklace, especially ones worn by hippies.

love-bird (lŭv'bûrd') n. 1. Any of various small Old World parrots, especially of the genus Agapornis, often kept as cage birds and noted for the apparent affection between mates. 2. lovebirds. Informal. A couple who are openly affectionate or demonstrative with each other, especially in public.

love child (lŭv chĭld) n. A child born of parents who are not married to each other.

Love-craft (lŭv'krăft'), H(oward) P(hillips). 1890-1937. American writer of fantasy and horror tales. His works were collected in The Outsider and Others (1939), Beyond the Wall of Sleep (1943), and Marginalia (1944).

love feast (lŭv fĕst) n. 1. a. A meal shared among early Christians as a symbol of love. b. A similar symbolic meal among certain modern Christian sects. 2. A gathering intended to promote goodwill among the participants.

love handle (lŭv hăn'dl) n. Slang. A deposit of fat at the waistline. Often used in the plural.

love-in (lŭv'in') n. Slang. A gathering to engender and promote love, as for the satisfaction of the participants or as a form of social activism.

love-in-a-mist (lŭv'in-ə-mĭst') n. A Mediterranean plant (Nigella damascena) having blue or whitish flowers surrounded by numerous threadlike bracts.

Love-joy (lŭv'joi'), Elijah Parish. 1802-1837. American cleric and journalist who was killed while attempting to protect his printing press from a mob opposed to his abolitionist writings.

love knot (lŭv nŏt) n. A stylized knot regarded as a symbol of the constancy of two lovers. Also called lovers' knot, true lovers' knot.

Love-lace (lŭv'lās'), Richard. 1618-1657?. English Cavalier poet who is noted especially for the lyrics "To Althea, from Prison" and "To Lucasta, Going to the Wars."

Love-land (lŭv'lænd) A city of northern Colorado south of Fort Collins. It is a food-processing center with varied industries. Population, 37,352.

love-less (lŭv'lĭs) adj. 1. Characterized by an absence of love: a loveless marriage. 2. Exhibiting or feeling no love; unloving: a loveless glance. 3. Receiving no love; unloved: a loveless child.

love-lies-bleed-ing (lŭv'lĭz-blē'dĭng) n. A tropical Indian plant (Amaranthus caudatus) having clusters of small red flowers.

Lov-ell (lŭv'əl), Sir (Alfred Charles) Bernard. Born 1913. British radio astronomer who founded and directed (1951-1981) the Jodrell Bank Experimental Station.

love life (lŭv lĭf) n. The aspect of one's life including amatory or sexual relationships with others.

love-lock (lŭv'lŏk') n. A lock of hair hanging separately from the rest of the hair, as one tied with ribbon and worn by courtiers during the 17th and 18th centuries.

love-lorn (lŭv'lŏrn') adj. Bereft of love or one's lover.

love·ly (lŭv'lē) adj. love·li·er, love·li·est. 1. Full of love; loving. 2. Inspiring love or affection. 3. Having beauty that appeals to the emotions as well as to the eye. See Synonyms at beautiful. 4. Enjoyable; delightful. — n. pl. love·lies. 1. A beautiful person, especially a woman. 2. A lovely object. —love/li·ness n. —love/ly adv.

love·mak·ing (lŭv'mā'kĭng) n. 1. Sexual activity, especially sexual intercourse. 2. Courtship; wooing.

lov·er (lŭv'ər) n. 1. One who loves another, especially one who feels sexual love. 2. lovers. A couple in love with each other. 3. a. A paramour. b. A sexual partner. 4. One who is fond of or devoted to something: a lover of fine food. —lov'er·ly adv. & adj.

lov·ers' knot (lŭv'ərz nŏt) n. See love knot.

love seat or love·seat (lŭv'sēt') n. A small sofa or double chair that seats two people.

love·sick (lŭv'sĭk') adj. 1. So deeply affected by love as to be unable to act normally. 2. Exhibiting a lover's yearning. —love/sick'ness n.

lov·ey·dov·ey (lŭv'ē-dŭv'ē) adj. Informal. Expressing affection in an extravagantly sentimental way; mushy.

lov·ing (lŭv'ĭng) adj. 1. Feeling love; affectionate. 2. Indicative of or exhibiting love.

loving cup (lŭv'ĭng kŭp) n. 1. A large ornamental wine vessel, usually made of silver and having two or more handles. 2. A large ornamental vessel given as an award in modern sporting contests and similar events.

low¹ (lō) adj. low·er, low·est. 1. a. Having little relative height; not high or tall. b. Rising only slightly above surrounding surfaces. c. Situated or placed below normal height: a low lighting fixture. d. Situated below the surrounding surfaces: water standing in low spots. e. Dead and buried. f. Cut to show the wearer's neck and chest; décolleté: a low neckline. 2. Near or at the horizon: The sun is low in the sky. 3. Linguistics. Produced with part or all of the tongue depressed, as a, pronounced (ä), in father. Used of vowels. 4. Of less than usual or average depth; shallow: The river is low. 5. Humble in status or character. 6. Biology. Of relatively simple structure in the scale of living organisms. 7. Unrefined; coarse: low humor. 8. Violating standards of morality or decency; base: a low stunt to pull. See Synonyms at mean². 9. a. Lacking strength or vigor; weak. b. Emotionally or mentally depressed. 10. a. Below average in degree, intensity, or amount: a low temperature. b. Below an average or a standard: low wages; a low level of communication. c. Ranked near the beginning of an ascending series or scale: a low number; a low grade of oil. d. Relating to or being latitudes nearest to the equator. e. Relatively small. Used of a cost, price, or other value: a low fee; a low income. f. Characterized by a small degree, intensity, or amount of a specified attribute: a low cholesterol diet. 11. Having a pitch corresponding to a relatively small number of sound-wave cycles per second.

12. Not loud; soft: a low murmur. 13. Being near total depletion: My savings account is low. 14. Not adequately provided or equipped; short: low on supplies. 15. Depreciatory; disparaging: a low opinion of his qualities. 16. Brought down or reduced in health or wealth: in a low state. 17. Of, relating to, or being the gear configuration or setting, as in an automotive transmission, that produces the least vehicular speed with respect to engine speed. — adv. 1. a. In or to a low position, level, or space: aimed low; bent low. b. In or to a low condition or rank; humbly: thought low of himself. 2. In or to a reduced, humbled, or degraded condition: brought low by business reverses. 3. Softly; quietly: speak low. 4. With a deep pitch: sang low. 5. At a small price: bought low and sold high. — n. 1. A low level, position, or degree: Rain collects in the lows. The stock market fell to a new low. 2. Meteorology. A region of atmospheric pressure that is below normal. 3. The low gear configuration of a transmission. [Middle English loue, from Old Norse lāgr. See leg- in Appendix.] — low'ness n.

low² (lō) n. The characteristic sound uttered by cattle; a moo. — v. intr.

lowed, low-ing, lows. To utter the sound made by cattle; moo. [From Middle English lowen, to moo, from Old English hlōwan. See kel-² in Appendix.]

Low (lō), Sir David Alexander Cecil. 1891-1963. British political cartoonist who created the pompous Colonel Blimp.

Low (lō), Juliette Magill Kinzie Gordon. 1860-1927. American founder of the Girl Scouts (1912).

Low (lō), Seth. 1850-1916. American educator, reformer, and public official. He served as mayor of Brooklyn (1882-1886) and New York City (1901-1903).

low-ball or low·ball (lō'bōl') v. low--balled, low--bal·ling, low--balls. Slang. — v. tr. To underestimate or understate (a cost) deliberately: "He often took illegal cash payments from developers in return for... low-balling the cost of construction and renovation work" (Boston Globe). — v. intr. To engage in the deliberate understatement of cost. [From the card game of the same name.] — low'-ball adj.

low beam (lō bēm) n. The beam of a vehicle's headlight that provides short-range illumination.

low blow (lō blō) n. An unscrupulous attack; an insult.

low·born (lō'bōrn') adj. Of humble birth.

low·boy (lō'boi') n. A low tablelike chest of drawers.

low·bred (lō'brēd') adj. Coarse; vulgar.

low·brow (lō'brou') n. One having uncultivated tastes. — adj. also low·browed (-brou'd') Uncultivated; vulgar. [LOW¹ + (HIGH)BROW.]

Low Church (lō chûrch) n. A group in the Anglican Church that minimizes the episcopacy, priesthood, and sacraments and favors evangelical doctrines, polity, and usages. — Low'-Church' (lō'chûrch') adj.

low comedy (lō kŏm'ī-dē) n. Comedy characterized by slapstick, burlesque, and horseplay.

Low Countries (lō kŭn'trēz) A region of northwest Europe comprising Belgium, the Netherlands, and Luxembourg.

low-den-si-ty (lō'dĕn'sī-tē) adj. Having a low concentration: low-density urban areas.

low-density lipoprotein (lō'dĕn'sī-tē lĭp'ō-prŏ'tĕn') n. Abbr. LDL A complex of lipids and proteins that functions as a transporter of cholesterol in the blood. High levels are associated with an increased risk of atherosclerosis and coronary heart disease.

low-down (lō'doun') n. Slang. The whole truth: gave us the lowdown on what happened at the party.

low-down (lō'doun') adj. 1. Despicable; base. 2. Emotionally depressed.

Low-ell (lō'əl) A city of northeast Massachusetts on the Merrimack River northwest of Boston. Settled in 1653, it was once a major textile center and now has diversified industries. Population, 103,439.

Low-ell (lō'əl), Abbott Lawrence. 1856-1943. American educator and president (1909-1933) of Harvard University. He wrote Essays on Government (1889) and Conflicts of Principle (1932).

Low-ell (lō'əl), Amy. 1874-1925. American poet. A leader of the imagists, she wrote several volumes of poetry, including Sword Blades and Poppy Seed (1914).

Low-ell (lō'əl), James Russell. 1819-1891. American editor, poet, and diplomat. He edited the Atlantic Monthly (1857-1861) and served as U.S. minister to Spain (1877-1880) and Great Britain (1880-1885).

Low-ell (lō'əl), Percival. 1855-1916. American astronomer. He founded the Lowell Observatory in Arizona (1894), where his studies of Mars led him to believe that the planet was inhabited.

Low-ell (lō'əl), Robert Traill Spence, Jr. 1917-1977. American poet whose works include Life Studies (1959) and The Dolphin (1973), for which he won a Pulitzer Prize.

low-end (lō'ĕnd') adj. 1. Cheapest in a line of merchandise: low-end subcompact cars. 2. Informal. a. Appealing to unsophisticated and undiscerning customers: a low-end department store; low-end video equipment. b. Unsophisticated and undiscerning: books targeted to the low-end consumer.

low-er¹ (lou'ər, lour) also lour (lour) v. intr. low-ered also loured, low-er-ing also lour-ing, low-ers also lours. 1. To look angry, sullen, or threatening. See Synonyms at frown. 2. To appear dark or threatening, such as the sky. — n. 1. A threatening, sullen, or angry look. 2. A dark and ominous look: the lower of thunderheads. [Middle English louren.] —low'er-ing-ly adv.

low-er² (lō'ər) adj. Comparative of low¹. 1. Below another in rank, position, or authority. 2. Physically situated below a similar or comparable thing: a lower shelf. 3. Lower. Geology & Archaeology. Relating to or being an earlier or older division of the period named. 4. Biology. Less advanced in organization or evolutionary development. 5. Denoting the larger and usually more representative house of a bicameral legislature. — v. low-ered, low-er-ing, low-ers. — v. tr. 1. To let, bring, or move down to a lower level. 2. To reduce in value, degree, or quality. 3. To weaken; undermine: lower one's energy. 4. To reduce in standing or respect. — v. intr. 1. To move down: Her hand lowered. 2. To become less; diminish: The temperature has lowered gradually this month.

low-er bound (lō'ər bound) n. Mathematics. A number less than or equal to any number in a set.

Low-er Cal-i-for-nia (lō'ər käl'ī-fôr'nyə, -fôr'nē-ə) See Baja California.

Lower Can-a-da (lou'ər kăn'ə-də) The southern, mainly French-speaking portion of Quebec, Canada, from 1791 until 1841, when it was reunited with Upper Quebec to form the present-day province of Quebec.

Lower Carboniferous (lou'ər kār'bə-nif'ər-əs) n. See Mississippian (n., sense 2).

low-er-case or low-er-case (lō'ər-kās') Printing, adj. Abbr. lc Of, relating to, or being lowercase letters. — v. tr. lower-cased, lower-cas-ing, lower-cas-es. To put (type or text) in lowercase letters. — low'er-case' n.

lowercase letter (lō'ər-kās' lēt'ər) n. Printing. A letter written or printed in a size smaller than and often in a form differing from its corresponding capital letter. [From their storage in the lower of two trays used by compositors.]

low-er class (lō'ər klās) n. The class or classes of lower than middle rank in a society. — low'er-class' (lō'ər-klās') adj.

low-er-class-man (lō'ər-klās'mən) n. See underclassman.

low-er criticism (lō'ər krīt'ī-siz'əm) n. Critical study, especially of the Bible, that attends chiefly to the words of the work being examined, exploring their meaning and seeking to establish an accurate text. [As against HIGHER CRITICISM.]

Lower East Side (lou'ər ēst sīd) See East Side.

Lower E-gypt (lou'ər ē'jīpt) The part of ancient Egypt comprising the Nile River delta. It was united with Upper Egypt c. 3100 B.C.

Lower En-ga-dine (lou'ər ɛŋg'gə-dēn') See Engadine.

Lower Klam-ath (lou'ər klām'əth) A lake of northern California formerly connected with Upper Klamath Lake in southern Oregon.

Lower Mich-i-gan (lou'ər mīsh'ī-gən) See Lower Peninsula.

low-er-most (lō'ər-mōst') adj. Lowest.

Lower New York Bay (lō'ər nōō yōrk' bā, nyōō) See New York Bay.

Lower Pa-lat-i-nate (lou'ər pə-lăt'n-īt) See Palatinate.

Lower Peninsula (lō'ər pə-nīn'syə-lə) also Lower Mich-i-gan (lō'ər mīsh'ī-gən) The section of Michigan between Lakes Michigan and Huron and south of the Straits of Mackinac.

Lower Tun-gus-ka (lou'ər tōŋg-gō'skə, tōn-) See Tunguska.

low-er world (lō'ər wŭrl'd) n. Mythology. The abode of the dead, considered to be beneath the surface of the earth.

low-er-y (lou'ə-rē) also lour-y (lour'ē) adj. Overcast; threatening.

Lowes (lōz), John Livingston. 1867-1945. American educator and literary critic who wrote Convention and Revolt in Poetry (1919) and The Road to Xanadu (1927).

low-est common denominator (lō'ɪst kōm'ən dī-nōm'ə-nā'tər) n.

1. Mathematics. See least common denominator. 2. That which is understood, believed, or accepted by a majority of people: "The press can resist the standard of the lowest common denominator, the rationalization that all news is fit to print that has appeared anywhere else" (Edward M. Kennedy).

lowest common multiple (lō'ɪst kōm'ən mŭl'tə-pəl) n. Mathematics. See least common multiple.

Lowes-toft (lō'stəf, -stōft', -stōft') A municipal borough of extreme eastern England on the North Sea east-southeast of Norwich. A seaside resort, it is famous for the fine bone china produced here in the latter half of the 18th century. Population, 55,800.

lowest terms (lō'ɪst tŭrmz) pl.n. Mathematics. The numerator and denominator of a fraction that have had all common factors but 1 factored out and canceled.

low frequency (lō frē'kwən-sē) n. Abbr. LF, lf A radio frequency in the range from 30 to 300 kilohertz.

low gear (lō gîr) n. 1. The low gear configuration of a transmission. 2. A state of minimum activity, energy, or force: The project went into low gear during summer vacation.

Low German (lō jŭr'mən) n. 1. The German dialects of northern Germany. Also called Plattdeutsch 2. The continental West Germanic languages except High German. [Translation of German Plattdeutsch : platt, flat (from the terrain of northern Germany) + Deutsch, German.]

low-grade (lō'grād') adj. 1. Of inferior grade or quality: low-grade merchandise. 2. Reduced in degree or intensity: a low-grade fever.

Lo-wie (lō'ē), Robert Harry. 1883-1957. Austrian-born American anthropologist noted for his studies of Native Americans of the Plains.

low-in-come (lō'ɪn'kŭm) adj. Of or relating to individuals or households supported by an average or slightly below average income.

low-key (lō'kē') also low-keyed (-kēd') adj. 1. Having low intensity; restrained, as in style or quality; subdued. 2. Having or producing uniformly dark tones with little contrast, as in a photograph.

low-land (lō'lænd) n. An area of land that is low in relation to the surrounding country. — adj. Relating to or characteristic of low, usually level land.

low-land-er (lō'lən-dər) n. A native or inhabitant of a lowland.

Low-lands (lō'lændz) A region of Scotland lying south of the Highlands.

—Low'land adj. —Low'land-er n.

low-lev-el (lō'lěv'əl) adj. 1. Relating to or being of low rank or importance: a low-level job. 2. Situated in or occurring at a low level: low-level radiation.

3. Computer Science. Of or relating to a computer language, such as an assembly language, in which each instruction corresponds to an instruction in machine language.

low-life also low-life (lō'līf') n. pl. low-lives also low-lives (-līvz'). A person of low social status or moral character: "explores a world of London lowlives in sinister prosperity" (Times Literary Supplement). —low'life adj.

low-ly (lō'lē) adj. low-li-er, low-li-est. 1. Having or suited for a low rank or position. 2. Humble or meek in manner. 3. Plain or prosaic in nature. — adv.

1. In a low manner, condition, or position. 2. In a meek or humble manner.

3. Low in sound. —low'li-ness n.

low-ly-ing (lō'lī'ing) adj. 1. Lying close to water or ground level: low-lying coastal areas. 2. Situated below the normal height or altitude: low-lying deserts of central Arizona.

Low Mass (lō mäs) n. A Mass of simple ceremony that was recited rather than sung by the priest. No longer in official use.

low-mind-ed (lō'mīn'dīd) adj. Exhibiting a coarse, vulgar character.

—low'-mind'ed-ly adv. —low'-mind'ed-ness n.

Lowndes (loundz), William Thomas. 1798-1843. British bibliographer and bookseller who compiled The Bibliographer's Manual of English Literature (1820-1834).

low-necked (lō'někt') also low-neck (-něk') adj. Having a low-cut neckline; décolleté.

low-pitched (lō'pīcht') adj. 1. Low in tone or tonal range. 2. Having a moderate slope: a low-pitched roof.

low-pres-sure (lō'prěsh'ər) adj. 1. Having, working under, or exerting little pressure. 2. Relaxed in attitude, nature, or style; easygoing: a low-pressure life-style; a low-pressure personality.

low profile (lō prō'fīl') n. Behavior or activity carried out with deliberate restraint or modesty so as not to attract attention: keep a low profile. —low'-pro'file' (lō'prō'fīl') adj.

low relief (lō rī-lěf') n. Sculptural relief that projects very little from the background. Also called bas-relief, basso-relievo.

low-res (lō'rěz') adj. Low-resolution.

low-res-o-lu-tion (lō'rěz'ə-lōō'shən) adj. 1. Of or relating to an image that lacks fine detail. 2. Computer Science. Of or relating to an output device, such as a printer, whose images do not contain a large number of pixels and therefore lack sharpness and may have jagged edges.

low rider or low-rid-er (lō'ri'dər) n. Chiefly Southwestern U.S. 1. A customized car whose springs have been shortened so that the chassis rides close to the ground, often equipped with hydraulic lifts that can be controlled by the driver: "a 1964 Chevrolet Impala low rider belonging to Clemente Fuentes, who can make the car rock and wobble like a conga dancer" (Edmund Newton). 2. A person who drives such a car. —low rid'er adj.

low-rise (lō'rīz') adj. Of or relating to a building having few stories and often no elevators: a low-rise apartment house. [LOW¹ + (HIGH)-RISE.]

low road (lō rōd) n. Behavior or practice that is deceitful or immoral: He spent much of the campaign on the low road, making scurrilous and unsubstantiated remarks about the incumbent's past.

Low-ry (lou'rē), (Clarence) Malcolm. 1909-1957. British writer. His novel Under the Volcano (1947) is recognized as a masterpiece of modern fiction.

low-spir-it-ed (lō'spīr'ī-tīd) adj. Being in low spirits; depressed. —low'-spir'it-ed-ly adv. —low'-spir'it-ed-ness n.

Low Sunday (lō sūn'dē) n. The first Sunday after Easter.

low-tech (lō'tēk') adj. Of or relating to low technology.

low technology (lō tēk-nōl'ə-jē) n. Technology that does not involve highly advanced or specialized systems or devices. —low'-tech-nol'o-gy (lō'tēk-nōl'ə-jē) adj.

low-ten-sion (lō'tēn'shən) adj. 1. Of or at low potential or voltage.

2. Operating at low voltage.

low-test (lō'tēst') adj. Having low volatility and a high boiling point. Used of gasoline. [LOW¹ + (HIGH)-TEST.]

low-tick-et (lō'tīk'īt) adj. Informal. Fairly inexpensive: low-ticket merchandise.

low tide (lō tīd) n. 1. The lowest level of the tide. 2. The time at which the tide is lowest. Also called low water — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a low tide mark; a low tide departure.

low water (lō wō'tər) n. Abbr. LW 1. The lowest level of water in a body of water, such as a river, lake, or reservoir. 2. See low tide.

lox¹ (lōks) n. pl. lox or lox-es. Smoked salmon. [Yiddish laks, from Middle High German lahs, salmon, from Old High German. See laks- in Appendix.]

lox² (lōks) n. Liquid oxygen, especially when used as a rocket fuel oxidizer. [L(IQUID) + OX(YGEN).]

lox-o-drom-ic (lōk'sə-drōm'īk) also lox-o-drom-i-cal (-ī-kəl) adj. Nautical. Relating to sailing on a rhumb line. [Greek loxos, slanting + Greek dromos, course.] —lox'o-drom'i-cal-ly adv.

loxodromic curve (lōk'sə-drōm'īk kûrv) n. Nautical. See rhumb line.

loy·al (loi'əl) adj. 1. Steadfast in allegiance to one's homeland, government, or sovereign. 2. Faithful to a person, an ideal, a custom, a cause, or a duty. 3. Of, relating to, or marked by loyalty. See Synonyms at faithful. [French, from Old French leial, loial, from Latin lĕgālis, legal, from lĕx, lĕg-, law. See leg- in Appendix.] —loy'al-ly adv.

loy·al·ist (loi'ə-lĭst) n. 1. One who maintains loyalty to an established government, political party, or sovereign, especially during war or revolutionary change. 2. Loyalist. See Tory (n., sense 2). 3. Loyalist. One who supported the established government of Spain during the Spanish Civil War. —loy'al-ism n.

loy·al·ty (loi'əl-tē) n. pl. loy·al·ties. 1. The state or quality of being loyal. See Synonyms at fidelity. 2. loyalties. Feelings of devoted attachment and affection: My loyalties lie with my family.

Loy-al-ty Islands (loi'əl-tē ī'ləndz) A group of coral islands of the southwest Pacific Ocean northwest of New Caledonia, of which they are an administrative division.

Lo·yang (lō'yäng') See Luoyang.

Loy·o·la (loi-ō'lə), Saint Ignatius of. See Saint. Ignatius of Loyola.

loz·enge (löz'ĭnj) n. 1. A small, medicated candy intended to be dissolved slowly in the mouth to lubricate and soothe irritated tissues of the throat. 2. a. A four-sided planar figure with a diamondlike shape; a rhombus that is not a square. b. Something having this shape, especially a heraldic device. [Middle English, rhombus, from Old French losenge, perhaps of Celtic origin.]

Lo·zi·er (lō'zē-ər), Clemence Sophia Harned. 1813-1888. American physician and feminist. She founded (1863) the New York Medical College and Hospital for Women and led (1877-1878) the National Woman Suffrage Association.

LP (ĕl'pē') n. pl. LP's or LPs. A long-playing phonograph record. [Originally a trademark.]

LPG abbr. Liquefied petroleum gas.

LPM or lpm abbr. Lines per minute.

LPN or L.P.N. abbr. Licensed practical nurse.

Lr The symbol for the element lawrencium.

LR abbr. Living room.

L/R abbr. Left/right.

L.S. abbr. Latin. Locus sigilli (the place of the seal).

LSAT abbr. Law School Admissions Test.

LSD¹ (ĕl'ĕs-dē') n. A crystalline compound, C₂₀H₂₅N₃O, derived from lysergic acid and used as a powerful hallucinogenic drug. Also called acid, lysergic acid diethylamide. [L(Y)S(ERGIC ACID) D(IETHYLAMIDE).]

LSD² abbr. Least significant digit.

LSI abbr. Large-scale integration.

lt. abbr. Light.

Lt. abbr. Lieutenant.

l.t. or LT abbr. Local time.

Lt. Col. or LTC abbr. Lieutenant colonel.

Lt. Comdr. abbr. Lieutenant commander.

ltd. or Ltd. abbr. 1. Limited. 2. Limited company.

Lt. Gen. or LTG abbr. Lieutenant general.

Lt. Gov. abbr. Lieutenant governor.

LTJG abbr. Lieutenant junior grade.

Lu The symbol for the element lutetium.

Lu-an-da (lō-än'də) also Lo-an-da (lō-än'də) The capital and largest city of Angola, in the northwest part of the country on the Atlantic Ocean. Founded by the Portuguese in 1575, it has a fine natural harbor and diversified industries. Population, 1,200,000.

Lu-ang-wa (lō-äng'wä) A river, about 805 km (500 mi) long, of eastern Zambia flowing south-southwest to the Zambezi River.

lu-au (lō-ou', lō'ou') n. A traditional, elaborate Hawaiian feast. [Hawaiian lu'au.]

Lu-ba (lō'bə) n. pl. Luba or Lu-bas. 1. A member of a Bantu people inhabiting southeast Zaire. 2. The Bantu language of this people. In this sense, also called Tshiluba

Lu-ba-vitch-er (lō-bä'vī-chər, lō'bə-vīch'ər) n. A member of a Hasidic community founded in Russia in the late 18th century that stresses the importance of religious study. — adj. Of or relating to this movement and its followers. [Yiddish Libavitsher, from Libavitsh, Jewish town in Russia where the movement originated.]

lub-ber (lüb'ər) n. 1. A clumsy person. 2. Nautical. An inexperienced sailor; a landlubber. [Middle English lobur, lazy lout; akin to lob, lout. See LOB.]

—lub'ber-ly adv. & adj.

lubber line (lüb'ər līn) also lub-ber's line (lüb'ərz līn) n. A line or mark on a compass or cathode-ray indicator that represents the heading of a ship or an aircraft.

lubber's hole (lüb'ərz hōl) n. Nautical. A hole through the platform surrounding the upper part of a ship's mast, through which one may climb to go aloft.

Lub-bock (lüb'ək) A city of northwest Texas south of Amarillo. Settled in 1879, it is an industrial center in an agricultural region. Population, 186,206.

Lub-bock (lüb'ək), Sir John First Baron Avebury. 1834-1913. British banker, politician, and naturalist. He is best known as a writer of popular science books, including The Origin and Metamorphoses of Insects (1874) and British Wild Flowers (1875).

lube (lōōb) Informal. v. tr. lubed, lub-ing, lubes. To lubricate (a car's joints, for example). — n. A lubricant, especially one applied to machinery: silicone lube. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a lube job; a lube rack.

Lü-beck (lōō'bĕk', lü'-) A city of north-central Germany northeast of Hamburg. A major Baltic port and industrial center, the present city dates from 1143 and was the leading town of the Hanseatic League after its designation as a free city in 1226. It retained that status until 1937. Population, 211,707.

Lu-bitsch (lōō'bĭch), Ernst. 1892-1947. German filmmaker whose sophisticated comedies include Trouble in Paradise (1932) and Ninotchka (1939).

Lu-blin (lōō'blən, -blĕn') A city of eastern Poland southeast of Warsaw. Chartered in 1317, it passed to Austria in 1795 and Russia in 1815. Population, 324,100.

lu-bri-cant (lōō'brī-kənt) n. 1. A substance, such as grease or oil, that reduces friction when applied as a surface coating to moving parts. 2. One that helps reduce difficulty or conflict. —lu'brī-cant adj.

lu-bri-cate (lōō'brī-kāt') v. lu-bri-cat-ed, lu-bri-cat-ing, lu-bri-cates. — v. tr. 1. To apply a lubricant to. 2. To make slippery or smooth. — v. intr. To act as a lubricant. [Latin lūbricāre, lūbricāt-, from lūbricus, slippery. See sleubh- in Appendix.] —lu'brī-ca'tion n. —lu'brī-ca'tive adj.

lu-bri-ca-tor (lōō'brī-kā'tər) n. 1. One that lubricates, especially a lubricant. 2. A device for applying a lubricant.

lu-bri-cious (lōō-brīsh'əs) also lu-bri-cous (lōō'brī-kəs) adj. 1. Having a slippery or smooth quality. 2. Shifty or tricky. 3. a. Lewd; wanton. b. Sexually stimulating; salacious. [Alteration of lubricous, from Latin lūbricus, slippery. See sleubh- in Appendix.] —lu-bri'cious-ly adv. —lu-bri'cious-ness n.

lu-bric-i-ty (lōō-brīs'ī-tē) n. The quality or condition of being lubricious. [Late Latin lūbricitās, slipperiness, from Latin lūbricus, slippery. See sleubh- in Appendix.]

lu-bri-cous (lōō'brī-kəs) adj. Variant of lubricious.

Lu-bum-ba-shi (lōō'bōōm-bā'shē) Formerly E-lis-a-beth-ville (ī-līz'ə-bəth-vīl'). A city of southeast Zaire near the Zambia border. Founded in 1910, it was the center of a secessionist state during the civil war in Zaire (1960-1963). Population, 543,268.

Lu-can (lōō'kən), A.D. 39-65. Roman poet who wrote the Pharsalia, an epic account of the civil war between Caesar and Pompey.

Lu-ca-ni-a (lōō-kā'nĕ-ə, -kān'yə), Mount. A peak, 5,229.8 m (17,147 ft) high, of the St. Elias Mountains in southwest Yukon Territory, Canada, near the Alaskan border.

lu·carne (lōō-kärn') n. A dormer window. [French, from Old French, alteration (influenced by luiserne, light, from Latin lūcerna, lamp,); see LUCERNE, of Old Provençal lucana, possibly of Germanic origin.]

Luc-ca (lōō'kə) A city of northwest Italy west of Florence. On the site of an ancient Ligurian settlement and a Roman colony, it became a free commune in the 12th century and was later an independent republic. Population, 91,097.

Luce (lōōs), Clare Boothe. 1902-1987. American writer and public official. She wrote several plays, including The Women (1936), and served as ambassador to Italy (1953-1956).

Luce (lōōs), Henry Robinson. 1898-1967. American editor and publisher who cofounded Time (1923) and founded Fortune (1930), Life (1936), and Sports Illustrated (1954).

lu·cent (lōō'sənt) adj. 1. Giving off light; luminous. 2. Translucent; clear. [Latin lūcēns, lūcent- present participle of lūcēre, to shine. See leuk- in Appendix.] —lu'cent·cy n. —lu'cent·ly adv.

lu·cerne (lōō-sŭrn') n. Chiefly British. Alfalfa. [French luzerne, from Provençal luzerno, glowworm (perhaps from its shiny seeds), from Latin lūcerna, lamp, from lūcēre, to shine. See LUCID.]

Lu·cerne (lōō-sŭrn', lü-sĕrn') A city of central Switzerland on the northern shore of the Lake of Lucerne, an irregularly shaped lake surrounded by mountains. The city developed around a monastery founded in the eighth century and is a major resort. Population, 61,000.

lu·ces (lōō'sēz) n. A plural of lux.

Lu·cian (lōō'shən), fl. second century A.D. Greek satirist. His two major works, Dialogues of the Gods and Dialogues of the Dead, ridicule Greek philosophy and mythology.

lu·cid (lōō'sid) adj. 1. Easily understood; intelligible. 2. Mentally sound; sane or rational. 3. Translucent or transparent. See Synonyms at clear. [Latin lūcidus, from lūcēre, to shine. See leuk- in Appendix.] —lu·cid'i·ty, lu'cid·ness n. —lu'cid·ly adv.

Lu·ci·fer (lōō'sə-fər) n. 1. The archangel cast from heaven for leading the revolt of the angels; Satan. 2. The planet Venus in its appearance as the morning star. 3. lucifer. A friction match. [Middle English, from Old English, morning star, Lucifer, from Late Latin Lūcifer, from Latin, morning star, light-bringer : lūx, lūc-, light; see leuk- in Appendix + -fer, -fer.]

lu·cif·er·ase (lōō-sif'ə-rās', -rāz') n. An enzyme present in the cells of bioluminescent organisms that catalyzes the oxidation of luciferin.

lu·cif·er·in (lōō-sif'ər-ĭn) n. A chemical substance present in the cells of bioluminescent organisms, such as fireflies, that produces an almost heatless, bluish-green light when oxidized under the catalytic effects of luciferase. [Latin lūcifer, light-bringing; see LUCIFER + -IN.]

Lu-ci-na (lōō-sī'nə) n. Archaic. A midwife. [Latin Lūcīna, goddess of childbirth, from feminine of lūcīnus, light-bringing, from lūx, lūc-, light. See leuk- in Appendix.]

Lu-cite (lōō'sīt') A trademark used for a transparent thermoplastic acrylic resin employed in paints, enamels, and primers.

luck (lūk) n. 1. The chance happening of fortunate or adverse events; fortune: as luck would have it. 2. Good fortune or prosperity; success: We wish you luck.

3. One's personal fate or lot: It's just my luck. — v. intr. lucked, luck-ing, lucks. Informal. To gain success or something desirable by chance: lucked into a good apartment; lucked out in finding that rare book. — idioms. in luck. Enjoying success; fortunate. out of luck. Lacking good fortune. push (one's) luck. To risk one's good fortune, often by acting overconfidently. try (one's) luck. To attempt something without knowing if one will be successful. [Middle English lucke, from Middle Dutch luc, short for gheluc.]

luck-i-ly (lūk'ə-lē) adv. With or by favorable chance: Luckily, the police came right away.

luck-less (lūk'līs) adj. Marked by, suffering, or promising lack of luck; unlucky. See Synonyms at unfortunate.

Luck-now (lūk'nou) A city of north-central India east-southeast of Delhi. Once the capital of the kingdom of Oudh (1775-1856), it was besieged for five months during the Indian Mutiny of 1857. Population, 895,721.

luck-y (lūk'ē) adj. luck-i-er, luck-i-est. 1. Having or attended by good luck. See Synonyms at happy. 2. Occurring by chance; fortuitous. 3. Believed to bring good luck: hoped to draw a lucky number. — luck'i-ness n.

lu-cra-tive (lōō'krə-tīv) adj. Producing wealth; profitable: a lucrative income; a lucrative marketing strategy. [Middle English lucratif, from Old French, from Latin lucrātīvus, from lucrātus, past participle of lucrārī, to profit, from lucrum, profit. See lau- in Appendix.]

lu-cre (lōō'kər) n. Money or profits. [Middle English, from Latin lucrum. See lau- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: When William Tyndale translated aiskhron kerdos, “shameful gain” (Titus 1:11), as filthy lucre in his edition of the Bible, he was tarring the word lucre for the rest of its existence. But we cannot lay the pejorative sense of lucre completely at Tyndale's door. He was merely a link, albeit a strong one, in a process that had begun long before with respect to the ancestor of our word, the Latin word lucrum, “material gain, profit.” This process was probably controlled by the inevitable conjunction of profit, especially monetary profit, with evils such as greed. In Latin lucrum also meant “avarice,” and in Middle English lucre, besides meaning “monetary gain, profit,” meant “illicit gain.” Furthermore, many of the contexts in which the neutral sense of the word appeared were not that neutral, as in “It is a wofull thyng... ffor lucre of goode... A man to fals his othe [it is a sad thing for a man to betray his oath for monetary gain].” Tyndale thus merely helped the process along when he gave us the phrase filthy lucre.

Lu-cre-tius (lōō-krēʹshəs, -shē-əs), 96?-55? B.C. Roman philosopher and poet who is famous for De Rerum Natura (On the Nature of Things), a long poem that attempts to explain the universe in scientific terms in order to free people from superstition and fear of the unknown. —Lu-cre-tian (-shən) adj.

lu-cu-brate (lōōʹkyōō-brātʹ) v. intr. lu-cu-brat-ed, lu-cu-brat-ing, lu-cu-brates. To write in a scholarly fashion; produce scholarship. [Latin lūcubrāre, lūcubrāt-, to work at night by lamplight. See leuk- in Appendix.]

lu-cu-bra-tion (lōōʹkyōō-brāʹshən) n. 1. Laborious study or meditation. 2. Often lucubrations. Writing produced by laborious effort or study, especially pedantic or pretentious writing.

lu-cu-lent (lōōʹkyōō-lənt) adj. Easily understood; clear or lucid. [Middle English, shiny, from Latin lūculentus, from lūx, lūc-, light. See leuk- in Appendix.]

Lu-cul-lan (lōō-külʹən) adj. 1. Lavish; luxurious. 2. Of or relating to Lucullus or his luxurious banquets. [After Lucius Licinius LUCULLUS.]

Lu-cul-lus (lōō-külʹəs), Lucius Licinius. 110?-57? B.C. Roman general and consul noted for his self-indulgence.

Lü-da also Lü-ta (lōōʹdäʹ, lüʹ-) An industrial conurbation of northeast China on Korea Bay at the southern end of the Liaodong Peninsula. It includes the cities of Lushun and Dalian. Population, 1,380,000.

Lud-dite (lūdʹit) n. 1. Any of a group of British workers who between 1811 and 1816 rioted and destroyed laborsaving textile machinery in the belief that such machinery would diminish employment. 2. One who opposes technical or technological change. [After Ned Ludd, an English laborer who was supposed to have destroyed weaving machinery around 1779.] —Lud/dism n.

lude (lōōd) n. Slang. A pill or tablet containing methaqualone. [Short for QUAALUDE.]

Lu-den-dorff (lōōdʹn-dôrfʹ), Erich Friedrich Wilhelm von. 1865-1937. German general and politician. He was chief of staff in the east during World War I.

Lü-den-scheid (lōōdʹn-shītʹ, lüdʹ-) A city of west-central Germany east of Düsseldorf. Chartered in 1287, it is an industrial center. Population, 73,496.

Lu-dhi-a-na (lōōʹdē-äʹnə) A city of northwest India north-northwest of Delhi. It is an industrial center and a railroad junction. Population, 607,502.

lu-dic (lōōʹdik) adj. Of, relating to, or connoting play or playfulness: “Fiction... now makes [language] the center of its reflexive concern, and explodes in ludic, parodic, ironic forms” (Ihab Hassan). [French ludique, from Latin lūdus, play. See leid- in Appendix.]

lu·di·crous (lōō'dī-krəs) adj. Laughable or hilarious because of obvious absurdity or incongruity. See Synonyms at foolish. [From Latin lūdicrus, sportive, from lūdus, game. See leid- in Appendix.] —lu'di-crous-ly adv.

—lu'di-crous-ness n.

Lud·low (lūd'lō) A town of southwest Massachusetts, an industrial suburb of Springfield. It was set off from Springfield in 1774. Population, 18,820.

Lud·wigs·burg (lōōd'vīgz-būrg', lōōt'vīkhs-bōōrk') A city of southwest Germany north of Stuttgart. It grew around a baroque 18th-century castle built in imitation of Versailles. Population, 77,054.

Lud·wigs·ha·fen (lōōd'vīgz-hä'fən, lōōt'vīkhs-) A city of southwest Germany on the Rhine River opposite Mannheim. Founded as a fortress in the early 17th century, it is now a leading center of the country's chemical industry. Population, 155,311.

lu·es (lōō'ēz) n. pl. lues. Syphilis. [New Latin luēs, from Latin, plague. See leu- in Appendix.] —lu-et'ic (-ēt'ik) adj. —lu-et'i-cal-ly adv.

luff (lŭf) n. 1. Nautical. a. The act of sailing closer into the wind. b. The forward side of a fore-and-aft sail. 2. Archaic. The fullest part of the bow of a ship. — v. luffed, luff-ing, luffs. — v. intr. Nautical. 1. To steer a sailing vessel closer into the wind, especially with the sails flapping. 2. To flap while losing wind. Used of a sail. — v. tr. 1. Nautical. To sail (a vessel, such as a yacht) closer into the wind during a race so as to prevent an opponent's craft from passing on the windward side. 2. To raise or lower (the boom of a crane or derrick). [Middle English lof, spar holding out the windward tack of a square sail, from Old French, probably of Germanic origin.]

luf·fa (lōō'fə, lŭf'ə) n. Variant of loofa.

Luf·kin (lŭf'kīn) A city of eastern Texas north-northeast of Houston. It is a commercial and industrial center in a lumbering region. Population, 30,206.

Luft·waf·fe (lōōft'väf'ə) n. The German air force before and during World War II. [German : Luft, air (from Middle High German, from Old High German) + Waffe, weapon (from Middle High German wāfen, from Old High German waffan).]

lug¹ (lŭg) n. 1. A handle or projection used as a hold or support. 2. A lug nut. 3. Nautical. A lugsail. 4. A projecting part of a larger piece that helps to provide traction, as on a tire or the sole of a boot. 5. A copper or brass fitting to which electrical wires can be soldered or otherwise connected. 6. Slang. A clumsy fool; a blockhead. [Middle English lugge, earflap, probably of Scandinavian origin.]

lug² (lŭg) v. lugged, lug-ging, lugs. — v. tr. 1. To drag or haul (an object) laboriously. 2. To pull or drag with short jerks. 3. To cause (an engine, for example) to run poorly or hesitate: If you drive too slowly in third gear, you'll lug the engine. — v. intr. 1. To pull something with difficulty; tug. 2. To move along by jerks or as if under a heavy burden. 3. To run poorly or hesitate because of strain. Used of an engine: The motor lugged as they drove up the hill. — n.

1. Archaic. a. The act of lugging. b. Something lugged. 2. A box for shipping fruit or vegetables. [Middle English luggen, of Scandinavian origin.]

luge (lōōzh) n. Sports. 1. A racing sled for one or two people that is ridden with the rider or riders lying supine. 2. A competition in which these sleds race against a clock. [French dialectal, from Medieval Latin sludia, perhaps of Celtic origin.] —luge v. —lug'er n.

lug-gage (lŭg'ij) n. 1. Containers for a traveler's belongings. 2. The cases and belongings of a traveler. [Probably LUG² + (BAG)GAGE.]

lug-ger (lŭg'ər) n. Nautical. A small boat used for fishing, sailing, or coasting and having two or three masts, each with a lugsail, and two or three jibs set on the bowsprit. [From LUGSAIL.]

lug nut (lŭg nŭt) n. A heavy, rounded nut that fits over a bolt, used especially to attach an automotive vehicle's wheel to its axle.

Lu-go (lōō'gō) A city of northwest Spain west-southwest of Oviedo. It is a trade center with well-preserved Roman walls dating from the third century B.C. Population, 62,300.

Lu-go-si (lōō-gō'sē, lə-), Bela. 1884-1956. Hungarian-born American actor known for portraying monsters in a number of films, including Dracula (1931) and The Wolf Man (1941).

lug-sail (lŭg'səl) n. Nautical. A quadrilateral sail that lacks a boom, has the foot larger than the head, and is bent to a yard hanging obliquely on the mast. [Possibly from LUG¹.]

lu-gu-bri-ous (lōō-gōō'brē-əs, -gyōō'-) adj. Mournful, dismal, or gloomy, especially to an exaggerated or ludicrous degree. [From Latin lūgubris, from lūgēre, to mourn.] —lu-gu'bri-ous-ly adv. —lu-gu'bri-ous-ness n.

lug-worm (lŭg'wŭrm') n. Any of various segmented, burrowing marine worms of the genus Arenicola, especially A. marina, often used as fishing bait. Also called lobworm [Origin unknown.]

Lui-chow Peninsula (lwē'jō' pə-nŭn'syə-lə) See Leizhou Peninsula.

Lui-se-ño (lwē-sān'yō) n. pl. Luisseño or Lui-se-ños. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting the coastal area of California south of Los Angeles, associated during Spanish times with the missions of San Luis Rey and San Juan Capistrano. b. A member of this people. 2. The Uto-Aztecan language of the Luisseño. [American Spanish, from San Luis Rey de Francia, a mission in southern California.]

Luke (lōōk) n. Abbr. Lk Bible. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

Luke (lōok), Saint. First century A.D. Companion of Saint Paul and author of the third Gospel of the New Testament. He is considered the patron saint of painters and physicians.

luke-warm (lōok'wōrm') adj. 1. Mildly warm; tepid. 2. Lacking conviction or enthusiasm; indifferent: gave only lukewarm support to the incumbent candidate. [Middle English leukwarm : leuk, luke (possibly variant of leu, from Old English -hlēow); see kelə-¹ in Appendix + warm, warm; see WARM.]

—luke/warm/ly adv. —luke/warm/ness n.

Luks (lüks), George. 1867-1933. American painter known for his studies of urban life, including The Spielers (1905).

Lu-le-å (lōo'lě-ô', lü'-) A city of northeast Sweden on the Gulf of Bothnia. Chartered in 1621, it was rebuilt after a devastating fire in 1887. Population, 66,811.

Lu-le-älv (lōo'lě-ôlv', lü'lə-ělv') A river, about 443 km (275 mi) long, of northern Sweden flowing southeast to the Gulf of Bothnia.

lull (lül) v. lulled, lull-ing, lulls. — v. tr. 1. To cause to sleep or rest; soothe or calm. 2. To deceive into trustfulness: “that honeyed charm that he used so effectively to lull his victims” (S.J. Perelman). — v. intr. To become calm. — n. 1. A relatively calm interval, as in a storm. 2. An interval of lessened activity: a lull in sales. [Middle English lullen, possibly of Low German origin.]

lull-a-by (lül'ə-bī') n. pl. lull-a-bies. Music. A soothing song with which to lull a child to sleep. — v. tr. lull-a-bied, lull-a-bying, lull-a-bies. To quiet with or as if with a lullaby. [Obsolete lulla, word used in lullabies (from Middle English lullai, from lullen, to lull); see LULL + by, bye (as in GOOD-BYE).]

Lul-ly (lōo-lē', lü-), Jean Baptiste. 1632-1687. Italian-born French composer. He was court composer to Louis XIV, founding the national French opera and producing court ballets for Molière's plays.

Lul-ly (lül'ē), Raymond. 1235?-1316. Spanish philosopher and mystic who attempted to identify the common elements shared by Christianity, Islam, and Judaism. His principal work is Ars Magna (The Great Art).

lu-lu (lōo'lōo) n. Slang. A remarkable person, object, or idea. [Alteration (probably influenced by the nickname Lulu), of obsolete looly.]

lum-ba-go (lüm-bā'gō) n. A painful condition of the lower back, as one resulting from muscle strain or a slipped disk. [Late Latin lumbāgō, from Latin lumbus, loin.]

lum-bar (lüm'bær, -bär') adj. Of, near, or situated in the part of the back and sides between the lowest ribs and the pelvis. — n. A lumbar artery, nerve, vertebra, or part. [New Latin lumbāris, from Latin lumbus, loin.]

lumbar puncture (lüm'bær püŋk'chər) n. The insertion of a hollow needle beneath the arachnoid membrane of the spinal cord in the lumbar region to withdraw cerebrospinal fluid for diagnostic purposes or to administer medication.

lum·ber¹ (lŭm' bær) n. 1. Timber sawed into boards, planks, or other structural members of standard or specified length. 2. Something useless or cumbersome. 3. Chiefly British. Miscellaneous stored articles. — v. lum·bered, lum·ber·ing, lum·bers. — v. tr. 1. a. To cut down (trees) and prepare as marketable timber. b. To cut down the timber of. 2. Chiefly British. To clutter with or as if with unused articles. — v. intr. To cut and prepare timber for marketing. [Perhaps from LUMBER².] — lum'ber adj. — lum'ber·er n.

lum·ber² (lŭm' bær) v. intr. lum·bered, lum·ber·ing, lum·bers. 1. To walk or move with heavy clumsiness. See Synonyms at blunder. 2. To move with a rumbling noise. [Middle English lomenen, possibly of Scandinavian origin; akin to Swedish dialectal loma, to move heavily.] — lum'ber·ing·ly adv.

lum·ber·jack (lŭm' bær-jäk') n. 1. One who fells trees and transports the timber to a mill; a logger. 2. A short, warm outer jacket. Also called lumber jacket

Lum·ber River (lŭm' bær rĭv'ər) A river, about 201 km (125 mi) long, of south-central North Carolina and northeast South Carolina flowing southeast and south to the Little Pee Dee River.

Lum·ber·ton (lŭm' bær-tən) A city of southern North Carolina south of Fayetteville. It is a tobacco market with lumber and textile mills. Population, 18,601.

lum·ber·yard (lŭm' bær-yärd') n. An establishment that sells lumber and other building materials from a yard.

lum·bri·coid (lŭm' brĭ-koid') adj. Of or resembling an earthworm. [From New Latin lumbrīcoidēs, species of intestinal parasitic roundworm : Latin lumbrīcus, earthworm + -OID.]

lu·men (lōō' mən) n. pl. lu·mens or lu·mi·na (-mə-nə). 1. Anatomy. The inner open space or cavity of a tubular organ, as of a blood vessel or an intestine. 2. Abbr. Im Physics. The unit of luminous flux in the International System, equal to the amount of light given out through a solid angle by a source of one candela intensity radiating equally in all directions. See Table at measurement.

3. Botany. The cavity bounded by a plant cell wall. [Latin, an opening, light. See leuk- in Appendix.] — lu'men·al, lu'min·al adj.

Lu·met (lōō-mět'), Sidney. Born 1924. American filmmaker who directed Twelve Angry Men (1957), Long Day's Journey into Night (1962), and a number of other well-known films.

Lu·mière (lōō-myēr', lü-), Auguste Marie Louis Nicolas. 1862-1954. French chemist, inventor, and cinematography pioneer. With his brother Louis Jean Lumière (1864-1948) he gave the first public showing of a cinematic film (1895).

lu·mi·nance (lōō' mən-nəns) n. 1. The condition or quality of being luminous. 2. Physics. The intensity of light per unit area of its source.

lu·mi·nar·i·a (lōō' mən-nâr' ē-ə) n. 1. Southwestern U.S. A votive candle set into a small, decorative paper bag weighted with sand and placed in a row with others along a walkway, driveway, or rooftop as a holiday decoration. Regional. Also called farolito 2. New Mexico. A bonfire built in front of each house in a pueblo to celebrate Christmas Eve. [Spanish, from Latin lūmināria, pl. of lūmināre, lamp. See LUMINARY.]

REGIONAL NOTE: In recent years it has become commonplace to see entire American neighborhoods decorated during holiday seasons with luminarias lining driveways, sidewalks, or rooftops. A luminaria is a votive candle set inside a small decorative paper bag weighted with sand. The bags are usually colored and often perforated with designs through which the candle inside shows as bright pinpricks of light. The custom of luminarias comes from Mexico and is associated especially with the southwest United States. The same word is used for a similar holiday custom of the Pueblo peoples in New Mexico. On Christmas Eve they build a bonfire, called a luminaria, outside each house in the pueblo.

lu·mi·nar·y (lōō'mə-nĕr'ē) n. pl. lu·mi·nar·ies. 1. An object, such as a celestial body, that gives light. 2. A person who is an inspiration to others. 3. A person who has achieved eminence in a specific field. See Synonyms at celebrity. [Middle English, from Old French luminarie, from Latin lūmināre, to shine, from lūmen, lūmin-, light. See leuk- in Appendix.] —lu'mi-nar'y adj.

lu·mi·nesce (lōō'mə-nĕs') v. intr. lu·mi·nesced, lu·mi·nescing, lu·mi·nesc-es. To be or become luminescent. [Back-formation from LUMINESCENCE.]

lu·mi·nes·cence (lōō'mə-nĕs'əns) n. 1. The emission of light that does not derive energy from the temperature of the emitting body, as in phosphorescence, fluorescence, and bioluminescence. Luminescence is caused by chemical, biochemical, or crystallographic changes, the motions of subatomic particles, or radiation-induced excitation of an atomic system. 2. The light so emitted.

lu·mi·nes·cent (lōō'mə-nĕs'ənt) adj. Capable of, suitable for, or exhibiting luminescence. [Latin lūmen, lūmin-, light; see LUMEN + -ESCENT.]

lu·mi·nif·er·ous (lōō'mə-nĭf'ər-əs) adj. Generating, yielding, or transmitting light. [Latin lūmen, lūmin-, light; see LUMEN + -FEROUS.]

lu·mi·nism also Lu·mi·nism (lōō'mə-nĭz'əm) n. A style of 19th-century American painting concerned especially with the precise, realistic rendering of atmospheric light and the perceived effects of that light on depicted objects. [Latin lūmen, lūmin-, light; see LUMEN + -ISM.] —lu'mi-nist adj. & n.

lu·mi·nos·i·ty (lōō'mə-nŏs'i-tē) n. pl. lu·mi·nos·i·ties. 1. The condition or quality of being luminous. 2. Something luminous. 3. The ratio of luminous flux at a specific wavelength to the radiant flux at the same wavelength. In this sense, also called luminosity factor lu·mi·nous (lōō'mə-nəs) adj. 1. Emitting light, especially emitting self-generated light. 2. Full of light; illuminated. See Synonyms at bright. 3. a. Easily comprehended; clear: luminous prose. b. Enlightened and intelligent; inspiring: luminous ideas. [Middle English, from Old French lumineux, from Latin lūminōsus, from lūmen, lūmin-, light. See leuk- in Appendix.] —lu'mi-nous-ly adv. —lu'mi-nous-ness n.

luminous efficiency (lōō'mə-nəs ĭ-fish'ən-sē) n. The ratio of the total luminous flux to the total radiant flux of an emitting source.

luminous energy (lōō'mə-nəs ěn'ər-jē) n. The radiant energy of electromagnetic waves in the visible portion of the electromagnetic spectrum.

luminous flux (lōō'mə-nəs flŭks) n. The rate of flow of light per unit of time, especially the flux of visible light expressed in lumens.

luminous intensity (lōō'mə-nəs ĩn-tĕn'sĭ-tē) n. The luminous flux density per solid angle as measured in a given direction relative to the emitting source.

lum·mox (lŭm'əks) n. Informal. A person regarded as clumsy or stupid. [Origin unknown.]

lump¹ (lŭmp) n. 1. An irregularly shaped mass or piece. 2. A small cube of sugar. 3. Pathology. A swelling or small palpable mass. 4. A collection or totality; an aggregate. 5. A person regarded as ungainly or dull witted. 6. lumps. Informal. a. Severe punishment or treatment, as a beating or an unsparing criticism: take one's lumps. b. One's just deserts; comeuppance: get one's lumps. — adj. 1. Formed into lumps: lump sugar. 2. Not broken or divided into parts: a lump payment. — v. lumped, lump-ing, lumps. — v. tr. 1. To put together in a single group without discrimination. 2. To move with heavy clumsiness. 3. To make into lumps. — v. intr. 1. To become lumpy. 2. To move heavily.

—idiom. lump in (one's) throat. A feeling of constriction in the throat caused by emotion. [Middle English lumpe, of Low German origin; akin to obsolete Dutch lompe.]

lump² (lŭmp) v. tr. lumped, lump-ing, lumps. Informal. To tolerate (what must be endured): like it or lump it. [Perhaps from dialectal lump, to look sullen.]

lump·ec·to·my (lŭm-pĕk'tə-mē) n. pl. lump·ec·to·mies. Surgical excision of a tumor from the breast with the removal of a minimal amount of surrounding tissue.

lum·pen (lŭm'pən, lōōm'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to dispossessed, often displaced people who have been cut off from the socioeconomic class with which they would ordinarily be identified: lumpen intellectuals unable to find work in their fields. 2. Of or relating to the lumpenproletariat. 3. Boorish or unenlightened: Her music found no audience among the lumpen bourgeoisie. [From German Lumpenproletariat, the lowest section of the proletariat. See LUMPENPROLETARIAT.]

lum·pen·pro·le·tar·i·at (lŭm'pən-prō'li-târ'ē-ət, lōōm'-) n. 1. The lowest, most degraded stratum of the proletariat. Used originally in Marxist theory to describe those members of the proletariat, especially criminals, vagrants, and the unemployed, who lacked class consciousness. 2. The underclass of a human population. [German : Lumpen, pl. of Lump, ragamuffin (from Middle High German lumpe, rag) + Proletariat, proletariat (from French prolétariat); see PROLETARIAT.]

lump·fish (lŭmp'fīsh') n. pl. lumpfish or lump·fishes. Any of various fishes of the family Cyclopteridae, especially Cyclopterus lumpus of North Atlantic waters, having pelvic fins united to form a suction disk and a body bearing prominent tubercles. [Obsolete lump, lumpfish (perhaps from Dutch lomp, blenny, loach, from Middle Dutch lompe, cod) + FISH.]

lump·ish (lŭm'pīsh) adj. 1. Stupid or dull. 2. Clumsy or cumbersome.
—lump'ish·ly adv. —lump'ish·ness n.

lump sum (lŭmp sŭm) n. A single sum of money that serves as complete payment. —lump'·sum' (lŭmp'sŭm') adj.

lump·y (lŭm'pē) adj. lump·i·er, lump·i·est. 1. Covered or filled with lumps. 2. Thickset or cumbersome. 3. Exhibiting short, jumbled waves, as a tidal rip.
—lump'i·ly adv. —lump'i·ness n.

lumpy jaw (lŭm'pē jô) n. See actinomycosis.

Lu·mum·ba (lōō-mōōm'bə), Patrice Emeryg. 1925-1961. First prime minister (1960-1961) of the Congo (now Zaire). He was ousted and murdered in 1961 by secessionists from Shaba.

Lu·na (lōō'nə) n. Roman Mythology. The goddess of the moon. [Latin Lūna, from lūna, moon. See leuk- in Appendix.]

lu·na·cy (lōō'nə-sē) n. pl. lu·na·cies. 1. Insanity, especially insanity relieved intermittently by periods of clear-mindedness. See Synonyms at insanity. 2. a. Great or wild foolishness. b. A wildly foolish act. 3. Archaic. Intermittent mental derangement associated with the changing phases of the moon. [From LUNATIC.]

lu·na moth (lōō'nə mōth) n. A large, pale-green North American moth (Actias luna) having elongated, taillike hind wings. [New Latin lūna, species name, from Latin, moon. See LUNAR.]

lu·nar (lōō'nər) adj. 1. Of, involving, caused by, or affecting the moon. 2. Measured by the revolution of the moon. 3. Of or relating to silver. [Middle English, crescent-shaped, from Old French lunaire, from Latin lūnāris, of the moon, from lūna, moon. See leuk- in Appendix.]

lunar caustic (lōō'nər kô'stīk) n. Silver nitrate in the form of sticks used in cauterization.

lunar excursion module (lōō'nər ik-skûr'zhən möj'ōōl) n. A spacecraft designed to transport astronauts from a command module orbiting the moon to the lunar surface and back. Also called lunar module lunar month (lōō'nər mŭnth) n. The average time between successive new or full moons, equal to 29 days 12 hours 44 minutes. Also called synodic month lu·nar·scape (lōō'nər-skāp') n. 1. A picture or other representation of the moon's surface. 2. A landscape reminiscent of the moon's surface: The sandstone formations transformed the land into a barren lunarscape.

lunar year (lōō'nər yîr) n. An interval of 12 lunar months.

lu·nate (lōō'nāt') also lu·nat·ed (-nā'tîd) adj. Shaped like a crescent. — n. Archaeology. A small stone artifact, probably an arrowhead, with a blunt straight edge and a sharpened, crescent-shaped back, especially characteristic of the Mesolithic Age. [Latin lunātus, past participle of lunāre, to bend like a crescent, from lūna, moon. See leuk- in Appendix.]

lunate bone (lōō'nāt' bōn) n. The second of three bones forming the proximal row of bones in the wrist. Also called semilunar bone lu·na·tic (lōō'nə-tîk) adj. 1. Suffering from lunacy; insane. 2. Of or for the insane. 3. Wildly or giddily foolish: a lunatic decision. 4. Characterized by lunacy or eccentricity. [Middle English lunatik, from Old French lunatique, from Latin lunāticus, from lūna, moon. See leuk- in Appendix.] — lu·na·tic n.

lunatic fringe (lōō'nə-tîk frînj) n. The fanatical, extremist, or irrational members of a society or group.

lu·na·tion (lōō-nā'shən) n. The time that elapses between successive new moons, averaging 29 days, 12 hours, 44 minutes; a lunar month. [Middle English lunacioun, from Medieval Latin lunātiō, lunātiōn-, from Latin lūna. See LUNAR.]

lunch (lŭnch) n. 1. A meal eaten at midday. 2. The food provided for a midday meal. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a lunch date; a lunch box. — v. intr. lunched, lunch·ing, lunch·es. To eat a midday meal. — idiom. out to lunch. Slang. Not in touch with the real world; crazy. [Short for LUNCHEON.] — lunch'er n.

lunch·eon (lŭn'chən) n. 1. A lunch, especially a formal one. 2. An afternoon party at which a light meal is served. [Probably alteration (influenced by dialectal lunch, hunk of cheese or bread), of obsolete nuncheon, light snack, from Middle English nonschench : none, noon; see NOON + schench, drink (from Old English scenc, from scencan, to pour out).]

lunch·eon·ette (lŭn'chə-nĕt') n. A small restaurant that serves simple, easily prepared meals.

luncheon meat (lŭn'chən mĕt) n. Processed, prepackaged meat, often molded into a loaf and served sliced for use in sandwiches or salads. Also called lunchmeat lunch·meat (lŭnch'mĕt') n. See luncheon meat.

lunch·room (lŭnch/'rōom', -rōom') n. 1. A luncheonette. 2. A room in a facility, such as a school, in which lunches may be purchased or those brought from home may be eaten.

lunch·time (lŭnch/'tīm') n. The time during which lunch is usually eaten.

Lund (lŭnd) A city of southern Sweden north of Malmö. It was the largest town in Sweden during the Middle Ages and today is an educational center. Population, 81,199.

Lund·e·berg (lŭn/'də-bûrg), Helen. Born 1908. American painter who helped found the postsurrealist movement in the United States.

Lun·dy (lŭn/'dē), Benjamin. 1789-1839. American abolitionist who founded the Genius of Universal Emancipation (1821), one of the earliest antislavery newspapers.

Lundy Isle (lŭn/'dē īl) An island off the southwest coast of England at the mouth of the Bristol Channel. Inhabited from prehistoric times, the island was a stronghold for pirates and smugglers from the Middle Ages until the 18th century.

lune (lōon) n. A crescent-shaped portion of a plane or sphere bounded by two arcs of circles. [Latin lūna, moon. See leuk- in Appendix.]

Lü·ne·burg (lōō/'nə-bûrg', lü/'nə-bōōrk') A city of north-central Germany south-southeast of Hamburg. Dating from the tenth century, it was an important member of the Hanseatic League. Population, 60,194.

Lü·nen (lōō/'nən, lü/'-) A city of west-central Germany east-northeast of Essen. It is an industrial center in a coal-mining region. Population, 84,084.

lu·nette (lōō-'nēt') n. 1. Architecture. a. A small, circular or crescent-shaped opening in a vaulted roof. b. A crescent-shaped or semicircular space, usually over a door or window, that may contain another window, a sculpture, or a mural. 2. A fortification that has two projecting faces and two parallel flanks. 3. A broad, low-lying, typically crescent-shaped mound of sandy or loamy matter that is formed by the wind, especially along the windward side of a lake basin. [French, from Old French lunete, moon-shaped object, diminutive of lune, moon, from Latin lūna, moon. See LUNE.] lung (lŭng) n. 1. Either of two spongy, saclike respiratory organs in most vertebrates, occupying the chest cavity together with the heart and functioning to remove carbon dioxide from the blood and provide it with oxygen. 2. A similar organ in some invertebrates, including spiders and terrestrial snails. — idiom. at the top of (one's) lungs. As loudly as possible. [Middle English lunge, from Old English lungen, lungs. See leg^{wh}- in Appendix.]

lunge (lŭnj) n. 1. A sudden thrust or pass, as with a sword. 2. A sudden forward movement or plunge. — v. lunged, lung-ing, lung-es. — v. intr. 1. To make a sudden thrust or pass. 2. To move with a sudden thrust. — v. tr. To cause (someone) to lunge. [From alteration of obsolete allonge, to thrust, from French allonger, from Old French alongier, to lengthen : a, to (from Latin ad); see AD- + long, long (from Latin longus); see del-¹ in Appendix.]

lung·er (lŭn'jər) n. One that lunges.

lung·fish (lŭng'fĭsh') n. pl. lungfish or lung·fish·es. Any of several elongated freshwater fishes of the Amazon, western and central Africa, and Australia that have lunglike organs as well as gills and are able to breathe air, allowing certain species to survive periods of drought inside a mucus-lined cocoon in the mud.

lung·gi or lung·gyi (lōōng'gē) also lon·gyi (lōōng'gē, lōōng'-) n. pl. lung·gis or lung·gyis also lon·gyis. A cloth, often of brightly colored silk or cotton, that is used as a piece of clothing, especially the traditional skirtlike garment of India, Pakistan, and Burma. [Urdu lungī, from Persian, variant of lung.]

lung·worm (lŭng'wŭrm') n. Any of various nematode worms, especially of the family Metastrongylidae, that are parasitic in the lungs of mammals.

lung·wort (lŭng'wŭrt', -wŏrt') n. 1. Any of various plants of the genus Mertensia, such as the Virginia cowslip, having drooping clusters of tubular, usually blue flowers. 2. Any of several European plants of the genus Pulmonaria, having long-stalked leaves and coiled clusters of blue or purple flowers and formerly used in treating respiratory disorders.

lung·gyi (lōōng'gē) n. Variant of lunggi.

lu·ni·so·lar (lōō'nĭ-sō'lər) adj. Of or caused by both the sun and the moon. [Latin lūna, moon; see LUNAR + SOLAR.]

lu·ni·ti·dal (lōō'nĭ-tĭd'l) adj. Of or relating to tidal phenomena caused by the moon. [Latin lūna, moon; see LUNAR + TIDAL.]

lunitidal interval (lōō'nĭ-tĭd'l ĭn'tər-vəl) n. The time elapsing between the moon's transit of a particular meridian and the next high tide at that meridian.

lunk·er (lŭng'kər) n. Informal. Something, especially a game fish, that is large for its kind. [Origin unknown.]

lunk·head (lŭngk'hĕd') n. Slang. A person regarded as stupid. [Probably alteration of LUMP¹ + HEAD.] —lunk'head'ed adj.

Lunt (lŭnt), Alfred. 1893-1977. American actor who performed with his wife Lynn Fontanne in many stage productions, including Pygmalion (1926) and Quadrille (1952-1955).

lu·nu·la (lōōn'yə-lə) n. pl. lu·nu·lae (-lē'). A small crescent-shaped structure or marking, especially the white area at the base of a fingernail that resembles a half-moon. [New Latin lunula, from Latin, crescent-shaped ornament, diminutive of lūna, moon. See leuk- in Appendix.]

lu·nu·lar (lōōn'yə-lər) adj. Shaped like a crescent.

lu·nu·late (lōōn'yə-lāt', -lĭt) also lu·nu·lat·ed (-lā'tĭd) adj. 1. Small and lunular. 2. Having crescent-shaped markings.

lu·nule (lōōn'yōōl) n. A lunula.

lun-y (lōō'nē) adj. Informal. Variant of loony.

Luo-yang (lwō'yāng') also Lo-yang (lō'-) A city of east-central China east-northeast of Xi'an. A cultural and industrial center, it was the capital of several ancient dynasties, including the Han and Tang. Population, 624,000.

Lu-per-ca-li-a (lōō'pər-kā'lē-ə, -kāl'yə) n. A fertility festival in ancient Rome, celebrated on February 15 in honor of the pastoral god Lupercus. [Latin Lupercālia, from Lupercus, Roman god of flocks.] —Lu'per-ca/li-an adj.

lu-pine¹ also lu-pin (lōō'pən) n. Any of numerous plants of the genus Lupinus in the pea family, having palmately compound leaves and variously colored flowers grouped in spikes or racemes. [Middle English, from Old French lupin, from Latin lupīnum, from neuter of lupīnus, wolflike. See LUPINE².]

lu-pine² (lōō'pīn') adj. 1. Characteristic of or resembling a wolf. 2. Rapacious; ravenous. [French, from Latin lupīnus, from lupus, wolf. See wl̥k^wo- in Appendix.]

lu-pu-lin (lōō'p'yə-lən) n. Minute yellowish-brown hairs obtained from the strobili of the hop plant, formerly used in medicine as a sedative. [New Latin lupulus, hop species (diminutive of Latin lupus, hop plant, from lupus, wolf); see LUPINE² + -IN.] lu-pus (lōō'pəs) n. Any of several diseases, especially systemic lupus erythematosus, that principally affect the skin and joints but often also involve other systems of the body. [Medieval Latin, from Latin, wolf. See wl̥k^wo- in Appendix.]

Lu-pus (lōō'pəs) n. A constellation of stars in the Southern Hemisphere near Centaurus and Scorpius. [Latin, from lupus, wolf. See LUPUS.]

lupus er-y-the-ma-to-sus (lōō'pəs ər'ə-thē'mə-tō'səs, -thēm'ə-) n. 1. A chronic disease of unknown origin characterized by the appearance of red, scaly lesions or patches on the face and upper portion of the trunk. 2. Systemic lupus erythematosus. [New Latin lupus erythēmatōsus : lupus, lupus + erythēmatōsus, erythematous.]

lupus vul-gar-is (lōō'pəs vül-gār'is) n. A cutaneous form of tuberculosis characterized by reddish-brown ulcerating nodules, usually appearing on the face, that heal slowly and produce deep scars. [New Latin lupus vulgāris, common lupus : LUPUS + Latin vulgāris, common.]

lurch¹ (lûrch) v. intr. lurched, lurch-ing, lurch-es. 1. To stagger. See Synonyms at blunder. 2. To roll or pitch suddenly or erratically: The ship lurched in the storm. The car gave a start and then lurched forward. — n. 1. A staggering or tottering movement or gait. 2. An abrupt rolling or pitching. [Origin unknown.] —lurch'ing-ly adv.

lurch² (lûrch) n. Games. The losing position of a cribbage player who scores 30 points or less to the winner's 61. —idiom. in the lurch. In a difficult or embarrassing position. [Perhaps back-formation from Middle English lurching, a total victory at lorche, from lorche, a kind of game, perhaps lurken, to lurk. See LURK.]

lurch-er (lûr'chər) n. 1. Chiefly British. A crossbred dog used by poachers.

2. Archaic. A sneak thief. [Middle English, from lorchen, to lurk, perhaps from lurken. See LURK.]

lure (lōor) n. 1. a. Something that tempts or attracts with the promise of pleasure or reward. b. An attraction or appeal. 2. A decoy used in catching animals, especially an artificial bait used in catching fish. 3. A bunch of feathers attached to a long cord, used in falconry to recall the hawk. — v. tr. lured, lur-ing, lures. 1. To attract by wiles or temptation; entice. 2. To recall (a falcon) with a lure. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, of Germanic origin.] —lur'er n. —lur'ing-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: lure, entice, inveigle, decoy, tempt, seduce. These verbs mean to lead or attempt to lead into a wrong or foolish course, as of action. Lure suggests the use of something that attracts like bait: Industry often seeks to lure scientists from universities by offering them huge salaries. To entice is to draw on skillfully, as by arousing hopes or desires: The teacher opened the door and, showing the toys on the shelves, tried to entice him into the classroom. Inveigle implies winning over by coaxing, flattery, or artful talk: With tact and perseverance he inveigled her into becoming his law partner. To decoy is to trap or ensnare by cunning or deception: Partisans dressed as simple farmers selling produce decoyed the soldiers into blistering crossfire. Tempt implies the operation of an attraction that disposes or invites one to do something, especially something immoral, unwise, or contrary to one's better judgment: I'm tempted to tell him what I really think of him. To seduce is to entice away, as from duty, accepted principles, or proper conduct; it usually suggests the overcoming of moral resistance: "The French King attempted by splendid offers to seduce him from the cause of the Republic" (Macaulay).

Lur-ex (lōor'ēks) A trademark used for a yarn made of plastic-coated aluminum filaments. This trademark often occurs in print in uppercase and lowercase as an attributive: "The Lurex sock became the signature leg fashion for glitter rockers" (Women's Wear Daily). It can also occur in figurative extensions: "The videos range from loud, lurex pop nonsense... through acid house psychedelia" (Time Out).

Lu-ri-a (lōor'ē-ə), Salvador Edward. 1912-1991. Italian-born American biologist. He shared a 1969 Nobel Prize for investigating the mechanism of viral infection in living cells.

lu-rid (lōor'īd) adj. 1. Causing shock or horror; gruesome. 2. Marked by sensationalism: a lurid account of the crime. See Synonyms at ghastly. 3. Glowing or shining with the glare of fire through a haze: lurid flames. 4. Sallow or pallid in color. [Latin lūridus, pale, from lūror, paleness.] —lu'rid-ly adv. —lu'rid-ness n.

lurk (lûrk) v. intr. lurked, lurk-ing, lurks. 1. To lie in wait, as in ambush.

2. To move furtively; sneak. 3. To exist unobserved or unsuspected: danger lurking around every bend. [Middle English lurken, possibly of Scandinavian origin.] —lurk'ing-ly adv.

Lur-ton (lûr'tn), Horace Harmon. 1844-1914. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1910-1914).

Lu-sa-ka (lōō-sä'kə) The capital and largest city of Zambia, in the south-central part of the country. It was founded by Europeans in 1905. Population, 535,830.

Lu-sa-ti-a (lōō-sā'shē-ə, -shə) A region of central Europe in eastern Germany and southwest Poland. Settled by descendants of the Wends, a Slavic people, it changed hands frequently among Saxony, Bohemia, and Brandenburg before passing to Prussia in 1815. —Lu-sa'tian adj. & n.

lus-cious (lüş'əs) adj. 1. Sweet and pleasant to taste or smell: a luscious melon. See Synonyms at delicious. 2. Having strong sensual or sexual appeal; seductive. 3. Richly appealing to the senses or the mind: a luscious, vivid description. 4. Archaic. Excessively sweet; cloying. [Middle English lucius, alteration of licious, perhaps short for delicious, delicious. See DELICIOUS.] —lus'cious-ly adv. —lus'cious-ness n.

lush¹ (lüş) adj. lush-er, lush-est. 1. a. Having or characterized by luxuriant vegetation. b. Abundant; plentiful. See Synonyms at profuse. c. Extremely productive; thriving. 2. a. Luxurious; opulent: the lush décor of a grand hotel. b. Extremely pleasing to the senses: a lush scent; lush fruit; the lush sounds of an orchestra. c. Voluptuous or sensual. 3. Overelaborate or extravagant: lush rhetoric. [Middle English lush, relaxed, soft, probably alteration of lache, loose, weak, from Old French, soft, succulent, from laschier, to loosen, from Late Latin laxicāre, to become shaky, frequentative of Latin laxāre, to open, relax, from laxus, loose. See LAX.] —lush/ly adv. —lush'ness n.

lush² (lüş) Slang. n. A drunkard. — v. intr. lushed, lush-ing, lush-es. To drink liquor to excess. [Origin unknown.]

Lü-shun (lōō'shōōn', lü'-) A city of northeast China at the tip of the Liaodong Peninsula. A major port and naval base, it is part of the conurbation of Lüda. Population, 40,752.

Lu-si-ta-ni-a (lōō'sī-tā'nē-ə) An ancient region and Roman province of the Iberian Peninsula. It corresponded roughly to modern-day Portugal.

—Lu'si-ta'ni-an adj. & n.

lust (lüst) n. 1. Intense or unrestrained sexual craving. 2. a. An overwhelming desire or craving: a lust for power. b. Intense eagerness or enthusiasm: a lust for life. 3. Obsolete. Pleasure; relish. — v. intr. lust-ed, lust-ing, lusts. To have an intense or obsessive desire, especially one that is sexual. [Middle English, from Old English, desire. See las- in Appendix.]

lus·ter (lūs'tər) n. 1. Soft reflected light; sheen. 2. Brilliance or radiance of light; brightness. 3. Glory, radiance, distinction, or splendor, as of achievement, reputation, or beauty. 4. A glass pendant, especially on a chandelier. 5. A decorative object, such as a chandelier, that gives off light. 6. Any of various substances, such as wax or glaze, used to give an object a gloss or polish. 7. The surface glossiness of ceramic ware after glazing, especially the metallic sheen of lusterware. 8. A fabric, such as alpaca, having a glossy surface. 9. The appearance of a mineral surface judged by its brilliance and ability to reflect light. — v. lus·tered, lus·ter·ing, lus·ters. — v. tr. 1. To give a gloss, glaze, or sheen to. 2. To give or add glory, radiance, distinction, or splendor to. — v. intr. To be or become lustrous. [French lustre, from Old French, from Old Italian lustro, from lustrare, to make bright, from Latin lūstrāre, from lūstrum, purification. See leuk- in Appendix.]

lus·ter·less (lūs'tər-līs) adj. Lacking distinction, radiance, or vitality; dull: a lusterless performance; lusterless hair.

lus·ter·ware (lūs'tər-wâr') n. Pottery or porcelain having a metallic sheen produced when metallic oxides are added to the glaze.

lust·ful (lüst'fəl) adj. Excited or driven by lust. —lust'ful·ly adv. —lust'ful·ness n.

lus·tra (lūs'trə) n. A plural of lustrum.

lus·tral (lūs'trəl) adj. Of, relating to, or used in a rite of purification. [Latin lūstrālis, from lūstrum, purification. See LUSTER.]

lus·trate (lūs'trāt') v. tr. lus·trat·ed, lus·trat·ing, lus·trates. To purify by means of ceremony. [Latin lūstrāre, lūstrāt-, to purify, make bright. See LUSTER.] —lus·tra'tion n. —lus'tra·tive (-trə-tīv) adj.

lus·tre (lūs'tər) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of luster.

lus·trous (lūs'trəs) adj. 1. Having a sheen or glow. 2. Gleaming with or as if with brilliant light; radiant. See Synonyms at bright. —lus'trous·ly adv. —lus'trous·ness n.

lus·trum (lūs'trəm) n. pl. lus·trums or lus·tra (-trə). 1. A ceremonial purification of the entire ancient Roman population after the census every five years. 2. A period of five years. [Latin lūstrum. See LUSTER.]

lust·y (lūs'tē) adj. lust·i·er, lust·i·est. 1. Full of vigor or vitality; robust. 2. Powerful; strong: a lusty cry. 3. Lustful. 4. Merry; joyous. —lust'i·ly adv. —lust'i·ness n.

lu·sus na·tu·rae (lōō'səs nə-tōör'ē, -tyōör'ē) n. A freak or sport of nature. [New Latin lūsus nātūrae: Latin lūsus, sport, play + Latin nātūrae, genitive of nātūra, nature.]

Lü·ta (lōō'dä', lü'-) See Lüda.

lu·ta·nist (lōōt'ŋ-ĭst) n. Music. Variant of lutenist.

lute¹ (lōōt) n. Music. A stringed instrument having a body shaped like a pear sliced lengthwise and a neck with a fretted fingerboard that is usually bent just below the tuning pegs. [Middle English, from Old French lut, from Old Provençal laut, from Arabic al-'ud : al, the + 'ūd, lute.]

lute² (lōōt) n. A substance, such as dried clay or cement, used to pack and seal pipe joints and other connections or coat a porous surface in order to make it tight. Also called luting — v. tr. lut·ed, lut·ing, lutes. To coat, pack, or seal with lute. [Middle English, from Old French lut, from Latin lutum, potter's clay.]

lu·te·al (lōō'tē-əl) adj. Of, relating to, or involving the corpus luteum.

lu·te·ci·um (lōō-tē'shē-əm) n. Variant of lutetium.

lu·te·fisk (lōō'tə-fĭsk') also lut·fisk (lōōt'fĭsk') n. A traditional Scandinavian dish prepared by soaking air-dried cod in a lye solution for several weeks before skinning, boning, and boiling it, a process that gives the dish its characteristic gelatinous consistency. [Norwegian : lut, lye + fisk, fish (from Old Norse fiskr).]

lu·te·in (lōō'tē-ĭn, -tēn') n. 1. A yellow carotenoid pigment, C₄₀H₅₆O₂, found widely in nature, first isolated in corpus luteum but later discovered in body fats, egg yolk, and green plants; xanthophyll. 2. A dried preparation of corpus luteum. [Latin lūteum, yellow, egg yolk, from neuter of lūteus, yellow (from lūtum, yellowweed) + -IN.]

lu·te·in·ize (lōō'tē-ə-nĭz') v. lu·te·in·ized, lu·te·in·iz·ing, lu·te·in·iz·es. — v. tr. To cause the production of a corpus luteum in. — v. intr. To develop into or become part of the corpus luteum. — lu·te·in·i·za'tion (-ə-nĭ-zā'shən) n.

lu·te·in·iz·ing hormone (lōō'tē-ə-nĭ'zĭng hōr'mōn') n. Abbr. LH A hormone produced by the anterior lobe of the pituitary gland that stimulates ovulation and the development of the corpus luteum in the female and the production of testosterone by the interstitial cells of the testis in the male.

luteinizing hor·mone·re·leas·ing hormone (lōō'tē-ə-nĭ'zĭng hōr'-mōn-rĭ-lē'sĭng hōr'mōn') n. Abbr. LHRH See gonadotropin-releasing hormone. lu·te·nist also lu·ta·nist (lōōt'ŋ-ĭst) n. Music. A lute player. Also called lutist [Medieval Latin lūtānista, from lūtāna, lute, possibly from Old French lut. See LUTE¹.]

lu·te·ous (lōō'tē-əs) adj. Color. Of a light or moderate greenish yellow. [From Latin lūteus, yellow. See LUTEIN.]

lu·te·ti·um also lu·te·ci·um (lōō-tē'shē-əm) n. Symbol Lu A silvery-white rare-earth element that is exceptionally difficult to separate from the other rare-earth elements, used in nuclear technology. Atomic number 71; atomic weight 174.97; melting point 1,663°C; boiling point 3,395°C; specific gravity 9.840 (at 25°C); valence 3. [Latin Lutetia, ancient name of Paris, France + -IUM.]

lut·fisk (lōōt'fĭsk') n. Variant of lutefisk.

Lu·ther (lōō'thər), Martin. 1483-1546. German theologian and leader of the Reformation. His opposition to the wealth and corruption of the papacy and his belief that salvation would be granted on the basis of faith alone rather than by works caused his excommunication from the Catholic Church (1521). Luther confirmed the Augsburg Confession in 1530, effectively establishing the Lutheran Church.

Lu·ther·an (lōō'thər-ən) adj. Abbr. Luth. 1. Of or relating to Luther or his religious teachings and especially to the doctrine of justification by faith alone.

2. Of or relating to the branch of the Protestant Church adhering to the views of Luther. — n. Abbr. Luth. A member of the Lutheran Church.

—Lu'ther·an·ism, Lu'ther·ism n.

Lu·ther·ville·Ti·mo·ni·um (lōō'thər-vīl'tī-mō'nē-əm) An unincorporated community of northern Maryland, a residential suburb of Baltimore. Population, 16,442.

lu·thi·er (lōō'tē-ər) n. Music. One that makes or repairs stringed instruments, such as violins. [French, from luth, lute, from Old French lut. See LUTE¹.]

Lu·thu·li (lōō-tōō'lē, -tyōō'-), Albert John. 1898-1967. Zulu leader who advocated nonviolent resistance against apartheid. He won the 1960 Nobel Peace Prize.

lut·ing (lōō'tĩng) n. See lute².

lut·ist (lōō'tĩst) n. Music. 1. A maker of lutes. 2. See lutenist.

Lu·ton (lōōt'n) A borough of southeast England north-northwest of London. A millinery industry was established here during the reign of James I. Population, 164,200.

Lutsk (lōōtsk) A city of west-central Ukraine on the Styr River northeast of Lvov. First mentioned in 1085, it was the capital of an independent principality during the 12th century and an important trade center from the 14th to the 16th century. Population, 172,000.

Lutz also lutz (lűts) n. Sports. A jump in figure skating in which the skater takes off from the back outer edge of one skate and makes one full rotation before landing on the back outer edge of the other skate. [Perhaps after Gustave Lussi 20th-century Swiss figure skater.]

Lu·wi·an (lōō'ē-ən) n. 1. An Indo-European language of the Anatolian family, attested in documents from the second millennium B.C. and now extinct. 2. A speaker of Luwian. — adj. Of or relating to the Luwians, their culture, or their language.

lux (lűks) n. pl. lux·es or lu·ces (lōō'sēz). Abbr. lx The International System unit of illumination, equal to one lumen per square meter. See Table at mea·surement. [Latin lűx, light. See leuk- in Appendix.]

Lux. abbr. Luxembourg.

lux·ate (lŭk'sāt') v. tr. lux·at·ed, lux·at·ing, lux·ates. To put out of joint; dislocate. [Latin luxāre, luxāt-, from luxus, dislocated.] —lux·a'tion n.

lux (lōōks, lŭks) n. 1. The condition of being elegantly sumptuous.

2. Something luxurious; a luxury. [French, luxury, from Latin luxus.] —lux adj.

Lux·em·bourg also Lux·em·burg (lŭk'səm-bŭrg') 1. Abbr. Lux. A country of northwest Europe. Created as a duchy in 1354, it was ruled from 1443 to 1839 by Burgundy, Spain, Austria, France, and the Netherlands successively. In 1867 the European powers declared Luxembourg a neutral territory. Luxembourg is the capital. Population, 364,606. 2. Also Luxembourg City. The capital of Luxembourg, in the southern part of the country. It developed around a heavily fortified tenth-century castle. Population, 78,924.

Lux·em·burg (lŭk'səm-bŭrg', lōōk'səm-bōōrk'), Rosa. 1870-1919. German socialist leader who cofounded (1918) the Spartacus Party, which became the German Communist Party. She was arrested after the Spartacist uprising in 1919 and subsequently murdered. Luxemburg's theoretical works include Accumulation of Capital (1913).

Lux·or (lŭk'sōr', lōōk'-) A city of central Egypt on the eastern bank of the Nile River. Built partially on the site of ancient Thebes, it includes the Temple of Luxor built in the reign of Amenhotep III and added to significantly by Rameses II, who had colossal statues of himself erected at the complex. Population, 137,300.

lux·u·ri·ant (lŭg-zhōōr'ē-ənt, lŭk-shōōr'-) adj. 1. a. Characterized by rich or profuse growth. b. Producing or yielding in abundance. See Synonyms at profuse. 2. Excessively florid or elaborate. 3. Marked by or displaying luxury; luxurious. [Latin luxuriāns, luxuriant- present participle of luxuriāre, to be luxuriant. See LUXURIATE.] —lux·u'ri·ance n. —lux·u'ri·ant·ly adv.

lux·u·ri·ate (lŭg-zhōōr'ē-āt', lŭk-shōōr'-) v. intr. lux·u·ri·at·ed, lux·u·ri·at·ing, lux·u·ri·ates. 1. To take luxurious pleasure; indulge oneself. 2. To proliferate. 3. To grow profusely; thrive. [Latin luxuriāre, luxuriāt-, to be luxuriant, from luxuria, luxury. See LUXURY.]

lux·u·ri·ous (lŭg-zhōōr'ē-əs, lŭk-shōōr'-) adj. 1. Fond of or given to luxury. 2. Marked by or contributing to luxury. 3. Of a sumptuous, costly, or rich variety. See Synonyms at sensuous. —lux·u'ri·ous·ness n. —lux·u'ri·ous·ly adv.

lux·u·ry (lŭg'zhə-rē, lŭk'shə-) n. pl. lux·u·ries. 1. Something inessential but conducive to pleasure and comfort. 2. Something expensive or hard to obtain. 3. Sumptuous living or surroundings: lives in luxury. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a luxury condominium; luxury accommodations. [Middle English luxurie, lust, from Old French, from Latin luxuria, excess, luxury, from luxus.]

SYNONYMS: luxury, extravagance, frill. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “something desirable that is not a necessity”: a fur coat that is a real luxury; antique porcelain, an extravagance we should have resisted; caviar, smoked salmon, and other culinary frills.

ANTONYM: necessity

Lu-zon (lōō-zōn') An island of the northwest Philippines. It is the largest, most populous, and most important island in the archipelago.

Lv abbr. Bible. Leviticus.

lv. abbr. 1. Leave. 2. Livre.

LVN or L.V.N. abbr. Licensed vocational nurse.

Lvov (lvôf) A city of west-central Ukraine near the Polish border. Founded in 1256, it was captured by Poland in 1340, passed to Austria in 1772, and was retaken by Poland in 1918. The city was formally ceded to the U.S.S.R. in 1945. Population, 742,000.

LW abbr. Low water.

lwei (lwā) n. pl. lwei. A unit of currency in Angola. See Table at currency. [Of Bantu origin.]

LWM abbr. Low-water mark.

Lwoff (lwôf), André Michel. Born 1902. French microbiologist. He shared a 1965 Nobel Prize for the study of regulatory activity in body cells.

LWV abbr. League of Women Voters.

lx abbr. Lux.

-ly¹ suff. 1. Like; resembling; having the characteristics of: sisterly. 2. Recurring at a specified interval of time: hourly. [Middle English -li, from Old English -līc (influenced by Old Norse -ligr),. See lik- in Appendix.]

-ly² suff. 1. In a specified manner; in the manner of: gradually. 2. At a specified interval of time: weekly. 3. With respect to: partly. [Middle English -li, from Old English -līce (influenced by Old Norse -liga), from -līc, adj. suff... See lik- in Appendix.]

Ly-all-pur (lī'əl-pōōr') See Faisalabad.

ly-ase (lī'ās') n. Any of a group of enzymes that catalyze the formation of double bonds by removing chemical groups from a substrate without hydrolysis or catalyze the addition of chemical groups to double bonds. [Greek luein, to loosen; see leu- in Appendix + -ASE.] ly-can-thrope (lī'kən-thrōp', lī-kān'-) n. A werewolf. [Greek lukanthrōpos: lukos, wolf; see wl̥k^wo- in Appendix + anthrōpos, man.]

ly-can-thro-py (lī-kān'thrə-pē) n. In folklore, the magical ability to assume the form and characteristics of a wolf.

ly·cée (lē-sā') n. A French public secondary school. [French, from Old French, lyceum, from Latin Lycēum. See LYCEUM.]

ly·ce·um (lī-sē'əm) n. 1. A hall in which public lectures, concerts, and similar programs are presented. 2. An organization sponsoring public programs and entertainment. 3. A lycée. [Latin Lycēum, from Greek Lukeion, the school outside Athens where Aristotle taught (335-323 B.C.).]

ly·chee (lē'chē) n. Variant of litchi.

lych-gate (līch'gāt') or lych gate also lich gate (līch) n. A roofed gateway to a churchyard used originally as a resting place for a bier before burial. [Middle English lycheyate : lyche, corpse, body (from Old English līc); see lik- in Appendix + gate, yate, gate; see GATE¹.]

lych-nis (līk'nīs) n. Any of various plants of the genus Lychnis, which includes theampions. [New Latin Lychnis, genus name, from Latin lychnis, a red flower, from Greek lukhnis; akin to lukhnos, lamp. See leuk- in Appendix.]

Ly·ci·a (līsh'ē-ə, līsh'ə) An ancient country and Roman province of southwest Asia Minor on the Aegean Sea. Ruled from early times by Persia and Syria, it was annexed by Rome in the first century A.D.

Ly·ci·an (līsh'ē-ən, līsh'ən) adj. Of or relating to Lycia or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A language of the extinct Anatolian branch of Indo-European, found in inscriptions down to the beginning of the third century B.C. in southwest Turkey. 2. A speaker of Lycian.

ly·co·po·di·um (lī'kə-pō'dē-əm) n. 1. A plant of the genus Lycopodium, which includes the club mosses. 2. The yellowish powdery spores of certain club mosses, especially Lycopodium clavatum, used in fireworks and explosives and as a covering for pills. [New Latin Lycopodium, genus name : Greek lukos, wolf; see wl̥k^wo- in Appendix + Greek podion, diminutive of pous, foot; see ped- in Appendix.]

Ly·cra (lī'krə) A trademark used for a brand of spandex.

Ly·cur·gus (lī-kūr'gəs), fl. ninth century B.C. Spartan lawmaker who is considered the founder of the Spartan constitution.

lyd·dite (līd'īt') n. An explosive consisting chiefly of picric acid. [After Lydd, a municipal borough of southeast England.]

Lyd·gate (līd'gāt', -gət), John. 1370?-1451?. English poet who is best known for his long narrative works.

Lyd·i·a (līd'ē-ə) An ancient country of west-central Asia Minor on the Aegean Sea in present-day northwest Turkey. Noted for its wealth and the magnificence of its capital, Sardis, it may have been the earliest kingdom to use minted coins (seventh century B.C.).

Lyd·i·an (līd'ē-ən) adj. Of or relating to Lydia or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A language of the extinct Anatolian branch of Indo-European, found in inscriptions of the fourth century B.C. in western Turkey. 2. A speaker of Lydian.

lye (lī) n. 1. The liquid obtained by leaching wood ashes. 2. See potassium hydroxide. 3. See sodium hydroxide. [Middle English lie, from Old English lēag. See leu(ə)- in Appendix.]

Ly-ell (lī'əl), Sir Charles. 1797-1875. British geologist. His Principles of Geology (1830-1833) opposed the catastrophic theory of geologic change.

Lyell, Mount. A peak, 3,994 m (13,095 ft) high, of the Sierra Nevada in east-central California.

ly-gus bug (lī'gəs bŭg) n. Any of various North American bugs of the genus Lygus, including certain species that are destructive to plants. [New Latin Lygus, genus name, from Greek lugaios, murky.]

ly-ing¹ (lī'ing) v. Present participle of lie¹.

ly-ing² (lī'ing) v. Present participle of lie². — adj. Disposed to or characterized by untruth: a lying witness. See Synonyms at dishonest.

ly-ing-in (lī'ing-ɪn') n. pl. ly-ings-in (lī'ingz-) or ly-ing-ins. The confinement of a woman in childbirth. — adj. Of or intended for use during childbirth: a lying-in hospital.

Lyl-y (līl'ē), John. 1554?-1606. English playwright and novelist who wrote a number of comedies that influenced English drama.

Lyme disease (līm dī-zēz') n. An inflammatory disease caused by a spirochete (Borrelia burgdorferi) that is transmitted by ticks, usually characterized initially by a rash followed by flulike symptoms including fever, joint pain, and headache. If left untreated, the disease can result in chronic arthritis and nerve and heart dysfunction. [After Lyme, a town of southeast Connecticut.]

lymph (līmf) n. 1. A clear, watery, sometimes faintly yellowish fluid derived from body tissues that contains white blood cells and circulates throughout the lymphatic system, returning to the venous bloodstream through the thoracic duct. Lymph acts to remove bacteria and certain proteins from the tissues, transport fat from the small intestine, and supply mature lymphocytes to the blood. 2. Archaic. A spring or stream of pure, clear water. [Latin lymp̄ha, water, from Greek numphē, water spirit.]

lymph- pref. Variant of lympho-.

lym-phad-e-ni-tis (līm-fād'n-ī'tis, līm'fə-də-nī'-) n. Inflammation of one or more lymph nodes. [LYMPH + ADEN(O)- + -ITIS.]

lym-phad-e-nop-a-thy (līm-fād'n-öp'ə-thē, līm'fə-dn-) n. pl.

lym-phad-e-nop-a-thies. A chronic, abnormal enlargement of the lymph nodes, usually associated with disease. [LYMPH + ADENO- + -PATHY.]

lym-phan-gi-og-ra-phy (līm-fän'jē-ög'rə-fē) n. pl.

lym-phan-gi-og-ra-phies. Examination of the lymph nodes and lymphatic vessels following the injection of a radiopaque substance. Also called lymphography —lym·phan'gi·o·gram' (-ə-grām') n.

lym·phat·ic (līm-făt'īk) adj. 1. Of or relating to lymph, a lymph vessel, or a lymph node. 2. Lacking energy or vitality; sluggish. — n. A vessel that conveys lymph. [New Latin lymphaticus, from lymp̄ha, lymph. See LYMPH.]

—lym·phat'i·cal·ly adv.

lymphatic system (līm-făt'īk sīs'təm) n. The interconnected system of spaces and vessels between body tissues and organs by which lymph circulates throughout the body.

lymph node (līm f nōd) n. Any of the small, oval or round bodies, located along the lymphatic vessels, that supply lymphocytes to the bloodstream and remove bacteria and foreign particles from the lymph. Also called lymph gland lympho- or lymph- pref. Lymphatic system; lymph: lymphocyte. [From LYMPH.]

lym·pho·blast (līm'fə-blăst') n. A cell that gives rise to a mature lymphocyte. —lym'pho·blas'tic adj.

lym·pho·cyte (līm'fə-sīt') n. Any of the nearly colorless cells formed in lymphoid tissue, as in the lymph nodes, spleen, thymus, and tonsils, constituting between 22 and 28 percent of all white blood cells in the blood of a normal adult human being. They function in the development of immunity and include two specific types, B cells and T cells. —lym'pho·cyt'ic (-sīt'īk) adj.

lym·pho·cy·to·sis (līm'fō-sī-tō'sīs) n. A condition marked by an abnormal increase in the number of lymphocytes in the bloodstream, usually resulting from infection or inflammation. —lym'pho·cy·tot'ic (-tōt'īk) adj.

lym·pho·gran·u·lo·ma ve·ne·re·um (līm'fə-grăn'yə-lō'mə və-nîr'rē-əm) n. A sexually transmitted disease caused by a bacterium (Chlamydia trachomatis) and characterized initially by a genital lesion followed by enlargement of the lymph nodes in the groin area. [New Latin : LYMPHO- + GRANULOMA + Latin venereum, neuter of venereus, venereal.]

lym·phog·ra·phy (līm-fōg'rə-fē) n. See lymphangiography.

lym·phoid (līm'foid') adj. Of or relating to lymph or the lymphatic tissue where lymphocytes are formed.

lym·pho·kine (līm'fə-kīn') n. Any of various substances released by T cells that have been activated by antigens. They function in the immune response through a variety of actions, including stimulating the production of nonsensitized lymphocytes and activating macrophages. [LYMPHO- + Greek kinein, to move; see KININ.]

lym·pho·ma (līm-fō'mə) n. pl. lym·pho·ma·ta (-mə-tə) or lym·pho·mas. Any of various usually malignant tumors that arise in the lymph nodes or in other lymphoid tissue. —lym·pho'ma·toid', lym·phom'a·tous (-fōm'ə-təs) adj.

lym·pho·poi·e·sis (līm'fō-poi-ē'sīs) n. pl. lym·pho·poi·e·ses (-sēz'). The formation of lymphocytes. —lym·pho·poi·et'ic (-ēt'ik) adj.

lym·pho·tox·in (līm'fə-tōk'sīn) n. A lymphokine that is toxic to certain susceptible target cells.

Lyn·brook (līn'brōok') A village of southeast New York on southwest Long Island east of Queens. It is mainly residential. Population, 19,208.

lynch (līnch) v. tr. lynched, lynching, lynches. To execute without due process of law, especially to hang, as by a mob. [Short for LYNCH LAW.] —lynch'er n. —lynch'ing n.

Lynch (līnch), John. Known as “Jack.” Born 1917. Irish political leader who served as prime minister of Ireland (1966-1973 and 1977-1979).

Lynch·burg (līnch'bûrg') An independent city of southwest-central Virginia east-northeast of Roanoke. Located in the foothills of the Blue Ridge, it is an educational center. Population, 66,049.

lynch law (līnch lô) n. The punishment of persons suspected of crime without due process of law. [After William Lynch (died 1820).]

WORD HISTORY: “Whereas, many of the inhabitants of Pittsylvania... have sustained great and intolerable losses by a set of lawless men... that... have hitherto escaped the civil power with impunity... we, the subscribers, being determined to put a stop to the iniquitous practices of those unlawful and abandoned wretches, do enter into the following association... upon hearing or having sufficient reason to believe that any... species of villany [has] been committed within our neighborhood, we will forthwith... repair immediately to the person or persons suspected... and if they will not desist from their evil practices, we will inflict such corporeal punishment on him or them, as to us shall seem adequate to the crime committed or the damage sustained... In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands, this 22nd day of September 1780.” These are the words of a compact drawn up by Captain William Lynch and a group of his neighbors. At the time, Pittsylvania County, Virginia, was troubled by its “set of lawless men.” The courts were too distant to deal with them, so it was agreed to punish criminals without due process of law. Both the practice and the punishment came to be called lynch law after Captain Lynch. Although lynch law and lynching are mainly associated with hanging, other, less severe punishments were used. William Lynch died in 1820, and the inscription on his grave notes that “he followed virtue as his truest guide.” But the good captain, who certainly hadn’t invented vigilante justice, yet had tried to justify it, was sentenced to the disgrace of having given his name to the terrible practice of lynching.

lynch·pin (līnch'pīn') n. Variant of linchpin.

Lynd (lɪnd), Robert Staughton. 1892-1970. American sociologist. With his wife, Helen Merrell Lynd (1896-1982), he wrote the pioneering sociological study Middletown: A Study in Contemporary American Culture (1929).

Lyndhurst (lɪnd'hɜːstʃ) 1. An unincorporated community of northeast New Jersey, an industrial suburb of Newark. Population, 18,262. 2. A city of northeast Ohio, a residential suburb of Cleveland. Population, 15,982.

Ly-nen (lɛ'nɛn, lü'-), Feodor. 1911-1979. German biochemist. He shared a 1964 Nobel Prize for research on cholesterol and fatty acid metabolism.

Lynn (lɪn) A city of northeast Massachusetts, a residential and industrial suburb of Boston. It was formerly an important shoe-making center. Population, 81,245.

Lynn (lɪn), Janet. Born 1953. American figure skater who was U.S. champion from 1969 to 1973.

Lynn Canal (lɪn kə-nəlʃ) An inlet of the Pacific Ocean in southeast Alaska connecting Skagway with Juneau. It was a major route to the goldfields during the Alaskan gold rush (1896-1898).

Lynnwood (lɪn'wʊdʃ) A city of west-central Washington, an industrial and residential suburb of Seattle. Population, 28,695.

Lynwood (lɪn'wʊdʃ) A city of southern California, an industrial and residential suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 61,945.

lynx (lɪŋks) n. pl. lynx or lynxes. Any of several wildcats of the genus Lynx, especially L. canadensis of northern North America or L. lynx of Eurasia, having soft thick fur, a black-tipped short tail, and tufted ears. [Middle English, from Latin, from Greek lynx. See leuk- in Appendix.]

lynx-eyed (lɪŋks'ɪdʃ) adj. Keen of vision.

lyo- pref. Dispersion; dissolution: lyophilic. [From Greek lyein, to loosen, dissolve. See leu- in Appendix.]

Ly-on (lɛ-ɔnʃ, lyɔn) See Lyons.

Ly-on (lɪ'ɔn), Mary Mason. 1797-1849. American educator who founded (1837) Mount Holyoke College, the first American institution of higher learning for women.

Ly-on-nais (lɛ-ɔ-nɛʃ) A historical region and former province of east-central France. It was a county during medieval times and became part of the French royal domain in the 14th century.

ly-on-naise (lɪ'ɔ-nāzʃ, lɛ'ɔ-nɛzʃ) adj. Cooked with onions: lyonnaise potatoes; potatoes lyonnaise. [From French (à la) Lyonnaise, (in the manner) of Lyons, from Lyons.]

Ly-ons or Ly-on (lɛ-ɔnʃ, lyɔn) A city of east-central France at the confluence of the Rhone and Saône rivers south of Mâcon. Founded in 43 B.C. as a Roman colony, it was the principal city of Gaul and an important religious center after the introduction of Christianity. Its silk industry dates to the 15th century. Population, 413,095.

Ly-ons (lī'ənz), Joseph Aloysius. 1879-1939. Australian politician who served as prime minister (1931-1939).

ly·o·phil·ic (lī'ə-fīl'īk) adj. Characterized by strong attraction between the colloid medium and the dispersion medium of a colloidal system.

ly·oph·i·lize (lī-ōf'ə-līz') v. tr. ly·oph·i·lized, ly·oph·i·liz·ing, ly·oph·i·liz·es. To freeze-dry (blood plasma or other biological substances). [LYOPHIL(IC) + -IZE.] —ly·oph'i-li·za'tion (-lī-zā'shən) n. —ly·oph'i-liz'er n.

ly·o·pho·bic (lī'ə-fō'bīk) adj. Characterized by a lack of attraction between the colloid medium and the dispersion medium of a colloidal system.

lyr. abbr. Lyric.

Ly-ra (lī'rə) n. A constellation in the Northern Hemisphere near Cygnus and Hercules and containing Vega. [Latin, from lyra, lyre. See LYRE.]

ly·rate (lī'rāt', -rīt) adj. 1. Having a form or curvature suggestive of a lyre. 2. Botany. Having a pinnately divided leaf with an enlarged terminal lobe and smaller lateral lobes.

lyre (līr) n. Music. A stringed instrument of the harp family used to accompany a singer or reader of poetry, especially in ancient Greece. [Middle English lire, from Old French, from Latin lyra, from Greek lura.]

lyre·bird (līr'bûrd') n. Either of two Australian birds of the genus Menura, the male of which has long tail feathers that are spread in a lyre-shaped display during courtship.

lyr·ic (līr'īk) adj. Abbr. lyr. 1. a. Of or relating to a category of poetry that expresses subjective thoughts and feelings, often in a songlike style or form. b. Relating to or constituting a poem in this category, such as a sonnet or an ode. c. Of or relating to a writer of poems in this category. 2. Lyrical. 3. Music. a. Having a singing voice of light volume and modest range. b. Of, relating to, or being musical drama, especially opera: the lyric stage. c. Of or relating to the lyre or harp. d. Appropriate for accompaniment by the lyre. — n. 1. A lyric poem. 2. Often lyrics. Music. The words of a song. [French lyrique, of a lyre, from Old French, from Latin lyricus, from Greek lurikos, from lura, lyre.]

lyr·i·cal (līr'ī-kəl) adj. 1. a. Expressing deep personal emotion or observations: a dancer's lyrical performance; a lyrical passage in his autobiography. b. Highly enthusiastic; rhapsodic: gave a lyrical description of her experiences in the South Seas. 2. Lyrical. —lyr'i-cal·ly adv. —lyr'i-cal·ness n.

lyr·i·cism (līr'ī-sīz'əm) n. 1. a. The character or quality of subjectivity and sensuality of expression, especially in the arts. b. Music. The quality or state of being melodious; melodiousness. 2. An intense outpouring of exuberant emotion.

lyr·i·cist (līr'ī-sīst) n. Music. A writer of song lyrics. Also called lyrist lyr·i·cize (līr'ī-sīz') v. lyr·i·ciz·ed, lyr·i·ciz·ing, lyr·i·ciz·es. — v. intr. 1. Music. To write or sing lyrics. 2. To write lyrically or in a lyric style. — v. tr. To treat (something) lyrically; put into lyric style.

lyr-ism (līr'iz'əm) n. Lyricism. [French lyrisme, from Greek lyrismos, played on the lyre, from lura, lyre.]

lyr-ist (līr'ist) n. 1. Music. See lyricist. 2. (līr'ist) Music. One who plays a lyre. 3. A lyric poet. [Latin lyristēs, lyre player, from Greek lyristēs, from lura, lyre.]

Lys (lē) A river rising in northern France and flowing about 217 km (135 mi) northeast along the French-Belgian border to the Scheldt River.

lys- pref. Variant of lyso-.

Ly-san-der (lī-săn'dər), Died 395 B.C. Spartan military leader who won the final victory over Athens (404) in the Peloponnesian War.

lyse (līs, līz) v. intr. tr. lysed, lys-ing, lys-es. To undergo or cause to undergo lysis. [Back-formation from LYSIS.]

Ly-sen-ko (lī-sěng'kō, -syěn'kə), Trofim Denisovich. 1898-1976. Soviet biologist and agronomist. As director of the Institute of Genetics of the Soviet Academy of Sciences (1940-1964), he had an adverse effect on Soviet agricultural development because of his belief in the genetic theory that acquired characteristics can be inherited.

Ly-sen-ko-ism (lī-sěng'kō-iz'əm) n. A biological doctrine developed by Trofim Lysenko that maintains the possibility of inheriting environmentally acquired characteristics.

ly-ser-gic acid (lī-sûr'jik əs'īd, lī-) n. A crystalline alkaloid, $C_{16}H_{16}N_2O_2$, derived from ergot and used in medical research as a psychotomimetic agent. [LYS(O)- + ERG(OT) + -IC.]

lysergic acid di-eth-yl-am-ide (lī-sûr'jik əs'īd dī'ēth-əl-əm'īd') n. See LSD¹.

ly-ses (lī'sēz) n. Plural of lysis.

lysi- pref. Variant of lyso-.

Ly-sim-a-chus (lī-sīm'ə-kəs), 361?-281 B.C. Macedonian general under Alexander the Great. He ruled Macedonia from 287 to 286.

ly-sin (lī'sīn) n. An antibody that is capable of causing the destruction or dissolution of red blood cells, bacteria, or other cellular elements.

ly-sine (lī'sēn', -sīn) n. An essential amino acid, $C_6H_{14}N_2O_2$, derived from the hydrolysis of proteins and required by the body for optimum growth.

Ly-sip-pus (lī-sīp'əs), fl. fourth century B.C. Greek sculptor who was active during the reign of Alexander the Great. He created figures that were more lifelike than traditional forms.

ly-sis (lī'sīs) n. pl. ly-ses (-sēz). 1. Biochemistry. The dissolution or destruction of cells, such as blood cells or bacteria, as by the action of a specific lysin.

2. Medicine. The gradual subsiding of the symptoms of an acute disease. [New Latin, from Latin, a loosening, from Greek lusis, from luein, to loosen. See leu- in Appendix.]

-lysis suff. Decomposition; dissolving; disintegration: hydrolysis. [New Latin, from Greek lysis, a loosening. See LYSIS.]

Ly-sith·e·a (lī-sīth'ē-ə) n. The satellite of Jupiter that is 12th in distance from the planet. [Probably from Greek Lusithoē, daughter of Oceanus and mother of Herakles.]

lyso- or lysi- or lys- pref. Lysis: lysin. [From Greek lysis, a loosening, from luein, to loosen. See leu- in Appendix.]

ly·so·gen (lī'sə-jən) n. A bacterium or bacterial strain that carries a prophage.

ly·so·gen·ic (lī'sə-jən'ik) adj. Carrying a prophage within the cell. Used of a bacterium.

ly·sog·e·nize (lī-søj'i-nīz') v. tr. ly·sog·e·nized, ly·sog·e·niz·ing, ly·sog·e·niz·es. To make lysogenic. —ly·sog'e·ni·za'tion (-nī-zā'shən) n.

ly·sog·e·ny (lī-søj'ə-nē) n. The fusion of the nucleic acid of a bacteriophage with that of a host bacterium so that the potential exists for the newly integrated genetic material to be transmitted to daughter cells at each subsequent cell division.

Ly·sol (lī'sōl', -sōl', -söl') A trademark used for a liquid antiseptic and disinfectant.

ly·so·some (lī'sə-sōm') n. A membrane-bound organelle in the cytoplasm of most cells containing various hydrolytic enzymes that function in intracellular digestion. —ly'so·so'mal adj.

ly·so·zyme (lī'sə-zīm') n. An enzyme occurring naturally in egg white, human tears, saliva, and other body fluids, capable of destroying the cell walls of certain bacteria and thereby acting as a mild antiseptic.

-lyte suff. A substance that can be decomposed by a specified process: electrolyte. [From Greek lutos, soluble, from luein, to loosen. See leu- in Appendix.]

lyt·ic (līt'ik) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or causing lysis: a lytic enzyme. 2. Of or relating to a lysin. [Greek lutikos, able to loosen. See -LYTIC.]

-lytic suff. Of, relating to, or causing a specified kind of decomposition: cellulolytic. [From Greek lutikos, able to loosen, from luein, to loosen. See leu- in Appendix.]

lyt·ta (līt'ə) n. pl. lyt·tae (līt'ē'). A thin cartilaginous strip on the underside of the tongue of certain carnivorous mammals, such as dogs. [Latin, worm under a dog's tongue (said to cause madness), from Greek lussa, lutta, madness, rabies. See wl̩k^{wo} in Appendix.]

Lyt·ton (līt'n), First Baron. See Edward George Earle Lytton Bulwer-Lytton.

Lyt·ton (līt'n), First Earl of Title of Edward Robert Bulwer-Lytton. 1831-1891. British politician and diplomat who served as viceroy of India (1875-1880) and ambassador to Paris (1887-1891). His daughter Lady Constance Lytton (1867-1923) was a militant suffragist who also worked for prison reform.

-lyze suff. To cause or undergo lysis: pyrolyze. [From -LYSIS.]

LZ abbr. Landing zone.

m¹ or M (ěm) n. pl. m's or M's. 1. The 13th letter of the modern English alphabet. 2. Any of the speech sounds represented by the letter m. 3. The 13th in a series.

m² abbr. 1. Also M. Printing. Em. 2. Physics. Mass. 3. Meter (measurement). 4. Also M. Physics. Modulus.

M¹ also m The symbol for the Roman numeral 1,000.

M² abbr. 1. Bible. Maccabees. 2. Mach number. 3. Metal. 4. Logic. Middle term. 5. Chemistry. Molar; molarity. 6. Physics. Moment. 7. Physics. Mutual inductance.

m. abbr. 1. Or M.. Male. 2. Manual. 3. Married. 4. Or M.. Grammar. Masculine. 5. Or M.. Medium. 6. Or M.. Latin. Merides (noon). 7. Or M.. Meridian. 8. Mile. 9. Month. 10. Morning.

M. abbr. 1. Majesty. 2. Mark (currency). 3. Master. 4. Medieval. 5. Member. 6. Mill (currency). 7. Minim. 8. Monday. 9. Monsieur.

'm Am: I'm feeling fine.

ma (mä, mö) n. Informal. Mother. [Short for MAMA.]

mA abbr. Milliampere.

MA abbr. 1. Maritime Administration. 2. Massachusetts. 3. Also M.A.. Mental age.

M.A. or MA abbr. Latin. Magister Artium (Master of Arts).

ma'am (mä'm) n. Used as a form of polite address for a woman: Will that be cash or charge, ma'am?

maar (mär) n. A flat-bottomed, roughly circular volcanic crater of explosive origin that is often filled with water. [German, from Vulgar Latin mara*, standing water, lake, from Latin mare, sea. See MARE².]

Maas (mä's) A section of the Meuse River flowing westward through the southern Netherlands to a joint delta with the Rhine River.

Maa-sai (mä-si', mä'si) n. pl. Maasai or Maa-sais. Variant of Masai (n., sense 2).

Maas-tricht (mä's'trikt', -triht') A city of extreme southeast Netherlands near the Belgian border. Founded on the site of a Roman settlement, it has long been a strategic frontier outpost. Population, 113,277.

M.A.B.E. abbr. Master of Agricultural Business and Economics.

Ma-ble-ton (mä'bəl-tən) A community of northwest Georgia, a suburb of Atlanta. Population, 25,725.

mac (mäk) n. Chiefly British. A mackintosh.

Mac (mäk) n. Slang. Used as a form of address for a man whose name is unknown. [From Mac-, a common prefix in Scottish and Irish surnames.]

Mac. abbr. Bible. Maccabees.

ma-ca-bre (mə-kä'brə, mə-käb', -kä'bər) adj. 1. Suggesting the horror of death and decay; gruesome: macabre tales of war and plague in the Middle Ages.

See Synonyms at ghastly. 2. Constituting or including a representation of death. [Ultimately from Old French (Danse) Macabre, (dance) of death, perhaps alteration of Macabe, Maccabee, from Latin Maccabaeus, from Greek Makkabios.] —ma·ca'bre·ly adv.

WORD HISTORY: The word macabre is an excellent example of a word formed with reference to a specific context that has long since disappeared for everyone but scholars. Macabre is first recorded in the phrase Macabrees daunce in a work written around 1430 by John Lydgate. Lydgate expressed it so because he thought Macabree was a French author, although he was actually dealing with the Old French phrase Danse Macabre, “the Dance of Death,” a subject of art and literature. In this dance, Death leads people of all classes and walks of life to the same final end. The macabre element is thought by some to be an alteration of Macabe, “a Maccabee.” The Maccabees were Jewish martyrs who were honored by a feast throughout the Western Church, and reverence for them was linked to reverence for the dead. One of the biblical books of Maccabees also contains a passage (II Maccabees 12:43-45) mentioning sacrifices for the dead and their future resurrection, which has been used to defend the doctrine of Purgatory. Today macabre has no connection with the Maccabees and little connection with the Dance of Death, but it still has to do with death.

ma·ca·co (mə-kä'kō) n. pl. ma·ca·cos. Any of various lemurs, especially the species Lemur macaco. [Portuguese, of Bantu origin; akin to Kongo ma-kako, monkeys : ma-, pl. n. pref. + kako, monkey.]

mac·ad·am (mə-käd'əm) n. Pavement made of layers of compacted broken stone, now usually bound with tar or asphalt. [After John Loudon McAdam (1756-1836), Scottish civil engineer.]

mac·a·da·mi·a nut (mäk'ə-dä'mē-ə nüt) n. The round, hard-shelled nut or the edible seed of the Australian tree Macadamia ternifolia, now cultivated in Hawaii. [New Latin Macadamia, genus name, after John Macadam (1827-1865), Scottish-born Australian chemist.]

mac·ad·am·ize (mə-käd'ə-mīz') v. tr. mac·ad·am·ized, mac·ad·am·iz·ing, mac·ad·am·iz·es. To construct or pave (a road) with macadam.

—mac·ad'am·i·za'tion (-ə-mī-zā'shən) n. —mac·ad'am·iz'er n.

Ma·cao also Ma·cau (mə-kou') A Portuguese overseas province comprising Macao Peninsula and two offshore islands in the South China Sea west of Hong Kong. A Portuguese trading post was established here in 1557 and became a free port in 1849. It is now a tourist center. The province will come under Chinese control in 1999. The city of Macao, coextensive with the peninsula, is the capital. Population, 350,000.

ma·caque (mə-kāk', -kāk') n. Any of several short-tailed monkeys of the genus Macaca of southeast Asia, Japan, Gibraltar, and northern Africa. [French, from Portuguese macaco. See MACACO.]

mac·a·ro·ni (măk'ə-rō'nē) n. 1. pl. macaroni. A paste or pasta of wheat flour pressed into hollow tubes or other shapes, dried, and prepared for eating by boiling. 2. pl. macaroni or mac·a·ro·nies. a. A well-traveled young Englishman of the 18th and 19th centuries who affected foreign customs. b. A fop. [Italian dialectal macaroni, pl. of maccarone, dumpling, macaroni.]

mac·a·ron·ic (măk'ə-rōn'ik) adj. 1. Of or containing a mixture of vernacular words with Latin words or with vernacular words given Latinate endings: macaronic verse. 2. Of or involving a mixture of two or more languages. [New Latin macaronicus, from Italian dialectal maccarone, dumpling, macaroni (perhaps from the way macaroni is heaped on a plate and mixed with sauce).]

—mac'a·ron'ic n.

mac·a·roon (măk'ə-rōon') n. A chewy cookie made with sugar, egg whites, and almond paste or coconut. [French macaron, from Italian dialectal maccarone, dumpling, macaroni.]

Mac·Ar·thur (mĭk-är'thər), Charles. 1895-1956. American playwright noted for The Front Page (1928), which he cowrote with Ben Hecht.

Mac·Ar·thur (mĭk-är'thər), Douglas. 1880-1964. American general who served as U.S. chief of staff (1930-1935) and commanded Allied forces in the South Pacific during World War II. After losing the Philippines to the Japanese (1942), he regained the islands (1944) and accepted the surrender of Japan (1945). He commanded the United Nations forces in Korea (1950-1951) until a conflict in strategies led to his dismissal by President Harry S Truman. His father, Arthur MacArthur (1845-1912), commanded American troops in the Spanish-American War and thwarted Emilio Aguinaldo's insurgence in the Philippines (1899).

Ma·cau (mə-kou') See Macao.

Ma·cau·lay (mə-kô'lē), Dame Rose. 1881-1958. British writer whose witty, urbane novels include Potterism (1920) and The World My Wilderness (1950).

Ma·cau·lay (mə-kô'lē), Thomas Babington First Baron Macaulay. 1800-1859. British historian, writer, and politician whose works include the popular History of England (1849-1861), numerous essays for the Edinburgh Review, and a volume of narrative poems, Lays of Ancient Rome (1842).

ma·caw (mə-kô') n. Any of various parrots of the genera Ara and Anodorhynchus of Central and South America, including the largest parrots and characterized by long saber-shaped tails, curved powerful bills, and usually brilliant plumage. [Portuguese macaú, from macaúba, kind of palm tree, from Tupi macahuba, palm tree : maca, palm + ybá, tree.]

Mac-beth (mək-bēth'), Died 1057. King of Scotland (1040-1057) who ascended the throne after killing his cousin King Duncan (died 1040) in battle. Legends of his rise to power and reign are the basis of Shakespeare's tragedy Mac-beth.

Mac-Bride (mĭk-brīd'), Sean. 1904-1988. Irish politician who opposed Ireland's secession from Great Britain and was active in a number of international human rights organizations. He shared the 1974 Nobel Peace Prize.

Macc. abbr. Bible. Maccabees.

Mac-ca·bae·us (mäk'ə-bē'əs), Judas. See Judas Maccabeus.

Mac-ca·bees (mäk'ə-bēz') pl.n. Bible. 1. A family of Jewish patriots of the second and first centuries B.C., active in the liberation of Judea from Syrian rule. 2.

Abbr. M, Mac., Macc. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

—Mac'ca-be'an adj.

Mac-ca·be·us also Mac-ca·bae·us (mäk'ə-bē'əs), Judas or Judah. Died 160 B.C. Jewish patriot and most famous member of the Maccabees family. His rededication of the Temple at Jerusalem (164 B.C.) is commemorated by the feast of Hanukkah.

Mac-Diar-mid (mək-dûr'mīd), Hugh. Pen name of Christopher Murray Grieve. 1892-1978. Scottish poet whose works, many written in Scots, reflect his support for political independence from Great Britain and sparked a revival of modern Scottish literature.

Mac-don·ald (mĭk-dŏn'əld), George. 1824-1905. Scottish writer known primarily for his allegorical children's books, including At the Back of the North Wind (1871).

Mac-don·ald (mĭk-dŏn'əld), Sir John Alexander. 1815-1891. Canadian politician and the first prime minister of the Dominion of Canada (1867-1873 and 1878-1891). He is considered the organizer of the Canadian confederation, established in 1867.

Mac-Don-ald (mĭk-dŏn'əld), (James) Ramsay. 1866-1937. British politician who served as prime minister (1924 and 1929-1935).

Mac-don·ough (mĭk-dŏn'ə), Thomas. 1783-1825. American naval officer who during the War of 1812 defeated and captured the British naval forces on Lake Champlain (1814).

Mac-Dow·ell (mĭk-dou'əl), Edward Alexander. 1861-1908. American composer whose works include the piano sonatas Woodland Sketches (1896) and Sea Pieces (1898). He is considered America's first internationally appreciated composer.

mace¹ (mās) n. 1. A ceremonial staff borne or displayed as the symbol of authority of a legislative body. 2. A macebearer. 3. A heavy medieval war club with a spiked or flanged metal head, used to crush armor. [Middle English, from Old French masse, from Vulgar Latin mattea*, from Latin mateola, mallet.]

mace² (mās) n. An aromatic spice made from the dried, waxy, scarlet or yellowish covering that partly encloses the kernel of the nutmeg. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin macis, alteration of Latin macir, fragrant ailanthus resin, from Greek makir.]

Mace (mās) An alternate trademark used for Chemical Mace, an aerosol used to immobilize an attacker temporarily.

mace-bear-er (mās'bâr'ər) n. An official who carries a mace of office.

Maced. abbr. Macedonian.

mac-é-doine (mäs'ə-dwän') n. 1. A mixture of finely cut vegetables or fruits, sometimes jellied, and served as a salad, a dessert, or an appetizer. 2. A mixture; a medley. [French, from Macédoine, Macedonia (perhaps from the variety of races there).]

Mac-e-do-ni-a (mäs'ī-dō'nē-ə, -dōn'yə) 1. Also Mac-e-don (-dən, -dōn'). An ancient kingdom of northern Greece. It was a powerful empire under Philip II and his son Alexander the Great (fourth century B.C.) and contributed significantly to the spread of Hellenistic civilization. 2. A historical region of southeast Europe on the Balkan Peninsula, including modern Macedonia, northern Greece, and southwest Bulgaria. 3. A country of the south-central Balkan Peninsula south of Serbia. It was a constituent republic of Yugoslavia from 1946 to 1991. Skopje is the capital. Population, 1,623,598.

Mac-e-do-ni-an (mäs'ī-dō'nē-ən) adj. Abbr. Maced. Of or relating to ancient or modern Macedonia or its peoples, languages, or cultures. — n. Abbr.

Maced. 1. A native or inhabitant of ancient or modern Macedonia. 2. The language of ancient Macedonia, of uncertain affiliation within Indo-European.

3. The Slavic language of modern Macedonia, closely related to Bulgarian.

Ma-cei-ó (mäs'ā-ō', mä'sā-) A city of northeast Brazil on the Atlantic Ocean south-southwest of Recife. It is a commercial and distribution center. Population, 375,771.

mac-er (mā'sər) n. A macebearer.

mac-er-ate (mäs'ə-rāt') v. mac-er-at-ed, mac-er-at-ing, mac-er-ates. — v. tr. 1. To make soft by soaking or steeping in a liquid. 2. To separate into constituents by soaking. 3. To cause to become lean, usually by starvation; emaciate. — v. intr. To become soft or separated into constituents by soaking. — n. (-it) A substance prepared or produced by macerating. [Latin mācerāre, mācerāt-. See mag- in Appendix.] — mac'er-a'tion n. — mac'er-a'tor, mac'er-at'er n.

Mach also mach (māk) n. Mach number.

Mach (māk, mākH), Ernst. 1838-1916. Austrian physicist and philosopher whose concept of knowledge as the organization of sensory experience has greatly influenced modern science and philosophy.

mach. abbr. Machine; machinery; machinist.

- Ma·cha·do de As·sis (mä-shä'dōō dī ä-sēs'), Joachim María. 1839-1908. Brazilian writer whose novels, including Dom Casmurro (1900), reveal his wit, psychological insight, and pessimistic but empathic view of humanity.
- Ma·cha·do y Mo·ra·les (mä-chä'dō ē mē-rä'līs, mä-chä'thō ē mō-rä'lēs), Gerardo. 1871-1939. Cuban politician who as president (1925-1933) sought Cuba's economic and political independence from the United States. His oppressive regime was ended by a popular revolt backed by the United States (1933).
- Ma·cha·la (mä-chä'lä) A city of southwest Ecuador south of Guayaquil. It is a processing center in a gold-mining region. Population, 108,156.
- mache also mâche (mäsh) n. See corn salad. [French mâche, from dialectal pomache, from Vulgar Latin pōmasca*, from Latin pōmum, fruit (perhaps because of its slightly sweet taste).]
- ma·chet·e (mä-shět'ē, -chět'ē) n. A large, heavy knife with a broad blade, used as a weapon and an implement for cutting vegetation. [Spanish, diminutive of macho, sledge hammer, alteration of mazo, club, probably from maza, mallet, from Vulgar Latin mattea*, mace. See MACE¹.]
- Mach·i·a·vel·li (mäk'ē-ə-věl'ē, mä'kyä-), Niccolò. 1469-1527. Italian political theorist whose book The Prince (1513) describes the achievement and maintenance of power by a determined ruler indifferent to moral considerations.
- Mach·i·a·vel·li·an (mäk'ē-ə-věl'ē-ən) adj. 1. Of or relating to Machiavelli or Machiavellianism. 2. Suggestive of or characterized by expediency, deceit, and cunning. — Mach'i-a-vel/li-an, Mach'i-a-vel/list n.
- Mach·i·a·vel·li·an·ism (mäk'ē-ə-věl'ē-ə-nīz'əm) also Mach·i·a·vel·lism (-věl'iz'əm) n. The political doctrine of Machiavelli, which denies the relevance of morality in political affairs and holds that craft and deceit are justified in pursuing and maintaining political power.
- ma·chic·o·late (mä-chīk'ə-lāt') v. tr. ma·chic·o·lat·ed, ma·chic·o·lat·ing, ma·chic·o·lates. To provide or furnish with machicolations. [Medieval Latin machicolāre, machicolāt-, from Old French machicoller, from machicoleis, machicolation, from Old Provençal machacol: macar, to crush (from Vulgar Latin maccāre*) + col, neck (from Latin collum); see k^wel¹ in Appendix.]
- ma·chic·o·la·tion (mä-chīk'ə-lā'shən) n. 1. a. A projecting gallery at the top of a castle wall, supported by a row of corbeled arches and having openings in the floor through which stones and boiling liquids could be dropped on attackers. b. One of these openings. 2. A row of small corbeled arches used as an ornamental architectural feature.
- Ma·chi·da (mä-chē'dä, mä-chē'dä) A city of east-central Honshu, Japan, an industrial and residential suburb of Tokyo. Population, 321,182.
- mach·i·nate (mäk'ə-nāt', mäsh'-) v. mach·i·nat·ed, mach·i·nat·ing, mach·i·nates. — v. tr. To devise (a plot). — v. intr. To engage in plotting.

[Latin māchinārī, māchināt-, to design, contrive, from māchina, device. See MACHINE.] —mach/i-na'tor n.

mach·i·na·tion (mäk'ə-nā'shən, mäsh'-) n. 1. The act of plotting. 2. A crafty scheme or cunning design for the accomplishment of a sinister end. See Synonyms at conspiracy.

ma·chine (mə-shēn') n. Abbr. mach. 1. a. A device consisting of fixed and moving parts that modifies mechanical energy and transmits it in a more useful form. b. A simple device, such as a lever, a pulley, or an inclined plane, that alters the magnitude or direction, or both, of an applied force; a simple machine. 2. A system or device for doing work, as an automobile or a jackhammer, together with its power source and auxiliary equipment. 3. A system or device, such as a computer, that performs or assists in the performance of a human task: The machine is down. 4. An intricate natural system or organism, such as the human body. 5. A person who acts in a rigid, mechanical, or unconscious manner. 6. An organized group of people whose members are or appear to be under the control of one or more leaders: a political machine. 7. a. A device used to produce a stage effect, especially a mechanical means of lowering an actor onto the stage. b. A literary device used to produce an effect, especially the introduction of a supernatural being to resolve a plot. — adj. Of, relating to, or felt to resemble a machine: machine repairs; machine politics. — v. ma·chined, ma·chin·ing, ma·chines. — v. tr. To cut, shape, or finish by machine. — v. intr. To be cut, shaped, or finished by machine: This metal machines easily. [French, from Old French, from Latin māchina, from Greek mēkhanē, makhana. See magh- in Appendix.] —ma·chin/a·ble adj. —ma·chine/less adj.

machine bolt (mə-shēn' bōlt) n. A bolt with a square or hexagonal head.

machine code (mə-shēn' kōd) n. Computer Science. See machine language.

machine finish (mə-shēn' fīn'ish) n. See mill finish.

machine gun (mə-shēn' gūn) n. Abbr. MG A gun that fires rapidly and repeatedly.

ma·chine-gun (mə-shēn'gūn') v. tr. ma·chine--gunned, ma·chine--gun·ning, ma·chine--guns. To fire at or kill with a machine gun. — adj. Fast and staccato: a machine-gun style of speaking. —machine gunner n.

machine language (mə-shēn' lǎng'gwij) n. Computer Science. A set of instructions coded so that the computer can use it directly without further translation. Also called machine code machine pistol (mə-shēn' pīs'təl) n. A lightweight automatic or semiautomatic submachine gun designed to be fired one-handed like a pistol.

ma·chine-read·a·ble (mə-shēn'rē'də-bəl) adj. Computer Science. Easy to feed directly into a computer, as data that have been stored magnetically.

ma·chin·er·y (mə-shē'nə-rē, -shēn'rē) n. pl. ma·chin·er·ies. Abbr. mach.

1. Machines or machine parts considered as a group. 2. The working parts of a particular machine. 3. A system of related elements that operate in a definable manner: diplomatic and political machinery. 4. a. A device or means of achieving or effecting a result. b. A literary device for bringing about an effect, such as a happy ending.

machine screw (mə-shēn' skrōō) n. A screw with a thread along the entire length of the shaft.

machine shop (mə-shēn' shōp) n. A workshop where power-driven tools are used for making, finishing, or repairing machines or machine parts.

machine tool (mə-shēn' tōōl) n. A power-driven tool, such as a lathe or milling machine, used for machining. —ma·chine'·tooled' (mə-shēn'tōōld') adj.

machine translation (mə-shēn' trāns-lā'shən) n. Automatic translation, as by computer, from one language to another.

ma·chine·wash (mə-shēn'wōsh', -wōsh') v. tr. intr. ma·chine--washed, ma·chine--wash·ing, ma·chine--wash·es. To wash or undergo washing in a washing machine.

ma·chin·ist (mə-shē'nĭst) n. Abbr. mach. 1. One who is skilled in operating machine tools. 2. One who makes, operates, or repairs machines. 3. A warrant officer who assists the engineering officer in the engine room of a naval vessel. 4. Archaic. A person in charge of stage machinery.

ma·chis·mo (mä-chēz'mō) n. A strong, sometimes exaggerated sense of masculinity stressing attributes such as physical courage, virility, domination of women, and aggressiveness; manliness: "He might seem during the interview to relish his machismo—why else the karate kick that opens the apartment-house gate?" (New York). [Spanish, from macho, male. See MACHO.]

Mach·me·ter (mäk'mē'tər) n. An aircraft instrument that indicates speed in Mach numbers.

Mach number also mach number (mäk nŭm'bər) n. Abbr. M The ratio of the speed of an object to the speed of sound in the surrounding medium. For example, an aircraft moving twice as fast as the speed of sound is said to be traveling at Mach 2. [After Ernst MACH.]

ma·cho (mä'chō) adj. Characterized or motivated by machismo: "He was a mindless activist, a war lover, who found macho relish in danger and felt driven to prove manhood by confrontation" (Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr.). — n. pl.

ma·chos. 1. Machismo. 2. A person characterized by or exhibiting machismo. [Spanish, male, from Latin masculus. See MASCULINE.] —ma'cho·ism n.

Ma·chu Pic·chu (mä'chōō pēk'chōō, pē'-) An ancient Inca fortress city in the Andes northwest of Cuzco, Peru. Its extensive ruins, including elaborate terraces, were discovered in 1911.

mach·zor (mäKH'zōr', -zər, mäKH-zōr') n. Variant of mahzor.

mac-in·tosh (mäkʹin-töshʹ) n. Variant of mackintosh.

Mac-I-ver (mə-kīʹvər), Robert Morrison. 1882-1970. British-born American sociologist who emphasized the relationship between human values and social structure within a society.

Mack (mäk), Connie. 1862-1956. American baseball player and manager (1901-1951) of the Philadelphia Athletics, which he led to nine American League pennants and five World Series championships between 1902 and 1930.

Mac-Kaye (mə-kīʹ), (James Morrison) Steele. 1842-1894. American actor, playwright, and producer who founded America's first school of drama (1873) and developed many theatrical innovations, such as overhead lighting. Of his sons, Percy (1875-1956) was a noted poet and playwright and Benton (1879-1975) was a regional planner who proposed the Appalachian Trail (1921).

Ma-cke (mäʹkə), August. 1887-1914. German painter whose works, such as Lady in a Green Jacket (1913), display brilliant use of color. He was associated with Franz Marc and the Blaue Reiter group and was killed in World War I.

Mac-ken-zie (mə-kěnʹzē), Alexander. 1822-1892. British-born Canadian politician who was the first Liberal prime minister of Canada (1873-1878).

Mac-ken-zie (mə-kěnʹzē), Sir Alexander. 1764-1820. British-born Canadian explorer who navigated the Mackenzie River (1789) and was the first to cross North America by land north of Mexico (1793).

Mac-ken-zie (mə-kěnʹzē), Sir Compton. 1883-1972. British writer best known for his novels, including Carnival (1912) and Sinister Street (1913-1914).

Mac-ken-zie (mə-kěnʹzē), William Lyon. 1795-1861. British-born Canadian insurgent and member of Parliament (1828-1836 and 1851-1858) who led an armed insurrection in Toronto (1837) to protest colonial rule.

Mackenzie District (mə-kěnʹzē dīsʹtrikt) A former district of western and central Northwest Territories, Canada, now divided mainly between Inuvik and Fort Smith districts.

Mackenzie Mountains (mə-kěnʹzē mounʹtənz) A range of the northern Rocky Mountains in eastern Yukon Territory and western Northwest Territories, Canada, rising to 2,973.8 m (9,750 ft).

Mackenzie River (mə-kěnʹzē rīvʹər) A river of northwest Canada rising in Great Slave Lake in southern Northwest Territories and flowing about 1,802 km (1,120 mi) generally northwest to a vast delta on Mackenzie Bay, an arm of the Beaufort Sea. It was first navigated by Sir Alexander Mackenzie in 1789.

mack-er-el (mäkʹər-əl, mäkʹrəl) n. pl. mackerel or mack-er-els. 1. Any of several widely distributed marine fishes of the family Scombridae, especially the Atlantic mackerel (Scomber scombrus), an important food fish having dark, wavy bars on the back and a silvery belly. 2. Any of the smaller fishes of the suborder Scombroidea, such as the Spanish mackerel. 3. Any of various similar fishes.

[Middle English makerel, from Old French maquerel.]

mackerel shark (mäk'ər-əl shärk) n. Any of various sharks of the family Lamnidae, including the great white shark, mako, and porbeagle, having a pointed snout, a nearly symmetrical tail, and a reputation for aggressiveness.

mackerel sky (mäk'ər-əl skī) n. Northeastern U.S. A sky covered with many small cirrocumulus or altocumulus clouds, giving an overall effect of the markings to be found on a mackerel. Regional. Also called buttermilk sky

Mack·i·nac Island (mäk'ə-nô' ī'lənd) An island of northern Michigan in the Straits of Mackinac, a passage connecting Lakes Huron and Michigan between the Upper and Lower peninsulas. The island was long the center of an important fur-trading area and is now a resort.

mack·i·naw (mäk'ə-nô') n. 1. A short, double-breasted coat of heavy, usually plaid, woolen material. 2. The cloth from which such a coat is made, usually of wool, often with a heavy nap. 3. Nautical. A flat-bottomed boat with a pointed bow and square stern, once used on the upper Great Lakes. [After Old Mackinac, a fort on the site of present-day Mackinaw City in northern Michigan.]

Mack·i·naw blanket (mäk'ə-nô' bläng'kīt) n. A thick blanket in solid colors or stripes, formerly used in northern and western North America by traders, trappers, and Native Americans.

Mackinaw trout (mäk'ə-nô' trout) n. See lake trout.

Mac·kin·der (mə-kīn'dər), Sir Halford John. 1861-1947. British geographer who established geography as an academic field and maintained that Europe was the logical geographic center of world government, a theory used to support Nazi geopolitics.

mack·in·tosh also mac·in·tosh (mäk'īn-tōsh') n. Chiefly British. 1. A raincoat. 2. A lightweight, waterproof fabric that was originally of rubberized cotton. [After Charles Macintosh (1766-1843), Scottish inventor.]

mack·le (mäk'əl) also mac·ule (mäk'yōōl') n. A blurred or double impression in printing. — v. mack·led also mac·uled, mack·ling also mac·ul·ing, mack·les also mac·ules. — v. tr. To blur or double (a printed impression). — v. intr. To become blurred. [Middle English macule, spot, from Old French, from Latin macula.]

mac·le (mäk'əl) n. 1. Chiastolite. 2. A twinned crystal. 3. A dark spot or discoloration in a mineral. [French, from Old French, lozenge, from Latin macula, mesh.]

Mac·Leish (mäk-lēsh'), Archibald. 1892-1982. American poet who served as Librarian of Congress (1939-1944) and assistant secretary of state (1944-1945). He won a Pulitzer Prize for Conquistador (1932), Collected Poems 1917-1952 (1952), and the verse play J.B. (1958).

Mac·Len·nan (mə-klēn'ən), Hugh. Born 1907. Canadian writer whose novels, such as Two Solitudes (1945) and Return of the Sphinx (1967), are literary treatments of Canadian political and social concerns.

Mac-leod (mə-kloud'), John James Rickard. 1876-1935. British physiologist. He shared a 1923 Nobel Prize for the discovery of insulin.

Mac-mil-lan (mīk-mīl'ən), (Maurice) Harold. 1894-1986. British politician who joined Churchill in the 1930's in condemning Great Britain's appeasement of Hitler. As prime minister (1957-1963) he sought British entry into the Common Market.

Mac-Mil-lan (mīk-mīl'ən), Donald Baxter. 1874-1970. American explorer noted for his use of aircraft in several Arctic explorations between 1913 and 1937.

Mac-Mon-nies (mīk-mön'ēz, -mün'-), Frederick William. 1863-1937. American sculptor of many public monuments, including Triumph of Columbia (1893) in Chicago.

Mac-Neice (mīk-nēs'), (Frederick) Louis. 1907-1963. Irish-born British poet whose works, published in Blind Fireworks (1929) and other collections, treat social issues in a detached, often ironic manner.

Ma-comb (mə-kōm') A city of western Illinois west-southwest of Peoria. It is known for its pottery and clay products. Population, 19,952.

Ma-con (mā'kən) A city of central Georgia southeast of Atlanta. Settled in the early 1820's, it is a processing, industrial, and educational center in an extensive farm area. Population, 106,612.

Ma-con (mā'kən), Nathaniel. 1758-1837. American politician who opposed ratification of the U.S. Constitution, served as U.S. representative (1791-1815) and senator (1815-1828) from North Carolina, and vehemently opposed a strong federal government.

Mâ-con (mä-kōn') A city of east-central France on the Saône River north of Lyons. A Huguenot stronghold in the 16th century, it is noted for its fine Burgundy wines. Population, 38,404.

Mac-pher-son (mək-fûr'sən), James. 1736-1796. Scottish poet who claimed to have translated the works of Ossian, a third-century Gaelic poet and warrior. Although based on unauthenticated original texts, the translations influenced many writers.

Mac-quar-ie (mə-kwâr'ē, -kwôr'ē) A river of southeast Australia flowing about 949 km (590 mi) northwest to the Darling River.

macr- pref. Variant of macro-.

mac-ra-mé (mək'rə-mā') n. Coarse lace work made by weaving and knotting cords into a pattern. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: macramé holders for plants; macramé work. [French, from Italian macramè, from Turkish makrama, towel, from Arabic miqramah, embroidered veil.]

Mac-rea-dy (mə-krē'dē), William Charles. 1793-1873. British actor particularly noted for his Shakespearean roles and his contributions to modern stagecraft.

- mac-ro (mäk'rō') n. pl. mac-ros. Computer Science. A single instruction in programming language that results in a series of instructions in machine language. [Short for MACROINSTRUCTION.]
- macro- or macr- pref. 1. Large: macronucleus. 2. Long: macrobiotics. 3. Inclusive: macroinstruction. [Greek makro-, from makros, large. See māk- in Appendix.]
- mac-ro-bi-ot-ics (mäk'rō-bī-ōt'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The theory or practice of promoting well-being and longevity, principally by means of a diet consisting chiefly of whole grains and beans. —mac'ro-bi-ot'ic adj.
- mac-ro-ceph-a-ly (mäk'rō-sěf'ə-lē) also mac-ro-ce-pha-li-a (-sə-fā'lē-ə, -fāl'yə) n. Abnormal largeness of the head. Also called megacephaly, megalcephaly. —mac'ro-ce-phal'ic (-sə-fāl'ik), mac'ro-ceph'a-lous adj.
- mac-ro-cli-mate (mäk'rō-klī'mīt) n. The climate of a large geographic area. —mac'ro-cli-mat'ic (-mät'ik) adj.
- mac-ro-code (mäk'rə-kōd') n. Computer Science. 1. A coding system in which single codes generate several sets of instructions. 2. A single code that represents a set of instructions.
- mac-ro-cosm (mäk'rə-kōz'əm) n. 1. The entire world; the universe. 2. A system reflecting on a large scale one of its component systems or parts. [Medieval Latin macrocosmus : Greek makro-, macro- + Greek kosmos, world.] —mac'ro-cos'mic adj. —mac'ro-cos'mic-al-ly adv.
- mac-ro-cyte (mäk'rō-sīt') n. An abnormally large red blood cell, especially one associated with pernicious anemia. —mac'ro-cyt'ic (-sīt'ik) adj.
- mac-ro-cy-to-sis (mäk'rō-sī-tō'sis) n. pl. mac-ro-cy-to-ses (-sēz). The presence of macrocytes in the blood. —mac'ro-cy-tot'ic (-tōt'ik) adj.
- mac-ro-ec-o-nom-ics (mäk'rō-ěk'ə-nōm'iks, -ē'kə-) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of the overall aspects and workings of a national economy, such as income, output, and the interrelationship among diverse economic sectors. —mac'ro-ec'o-nom'ic adj. —mac'ro-e-con'o-mist (-i-kōn'ə-mīst) n.
- mac-ro-ev-o-lu-tion (mäk'rō-ěv'ə-lōō'shən, -ē'və-) n. Large-scale evolution occurring over geologic time that results in the formation of new taxonomic groups. —mac'ro-ev'o-lu'tion-ar'y (-shə-nēr'ē) adj.
- mac-ro-fos-sil (mäk'rō-fös'əl) n. A fossil large enough to be examined without a microscope.
- mac-ro-gam-ete (mäk'rō-gām'ēt, -gə-mēt') n. The larger, usually female of two conjugating gametes in a heterogamous organism. Also called megagamete
- mac-ro-glob-u-lin (mäk'rō-glōb'yə-līn) n. A plasma globulin of high molecular weight.
- mac-ro-glob-u-lin-e-mi-a (mäk'rō-glōb'yə-lə-nē'mē-ə) n. The presence of an abnormally large amount of macroglobulins in the blood serum.

mac-ro-graph (mäk'rō-gräf') n. A representation of an object that is at least as large as the object.

ma-crog-ra-phy (mə-krög'rə-fē) n. 1. Examination of objects with the unaided eye. 2. Abnormally large handwriting, sometimes indicating a nervous disorder.

mac-ro-in-struc-tion (mäk'rō-ïn-strük'shən) n. Computer Science. A macro.

mac-ro-mere (mäk'rə-mîr') n. Embryology. A large blastomere. [MACRO- + (BLASTO)MERE.]

mac-ro-mol-e-cule (mäk'rō-mōl'ī-kyōōl') n. A very large molecule, such as a polymer or protein, consisting of many smaller structural units linked together.

Also called supermolecule —mac'ro-mo-lec'u-lar (-mə-lĕk'yə-lər) adj.

ma-cron (mā'krōn', -krən, mäk'rōn') n. 1. A diacritical mark placed above a vowel to indicate a long sound or phonetic value in pronunciation, such as (ā) in the word make. 2. The horizontal mark (¯) used to indicate a stressed or long syllable in a foot of verse. [Greek makron, from neuter of makros, long. See māk- in Appendix.]

mac-ro-nu-cle-us (mäk'rō-nōō'klē-əs, -nyōō'-) n. pl. mac-ro-nu-cle-i (-klē-ī'). The larger of two nuclei present in ciliate protozoans, which controls nonreproductive functions of the cell, such as metabolism. —mac'ro-nu'cle-ar adj.

mac-ro-nu-tri-ent (mäk'rō-nōō'trē-ənt, -nyōō'-) n. An element, such as carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, or nitrogen, required in large proportion for the normal growth and development of a plant.

mac-ro-phage (mäk'rə-fāj') n. Any of the large phagocytic cells of the reticuloendothelial system. —mac'ro-phag'ic (-fāj'ĭk) adj.

mac-ro-phys-ics (mäk'rō-fiz'ĭks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The branch of physics that deals with objects and phenomena large enough to be measured and observed.

mac-ro-phyte (mäk'rə-fīt') n. A macroscopic plant. —mac'ro-phyt'ic (-fīt'ĭk) adj.

ma-crop-ter-ous (mə-kröp'tər-əs) adj. Having very large fins or wings. [From Greek makropteros: makro-, macro- + -pteros, winged (from pteron, wing); see -PTER.]

mac-ro-scop-ic (mäk'rə-sköp'ĭk) also mac-ro-scop-i-cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. 1. Large enough to be perceived or examined by the unaided eye. 2. Relating to observations made by the unaided eye. —mac'ro-scop'i-cal-ly adv.

macroscopic anatomy (mäk'rə-sköp'ĭk ə-nät'ə-mē) n. See gross anatomy.

mac-ro-spo-ran-gi-um (mäk'rō-spə-rän'jē-əm) n. pl. mac-ro-spo-ran-gi-a (-jē-ə). See megasporangium.

mac-ro-spore (mäk'rə-spôr', -spōr') n. See megaspore.

mac·u·la (mäk'yə-lə) n. pl. mac·u·lae (-lē') or mac·u·las. 1. Also mac·ule (-yōl'). A spot, stain, or blemish, especially an area of discoloration on the skin caused by excess or lack of pigment. 2. Anatomy. A small area distinguishable from the surrounding tissue. 3. A sunspot. [Middle English, from Latin.]

—mac'·u·lar adj.

macula lu·te·a (mäk'yə-lə lōō'tē-ə) n. pl. maculae lu·te·ae (lōō'tē-ē'). A minute yellowish area containing the fovea centralis located near the center of the retina of the eye at which visual perception is most acute. Also called yellow spot [New Latin macula lūtea: Latin macula, spot + Latin lūtea, yellow.]

mac·u·late (mäk'yə-lāt') v. tr. mac·u·lat·ed, mac·u·lat·ing, mac·u·lates. To spot, blemish, or pollute. — adj. (-līt) 1. Spotted or blotched. 2. Stained; impure. [Middle English maculaten, from Latin maculāre, maculāt-, from macula, spot.]

mac·u·la·tion (mäk'yə-lā'shən) n. 1. The act of spotting or staining or the condition of being spotted or stained. 2. The spotted markings of a plant or an animal, such as the spots of the leopard.

mac·ule¹ (mäk'yōl') n. & v. Variant of mackle.

mac·ule² (mäk'yōl') n. Variant of macula (n., sense 1). mad (mäd) adj. mad·der, mad·dest. 1. Angry; resentful. See Synonyms at angry. 2. Suffering from a disorder of the mind; insane. 3. Temporarily or apparently deranged by violent sensations, emotions, or ideas: mad with jealousy. 4. Lacking restraint or reason; foolish: I was mad to have hired her in the first place. 5. Feeling or showing strong liking or enthusiasm: mad about sports. 6. Marked by extreme excitement, confusion, or agitation; frantic: a mad scramble for the bus. 7. Boisterously gay; hilarious: had a mad time. 8. Affected by rabies; rabid. — v. tr. intr. mad·ded, mad·ding, mads. To make or become mad; madden. — idioms. like mad. Informal. 1. Wildly; impetuously: drove like mad. 2. To an intense degree or great extent: worked like mad; snowing like mad. mad as a hatter. Crazy; deranged. [Middle English, from Old English gemædde, past participle of gemædan*, to madden, from gemād, insane. See mei¹ in Appendix.] — mad'dish adj.

MAD (mäd) n. Mutual assured destruction.

Mad·a·gas·car (mäd'ə-gäs'kər) Formerly Mal·a·gas·y Republic (mä'l'ə-gäs'ē). Abbr. Mad., Madag. An island country in the Indian Ocean off the southeast coast of Africa comprising the island of Madagascar and several small islands. The French first established settlements on the island in 1642 and made it a colony in 1896. The country gained full independence as the Malagasy Republic in 1960 and was renamed Madagascar in 1975. Antananarivo is the capital and the largest city. Population, 9,230,000. — Mad'a·gas'can adj. & n.

Madagascar periwinkle (mäd'ə-gäs'kər pēr'i-wīng'kəl) n. A perennial plant (Catharanthus roseus) native to Madagascar and India, having pink or white flowers with a salverform corolla and opposite leaves. It is poisonous to domestic animals and is the source of certain substances used in the treatment of cancer.

Also called rose periwinkle

Mad·am (mäd'əm) n. Abbr. Mdm. 1. pl. Mes-dames (mā-däm', -däm').

Used formerly as a courtesy title before a woman's given name but now used only before a surname or title indicating rank or office: Madam Ambassador. 2. Used as a salutation in a letter: Dear Madam or Sir. 3. madam. Used as a form of polite address for a woman: Right this way, madam. 4. madam. The mistress of a household. 5. madam. A woman who manages a brothel. [Middle English madame, from Old French ma dame. See MADAME.]

Ma-dame (mə-däm', mäd'əm) n. pl. Mes-dames or mes-dames (mā-däm', -däm'). Abbr. Mme. 1. Used as a courtesy title before the surname or full name of a married woman in a French-speaking area: Madame Cartier; Madame Jacqueline Cartier. 2. madame. Used as a form of polite address for a woman in a French-speaking area. [French, from Old French ma dame: ma, my (from Latin mea, feminine of meus); see me-¹ in Appendix + dame, lady (from Latin domina, feminine of dominus, lord, master of a household); see dem- in Appendix.]

Ma-da-ria-ga y Ro-jo (mä'də-rē-ä'gə ē rô'hō, mä'thä-ryä'gä), Salvador de. 1886-1978. Spanish diplomat and writer who served in governmental positions, such as delegate to the League of Nations (1931-1936), and is known for his works of fiction, history, and literary criticism.

mad-cap (mäd'käp') adj. Behaving or acting impulsively or rashly; wild. [MAD + CAP¹, head.] —mad'cap' n.

MADD abbr. Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

mad·den (mäd'n) v. mad-dened, mad-den-ing, mad-dens. — v. tr. 1. To make angry; irritate. 2. To drive insane. — v. intr. To become infuriated.

mad-den-ing (mäd'n-ing) adj. 1. Tending to anger or irritate: a maddening delay at the airport. 2. Tending to drive insane. —mad'den-ing-ly adv.

mad·der (mäd'ər) n. 1. a. A southwest Asian perennial plant (Rubia tinctorum) having small yellow flowers, whorled leaves, and a red root. b. The root of this plant, formerly an important source of the dye alizarin. c. A red dye obtained from the roots of this plant. 2. Color. A medium to strong red or reddish orange. [Middle English, from Old English mædere.]

mad-ding (mäd'ing) adj. Archaic. In a state of frenzy; frenzied: "far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife" (Thomas Gray).

mad-dog skullcap (mäd'dôg' skül'käp', -dôg') n. A North American perennial plant (Scutellaria lateriflora) having one-sided clusters of two-lipped blue or white flowers. [So called from its use as an antispasmodic.]

made (mäd) v. Past tense and past participle of make. — adj. 1. Produced or manufactured by constructing, shaping, or forming. Often used in combination: handmade lace; ready-made suits. 2. Produced or created artificially: bought some made goods at the local store. 3. Having been invented; contrived: These made excuses of yours just won't wash. 4. Assured of success: a made man. —idiom.

made for. Perfectly suited for: They're made for each other.

Ma-dei-ra¹ (mə-dîr'ə, -dër'ə) A river of northwest Brazil rising on the Bolivian border and flowing about 3,315 km (2,060 mi) generally northeast to the Amazon River near Manaus. It is the most important tributary of the Amazon.

Ma-dei-ra² (mə-dîr'ə) n. A fortified dessert wine, especially from the island of Madeira.

Madeira Islands (mə-dîr'ə ī'ləndz) An archipelago of Portugal in the northeast Atlantic Ocean west of Morocco. Only two of the volcanic islands are inhabited. The island of Madeira is a tourist center noted for its wine.

—Ma-dei'ran adj. & n.

Madeira vine (mə-dîr'ə vīn) n. A tropical South American ornamental vine (Anredera cordifolia) having small, white, fragrant flowers.

mad-e-leine (măd'ə-lēn') n. A small, rich cake, baked in a shell-shaped mold. [After Madeleine Paulmier, 19th-century French pastry cook.]

Mad-e-moi-selle (măd'ə-mə-zěl', măd-mwä-zěl') n. pl. Mad-e-moi-selles (-zēlz) or Mes-de-moi-selles (măd'mwä-zěl'). Abbr. Mlle. 1. Used as a courtesy title before the surname or full name of a girl or an unmarried woman in a French-speaking area: Mademoiselle Turot; Mademoiselle Isabelle Turot.

2. mademoiselle. pl. mademoiselles or mesdemoiselles. Used as a form of polite address for a girl or young woman in a French-speaking area.

3. mademoiselle. pl. mademoiselles. A French governess.

4. mademoiselle. pl. mademoiselle or mad-e-moi-selles. See silver perch. [French, from Old French ma demoiselle: ma, my; see MADAME + demoiselle, young lady (from Old French damisele, from Vulgar Latin dominicella*, diminutive of Latin domina, lady, feminine of dominus, master of a household); see dem- in Appendix.]

Ma-de-ra (mə-dër'ə) A city of central California in the San Joaquin Valley northwest of Fresno. It is an industrial and processing center. Population, 29,281.

Ma-de-ro (mə-dër'ō, mă-thě'rō), Francisco Indalecio. 1873-1913. Mexican revolutionary and politician who forced the resignation of Porfirio Díaz and assumed the presidency (1911). Unable to effect reform, he was overthrown and imprisoned by Victoriano Huerta (1913) and was killed while reportedly attempting to escape.

made-to-order (măd'tō-ôr'dər) adj. 1. Made in accordance with particular instructions or requirements; custom-made. 2. Very suitable: a made-to-order job.

made-up (măd'üp') adj. 1. Having been fabricated; invented: a made-up story. 2. Changed or adorned by the application of cosmetics or makeup: a made-up actor. 3. a. Complete; finished: a made-up package. b. Put together; arranged: a made-up page of type.

mad·house (mäd'hous') n. 1. A mental health facility. 2. Informal. A place of great disorder and confusion.

Mad·i·son (mäd'i-sən) 1. A borough of northeast New Jersey southeast of Morristown. It is mainly residential. Population, 15,850. 2. The capital of Wisconsin, in the south-central part of the state west of Milwaukee. It was chosen as territorial capital in 1836 and settled the same year. The main branch of the University of Wisconsin (founded 1848) is here. Population, 191,262.

Mad·i·son (mäd'i-sən), Dolley Payne Todd. 1768-1849. First Lady of the United States (1809-1817) as the wife of President James Madison. She earlier served as White House hostess for the widowed Thomas Jefferson. During the British invasion of Washington, D.C. (1814), she heroically carried important government papers and a portrait of George Washington to safety.

Mad·i·son (mäd'i-sən), James. 1751-1836. The fourth President of the United States (1809-1817). A member of the Continental Congress (1780-1783) and the Constitutional Convention (1787), he strongly supported ratification of the Constitution and was a contributor to The Federalist Papers (1787-1788), which argued the effectiveness of the proposed constitution. His presidency was marked by the War of 1812. —Mad'i-so'ni-an (-sō'nē-ən) adj.

Madison Avenue (mäd'i-sən äv'ə-nōō') n. The American advertising industry. — adj. Of, relating to, or working in the American advertising industry. [After Madison Avenue in New York City, the center of American advertising.]

Madison Heights (mäd'i-sən hīts) A city of southeast Michigan, a suburb of Detroit. Population, 32,196.

Madison River (mäd'i-sən rīv'ər) A river of southwest Montana flowing about 294 km (183 mi) generally northward to join the Jefferson and Gallatin rivers and form the Missouri River.

Mad·i·son·ville (mäd'i-sən-vil') A city of western Kentucky north of Hopkinsville. It is a processing center in a coal and farm area. Population, 16,200.

mad·ly (mäd'lē) adv. 1. In a crazy way; insanelly. 2. In a wild manner; frantically. 3. In a foolish manner; rashly.

mad·man (mäd'män', -mən) n. A man who is or seems to be mentally ill.

mad money (mäd mүн'ē) n. Slang. A small sum of money kept for unlikely contingencies.

mad·ness (mäd'nīs) n. 1. The quality or condition of being insane. See Synonyms at insanity. 2. Great folly: It was sheer madness to attempt the drive during a blizzard. 3. Fury; rage. 4. Enthusiasm; excitement.

Ma·don·na (mə-dōn'ə) n. 1. The Virgin Mary. 2. Obsolete. Used as a form of polite address for a married woman in an Italian-speaking area. [Italian : mia, ma, my (from Latin mea); see MADAME + donna, lady (from Latin domina, feminine of dominus, master of a household); see dem- in Appendix.]

Madonna lily (mə-dŏn'ə lĭl'ē) n. An eastern Mediterranean plant (Lilium candidum) having white, bell-shaped flowers that yield an essential oil used in perfumery. [From its frequent appearance in paintings of the Madonna.]

mad-ras (mäd'rəs, mə-dräs', -dräs') n. 1. A cotton cloth of fine texture, usually with a plaid, striped, or checked pattern. 2. A silk, generally striped, cloth. 3. a. A light cotton cloth used for drapery. b. A similar cloth of rayon. 4. A large handkerchief of brightly colored silk or cotton, often worn as a turban. [After Madras.]

Ma-dras (mə-dräs', -dräs') A city of southeast India on the Coromandel Coast of the Bay of Bengal. Founded in 1639 as Fort St. George by the British East India Company, Madras was held by the French from 1746 to 1748. It is today a major industrial, commercial, and cultural center with a thriving harbor (constructed 1862-1901). Population, 3,276,622.

Ma-dre de Di-os (mä'drā dā dē-ōs', mä'thrē thē dyōs') A river, about 1,126 km (700 mi) long, of southeast Peru and northwest Bolivia flowing northeast from the Andes to the Beni River.

mad-re-pore (mäd'rə-pŏr', -pŏr') n. Any of various stony corals of the order Madreporaria, which includes the reef builders of tropical seas. [Italian madrepora : madre, mother (from Latin māter, mātr-); see māter- in Appendix + -pora (alteration of poro, tufa, pore, from Late Latin porus, passageway; see pore², or from Latin pŏrus, calcareous stone, stalactite from Greek pŏros).] —mad're-po'ri-an adj. —mad're-por'ic adj.

mad-re-por-ite (mäd'rə-pŏr'īt, -pŏr'-) n. A perforated platelike structure in most echinoderms that forms the intake for their water-vascular systems. [So called because the perforations resemble those of a madrepor.]

Ma-drid (mə-drĭd') The capital and largest city of Spain, on the central plateau north-northeast of Toledo. Built on the site of a Moorish fortress captured in the 10th century, it became the capital in 1561 during the reign of Philip II and grew in importance and magnificence under the Bourbons in the 18th century. Madrid was a Loyalist stronghold during the Spanish Civil War (1936-1939). Population, 3,200,234.

mad-ri-gal (mäd'rĭ-gəl) n. 1. a. Music. An unaccompanied vocal composition for two or three voices in simple harmony, following a strict poetic form, developed in Italy in the late 13th and early 14th centuries. b. A short poem, often about love, suitable for being set to music. 2. Music. a. A typically unaccompanied polyphonic part song using a secular text and intended for four to six voices, developed in Italy in the 16th century and very popular in England in the 16th and early 17th centuries. Sometimes a string accompaniment doubles or replaces one or more of the vocal parts. b. A part song. [Italian madrigale, probably from dialectal madregal, simple, from Late Latin mātrīcālis, invented, original, from Latin, of the womb, from mātrīx, mātrīc-, womb, from māter, mātr-, mother. See MATER.] —mad'ri-gal-ist n.

ma·dri·lène also ma·dri·lene (mä'drī-lě'n') n. A consommé flavored with tomato, often served jellied and chilled. [French (consommé) madrilène, Madrid (consommé), from Spanish madrileño, of Madrid, from Madrid.]

ma·dro·ña (mə-drō'nyə) also ma·dro·ño (-drō'nyō) or ma·dro·ne (-drō'nə) n. pl. ma·dro·ñas also ma·dro·ños or ma·dro·nes. An evergreen tree (Arbutus menziesii) native to Pacific North America, having leathery, glossy leaves, white urn-shaped flowers, and orange or red edible berries. The wood has been used for making furniture and the bark for tanning. [American Spanish, from Spanish madroño, strawberry tree.]

mad tom (mä'd tōm) n. Any of several small freshwater North American catfishes of the genus Noturus, having poisonous spines and common in the east-central United States. [MAD + TOM(CAT).]

Ma·du·rai (mä'də-rī', mä'd'yōō-rī') A city of southern India south-southwest of Madras. Known as “the City of Festivals and Temples,” it is a Hindu pilgrimage site and an educational and cultural center with varied industries. Population, 820,891.

mad·wom·an (mä'd'wōōm'ən) n. A woman who is or seems to be mentally ill.

mad·wort (mä'd'wūrt', -wōrt') n. 1. A low-growing Eurasian plant (Asperugo procumbens) having rough stems and small blue flowers. 2. See alyssum (n., sense 2).

M.A.E. abbr. 1. Master of Aeronautical Engineering. 2. Master of Art Education. 3. Master of Arts in Education.

Mae·an·der (mē-än'dər) An ancient name for the Menderes River of western Turkey.

Ma·e·ba·shi (mä'ě-bä'shē) A city of central Honshu, Japan, northwest of Tokyo. Located in a mountainous region with volcanic soil, the city is a leading silk-producing center. Population, 277,319.

Mae·ce·nas (mē-sē'nəs, mī-), Gaius. 70?-8 B.C. Roman politician and patron of Horace and Virgil.

M.A.Ed. abbr. Master of Arts in Education.

mael·strom (māl'strəm) n. 1. A violent or turbulent situation: caught in the maelstrom of war. 2. A whirlpool of extraordinary size or violence. [Obsolete Dutch : Dutch malen, to grind, whirl (from Middle Dutch); see melə- in Appendix + Dutch stroom, stream (from Middle Dutch); see sreu- in Appendix.]

mae·nad (mē'näd') n. 1. Greek Mythology. A woman member of the orgiastic cult of Dionysus. 2. A frenzied woman. [Latin Maenas, Maenad-, from Greek mainas, raving, madwoman, Maenad, from mainesthai, to be mad. See men-¹ in Appendix.]

ma·es·to·so (mä'ēs-tō'sō, -zō) adv. & adj. Music. In a majestic and stately manner. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, from maestà, majesty, greatness, from Latin māiestās. See meg- in Appendix.]

maes·tro (mīs'trō) n. pl. maes-tros or maes-tri (-trē). A master in an art, especially a composer, conductor, or music teacher. [Italian, from Latin magister, magistr-, master. See meg- in Appendix.]

Mae·ter·linck (mä'tər-līngk', mēt'ər-, mä-tēr-lān'), Count Maurice. 1862-1949. Belgian writer of poetry, a wide variety of essays, and symbolic dramas, including Pelléas et Mélisande (1892). He won the 1911 Nobel Prize for literature.

Mae West (mā' wěst') n. An inflatable, vestlike life preserver. [After Mae West (from its resemblance to her curvaceous torso).]

Maf·e·king (mä'fī-kīng') Now Maf·i·keng (-kēng'). A town of north-central South Africa west of Pretoria. The relief (May 17, 1900) of a 217-day-long siege of the British garrison here was a celebrated event of the Boer War. Population, 6,500.

maf·fick (mäf'fīk) v. intr. maf-ficked, maf-fick-ing, maf-ficks. Chiefly British. To rejoice or celebrate with boisterous public demonstrations. [After Mafeking.]

Ma·fi·a (mä'fē-ə) n. 1. A secret terrorist organization in Sicily, operating since the early 19th century in opposition to legal authority: “Rome they despised, the Mafia they feared, but not to submission” (Mario Puzo). 2. An alleged international criminal organization believed active, especially in Italy and the United States, since the late 19th century. 3. Often mafia. Informal. A tightly knit group of trusted associates, as of a political leader: “[He] is one of the personal mafia that [the chancellor] brought with him to Bonn” (Christian Science Monitor). — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a Mafia overlord; a Mafia organization. [Italian, perhaps from dialectal mafia, bluster, boldness.]

maf·ic (mäf'fīk) adj. Containing or relating to a group of dark-colored minerals, composed chiefly of magnesium and iron, that occur in igneous rocks. [MA(GNE-SIUM) + Latin ferrum, iron + -IC.]

Maf·i·keng (mä'fī-kēng') See Mafeking.

Ma·fi·o·so (mä'fē-ō'sō) n. pl. Ma·fi·o·si (-sē) or Ma·fi·o·sos. A member of the Mafia. [Italian, from mafia, mafia. See MAFIA.]

mag (mäg) n. Slang. A magazine: surfing mags.

mag. abbr. 1. Magnet. 2. Magnetism. 3. Magneto. 4. Magnitude.

Ma·ga·dha (mä'gə-də) An ancient kingdom of northeast India. It was especially powerful from the fourth century B.C. to the fifth century A.D., particularly under the emperor Asoka (third century B.C.).

mag·a·zine (mäg'ə-zēn', mäg'ə-zēn') n. 1. A periodical containing a collection of articles, stories, pictures, or other features. 2. a. A place where goods are stored, especially a building in a fort or a storeroom on a warship where ammunition is kept. b. The contents of a storehouse, especially a stock of ammunition.

3. a. A compartment in some types of firearms, often a small detachable box, in which cartridges are held to be fed into the firing chamber. b. A compartment in a camera in which rolls or cartridges of film are held for feeding through the exposure mechanism. c. Any of various compartments attached to machines, used for storing or supplying necessary material. — adj. Of or relating to periodicals: a magazine story. [French magasin, storehouse, from Old French magazin (possibly via Old Italian magazzino), from Arabic maḥāzin, pl. of maḥzan, from ḥazana, to store.]

Mag·da·le·na (mäg'də-lā'nə, mäg'thä-lě'nä) A river rising in the Andes of southwest Colombia and flowing about 1,601 km (1,000 mi) generally northward to the Caribbean Sea near Barranquilla.

Mag·da·le·ni·an (mäg'də-lē'nē-ən) adj. Archaeology. Of or relating to the last upper Paleolithic culture of Europe, succeeding the Aurignacian. [French magdalénien, after La Madeleine, a prehistoric site of southwest France.]

Mag·de·burg (mäg'də-bûrg', mäg'də-boörk') A city of central Germany on the Elbe River west-southwest of Berlin. Known as early as 805, it was chartered in the 13th century and became one of the chief cities of the Hanseatic League. Magdeburg was severely damaged during World War II. Population, 289,075.

Ma·gel·lan (mə-jěl'ən), Ferdinand. 1480?-1521. Portuguese navigator. While trying to find a western route to the Moluccas (1519), Magellan and his expedition were blown by storms into the strait that now bears his name (1520). He named and sailed across the Pacific Ocean, reaching the Marianas and the Philippines (1521), where he was killed fighting for a friendly native king. One of his ships returned to Spain (1522), thereby completing the first circumnavigation of the globe.

Magellan, Strait of. A channel separating South America from Tierra del Fuego and other islands south of the continent and connecting the southern Atlantic and Pacific oceans. Ferdinand Magellan sailed through the strait in October and November 1520.

Mag·el·lan·ic Clouds (mäj'ə-län'ik kloudz) pl.n. Two small, irregularly shaped galaxies that are the galaxies closest to the Milky Way and are faintly visible near the south celestial pole. [After Ferdinand MAGELLAN.]

Ma·gen Da·vid also Mo·gen Da·vid (mö'gən dô'vid, dā'vid, mä-gěn' dä-vēd') n. A six-pointed star, the symbol of Judaism, that is formed by placing two triangles together, one inverted over the other or interlaced. Also called Shield of David, Star of David. [Hebrew māgēn dāwid.]

ma·gen·ta (mə-jěn'tə) n. 1. See fuchsin. 2. Color. A moderate to vivid purplish red. [After Magenta, a town of northwest Italy.]

Mag·gio·re (mə-jôr'ē, -jôr'ē, mäd-jô'rē), Lake. A lake of northern Italy and southern Switzerland. Nearly surrounded by peaks of the Lepontine Alps, it is a major resort area.

mag·got (mäg'ət) n. 1. The legless, soft-bodied, wormlike larva of any of various flies of the order Diptera, often found in decaying matter. 2. Slang. A despicable person. 3. An extravagant notion; a whim. [Middle English magot, perhaps alteration of mathek, maddokk, perhaps from Old English matha.] —mag'got·y adj.

Ma·ghreb or Ma·ghrib (müg'rəb) A region of northwest Africa comprising the coastlands and the Atlas Mountains of Morocco, Algeria, and Tunisia.

ma·gi (mä'jī') n. Plural of magus.

mag·ic (mäj'ik) n. 1. The art that purports to control or forecast natural events, effects, or forces by invoking the supernatural. 2. a. The practice of using charms, spells, or rituals to attempt to produce supernatural effects or control events in nature. b. The charms, spells, and rituals so used. 3. The exercise of sleight of hand or conjuring for entertainment. 4. A mysterious quality of enchantment: “For me the names of those men breathed the magic of the past” (Max Beerbohm). — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or invoking the supernatural: “stubborn unlaidd ghost/That breaks his magic chains at curfew time” (John Milton).

2. Possessing distinctive qualities that produce unaccountable or baffling effects. — v. tr. mag·icked, mag·ick·ing, mag·ics. To produce or make by or as if by magic. [Middle English magik, from Old French magique, from Late Latin magica, from Latin magicē, from Greek magikē, from feminine of magikos, of the Magi, magical, from magos, magician, magus. See MAGUS.] mag·i·cal (mäj'i-kəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or produced by magic.

2. Enchanting; bewitching: a magical performance of the ballet. —mag'i·cal·ly adv.

magical realism (mäj'i-kəl rē'ə-līz'əm) n. A chiefly literary style or genre originating in Latin America that combines fantastic or dreamlike elements with reality.

magic bullet (mäj'ik bööl'it) n. Slang. 1. A drug, therapy, or preventive therapy that cures or prevents a disease: “There is no magic bullet against cancer” (Matt Clark). 2. Something regarded as a magical solution to a grave problem or as a means of averting a disaster: “Something new must be tried to discourage drug use. There is clearly no magic bullet” (Larry Martz).

ma·gi·cian (mə-jīsh'ən) n. 1. A sorcerer; a wizard. 2. One who performs magic for entertainment or diversion. 3. One whose formidable skill or art seems to be magical: a magician with words.

magic lantern (mäj'ik län'tərn) n. An optical device formerly used to project an enlarged image of a picture.

magic number (mäj'ik nüm'bər) n. Chemistry & Physics. 1. Any of the numbers, 2, 8, 20, 28, 50, 82, or 126, that represent the number of neutrons or protons in strongly bound, exceptionally stable, and abundant atomic nuclei. 2. Sports. The number of wins required in order to capture a division title.

magic square (mäj'ik skwâr) n. A square that contains numbers arranged in equal rows and columns in such a way that the sum of each row or column, taken vertically, horizontally, or diagonally, is the same.

Ma-gi-not (mäzh'ə-nō', mäj'-, mä-zhē-nō'), André. 1877-1932. French politician who as minister of war (1922-1924 and 1929-1932) proposed a line of fortification, called the Maginot Line, along France's border with Germany. Thought to be impregnable, the line was bypassed and later captured by the Germans (1940).

mag-is-te-ri-al (mäj'ī-stîr'ē-əl) adj. 1. a. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a master or teacher; authoritative: a magisterial account of the history of the English language. b. Sedately dignified in appearance or manner: "She would appear on the porch and reign over the street in magisterial beauty" (Harper Lee).

2. Dogmatic; overbearing: managed the employees in an aloof, magisterial way.

3. Of or relating to a magistrate or a magistrate's official functions. [Late Latin magisteriālis, from magisterius, from Latin magister, master, teacher. See meg- in Appendix.] —mag'is-te'ri-al-ly adv.

mag-is-te-ri-um (mäj'ī-stîr'ē-əm) n. Roman Catholic Church. The authority to teach religious doctrine. [Latin, the office of a teacher or other person in authority, from magister, master. See MAGISTERIAL.] mag-is-tra-cy (mäj'is-trə-sē) n. pl. mag-is-tra-cies. 1. The position, function, or term of office of a magistrate. 2. A body of magistrates. 3. The district under jurisdiction of a magistrate.

mag-is-tral (mäj'ī-strəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to a magistrate; magisterial.

2. Prepared as specified by a physician's prescription. Used of medicine.

3. Principal; main: the magistral line of fortifications. [Late Latin magistrālis, belonging to a master, from Latin magister, magistr-, former chief officer of a college or band of priests. See meg- in Appendix.]

mag-is-trate (mäj'ī-strāt', -strīt) n. A civil officer with power to administer and enforce law, as: a. A local member of the judiciary having limited jurisdiction, especially in criminal cases. b. A minor official, such as a justice of the peace, having administrative and limited judicial authority. [Middle English magistrat, from Old French, from Latin magistrātus, from magister, magistr-, master. See meg- in Appendix.]

mag-is-tra-ture (mäj'ī-strā'chər, -strə-cho̅or') n. Magistracy.

Ma-gle-mo-si-an (mä'glə-mō'zē-ən) adj. Archaeology. Of or relating to a Mesolithic forest culture of northern Europe. [After Maglemose, a Mesolithic site on the western coast of Sjaelland, Denmark.]

mag·lev or Mag·lev (mäg'ləv) n. Magnetic levitation.

mag·ma (mäg'mə, mäg'-) n. pl. mag·ma·ta (-mä'tə) or mag·mas. 1. A mixture of finely divided solids with enough liquid to produce a pasty mass.

2. Geology. The molten rock material under the earth's crust, from which igneous rock is formed by cooling. 3. Pharmacology. A suspension of particles in a liquid, such as milk of magnesia. 4. The residue of fruits after the juice has been expressed; pomace. [Middle English, sediment, dregs, from Latin, from Greek, unguent, from massein, mag-, to knead. See mag- in Appendix.] —mag·mat'ic (-mä't'ik) adj.

Mag·na Car·ta or Mag·na Char·ta (mäg'nə kär'tə) n. 1. The charter of English political and civil liberties granted by King John at Runnymede in June 1215. 2. A document or piece of legislation that serves as a guarantee of basic rights. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin : Latin magna, great + charta, charter.]

mag·na cum lau·de (mäg'nə kōōm lou'də) adv. & adj. With high honors. Used to express high academic distinction: graduated magna cum laude; 25 magna cum laude graduates. [Latin magnā cum laude, with great praise : magnā, feminine ablative sing. of magnus, great + cum, with + laude, ablative sing. of laus, praise.]

Magna Grae·cia (mäg'nə grē'shə) The ancient Greek seaport colonies of southern Italy and Sicily from the eighth to the fourth century B.C. Cumae and Tarantum (modern Taranto) remained significant after the decline of the other colonies.

mag·na·nim·i·ty (mäg'nə-nim'ĭ-tē) n. pl. mag·na·nim·i·ties. 1. The quality of being magnanimous. 2. A magnanimous act.

mag·nan·i·mous (mäg-nän'ə-məs) adj. 1. Courageously noble in mind and heart. 2. Generous in forgiving; eschewing resentment or revenge; unselfish. [From Latin magnanimus : magnus, great; see meg- in Appendix + animus, soul, mind; see anə- in Appendix.] —mag·nan'i·mous·ly adv.

—mag·nan'i·mous·ness n.

mag·nate (mäg'nāt', -nīt) n. A powerful or influential person, especially in business or industry: an oil magnate. [From Middle English magnates, magnates, from Late Latin magnātēs, pl. of magnās, magnate, from Latin magnus, great. See meg- in Appendix.]

mag·ne·sia (mäg-nē'zhə, -shə) n. Magnesium oxide. [Middle English, mineral ingredient of the philosophers' stone, from Medieval Latin magnēsia, from Greek magnēsia, a kind of ore, from Magnēsia, Magnesia, an ancient city of Asia Minor.] —mag·ne'sian adj.

mag·ne·site (mäg'nə-sīt') n. A white, yellowish, or brown mineral, magnesium carbonate, MgCO₃, used in the manufacture of magnesium oxide and carbon dioxide.

mag·ne·si·um (mäg-nē'zē-əm, -zhəm) n. Symbol Mg A light, silvery-white, moderately hard metallic element that in ribbon or powder form burns with a brilliant white flame. It is used in structural alloys, pyrotechnics, flash photography, and incendiary bombs. Atomic number 12; atomic weight 24.312; melting point 649°C; boiling point 1,090°C; specific gravity 1.74 (at 20°C); valence 2.
[From MAGNESIA.]

magnesium carbonate (mäg-nē'zē-əm kär'bə-nāt') n. A very light, odorless, white powdery compound, $MgCO_3$, used in a wide variety of manufactured products including inks, glass, dentifrices, and cosmetics.

magnesium hydroxide (mäg-nē'zē-əm hī-drōk'sīd') n. A white powder, $Mg(OH)_2$, used as an antacid and a laxative.

magnesium oxide (mäg-nē'zē-əm ök'sīd') n. A white, powdery compound, MgO , having a high melting point (2,800°C), used in high-temperature refractories, electrical insulation, food packaging, cosmetics, and pharmaceuticals.

magnesium sulfate (mäg-nē'zē-əm sül'fāt') n. A colorless, crystalline compound, $MgSO_4$, used in fireproofing, ceramics, matches, explosives, and fertilizers.

mag·net (mäg'nīt) n. Abbr. mag. 1. An object that is surrounded by a magnetic field and that has the property, either natural or induced, of attracting iron or steel. 2. An electromagnet. 3. A person, a place, an object, or a situation that exerts attraction. [Middle English, from Old French magnete, from Latin magnēs, magnēt-, from Greek Magnēs (lithos), Magnesian (stone), magnet, from Magnēsia, Magnesia, an ancient city of Asia Minor.]

magnet- pref. Variant of magneto-.

mag·net·ic (mäg-nēt'ik) adj. 1. a. Of or relating to magnetism or magnets. b. Having the properties of a magnet. c. Capable of being magnetized or attracted by a magnet. d. Operating by means of magnetism: a magnetic recorder. 2. Relating to the magnetic poles of the earth: a magnetic compass bearing. 3. Having an unusual power or ability to attract: a magnetic personality.

—mag·net'ic·al·ly adv.

magnetic bottle (mäg-nēt'ik bōt'l) n. A magnetic field used to confine plasma, as during nuclear fusion.

magnetic bubble memory (mäg-nēt'ik бүb'əl mēm'ə-rē) n. Computer Science. A memory in which data are stored in the form of bubbles, or circular areas, on a thin film of magnetic silicate. Magnetic bubble memory is similar to RAM but does not lose the stored information when the computer is turned off.

magnetic card (mäg-nēt'ik kård) n. Computer Science. A card, such as a bank card for use in an automated teller machine, that has a magnetizable strip or surface on which data can be recorded.

magnetic compass (mäg-nēt'ik күm'pəs) n. An instrument that uses a magnetized steel bar to indicate direction relative to the earth's magnetic poles.

magnetic core (mäg-nět'ík kôr) n. See core (n., sense 6b).

magnetic declination (mäg-nět'ík dëk'lə-nā'shən) n. The angle between magnetic north and true north at a particular location. Also called magnetic variation magnetic dip (mäg-nět'ík dīp) n. The angle that a magnetic needle makes with the horizontal plane at any specific location. Magnetic dip is 0° at the magnetic equator and 90° at each of the magnetic poles. Also called magnetic inclination magnetic disk (mäg-nět'ík dīsk) n. Computer Science. 1. A memory device covered with a magnetic coating on which information is stored by magnetization of microscopically small needles. 2. A floppy disk. 3. A hard disk.

magnetic equator (mäg-nět'ík i-kwā'tər) n. A line connecting all points on the earth's surface at which a magnetic needle balances horizontally without dipping. Also called acclinic line magnetic field (mäg-nět'ík fēld) n. A condition found in the region around a magnet or an electric current, characterized by the existence of a detectable magnetic force at every point in the region and by the existence of magnetic poles.

magnetic field strength (mäg-nět'ík fēld strēngkth) n. 1. Magnetic intensity. 2. See magnetic induction (n., sense 1).

magnetic flux (mäg-nět'ík flūks) n. A measure of the quantity of magnetism, being the total number of magnetic lines of force passing through a specified area in a magnetic field.

magnetic flux density (mäg-nět'ík flūks dēn'sī-tē) n. Symbol B See magnetic induction (n., sense 1).

magnetic force (mäg-nět'ík fôrs) n. 1. The force exerted between magnetic poles, producing magnetization. 2. A force that exists between two electrically charged moving particles.

magnetic head (mäg-nět'ík hēd) n. An electromagnet, such as one used in a tape recorder, that converts electrical impulses into variations in the magnetism of a surface for storage and subsequent retrieval.

magnetic inclination (mäg-nět'ík in'klə-nā'shən) n. See magnetic dip.

magnetic induction (mäg-nět'ík in-dük'shən) n. 1. The amount of magnetic flux in a unit area taken perpendicular to the direction of the magnetic flux. Also called magnetic field strength, magnetic flux density. 2. The process by which a substance, such as iron or steel, becomes magnetized by a magnetic field. The induced magnetism is produced by the force of the field radiating from the poles of a magnet.

magnetic intensity (mäg-nět'ík in-tēn'sī-tē) n. A quantity used in describing magnetic phenomena in terms of their magnetic fields and magnetization.

magnetic levitation (mäg-nět'ík lēv'ī-tā'shən) n. A high-speed rail technology by which a train can travel free of friction at speeds of 480 kilometers (300 miles) per hour or more. The train is suspended on a magnetic cushion about half an inch above an elevated magnetic track, whose moving magnetic field alternately attracts and repels magnets mounted on the train, which is pushed and pulled along by this process.

magnetic lines of force (mäg-nět'ik līnz ùv fôrs) pl.n. Curved lines used to represent a magnetic field, drawn such that the number of lines is related to the strength of the magnetic field at a given point and the tangent of any curve at a particular point is along the direction of magnetic force at that point.

magnetic meridian (mäg-nět'ik mə-rīd'ē-ən) n. A line passing through both magnetic poles of the earth.

magnetic mine (mäg-nět'ik mīn) n. A marine mine detonated by a mechanism that responds to a mass of magnetic material, such as the steel hull of a ship.

magnetic moment (mäg-nět'ik mō'mənt) n. The product of the pole strength of a magnet and the distance between the poles.

magnetic monopole (mäg-nět'ik mōn'ə-pōl') n. A hypothetical particle that has only one pole of magnetic charge instead of the usual two. A magnetic monopole would be a basic unit of magnetic charge.

magnetic needle (mäg-nět'ik nēd'l) n. A slender bar of magnetized steel usually suspended on a low-friction mounting and used in various instruments, especially in the magnetic compass, to indicate the direction of the earth's magnetic poles.

magnetic north (mäg-nět'ik nôrth) n. Abbr. MN The direction of the earth's magnetic pole, to which the north-seeking pole of a magnetic needle points when free from local magnetic influence.

magnetic pole (mäg-nět'ik pōl) n. 1. Either of two limited regions in a magnet at which the magnet's field is most intense, each of which is designated by the approximate geographic direction to which it is attracted. 2. Either of two variable points on the earth, close to but not coinciding with the geographic poles, where the earth's magnetic field is most intense and toward which a compass needle points.

magnetic pyrites (mäg-nět'ik pī-rī'tēz) n. See pyrrhotite.

magnetic recording (mäg-nět'ik rī-kôrd'īng) n. 1. The recording of a signal, such as sound or computer instructions, in the form of a magnetic pattern on a magnetizable surface for storage and subsequent retrieval. 2. A surface containing a magnetic recording.

magnetic resonance (mäg-nět'ik rēz'ə-nəns) n. The phenomenon of absorption of certain frequencies of radio and microwave radiation by atoms placed in a magnetic field. The pattern of absorption reveals molecular structure.

magnetic resonance imaging (mäg-nět'ik rēz'ə-nəns im'ī-jīng) n. Abbr. MRI The use of a nuclear magnetic resonance spectrometer to produce electronic images of specific atoms and molecular structures in solids, especially human cells, tissues, and organs.

magnetic storm (mäg-nět'ík stôrm) n. A disturbance or fluctuation in the earth's magnetic field, associated with solar flares. Also called geomagnetic storm magnetic tape (mäg-nět'ík tãp) n. A plastic tape coated with iron oxide for use in magnetic recording.

magnetic variation (mäg-nět'ík vâr'ē-ã'shən) n. 1. Differences in the earth's magnetic field in time and location. 2. See magnetic declination.

mag-net-ism (mäg'nĩ-tĩz'əm) n. Abbr. mag. 1. The class of phenomena exhibited by a magnetic field. 2. The study of magnets and their effects. 3. The force exerted by a magnetic field. 4. Unusual power to attract, fascinate, or influence: the magnetism of money. 5. Animal magnetism.

mag-net-ite (mäg'nĩ-tīt') n. The mineral form of black iron oxide, Fe_3O_4 , that often occurs with magnesium, zinc, and manganese and is an important ore of iron.

mag-net-i-za-tion (mäg'nĩ-tĩ-zã'shən) n. 1. a. The process of making a substance temporarily or permanently magnetic, as by insertion in a magnetic field. b. The extent to which an object is magnetized. 2. The property of being magnetic.

mag-net-ize (mäg'nĩ-tĩz') v. tr. mag-net-ized, mag-net-iz-ing, mag-net-iz-es. 1. To make magnetic. 2. To attract, charm, or influence: a campaign speech that magnetized the crowd. —mag'net-iz'a-ble adj. —mag'net-iz'er n.

mag-ne-to (mäg-nē'tō) n. pl. mag-ne-tos. Abbr. mag. A device that produces alternating current for distribution to the spark plugs, used in the ignition systems of some internal-combustion engines. [Short for magnetolectric machine.]

magneto- or magnet- pref. 1. Magnetism; magnetic: magnetolectric.

2. Magnetic field: magnetometer. [FROM MAGNET.]

mag-ne-to-e-lec-tric (mäg-nē'tō-ĩ-lĕk'trĭk) adj. Of or relating to electricity produced by magnetic means. —mag-ne'to-e-lec-tric'i-ty (-ĩ-lĕk-trĭs'ĩ-tē, -ē'lĕk-) n.

mag-ne-to-flu-id-dy-nam-ics (mäg-nē'tō-flōō'ĭd-dĩ-nãm'ĭks) n. (used with a sing. verb). Magnetohydrodynamics. —mag-ne'to-flu'id-dy-nam'ic adj.

mag-ne-to-gas-dy-nam-ics (mäg-nē'tō-gãs'dĩ-nãm'ĭks) n. (used with a sing. verb). Magnetohydrodynamics. —mag-ne'to-gas'dy-nam'ic adj.

mag-ne-to-graph (mäg-nē'tō-grãf') n. A device for detecting and recording variations in the intensity and direction of magnetic fields.

mag-ne-to-hy-dro-dy-nam-ics (mäg-nē'tō-hĩ'drō-dĩ-nãm'ĭks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of the interaction of magnetic fields and electrically conducting liquids or gases, such as molten metal or plasma.

—mag·ne'to·hy'dro·dy·nam'ic adj.

mag·ne·tom·e·ter (mäg'nī-tōm'ī-tər) n. An instrument for measuring the intensity and direction of a magnetic field. —mag'ne·to·met'ric (-tə-mět'rik) adj. —mag'ne·tom'e·try n.

mag·ne·to·mo·tive force (mäg-nē'tō-mō'tiv fôrs) n. Abbr. mmf, m.m.f. The work that would be required to carry a hypothetical isolated magnetic pole of unit strength completely around a magnetic circuit.

mag·ne·ton (mäg'nī-tōn') n. A unit of the magnetic moment of a molecular, atomic, or subatomic particle, especially: a. The Bohr magneton, calculated using the mass and charge of the electron. b. The nuclear magneton, calculated using the mass of the nucleon.

mag·ne·to·pause (mäg-nē'tə-pôz') n. The outer boundary of the magnetosphere.

mag·ne·to·plas·ma·dy·nam·ics (mäg-nē'tō-pläz'mə-dī-näm'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). Magnetohydrodynamics.

—mag·ne'to·plas'ma·dy·nam'ic adj.

mag·ne·to·sphere (mäg-nē'tō-sfîr') n. An asymmetrical region surrounding the earth, extending from about one hundred to several thousand kilometers above the surface, in which charged particles are trapped and their behavior is dominated by the earth's magnetic field.

mag·ne·to·stric·tion (mäg-nē'tō-strîk'shən) n. Deformation of a ferromagnetic material subjected to a magnetic field. [MAGNETO- + (CON)STRICTION.]

mag·ne·tron (mäg'nī-trōn') n. A microwave tube in which electrons generated from a heated cathode are affected by magnetic and electric fields in such a way as to produce microwave radiation used in radar and in microwave ovens. [MAGNE(T) + -TRON.]

magnet school (mäg'nît skōōl) n. A public school for students of high academic ability or talent in the visual and performing arts that attracts its student body from all parts of a city, provides a superior education, and serves as a means of desegregation.

mag·nif·ic (mäg-nîf'ik) also mag·nif·i·cal (-î-kəl) adj. 1. Magnificent.

2. Imposingly large. 3. Exalted. 4. Pompous; grandiloquent. [Middle English magnifique, from Old French, from Latin magnificus: magnus, great; see meg- in Appendix + -ficus, -fic.] —mag·nif'i·cal·ly adv.

Mag·nif·i·cat (mäg-nîf'î-kăt') n. 1. a. The canticle beginning Magnificat anima mea Dominum ("My soul doth magnify the Lord"). b. A musical setting of this canticle. 2. magnificat. A hymn or song of praise. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin, from Latin, it magnifies, third person sing. present tense of magnificāre, to magnify, extol. See MAGNIFY.]

mag-ni-fi-ca-tion (mäg'nə-fī-kā'shən) n. 1. The act of magnifying or the state of being magnified. 2. a. The process of enlarging the size of something, as an optical image. b. Something that has been magnified; an enlarged representation, image, or model. 3. The ratio of the size of an image to the size of an object.

mag-nif-i-cence (mäg-nif'ī-səns) n. 1. Greatness or lavishness of surroundings; splendor. 2. Grand or imposing beauty.

mag-nif-i-cent (mäg-nif'ī-sənt) adj. 1. Splendid in appearance; grand: a magnificent palace. 2. Grand or noble in thought or deed; exalted.

3. Outstanding of its kind; superlative: a magnificent place for sailing. See Synonyms at grand. [Middle English, from Old French, from magnificence, splendor, from Latin magnificentia, from magnificus, magnificent. See MAGNIFIC.]

—mag-nif/i-cent-ly adv.

mag-nif-i-co (mäg-nif'ī-kō') n. pl. mag-nif-i-coes. 1. A person of distinguished rank, importance, or appearance: "He is both an old-world and a new-world figure, a feudal magnifico and a modern technocrat" (Observer). 2. A nobleman of the Venetian Republic. [Italian, magnificent, magnifico, from Latin magnificus. See MAGNIFIC.]

mag-ni-fi-er (mäg'nə-fī'ər) n. 1. One that magnifies, especially a magnifying glass. 2. A system of optical components that magnifies.

mag-ni-fy (mäg'nə-fī') v. mag-ni-fied, mag-ni-fy-ing, mag-ni-fies. — v. tr. 1. To make greater in size; enlarge. 2. To cause to appear greater or seem more important than is in fact the case; exaggerate: You have grossly magnified a trivial situation. See Synonyms at exaggerate. 3. To increase the apparent size of, especially by means of a lens. 4. To glorify or praise. — v. intr. To increase or have the power to increase the size or volume of an image or a sound. [Middle English magnifien, to extol, from Old French magnifier, from Latin magnificāre, from magnificus, magnificent. See MAGNIFIC.]

mag-ni-fy-ing glass (mäg'nə-fī'ing gläs) n. A lens or combination of lenses that enlarges the image of an object.

mag-nil-o-quent (mäg-nīl'ə-kwənt) adj. Lofty and extravagant in speech; grandiloquent. [From Latin magniloquentia: magnus, great; see meg- in Appendix + loquēns, loquent- present participle of loquī, to speak; see talk^w- in Appendix.] —mag-nil/o-quence n. —mag-nil/o-quent-ly adv.

Mag-ni-to-gorsk (mäg-nē'tə-gōrsk', məg-nyī-tə-gōrsk') A city of southwest Russia in the Ural Mountains south-southwest of Chelyabinsk. It was developed in the early 1930's as a major center for heavy industry. Population, 422,000.

mag-ni-tude (mäg'nī-tōod', -tyōod') n. Abbr. mag. 1. a. Greatness of rank or position: "such duties as were expected of a landowner of his magnitude" (Anthony Powell). b. Greatness in size or extent: The magnitude of the flood was impossible to comprehend. c. Greatness in significance or influence: was shocked by the magnitude of the crisis. 2. Astronomy. The degree of brightness of a celestial body designated on a numerical scale, on which the brightest star has magnitude -1.4 and the faintest visible star has magnitude 6 , with the scale rule such that a decrease of one unit represents an increase in apparent brightness by a factor of 2.512 . Also called apparent magnitude 3. Mathematics. a. A number assigned to a quantity so that it may be compared with other quantities. b. A property that can be quantitatively described, such as the volume of a sphere or the length of a vector. 4. Geology. A measure of the amount of energy released by an earthquake, as indicated on the Richter Scale. [Middle English, from Old French, size, from Latin magnitūdō, greatness, size, from magnus, great. See meg- in Appendix.]

mag·no·lia (mäg-nōl'yə) n. 1. Any of numerous evergreen or deciduous trees and shrubs of the genus Magnolia of the Western Hemisphere and Asia, having aromatic twigs and large showy white, pink, purple, or yellow flowers. 2. The flower of any of these plants. [New Latin Magnolia, genus name, after Pierre Magnol (1638-1715), French botanist.]

magnolia warbler (mäg-nōl'yə wôr'blər) n. A black-and-yellow songbird (Dendroica magnolia) of northern North America that nests in small evergreens.

mag·num (mäg'nəm) n. 1. A bottle, holding about two fifths of a gallon (1.5 liters), for wine or liquor. 2. The amount of liquid that this bottle can hold. [From Latin, neuter of magnus, great. See meg- in Appendix.]

magnum opus (mäg'nəm ō'pəs) n. 1. A great work, especially a literary or artistic masterpiece. 2. The greatest single work of an artist, a writer, or a composer. [Latin : magnum, neuter of magnus, great + opus, work.]

mag·nus hitch (mäg'nəs hĭch) n. A clove hitch with one extra turn. [Origin unknown.]

ma·got (mä-gō', mäg'ət) n. 1. See Barbary ape. 2. A fanciful, often grotesque figurine in the Japanese or Chinese style rendered in a crouching position. [French, from Old French magos, a kind of monkey, from Magog, Magos, Magog, name of biblical land (Ezekiel 38-39) and tribe (Revelation 20:8-9), used as an emblem of ugliness in medieval romances.]

mag·pie (mäg'pī') n. 1. Any of various birds of the family Corvidae found worldwide, having a long graduated tail and black, blue, or green plumage with white markings and noted for their chattering call. The species Pica pica, the black-billed magpie, is widespread in the Northern Hemisphere. Also called *pie*² 2. Any of various birds resembling the magpie, such as the Australian bell magpie of the family Cracticidae. 3. A person who chatters. [Mag, a name used in proverbs about chatters (a nickname for Margaret) + PIE².]

M.Agr. abbr. Master of Agriculture.

Ma-gritte (mä-grēt'), René. 1898-1967. Belgian painter whose surreal works, such as Steps of Summer (1938), depict ordinary objects in unexpected or implausible situations.

Mag-say-say (mäg-sī'sī'), Ramón. 1907-1957. Philippine politician who as secretary of defense (1950-1953) thwarted a Communist rebellion and then served as president (1953-1957).

ma-guey (mä-gā', mäg'wā) n. pl. ma-gueys. 1. Any of various American plants of the genus Agave, especially the century plant. Also called mescal. 2. Any of various plants of the related genus Furcraea. 3. The fiber obtained from any of these plants. [Spanish, of Cariban origin.]

ma-gus (mä'gəs) n. ma-gi (mä'jī'). 1. A member of the Zoroastrian priestly caste of the Medes and Persians. 2. Magus. One of the three wise men from the East who traveled to Bethlehem to pay homage to the infant Jesus. 3. A sorcerer; a magician. [From Middle English magi, magi, from Latin magī, pl. of magus, sorcerer, magus, from Greek magos, from Old Persian maguš. See magh- in Appendix.] —ma'gi-an (mä'jē-ən) adj.

Mag-yar (mäg'yär', mäg'-, мүd'-) n. 1. A member of the principal ethnic group of Hungary. 2. See Hungarian (n., sense 2). [Hungarian.] —Mag'yar adj.

ma-ha-leb (mä'hə-ləb') n. A small Eurasian ornamental tree (Prunus mahaleb) of the rose family, having white flowers and small, ovoid, black drupes with single seeds that are used in Middle Eastern cooking. [Arabic maḥlab.]

Ma-hal-la el Ku-bra (mä-häl'ə əl kōō'brə) A city of northern Egypt in the Nile River delta north of Cairo. It is a textile center with processing mills for rice and flour. Population, 362,700.

Ma-han (mä-hän'), Alfred Thayer. 1840-1914. American naval officer and historian whose written works, such as The Influence of Sea Power upon History, 1660-1783 (1890), prompted a worldwide buildup of naval strength prior to World War I.

Ma-ha-na-di (mä-hä'nə-dē) A river of central India flowing about 885 km (550 mi) north and generally east to the Bay of Bengal.

ma-ha-ra-jah or ma-ha-ra-ja (mä'hə-rä'jə, -zhə) n. 1. A king or prince in India ranking above a rajah, especially the sovereign of one of the former native states. 2. Used as a title for such a king or prince. [Hindi mahārājā, from Sanskrit : mahā-, great; see meg- in Appendix + rājā, king; see reg- in Appendix.]

ma-ha-ra-ni or ma-ha-ra-nee (mä'hə-rä'nē) n. pl. ma-ha-ra-nis or ma-ha-ra-nees. 1. The wife of a maharajah. 2. A princess in India ranking above a rani, especially the sovereign ruler of one of the former native states. 3. Used as a title for such a woman. [Hindi mahārānī, from Sanskrit mahārājñī : mahā-, great; see meg- in Appendix + rājñī, queen; see reg- in Appendix.]

Ma-ha-rash-tra (mä'hə-rāsh'trə) A historical region of west-central India. It was controlled by the Muslim rulers of India from the early 14th to the mid-17th century and incorporated by the British into the province of Bombay in the 19th century. The Marathi-speaking section of the region became a separate state in 1960.

ma-ha-ri-shi (mä'hə-rē'shē, mə-här'ə-shē) n. pl. ma-ha-ri-shis. Hinduism.

1. A teacher of mysticism and spiritual knowledge. 2. Used as a title for such a person. [Sanskrit mahārṣiḥ : mahā-, great; see meg- in Appendix + ṛṣiḥ, seer, sage, saint.]

ma-hat-ma (mə-hät'mə, -hät'-) n. 1. In India and Tibet, one of a class of persons venerated for great knowledge and love of humanity. 2. Mahatma. Hinduism. Used as a title of respect for a person renowned for spirituality and high-mindedness. [Sanskrit mahātmā : mahā-, great; see meg- in Appendix + ātmā, life, spirit.]

Ma-ha-ya-na (mä'hə-yä'nə) n. One of the major schools of Buddhism, active in Japan, Korea, Nepal, Tibet, Mongolia, and China, which teaches social concern and universal salvation. [Sanskrit Mahāyānam : mahā-, great; see meg- in Appendix + yānam, vehicle; see ei- in Appendix.] —Ma'ha-ya'nist n. —Ma'ha-ya-nis'tic adj.

Mah-di (mä'dē) n. pl. Mah-dis. Islam. 1. The messiah who, it is believed, will appear at the world's end and establish a reign of peace and righteousness. 2. A leader who assumes the role of a messiah. [Arabic mahdī, rightly guided (one), Mahdi, from hadā, to lead.] —Mah'dism n. —Mah'dist n.

Mah-fouz (mä-fōoz'), Naguib. Born 1911. Egyptian writer whose works include the novels Autumn Quail (1962) and The Beggar (1965). He won the 1988 Nobel Prize for literature.

Ma-hi-can (mə-hē'kən) also Mo-hi-can (mō-, mə-) n. pl. Mahican or Ma-hi-cans also Mohican or Mo-hi-cans. 1. a. A Native American confederacy of subtribes formerly inhabiting the upper Hudson River valley from Albany south to the Catskill Mountains and north to Lake Champlain. Present-day descendants live in Oklahoma and Wisconsin. b. A member of this confederacy. 2. The Algonquian language of the Mahican.

ma-hi-ma-hi also ma-hi-ma-hi (mä'hē-mä'hē) n. pl. ma-hi-ma-his. A tropical marine food fish (Coryphaena hippurus) found worldwide, having an iridescent blue body and a long dorsal fin. [Hawaiian.]

mah-jong also mah-jongg (mä'zhöng', -zhöng') n. Games. A game of Chinese origin usually played by four persons with tiles resembling dominoes and bearing various designs, which are drawn and discarded until one player wins with a hand of four combinations of three tiles each and a pair of matching tiles. [Chinese (Mandarin) má jiàng : má, spotted + jiàng, main piece in Chinese chess.]

Mah-ler (mä'lər), Gustav. 1860-1911. Austrian composer and conductor of the Vienna State Opera House (1897-1907) whose completed works, most notably Das Lied von der Erde (1908) and Symphony Number 9 (1909), are unrestricted by conventional musical forms.

mahl-stick (môl'stik') n. Variant of maulstick.

Mah-mud II (mä-mōod'), 1785-1839. Turkish sultan (1808-1839) who despite able leadership was unable to prevent further disintegration of the Ottoman Empire.

ma-hog-a-ny (mə-hög'ə-nē) n. pl. ma-hog-a-nies. 1. a. Any of various tropical American evergreen trees of the genus Swietenia, valued for their hard, reddish-brown wood. b. The wood of any of these trees, especially that of S. mahogani, used in making furniture. 2. a. Any of several trees having wood resembling true mahogany. b. The wood of any of these trees. 3. Color. A moderate reddish brown. [Obsolete Spanish mahogani, perhaps of Mayan origin.]

Ma-hón (mə-hōn', mä-ôn') A city of Spain on eastern Minorca. Probably founded by the Carthaginians, it was held by the Moors from the 8th to the 13th century. After passing to various powers, it came under Spanish control in 1802. Population, 22,926.

Mah-ra-ti (mə-rä'tē, -rät'ē) n. Variant of Marathi.

Mah-rat-ta (mə-rä'tə, -rät'ə) n. Variant of Maratha.

Mah-rat-ti (mə-rä'tē, -rät'ē) n. Variant of Marathi.

ma-huang (mä-hwäng') n. Any of various Asian shrubs of the genus Ephedra, especially E. sinica, from which the drug ephedrine is obtained. [Chinese (Mandarin) má huáng: má, hemp + huáng, yellow.]

mah-zor also mach-zor (mäKH'zôr', -zər, mäKH-zōr') n. pl. mah-zor-im (-zôr'im, -zô-rēm') or mah-zors. The Hebrew prayer book containing rituals prescribed for holidays. [Hebrew maḥzôr, cycle, mahzor.]

Mai-a (mä'ə, mī'ə) n. 1. Greek Mythology. A goddess, the eldest of the Pleiades. 2. The brightest star in the Pleiades. [Latin Māia, from Greek, from maia, good mother, nurse. See mā⁻² in Appendix.]

maid (mād) n. 1. a. An unmarried girl or woman. b. A virgin. 2. A woman servant. [Middle English maide, from Old English mægden. See maghu- in Appendix.]

maid-en (mād'n) n. 1. a. An unmarried girl or woman. b. A virgin. 2. A machine resembling the guillotine, used in Scotland in the 16th and 17th centuries to behead criminals. 3. Sports. a. A racehorse that has never won a race. b. A maiden over. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or befitting a maiden: a maiden blush. 2. Being an unmarried girl or woman: a maiden aunt. 3. Inexperienced; untried: a maiden surfer. 4. Being a racehorse that has never won a race. 5. First or earliest: a maiden voyage; a maiden speech in the House of Commons. [Middle English, from Old English mægden. See maghu- in Appendix.]

maid-en-hair fern (mād'n-hâr' fûrn) n. Any of various ferns of the genus Adiantum, having purplish to black stalks, usually feathery fronds, and delicate fan-shaped leaflets with marginal sori. [From the fineness of its stems.]

maidenhair tree (mād'n-hâr' trē) n. See ginkgo.

maid-en-head (mād'n-hĕd') n. 1. The condition or quality of being a maiden; virginity. 2. The hymen. [Middle English maidenhed : maiden, maid; see MAIDEN + -hed, -hood.]

maid-en-hood (mād'n-hōöd') n. The condition or time of being a maiden.

maid-en-ly (mād'n-lē) adj. Of, relating to, or suitable for a maiden. —maid-en-li-ness n.

maiden name (mād'n nām) n. A woman's family name before she is married.

maiden over (mād'n ō'vər) n. Sports. An over in cricket during which no runs are scored.

maid-hood (mād'hōöd') n. Maidenhood.

maid in waiting (mād ĩn wā'tĩng) n. pl. maids in waiting. An unmarried woman attending a queen or princess.

Maid Mar-i-an (mād mâr'ē-ən, mǎr'-) n. Robin Hood's sweetheart.

maid of honor (mād ūv ōn'ər) n. pl. maids of honor. 1. The chief unmarried woman attendant of a bride. 2. An unmarried noblewoman attendant upon a queen or princess.

maid-ser-vant (mād'sûr'vənt) n. A woman servant.

Maid-stone (mād'stən, -stŏn') A municipal borough of southeast England east-southeast of London. First chartered in 1549, it is a papermaking and brewing center. Population, 72,500.

Mai-du (mī'dōō) n. pl. Maidu or Mai-dus. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting northeast California south of Lassen Peak. b. A member of this people. 2. The Penutian language of the Maidu. —Mai/du adj.

Mai-du-gu-ri (mī-dōō'gōō-rē) A city of northeast Nigeria east of Kano. It is a leather-processing center in the Lake Chad region. Population, 225,100.

ma-i-ieu-tic (mā-yōō'tik, mī-) also ma-i-ieu-ti-cal (-tĩ-kəl) adj. Of or relating to the aspect of the Socratic method that induces a respondent to formulate latent concepts through a dialectic or logical sequence of questions. [Greek maieutikos, from maieuesthai, to act as midwife, from maia, midwife, nurse. See mā-² in Appendix.]

mail¹ (māl) n. 1. a. Materials, such as letters and packages, handled in a postal system. b. Postal material for a specific person or organization. c. Material processed for distribution from a post office at a specified time: the morning mail.

2. Often mails. A system by which letters, packages, and other postal materials are transported. Used with the. 3. A vehicle by which mail is transported. — v. mailed, mail-ing, mails. — v. tr. To send by mail. — v. intr. To send letters and other postal material by mail. [Middle English male, bag, from Old French, of Germanic origin.] —mail'able adj. —mail'a-bil'i-ty n.

mail² (māl) n. 1. Flexible armor composed of small overlapping metal rings, loops of chain, or scales. 2. The protective covering of certain animals, as the shell of a turtle. — v. tr. mailed, mail-ing, mails. To cover or armor with mail. [Middle English, from Old French maile, from Latin macula, blemish, mesh.]

mail³ (māl) n. Scots. Rent, payment, or tribute. [Middle English mol, maile, from Old Norse māl, lawsuit.]

mail-bag (māl'băg') n. 1. A large canvas sack used for transporting mail. 2. A bag suspended from the shoulder, used by letter carriers for carrying mail.

mail-box (māl'böks') n. 1. A public container for deposit of outgoing mail. Also called postbox 2. A private box for incoming mail. Also called letterbox mail call (māl kôl) n. Distribution of mail to members of a military unit.

mail carrier (māl kăr'ē-ər) n. See letter carrier.

mail drop (māl dröp) n. 1. A receptacle or slot for the delivery of mail. 2. An address or a place at which a nonresident person receives mail, often of a secret nature.

mailed (māld) adj. 1. Covered with or made of plates of mail: a mailed sleeve. 2. Having a hard covering of scales, spines, or horny plate, as an armadillo or a lobster.

mailed fist (māld fĭst) n. The threat of military force.

mail-er (mā'lər) n. 1. One that uses the mails: large commercial mailers. 2. One who addresses, stamps, or otherwise prepares mail. 3. A container, such as a cardboard tube, used to hold material to be mailed: a cardboard book mailer. 4. An advertising leaflet included with a letter.

Mail-er (mā'lər), Norman. Born 1923. American writer. Acclaimed for his World War II novel The Naked and the Dead (1948), he established New Journalism with his accounts of political events in the 1960's. Mailer's other works include The Deer Park (1955) and The Executioner's Song (1979).

Mail-gram (māl'grām') A trademark used for a telegram transmitted to a post office and delivered to the addressee by the postal service.

mail-ing (mā'lĭng) n. 1. Something sent by mail. 2. A batch of mail dispatched at one time by a sender.

Mail-lol (mä-yôl'), Aristide. 1861-1944. French sculptor noted for his large, classically influenced statues of female nudes.

mail-lot (mä-yô') n. 1. A coarsely knitted, stretchable jersey fabric. 2. A pair of tights or a leotard of such fabric, worn for ballet or gymnastics. 3. A woman's one-piece swimsuit usually cut high on the leg. [French, from Old French, swaddling clothes, from maille, mesh, from Latin macula.]

mail-man (māl'măn', -mən) n. A man who carries and delivers mail. Also called postman mail order (māl ôr'dər) n. Abbr. m.o., M.O. An order for goods to be shipped through the mail.

mail-or-order house (māl'ôr'dər hous) n. A business that is organized primarily to promote, receive, and fill requests for merchandise or services through the mail.

mail-room (māl'rōom', -rōom') n. A room in which ingoing and outgoing mail is handled for a company or other organization.

maim (mām) v. tr. maimed, maim-ing, maims. 1. To disable or disfigure, usually by depriving of the use of a limb or other part of the body. See Synonyms at batter¹. 2. To make imperfect or defective; impair. [Middle English maimen, from Old French mahaignier, probably of Germanic origin.] —maim'er n.

Mai-mon-i-des (mī-mōn'ī-dēz'), Moses. Originally Moses Ben Maimon. Sometimes called "RaMBaM." 1135-1204. Spanish-born Jewish philosopher and physician. The greatest Jewish scholar of the Middle Ages, he codified the Talmud and in Guide for the Perplexed (1190) reconciled Aristotelian philosophy with Jewish theology.

main (mān) adj. 1. Most important; principal. See Synonyms at chief.

2. Exerted to the utmost; sheer: by main strength. 3. Nautical. Connected to or located near the mainmast: a main skysail. 4. Grammar. Of, relating to, or being the principal clause or verb of a complex sentence. 5. Obsolete. Of or relating to a continuous area or stretch, as of land or water. — n. 1. The chief or largest part: His ideas are, in the main, impractical. 2. The principal pipe or conduit in a system for conveying water, gas, oil, or other utility. 3. Physical strength: fought with might and main. 4. A mainland. 5. The open ocean. 6. Nautical. a. A mainsail. b. A mainmast. [Middle English, from Old English mægen, strength. See magh- in Appendix.]

Main (mān, mīn) A river rising in eastern Germany and flowing about 499 km (310 mi) generally westward to the Rhine River at Mainz.

main chance (mān chāns) n. One's most advantageous opportunity.

main clause (mān klôz) n. Grammar. A clause in a complex sentence that contains at least a subject and a verb and can stand alone syntactically as a complete sentence. Also called independent clause main deck (mān dĕk) n. Nautical. The principal deck of a large vessel.

main drag (mān drăg) n. Slang. The principal street of a city or town.

Maine (mān) 1. (also mĕn) A historical region and former province of north-west France south of Normandy. United with Anjou in 1126, it passed to England when Henry Plantagenet became king in 1154. Maine reverted to the French crown in 1481. 2. Abbr. ME, Me. A state of the northeast United States. It was admitted as the 23rd state in 1820. First explored by Europeans in 1602, the region was annexed by Massachusetts in 1652. Maine's northern boundary with New Brunswick was settled by a treaty with Great Britain in 1842. Augusta is the capital and Portland the largest city. Population, 1,233,223.

main-frame (mān'frām') n. Computer Science. 1. A large, powerful computer, often serving several connected terminals. 2. The central processing unit of a computer exclusive of peripheral and remote devices.

main-land (mān'länd', -lənd) n. The principal landmass of a continent.

—main/land'er n.

main-line (mān'līn') v. main-lined, main-lin-ing, main-lines. Slang. — v. tr. To inject (a drug, such as heroin) directly into a major vein. — v. intr. To inject a drug intravenously. — adj. Being in a principal or well-established position: the mainline churches. —main/lin'er n.

main line (mān līn) n. 1. A principal section of a railroad line. 2. Slang. A principal and easily accessible vein, usually in the arm or leg, into which a drug can be injected.

Main Line (mān' līn) A group of suburbs of southeast Pennsylvania. The fashionable area was named after the chief railroad line traveling west from Philadelphia.

main-ly (mān'lē) adv. For the most part; chiefly.

main-mast (mān'məst, -məst') n. Nautical. 1. The principal mast of a vessel. 2. The taller mast, whether forward or aft, of a two-masted sailing vessel. 3. The second mast aft of a sailing ship with three or more masts.

main royalmast (mān roi'əl-məst') n. Nautical. The section of the mainmast of a square-rigged vessel above the main topgallantmast.

main-sail (mān'səl, -səl') n. Nautical. 1. The principal sail of a vessel. 2. A quadrilateral or triangular sail set from the after part of the mainmast on a fore-and-aft rigged vessel. 3. A square sail set from the main yard on a square-rigged vessel.

main sequence (mān sē'kwəns) n. A major grouping of stars that forms a relatively narrow band from the upper left to the lower right when plotted according to luminosity and surface temperature on the Hertzsprung-Russell diagram.

main-sheet (mān'shēt') n. Nautical. The rope that controls the angle at which a mainsail is trimmed and set.

main-spring (mān'sprīŋ') n. 1. The principal spring in a mechanical device, especially a watch or clock, that drives the mechanism by uncoiling. 2. The chief motivating force: the mainspring of a reform movement.

main-stay (mān'stā') n. 1. A chief support: Agriculture is a mainstay of the economy. 2. Nautical. A strong rope that serves to steady and support the mainmast of a sailing vessel.

main-stream (mān'strēm') n. The prevailing current of thought, influence, or activity: "You need not accept the nominee's ideology, only be able to locate it in the American mainstream" (Charles Krauthammer). — adj. Representing the prevalent attitudes and values of a society or group: mainstream morality. — v. tr.

main-streamed, main-stream-ing, main-streams. 1. To integrate (a physically or intellectually disadvantaged student) into regular school classes. 2. To incorporate into a prevailing group. — main/stream'er n.

main street (mān strēt) n. 1. The principal street of a small town. 2. Main Street. a. The inhabitants of small towns considered as a group: "Main Street may cheer" (Bernard Kalb). b. A place that represents narrowness of view and smug complacency. [Sense 2, after Main Street, a novel by Sinclair Lewis.]

main-tain (mān-tān') v. tr. main-tained, main-tain-ing, main-tains. 1. To keep up or carry on; continue: maintain good relations. 2. To keep in an existing state; preserve or retain: maintain one's composure. 3. To keep in a condition of good repair or efficiency: maintain two cars. 4. a. To provide for; support: maintain a family. b. To keep in existence; sustain: enough food to maintain life. 5. To defend or hold against criticism or attack: maintained his stand on taxes. 6. To declare to be true; affirm: maintained her innocence. [Middle English maintainen, from Old French maintenir, from Medieval Latin manutenēre, from Latin manū tenēre, to hold in the hand : manū, ablative of manus, hand; see man-² in Appendix + tenēre, to hold; see ten- in Appendix.]

—main-tain'a-bil/i-ty n. —main-tain'a-ble adj. —main-tain'er n.

main-te-nance (mān'tə-nəns) n. 1. The act of maintaining or the state of being maintained: the maintenance of family traditions. 2. The work of keeping something in proper condition; upkeep. 3. a. Provision of support or livelihood. b. Means of support or livelihood: an income that barely provided maintenance. See Synonyms at livelihood. 4. Law. The unlawful meddling in a suit by providing either party with the means to carry it on. [Middle English maintenaunce, from Old French maintenance, from maintenir, to maintain. See MAINTAIN.]

Main-te-non (mān'tə-nōn', mǎnt-nōn'), Marquise de. Title of Françoise d'Aubigné. 1635-1719. French consort of Louis XIV. The widow of French writer Paul Scarron, she secretly married the king (c. 1685) after the death of his first wife.

main-top (mān'tōp') n. Nautical. A platform at the head of the mainmast on a square-rigged vessel.

main topgallant (mān tə-gāl'ənt) n. Nautical. A sail or yard set from the topgallant section of a mainmast.

main top-gal-lant-mast (mān tə-gāl'ənt-məst, tōp-) n. Nautical. The section of the mainmast next above the main topmast on a square-rigged sailing vessel.

main topmast (mān tōp'məst) n. Nautical. The section of the mainmast on a square-rigged sailing vessel between the lower mast and the main topgallantmast.

main topsail (mān tōp'səl) n. Nautical. The sail that is set above the mainsail.

main yard (mān yärd) n. Nautical. The lower yard on a mainmast.

Mainz (mīnts) A city of west-central Germany at the confluence of the Rhine and Main rivers west-southwest of Frankfurt. Built on the site of a Roman camp founded in the 1st century B.C., it is an important industrial and commercial city. Johann Gutenberg established a printing industry here in the 15th century. Population, 187,447.

Mai-sons-Al-fort (mā-zôN'äl-fôr') A city of north-central France, an industrial suburb of Paris on the Marne River. Population, 51,065.

mai tai (mī' tī') n. pl. mai tais. A cocktail made with rum, curaçao, and fruit juices. [Tahitian maitai, good.]

Mait-land (māt'lənd), Frederic William. 1850-1906. British jurist and historian noted for his many works on the history of English law.

mai-tre d' (mā'trə dē', mā'tər) n. pl. mai-tre d's (dēz'). Informal. A maitre d'hôtel.

mai-tre d'hôtel (mā'trə dō-těl') n. pl. mai-tres d'hôtel (mā'trə dō-těl').

1. A headwaiter. 2. A major-domo. 3. A sauce of melted butter, chopped parsley, lemon juice, salt, and pepper. [French maître d'hôtel : maître, master + de, of + hôtel, house.]

maize (māz) n. 1. See corn¹ (n., sense 1). 2. Color. A light yellow to moderate orange yellow. [Spanish maíz, from Cariban mahiz.] —maize adj.

Maj. abbr. Major.

ma-jes-tic (mə-jēs'tik) also ma-jes-ti-cal (-tī-kəl) adj. Having or showing lofty dignity or nobility; stately. See Synonyms at grand. —ma-jes'ti-cal-ly adv.

maj-es-ty (mäj'ī-stē) n. pl. maj-es-ties. 1. a. The greatness and dignity of a sovereign. b. The sovereignty and power of God. 2. Supreme authority or power: the majesty of the law. 3. a. A royal personage. b. Majesty. Abbr. M. Used with His, Her, or Your as a title and form of address for a sovereign.

4. a. Royal dignity of bearing or aspect; grandeur. b. Stately splendor; magnificence, as of style or character: the Parthenon in all its majesty. [Middle English mageste, maieste, from Old French majeste, from Latin māiestās. See meg- in Appendix.]

Maj. Gen. abbr. Major general.

ma-jol-i-ca (mə-jōl'ī-kə, -yōl'-) n. 1. Tin-glazed earthenware that is often richly colored and decorated, especially an earthenware of this type produced in Italy. 2. Pottery made in imitation of this earthenware. [Italian maiolica, from Medieval Latin Māiōlica, Majorca (where it was made), alteration of Late Latin Māiōrica.]

ma·jor (mā'jər) adj. 1. Greater than others in importance or rank: a major artist. 2. Great in scope or effect: a major improvement. 3. Great in number, size, or extent: the major portion of the population. 4. Requiring great attention or concern; very serious: a major illness. 5. Law. Having attained full legal age. 6. Of or relating to the field of academic study in which a student specializes. 7. Music.
a. Designating a scale or mode having half steps between the third and fourth and the seventh and eighth degrees. b. Equivalent to the distance between the tonic note and the second or third or sixth or seventh degrees of a major scale or mode: a major interval. c. Based on a major scale: major key. — n. 1. Abbr. Maj. a. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Army, Air Force, or Marine Corps that is above captain and below lieutenant colonel. b. A similar rank in another military or paramilitary organization. c. One who holds this rank. 2. One that is superior in rank, importance, or ability: an oil-producing country considered as one of the majors. 3. Law. One who has reached full legal age. 4. a. A field of study chosen as an academic specialty. b. A student specializing in such studies: a linguistics major. 5. Logic. a. A major premise. b. A major term. 6. Music. A major scale, key, interval, or mode. 7. majors. Sports. The major leagues. — v. intr. ma·jored, ma·jor·ing, ma·jors. To pursue academic studies in a major: majoring in mathematics. [Middle English majour, from Latin māior. See meg- in Appendix.]

major axis (mā'jər ăk'sis) n. Mathematics. The longer of the two lines about which an ellipse is symmetrical; the axis that passes through both foci of an ellipse.

Ma·jor·ca (mə-jôr'kə, -yôr'-) also Mal·lor·ca (mä-yôr'kä, -lyôr'-) An island of Spain in the western Mediterranean Sea off the east-central coast of the mainland. The largest of the Balearic Islands, it was the center of an independent kingdom from 1276 until 1343. Tourism is its major industry. — Ma·jor'can adj. & n.

ma·jor·do·mo (mā'jər-dō'mō) n. pl. ma·jor·do·mos. 1. The head steward or butler in the household of a sovereign or great noble. 2. A steward or butler. 3. One who makes arrangements or directs affairs for another. [Italian maggior-domo, or Spanish mayordomo both from Medieval Latin māior domūs: Latin māior, chief; see meg- in Appendix + Latin domūs, genitive of domus, house; see dem- in Appendix.]

ma·jor·ette (mā'jə-rēt') n. A drum majorette. See Usage Note at -ette.

major general (mā'jər jěn'ər-əl) n. Abbr. Maj. Gen., MG 1. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Army, Air Force, or Marine Corps that is above brigadier general and below lieutenant general. 2. One who holds this rank.

ma·jor·i·tar·i·an (mə-jôr'ī-târ'ē-ən, -jôr'-) adj. Based on majority rule: "a naively uncomplicated premise of simple majoritarian democracy" (Saturday Review). — n. An advocate of majoritarianism.

ma·jor·i·tar·i·an·ism (mə-jôr'î-târ'ē-ə-nîz'əm, -jôr'-) n. Rule by simple numerical majority in an organized group.

ma·jor·i·ty (mə-jôr'î-tē, -jôr'-) n. pl. ma·jor·i·ties. 1. The greater number or part; a number more than half of the total. 2. The amount by which the greater number of votes cast, as in an election, exceeds the total number of remaining votes. 3. The political party, group, or faction having the most power by virtue of its larger representation or electoral strength. 4. The status of having reached full legal age, with attendant rights and responsibilities. 5. The military rank, commission, or office of a major. 6. Obsolete. The fact or state of being greater; superiority. [French majorité, from Medieval Latin māiōritās, from Latin māior, greater. See meg- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: When majority refers to a particular number of votes, it takes a singular verb: Her majority was five votes. His majority has been growing by 5 percent every year. When it refers to a group of persons or things that are in the majority, it may take either a singular or plural verb, depending on whether the group is considered as a whole or as a set of people considered individually. So we say The majority elects (not elect) the candidate it wants (not they want), since the election is accomplished by the group as a whole; but The majority of the voters live (not lives) in the city, since living in the city is something that each voter does individually. • Majority is often preceded by great (but not by greater) in expressing emphatically the sense of “most of”: The great majority approved. The phrase greater majority is appropriate only when considering two majorities: He won by a greater majority in this election than in the last.

majority leader (mə-jôr'î-tē lē'dər) n. The leader of the majority party in a legislature, as in the U.S. Senate or House of Representatives.

majority rule (mə-jôr'î-tē rōol) n. A doctrine by which a numerical majority of an organized group holds the power to make decisions binding on all in the group.

major league (mā'jər lēg) n. Sports. 1. Either of the two principal groups of professional baseball teams in the United States. 2. A league of principal importance in other professional sports, such as basketball, football, or ice hockey.

ma·jor·league (mā'jər-lēg') adj. 1. Sports. Of or relating to a major league: major-league baseball. 2. Being in the top rank of its kind: a major-league ballet company.

ma·jor·lea·guer (mā'jər-lē'gər) n. Sports. A member of a major-league team, especially a major-league baseball player.

major medical (mā'jər mēd'î-kəl) n. Insurance that covers all or most of the medical bills engendered by major or prolonged illnesses above a set amount.

major order (mā'jər ôr'dər) n. Ecclesiastical. See holy order (n., sense 3).

major party (mā'jər pär'tē) n. A political party having enough strength to gain control of a government with comparative regularity.

major premise (mā'jər prēm'īs) n. Logic. The premise containing the major term in a syllogism.

Ma-jor Prophets (mā'jər prōf'īts) pl.n. Bible. The Hebrew prophets Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel.

major scale (mā'jər skāl) n. Music. A diatonic scale having half steps between the third and fourth and the seventh and eighth tones and whole steps between the other adjacent tones.

major suit (mā'jər sōt) n. Games. A suit of superior scoring value, either spades or hearts in bridge.

major term (mā'jər tûrm) n. Logic. The term of a syllogism that forms the predicate of the conclusion.

ma-jus-cule (mə-jüs'kyōōl, məj'ə-skyōōl') n. A large letter, either capital or uncial, used in writing or printing. [French, from Latin māiusculus, somewhat larger, diminutive of māior, greater. See meg- in Appendix.] —ma-jus'cule, ma-jus'cu-lar (mə-jüs'kyə-lər) adj.

Mak-a-lu (mük'ə-lōō') A mountain, 8,476 m (27,790 ft) high, in the Himalaya Mountains of northeast Nepal. It was first scaled in 1955.

mak-ar (mä'kər, mā'(-)) n. Chiefly Scots. A poet. [Middle English, variant of maker, maker, poet.]

Ma-kar-i-os III (mə-kär'ē-əs, -ōs', mä-kä'rē-ōs), 1913-1977. Cypriot prelate and politician. Bishop of the Orthodox Church of Cyprus (1950-1977), he supported the political unification of Cyprus and Greece and was the first president of independent Cyprus (1959-1977).

Ma-kas-sar or Ma-ka-sar (mə-käs'ər) See Ujung Pandang.

Makassar Strait (mə-käs'ər strāt) A strait between Borneo and Celebes connecting the Java Sea with the Celebes Sea.

Ma-ka-ti (mä'kə-tē') A city of southwest Luzon, Philippines, a suburb of Manila. Population, 372,631 make (māk) v. made (mād), mak-ing, makes. — v. tr. 1. To cause to exist or happen; bring about; create: made problems for him; making a commotion.

2. To bring into existence by shaping, modifying, or putting together material; construct: make a dress; made a wall of stones. 3. To form by assembling individuals or constituents: make a quorum. 4. To change from one form or function to another: make clay into bricks. 5. a. To cause to be or become: made her position clear; a decision that made him happy. b. To cause to assume a specified function or role: made her treasurer; made Chicago his home. 6. a. To cause to act in a specified manner: Heat makes gases expand. b. To compel: made him leave.

7. a. To form in the mind: make an estimate. b. To compose: make verses.

8. a. To prepare; fix: make breakfast. b. To get ready or set in order for use:

made the bed. c. To gather and light the materials for (a fire). 9. a. To engage in: make war. b. To carry out; perform: make a telephone call; make an incision. 10. To achieve, produce, or attain: made peace between the two factions; not making sense; didn't make the quota. 11. a. To institute or establish; enact: make laws. b. To draw up and execute in a suitable form: make a will. 12. a. To arrive at; reach: made Washington in two hours. b. To reach in time: just made the plane. 13. a. To attain the rank or position of: She made lieutenant. b. To acquire a place in or on: made the basketball team; made the morning papers. 14. a. To gain or earn, as by working: make money. b. To behave so as to acquire: make friends. c. To score or achieve, as in a sport: made a field goal. 15. a. To assure the success of: A favorable review from him can make a play. b. To favor the development of: Practice makes a winning team. 16. To be suited for: Oak makes strong furniture. 17. To develop into: She will make a fine doctor. 18. a. To draw a conclusion as to the significance or nature of: don't know what to make of the decision. b. To calculate as being; estimate: I make the height 20 feet. c. To consider as being: wasn't the problem some people made it. 19. a. To constitute: Twenty members make a quorum. b. To add up to: Two and two make four. c. To amount to: makes no difference. 20. To constitute the essence or nature of: Clothes make the man. 21. To cause to be especially enjoyable or rewarding: You made my day. 22. To appear to begin (an action): She made to leave. 23. Slang. To persuade to have sexual intercourse. — v. intr. 1. To act or behave in a specified manner: make merry; make free. 2. To begin or appear to begin an action: made as if to shake my hand. 3. To cause something to be as specified: make ready; make sure. 4. To proceed in a certain direction: made for home; made after the thief. 5. Slang. To pretend to be; imitate. Used with like: made like a ballerina. 6. To undergo fabrication or manufacture: This wool makes up into a warm shawl. 7. To rise or accumulate: The tide is making. — n. 1. The act or process of making; manufacturing. 2. The style or manner in which a thing is made: disliked the make of her coat. 3. The amount produced, especially the output of a factory. 4. A specific line of manufactured goods, identified by the manufacturer's name or the registered trademark: a famous make of shirt. 5. The physical or moral nature of a person; character or disposition: found out what make of man he was. 6. Slang. Identification of a person or thing, often from information in police records: Did you get a make on the assailant? — phrasal verbs. make for. 1. To have or cause to have a particular effect or result: small details that make for comfort. 2. To help promote; further: makes for better communication. make off. To depart in haste; run away. make out. 4. To discern or see, especially with difficulty: I could barely make out the traffic signs through the rain. 5. To understand: could not make out what she was saying. 6. To write out; draw up: made out the invoices. 7. To fill in (a form, for example). 8. Informal. To imply or suggest: You make me out to be a liar. 9. Informal. To try to establish or prove: He made out that he was innocent. 10. To get along in a given way; fare: made out well in business. 11. Slang. a. To neck; pet. b. To have sexual intercourse. 12. Slang. a. To neck; pet. b. To have sexual intercourse. make over. 13. To redo; renovate. 14. To change or transfer the ownership of, usually by means of a legal document: made over the property to her son. make up. 15. To put together; construct or compose: make up a prescription. 16. To constitute; form: One hundred years make up a century. 17. a. To alter one's appearance for a role on the stage, as with a costume and cosmetics. b. To apply cosmetics. 18. To devise as a fiction or falsehood; invent: made up an excuse. 19. a. To make good (a deficit or lack): made up the difference in the bill. b. To compensate for: make up the lost time. 20. To resolve a quarrel: kissed and made up. 21. To make ingratiating or fawning overtures. Used with to: made up to his friend's boss. 22. To take (an examination or a course) again or at a later time because of previous absence or failure. 23. To set in order: make up a room. 24. Printing. To select and arrange material for: made up the front page. 25. a. To alter one's appearance for a role on the stage, as with a costume and cosmetics. b. To apply cosmetics. 26. a. To make good (a deficit or lack): made up the difference in the bill. b. To compensate for: make up the lost time. make with. Slang. 27. To bring into use: a flirt making with the eyes. 28. To put forth; produce: always making with the jokes. —idioms. make a clean breast of. To confess fully. make a face. To distort the features of the face; grimace. make a go of. To achieve success in: have made a go of the business. make away with. 4. To carry off; steal. 5. To use up or consume. 6. To kill or destroy. make believe. To pretend. make bold. To venture: I will not make so bold as to criticize such a distinguished scholar. make book. Games. To accept bets on a race, game, or contest. make do. To manage to get along with the means available: had to make do on less income. make ends meet. To manage so that one's means are sufficient for one's needs. make eyes. To ogle. make fun of. To mock; ridicule. make good. 14. To carry out successfully: He made good his escape. 15. To fulfill: She made good her promise. 16. To make compensation for; make up for: made good the loss. 17. To succeed: made good as a writer. make hay. To turn to one's advantage: The candidate's opponents made hay of the scandal. make it. 19. Informal. To be successful: finally made it as an actor. 20. Slang. To have sexual intercourse. make light of. To treat as unimportant: He made light of his illness. make love. 22. To engage in amorous caressing. 23. To engage in sexual intercourse. make much of. To treat as of great importance. make no bones about. To be forthright and candid about; acknowledge freely: They make no bones about their dislike for each other. make off with. To snatch or steal: made off with the profits. make sail. Nautical. 27. To begin a voyage. 28. To set sail. make the grade. To measure up to a given standard. make the most of. To use to the greatest advantage. make the scene. Slang. 31. To put in an appearance: made the scene at the party.

32. To participate in a specified activity: made the drug scene. make time.

33. To move or travel fast, as in an attempt to compensate for lost time.

34. Slang. To make progress toward attracting: He tried to make time with the new neighbor. make tracks. Slang. To move or leave in a hurry. make up (one's) mind. To decide between alternatives; come to a definite decision or opinion.

make waves. Slang. To cause a disturbance or controversy. make way. 38. To give room for passage; move aside. 39. To make progress. on the make. Slang.

40. Aggressively striving for financial or social improvement: a young executive on the make. 41. Eagerly seeking a sexual partner. [Middle English maken, from Old English macian. See mag- in Appendix.] —mak'a·ble adj.

make-be-lieve (māk'бі-lēv') n. Playful or fanciful pretense. —make'/be-lieve' adj.

make-do (māk'dōō') n. pl. make-do's or make-dos (-dōōz'). A substitute for something unobtainable at the time; a makeshift. —make'/do' adj.

make·fast (māk'făst') n. Nautical. An object, such as a buoy, post, or pile, to which a boat is moored.

make-or-break (māk'ər-brāk') adj. Resulting in great success or utter failure: a make-or-break investment plan.

make·o·ver (māk'ō'vər) n. An overall treatment to improve the appearance or change the image.

mak·er (mā'kər) n. 1. One that makes or manufactures. Often used in combination: a policymaker; a drugmaker. 2. Law. A party that signs a promissory note.

3. Maker. God. Often used with the or a possessive adjective. 4. Archaic. A poet.

make-read·y (māk'rēd'ē) n. Printing. The operation of preparing a form for printing by adjusting and leveling the plates to ensure a clear impression.

make·shift (māk'shift') n. A temporary or expedient substitute for something else. — adj. Suitable as a temporary or expedient substitute: used a rock as a makeshift hammer.

SYNONYMS: makeshift, expedient, resort, stopgap. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “something used as a substitute when other means fail or are not available”: lacked a cane but used a stick as a makeshift; exhausted every expedient and finally filed suit; will use force only as a last resort; a crate serving as a stopgap for a chair.

make·up or make-up (māk'ŭp') n. 1. The way in which something is composed or arranged; composition or construction. 2. Printing. The arrangement or composition, as of type or illustrations, on a page or in a book. 3. The qualities or temperament that constitute a personality; disposition: Lying is not in her makeup. 4. Cosmetics applied especially to the face. 5. Materials, such as cosmetics and costumes, that an actor or actress uses in portraying a role. 6. A special examination for a student who has been absent from or has failed a previous examination.

make-weight (māk'wāt') n. 1. Something added on a scale in order to meet a required weight. 2. Something added only to fill a lack. 3. A counterweight; a counterbalance.

make-work (māk'wûrk') n. Work of little value assigned or taken on only to keep someone from being idle.

Ma-ke-yev-ka (mə-kē'əf-kə, -kyě'-) A city of eastern Ukraine northeast of Donetsk. It is a major metallurgical and coal-mining center. Population, 451,000.

Ma-khach-ka-la (mə-käch'kə-lä', -KHƏch-) A city of southwest Russia on the western coast of the Caspian Sea. Founded in 1844, it is an oil-refining and transshipment center. Population, 301,000.

ma-ki-mo-no (mä'kī-mō'nō) n. pl. ma-ki-mo-nos. A horizontal Japanese decorative scroll featuring pictures or calligraphy. [Japanese, scroll : maki, rolled + mono, thing.]

mak-ing (mä'kīng) n. 1. a. The act of one that makes. b. The process of coming into being: trouble in the making. 2. The means of gaining success or realizing potential: That job will be the making of you. 3. a. Something made. b. The quantity made at one time. 4. Often makings. a. The abilities or qualities needed for development: She has the makings of a fine teacher. b. The material or ingredients needed for making or doing something: all the makings for an apple pie. 5. makings. Informal. The paper and tobacco for rolling a cigarette.

ma-ko (mä'kō) n. pl. ma-kos. Either of two mackerel sharks of the genus Isurus, characterized by a large heavy body and a nearly symmetrical tail. [Maori mako.]

ma-ku-ta (mä-kōō'tä) n. Plural of likuta.

Mal. abbr. 1. Bible. Malachi. 2. Malay.

mal- pref. 1. Bad; badly: maladminister. 2. Abnormal; abnormally: malformation. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin, from male, badly, and malus, bad; see mel-³ in Appendix.]

Mal-a-bar Coast (mä'l'ə-bär' kōst) A region of southwest India bordering on the Arabian Sea and bounded on the east by the Western Ghats.

Mal-a-bo (mä'l'ə-bō', mä-lä'bō) Formerly San-ta Is-a-bel (sän'tə 'iz'ə-běl', sän'tä ē-sä-běl'). The capital and largest city of Equatorial Guinea, on Bioko in the Gulf of Guinea. It was founded by the British in 1827. Population, 30,710.

mal-ab-sorp-tion (mä'l'əb-sôrp'shən, -zôrp'-) n. Defective or inadequate absorption of nutrients from the intestinal tract.

Ma-lac-ca (mə-lä'kə, -lä'kə) n. The stem of the rattan palm, used for making canes and umbrella handles. [After Malacca (now Melaka), a town of western Malaysia.]

Malacca, Strait of. A channel between Sumatra and the Malay Peninsula connecting the Andaman Sea with the South China Sea.

Mal·a·chi (mä'l'ə-kī') n. Bible. 1. A Hebrew prophet of the sixth century B.C.

2. Abbr. Mal., MI A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

mal·a·chite (mä'l'ə-kīt') n. A light to dark green carbonate mineral, $\text{Cu}_2\text{CO}_3(\text{OH})_2$, used as a source of copper and for ornamental stoneware. [Middle English melochite, from Latin molochītes, from Greek molokhitis, from mala-khē, molokhē, mallow.]

mal·a·col·o·gy (mä'l'ə-kōl'ə-jē) n. The branch of zoology that deals with mollusks. [French malacologie, contraction of malacozoologie, from New Latin Malacozoa, a classification that includes mollusks : Greek malakos, soft; see mel¹ in Appendix + New Latin -zoa, pl. of -zoon.] —mal'a-co-log'i-cal (-kə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj. —mal'a-col'o-gist n.

mal·ad·ap·ta·tion (mä'l'əd-əp-tā'shən) n. Faulty or inadequate adaptation.

mal·a·dap·ted (mä'l'ə-däp'tīd) adj. Poorly suited to a particular function or situation.

mal·a·dap·tive (mä'l'ə-däp'tiv) adj. 1. Marked by faulty or inadequate adaptation. 2. Not assisting or promoting adaptation.

mal·ad·just·ed (mä'l'ə-jüs'tīd) adj. 1. Poorly adjusted: a maladjusted carburetor. 2. Psychology. Inadequately adjusted to the demands or stresses of daily living.

mal·ad·just·ment (mä'l'ə-jüst'mənt) n. 1. Faulty or inadequate adjustment, as in a machine. 2. Psychology. Inability to adjust to the demands of interpersonal relationships and the stresses of daily living.

mal·ad·min·is·ter (mä'l'əd-mīn'ī-stər) v. tr. mal·ad·min·is·tered, mal·ad·min·is·ter·ing, mal·ad·min·is·ters. To administer or manage inefficiently or dishonestly. —mal'ad·min'is·tra'tion n.

mal·a·droit (mä'l'ə-droit') adj. Marked by a lack of adroitness; inept. See Synonyms at awkward. — n. An inept person. [French : mal-, mal- + adroit, adroit; see ADROIT.] —mal'a-droit'ly adv. —mal'a-droit'ness n.

mal·a·dy (mä'l'ə-dē) n. pl. mal·a·dies. 1. A disease, a disorder, or an ailment. 2. An unwholesome condition: the malady of discontent. [Middle English maladie, from Old French, from malade, sick, from Latin male habitus, in poor condition : male, badly; see mel³ in Appendix + habitus, past participle of habēre, to hold; see ghabh- in Appendix.]

ma·la fi·de (mä'l'ə fī'dē, mä'l'ä fē'dē) adv. & adj. With or in bad faith. [Latin malā fidē : malā, feminine ablative of malus, bad + fidē, ablative of fidēs, faith.]

Mal·a·ga (mä'l'ə-gə) n. A sweet fortified wine originally from Málaga, Spain.

Má·la·ga (mä'l'ə-gə, mä'l'ä-gä') A city of southern Spain northeast of Gibraltar. Founded by Phoenicians in the 12th century B.C., it was held successively by Carthaginians, Romans, Visigoths, and Moors (after 711). Málaga was conquered by Ferdinand and Isabella's troops in 1487. Population, 537,619.

Mal·a·gas·y (mäl'ə-gäs'ē) n. pl. Malagasy or Mal·a·gas·ies. 1. A native or inhabitant of Madagascar. 2. The Austronesian language of the Malagasy. — adj. Of or relating to Madagascar, the Malagasy, or their language or culture.

Malagasy Republic (mäl'ə-gäs'ē rī-püb'līk) See Madagascar.

ma·la·gue·ña (mä'lə-gā'nyə) n. 1. A dance native to Málaga, Spain, that is a variety of the fandango. 2. Any of several Spanish folk tunes, especially one native to Málaga that is similar to the fandango. [Spanish, feminine of malagueño, of Málaga, from Málaga.]

mal·aise (mä-lāz', -lēz') n. 1. A vague feeling of bodily discomfort, as at the beginning of an illness. 2. A general sense of depression or unease: “One year after the crash, the markets remain mired in a deep malaise” (New York Times). [French, from Old French : mal-, mal- + aise, ease; see EASE.]

Mal·a·mud (mä'lə-məd), Bernard. 1914-1986. American writer whose novels and short stories often depict Jewish characters coping with a lonely and seemingly unfair world. His works include The Magic Barrel (1958) and The Fixer (1966).

mal·a·mute or mal·e·mute (mä'lə-myōt') n. Any of a breed of powerful dogs developed in Alaska as a sled dog and having a thick gray, black, or white coat. [Short for malamute dog, from Malemute, an Alaskan Eskimo people, from Inupiaq (Eskimo language of northern Alaska) malimiut.]

Ma·lan (mə-län', mä-län'), Daniel François. 1874-1959. South African politician who was prime minister (1948-1954) of the first wholly Afrikaner government of South Africa.

Ma·lang (mə-läng') A city of eastern Java, Indonesia, south of Surabaya. It developed as an industrial center after 1914. Population, 511,780.

mal·a·pert (mä'lə-pûrt') adj. Impudently bold in speech or manner; saucy. — n. An impudent, saucy person. [Middle English, from Old French : mal-, mal- + apert, clever alteration (influenced by apert, clever, saucy); see PERT, of Latin expertus. See EXPERT.] — mal'·a·pert'ly adv. — mal'·a·pert'ness n.

mal·ap·por·tioned (mä'lə-pôr'shənd, -pôr'-) adj. Characterized by an inappropriate or unfair proportional distribution of representatives to a legislative body. — mal'·ap·por'tion·ment n.

mal·a·prop (mä'lə-pröp') n. A malapropism. [After Mrs. Malaprop, a character in The Rivals, a play by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, from MALAPROPOS.]

WORD HISTORY: “She’s as headstrong as an allegory on the banks of the Nile” and “He is the very pineapple of politeness” are two of the statements from the mouth of Mrs. Malaprop that helped her name become synonymous with ludicrous misuse of language. Mrs. Malaprop, a character in Richard Brinsley Sheridan's play The Rivals, produced in 1775, consistently uses language malapropos, that is, inappropriately. The word malapropos comes from the French phrase mal à propos, made up of mal, “badly,” à, “to,” and propos, “purpose, subject,” and literally means “badly to the purpose,” or “inappropriate.” The Rivals was a popular play, and Mrs. Malaprop became enshrined in a common noun, first in the form malaprop and later in malapropism, which is first recorded in 1849. Perhaps that is what Mrs. Malaprop feared when she said “An aspersion upon my parts of speech” and “If I reprehend any thing in this world, it is the use of my oracular tongue, and a nice derangement of epitaphs!”

mal·a·prop·ism (mäl'ə-pröp-iz'əm) n. 1. Ludicrous misuse of a word, especially by confusion with one of similar sound. 2. An example of such misuse.

[From MALAPROP.] —mal'a-prop'i-an (-pröp'ē-ən) adj.

mal·a·pro·pos (mäl'äp-rə-pō') adj. Out of place; inappropriate. — adv. In an inappropriate or inopportune manner. [French mal à propos : mal, badly + à propos, to the purpose.]

ma·lar (mā'lər, -lär') adj. Of or relating to the cheekbone or the cheek. — n. The cheekbone. [New Latin mālāris, from māla, cheekbone.]

Mä·lar·en (mä'lär'ən) A lake of southeast Sweden. Stockholm is located on both sides of the strait that connects the lake with the Baltic Sea.

ma·lar·i·a (mə-lär'ē-ə) n. 1. An infectious disease characterized by cycles of chills, fever, and sweating, caused by the parasitic infection of red blood cells by a protozoan of the genus Plasmodium, which is transmitted by the bite of an infected female anopheles mosquito. Also called paludism, swamp fever.

2. Archaic. Bad or foul air; miasma. [Italian, from mala aria, bad air : malo, bad (from Latin malus); see mel-³ in Appendix + aria, air (from Latin āēr) from Greek aēr. See wer-¹ in Appendix.] —ma-lar'i-al, ma-lar'i-an, ma-lar'i-ous adj.

ma·lar·key also ma·lar·ky (mə-lär'kē) n. Slang. Exaggerated or foolish talk, usually intended to deceive: “snookered by a lot of malarkey” (New Republic). [Origin unknown.]

mal·as·sim·i·la·tion (mäl'ə-sīm'ə-lā'shən) n. Incomplete or imperfect assimilation of nutrients by the body.

mal·ate (mäl'ät', mā'lät') n. A salt or an ester of malic acid. [MAL(IC ACID) + -ATE².]

Mal·a·thi·on (mäl'ə-thī'ōn') A trademark used for the organic compound, C₁₀H₁₉O₆PS₂, used as an insecticide.

Ma·la·tya (mä'lə-tyä') A city of east-central Turkey in the Taurus Mountains. It was the capital of a Hittite kingdom c. 1100 B.C. and was long a strategic frontier outpost. Malatya was annexed by the Ottoman Empire in 1516. Population, 179,074.

Ma·la·wi (mə-lā'wē) Formerly Ny·as·a·land (nī-ās'ə-länd', nyä'sä-). A country of southeast Africa. Center of the widespread Malawi kingdom from the 15th to the late 18th century, the region became a British protectorate in 1891 and was known as Nyasaland from 1907 until 1964. It joined Northern and Southern Rhodesia (now Zambia and Zimbabwe) in a federation from 1953 to 1963 and became independent as Malawi in 1964. Lilongwe is the capital and Blantyre the largest city. Population, 6,123,000. —Ma·la'wi·an adj. & n.

Malawi, Lake. See Lake Nyasa.

Ma·lay (mə-lā', mā'lā') n. Abbr. Mal. 1. A member of a people inhabiting Malaysia, the northern Malay Peninsula, and parts of the western Malay Archipelago. 2. The Austronesian language of the Malays. In this sense, also called Bahasa Malay — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the Malays or their language. 2. Of or relating to Malaysia, the Malay Peninsula, or the Malay Archipelago. [Obsolete Dutch Malayo, from Malay Mēlayu.] —Ma·lay'an (mə-lā'ən) adj. & n.

Ma·la·ya (mə-lā'ə, mā-) See Malay Peninsula.

Ma·a·ya·lam (mä'lə-yä'ləm) n. A Dravidian language spoken in the state of Kerala on the Malabar Coast of southwest India.

Malay Archipelago (mə-lā'är'kə-pěl'ə-gō') An island group of southeast Asia between Australia and the Asian mainland and separating the Indian and Pacific oceans. It includes the islands of Indonesia, the Philippines, and Malaysia.

Ma·lay·o·Pol·y·ne·sian (mə-lā'ō-pöl'ə-nē'zhən, -shən) n. A subgroup of the Austronesian language family. —Ma·lay'o·Pol'y·ne'sian adj.

Malay Peninsula also Ma·la·ya (mə-lā'ə pə-nīn'syə-lə, mā-) A peninsula of southeast Asia comprising southwest Thailand, western Malaysia, and the island of Singapore.

Ma·lay·sia (mə-lā'zhə, -shə) A country of southeast Asia consisting of the southern Malay Peninsula and the northern part of the island of Borneo. First visited by Europeans in the 16th century, it was a union and later federation of British colonies and protectorates from 1946 until independence was achieved in 1963. Kuala Lumpur is the capital and the largest city. Population, 13,486,433. —Ma·lay'sian adj. & n.

Mal·colm X (mä'l'kəm ěks'), Originally Malcolm Little. 1925-1965. American Black activist. A member of the Black Muslims (1952-1963), he advocated separatism and Black pride. After converting to orthodox Islam, he founded the Organization of Afro-American Unity (1964) and was assassinated in Harlem.

mal·con·tent (mä'l'kən-těnt') adj. Dissatisfied with existing conditions. — n. 1. A chronically dissatisfied person. 2. One who rebels against the established system: “immature malcontents who have long since sold out to conformity” (John M. Wilson).

mal de mer (mäl' də mâr') n. Seasickness. [French : mal, sickness + de, of + mer, sea.]

Mal-den (môl'dən) A city of northeast Massachusetts, a residential and manufacturing suburb of Boston. Population, 53,884.

mal-dis-tri-bu-tion (mäl'dis-trə-byōo'shən) n. Faulty distribution or apportionment, as of resources, over an area or among a group.

Mal-dives (môl'dīvz, -dēvz, mäl'-) Formerly Mal-dive Islands (-dīv, -dēv). An island country in the Indian Ocean southwest of Sri Lanka. Consisting of 19 atolls made up of more than 2,000 coral islands, the Maldives became a British protectorate in 1887 and achieved independence in 1965. Male is the capital. Population, 181,453. —Mal-div'i-an (-dīv'ē-ən), Mal-di'van adj. & n.

male (māl) adj. Abbr. m., M. 1. a. Of, relating to, or designating the sex that has organs to produce spermatozoa for fertilizing ova. b. Characteristic of or appropriate to this sex; masculine. c. Consisting of members of this sex. 2. Virile; manly. 3. Botany. a. Relating to or designating organs, such as anthers or antheridia, that produce gametes capable of fertilizing those produced by female organs. b. Bearing stamens but not pistils; staminate: male flowers.

4. Designating an object, such as an electric plug, configured for insertion into a fitted bore or socket. — n. 1. A member of the sex that begets young by fertilizing ova. 2. A man or boy. 3. Botany. A plant having only staminate flowers.

[Middle English, from Old French, from Latin māsculus, diminutive of mās, male.] —male'ness n.

SYNONYMS: male, masculine, manlike, manly, manful, virile, mannish. These adjectives mean of, relating to, characteristic of, or appropriate to men. Male, like female, categorizes by sex; the term is not limited in application to human beings: a male infant; a male dachshund. Masculine as the opposite of feminine often refers to what is considered characteristic of men: a masculine appearance; masculine attire. Manlike usually suggests qualities belonging or held by some to be proper to a man (manlike physical strength); often, however, it merely indicates resemblance to a human being (manlike apes). Manly connotes qualities regarded as becoming to a man: manly power in combat. Manful suggests bravery and resoluteness: We made a manful effort to redress the grievance. Virile stresses the spirit, strength, vigor, power, or sexual potency of an adult male: “The virile figure of Theodore Roosevelt swung down the national highway” (Edward Bok). Mannish usually applies to women or their traits, clothing, or actions when they are suggestive of what is deemed by some to be more proper to a man than to a woman: a mannish cut to the suit; a mannish gait.

Ma-le (mä'lē) The capital of the Maldives, on Male, the chief atoll of the island country. Population, 46,334.

ma·le·ate (mā'lē-āt', mə-lē'ət) n. A salt or an ester of maleic acid. [MALE(IC ACID) + -ATE².]

Male-branche (mäl-bränsh', mäl'ə-), Nicolas de. 1638-1715. French philosopher who sought to reconcile the metaphysics of Descartes with Neo-Platonism and the philosophy of Saint Augustine.

male chauvinist (mäl shō'və-nīst) n. A man whose behavior and attitude toward women indicate a belief that they are innately inferior to men. —male chauvinism n.

male chauvinist pig (mäl shō'və-nīst pig) n. Abbr. MCP Slang. A particularly aggressive male chauvinist.

Mal·e·cite (mäl'ə-sīt') or Mal·i·seet (-sēt') n. pl. Malecite or Mal·e·cites or Maliseet or Mal·i·seets. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting the St. John River valley in New Brunswick and northeast Maine. The Malecite helped form the Abenaki confederacy in the mid-18th century. b. A member of this people. 2. The Algonquian language of the Malecite. [From Micmac malisiit, one who speaks an incomprehensible language.]

mal·e·dict (mäl'ī-dīkt') Archaic. adj. Accursed. — v. tr. mal·e·dict·ed, mal·e·dict·ing, mal·e·dicts. To pronounce a curse against. [Middle English maladicte, from Latin maledictus, past participle of maledicere, to curse : male, ill; see mel⁻³ in Appendix + dicere, to speak; see deik- in Appendix.]

mal·e·dic·tion (mäl'ī-dīk'shən) n. 1. a. The calling down of a curse. b. A curse. 2. Slander. —mal'·e·dic'to·ry (-dīk'tə-rē) adj.

mal·e·fac·tor (mäl'ə-fāk'tər) n. 1. One that has committed a crime; a criminal. 2. An evildoer. [Middle English malefactour, from Latin malefactor, from malefacere, to do wrong : male, ill; see mel⁻³ in Appendix + facere, to do; see dhē- in Appendix.] —mal'·e·fac'tion (-fāk'shən) n.

male fern (mäl fûrn) n. A fern (Dryopteris filix-mas) having rhizomes and stalks that yield an oleoresin used to expel tapeworms.

ma·lef·ic (mə-lēf'ik) adj. 1. Having or exerting a malignant influence. 2. Evil; malicious. [Latin maleficus : male, ill; see mel⁻³ in Appendix + -ficus, -fic.]

ma·lef·i·cence (mə-lēf'ī-səns) n. 1. The doing of evil or harm; mischief. 2. Harmful or evil nature or quality. [Latin maleficientia, from maleficus, malefic. See MALEFIC.]

ma·lef·i·cent (mə-lēf'ī-sənt) adj. Harmful or evil in intent or effect.

Ma·le·gaon (mä'lī-goun', -goun') A town of west-central India northeast of Bombay. It has a weaving industry. Population, 245,883.

ma·le·ic acid (mə-lē'ik äs'id) n. A colorless crystalline acid, HO₂CCH:CHCO₂H, used in textile processing and as an oil and fat preservative. [From French acide maléique, alteration of acide malique, malic acid. See MALIC ACID.]

mal·e·mute (mäl'ə-myōt') n. Variant of malamute.

Ma-len-kov (mə-lĕn'kôf', mə'lĕn-, mə-lyĭn-kôf'), Georgi Maximilianovich. 1902-1988. Soviet politician. An aide of Joseph Stalin, he served as deputy premier (1946-1953) and premier (1953-1955).

mal-en-ten-du (măl'ŏn-tŏn-dŏŏ') n. A misunderstanding. [French, from mal entendu, misunderstood : mal, badly (from Latin male); see mel-³ in Appendix + entendu, past participle of entendre, to understand (from Old French); see INTEND.]

Ma-le-vich (mə-lā'vĭch, -lyĕ'-), Kasimir. 1878-1935. Russian painter who influenced the development of abstract art. His works include White on White (1918).

ma-lev-o-lence (mə-lĕv'ə-lĕns) n. 1. The quality or state of being malevolent. 2. Malicious behavior. [Middle English, from Old French malivolence, from Latin malevolentia, from malevolĕns, malevolent-, malevolent : male, badly; see mel-³ in Appendix + volĕns, present participle of velle, to want; see wel-¹ in Appendix.]

ma-lev-o-lent (mə-lĕv'ə-lĕnt) adj. 1. Having or exhibiting ill will; wishing harm to others; malicious. 2. Having an evil or harmful influence: malevolent stars. [Latin malevolĕns, malevolent-. See MALEVOLENCE.] —ma-lev'o-lent-ly adv.

mal-fea-sance (măl-fĕ'zəns) n. Law. Misconduct or wrongdoing, especially by a public official. [Anglo-Norman malfeasance, from Old French malfaisant, malfeasant, present participle of malfaire, to do evil, from Latin malefacere. See MALEFACTOR.] —mal-fea'sant adj. & n.

mal-for-ma-tion (măl'fŏr-mā'shən) n. Abnormal or anomalous formation or structure; deformity.

mal-formed (măl-fŏrmd') adj. Abnormally or faultily formed.

mal-func-tion (măl-fŭngk'shən) v. intr. mal-func-tioned, mal-func-tion-ing, mal-func-tions. 1. To fail to function. 2. To function improperly. — n. 1. Failure to function. 2. Faulty or abnormal functioning.

Mal-herbe (mä-lĕrb'), François de. 1555-1628. French poet whose works of rigid form and simple diction influenced French classicism.

Ma-li (mä'lĕ) A country of western Africa. A powerful empire from the 14th to the 16th century, Mali became part of French West Africa in the late 19th century and achieved independence in 1960. Bamako is the capital and the largest city. Population, 6,982,000. —Ma'li-an adj. & n.

mal-ic acid (măl'ik äs'ĭd, māl'ĭk) n. A colorless, crystalline compound, COOH·CH₂·CHOH·COOH, that occurs naturally in a wide variety of unripe fruit, including apples, cherries, and tomatoes, and is used as a flavoring and in the aging of wine. [French (acide malique), from Latin mālum, apple, from Greek mēlon, malon.]

mal-ice (mäl'is) n. 1. A desire to harm others or to see others suffer; extreme ill will or spite. 2. Law. The intent, without just cause or reason, to commit a wrongful act that will result in harm to another. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin malitia, from malus, bad. See mel-³ in Appendix.]

ma-li-cious (mə-līsh'əs) adj. Having the nature of or resulting from malice; deliberately harmful; spiteful: malicious gossip. —ma-li'cious-ly adv.
—ma-li'cious-ness n.

malicious mischief (mə-līsh'əs mīs'chīf) n. Law. Willful or wanton destruction of another's property.

ma-lign (mə-līn') v. tr. ma-ligned, ma-lign-ing, ma-ligns. To make evil, harmful, and often untrue statements about; speak evil of. — adj. 1. Evil in disposition, nature, or intent. 2. Evil in influence; injurious. 3. Having or showing malice or ill will; malevolent. [Middle English malignen, to attack, from Old French malignier, from Late Latin malignārī, from Latin malignus, malign; see genē- in Appendix. Adj., from Middle English from Old French, from Latin malignus.] —ma-lign'er n. —ma-lign'ly adv.

SYNONYMS: malign, defame, traduce, vilify, asperse, slander, calumniate, libel. These verbs mean to make evil, harmful, often untrue statements about another. Malign stresses malicious intent: “Have I not taken your part when you were maligned?” (Thackeray). Defame connotes damage to reputation, character, or good name brought about by misrepresentation: The judge ruled that the plaintiff had been defamed and had legitimate grounds for a lawsuit. Traduce implies malicious and false statements resulting in humiliation or disgrace: “My character was traduced by Captain Hawkins... so much so, that even the ship's company cried out shame” (Frederick Marryat). Vilify pertains to open, deliberate, vicious defamation or denigration: “One who belongs to the most vilified and persecuted minority in history is not likely to be insensible to the freedoms guaranteed by our Constitution” (Felix Frankfurter). To aspere is to spread unfavorable charges or insinuations against: “a libel tending to asperse or vilify the house of Commons” (Letters of Junius). Slander and calumniate apply to malicious, false, and defamatory oral expression: slandered his political opponent; calumniated and ridiculed the President in whose cabinet he had once served. Libel involves the communication of written or pictorial material injurious to the reputation of another: The ensuing publicity caused the entertainer to regret having sued the newspaper for libeling his character. See also Synonyms at sinister ma-lig-nan-cy (mə-līg'nən-sē) n. pl. ma-lig-nan-cies. 1. Also ma-lig-nance (-nəns). The state or quality of being malignant. 2. Pathology. A malignant tumor.

ma·lig·nant (mə-līg'nənt) adj. 1. Showing great malevolence; disposed to do evil. 2. Highly injurious; pernicious. 3. Pathology. a. Threatening to life; virulent: a malignant disease. b. Tending to metastasize; cancerous. Used of a tumor. —ma·lig'nant·ly adv.

ma·lig·ni·ty (mə-līg'nī-tē) n. pl. ma·lig·ni·ties. 1. a. Intense ill will or hatred; great malice. b. An act or a feeling of great malice. 2. The condition or quality of being highly dangerous or injurious; deadliness.

ma·li·hi·ni (mä'lī-hē'nē) n. pl. ma·li·hi·nis. A newcomer to Hawaii. [Hawaiian.]

ma·lines (mə-lēn') n. 1. Also ma·line (-lēn'). A thin, stiff net woven in a hexagonal pattern and used in dressmaking. 2. See Mechlin². [French, after Malines (Mechlin), Belgium.]

Ma·lines (mə-lēnz', mä-lēn') See Mechlin¹.

ma·lin·ger (mə-līng'gər) v. intr. ma·lin·gered, ma·lin·ger·ing, ma·lin·gers. To feign illness or other incapacity in order to avoid duty or work. [From French malingre, sickly.] —ma·lin'ger·er n.

Ma·lin·ke (mə-līng'kē) n. pl. Malinke or Ma·lin·kes. 1. A member of a Mandingo people of Senegal and Gambia. 2. The Mandingo language of this people.

Mal·i·now·ski (mä'l'ə-nôf'skē, mä'lī-), Bronislaw Kasper. 1884-1942. Polish-born British anthropologist who maintained that customs and beliefs have specific social functions.

Mal·i·seet (mä'l'ə-sēt') n. Variant of Malecite.

mal·i·son (mä'l'ī-sən, -zən) n. Archaic. A curse. [Middle English malisoun, from Old French maleiçon, from Latin maledictiō, maledictiōn-, from maledictus, past participle of maledicere, to speak ill, curse. See MALEDICT.]

mall¹ (môl, mäl) n. 1. A large, often enclosed shopping complex containing various stores, businesses, and restaurants usually accessible by common passageways. 2. A street lined with shops and closed to vehicles. 3. A shady public walk or promenade. 4. Upstate New York. See median strip. See Regional note at neutral ground. [After The Mall in London, England, originally a pall-mall alley.]

mall² (môl) n. & v. Variant of maul.

mal·lard (mä'l'ərd) n. pl. mallard or mal·lards. A wild duck (Anas platyrhynchos) of which the male has a green head and neck. Most domestic ducks descend from the mallard. [Middle English malarde, from Old French mallart: perhaps from male, male; see MALE + -ard, -ard, or possibly of Germanic origin.]

Mal·lar·mé (mä'l'är-mā') , Stéphane. 1842-1898. French poet and a founder of the symbolist school. His deliberately elliptical works, characterized by unconventional form and diction, include The Afternoon of a Faun (1876).

mal·le·a·ble (mä'l'ē-ə-bəl) adj. 1. Capable of being shaped or formed, as by hammering or pressure: a malleable metal. 2. Easily controlled or influenced; tractable. 3. Able to adjust to changing circumstances; adaptable: the malleable mind of the pragmatist. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin malleābilis, from malleāre, to hammer, from Latin malleus, hammer. See melə- in Appendix.] —mal'le-a·bil'i·ty, mal'le-a·ble·ness n. —mal'le-a·bly adv.

SYNONYMS: malleable, ductile, plastic, pliable, pliant. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “capable of being shaped, bent, or drawn out”: malleable metals such as gold; ductile copper; plastic substances such as wax; soaked the leather to make it pliable; pliant molten glass.

mal·lee (mä'l'ē) n. 1. Any of several west Australian evergreen shrubs or trees of the genus Eucalyptus. 2. A thicket or growth of these plants. [Wuywuring (Aboriginal language of southeast Australia) mali.]

mal·le·i (mä'l'ē-ī') n. Anatomy. Plural of malleus.

mal·le·muck (mä'l'ə-mük') n. Any of several sea birds, such as the fulmar, albatross, or shearwater. [Dutch malle mok, fulmar : mal, silly (from Middle Dutch) + mok, gull.]

mal·let (mä'l'it) n. 1. a. A short-handled hammer, usually with a cylindrical head of wood, used chiefly to drive a chisel or wedge. b. A tool with a large head, used to strike a surface without damaging it. 2. Sports. A long-handled implement used to strike a ball, as in croquet and polo. 3. Music. A light hammer with a rounded head for striking a percussion instrument. [Middle English, from Old French maillet, diminutive of mail, maul. See MAUL.]

mal·le·us (mä'l'ē-əs) n. pl. mal·le·i (mä'l'ē-ī'). Anatomy. The hammer-shaped bone that is the outermost of the three small bones in the mammalian middle ear. Also called hammer [Latin, hammer. See melə- in Appendix.]

Mal·lon (mä'l'ən), Mary. Known as “Typhoid Mary.” 1870?-1938. American cook and immune carrier of typhoid fever who while moving from job to job infected more than 50 people with the disease. After health officials found her, she was institutionalized for much of the rest of her life.

Mal·lor·ca (mä-yôr'kä, -lyôr'-) See Majorca.

mal·low (mä'l'ō) n. 1. Any of various plants of the genus Malva, having pink or white axillary flowers, palmate leaves, and disklike schizocarpic fruits. 2. Any of various related plants, such as the rose mallow. [Middle English malwe, from Old English mealwe, and from Old French malve both from Latin malva.]

Mal·mō (mä'l'mō, mä'l'mœ) A city of southern Sweden on the Oresund opposite Copenhagen. An important trade and shipping center during the Hanseatic period, it passed from Denmark to Sweden in 1658. Population, 229,107.

malm·sey (mäm/'zē) n. pl. malm-seys. A sweet fortified wine originally made in Greece and now produced mainly in Madeira. Also called malvasia, malvoisie. [Middle English, ultimately from Medieval Latin malvasia, malmasia, alteration of Medieval Greek Monemvasia (Malvasia), a village of southern Greece.]

mal·nour·ished (mäl-nûr/'isht, -nûr'-) adj. Affected by improper nutrition or an insufficient diet.

mal·nour·ish·ment (mäl'nûr/'ish-mənt, -nûr'-) n. Malnutrition.

mal·nu·tri·tion (mäl'nōō-trīsh/'ən, -nyōō-) n. Poor nutrition because of an insufficient or poorly balanced diet or faulty digestion or utilization of foods.

mal·oc·clu·sion (mäl'ə-klōō/'zhən) n. Faulty contact between the upper and lower teeth when the jaw is closed.

mal·o·dor (mäl-ō/'dər) n. A bad odor; a stench. See Synonyms at stench.

mal·o·dor·ous (mäl-ō/'dər-əs) adj. Having a bad odor; foul.

—mal·o'dor·ous·ly adv. —mal·o'dor·ous·ness n.

Ma·lone (mə-lōn'), Edmund or Edmond. 1741-1812. British scholar and literary critic noted for his chronology of Shakespeare's plays and his editions of Shakespeare (1790) and Dryden (1800).

ma·lo·nic acid (mə-lō/'nik əs'īd, -lōn/'ik) n. A white crystalline acid, $\text{CH}_2(\text{COOH})_2$, derived from malic acid and used in making barbiturates.

[French (acide malonique), alteration of malique, malic (acid). See MALIC ACID.]

Mal·o·ry (mäl'ə-rē), Sir Thomas. fl. 1470. English writer of Le Morte d'Arthur, a collection of Arthurian romances adapted from French sources and published by William Caxton in 1485.

ma·lo·ti (mä-lō'tē) n. Plural of loti.

Mal·pi·ghi (mäl-pē'gē, mäl-), Marcello. 1628-1694. Italian anatomist who was the first to use a microscope in the study of anatomy and discovered the capillary system.

Mal·pigh·i·an corpuscle (mäl-pīg'ē-ən kôr/'pə-səl) n. Anatomy. 1. A mass of arterial capillaries enveloped in a capsule and attached to a tubule in the kidney. Also called Malpighian body, renal corpuscle. 2. A nodule of lymphatic tissue surrounding the smaller arteries in the spleen. [After Marcello MALPIGHI.]

Malpighian layer (mäl-pīg'ē-ən lā'ər) n. Anatomy. The deepest layer of the epidermis, from which the outer layers develop. [After Marcello MALPIGHI.]

Malpighian tube (mäl-pīg'ē-ən tōōb) n. Any of the excretory tubules leading from the posterior portion of the alimentary canal of insects and other arthropods. Also called Malpighian tubule [After Marcello MALPIGHI.]

mal·po·si·tion (mäl'pə-zīsh/'ən) n. An abnormal position, as of an organ or a body part.

mal·prac·tice (mäl-prāk'tīs) n. 1. Improper or negligent treatment of a patient, as by a physician, resulting in injury, damage, or loss. 2. Improper or unethical conduct by the holder of a professional or official position. 3. The act or an instance of improper practice. — mal'prac-ti'tion-er (-tīsh'ə-nər) n.

Mal-raux (mäl-rō', mäl-), André. 1901-1976. French writer and politician. A member of the French resistance during World War II, he served as minister of culture (1959-1969) under Charles de Gaulle. His written works include novels of adventure and political action, such as Man's Fate (1933), and books of art history.

M.A.L.S. abbr. Master of Library Science.

malt (môlt) n. 1. Grain, usually barley, that has been allowed to sprout, used chiefly in brewing and distilling. 2. An alcoholic beverage, such as beer or ale, brewed from malt. 3. See malted milk (n., sense 2). — v. malt-ed, malt-ing, malts. — v. tr. 1. To process (grain) into malt. 2. To treat or mix with malt or a malt extract. — v. intr. To become malt. [Middle English, from Old English mealt. See mel⁻¹ in Appendix.]

Mal-ta (môl'tə) An island country in the Mediterranean Sea south of Sicily, comprising the island of Malta and two smaller islands. Occupied successively by Phoenicians, Greeks, Carthaginians, Romans, Saracens, and Normans, Malta was granted to the Knights Hospitalers in 1530 and passed to France in 1798 and Great Britain in 1800. The country became independent in 1964. Valletta, on Malta Island, is the capital. Population, 331,997.

Malta fever (môl'tə fē'vər) n. See brucellosis (n., sense 1).

mal-tase (môl'tās', -tāz') n. An enzyme that catalyzes the hydrolysis of maltose to glucose.

malt-ed milk (môl'tīd mīlk) n. 1. A soluble powder made of dried milk, malted barley, and wheat flour. 2. A beverage made by mixing milk with this powder and adding ice cream and flavoring. In this sense, also called malt, malted.

Mal-tese (môl-tēz', -tēs') adj. Of or relating to Malta or its people, language, or culture. — n. pl. Maltese. 1. A native or inhabitant of Malta. 2. The Semitic language of the people of Malta. 3. Any of a breed of toy dogs having a long, silky white coat. 4. A Maltese cat.

Maltese cat (môl-tēz' kăt) n. A short-haired domestic cat having a silky, bluish-gray coat.

Maltese cross (môl-tēz' krôs) n. A cross having four equal arms resembling arrowheads joined at the points.

mal-tha (mäl'thə) n. A black, viscous natural bitumen. [Middle English malthe, from Latin maltha, from Greek, a mixture of wax and pitch. See mel⁻¹ in Appendix.]

Mal-thus (mäl'thəs), Thomas Robert. 1766-1834. British economist who wrote An Essay on the Principle of Population (1798), arguing that population tends to increase faster than food supply, with inevitably disastrous results, unless

- the increase in population is checked by moral restraints or by war, famine, and disease. —Mal·thu'sian (-thōō'zhən, -zē-ən) adj., n. —Mal·thu'sian-ism n.
- malt liquor (môlt lĭk'ər) n. A fermented liquor, such as beer or ale, made with malt.
- mal-tose (môl'tôs', -tōz') n. A white crystalline sugar, C₁₂H₂₂O₁₁·H₂O, formed during the digestion of starch. Also called malt sugar [French, from English MALT.]
- mal-treat (mäl-trēt') v. tr. mal-treat-ed, mal-treat-ing, mal-treats. To treat in a rough or cruel way; abuse. See Synonyms at abuse. —mal-treat'ment n.
- malt sugar (môlt shōög'ər) n. See maltose.
- mal·va·si-a (mäl'və-zē'ə) n. 1. A grape from which malmsey wine is made. 2. See malmsey. [Italian, from Medieval Latin malvasia. See MALMSEY.]
- Mal-vern Hills (môl'vərn hĭlz, ô') A range of hills of west-central England rising to 425.5 m (1,395 ft). The scenic hills are a popular resort area.
- mal-ver-sa-tion (mäl'vər-sā'shən) n. Misconduct in public office. [French, from malverser, to misbehave, from Old French, from Latin male versāri: male, badly; see mel-³ in Appendix + versāri, to behave; see wer-² in Appendix.]
- mal-voi-sie (mäl'vwə-zē') n. See malmsey. [Middle English malvesie, from Old French, from Medieval Latin malvesia, malvasia. See MALMSEY.]
- ma-ma or mam-ma also mom-ma (mä'mə) n. 1. (also mə-mä') Informal. Mother. 2. Slang. a. A woman. b. A wife. [Of baby-talk origin. See mā-² in Appendix.]
- Ma-mar-o-neck (mə-mär'ə-nĕk') A village of southeast New York, a residential and industrial suburb of New York City. Population, 17,325.
- mam-ba (mäm'bə) n. Any of several venomous arboreal snakes of the genus Dendroaspis of tropical Africa, especially D. angusticeps, a green or black tree snake having an often fatal bite. [Nguni (Zulu) i-māmbà.]
- Mam-be-ra-mo (mäm'bə-rä'mō) A river, about 805 km (500 mi) long, of western New Guinea flowing northwest into the Pacific Ocean.
- mam-bo (mäm'bō) n. pl. mam-bos. 1. A dance of Latin American origin, resembling the rumba. 2. The syncopated music for this dance in 4/4 time. — v. intr. mam-boed, mam-bo-ing, mam-bos. To perform this dance. [American Spanish, from mamboo, wooden cane, percussion instrument.]
- Mam-e-luke (mäm'ə-lōōk') n. A member of a former military caste, originally composed of slaves from Turkey, that held the Egyptian throne from about 1250 until 1517 and remained powerful until 1811. [French mameluk, from Arabic mamlūk, slave, Mameluke, from malaka, to possess.]
- Mam-et (mäm'ĭt), David. Born 1947. American playwright whose works include American Buffalo (1975) and Glengarry Glen Ross (1984).
- ma-mey (mä-mā', -mē') n. pl. ma-meys. 1. A West Indian tree (Mammea americana) having glossy leaves, white fragrant flowers, and large edible drupes.

2. The fruit of this tree, having firm juicy flesh and toxic seeds. Also called mam-mee apple [Spanish, from Arawak, or Taino.]

mam·ma¹ (mä'mə) n. Variant of mama.

mam·ma² (mä'm'ə) n. pl. mam·mae (mä'm'ē). An organ of female mammals that contains milk-producing glands; a mammary gland. [Latin. See mā⁻² in Appendix.] —mam'mate' (mä'm'ät') adj.

mam·mal (mä'm'al) n. Any of various warm-blooded vertebrate animals of the class Mammalia, including human beings, characterized by a covering of hair on the skin and, in the female, milk-producing mammary glands for nourishing the young. [From Late Latin mammālis, of the breast, from Latin mamma, breast. See mā⁻² in Appendix.] —mam·ma/li·an (mä-mā'lē-ən) adj. & n.

mam·mal·o·gy (mä-mäl'ə-jē, -mö'l'-) n. The branch of zoology that deals with mammals. [MAMMA(L) + -LOGY.] —mam'ma·log'i·cal (mä'm'ə-löj'i-kəl) adj. —mam·mal'o·gist n.

mam·ma·plas·ty or mam·mo·plas·ty (mä'm'ə-pläs'tē) n. pl.

mam·ma·plas·ties. Reconstructive or cosmetic plastic surgery to alter the size or shape of the breast or breasts.

mam·ma·ry (mä'm'ə-rē) adj. Of or relating to a breast or mamma.

mammary gland (mä'm'ə-rē gländ) n. Any of the milk-producing glands in female mammals, consisting of lobes containing clusters of alveoli with a system of ducts to convey the milk to an external nipple or teat. These glands typically occur in pairs and begin secreting milk when young are born.

mam·mee apple (mä-mā' äp'əl, -mē') n. See mamey.

mam·mif·er·ous (mä-mif'ər-əs) adj. Having mammary glands.

mam·mil·la (mä-mil'ə) n. pl. mam·mil·lae (-mil'ē). 1. A nipple or teat. 2. A nipple-shaped protuberance. [Latin, diminutive of mamma, breast. See mā⁻² in Appendix.] —mam'mil·lar'y (mä'm'ə-lēr'ē) adj.

mam·mil·late (mä'm'ə-lāt') also mam·mil·lat·ed (-lā'tid) adj. 1. Having nipples or mammillae. 2. Shaped like a nipple or mammilla. —mam'mil·la'tion n.

mam·mo·gram (mä'm'ə-gräm') n. An x-ray image of the breast produced by mammography.

mam·mog·ra·phy (mä-mög'rə-fē) n. pl. mam·mog·ra·phies. X-ray examination of the breasts for detection of tumors.

Mam·mon (mä'm'ən) n. 1. Bible. Riches, avarice, and worldly gain personified as a false god in the New Testament. 2. Often mammon. Material wealth regarded as having an evil influence. [Middle English, from Late Latin mammon, from Greek māmōnas, from Aramaic māmōnā, riches.]

mam·mo·plas·ty (mä'm'ə-pläs'tē) n. pl. mam·mo·plas·ties. Variant of mammoplasty.

mam-moth (mä'm'əth) n. 1. Any of various large, hairy, extinct elephants of the genus Mammuthus, especially the woolly mammoth (M. primigenius), once widespread in the Northern Hemisphere. 2. Something of great size. — adj. Of enormous size; huge. See Synonyms at enormous. [Obsolete Russian mamut, mamot.]

WORD HISTORY: The mammoth was introduced to the English-speaking world after mammoth skeletons were discovered in Siberia, so it is no surprise that this creature's name is taken from Russian, even though the animal roamed over Eurasia and North America. The Russian word, now mamant' but formerly mamot as well, was borrowed into English in variant spellings. It was first recorded in 1706 in the form Mammuth, but in 1763 we find the form mammon. It is said that the Russian word is a borrowing of an Ostyak word (the Ostyak people live in western Siberia), but this has not been proved.

mam-my (mä'm'ē) n. pl. mam-mies. 1. Mother. 2. Offensive. A Black nursemaid, especially one formerly in the southern United States. [From dialectal mam, variant of MAMA.]

Ma-mo-ré (mä-mə-rā') A river, about 965 km (600 mi) long, of northern Bolivia flowing partly along the Brazilian border to join the Beni River and form the Madeira River.

man (män) n. pl. men (mĕn). 1. An adult male human being. 2. A human being regardless of sex or age; a person. 3. A human being or an adult male human being belonging to a specific occupation, group, nationality, or other category. Often used in combination: a milkman; a congressman; a freeman. 4. The human race; mankind: man's quest for peace. 5. Zoology. A member of the genus Homo, family Hominidae, order Primates, class Mammalia, characterized by erect posture and an opposable thumb, especially a member of the only extant species, Homo sapiens, distinguished by a highly developed brain, the capacity for abstract reasoning, and the ability to communicate by means of organized speech and record information in a variety of symbolic systems. 6. A male human being endowed with qualities, such as strength, considered characteristic of manhood. 7. Theology. In Christianity and Judaism, a being composed of a body and a soul or spirit. 8. Informal. a. A husband. b. A lover or sweetheart. 9. men. a. Workers. b. Enlisted personnel of the armed forces: officers and men. 10. A male representative, as of a country or company: our man in Tokyo. 11. A male servant or subordinate. 12. Informal. Used as a familiar form of address for a man: See here, my good man! 13. One who swore allegiance to a lord in the Middle Ages; a vassal. 14. Games. Any of the pieces used in a board game, such as chess or checkers. 15. Nautical. A ship. Often used in combination: a merchantman; a man-of-war. 16. Often Man. Slang. A person or group felt to be in a position of power or authority. Used with the: “Their writing mainly concerns the street life—the pimp, the junky, the forces of drug addiction, exploitation at the hands of ‘the man’” (Black World). — v. tr. manned, man-ning, mans. 1. To supply with men, as for defense or service: man a ship. 2. To take stations at, as to defend or operate: manned the guns. 3. To fortify or brace: manned himself for the battle ahead. — interj. Used as an expletive to indicate intense feeling: Man! That was close. — idioms. as one man. 1. In complete agreement; unan- imously. 2. With no exception: They objected as one man. one’s own man. Independent in judgment and action. to a man. Without exception: All were lost, to a man. [Middle English, from Old English mann. See man⁻¹ in Appen- dix.]

USAGE NOTE: Traditionally, man and words derived from it have been used generically to designate any or all of the human race irrespective of sex. In Old English this was the principal sense of man, which meant “a human being” re- gardless of sex; the words wer and wyf (or wæpman and wifman) were used to refer to “a male human being” and “a female human being” respectively. But in Middle English man displaced wer as the term for “a male human being,” while wyfman (which evolved into present-day woman) was retained for “a female hu- man being.” The result of these changes was an asymmetrical arrangement that many criticize as sexist. Many writers have revised some of their practices accord- ingly. But the precise implications of the usage vary according to the context and the particular use of man or its derivatives. • Man sometimes appears to have the sense of “person” or “people” when it is used as a count noun, as in A man is known by the company he keeps and Men have long yearned to unlock the secrets of the atom, and in phrases like the common man and the man in the street. Here the generic interpretation arises indirectly: if a man is known by the company he keeps, then so, by implication, is a woman. For this reason the generic interpre- tation of these uses of man is not possible where the applicability of the predicate varies according to the sex of the individual. Thus it would be inappropriate to say that Men are the only animals that can conceive at any time, since the sentence literally asserts that the ability to conceive applies to male human beings. This usage presumes that males can be taken as representatives of the species. In almost all cases, however, the words person and people can be substituted for man and men, often with a gain in clarity. • By contrast, man functions more as a generic when it is used without an article in the singular to refer to the human race, as in sentences like The capacity for language is unique to man or in phrases like man’s inhumanity to man. But this use of man is also ambiguous, since it can refer ex- clusively to male members of the human race. In most contexts words such as humanity or humankind will convey the generic sense of this use of man. • On the whole, the Usage Panel accepts the generic use of man, the women members significantly less than the men. The sentence If early man suffered from a lack of information, modern man is tyrannized by an excess of it was acceptable to 81 percent of the Panel (including 58 percent of the women and 92 percent of the men). The Panel also accepted compound words derived from generic man. The sentence The Great Wall is the only man-made structure visible from space was acceptable to 86 percent (including 76 percent of the women and 91 percent of the men). The sentence “The history of language is the history of mankind” (James Bradstreet Greenough and George Lyman Kittredge) was acceptable to 76 percent (including 63 percent of the women and 82 percent of the men). Such compounds were acceptable even when the context required that they be applied chiefly to women. Thus, 66 percent of the Panel (including 57 percent of the women and 71 percent of the men) accepts the word manpower in the sentence Countries that do not permit women to participate in the work force are at a disadvantage in competing with those that do avail themselves of that extra source of manpower. • A related set of problems is raised by the use of man in forming the names of occupational and social roles such as businessman, chairman, spokesman, layman, and freshman, as well as in analogous formations such as unsportsmanlike and showmanship. Some condemn this use categorically; however, these words remained acceptable to a majority of the Usage Panel when they were used to refer to a role or class in the abstract but were rejected when they were used to refer to a woman. Thus the general use of chairman was acceptable to 67 percent of the Panel (including 52 percent of the women and 76 percent of the men) in the sentence The chairman will be appointed by the Faculty Senate. But only 48 percent (including 43 percent of the women and 50 percent of the men) accepted the use of the word in Emily Owen, chairman of the Mayor’s Task Force, issued a statement assuring residents that their views would be solicited, where it is applied to a woman. • Several strategies have been suggested for replacing the categorical use of compounds formed with man. Parallel terms like businesswoman, spokeswoman, and chairwoman are increasingly used to refer to women. Also in use are common-gender terms coined with person, such as businessperson, spokesperson, and chairperson. For occupational titles ending in man, new standards of official usage have been established by the U.S. Department of Labor and other government agencies. In official contexts terms such as firefighter and police officer are now generally used in place of fireman and policeman. • A majority of the Panelists rejected the verb man when it was used to refer to an activity performed by women. The sentence Members of the League of Women Voters will be manning the registration desk was unacceptable to 56 percent of the Panel (including 61 percent of the women and 54 percent of the men). See Usage Note at -ess. See Usage Note at people.

Man, Isle of. An island of Great Britain in the Irish Sea off the northwest coast of England. Occupied in the 9th century by Vikings, it passed from Norway to Scotland in 1266 and to the earls of Salisbury and of Derby in the 14th century. Parliament purchased the island in 1765, and it remains an autonomous possession of the British crown.

man. abbr. Manual.

Man. abbr. Manitoba.

ma·na (mä'nə) n. 1. A supernatural force believed to dwell in a person or sacred object. 2. Power; authority. [Maori.]

man about town (măn ə-bout' toun) n. pl. men about town. A sophisticated, socially active man who frequents fashionable places.

man·a·cle (măn'ə-kəl) n. 1. A device for confining the hands, usually consisting of a set of two metal rings that are fastened about the wrists and joined by a metal chain. 2. Something that confines or restrains. — v. tr. man·a·cled, man·a·cling, man·a·cles. To confine or restrain with or as if with manacles; fetter. See Synonyms at hamper¹. [Middle English, from Old French manicle, from Latin manicula, diminutive of manus, hand. See man-² in Appendix.]

Ma·na·do (mə-nä'dō) A town of northeast Celebes, Indonesia. Established by the Dutch in 1657, it is a major seaport. Population, 217,159.

man·age (măn'ij) v. man·aged, man·ag·ing, man·ag·es. — v. tr. 1. To direct or control the use of; handle: manage a complex machine tool. 2. a. To exert control over: “Managing the news... is the oldest game in town” (James Reston). “A major crisis to be managed loomed on the horizon” (Time). b. To make submissive to one's authority, discipline, or persuasion. 3. To direct the affairs or interests of: manage a company; an agency that manages performers. See Synonyms at conduct. 4. To succeed in accomplishing or achieving, especially with difficulty; contrive or arrange: managed to get a promotion. — v. intr. 1. To direct or conduct business affairs. 2. To continue to get along; carry on: learning how to manage on my own. [Italian maneggiare, from Vulgar Latin manidiāre*, from Latin manus, hand. See man-² in Appendix.]

man·age·a·ble (măn'ĭ-jə-bəl) adj. That can be managed or controlled: manageable problems. — man'age·a·bil'i·ty, man'age·a·ble·ness n.

—man'age·a·bly adv.

man·aged care (măn'ijd kâr) n. Any arrangement for health care in which an organization, such as an HMO, another type of doctor-hospital network, or an insurance company, acts as intermediate between the person seeking care and the physician.

man·age·ment (măn'ij-mənt) n. Abbr. mgt., mgmt. 1. The act, manner, or practice of managing; handling, supervision, or control: management of a crisis; management of factory workers. 2. The person or persons who control or direct a business or other enterprise. 3. Skill in managing; executive ability.

management information system (măn'ij-mənt in'fər-mā'shən sīs'təm) n. Abbr. MIS Computer Science. A computer system designed to help managers plan and direct business and organizational operations.

man·ag·er (măn'ī-jər) n. Abbr. mgr., mngr. 1. One who handles, controls, or directs, especially: a. One who directs a business or other enterprise. b. One who controls resources and expenditures, as of a household. 2. One who is in charge of the business affairs of an entertainer. 3. Sports. a. One who is in charge of the training and performance of an athlete or a team. b. A student who is in charge of the equipment and records of a school or college team. —man'ag-er-ship' n.

man·a·ge·ri·al (măn'ī-jîr'ē-əl) adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a manager or management. —man'a·ge'ri·al·ly adv.

man·ag·ing editor (măn'ī-jîng ěd'ī-tər) n. An editor who supervises and coordinates the editorial activities of a publishing house or publication, such as a newspaper.

Ma·na·gua (mə-näg'wə, mə-nä'gwä) The capital and largest city of Nicaragua, in the western part of the country on the southern shore of Lake Managua. The city, designated as the capital in the 1850's, has frequently been damaged by earthquakes. Population, 644,588. —Ma·na'guan adj. & n.

man·a·kin (măn'ə-kîn) n. Any of various small colorful birds of the family Pipridae, found in forests of Central and South America. [Alteration of MANIKIN.]

Ma·na·ma (mə-näm'ə, mə-) or Al Ma·na·mah (äl mə-näm'ə, mə-) The capital and largest city of Bahrain, on the Persian Gulf. A free port, it became capital in 1971. Population, 108,684.

ma·ñā·na (mä-nyä'nə) adv. 1. Tomorrow. 2. At an unspecified future time. — n. An indefinite time in the future. [Spanish, from Vulgar Latin *(crās) māneāna, early (tomorrow), from Latin māne, morning. See mā¹ in Appendix.]

Ma·nas·sas (mə-näs'əs) An independent city of northeast Virginia west of Alexandria. The Civil War Battles of Bull Run (called the Battles of Manassas by the Confederates) were fought nearby in July 1861 and August 1862. Population, 27,957.

Ma·nas·seh (mə-näs'ə) In the Old Testament, the eldest son of Joseph and the forebear of one of the tribes of Israel.

man·at·arms (măn'ət-ärmz') n. pl. men·at·arms (mĕn'-). A soldier, especially a medieval cavalryman supplied with heavy arms.

man·a·tee (măn'ə-tē') n. Any of various herbivorous aquatic mammals of the genus Trichechus, having paddlelike front flippers and a horizontally flattened tail and found in warm coastal waters of Florida, northern South America, West Africa, and the Caribbean. [Spanish manatí, from Cariban, breast.]

Ma-naus (mə-nous', mä-) A city of northwest Brazil on the Rio Negro near its junction with the Amazon River. Founded in the 1660's, Manaus was a prosperous center of the wild-rubber trade in the late 19th century and today is the chief commercial hub of the upper Amazon basin. Population, 611,763.

Man-ches-ter (män'chēs'tər, -chī-stər) 1. A borough of northwest England east-northeast of Liverpool. Founded on the site of Celtic and Roman settlements, it was first chartered in 1301. Greater Manchester is densely populated and highly industrialized. The Manchester Ship Canal (completed in 1894) affords access for oceangoing vessels. Population, 464,200. 2. A town of north-central Connecticut east of Hartford. It was settled in 1672. Population, 49,761. 3. The largest city of New Hampshire, in the southeast part of the state on the Merrimack River north of Nashua. Incorporated as Derryfield in 1751 and renamed in 1810, it was an important textile center from the mid-1800's until the 1930's. Population, 99,567.

Manchester terrier (män'chēs'tər tēr'ē-ər) n. Any of various short-haired, black-and-tan dogs of a breed that originated in Manchester, England. Also called black-and-tan terrier man-child (män'chīd') n. pl. men-children (mēn'chīl'drən). A male child; a boy; a son.

man-chi-neel (män'chī-nēl') n. A tropical American tree (Hippomane mancinella) having poisonous fruit and a milky sap that causes skin blisters on contact. [French mancenille, from Spanish manzanilla, diminutive of manzana, apple, from Old Spanish, from Latin (māla) Matiana, (apples) of Matius, possibly after Caius Matius Calvena (fl. first century B.C.), Roman author of a cookbook.]

Man-chu (män'chōō, män-chōō') n. pl. Manchu or Man-chus. 1. A member of a people native to Manchuria who ruled China during the Qing dynasty.

2. The Tungusic language of the Manchu. — adj. Of or relating to the Manchu or their language or culture. [Manchu manju.]

Man-chu-kuo (män'chōō'kwō') also Man-chu-guo (-gwō') A former state of eastern Asia in Manchuria and eastern Nei Monggol (Inner Mongolia). It was established as a puppet state (1932) after the Japanese invaded Manchuria in 1931 and was returned to Chinese sovereignty in 1945.

Man-chu-ri-a (män'chōōr'ē-ə) A region of northeast China comprising the modern-day provinces of Heilongjiang, Jilin, and Liaoning. It was the homeland of the Manchu people who conquered China in the 17th century and was hotly contested by the Russians and the Japanese in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Chinese Communists gained control of the area in 1948. —Man-chu/ri-an adj. & n.

Man-chu-Tun-gus (män'chōō-tōōng-gōōz', -tūn-, män-chōō'-) n. See Tungusic. —Man'chu-Tun-gus'ic adj.

Man·cu·ni·an (mǎn-kyōō'nē-ən, -kyōōn'yən) adj. Of or relating to Manchester, England. — n. A native or inhabitant of Manchester, England. [From Latin Mancunium, Manchester, of Celtic origin.]

-mancy suff. Divination: bibliomancy. [Middle English, from Old French -mancie, from Late Latin -mantia, from Greek manteia, -manteia, from man-teuesthai, to prophesy, from mantis, prophet. See men-¹ in Appendix.]

Man·dae·an (mǎn-dē'ən) n. Variant of Mandean.

man·da·la (mũn'də-lə) n. Any of various ritualistic geometric designs symbolic of the universe, used in Hinduism and Buddhism as an aid to meditation. [Sanskrit maṇḍalam, circle, perhaps from Tamil muṭalai, ball.] — man·dal'ic (mũn-dāl'ik) adj.

Man·da·lay (mǎn'dl-ā', mǎn'dl-ā') A city of central Burma on the Irrawaddy River north of Rangoon. Capital of the kingdom of Burma from 1860 to 1885, when it was annexed by the British, it was heavily damaged in World War II. Population, 532,895.

man·da·mus (mǎn-dā'məs) Law. n. A writ issued by a superior court ordering a public official or body or a lower court to perform a specified duty. — v. tr. man·da·mused, man·da·mus·ing, man·da·mus·es. To serve or compel with such a writ. [Latin mandāmus, we order, first person pl. of mandāre, to order. See man-² in Appendix.]

Man·dan¹ (mǎn'dǎn') n. pl. Mandan or Man·dans. 1. a. A Native American people formerly living in villages along the Missouri River in south-central North Dakota, with present-day descendants on Lake Sakakawea in west-central North Dakota. b. A member of this people. 2. The Siouan language of the Mandan. [French Mandane, probably from Dakota mawátaNna.]

Man·dan² (mǎn'dən, -dǎn) A city of south-central North Dakota across the Missouri River from Bismarck. It is a distribution and manufacturing center in an agricultural region. Population, 15,177.

man·da·rin (mǎn'də-rĭn) n. 1. A member of any of the nine ranks of high public officials in the Chinese Empire. 2. A high government official or bureaucrat. 3. A member of an elite group, especially a person having influence or high status in intellectual or cultural circles. 4. Mandarin. The official national standard spoken language of China, which is based on the principal dialect spoken in and around Beijing. Also called Guoyo, Putonghua. 5. A mandarin orange; a tangerine. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a mandarin. 2. Marked by elaborate and refined language or literary style. [From Spanish mandarín, from Portuguese mandarim, from Malay mēntēri, from Sanskrit mantrī, mantrin-, counselor, from mantraḥ, counsel. See men-¹ in Appendix.]

mandarin collar (mǎn'də-rĭn kōl'ər) n. A narrow upright collar usually divided in front.

mandarin duck (mǎn'də-rĭn dŭk) n. An Asian duck (Aix galericulata) having brightly colored plumage and a crested head.

mandarin orange (mǎn'də-rĭn ôr'ĭnj) n. See tangerine (n., sense 2).

[French mandarine, from Spanish mandarina, feminine of mandarĭn, mandarin. See MANDARIN.]

man·da·tar·y (mǎn'də-tĕr'ĕ) n. pl. man·da·tar·ies. A person or nation receiving a mandate.

man·date (mǎn'dāt') n. 1. An authoritative command or instruction. 2. A command or an authorization given by a political electorate to its representative. 3. a. A commission from the League of Nations authorizing a member nation to administer a territory. b. A region under such administration. 4. Law. a. An order issued by a superior court or an official to a lower court. b. A contract by which one party agrees to perform services for another without payment. — v. tr. man·dat·ed, man·dat·ing, man·dates. 1. To assign (a colony or territory) to a specified nation under a mandate. 2. To make mandatory, as by law; decree or require: mandated desegregation of public schools. [Latin mandātum, from neuter past participle of mandāre, to order. See man⁻² in Appendix.]

—man'da'tor n.

man·da·to·ry (mǎn'də-tōr'ĕ, -tōr'ĕ) adj. 1. Required or commanded by authority; obligatory: Attendance at the meeting is mandatory. 2. Of, having the nature of, or containing a mandate. 3. Holding a League of Nations mandate over a territory. — n. pl. man·da·to·ries. A mandatory.

man·day (mǎn'dā') n. An industrial unit of production equal to the work one person can produce in a day.

Man·de (mǎn'dā') n. pl. Mande or Man·des. 1. A branch of the Niger-Congo language family, spoken in the upper Niger River valley. 2. A member of a Mande-speaking people. [Mandingo mandi, mande, diminutive of ma, mother.]

Man·de·an also Man·dae·an (mǎn-dĕ'ən) n. 1. A member of a Gnostic sect originating in Jordan and still existing in Iraq. 2. A form of Aramaic used by the Mandaeans. [Mandaean mandaya, having knowledge, from manda, knowledge.]

—Man·de'an adj.

Man·de·kan (mǎn-dĕ'kən, mǎn-dā'-) n. See Mandingo (n., sense 2).

Man·de·la (mǎn-dĕ'lə), Nelson Rolihlahla. Born 1918. South African president (since 1994) and Black political leader imprisoned for nearly 30 years for his anti-apartheid activities. Released in February 1990, he shared the 1993 Nobel Peace Prize.

Man·de·ville (mǎn'də-vĭl'), Bernard. 1670?-1733. Dutch-born British physician, philosopher, and satirist whose major work, The Fable of the Bees (1714), depicts all activity as being motivated by self-interest.

Man-de-ville (măn'də-vīl'), Sir John. Pen name of the unknown compiler of The Voyage and Travels of Sir John Mandeville, Knight (c. 1371), a description of fantastic journeys through the East.

man-di-ble (măn'də-bəl) n. 1. The lower jaw of a vertebrate animal. 2. Either the upper or lower part of the beak in birds. 3. Any of various mouth organs of invertebrates used for seizing and biting food, especially either of a pair of such organs in insects and other arthropods. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin mandibula, from mandere, to chew.] —man-dib'u-lar (-dīb'yə-lər) adj.

man-dib-u-late (măn-dīb'yə-līt, -lāt') adj. Having a mandible or mandibles. — n. An insect having mandibles.

Man-din-go (măn-dīng'gō) n. pl. Man-din-gos or Man-din-goes. 1. A member of any of various peoples inhabiting a large area of the upper Niger River valley of western Africa. 2. A group of closely related Mande languages including Bambara, Malinke, and Maninka, widely spoken in western Africa. In this sense, also called Mandekan [Mandingo, from mandi, Mande. See MANDE.]

man-do-lin (măn'də-līn', măn'dl-īn) n. Music. An instrument with a usually pear-shaped body and a fretted neck over which several pairs of strings are stretched. [French mandoline, from Italian mandolino, diminutive of mandola, lute, from French mandore, from Late Latin pandūra, three-string lute, from Greek pandoura.] —man'do-lin'ist n.

man-drag-o-ra (măn-drăg'ər-ə) n. See mandrake (n., sense 1). [Middle English, from Latin mandragorās. See MANDRAKE.]

man-drake (măn'drāk') n. 1. a. A southern European plant (Mandragora officinarum) having greenish-yellow flowers and a branched root. This plant was once believed to have magical powers because its root resembles the human body. b. The root of this plant, which contains the poisonous alkaloid hyoscyamine. Also called mandragora 2. See May apple. [Middle English, alteration (influenced by drake, dragon); see DRAKE², of mandragora, from Old English, from Latin mandragorās, from Greek.]

man-drel or man-dril (măn'drəl) n. 1. A spindle or an axle used to secure or support material being machined or milled. 2. A metal rod or bar around which material, such as metal or glass, may be shaped. 3. A shaft on which a working tool is mounted, as in a dental drill. [Possibly alteration of French mandrin, lathe, from Provençal mandre, axle, crank, from Old Provençal, beam of a balance, from Latin mamphur, bow-drill, perhaps from Oscan.]

man-drill (măn'drəl) n. A large, fierce baboon (Papio sphinx) of western Africa, having a beard, crest, and mane and brilliant blue, purple, and scarlet facial markings in the adult male. [MAN + DRILL⁴.]

mane (mān) n. 1. The long hair along the top and sides of the neck of certain mammals, such as the horse and the male lion. 2. A long thick growth of hair on a person's head. [Middle English, from Old English manu.]

man-eat-er (mǎn'ē'tər) n. 1. An animal, such as a tiger, that eats or is reputed to eat human flesh. 2. A cannibal. 3. Slang. A woman who is considered dangerous or threatening to men. —man'-eat'-ing adj.

ma-nège also ma-nege (mä-nēzh') n. 1. The art of training and riding horses. 2. The movements and paces of a trained horse. 3. A school at which equestrianism is taught and horses are trained. [French, from Italian maneggio, from maneggiare, to manage. See MANAGE.]

ma-nes or Ma-nes (mā'nēz', mä'nās') pl.n. 1. The spirits of the dead, regarded as minor supernatural powers in ancient Roman religion. 2. (used with a sing. verb). The revered spirit of one who has died. [Middle English, from Latin mānēs, perhaps from mānis, good. See mā⁻¹ in Appendix.]

Ma-nes (mā'nēz) also Ma-ni (mä'nē), A.D.216?-276?. Persian prophet and founder of Manichaeism. He professed that the world is a fusion of the equal but opposite forces of good and evil.

Ma-net (mə-nā', mǎ-), Edouard. 1832-1883. French painter and forerunner of impressionism whose works, including Le Déjeuner sur l'Herbe (Luncheon on the Grass, 1862), were highly controversial in his day.

ma-neu-ver (mə-nōō'vər, -nyōō'-) n. 1. a. A strategic or tactical military or naval movement. b. Often maneuvers. A large-scale tactical exercise carried out under simulated conditions of war. 2. A controlled change in movement or direction of a moving vehicle or vessel, as in the flight path of an aircraft. 3. A movement or procedure involving skill and dexterity. 4. a. A strategic action undertaken to gain an end. b. Artful handling of affairs that is often marked by scheming and deceit. See Synonyms at artifice. — v. ma-neu-vered, ma-neu-ver-ing, ma-neu-vers. — v. intr. 1. To carry out a military or naval maneuver. 2. To make a controlled series of changes in movement or direction toward an objective: maneuvered to get closer to the stage. 3. To shift ground; change tactics: The opposition had no room in which to maneuver. 4. To use stratagems in gaining an end. — v. tr. 1. To alter the tactical placement of (troops or warships). 2. To direct through a series of movements or changes in course: maneuvered the car through traffic. 3. To manipulate into a desired position or toward a predetermined goal: maneuvered him into signing the contract. See Synonyms at manipulate. [French manoeuvre, from Old French manœuvre, manual work, from Medieval Latin manuopera, from Latin manū operārī, to work by hand : manū, ablative of manus, hand; see man⁻² in Appendix + operārī, to work; see op- in Appendix.] —ma-neu'ver-a-bil'i-ty n. —ma-neu'ver-a-ble adj. —ma-neu'ver-er n.

man Friday (măn frī'dē) n. pl. men Friday or men Fridays. An efficient, faithful male aide or employee. [After Man Friday, a character in Robinson Crusoe, a novel by Daniel Defoe.]

man-ful (măn'fəl) adj. Having or showing the bravery and resoluteness considered characteristic of a man. See Synonyms at male. —man'ful-ly adv.

—man'ful-ness n.

man-ga-bey (măng'gə-bā', -bē') n. pl. man-ga-beys. Any of various forest-dwelling monkeys of the genus Cercocebus of central Africa, having a long tail and a slender body. [After Mangabey, a region of Madagascar.]

mangan- pref. Variant of mangano-.

man-ga-nate (măng'gə-nāt') n. A salt containing manganese in its anion, especially a salt containing the MnO_4 radical.

man-ga-nese (măng'gə-nēz', -nēs') n. Symbol Mn A gray-white or silvery brittle metallic element, occurring in several allotropic forms, found worldwide, especially in the ores pyrolusite and rhodochrosite and in nodules on the ocean floor. It is alloyed with steel to increase strength, hardness, wear resistance, and other properties and with other metals to form highly ferromagnetic materials. Atomic number 25; atomic weight 54.9380; melting point 1,244°C; boiling point 1,962°C; specific gravity 7.21 to 7.44; valence 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7. [French manganèse, from Italian manganese, from Medieval Latin magnēsia. See MAGNESIA.]

—man'ga-ne'sian (-nē'zhən, -shən) adj.

manganese dioxide (măng'gə-nēz' dī-ōk'sīd) n. A black crystalline compound, MnO_2 , used as a depolarizer of dry-cell batteries and in textile dyeing.

man-gan-ic (măn-găn'ik, măng-) adj. Containing manganese, especially with a valence of three or six.

man-ga-nite (măng'gə-nīt') n. A steel-gray to black mineral, $MnO(OH)$, found in North America and Europe; manganese oxide.

mangano- or mangan- pref. Manganese: manganite.

man-ga-nous (măng'gə-nəs) adj. Relating to bivalent manganese or to a compound containing bivalent manganese.

mange (mănj) n. Any of several chronic skin diseases of mammals caused by parasitic mites and characterized by skin lesions, itching, and loss of hair. [Middle English manjeue, from Old French manjue, from mangier, to eat. See MANGER.]

man-gel-wur-zel (măng'gəl-wûr'zəl) n. A variety of the common beet having a large yellowish root, used chiefly as cattle feed. [German, alteration (influenced by Mangel, scarcity), of Mangoldwurzel: Mangold, beet (from Middle High German mānegolt) + Wurzel, root; see wrad- in Appendix.]

man-ger (măn'jər) n. A trough or an open box in which feed for livestock is placed. [Middle English, from Old French mangeoire, from mangier, to eat, from Latin mandūcāre, from mandūcō, glutton, from mandere, to chew.]

man·gle¹ (mäŋg'gəl) v. tr. man·gled, man·gling, man·gles. 1. To mutilate or disfigure by battering, hacking, cutting, or tearing. See Synonyms at batter¹. 2. To ruin or spoil through ineptitude or ignorance: mangle a speech. [Middle English manglen, from Anglo-Norman mangler, frequentative of Old French mangoner, to cut to bits, possibly akin to mahaignier, to maim. See MAIM.]

—man'gler n.

man·gle² (mäŋg'gəl) n. 1. A machine for pressing fabrics by means of heated rollers. 2. Chiefly British. A clothes wringer. — v. tr. man·gled, man·gling, man·gles. To press with a mangle. [Dutch mangel, from German, from Middle High German, diminutive of mange, mangonel, from Late Latin manganum, catapult. See MANGONEL.]

man·go (mäŋg'gō) n. pl. man·goes or man·gos. 1. a. A tropical Asian evergreen tree (Mangifera indica) cultivated for its edible fruit. b. The ovoid fruit of this tree, having a smooth rind, sweet juicy flesh, and a flat one-seeded stone. It is eaten ripe or pickled when green. 2. Any of various types of pickle, especially a pickled stuffed sweet pepper. [From Portuguese manga, fruit of the mango tree, from Malay mangā, from Tamil mānkāy : mān, mango tree + kāy, fruit.]

man·go·nel (mäŋg'gə-něl') n. A military engine used during the Middle Ages for hurling stones and other missiles. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin mangonellus, diminutive of Late Latin manganum, catapult, from Greek manganon, war machine.]

man·go·steen (mäŋg'gə-stēn') n. 1. A Malaysian evergreen tree (Garcinia mangostana) having thick leathery leaves and large edible berries. 2. The berry of this tree, having a hard rind and five to seven seeds with a sweet juicy aril. [Malay manggista, mangustan.]

man·grove (mäŋ'grōv', mäŋg'-) n. 1. Any of several tropical evergreen trees or shrubs of the genus Rhizophora, having stiltlike roots and stems and forming dense thickets along tidal shores. 2. Any of various similar shrubs or trees, especially of the genus Avicennia. [Probably Portuguese mangue (from Taino) + GROVE.]

mang·y (män'jē) adj. mang·i·er, mang·i·est. 1. Affected with, caused by, or resembling mange. 2. Having many worn spots; shabby: a mangy old fur coat. 3. Rundown and filthy; squalid: mangy tenements. 4. Mean; contemptible.

—mang'i·ly adv. —mang'i·ness n.

man·han·dle (mäŋ'hän'dəl) v. tr. man·han·dled, man·han·dling, man·han·dles. 1. To handle roughly. 2. To move or handle by manpower alone.

Man·hat·tan¹ (män-hät'n) 1. A city of northeast Kansas west of Topeka. It is a processing and educational center. Population, 37,712. 2. A borough of New York City in southeast New York, mainly on Manhattan Island at the north end of New York Bay. Peter Minuit of the Dutch West Indies Company bought the island in 1626 from the Manhattan Indians, supposedly for some $24 worth of merchandise. The settlement of New Amsterdam, renamed New York when the English assumed control in 1664, quickly spread from the southern tip of the island, eventually becoming the financial, commercial, and cultural center of the United States. Population, 1,487,536. —Man-hat'tan-ite' (-it') n.

Man-hat-tan² (män-hät'n, mən-) also man-hat-tan n. A cocktail made of sweet vermouth, whiskey, and a dash of bitters. [After Manhattan¹, a borough of New York City.]

Manhattan Beach (män-hät'n bēch) A city of southern California, a residential and industrial suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 32,063.

Manhattan clam chowder (män-hät'n klām chou'dər) n. A soup made with clams, tomatoes and other vegetables, and seasonings. [After Manhattan¹, a borough of New York City.]

Man-hat-tan-ize (män-hät'n-īz') v. tr. Man-hat-tan-ized, Man-hat-tan-iz-ing, Man-hat-tan-iz-es. To transform the appearance and character of (a city) by constructing tall and densely situated buildings.

—Man-hat'tan-i-za'tion (-i-zā'shən) n.

man-hole (män'hōl') n. A hole, usually with a cover, through which a person may enter a sewer, boiler, drain, or similar structure.

man-hood (män'hööd') n. 1. The state or time of being an adult male human being. 2. The composite of qualities, such as courage, determination, and vigor, often thought to be appropriate to a man. 3. Adult males considered as a group; men. 4. The state of being human.

man-hour (män'our') n. An industrial unit of production equal to the work one person can produce in an hour.

man-hunt (män'hünt') n. An organized, extensive search for a person, usually a fugitive criminal.

Ma-ni (mä'nē) See Manes.

ma-ni-a (mä'nē-ə, män'yə) n. 1. An excessively intense enthusiasm, interest, or desire; a craze: a mania for neatness. 2. Psychiatry. A manifestation of manic-depressive illness, characterized by profuse and rapidly changing ideas, exaggerated gaiety, and excessive physical activity. 3. Violent abnormal behavior. See Synonyms at insanity. [Middle English, madness, from Late Latin, from Greek. See men-¹ in Appendix.]

-mania suff. An exaggerated desire or enthusiasm for: balletomania. [From MANIA.]

ma-ni-ac (mä'nē-äk') n. 1. An insane person. 2. A person who has an excessive enthusiasm or desire for something: a sports maniac. 3. A person who acts in a wildly irresponsible way: maniacs on the highway. — adj. Variant of maniacal. [From Late Latin maniacus, maniacal, from Greek maniakos, from mania, madness. See men-¹ in Appendix.]

- ma·ni·a·cal (mə-nī'ə-kəl) also ma·ni·ac (mā'nē-āk') adj. 1. Suggestive of or afflicted with insanity: a maniacal frenzy. 2. Characterized by excessive enthusiasm or excitement: a maniacal interest in gambling. —ma·ni'a·cal·ly adv.
- man·ic (măn'ik) adj. Psychiatry. Relating to, affected by, or resembling mania. [Greek manikos, mad, from mania, madness. See men⁻¹ in Appendix.]
- man·ic·de·pres·sive (măn'ik-dī-prēs'iv) Psychiatry. adj. Of, relating to, or affected by manic-depressive illness. — n. A person afflicted with manic-depressive illness.
- manic-depressive illness (măn'ik-dī-prēs'iv il'nīs) n. Psychiatry. An affective disorder marked by alternating episodes of mania and depression. Also called bipolar disorder, bipolar illness.
- Man·i·chae·an or Man·i·che·an (măn'ī-kē'ən) also Man·i·chee (măn'ī-kē') n. A believer in Manichaeism. — adj. Of or relating to Manichaeism; dualistic. [From Middle English Maniche, from Late Latin Manichaeus, from Late Greek Manikhaïos, from Manikhaïos, Manes, the founder of the philosophy.]
- Man·i·chae·ism (măn'ī-kē'iz'əm) also Man·i·chae·an·ism (-kē'ə-nīz'əm) n. 1. The syncretic, dualistic religious philosophy taught by the Persian prophet Manes, combining elements of Zoroastrian, Christian, and Gnostic thought and opposed by the imperial Roman government, Neo-Platonist philosophers, and orthodox Christians. 2. A dualistic philosophy dividing the world between good and evil principles or regarding matter as intrinsically evil and mind as intrinsically good.
- Man·i·che·an (măn'ī-kē'ən) also Man·i·chee (măn'ī-kē') n. & adj. Variants of Manichaeism.
- man·i·cot·ti (măn'ī-kōt'ē) n. An Italian dish consisting of pasta tubes stuffed with chopped meat or ricotta cheese, usually served hot with a tomato sauce. [Italian, pl. of manicotto, muff, from manica, sleeve, from Latin manicae, sleeves, from manus, hand. See man⁻² in Appendix.]
- man·i·cure (măn'ī-kyōōr') n. A cosmetic treatment of the fingernails, including shaping and polishing. — v. tr. man·i·cured, man·i·cur·ing, man·i·cures. 1. To trim, clean, and polish (the fingernails). 2. To clip or trim evenly and closely: manicure a hedge. [French : Latin manus, hand; see man⁻² in Appendix + Latin cūra, care; see CURE.]
- man·i·cur·ist (măn'ī-kyōōr'ist) n. One who gives manicures.
- man·i·fest (măn'ə-fĕst') adj. Clearly apparent to the sight or understanding; obvious. See Synonyms at apparent. — v. tr. man·i·fest·ed, man·i·fest·ing, man·i·fests. 1. To show or demonstrate plainly; reveal: "Mercedes... manifested the chaotic abandonment of hysteria" (Jack London). 2. To be evidence of; prove. 3. a. To record in a ship's manifest. b. To display or present a manifest of (cargo). — n. 1. A list of cargo or passengers carried on a ship or plane. 2. An invoice of goods carried on a truck or train. 3. A list of railroad cars according to owner and location. [Middle English manifeste, from Old French, from Latin manifestus, manifestus, caught in the act, blatant, obvious. See g^whedh- in Appendix.] —man'·i·fest'ly adv.

man·i·fes·tant (măn'ə-fēs'tənt) n. A participant in a public demonstration.

man·i·fes·ta·tion (măn'ə-fě-stā'shən) n. 1. a. The act of manifesting.

b. The state of being manifested. 2. An indication of the existence, reality, or presence of something: A high fever is an early manifestation of the disease.

3. a. One of the forms in which someone or something, such as a person, a divine being, or an idea, is revealed. b. The materialized form of a spirit. 4. A public demonstration, usually of a political nature.

manifest destiny (măn'ə-fěst' dēs'tə-nē) n. 1. A policy of imperialistic expansion defended as necessary or benevolent. 2. Often Manifest Destiny. The 19th-century doctrine that the United States had the right and duty to expand throughout the North American continent.

man·i·fes·to (măn'ə-fēs'tō) n. pl. man·i·fes·toes or man·i·fes·tos. A public declaration of principles, policies, or intentions, especially of a political nature. — v. intr. man·i·fes·toed, man·i·fes·to·ing, man·i·fes·toes. To issue such a declaration. [Italian, from Latin manifestus, clear, evident. See MANIFEST.] man·i·fold (măn'ə-fōld') adj. 1. Many and varied; of many kinds; multiple: our manifold failings. 2. Having many features or forms: manifold intelligence. 3. Being such for a variety of reasons: a manifold traitor. 4. Consisting of or operating several devices of one kind at the same time. — n. 1. A whole composed of diverse elements. 2. One of several copies. 3. A pipe or chamber having multiple apertures for making connections. 4. Mathematics. A topologic space or surface. — v. tr. man·i·fold·ed, man·i·fold·ing, man·i·folds. 1. To make several copies of, as with carbon paper. 2. To make manifold; multiply. [Middle English, from Old English manigfeald: manig, many; see MANY + -feald, -fald, -fold.] —man'·i·fold'ly adv. —man'·i·fold'ness n.

man·i·kin or man·ni·kin (măn'ī-kĭn) n. 1. A man short in stature. 2. A mannequin. 3. An anatomical model of the human body for use in teaching. [Dutch mannekĭjn, from Middle Dutch, diminutive of man, man. See man-¹ in Appendix.]

ma·nil·a or ma·nil·la (mə-nĭl'ə) n. 1. Often Manila or Manilla. A cheroot made in Manila. 2. See abaca (n., sense 2). 3. Manila paper. 4. Color. A light yellow brown.

Manila The capital and largest city of the Philippines, on southwest Luzon Island and Manila Bay, an inlet of the South China Sea. Founded in 1571, the city was controlled by Spain until it was seized by U.S. troops in 1898 during the Spanish-American War. It was held by the Japanese from 1942 to 1945 during World War II. Population, 1,630,485.

Manila hemp (mə-nīl'ə hēmp) n. See abaca (n., sense 2).

Manila paper (mə-nīl'ə pā'pər) n. A strong paper or thin cardboard with a smooth finish, usually buff in color, made from Manila hemp or wood fibers similar to it.

ma·nil·la (mə-nīl'ə) n. Variant of manila.

Ma·nin·ka (mə-nīng'kā, -kē) n. 1. A member of a Mandingo people inhabiting Senegal and Mali. 2. The Mandingo language of this people.

man in the street (măn ĭn thē strēt) n. pl. men in the street. The ordinary citizen.

man·i·oc (măn'ē-ōk') also man·i·o·ca (măn'ē-ō'kə) n. See cassava. [French, from Tupi mandioca, manioca.]

man·i·ple (măn'ə-pəl) n. 1. An ornamental silk band hung as an ecclesiastical vestment on the left arm near the wrist. 2. A subdivision of an ancient Roman legion, containing 60 or 120 men. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin manipulus, handful, from manus, hand. See man⁻² in Appendix.]

ma·nip·u·la·ble (mə-nīp'yə-lə-bəl) adj. Possible to manipulate: a manipulable lever; a manipulable populace. —ma·nip'·u·la·bil'·i·ty n.

ma·nip·u·lar (mə-nīp'yə-lər) adj. 1. Of or relating to an ancient Roman manipule. 2. Of or relating to manipulation. — n. A soldier in a Roman manipule.

ma·nip·u·late (mə-nīp'yə-lāt') v. tr. ma·nip·u·lat·ed, ma·nip·u·lat·ing, ma·nip·u·lates. 1. To operate or control by skilled use of the hands; handle: She manipulated the lights to get just the effect she wanted. 2. To influence or manage shrewdly or deviously: He manipulated public opinion in his favor. 3. To tamper with or falsify for personal gain: tried to manipulate stock prices. 4. Medicine. To handle and move in an examination or for therapeutic purposes: manipulate a joint; manipulate the position of a fetus during delivery. [Back-formation from MANIPULATION.] —ma·nip'·u·la·bil'·i·ty n. —ma·nip'·u·lat'a·ble adj.

—ma·nip'·u·la'tive adj. —ma·nip'·u·la'tive·ly adv. —ma·nip'·u·la'tive·ness n. —ma·nip'·u·la'tor n. —ma·nip'·u·la-to'ry (-lə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

SYNONYMS: manipulate, exploit, maneuver. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to influence, manage, use, or control to one’s advantage by artful or indirect means”: manipulates people into helping him; exploiting her friends; maneuvering to gain an edge over their corporate competitors. See also Synonyms at handle ma·nip·u·la·tion (mə-nīp'yə-lā'shən) n. 1. a. The act or practice of manipulating. b. The state of being manipulated. 2. Shrewd or devious management, especially for one’s own advantage. [French, from manipule, handful, as of grain, from Latin manipulus, sheaf, handful : manus, hand; see man⁻² in Appendix + -pulus, of uncertain sense perhaps akin to plēre, to fill; see COMPLETE.]

Man·i·to·ba (mǎn'ī-tō'bə) Abbr. MB, Man. A province of south-central Canada. It was admitted to the confederation in 1870. Originally part of a 1670 grant to the Hudson's Bay Company, it was largely settled by immigrants in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Winnipeg is the capital and the largest city. Population, 1,026,241. —Man'·i·to'ban adj. & n.

Manitoba, Lake. A lake of southern Manitoba, Canada. It is a remnant of the glacial age Lake Agassiz.

man·i·tou or man·i·tu (mǎn'ī-tōō') also man·i·to (-tō') n. pl. man·i·tous or man·i·tus also man·i·tos. 1. In Algonquian religious belief, a supernatural power that permeates the world, possessed in varying degrees by both spiritual and human beings. 2. A deity or spirit. [French, from Ojibwa manitoo.]

Man·i·tou·lin Islands (mǎn'ī-tōō'līn ī'ləndz) A group of islands of southern Ontario, Canada, in northern Lake Huron. The principal island, Manitoulin, is the largest lake island in the world.

Man·i·to·woc (mǎn'ī-tə-wōk') A city of eastern Wisconsin on Lake Michigan north of Sheboygan. Its shipbuilding industry dates from the 1840's. Population, 32,520.

Ma·ni·za·les (mǎn'ī-zä'līs, -zäl'īs, mä'nē-sä'lēs) A city of west-central Colombia west of Bogotá. It is a commercial center in an important coffee-producing region. Population, 275,220.

Man·ka·to (mǎn-kā'tō) A city of southern Minnesota south-southwest of Minneapolis. It is a trade and processing center in a farm and dairy region. Population, 31,477.

man·kind (mǎn'kīnd') n. 1. The human race; humankind. 2. Men as opposed to women.

man·like (mǎn'lik') adj. 1. Resembling a human being. 2. Belonging to or befitting a man. See Synonyms at male.

man·ly (mǎn'lē) adj. man·li·er, man·li·est. 1. Having qualities traditionally attributed to a man. 2. Belonging to or befitting a man; masculine. See Synonyms at male. — adv. In a manly manner. —man'li·ness n.

man·made or man·made (mǎn'mād') adj. Made by human beings rather than occurring in nature; synthetic: man-made fibers; a manmade lake.

Mann (mǎn), Horace. 1796-1859. American educator who as the first secretary of the Massachusetts Board of Education (1837-1848) introduced reforms and regulations that greatly influenced American public education.

Mann (mǎn, män), Thomas. 1875-1955. German writer whose fascination with the artist's role in society and concern for the intellectual and spiritual well-being of Germany permeate his works, including Death in Venice (1912) and The Magic Mountain (1924). He won the 1929 Nobel Prize for literature.

man·na (măn'ə) n. 1. Bible. In the Old Testament, the food miraculously provided for the Israelites in the wilderness during their flight from Egypt. 2. Spiritual nourishment of divine origin. 3. Something of value that a person receives unexpectedly. 4. The dried exudate of certain plants, as that of the Mediterranean ash tree, formerly used as a laxative. 5. A sweet granular substance excreted on the leaves of plants by certain insects, especially aphids, and often harvested by ants. [Middle English, from Old English, from Late Latin, from Greek, from Aramaic mannâ, from Hebrew mān.]

man·nan (măn'ăn', -ən) n. Any of a group of plant polysaccharides that are polymers of mannose. [MANN(OSE) + -AN².]

Man·nar (mə-năr'), Gulf of. An inlet of the Indian Ocean between southern India and Sri Lanka. It has important pearl fisheries.

manned (mănd) adj. Transporting, operated by, or performed by a human being: a manned spacecraft; several manned lunar landings.

man·ne·quin (măn'ī-kĭn) n. 1. A life-size full or partial representation of the human body, used for the fitting or displaying of clothes; a dummy. 2. A jointed model of the human body used by artists, especially to demonstrate the arrangement of drapery. Also called lay figure 3. One who models clothes; a model. [French, from Old French, little man, figurine, from Middle Dutch mannekijn. See MANIKIN.]

WORD HISTORY: A department store mannequin is often not a man and often not little, yet mannequin goes back to the Middle Dutch word mannekijn, the diminutive form of man. Of course we must consider the fact that man in Dutch, as in English, has often been used to mean “person.” As for the size of a mannequin, the Middle Dutch word could mean “dwarf” but in Modern Dutch developed the specialized sense of “an artist’s jointed model.” This was the sense in which we adopted the word (first recorded in 1570), another term like easel and landscape that was taken over from the terminology of Dutch painters of the time. The word borrowed from Dutch now has the form manikin. We later adopted the French version of the Dutch word as well, giving English mannequin. Mannequin is considered to be first recorded in a dictionary published from 1730 to 1736 or in 1902, depending on whether one regards early forms showing French influence as variants of manikin or as representations of a new word. In any event, mannequin is now the form most commonly encountered and the one commonly used for a department store dummy as well as a live model.

man·ner (măn'ər) n. 1. A way of doing something or the way in which a thing is done or happens. See Synonyms at method. 2. A way of acting; bearing or behavior. See Synonyms at bearing. 3. manners. a. The socially correct way of acting; etiquette. b. The prevailing customs, social conduct, and norms of a specific society, period, or group, especially as the subject of a literary work.

4. Practice, style, execution, or method in the arts: This fresco is typical of the painter's early manner. 5. a. Kind; sort: What manner of person is she? b. Kinds; sorts: saw all manner of people at the mall. —idioms. in a manner of speaking.

In a way; so to speak. to the manner born. Accustomed to a position, custom, or lifestyle from or as if from birth. [Middle English manere, from Old French maniere, from feminine of manier, handmade, skillful, from Vulgar Latin manuārius*, convenient, handy, from Latin, of the hand, from manus, hand. See man⁻² in Appendix.]

man·nered (măn'ərd) adj. 1. Having manners of a specific kind: ill-mannered children. 2. a. Having or showing a certain manner: a mild-mannered supervisor. b. Artificial or affected: mannered speech. 3. Of, relating to, or exhibiting mannerisms.

Man·ner·heim (măn'ər-hīm', mä'nər-hām'), Baron Carl Gustaf Emil von. 1867-1951. Finnish soldier and politician who fortified the Finnish-Soviet border (1931-1939), led a valiant defense against the Soviet offensive of 1939, and served as president of Finland (1944-1946).

man·ner·ism (măn'ə-rīz'əm) n. 1. A distinctive behavioral trait; an idiosyncrasy. 2. Exaggerated or affected style or habit, as in dress or speech. See Synonyms at affectation. 3. Mannerism. An artistic style of the late 16th century characterized by distortion of elements such as scale and perspective.

—man'ner·ist n. —man'ner·is'tic adj.

man·ner·ly (măn'ər-lē) adj. Having or showing good manners. See Synonyms at polite. — adv. With good manners; politely. —man'ner·li·ness n.

Man·nes (măn'is), Clara Damrosch. 1869-1948. Polish-born American musician who with her husband David Mannes (1866-1959) founded and directed (1916-1948) the Mannes College of Music in New York City.

Mann·heim (măn'hīm', măn'-) A city of southwest Germany at the confluence of the Rhine and Neckar rivers north-northwest of Stuttgart. First mentioned in the 8th century, it was chartered in 1607 and became an important musical and theatrical center in the 18th century. Population, 295,178.

man·ni·kin (măn'ī-kīn) n. Variant of manikin.

Man·ning (măn'ing), Henry Edward. 1808-1892. British cleric who became archbishop of Westminster in 1865 and cardinal in 1875. He intervened to settle the 1889 London dock strike.

man·nish (măn'ish) adj. 1. Of, characteristic of, or natural to a man.

2. Resembling, imitative of, or suggestive of a man rather than a woman: a man-nish stride. See Synonyms at male. —man'nish·ly adv. —man'nish·ness n.

man·nite (măn'it') n. Mannitol. [MANN(A) + -ITE¹.]

man·ni·tol (măn'ī-tôl', -tôl', -tôl') n. A white, crystalline, water-soluble, slightly sweet alcohol, C₆H₈(OH)₆, used as a dietary supplement and dietetic sweetener and in medical tests of renal function. [mannit(e) + -OL¹.]

man·nose (măn'ôs') n. A monosaccharide, C₆H₁₂O₆, obtained from mannan or by the oxidation of mannitol. [MANN(A) + -OSE².]

ma·no (mä'nō) n. pl. ma·nos. A hand-held stone or roller for grinding corn or other grains on a metate. [Spanish mano, from Latin manus, hand. See MANNER.]

ma·no a ma·no (mä'nō ä mä'nō) n. pl. ma·nos a ma·nos (mä'nōs ä mä'nōs). 1. A bullfight in which two rival matadors take turns fighting several bulls each. 2. A face-to-face confrontation or competitive struggle: a mano a mano between the presidential candidates. — adj. Being or suggestive of a face-to-face encounter or contest: a mano a mano duel between golf pros. — adv. In direct competition: an industry gearing up to go mano a mano with a rival. [Spanish : mano, hand + a, to + mano, hand.]

ma·noeu·vre (mə-nōō'vær, -nyōō'-) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of maneuver.

man of God (măn üv göd) n. pl. men of God. A clergyman.

man of letters (măn üv lět'ærz) n. pl. men of letters. A man who is devoted to literary or scholarly pursuits.

man of the cloth (măn üv thē klôth) n. pl. men of the cloth. A clergyman.

man of the house (măn üv thē hous) n. pl. men of the house. The primary male member of a household.

man of the world (măn üv thē wûrld) n. pl. men of the world. A sophisticated, worldly man.

man-of-war (măn'ə-wôr') n. pl. men-of-war (mën'-). 1. See warship. 2. A Portuguese man-of-war.

Ma·no·le·te (mä'nō-lä'tä, -lět'tè), Real name Manuel Rodríguez Sánchez. 1917-1947. Spanish bullfighter. Noted for his economy of movement, he was a leading matador of his time but was fatally gored by a bull in 1947.

ma·nom·e·ter (mä-nöm'ī-tər) n. 1. An instrument used for measuring the pressure of liquids and gases. 2. A sphygmomanometer. [Greek manos, sparse; see men-⁴ in Appendix + -METER.] — man'o·met'ric (măn'ə-mět'rik), man'o·met'ri·cal adj. — man'o·met'ri·cal·ly adv. — ma·nom'e·try *n.

man on horseback (măn öñ hōrs'băk') n. pl. men on horseback. 1. A man, usually a military leader, whose popular influence and power may afford him the position of dictator, as in a time of political crisis. 2. A dictator.

man·or (măn'ər) n. 1. a. A landed estate. b. The main house on an estate; a mansion. 2. A tract of land in certain North American colonies with hereditary rights granted to the proprietor by royal charter. 3. a. The district over which a lord had domain and could exercise certain rights and privileges in medieval western Europe. b. The lord's residence in such a district. [Middle English, from manor house (mănr'ər hous) n. 1. The main house on an estate. 2. The house of the lord of a manor.

Old French maneir, manoir, to dwell, manor, from Latin manēre, to remain. See men-³ in Appendix.] —ma-no/ri-al (mə-nôr'/ē-əl, -nôr'-) adj.

ma-no-ri-al-ism (mə-nôr'/ē-ə-lîz'əm, -nôr'-) n. The medieval manorial system or its precepts and practices.

man-o'-war bird (mănr'ə-wôr' bûrd) n. See frigate bird.

man-pow-er (mănr'pou'ər) n. 1. The power of human physical strength. 2. Power in terms of the workers available to a particular group or required for a particular task.

man-qué (mănr-kā') adj. Unfulfilled or frustrated in the realization of one's ambitions or capabilities: an artist manqué; a writer manqué. [French, from past participle of manquer, to fail, from Old French, from Old Italian mancare, from manco, lacking, from Latin mancus, maimed, infirm. See man-² in Appendix.]

Man-re-sa (mănr-rā'sə, -rě'sä) A city of northeast Spain north-northwest of Barcelona. Metallurgical and textile industries are important to its economy. Population, 66,951.

man-rope (mănr'röp') n. Nautical. A rope rigged as a handrail on a gangplank or ladder.

man-sard (mănr'särd') n. 1. A roof having two slopes on all four sides, with the lower slope almost vertical and the upper almost horizontal. 2. The upper story formed by the lower slope of a mansard roof. [French mansarde, after François Mansart (1598-1666), French architect.] —man'sard'ed adj.

manse (mäns) n. 1. A cleric's house and land, especially the residence of a Presbyterian minister. 2. A large, stately residence. 3. Archaic. The dwellings belonging to a householder. [Middle English manss, a manor house, from Medieval Latin mānsa, a dwelling, from Latin, feminine past participle of manēre, to dwell, remain. See men-³ in Appendix.]

man-ser-vant (mănr'sûr'vənt) n. pl. men-ser-vants (mĕnr'sûr'vənts). A male servant, especially a valet.

Mans-field (mänz'fēld') 1. A municipal borough of central England north of Nottingham. It is an industrial center in a coal-mining region. Population, 99,900. 2. A town of northeast Connecticut east-northeast of Hartford. It is an agricultural and manufacturing community. Population, 21,103. 3. A city of north-central Ohio west-southwest of Akron. First surveyed in 1808, it manufactures a wide variety of products. Population, 50,627.

Mans-field (mänz'fēld'), Katherine. 1888-1923. New Zealand-born British writer known for her short stories. Her collections include Bliss (1920) and The Dove's Nest (1923).

Mansfield, Mount. The highest peak, 1,339.9 m (4,393 ft), of the Green Mountains in north-central Vermont. It is a winter sports area.

man·sion (män/'shən) n. 1. A large, stately house. 2. A manor house.

3. Archaic. a. A dwelling; an abode. b. mansions. A separate dwelling in a large house or structure. 4. a. See house (n., sense 10). b. Any one of the 28 divisions of the moon's monthly path. [Middle English, a dwelling, from Old French, from Latin mānsiō, mānsiōn-, from mānsus, past participle of manēre, to dwell, remain. See men-³ in Appendix.]

man-sized (män/'sizd') also man-size (-siz') adj. 1. Informal. Very large: a man-sized piece of pie. 2. Calling for the strength traditionally attributed to a man: a man-sized job.

man-slaugh·ter (män/'slō'tər) n. Law. The unlawful killing of one human being by another without express or implied intent to do injury.

man-slay·er (män/'slā'ər) n. One, such as a person or an animal, that kills a human being.

Man·son (män/'sən), Sir Patrick. 1844-1922. British parasitologist noted for advances in tropical medicine, such as the assertion that mosquitoes transmit malaria (1877).

man·sue·tude (män/'swī-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. Gentleness of manner; mildness. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin mānsuētūdō, from mānsuētus, past participle of mānsuēscere, to tame : manus, hand; see man-² in Appendix + suē-scere, to accustom; see s(w)e- in Appendix.]

Man·sur (män-sōōr'), al-. 712?-775. Arab caliph (754-775) who founded Baghdad in 764.

man·ta (män/'tə) n. 1. A rough-textured cotton fabric or blanket made and used in Spanish America and the southwest United States. 2. Any of several rays of the family Mobulidae, inhabiting tropical and subtropical seas and having a large flattened body, winglike pectoral fins, a whiplike tail, and two hornlike fins that project forward from the head. In this sense, also called devilfish, manta ray, sea devil. [Spanish, blanket, manta (from its blanketlike shape), alteration of manto, cloak, perhaps from Latin mantellum, mantēlum.]

man-tai·lored (män/'tā'lərd) adj. Tailored in the traditionally simple, unadorned style of men's clothing: man-tailored women's apparel.

manta ray (män/'tə rā) n. See manta (n., sense 2).

man·teau (män-tō') n. pl. man-teaus (-tōz') or man-teaux (-tō'). A loose cloak or mantle. [French, from Old French mantel. See MANTLE.]

Man·te·ca (män-tē'kə) A city of central California south of Stockton. It is a trade and processing center in a diversified agricultural area. Population, 40,773.

Man·te·gna (män-tān'yə, -tē'nyä), Andrea. 1431-1506. Italian painter and engraver who was a pioneer in the Renaissance style. Among his works are the altarpiece for the Church of San Zeno in Verona (1456-1459) and the wedding chamber at the Palazzo Ducale in Mantua (1474).

man·tel also man·tle (mä'n'tl) n. 1. An ornamental facing around a fireplace. 2. The protruding shelf over a fireplace. In this sense, also called Regional. fire-board, mantelpiece, mantelshelf. [Middle English mantel, as in mantiltre, beam over fireplace opening (perhaps from its use for drying wet clothing). See MANTLETREE.]

man·tel·et (mä'n'tl-ĭt, mänt'lĭt) n. 1. A short cape. 2. Also mant·let (mänt'lĭt). A mobile screen or shield formerly used to protect besieging soldiers. [Middle English, from Old French, diminutive of mantel, mantle. See MANTLE.]

man·tel·let·ta (mä'n'tə-lĕt'ə) n. A knee-length, sleeveless vestment worn by Roman Catholic prelates. [Italian, probably from Medieval Latin mantellĕtum, diminutive of Latin mantellum, mantle.]

man·tel·piece (mä'n'tl-pĕs') n. See mantel (n., sense 2).

man·tel·shelf (mä'n'tl-shĕlf') n. See mantel (n., sense 2).

man·tel·tree (mä'n'tl-trĕ') n. A beam, a stone, or an arch that functions as a lintel on a fireplace, supporting the masonry above. [Middle English mantiltre: mantle, mantle; see MANTLE + tre, beam; see TREE.]

man·tes (mä'n'tĕz) n. A plural of mantis.

man·tic (mä'n'tĭk) adj. Of, relating to, or having the power of divination; prophetic. [Greek mantikos, from mantis, seer. See men⁻¹ in Appendix.]

—man'tic·al·ly adv.

man·ti·core (mä'n'tĭ-kōr', -kōr') n. A legendary monster having the head of a man, the body of a lion, and the tail of a dragon or scorpion. [Middle English manticores, from Latin mantichōra, from Greek mantikhōras, variant of martiokhōras, from Old Iranian martiya-khvāra-, man-eater : martiya-, man; akin to Old Persian martiya-, man; see mer- in Appendix + khvāra-*, eater; akin to Avestan khvar-, to eat; see swel- in Appendix.]

man·tid (mä'n'tĭd) n. See mantis. [From New Latin Mantidae, family name, from Mantis, type genus, from Greek mantis, seer. See MANTIS.]

man·til·la (mä'n-tĕ'yə, -tĭl'ə) n. 1. A lightweight lace or silk scarf worn over the head and shoulders, often over a high comb, by women in Spain and Latin America. 2. A short cloak or cape. [Spanish, diminutive of manta, cape. See MANTA.]

Man·ti·ne·a (mä'n'tə-nĕ'ə) An ancient city of southern Greece in the eastern Peloponnesus. Thebes defeated Sparta here in 362 B.C.

man·tis (mä'n'tĭs) n. pl. man·tis·es or man·tes (-tĕz). Any of various predatory insects of the family Mantidae, primarily tropical but including a few Temperate Zone species, usually pale green and having two pairs of walking legs and powerful, grasping forelimbs. The mantis feeds on live insects, including others of its own kind. Also called mantid [Greek mantis, seer. See men⁻¹ in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: The female mantis has the habit of eating the male after mating. In spite of such behavior the mantis is graced with a religious name. Man- tis is from the Greek word mantis, meaning “prophet, seer.” The Greeks, who made the connection between the upraised front legs of a mantis waiting for its prey and the hands of a prophet in prayer, used the name mantis to mean “the praying mantis.” This word and sense were picked up in Modern Latin and from there came into English, being first recorded in 1658. Once we know the origin of the term mantis, we realize that the species names praying mantis and Mantis religiosa are a bit redundant. Two other names of this sort that have been used for mantises are praying locust and orator mantis. To understand the latter, we must keep in mind the obsolete sense of orator, “one who makes a prayer or petition.”

mantis crab (măn'tis krăb) n. See squilla.

man-tis-sa (măn-tis'ə) n. Mathematics. The decimal part of a logarithm. In the logarithm 2.95424, the mantissa is 0.95424. [Latin, makeweight, perhaps of Etruscan origin.]

mantis shrimp (măn'tis shrĭmp) n. See squilla.

man-tle (măn'tl) n. 1. A loose, sleeveless coat worn over outer garments; a cloak. 2. Something that covers, envelops, or conceals: “On a summer night... a mantle of dust hangs over the gravel roads” (John Dollard). 3. Variant of mantel. 4. The outer covering of a wall. 5. A zone of hot gases around a flame. 6. A device in gas lamps consisting of a sheath of threads that gives off brilliant illumination when heated by the flame. 7. Anatomy. The cerebral cortex. 8. Geology. The layer of the earth between the crust and the core. 9. The outer wall and casing of a blast furnace above the hearth. 10. The wings, shoulder feathers, and back of a bird when differently colored from the rest of the body. 11. Zoology. a. A fold or pair of folds of the body wall that lines the shell and secretes the substance that forms the shell in mollusks and brachiopods. b. The soft outer wall lining the shell of a tunicate or barnacle. — v. man-tled, man-ting, man-tles. — v. tr. To cover with or as if with a mantle; conceal. See Synonyms at clothe. — v. intr. 1. To spread or become extended over a surface. 2. To become covered with a coating, as scum or froth on the surface of a liquid. 3. To be overspread by blushes or colors: a face that was mantled in joy. [Middle English, from Old English mentel, and from Old French mantel both from Latin mantellum.]

Man-tle (măn'tl), Mickey Charles. 1931-1995. American baseball player. One of the greatest sluggers of the game, he played center field for the New York Yankees (1951-1968) and hit 536 home runs.

mantle rock (măn'tl rök) n. See regolith.

mant-let (mănt'lĭt) n. Variant of mantelet (n., sense 2).

man-to-man (măn'tə-măn') adj. 1. Marked by forthrightness and honesty: had a man-to-man talk about the facts of life. 2. Sports. Of, relating to, or being a system of defense in which a defensive player guards a specific offensive player.

Man·toux test (mǎn-tōō' tĕst, mǎn-) n. A tuberculin test in which a small amount of tuberculin is injected under the skin. [After Charles Mantoux (1877-1947), French physician.]

man·tra (mǎn'trə, mŭn'-) n. Hinduism. A sacred verbal formula repeated in prayer, meditation, or incantation, such as an invocation of a god, a magic spell, or a syllable or portion of scripture containing mystical potentialities. [Sanskrit mantraḥ. See men⁻¹ in Appendix.] —man'tric adj.

man·trap (mǎn'trăp') n. 1. A trap set to catch trespassers or poachers.

2. Slang. A woman considered dangerously seductive and scheming.

man·tu·a (mǎn'chōō-ə, -tōō-ə) n. A loose gown, open in front to reveal an underskirt, worn by European women in the 17th and 18th centuries. [Alteration (influenced by Mantua), of MANTEAU.]

Man·tu·a (mǎn'chōō-ə, -tōō-ə) A city of northern Italy south-southwest of Verona. Originally an Etruscan settlement, it was ceded to Austria in 1714 and was finally returned to Italy in 1866. Population, 60,932. —Man'tu·an adj. & n.

man·u·al (mǎn'yōō-əl) adj. 1. a. Of or relating to the hands: manual skill.

b. Done by, used by, or operated with the hands. c. Employing human rather than mechanical energy: manual labor. 2. Of, relating to, or resembling a small reference book. — n. Abbr. m., man. 1. A small reference book, especially one giving instructions. 2. Music. A keyboard of an organ played with the hands.

3. A machine operated by hand. 4. Prescribed movements in the handling of a weapon, especially a rifle: the manual of arms. [Middle English, from Old French manuel, from Latin manuālis, from manus, hand. See MANUS.] —man'u·al·ly adv.

manual alphabet (mǎn'yōō-əl əl'fə-bĕt') n. An alphabet used for communication by hearing-impaired people in which finger positions represent the letters.

manual training (mǎn'yōō-əl trā'nĭng) n. A course of training to develop manual dexterity in practical arts, such as woodworking or handcrafts.

ma·nu·bri·um (mə-nōō'brĕ-əm, -nyōō'-) n. pl. ma·nu·bri·a (-brĕ-ə). 1. A body part or process shaped like a handle. Also called presternum 2. a. The broad upper division of the sternum with which the clavicle and first two ribs articulate. b. The long tapering process of the malleus attached to the central portion of the eardrum. [Latin, handle, from manus, hand. See man⁻² in Appendix.]

manuf. abbr. Manufacture.

manufac. abbr. Manufacture.

man·u·fac·to·ry (mǎn'yə-făk'tə-rĕ) n. pl. man·u·fac·to·ries. A factory or manufacturing plant. [Probably MANUFACT(URE) + -ORY.]

man·u·fac·ture (mǎn'yə-făk'chər) v. man·u·fac·tured, man·u·fac·tur·ing, man·u·fac·tures. — v. tr. 1. a. To make or process (a raw material) into a finished product, especially by means of a large-scale industrial operation. b. To make or process (a product), especially with the use of industrial machines.

2. To create, produce, or turn out in a mechanical manner: “His books seem to have been manufactured rather than composed” (Dwight Macdonald). 3. To concoct or invent; fabricate: manufacture an excuse. — v. intr. To make or process goods, especially in large quantities and by means of industrial machines. — n.

Abbr. manuf., manufac., mfg., mfr. 1. a. The act, craft, or process of manufacturing products, especially on a large scale. b. An industry in which mechanical power and machinery are employed. 2. A product that is manufactured.

3. The making or producing of something. [From French, manufacture, from Old French, from Medieval Latin manūfactūra*: Latin manū, ablative of manus, hand; see man-² in Appendix + Latin factūra, working of a metal from factus, past participle of facere, to make. See dhē- in Appendix.] — man’u·fac’- tur·a·ble adj. — man’u·fac’tur·al adj. — man’u·fac’tur·ing n.

man·u·fac’tured gas (mǎn’yə-fǎk’chərd gäs) n. A gaseous fuel made from soft coal or various petroleum products.

manufactured home (mǎn’yə-fǎk’chərd hōm) n. 1. A prefabricated house that is put together in standardized sections. 2. See mobile home.

manufactured housing (mǎn’yə-fǎk’chərd hou’zɪŋ) n. Manufactured homes considered as a group.

man·u·fac’tur·er (mǎn’yə-fǎk’chər-ər) n. Abbr. mfr. A person, an enterprise, or an entity that manufactures something.

man·u·mit (mǎn’yə-mīt’) v. tr. man·u·mit·ted, man·u·mit·ting, man·u·mits. To free from slavery or bondage; emancipate. [Middle English manumitten, from Old French manumitter, from Latin manūmittere: manū, ablative of manus, hand; see man-² in Appendix + mittere, to send from.]

— man’u·mis’sion (-mīsh’ən) n. — man’u·mit’ter n.

ma·nure (mə-nōör’, -nyōör’) n. Material, especially barnyard or stable dung, often with discarded animal bedding, used to fertilize soil. — v. tr. ma·nured, ma·nur·ing, ma·nures. To fertilize (soil) by applying material such as barnyard dung. [From Middle English manuren, to cultivate land, from Anglo-Norman mainouwerer, from Vulgar Latin manūoperāre*, to work with the hands: Latin manū, ablative of manus, hand; see man-² in Appendix + Latin operārī, to work; see op- in Appendix.] — ma·nur’er n. — ma·nu’ri·al adj.

ma·nus (mä’nəs, mä’-) n. pl. manus. The distal part of the forelimb of a vertebrate, including the wrist and hand or the carpus and forefoot. [Latin, hand. See man-² in Appendix.]

man·u·script (mǎn’yə-skript’) n. Abbr. MS., MS, ms., ms 1. A book, document, or other composition written by hand. 2. A typewritten or handwritten version of a book, an article, a document, or other work, especially the author’s own copy, prepared and submitted for publication in print. 3. Handwriting. —

n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: manuscript delivery; manuscript editing. [From Medieval Latin manūscriptum, from neuter of manūscriptus, handwritten : Latin manū, ablative of manus, hand; see man-² in Appendix + Latin scrīptus, past participle of scrībere, to write; see skribh- in Appendix.]

Ma·nu·ti·us (mə-nōō'shəs, -shē-əs, -nyōō'-), Aldus. 1450-1515. Italian scholar and printer who established (c. 1498) the Aldine Press in Venice to publish Greek and Latin classics.

man·ward (männ'wərd) adv. & adj. Of, at, or toward humankind.

—man'wards adv.

man·wise (männ'wīz') adv. In a manner characteristic of human beings.

Manx (mängks) adj. Of or relating to the Isle of Man or its people, language, or culture. — n. pl. Manx. 1. The people of the Isle of Man. 2. The extinct Goidelic language of the Manx. 3. A Manx cat. [Alteration of Old Norse Mansk*, from Mon, Man-, Isle of Man.]

Manx cat (mängks kät) or manx cat n. Any of a breed of the domestic cat having short hair, usually solid color, and an internal vestigial tail.

Manx·man (mängks'mən) n. A man who is a native or inhabitant of the Isle of Man.

Manx·wom·an (mängks'wōōm'-ən) n. A woman who is a native or inhabitant of the Isle of Man.

man·y (männ'ē) adj. more (môr, mōr), most (mōst). 1. Being one of a large, indefinite number; numerous: many a child; many another day. 2. Amounting to or consisting of a large, indefinite number: many friends. — n. (used with a pl. verb). 1. A large, indefinite number: A good many of the workers had the flu. 2. The majority of the people; the masses: "The many fail, the one succeeds" (Tennyson). — pron. (used with a pl. verb). A large number of persons or things: "For many are called, but few are chosen" (Matthew 22:14). —idiom. as many. The same number of: moved three times in as many years. [Middle English, from Old English manig. See menegh- in Appendix.]

man·year (männ'yîr') n. A unit measuring the work of one person in a year, based on a standard number of man-days.

man·y·fold (männ'ē-fōld') adv. By many times: The state's population has increased manyfold.

man·y·plies (männ'yī-plīz') n. See omasum.

man·y·sid·ed (männ'ē-sī'dīd) adj. 1. Having many sides. 2. Having many aspects, talents, or interests. See Synonyms at versatile. —man'y-sid'ed-ness n.

Man·za·nil·la (männ'zə-nē'yə, -nīl'ə) n. A pale, very dry sherry from Spain. [Spanish, diminutive of manzana, apple. See MANCHINEEL.]

man·za·ni·ta (männ'zə-nē'tə) n. Any of several evergreen shrubs or small trees of the genus Arctostaphylos of the Pacific coast of North America, especially A.

manzanita, bearing white or pink flowers in drooping panicles and producing red berrylike drupes. [Spanish, diminutive of manzana, apple. See MANCHINEEL.]

Man-zo-ni (män-zō'nē, -dzō'-), Alessandro. 1785-1873. Italian writer best known for his romantic novel The Betrothed (1825-1827), considered one of the greatest works of modern Italian fiction.

MAO abbr. Monoamine oxidase.

MAOI abbr. Monoamine oxidase inhibitor.

Mao-ism (mou'iz'əm) n. Marxism-Leninism developed in China chiefly by Mao Zedong. —Mao'ist adj. & n.

Mao jacket (mou jäk'it) n. A plain, high-collared, shirtlike jacket customarily worn by Mao Zedong and the people of China during his regime.

Mao-ri (mou'rē) n. pl. Maori or Mao-ris. 1. A member of a people of New Zealand, of Polynesian-Melanesian descent. 2. The Austronesian language of the Maori. — adj. Of or relating to the Maori or their language or culture.

Mao suit (mou sōt) n. An outfit consisting of a Mao jacket and loose trousers, worn especially in China.

mao-tai (mou'tī') n. A clear, very strong Chinese liquor distilled from sorghum. [After Mao-Tai, a town of Guizhou province, China.]

Mao Ze-dong (mou' dzə'dōng') also Mao Tse-tung (tsə'-tōōng'), 1893-1976. Chinese Communist leader and theorist. A founder of the Chinese Communist Party (1921), he led the Long March (1934-1935) and proclaimed the People's Republic of China in 1949. As party chairman and the country's first head of state (1949-1959) he initiated the Great Leap Forward and the founding of communes. He continued as party chairman after 1959 and was a leading figure in the Cultural Revolution (1966-1969). In the 1970's he consolidated his political power and established ties with the West.

map (măp) n. 1. a. A representation, usually on a plane surface, of a region of the earth or heavens. b. Something that suggests such a representation, as in clarity of representation. 2. Mathematics. The correspondence of one or more elements in one set to one or more elements in the same set or another set. 3. Slang. The human face. 4. Genetics. A genetic map. — v. tr. mapped, map-ping, maps. 1. a. To make a map of. b. To depict as if on a map: Grief was mapped on his face. 2. To explore or make a survey of (a region) for the purpose of making a map. 3. To plan or delineate, especially in detail; arrange: mapping out her future. 4. Genetics. To locate (a gene or DNA sequence) in a specific region of a chromosome in relation to known genes or DNA sequences. 5. Mathematics. To establish a mapping of (an element or a set). —idioms. put on the map. To make well-known, prominent, or famous. wipe off the map. To destroy completely; annihilate. [From Middle English mapemounde, from Old French mape-mond, from Medieval Latin mappa (mundi), map (of the world), from Latin, napkin, cloth (on which maps were drawn), perhaps of Carthaginian origin.]

—map'pa·ble adj. —map'per n.

MAP abbr. Modified American plan.

ma·ple (mā'pəl) n. 1. Any of numerous deciduous trees or shrubs of the genus Acer of the North Temperate Zone, having opposite, usually palmate leaves and long-winged fruits borne in pairs. 2. The wood of any of these trees, especially the hard, close-grained wood of the sugar maple, often used for furniture and flooring. 3. The flavor of the concentrated sap of the sugar maple. [Middle English, from Old English mapul-, as in mapultrēo.]

Ma·ple Grove (mā'pəl grōv) A city of southeast Minnesota, a suburb of Minneapolis. Population, 38,736.

Maple Heights (mā'pəl hīts) A city of northeast Ohio, a residential suburb of Cleveland. Population, 27,089.

Maple Shade (mā'pəl shād) A community of south-central New Jersey east of Camden. It is a manufacturing center in a truck-farming region. Population, 19,211.

maple sugar (mā'pəl shōög'ər) n. A sugar made by boiling down maple syrup.

maple syrup (mā'pəl sīr'əp) n. 1. A sweet syrup made from the sap of the sugar maple. 2. Syrup made from various sugars and flavored with maple syrup or artificial maple flavoring.

Ma·ple·wood (mā'pəl-wōod') 1. A city of southeast Minnesota, a residential suburb of St. Paul. Population, 26,990. 2. A community of northeast New Jersey east of Newark. It is mainly residential. Population, 21,756.

map·mak·er (măp'mā'kər) n. A person who makes maps; a cartographer.
—map'mak·ing (-māk'ĭng) n.

map·ping (măp'ĭng) n. 1. The act or process of making a map.

2. Mathematics. A rule of correspondence established between sets that associates each element of a set with an element in the same or another set.

Map·ple·thorpe (mā'pəl-thôrp', -thôrp'), Robert. 1946-1989. American artist whose controversial single-image black-and-white photographs often depict flowers, the human nude, and male homoeroticism.

Ma·pu·to (mə-pōō'tō) Formerly Lou·ren·ço Mar·ques (lə-rĕn'sō măr'kĕs, lô-rĕn'sōō măr'kĕsh). The capital and largest city of Mozambique, in the extreme southern part of the country on the Indian Ocean. Founded in the late 18th century, it was renamed (1976) after the country gained its independence (1975). Population, 755,300.

ma·quette (mă-kĕt') n. A usually small model of an intended work, such as a sculpture or piece of architecture. [French, from Italian macchietta, sketch, diminutive of macchia, spot, from Latin macula.]

ma·qui (mä'kē) n. pl. ma·quis. 1. A Chilean evergreen shrub (Aristotelia chilensis) bearing edible purple berries. 2. A Chilean wine made from the fruit of this plant. [Spanish, of Araucanian origin.]

ma·qui·la (mə-kē'lə, mä-kē'lä) n. A maquiladora.

ma·qui·la·do·ra (mä-kē'lä-dô'rä) n. An assembly plant in Mexico, especially one along the border between the United States and Mexico, to which foreign materials and parts are shipped and from which the finished product is returned to the original market. [American Spanish, place where the miller's fee is paid, maquiladora, from Spanish maquila, portion received by the miller in return for milling one's grain, from Old Spanish, from Arabic makīla, measure, from kāla, to measure.]

ma·quil·lage (mä'kē-äzh') n. Cosmetic or theatrical makeup. [French, from maquiller, to apply makeup, from Old French macquiller, to work, from Old North French maquier, from Middle Dutch maken, to make. See mag- in Appendix.]

ma·quis (mä-kē') n. pl. maquis. 1. A dense growth of small trees and shrubs in the Mediterranean area. 2. Maquis. a. A member of the French underground organization that fought against the German occupation forces during World War II; a member of the Resistance. Also called Maquisard b. This French underground organization. [French, from Italian macchie, pl. of macchia, thicket, spot, from Latin macula, spot.]

Ma·qui·sard (mäk'ē-zärd', -zär') n. See maquis (n., sense 2a). [French, from maquis, the French underground. See MAQUIS.]

mar (mär) v. tr. marred, mar·ring, mars. 1. To inflict damage, especially disfiguring damage, on. 2. To impair the soundness, perfection, or integrity of; spoil. See Synonyms at injure. — n. A disfiguring mark; a blemish. [Middle English merren, from Old English mierran, merran, to impede.]

mar. abbr. 1. Maritime. 2. Married.

Mar. or Mar abbr. March.

ma·ra (mə-rä') n. Any of various long-eared and long-legged cavies of the genus Dolichotis, inhabiting the scrub desert and grasslands of central and southern Argentina. Also called Patagonian hare [American Spanish mará, perhaps of Araucanian origin.]

mar·a·bou also mar·a·bout (mä'rə-bō') n. 1. Any of several large African storks of the genus Leptoptilos that scavenge for carrion and that have a soft white down on the underside. Also called adjutant, adjutant stork. 2. a. The down of one of these storks or an imitation of it made from other bird feathers. b. A hat or garment trimmed with the down of a stork or an imitation of it. 3. a. A raw silk that can be dyed without being separated from the gum. b. A fabric or an article of apparel made from such silk. [French marabout, Muslim hermit, marabout. See MARABOUT¹.]

mar·a·bout¹ (măř'ə-bōō', -bōōt') n. 1. A Muslim hermit or saint, especially in northern Africa. 2. The tomb of such a hermit or saint. [French marabout, from Portuguese marabuto, from Arabic murābiṭ.]

mar·a·bout² (măř'ə-bōō') n. Variant of marabou.

ma·ra·ca (mə-ră'kə) n. Music. A percussion instrument consisting of a hollow-gourd rattle containing pebbles or beans and often played in pairs. [Portuguese maracá, probably from Tupi.]

Ma·ra·cai·bo (măř'ə-kī'bō, mă'ră-kī'vô) A city of northwest Venezuela south of the Gulf of Venezuela at the outlet of Lake Maracaibo, the largest lake of South America. Founded in 1571, the city is a major port on a dredged channel allowing access for oceangoing vessels. It developed rapidly after the discovery of oil reserves in 1917. Population, 929,000.

Ma·ra·cay (măř'ə-kī') A city of northern Venezuela west-southwest of Caracas. It is a cattle center. Population, 355,000.

Mar·ais des Cygnes (mër' də zēn') A river rising in east-central Kansas and flowing about 241 km (150 mi) generally southeast to the Osage River in western Missouri.

Mar·a·jó (măř'ə-zhō', mă'ră-) An island of northern Brazil in the Amazon delta between the Amazon and Pará rivers. It is noted for its prehistoric mounds.

Ma·ra·ñón (măř'ən-yōn', mă'ră-nyôn') A river flowing about 1,609 km (1,000 mi) from west-central to northeast Peru, where it joins the Ucayali River to form the Amazon.

ma·ran·ta (mə-răn'tə) n. 1. Any of several tropical American plants of the genus Maranta, including the arrowroot, having thin, ovate, usually spotted leaves and irregular flowers. 2. An edible starch made from these plants. [After Bartolomeo Maranta (died 1571), Italian herbalist.]

Ma·raş (mə-răsh') A city of south-central Turkey in the Taurus Mountains northeast of Adana. A Hittite city-state c. 1000 B.C., it was captured by Arabs in A.D. 638 and annexed by the Ottoman Empire in the early 16th century. Population, 178,557.

ma·ras·ca (mə-răs'kə) n. A European cultivar of the sour cherry tree (Prunus cerasus) bearing bitter red fruit from which maraschino is made. [Italian. See MARASCHINO.]

mar·a·schi·no (măř'ə-skē'nō, -shē'-) n. pl. mar·a·schi·nos. A cordial made from the fermented juice and crushed pits of the marasca cherry. [Italian, from marasca, marasca, from amarasca, from amaro, bitter, from Latin amārus.]

maraschino cherry (măř'ə-skē'nō chēr'ē) n. A cherry preserved in a syrup flavored with real or imitation maraschino.

ma·ras·mus (mə-răz'məs) n. Pathology. A progressive wasting of the body, occurring chiefly in young children and associated with insufficient intake or malabsorption of food. [New Latin, from Greek marasmos, from marainein, to waste away. See mer- in Appendix.] —ma·ras'mic adj.

Ma·rat (mə-rä', mä-), Jean Paul. 1743-1793. Swiss-born French revolutionary who founded (1789) L'Ami du Peuple, which supported the French Revolution. He was elected to the National Convention in 1792 but was assassinated in the following year by a Girondist.

Ma·ra·tha also Mah·rat·ta (mə-rä'tə, -rät'ə) n. pl. Maratha or Ma·ra·thas also Mahratta or Ma·rat·tas. A member of a Hindu people inhabiting Maharashtra in west-central India. [Marathi Marāṭhā, from Sanskrit Mahārāṣṭraḥ, Maharashtra.]

Ma·ra·thi also Mah·ra·ti or Mah·rat·ti (mə-rä'tē, -rät'ē) n. The principal Indic language of Maharashtra. [Marathi Marāṭhī, from Sanskrit Mahārāṣṭrī, from Mahārāṣṭraḥ, Maharashtra.]

mar·a·thon (mär'ə-thŏn') n. 1. Sports. a. A cross-country footrace of 26 miles, 385 yards (41.3 kilometers). b. A long-distance race other than a footrace: a swimming marathon. 2. a. A contest of endurance: a dance marathon. b. An event or activity that requires prolonged effort or endurance. [After Marathon (so called because a messenger ran from there to Athens to announce a victory over the Persians in 490 B.C.).]

Mar·a·thon (mär'ə-thŏn') A village and plain of ancient Greece northeast of Athens. It was the site of a major victory over the Persians in 490 B.C.

mar·a·thon·er (mär'ə-thŏn'ər) n. One that participates in a marathon, especially a marathon runner. —mar'a·thon'ing n.

ma·raud (mə-rôd') v. ma·raud·ed, ma·raud·ing, ma·rauds. — v. intr. To rove and raid in search of booty. — v. tr. To raid or pillage for plunder. [French marauder, from maraud, tomcat, vagabond.] —ma·raud'er n.

Mar·bel·la (mär-běl'ə, -vĕ'lyə) A city of southern Spain on the Mediterranean Sea southwest of Málaga. It is a noted tourist resort. Population, 39,000.

mar·ble (mär'bəl) n. 1. a. A metamorphic rock formed by alteration of limestone or dolomite, often irregularly colored by impurities, and used especially in architecture and sculpture. b. A piece of this rock. c. A sculpture made from this rock. 2. Something resembling or suggesting metamorphic rock, as in being very hard, smooth, or cold: a heart of marble; a brow of marble. 3. Games. a. A small hard ball, usually of glass, used in children's games. b. marbles. (used with a sing. verb). Any of various games played with marbles. 4. marbles. (used with a sing. verb). Slang. Common sense; sanity: completely lost his marbles after the stock market crash. 5. Marbling. — v. tr. mar·bled, mar·bling, mar·bles. To mottle and streak (paper, for example) with colors and veins in imitation of marble. — adj. 1. Composed of metamorphic rock: a marble hearth. 2. Resembling metamorphic rock in consistency, texture, venation, color, or coldness. [Middle marble cake (mär'bəl kāk) n. A cake with a streaked or mottled appearance achieved by mixing light and dark batter.

English, from Old French marbre, from Latin marmor, from Greek marmaros.]

—mar'bly adj.

mar·bled (mär'bəld) adj. 1. Made of or covered with marble: a marbled façade. 2. Having a mix of fat and lean: a well-marbled roast of beef.

Mar·ble·head (mär'bəl-hěd', mär'bəl-hěd') A town of northeast Massachusetts northeast of Boston. Founded in the 17th century, it is a boating center and resort. Population, 19,971.

mar·ble·ize (mär'bə-līz') v. tr. mar·ble·ized, mar·ble·iz·ing, mar·ble·iz·es. To marble.

mar·ble·wood (mär'bəl-wööd') n. An Asian tree (Diospyros kurzii) having mottled gray wood used in cabinetwork.

mar·bling (mär'bliŋ) n. 1. A mottling or streaking that resembles marble. 2. The process or operation of giving something the surface appearance of marble. 3. The decorative imitation of marble patterns printed on page edges and endpapers of books. 4. Flecks or thin strips of fat, especially when evenly distributed in a cut of meat.

Mar·burg (mär'bûrg', -böörk') A city of west-central Germany north of Frankfurt. Europe's first Protestant university was founded here in 1527. Population, 76,260.

marc (märk) n. 1. The pulpy residue left after the juice has been pressed from grapes, apples, or other fruits. 2. Brandy distilled from grape or apple residue. [French, from Old French march, from Old French marchier, to trample, of Germanic origin. See merg- in Appendix.]

mar·ca·site (mär'kə-sīt', -zīt') n. 1. A mineral with the same composition as pyrite, FeS₂, but differing in crystal structure. Also called white iron pyrites 2. An ornament of pyrite, polished steel, or white metal. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin marcasita, from Arabic marqašitā, from Aramaic marqēšitā, perhaps from Assyrian marḥašītu, of Markhashi, from Markhashi, region of perhaps northeast Persia.] —mar'ca-sit'i-cal (-sīt'i-kəl) adj.

mar·ca·to (mär-kä'tō) Music. adv. & adj. With strong accentuation. Used chiefly as a direction. — n. pl. mar·ca·tos. A marcato passage or movement. [Italian, past participle of marcare, to mark, accent, from Old Italian. See DEMAR·CATION.]

Mar·ceau (mär-sō'), Marcel. Born 1923. French mime whose most famous character is Bip, a sad-faced clown.

mar·cel (mär-sěl') n. A hairstyle characterized by deep, regular waves made by a heated curling iron. — v. mar·celled, mar·cell·ing, mar·cels. — v. tr. To style (the hair) with deep, regular waves, using a curling iron. — v. intr. To make such a hairstyle. [After Marcel Grateau (1852-1936), French hairdresser.]

Mar-cel-lus (mär-sĕl'əs), Marcus Claudius. 268?-208 B.C. Roman general who in the Second Punic War took Syracuse (212) and Capua (211).

mar-ces-cent (mär-sĕs'ənt) adj. Botany. Withering but not falling off, as a blossom that persists on a twig after flowering. [Latin marcēscēns, marcēscēt- past participle of marcēscere inchoative of marcēre, to wither.]

march¹ (mārch) v. marched, march-ing, march-es. — v. intr. 1. a. To walk steadily and rhythmically forward in step with others. b. To begin to move in such a manner: The troops will march at dawn. 2. a. To proceed directly and purposefully: marched in and demanded to see the manager. b. To progress steadily onward; advance: Time marches on. 3. To be arranged in an orderly fashion that suggests steady, rhythmical progression. 4. To participate in an organized walk, as for a public cause. — v. tr. 1. To cause to move or otherwise progress in a steady, rhythmical manner: march soldiers into battle; marched us off to the dentist. 2. To traverse by progressing steadily and rhythmically: They marched the route in a day. — n. 1. The act of marching, especially: a. The steady forward movement of a body of troops. b. A long tiring journey on foot. 2. Steady forward movement or progression: the march of time. 3. A regulated pace: quick march; slow march. 4. The distance covered within a certain period of time by moving or progressing steadily and rhythmically: a week's march away. 5. Music. A composition in regularly accented, usually duple meter that is appropriate to accompany marching. 6. An organized walk or procession by a group of people for a specific cause or issue. — idioms. on the march. Advancing steadily; progressing: Technology is on the march. steal a march on. To get ahead of, especially by quiet enterprise. [Middle English marchen, from Old French marchier, from Frankish markōn*, to mark out. See merg- in Appendix.]

march² (mārch) n. 1. The border or boundary of a country or an area of land; a frontier. 2. A tract of land bordering on two countries and claimed by both. — v. intr. marched, march-ing, march-es. To have a common boundary: England marches with Scotland. [Middle English, from Old French marche, of Germanic origin. See merg- in Appendix.]

March (mārch) n. Abbr. Mar., Mar The third month of the year in the Gregorian calendar. See Table at calendar. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin Mārtius (mēnsis), (month) of Mars, from Mārs, Mārt-, Mars.]

March (mārch), Francis Andrew. 1825-1911. American philologist and lexicographer noted for his work in comparative Anglo-Saxon linguistics.

March. abbr. Marchioness.

mar-chand de vin sauce (mär-shän' də vān' sôs) n. A rich, buttery sauce made with onions, brown gravy, and red wine and served especially with steaks and roasts. [French : marchand, merchant + de, of + vin, wine.]

Marche¹ (märsh) A historical region and former province of central France. So called because of its location as a northern border fief of the duchy of Aquitaine, it became part of the French crown lands in 1531.

Mar·che² (mär'kā) or Mar·ches (-chĭz) A region of east-central Italy extending from the eastern slopes of the Apennines to the Adriatic Sea. Colonized by Rome in the 3rd century B.C., it was under papal control for much of the period from the 16th to the 19th century.

Mär·chen (mër'KHƏN) n. pl. Märchen. A folktale or fairy story. [German, from Middle High German merechyn, short verse narrative, diminutive of mære, narrative, from Old High German māri, famous, narrative. See mē⁻³ in Appendix.]

march·er¹ (mär'chər) n. One that marches, especially for a specific cause: a protest marcher; a peace marcher.

march·er² (mär'chər) n. One who lives in a border district.

Mar·ches (mär'chĭz) See Marche².

mar·che·sa (mär-kā'zə, -kĕ'zä) n. pl. mar·che·se (-zā, -zĕ). 1. The wife or widow of a marchese. 2. An Italian noblewoman ranking above a countess and below a princess. 3. Used as the title for such a noblewoman. [Italian, feminine of marchese, marchese. See MARCHESE.]

mar·che·se (mär-kā'zā, -kĕ'zĕ) n. pl. mar·che·si (-zē). 1. An Italian nobleman ranking above a count and below a prince. 2. Used as the title for such a nobleman. [Italian, from Medieval Latin (comēs) marcēnsis, (count) of the border, from marca, border region, of Germanic origin. See merg- in Appendix.]

march·ing orders (mär'chĭng ôr'dərz) pl.n. Orders to move on or depart.

mar·chio·ness (mär'shə-nĭs, mär'shə-nĕs') n. Abbr. March. 1. The wife or widow of a marquis. 2. A noblewoman ranking above a countess and below a duchess. Also called marquise 3. Used as a title for such a noblewoman. [Medieval Latin marchionissa, feminine of marchiō, marchiōn-, marquis, from marca, boundary, of Germanic origin. See merg- in Appendix.]

march·land (märch'länd') n. A borderland.

march·pane (märch'pān') n. Archaic. Marzipan. [Perhaps obsolete French marcepain, from Italian marzapane, marzipan. See MARZIPAN.]

march·past (märch'päst') n. A procession or parade, especially of troops being reviewed.

Mar·ci·a·no (mär'sē-ä'nō), Rocco Francis. Known as “Rocky.” 1924-1969. American boxer who won the world heavyweight championship in 1952 and defended it six times. He retired in 1956 with a professional record of 49 victories and no defeats.

Mar·cion·ism (mär'shə-nĭz'əm) n. A Christian heresy of the second and third centuries A.D. that rejected the Old Testament and denied the incarnation of God in Jesus as a human being. [After Marcion (died c. A.D. 160), Pontic merchant and heretic in Rome.] —Mar'cion-ite' (-shə-nīt') n.

Mar-co-ni (mär-kō'nē), Guglielmo. 1874-1937. Italian engineer and inventor who in 1901 transmitted long-wave radio signals across the Atlantic Ocean. He shared the 1909 Nobel Prize in physics.

Marconi rig (mär-kō'nē rīg) n. Nautical. See Bermuda rig. [After Guglielmo MARCONI (probably from its resemblance to the early antennas used by him for his wireless telegraphy).]

Mar-co Po-lo (mär'kō pō'lō) See Marco Polo.

Mar-cos (mär'kōs), Ferdinand Edralin. 1917-1989. Philippine president (1965-1986) who maintained close ties with the United States and exercised dictatorial control over his country. After a fraudulent presidential election against Corazon Aquino (1986) he fled the Philippines with his wife, Imelda (born 1930).

Mar-cus Au-re-li-us An-to-ni-nus (mär'kəs ô-rē'lē-əs ən'tə-nī'nəs), A.D. 121-180. Philosopher and emperor of Rome (161-180) who wrote Meditations, a classic work of stoicism.

Marcus Ba-ker (mär'kəs bā'kər), Mount. A peak, 4,018.7 m (13,176 ft) high, in the Chugach Mountains of southeast Alaska. It is the highest elevation in the range.

Mar-cu-se (mär-kōō'zə), Herbert. 1898-1979. German-born American political philosopher whose works of social criticism include Eros and Civilization (1955) and One-Dimensional Man (1964).

Mar del Pla-ta (mär' dël plätə, thĕl plä'tä) A city of east-central Argentina on the Atlantic Ocean south-southeast of Buenos Aires. It is a popular resort with a fishing industry. Population, 414,696.

Mar-di gras or Mar-di Gras (mär'dē grä') n. 1. a. The day before Ash Wednesday, celebrated as a holiday in many places with carnivals, masquerade balls, and parades of costumed merrymakers. b. A carnival period coming to a climax on this day. 2. An occasion of great festivity and merrymaking. [French : Mardi, Tuesday + gras, fat (from the feasting on Mardi gras before Lenten fasting).]

Mar-duk (mär'dōök) n. Mythology. The chief Babylonian god.

mare¹ (mâr) n. A female horse or the female of other equine species. [Middle English, alteration of Old English mere (influenced by forms of mearh, horse),. See marko- in Appendix.]

ma-re² (mä'rā) n. pl. ma-ri-a (-rē-ə). Astronomy. Any of the large dark areas on the moon or on Mars or other planets. [Latin mare, sea. See mori- in Appendix.]

ma-re clau-sum (mä'rā klou'səm, klô'-) n. A navigable body of water, such as a sea, that is under the jurisdiction of one nation and closed to all others. [New Latin : Latin mare, sea + Latin clausum, closed.]

ma-re li-be-rum (mä'rā lē'bə-rōōm') n. A navigable body of water, such as a sea, that is open to navigation by vessels of all nations. [New Latin mare liberum : Latin mare, sea + Latin liberum, free.]

Ma-ren-go (mə-rēng'gō) adj. Brownd in oil and sautéed in a sauce of tomatoes, mushrooms, garlic, onion, and white wine: chicken Marengo; veal Marengo. [After Marengo, a village of northwest Italy (probably from the chicken dish served to Napoleon following his victory over the Austrians here on June 14, 1800).]

ma-re nos-trum (mä'rā nō'strəm) n. A navigable body of water, such as a sea, that is under the jurisdiction of one nation or that is shared by two or more nations. [Latin, the Mediterranean : mare, sea + nostrum, our.]

mare's nest (mârz nĕst) n. pl. mare's nests or mares' nests. 1. A hoax or fraud. 2. An extraordinarily complicated situation.

mare's-tail (mârz'täl') n. pl. mare's-tails or mares'-tails (mârz'tälz'). 1. A cosmopolitan aquatic herb (Hippuris vulgaris) having minute flowers and linear whorled leaves. 2. A long, narrow cirrus cloud with a flowing appearance.

Mar-fan syndrome (mär'fän sĭn'drōm') n. A hereditary disorder principally affecting the connective tissues of the body, manifested in varying degrees by excessive bone elongation and joint flexibility and by abnormalities of the eye and cardiovascular system. [After Antonin Bernard Jean Marfan (1858-1942), French pediatrician.]

marg. abbr. Margin.

Mar-gar-et of An-jou (mär'gə-rət ÷v än'jōō', -grət; än-jōō', än-zhōō'), 1430-1482. Queen of Henry VI of England. She led the Lancastrians in the Wars of the Roses and was captured (1471) and ransomed to France (1476).

Mar-gar-et of Na-varre (mär'gə-rət ÷v nə-vär', -grət; nə-vär', nə-), 1492-1549. Queen of Navarre (1527-1549) who wrote the Heptameron, an unfinished collection of stories modeled on Boccaccio's Decameron.

Mar-gar-et of Val-ois (mär'gə-rət ÷v vāl'wä, -grət; vāl-wä'), 1553-1615. Queen consort whose marriage (1572) to Henry of Navarre, later Henry IV of France, was dissolved in 1599.

Mar-gar-et Rose (mär'gə-rət rōz, -grət-), Princess. Born 1930. Princess of Great Britain, the second daughter of George VI and sister of Elizabeth II.

mar-gar-ic (mär-gär'ĭk) adj. Resembling pearl; pearly. [From Greek margaron, pearl.]

margaric acid (mär-gär'ĭk äs'ĭd) n. A synthetic crystalline fatty acid, $\text{CH}_3(\text{CH}_2)_{15}\text{CO}_2\text{H}$.

mar-ga-rine also mar-ga-rin (mär'jər-ĭn) n. A fatty solid butter substitute consisting of a blend of hydrogenated vegetable oils mixed with emulsifiers, vitamins, coloring matter, and other ingredients. [French, from Greek margaron, pearl.]

mar-ga-ri-ta (mär'gə-rē'tə) n. A cocktail made with tequila, an orange-flavored liqueur, and lemon or lime juice, often served with salt encrusted on the rim of the glass. [Spanish, from the name Margarita, Margaret.]

mar-ga-rite (mär'gə-rīt') n. 1. A rock formation that resembles beads, found in glassy igneous rocks. 2. Archaic. A pearl. [Ultimately from Greek margaritēs, pearl.]

Mar-gate (mär'gāt') 1. (also -gət) A municipal borough of southeast England east of London. A popular seaside resort, it also has light industries. Population, 121,900. 2. A city of southeast Florida northwest of Fort Lauderdale. It is a resort community. Population, 42,985.

mar-gay (mär'gā', mär-gā') n. pl. mar-gays. A spotted Central and South American wildcat (Felis wiedi) resembling a small, long-tailed ocelot. [French, from Portuguese maracajá, from Tupi maracajá.]

mar-gin (mär'jīn) n. Abbr. marg. 1. An edge and the area immediately adjacent to it; a border. See Synonyms at border. 2. The blank space bordering the written or printed area on a page. 3. A limit in a condition or process, beyond or below which something is no longer possible or acceptable: the margin of reality; has crossed the margin of civilized behavior. 4. An amount allowed beyond what is needed: a small margin of safety. See Synonyms at room. 5. A measure, quantity, or degree of difference: a margin of 500 votes. 6. Economics. a. The minimum return that an enterprise may earn and still pay for itself. b. The difference between the cost and the selling price of securities or commodities. c. The difference between the market value of collateral and the face value of a loan. 7. An amount in money, or represented by securities, deposited by a customer with a broker as a provision against loss on transactions made on account. 8. Botany. The border of a leaf. — v. tr. mar-gined, mar-gin-ing, mar-gins. 1. To provide with a margin. 2. To be a margin to; border. 3. To inscribe or enter in the margin of a page. 4. Economics. a. To add margin to: margin up a brokerage account. b. To deposit margin for: margin a transaction. c. To buy or hold (securities) by depositing or adding to a margin. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin margō, margin-. See merg- in Appendix.] — mar'gined adj.

mar-gin-al (mär'jə-nəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, located at, or constituting a margin, a border, or an edge: the marginal strip of beach; a marginal issue that had no bearing on the election results. 2. Being adjacent geographically: states marginal to Canada. 3. Written or printed in the margin of a book: marginal notes. 4. Barely within a lower standard or limit of quality: marginal writing ability; eked out a marginal existence. 5. Economics. a. Having to do with enterprises that produce goods or are capable of producing goods at a rate that barely covers production costs. b. Relating to commodities thus manufactured and sold. 6. Psychology. Relating to or located at the fringe of consciousness. — n. One that is considered to be at a lower or outer limit, as of social acceptability: “is fas- inated by marginals, by people who live on the edge of society” (Dan Yakir).

—mar'gin-al/i·ty (-jə-nāl'ī-tē) n. —mar'gin-al·ly adv.

mar·gi·na·li·a (mār'jə-nā'lē-ə) pl.n. Notes in the margin or margins of a book. [New Latin, neuter pl. of Medieval Latin marginālis, marginal, from Latin margō, margīn-, margin. See MARGIN.]

mar·gin·al·ize (mār'jə-nə-līz') v. tr. mar·gin·al·ized, mar·gin·al·iz·ing, mar·gin·al·iz·es. To relegate or confine to a lower or outer limit or edge, as of social standing. —mar'gin-al-i·za'tion (-jə-nə-lī-zā'shən) n.

mar·gin·ate (mār'jə-nāt') v. tr. mar·gin·at·ed, mar·gin·at·ing, mar·gin·ates. 1. To provide with or be a margin to; border. 2. To add margin to (a stock portfolio). — adj. also mar·gin·at·ed (-nā'tīd; -nīt, -nāt) Biology.

Having a border or an edge of distinctive color or pattern. —mar'gin-a'tion n.

mar·gra·vate (mār'grə-vāt') n. Variant of margviate.

mar·grave (mār'grāv') n. 1. The lord or military governor of a medieval German border province. 2. Used as a hereditary title for certain princes in the Holy Roman Empire. [Probably Middle Dutch marcgrāve: marc, march, border; see merg- in Appendix + grāve, count.] —mar·gra'vi·al (-grā'vē-əl) adj.

mar·gra·vi·ate (mār-grā'vē-īt, -āt') also mar·gra·vate (mār'grə-vāt') n. The territory governed by a margrave.

mar·gra·vine (mār'grə-vēn') n. 1. The wife or widow of a margrave. 2. Used as a title for such a woman. [Probably Middle Dutch marcgravinne, feminine of marcgrāve, margrave. See MARGRAVE.]

Mar·gre·the II (mār-grā'tə), Born 1940. Queen of Denmark who inherited the throne from her father in 1972 after the Danish constitution was amended to permit the accession of a woman.

mar·gue·rite (mār'gə-rēt', -gyə-) n. 1. Either of two plants, Chrysanthemum frutescens of the Canary Islands, or C. leucanthemum of Eurasia, having white or pale yellow flowers that resemble those of the common American daisy. Also called Paris daisy 2. Any of several similar or related plants having daisylike flowers. [French, from Old French margarite, daisy, pearl, from Latin margarīta, pearl, from Greek margaritēs.]

ma·ri·a (mä'rē-ə) n. Astronomy. Plural of mare².

ma·ri·a·chi (mä'rē-ä'chē) n. pl. ma·ri·a·chis. Music. 1. A street band in Mexico. 2. a. The music performed by such a band. b. A musician belonging to such a band. [American Spanish, perhaps from French mariage, marriage (so called because the music may have originated at weddings in Jalisco, a state of west-central Mexico). See MARRIAGE.]

Mar·i·an¹ (mâr'ē-ən, mâr'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to the Virgin Mary, her cult, or her theology. 2. Of or relating to Mary I of England or Mary Queen of Scots.

Mar·i·an² (mâr'ē-ən, mâr'-) adj. Of or relating to Gaius Marius: the Marian reforms of the legions.

Mar-i-an-a Islands (măr'ē-ăn'ə ī'ləndz, mâr' -, mǎ'rē-ă'nǎ) An island group and U.S. commonwealth in the western Pacific Ocean east of the Philippines.

Guam, the largest island of the group, is independent of the commonwealth, known as the Northern Mariana Islands, which gained official status in 1986. The Marianas were discovered by Magellan in 1521 and held by Spain until 1898. They were sold to Germany in 1899 (when Guam was ceded to the United States) and later became a Japanese mandate (1919-1944). Population, 16,780.

Mar-i-an-as Trench (măr'ē-ăn'əz trēnch, mâr' -, mǎ'rē-ă'nās) A depression with a maximum depth of 11,040.4 m (36,198 ft) in the floor of the western Pacific Ocean south and east of Guam.

Ma-ri-as (mə-rī'əs) A river of northwest Montana flowing about 338 km (210 mi) generally southeast to the Missouri River.

Ma-ri-a The-re-sa (mə-rē'ə tə-rǎ'sə, -zə), 1717-1780. Queen of Hungary and Bohemia (1740-1780) whose reign was marked by the War of the Austrian Succession (1740-1748) and the Seven Years' War (1756-1763).

Ma-ri-bor (măr'ī-bôr') A city of northwest Yugoslavia on the Drava River near the Austrian border. It is an industrial center. Population, 105,100.

Mar-i-co-pa (măr'ī-kō'pə) n. pl. Maricopa or Mar-i-co-pas. 1. a. A Native American people sharing reservation lands with the Pima in south-central Arizona. b. A member of this people. 2. The Yuman language of the Maricopa.

mar-i-cul-ture (măr'ī-kül'chər) n. Cultivation of marine organisms in their natural habitats, usually for commercial purposes. [Latin mare, mari-, sea; see mori- in Appendix + CULTURE.] —mar'ī-cul'tur-al adj.

Ma-rie (mə-rē'), 1875-1938. Queen of Romania (1914-1927) noted for her work with the Red Cross.

Ma-rie An-toi-nette (mə-rē' ăn'twə-nět'), 1755-1793. Queen of France (1774-1793) as the wife of Louis XVI. Unpopular because of her extravagance and insensitivity toward the masses, she was tried by the Revolutionary Tribunal and executed.

Marie Byrd Land (mə-rē' būrd' lănd) A region of western Antarctica east of the Amundsen Sea. It was discovered and claimed for the United States by Richard E. Byrd in 1929.

Ma-rie de Mé-di-cis (mə-rē' də mǎ'dē-sēs'), 1573-1642. Queen of France as the wife (1600-1610) of Henry IV and regent (1610-1617) for her son Louis XIII. She was instrumental in the political rise of Richelieu.

Ma-rie Lou-ise (mə-rē' lōō-ēz'), 1791-1847. Austrian archduchess who became empress of the French as the second wife of Napoleon I.

Mar-i-et-ta (măr'ē-ět'ə, mâr' -) 1. A city of northwest Georgia northwest of Atlanta. It is a residential community with an aircraft industry. Population, 44,129. 2. A city of southeast Ohio on the Ohio River southeast of Zanesville.

Founded in 1788, it is the oldest permanent settlement in the state. Population, 15,026.

mar-i-gold (măř'ĭ-göld', mâr'-'-) n. 1. Any of various American plants of the genus Tagetes, widely cultivated for their showy yellow or orange flowers. 2. Any of several plants related to the marigold or having similar flowers, such as the marsh marigold. [Middle English : Mari, Mary ultimately from Greek Maria; see MARIONETTE + golde, marigold (from Old English golde; akin to probably akin to GOLD).]

mar-i-jua-na or mar-i-hua-na (măř'ə-wä'nə) n. 1. The cannabis plant. 2. A preparation made from the dried flower clusters and leaves of the cannabis plant, usually smoked or eaten to induce euphoria. [Spanish mariguana.]

Ma-ri-ki-na (măř'ĭ-kē'nə) A city of southwest Luzon, Philippines, a suburb of Manila. Population, 211,613.

Ma-rí-lia (mə-rēl'yə, mă-rē'lyä) A city of southeast Brazil west-northwest of São Paulo. It is a trade and processing center in an agricultural region. Population, 103,815.

ma-rim-ba (mə-rĭm'bə) n. Music. A large wooden percussion instrument with resonators, resembling a xylophone. [Portuguese, of Bantu origin; akin to Kimbundu ma-rimba : ma-, pl. n. pref. + rimba, xylophone, hand piano.]

Mar-in (măř'in), John. 1870-1953. American painter noted for his expressionist watercolors, including Brooklyn Bridge and Sunset, Casco Bay.

ma-ri-na (mə-rē'nə) n. A boat basin that has docks, moorings, supplies, and other facilities for small boats. [Italian, and Spanish, seashore, from feminine of marino, belonging to the sea from Latin marĭnus. See MARINE.]

Ma-ri-na (mə-rē'nə) A city of western California on Monterey Bay west of Salinas. It is a resort community. Population, 26,436.

mar-i-nade (măř'ə-nād') n. A liquid mixture, usually of vinegar or wine and oil with various spices and herbs, in which meat, fowl, fish, and vegetables are soaked before cooking. — v. tr. mar-i-nad-ed, mar-i-nad-ing, mar-i-nades (măř'ə-nād'). To soak (food) in such a mixture; marinate. [French, probably from Italian marinare, to marinate, from Latin (aqua) marĭna, sea(water), brine, pickle, from feminine of marĭnus, of the sea. See MARINE.]

ma-ri-na-ra (măř'ə-năř'ə, mâr'ə-năř'ə) adj. Being or served with a sauce made of tomatoes, onions, garlic, and spices: spaghetti marinara; mussels marinara. — n. Marinara sauce. [Italian (alla) marinara, in sailor style, feminine of marinaro, of the sea, sailor, from marino, marine. See MARINA.]

mar-i-nate (măř'ə-nāt') v. mar-i-nat-ed, mar-i-nat-ing, mar-i-nates. — v. tr. To soak (meat, for example) in a marinade. — v. intr. To become marinated. [Probably from Italian marinato, past participle of marinare, to marinate, from marino, marine. See MARINA.] — mar'i-na'tion n.

ma·rine (mə-rēn') adj. 1. a. Of or relating to the sea: marine exploration. b. Native to, inhabiting, or formed by the sea: marine animals. 2. Of or relating to shipping or maritime affairs. 3. Of or relating to sea navigation; nautical: a marine chart. See Synonyms at nautical. 4. Of or relating to troops that serve at sea as well as on land, specifically the U.S. Marine Corps. — n. 1. a. A soldier serving on a ship or at a naval installation. b. Marine. A member of the U.S. Marine Corps. 2. The mercantile or naval ships or shipping fleet of a country. 3. The governmental department in charge of naval affairs in some nations. 4. A painting or photograph of the sea. [Middle English marin, marine, from Old French, from Latin marīnus, from mare, sea. See mori- in Appendix.]

Marine Corps (mə-rēn' kôr) n. A branch of the U.S. armed forces composed chiefly of amphibious troops under the authority of the Secretary of the Navy.

mar·i·ner (măr'ə-nər) n. Nautical. One who navigates or assists in navigating a ship. [Middle English, from Old French marinier, from Old French marin, marine. See MARINE.]

Ma·ri·net·ti (măr'ə-nět'ē, mə'rē-nět'tē), Emilio Filippo Tommaso. 1876-1944. Italian writer who founded futurism with the publication of his 1909 manifesto. Among his works are The Bleeding Mummy (1904) and Mafarka the Futurist (1910).

Ma·rin·gá (mä'rĭn-gä') A city of southeast Brazil northwest of Curitiba. It is a coffee-processing center. Population, 158,091.

Ma·ri·ni (mə-rē'nē, mä-) or Ma·ri·no (-nō), Giambattista. 1569-1625. Italian poet noted for his elaborate style in works such as the epic Adonis (1623).

Mar·i·ol·a·try (măr'ē-ōl'ə-trē) n. Excessive veneration or worship of the Virgin Mary. —Mar'iol'a·ter n. —Mar'iol'a·trous adj.

Mar·i·ol·o·gy also Mar·y·ol·o·gy (măr'ē-ōl'ə-jē) n. The body of belief or dogma or the systematic study of the Virgin Mary and her role in the Incarnation. —Mar'io·log'i·cal adj.

Mar·i·on (măr'ē-ən, măr'-) 1. A city of northeast-central Indiana northwest of Muncie. It is a trade, processing, and industrial center. Population, 32,618. 2. A city of east-central Iowa, a residential suburb of Cedar Rapids. Population, 20,403. 3. A city of central Ohio north of Columbus. The home and burial place of President Warren G. Harding, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 34,075.

Mar·i·on (măr'ē-ən, măr'-), Francis. Called "the Swamp Fox." 1732?-1795. American Revolutionary soldier known for his guerrilla tactics against the British in South Carolina.

mar·i·o·nette (măr'ē-ə-nět') n. A jointed puppet manipulated from above by strings or wires attached to its limbs. [French marionnette, from Old French, musical instrument, diminutive of mariole, the Virgin Mary, from diminutive of Marie, Mary (influenced by the name Marion), from Late Latin Maria, from Greek, from Hebrew Miryām.]

mar-i-po-sa lily (mä'rə-pō'sə līl'ē, -sə) n. Any of several bulbous plants of the genus Calochortus of western North America, having variously colored, tuliplike flowers. Also called mariposa tulip [Probably from American Spanish mariposa, from Spanish, butterfly : mari-, frequentative pref. + posar, to perch (from Late Latin pausāre, to pause, from Latin pausa, pause).]

Mar-ist (mâr'ĭst, mâr'(-)) n. 1. A member of the Society of Mary, a congregation of Roman Catholic missionary priests founded in 1824. 2. A member of the Little Brothers of Mary, a Roman Catholic teaching congregation founded in 1817. [French Mariste, from Marie, the Virgin Mary, from Late Latin Maria. See MARIONETTE.]

Ma-ri-tain (mä'r'ĭ-tän', mä-rē-), Jacques. 1882-1973. French philosopher and critic noted for his interpretations of Saint Thomas Aquinas. His works include Art and Scholasticism (1920).

mar-i-tal (mä'r'ĭ-tl) adj. 1. Of or relating to marriage: marital status; marital problems. 2. Of or relating to a husband. [Latin marĭtālis, from marĭtus, married.] —mar'i-tal-ly adv.

mar-i-time (mä'r'ĭ-tīm') adj. Abbr. mar. 1. Of, relating to, or adjacent to the sea. 2. Of or relating to marine shipping or navigation. See Synonyms at nautical. 3. Of or resembling a mariner. [Latin marĭtimus, from mare, mari-, sea. See mori- in Appendix.]

Mar-i-time Alps (mä'r'ĭ-tīm' älp) A range of the southwest Alps on the French-Italian border near the Mediterranean Sea. The highest elevation is 3,299.2 m (10,817 ft).

Maritime Provinces (mä'r'ĭ-tīm' pröv'ĭn-sĭz) The Canadian provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island, bordering on the Atlantic Ocean. They were politically distinct from Canada until the confederation of 1867. —Mar'i-tim'er n.

Ma-ri-tsa (mä-rēt'sə) A river of western Bulgaria and western Turkey flowing about 483 km (300 mi) southeast then south to the Aegean Sea.

Mar-i-us (mâr'ē-əs, mâr'(-)), Gaius. 155?-86 B.C. Roman general and politician. Elected consul seven times, he reformed the military and lost a disastrous civil war (88) to his political rival Sulla.

Ma-ri-vaux (mä'r'ə-vō', mä-rē-), Pierre Carlet de Chamblain de. 1688-1763. French writer noted for his sophisticated romantic comedies, including Le Jeu de l'Amour et du Hasard (1730) and La Vie de Marianne (1731-1741).

mar-jo-ram (mä'r'jər-əm) n. Any of several aromatic Eurasian or Mediterranean plants of the genus Origanum, especially O. majorana or O. vulgare, having small, purplish to white flowers and opposite leaves used as seasoning. Also called sweet marjoram, wild marjoram. [Middle English majorane, from Old French, from Medieval Latin maiorana.]

mark¹ (märk) n. Abbr. mk. 1. A visible trace or impression, such as a line or spot. 2. A sign, such as a cross, made in lieu of a signature. 3. A written or printed symbol used for punctuation; a punctuation mark. 4. a. A number, letter, or symbol used to indicate various grades of academic achievement: got a mark of 95 instead of 100. b. Often marks. An appraisal; a rating: earned high marks from her superiors. 5. a. An inscription, name, stamp, label, or seal placed on an article to signify ownership, quality, manufacture, or origin. b. A notch in an animal's ear or hide indicating ownership. 6. Nautical. a. A knot or piece of material placed at various measured lengths on a lead line to indicate the depth of the water. b. A Plimsoll mark. 7. a. A distinctive trait or property: Good manners are the mark of a civilized person. b. A lasting effect: The experience had left its mark. c. Mark. A particular mode, brand, size, or quality of a product, especially a weapon or machine. 8. A recognized standard of quality: schoolwork that is not up to the mark. 9. a. Importance; prominence: "a fellow of no mark nor likelihood" (Shakespeare). b. Notice; attention: a matter unworthy of mark. 10. A target: "A mounted officer would be a conspicuous mark" (Ambrose Bierce). 11. Something that one wishes to achieve; a goal. 12. An object or a point that serves as a guide. 13. Slang. A person who is the intended victim of a swindler; a dupe. 14. a. Sports. The place from which racers begin and sometimes end their contest. b. A point reached or gained: the halfway mark of the race. c. A record: set a new mark in the long jump. 15. Sports. a. A strike or spare in bowling. b. A stationary ball in lawn bowling; a jack. 16. A boundary between countries. 17. A tract of land in medieval England and Germany held in common by a community. 18. Computer Science. A character or feature in a file or record used to locate a specific point or condition. — v. marked, mark-ing, marks. — v. tr. 1. a. To make a visible trace or impression on, as with a spot, line, or dent. b. To form, make, or depict by making a mark: marked a square on the board. c. To supply with natural markings: gray fur that is marked with stripes. 2. a. To single out or indicate by or as if by a mark: marked the spot where the treasure was buried; a career marked for glory. b. To distinguish or characterize: the exuberance that marks her writings; marked the occasion with celebrations. c. To make conspicuous: a concert marking the composer's 60th birthday. 3. To set off or separate by or as if by a line or boundary: marked off the limits of our property. 4. To attach or affix identification, such as a price tag or maker's label, to. 5. To evaluate (academic work) according to a scale of letters and numbers. 6. a. To give attention to; notice: Mark her expression of discontent. Mark my words: they are asking for trouble. b. To take note of in writing; write down: marked the appointment on my calendar. c. Sports & Games. To record (the score) in various games. — v. intr. 1. To make a visible impression: This pen will mark under water. 2. To receive a visible impression: The floor marks easily. 3. Sports & Games. To keep score. 4. To determine academic grades: a teacher who marks strictly. 5. Archaic.

To pay attention; notice. —phrasal verbs. mark down. To mark for sale at a lower price. mark up. 2. To deface by covering with marks. 3. To mark for sale at a higher price. —idioms. beside the mark. Beside the point; irrelevant. mark time. 2. To move the feet alternately in the rhythm of a marching step without advancing. 3. To suspend progress for the time being; wait in readiness. 4. To function in an apathetic or ineffective manner. [Middle English, from Old English mearc. See merg- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: mark, brand, label, tag, ticket. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to place a mark of identification on”: marked the furs with their place of origin; brand cattle; labeled the boxes on the shelf; tagging suitcases; ticketed the new merchandise. See also Synonyms at sign mark² (märk) n. Abbr. M. 1. An English and Scottish monetary unit that was equal to 13 shillings and 4 pence. 2. Any of several European units of weight that were equal to about 8 ounces (227 grams), used especially for weighing gold and silver. [Middle English, from Old English marc. See merg- in Appendix.]

Mark (märk) n. Abbr. Mk 1. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible. 2. In Arthurian legend, a king of Cornwall who was the husband of Iseult and the uncle of her lover Tristan.

Mark (märk), Saint. Author of the second Gospel in the New Testament and disciple of Saint Peter.

Mark An-to-ny (märk ən'tə-nē) or Mark An-tho-ny (än'thə-nē), 83?-30 B.C. Roman orator, politician, and soldier. His love affair with Cleopatra split the triumvirate he had formed with Octavian and Lepidus and led to war. In 31 B.C. the forces of Antony and Cleopatra were defeated by Octavian at Actium, and both subsequently committed suicide.

mark-down (märk'doun') n. 1. A reduction in price. 2. The amount by which a price is reduced.

marked (märkt) adj. 1. Having one or more distinguishing marks. 2. Clearly defined and evident; noticeable: has a marked limp. See Synonyms at noticeable. 3. Singled out, especially for a dire fate: a marked man. —mark'ed-ly (mär'kīd-lē) adv. —mark'ed-ness n.

mark-er (mär'kər) n. 1. One that marks or serves as a mark, as: a. A bookmark. b. A tombstone. c. A milestone. 2. An implement, especially a felt-tipped pen, used for marking or writing. 3. One who marks objects, especially for industrial purposes. 4. One who grades student papers. 5. Sports. A device, such as a line, stake, or flag, set on a playing field and showing the playing or scoring position. 6. Games. a. One that keeps score in various games. b. A score in a game. 7. Slang. A written, signed promissory note. 8. A genetic marker. 9. Medicine. A physiological substance, such as human chorionic gonadotropin or alpha-fetoprotein, that when present in abnormal amounts in the serum may indicate the presence of disease, as that caused by a malignancy. Also called biomarker

10. Linguistics. An element that indicates grammatical class or function; a derivational or inflectional morpheme.

mar·ket (mär/'kīt) n. Abbr. mkt. 1. A public gathering held for buying and selling merchandise. 2. A place where goods are offered for sale. 3. A store or shop that sells a particular type of merchandise: a meat market. 4. a. The business of buying and selling a specified commodity: the soybean market. b. A market price. c. A geographic region considered as a place for sales: grain for the foreign market; the West Coast market. d. A subdivision of a population considered as buyers: cosmetics for the upscale market. 5. The opportunity to buy or sell; extent of demand for merchandise: a big market for gourmet foods. 6. a. An exchange for buying and selling stocks or commodities: securities sold on the New York market. b. The entire enterprise of buying and selling commodities and securities: The market has been slow recently. — v. mar·ket·ed, mar·ket·ing, mar·kets. — v. tr. 1. To offer for sale. 2. To sell. — v. intr. 1. To deal in a market. 2. To buy household supplies: We marketed for a special Sunday dinner. — idioms. in the market. Interested in buying: We are in the market for a used car. on the market. 2. Available for buying: Many kinds of seasonal flowers are on the market. 3. Up for sale: They put the family business on the market. [Middle English, from Old North French, from Vulgar Latin marcātus*, from Latin mercātus, from past participle of mercārī, to buy, from merx, merc-, merchandise.]

mar·ket·a·ble (mär/'kī-tə-bəl) adj. 1. Fit to be offered for sale, as in a market: marketable produce. 2. In demand by buyers or employers; salable: a marketable product; marketable skills. — mar'ket-a-bil'i-ty n.

market basket (mär/'kīt bäs/'kīt) n. 1. A grocery cart. 2. A selection of foods needed for a statistical household of 3.2 persons or for a family of 4, considered in terms of its fluctuating cost.

mar·ket·er (mär/'kī-tər) also mar·ket·eer (-kī-tîr') n. One that sells goods or services in or to a market, especially one that markets a specified commodity: a major wine marketer.

market garden (mär/'kīt gār/'dn) n. A garden in which vegetables are grown for sale in a market. — market gardener n. — market gardening n.

mar·ket·ing (mär/'kī-tĭng) n. Abbr. mktg. 1. The act or process of buying and selling in a market. 2. The commercial functions involved in transferring goods from producer to consumer.

market maker (mär/'kīt mā/'kər) n. One that buys and sells securities on a continuous basis for one's own account by setting the prices at which the securities will be bought and sold.

market order (mär/'kīt ôr/'dər) n. An order to buy or sell stocks or commodities at the prevailing market price.

mar·ket·place also market place (mär'kīt-plās') n. 1. An open area or square in a town where a public market or sale is set up. 2. The world of business and commerce. 3. A situation or place in which values, opinions, and ideas are put forward for debate or recognition: a marketplace for new ideas; the literary marketplace.

market price (mär'kīt prīs) n. The prevailing price at which merchandise, securities, or commodities are sold.

market research (mär'kīt rī-sūrč') n. The gathering and evaluation of data regarding consumers' preferences for products and services.

market value (mär'kīt vāl'yōō) n. The amount that a seller may expect to obtain for merchandise, services, or securities in the open market.

Mark·ham (mär'kəm) 1. A town of southern Ontario, Canada, north-north-east of Toronto. It is a processing center. Population, 77,037. 2. A city of north-east Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Population, 15,172.

Mark·ham (mär'kəm), Beryl. 1903-1986. British aviation pioneer who was the first person to fly solo across the Atlantic Ocean from east to west (1936).

Mark·ham (mär'kəm), (Charles) Edwin. 1852-1940. American poet known for "The Man with the Hoe" (1899), a poem of protest against the exploitation of labor.

Markham, Mount. A peak, 4,353 m (14,272 ft) high, of Victoria Land, Antarctica. It was discovered in 1902.

mar·khor (mär'kôr) n. pl. markhor or mar·khors. A large, wild Himalayan goat (Capra falconeri) having a reddish-brown coat, spirally curved horns, and a long mane in the male. [Persian mārkhōr: mār, snake (from Avestan mairya-, treacherous) + -khōr, eater (from Old Iranian -khvāra-*); see MANTICORE.]

mark·ing (mär'kīng) n. 1. a. A making or giving of a mark. b. A mark or marks made. 2. The characteristic pattern of coloration of a plant or an animal.

mark·ka (mär'kă') n. pl. mark·kaa (-kă'). Abbr. mk. A basic unit of currency in Finland. See Table at currency. [Finnish, from Swedish mark, a mark of money. See merg- in Appendix.]

Mar·ko·va (mär-kō'və, mär'kə-və), Dame Alicia. Born 1910. British ballerina known especially for her performance in Léonide Massine's Giselle.

Mar·ko·witz (mär'kə-wīts), Harry M. Born 1927. American economist. He shared a 1990 Nobel Prize for contributions to financial economics.

marks·man (märks'mən) n. 1. A man skilled in shooting at a target. 2. a. A classification in the U.S. Army and Marine Corps for the lowest of three ratings of rifle proficiency. b. One who holds this rating. —marks'man·ship' n.

marks·wom·an (märks'woōm'ən) n. A woman skilled in shooting at a target.

mark·up (märk'ŭp') n. 1. A raise in the price of an item for sale. 2. An amount added to a cost price in calculating a selling price, especially an amount that takes into account overhead and profit. 3. A session of a U.S. congressional committee at which a legislative bill is put into final form. 4. Detailed stylistic instructions written on a manuscript that is to be typeset.

marl (märl) n. A crumbly mixture of clays, calcium and magnesium carbonates, and remnants of shells, used as fertilizer for lime-deficient soils. — v. tr.

marled, marl-ing, marls. To fertilize with such a mixture. [Middle English marle, from Old French, from Medieval Latin marginila, marla, diminutive of Latin marga, marl, of Celtic origin.] — marl'y adj.

Marl (märl) A city of west-central Germany in the Ruhr Valley north of Essen. First mentioned in the ninth century, it is now highly industrialized. Population, 87,231.

Marl-bor-ough or Marl-bo-ro (märl'bûr'ō, -bər-ə, -bûr'ō) A city of east-central Massachusetts east-northeast of Worcester. Settled in 1657, it was nearly destroyed in 1676 during King Philip's War. Population, 31,813.

Marl-bor-ough (märl'bər-ə, -brə, mōl'-), First Duke of. See John Churchill.

mar-lin¹ (mär'lîn) n. Any of several large game fishes of the genera Makaira and Tetrapturus of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, having an elongated, spearlike upper jaw. [Short for MARLINESPIKE (from the pointed shape of its snout).]

mar-lin² (mär'lîn) n. Nautical. Variant of marline.

mar-line also mar-lin (mär'lîn) n. Nautical. A light rope made of two loosely twisted strands. [Middle English.]

mar-line-spike also mar-lin-spike (mär'lîn-spīk') or mar-ling-spike (-lîng-spīk') n. Nautical. A pointed metal spike, used to separate strands of rope in splicing.

mar-lite (mär'līt') n. Marlstone. — mar-lit'ic (-līt'ik) adj.

Mar-lowe (mär'lō), Christopher. 1564-1593. English playwright and poet whose development of blank verse influenced Shakespeare. His plays include Tamburlaine the Great (c. 1587) and Edward II (c. 1592).

Mar-lowe (mär'lō), Julia. 1866-1950. British-born American actress noted for many Shakespearean roles opposite her husband, Edward Hugh Sothorn.

marl-stone (märl'stōn') n. A rock containing clay materials and calcium and magnesium carbonates, with approximately the same composition as marl.

mar-ma-lade (mär'mə-lād') n. A clear, jellylike preserve made from the pulp and rind of fruits, especially citrus fruits. [French marmelade, from Portuguese marmelada, from marmelo, quince, alteration of Latin melimēlum, a kind of sweet apple, from Greek melimēlon : meli, honey; see melit- in Appendix + mēlon, apple.]

marmalade box (mär'mə-lād' bōks) n. See genipap (n., sense 2).

marmalade plum (mär'mə-lād' plūm) n. See sapote.

Mar-ma-ra (mär'mər-ə), Sea of. A sea of northwest Turkey between Europe and Asia. It is connected to the Black Sea through the Bosphorus and to the Aegean Sea through the Dardanelles.

mar·mite (mär'mīt, mär-mēt') n. 1. a. A large, covered earthenware or metal cooking pot. b. A small, covered earthenware casserole designed to hold an individual serving. 2. A petite marmite. [French, from Old French, hypocritical, marmite (possibly because the food is hidden inside) : marm-; akin to mar-mouser, to murmur + mite, cat (of imitative origin).]

Mar·mo·la·da (mär'mə-lä'də, -mô-lä'dä) A peak, 3,344.3 m (10,965 ft) high, in the Dolomite Alps of northeast Italy. It is the highest elevation in the range.

mar·mo·re·al (mär-mô'rē-əl, -mōr'-) also mar·mo·re·an (-ē-ən) adj. Resembling marble, as in smoothness, whiteness, or hardness. [From Latin marmoreus, from marmor, marble.] —mar·mo're·al·ly adv.

mar·mo·set (mär'mə-sēt', -zēt') n. Any of various small, clawed monkeys of the genera Callithrix and Cebuella, found in tropical forests of the Americas and having soft, dense fur, tufted ears, and long tails. [Middle English marmusette, a kind of small monkey, from Old French marmouset, grotesque figurine, alteration (influenced by marmouser, to murmur), of marmotte, marmot. See MAR·MOT.] mar·mot (mär'mət) n. Any of various stocky, coarse-furred, burrowing rodents of the genus Marmota, having short legs and ears and short bushy tails and found throughout the Northern Hemisphere. [French marmotte, probably from mar-motter, to mumble, probably of imitative origin.]

Marne (märn) A river, about 523 km (325 mi) long, of northeast France flowing in an arc generally northwest to the Seine River near Paris. It was the scene of heavy fighting in World War I (1914 and 1918) and World War II (1944).

Ma·ro·ni (mə-rō'nē) A river of northern South America flowing about 724 km (450 mi) northward along the Suriname-French Guiana border to the Atlantic Ocean.

Mar·o·nite (mär'ə-nīt') n. A member of a Christian Uniat church, chiefly of Lebanon, the liturgy of which is conducted in Syriac. [Medieval Latin marōnīta, after Maro, fourth-century A.D. Syrian religious leader.] —Mar'o·nite' adj.

ma·roon¹ (mə-rōon') v. tr. ma·rooned, ma·roon·ing, ma·roons. 1. To put ashore on a deserted island or coast and intentionally abandon. 2. To abandon or isolate with little hope of ready rescue or escape: The travelers were marooned by the blizzard. — n. 1. Often Maroon. a. A fugitive Black slave in the West Indies in the 17th and 18th centuries. b. A descendant of such a slave. 2. A person who is marooned, as on an island. [From French marron, fugitive slave, from American Spanish cimarrón, wild, runaway, perhaps from cima, summit, from Latin cŷma, sprout. See CYMA.]

WORD HISTORY: The history of the word maroon, which we associate with desert islands, takes us back to the days of slavery, when the noun maroon was a term in English for a Black person who lived in the mountains and forests of Dutch Guiana (Suriname) and the West Indies, a term that is still used in parts of the Caribbean. These were plantation slaves who had run away to live free in uncultivated parts. The English word is taken from the French word marron, “runaway Black slave,” which in turn was an alteration of American Spanish cimarrón, meaning “runaway slave.” Cimarrón is perhaps from cima, “summit.” Having come into English (first recorded in 1666), maroon took on a life of its own and came to be used as a verb meaning “to be lost in the wilds,” from which our sense “to put ashore on a deserted island or coast” evolved.

ma-roon² (mə-rōon′) n. Color. A dark reddish brown to dark purplish red.

[French marron, chestnut, from Italian marrone.]

Ma-roon Peak (mə-rōon′ pēk) A mountain, 4,317.6 m (14,156 ft) high, in the Elk Mountains of west-central Colorado.

Ma-rot (mä-rō′), Clément. 1496?-1544. French poet known especially for his Epistles (1526-1539).

mar-plot (mär′plöt′) n. A stupid, officious meddler whose interference compromises the success of an undertaking. [After Marplot, a character in The Busy Body, a play by Susannah Centlivre (1669-1723).]

Mar-quand (mär-kwōnd′), John Phillips. 1893-1960. American writer who created the Japanese sleuth Mr. Moto and wrote comic novels about rich New England families, including The Late George Apley (1937).

marque (märk) n. A model or brand of a manufactured product, especially an automobile. [French, from Old French. See MARQUETRY.]

mar-quee (mär-kē′) n. 1. A large tent with open sides, used chiefly for outdoor entertainment. 2. A rooflike structure, often bearing a signboard, projecting over an entrance, as to a theater or hotel. In this sense, also called marquise [French marquise, marquise, marquee. See MARQUISE.]

Mar-que-san (mär-kā′zən, -sən) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of the Marquesas Islands. 2. The Austronesian language of the Marquesans. — adj. Of or relating to the Marquesas Islands or their people, language, or culture.

Mar-que-sas Islands (mär-kā′zəz ī′ləndz, -səz, -səs) A volcanic archipelago in the southern Pacific Ocean, part of French Polynesia. The southern islands were discovered by a Spanish navigator in 1595; the northern group, by an American seafarer in 1791. France took possession of the islands in 1842.

mar-quest (mär′kwis) n. Variant of marquis.

mar-que-try also mar-que-terie (mär′kī-trē) n. pl. mar-que-tries also mar-que-teries. Material, such as wood or ivory, inlaid piece by piece into a wood surface in an intricate design and veneered to another surface, especially of furniture, for decoration. [French marqueterie, from Old French, from marqueter, to checker, from marque, mark, ultimately from Old Norse merki, mark. See merg- in Appendix.]

Mar-quette (mär-kět') A city of northwest Michigan on the Upper Peninsula and Lake Superior. It is a shipping center for iron ore and various manufactures. Population, 21,977.

Mar-quette (mär-kět'), Père Jacques. 1637-1675. French missionary who in 1673 accompanied Louis Jolliet on an extensive exploration of the Wisconsin, Mississippi, and Illinois rivers.

mar-quis (mär'kwīs, mär-kē') or mar-quess (mär'kwīs) n. pl. mar-quis-es (-kwī-sīz) or mar-quis (mär-kēz') or mar-quess-es (-kwī-sīz). 1. A nobleman ranking below a duke and above an earl or a count. 2. Used as a title for such a nobleman. [Middle English marques, from Old French marchis, marquis, from marche, border country, of Germanic origin. See merg- in Appendix.]

Mar-quis (mär'kwīs), Donald Robert Perry. 1878-1937. American journalist who created the characters archy the literary cockroach and mehitabel the cat.

mar-quis-ate (mär'kwī-zīt, -sīt) n. The rank or territory of a marquis.

mar-quoise (mär-kēz') n. 1. See marchioness (n., sense 2). 2. See marquee (n., sense 2). 3. a. A finger ring set with a pointed oval stone or cluster of pointed oval stones. b. A pointed oval shape of a gem. [French, feminine of marquis, marquis. See MARQUIS.]

mar-qui-sette (mär'kī-zēt', -kwī-) n. A sheer fabric of cotton, rayon, silk, or nylon, used for clothing, curtains, and mosquito nets.

Mar-quis of Queens-ber-ry rules (mär'kwīs üv kwēnz'bēr'ē rōōlz, mär-kē'; kwēnz'bēr'ē, -bə-rē) pl.n. Sports. A set of rules in modern boxing calling for the use of gloves, the division of matches into rounds, and the ten-second count for a knockout, among other provisions. [After Eighth Marquis of. QUEENS-BERRY.]

Mar-ra-kesh or Mar-ra-kech (mär'ə-kēsh', mə-rä'kēsh) A city of west-central Morocco in the foothills of the Atlas Mountains. Founded in 1062, it is a commercial center and a popular resort noted for its leatherwork. Population, 439,728.

mar-ram (mär'əm) n. See beach grass. [Of Scandinavian origin. See mori- in Appendix.]

Mar-ra-no (mə-rä'nō) n. pl. Mar-ra-nos. A Spanish or Portuguese Jew who was forcibly converted to Christianity in the late Middle Ages but who continued to practice Judaism in secret. [Spanish, pig, Marrano (from the Jewish prohibition against eating pork), probably from Arabic maḥram, something forbidden.]

Mar-re-ro (mə-rär'ō, -rēr'ō) A community of southeast Louisiana, a suburb of New Orleans on the Mississippi River. Population, 36,548.

mar-riage (mär'ij) n. 1. a. The legal union of a man and woman as husband and wife. b. Wedlock. 2. A wedding. 3. A close union: "the most successful marriage of beauty and blood in mainstream comics" (Lloyd Rose). 4. Games. The combination of the king and queen of the same suit, as in pinochle. [Middle English mariage, from Old French, from marier, to marry. See MARRY¹.]

mar·riage·a·ble (măr'ī-jə-bəl) adj. Suitable for marriage: of marriageable age. — mar'riage·a·bil'i·ty, mar'riage·a·ble·ness n.

marriage of convenience (măr'ij üv kən-vən'yəns) n. pl. marriages of convenience. A marriage or joint undertaking arranged for political, economic, or social benefit rather than from personal attachment.

mar·ried (măr'ēd) adj. Abbr. mar., m. 1. a. Having a spouse: a married woman; a married man. b. United in matrimony: a married couple. 2. a. Of or relating to the state of marriage: married bliss. b. Acquired through marriage: her married name. 3. Closely connected; united. — n. pl. marrieds or mar·ried. A married person: young marrieds.

mar·ron (măr'ən, mǎ-rŌN') n. See Spanish chestnut. [French. See MAROON².]

mar·rons gla·cés (mǎ-rŌN' glǎ-sā') pl.n. Chestnuts glazed with sugar or preserved in vanilla-flavored syrup. [French : marrons, marrons + glacés, glazed.]

mar·row (măr'ō) n. 1. Bone marrow. 2. a. Spinal marrow. b. The spinal cord. 3. a. The inmost, choicest, or essential part; the pith. b. Strength or vigor; vitality. [Middle English marow, from Old English mearg.]

mar·row·bone (măr'ō-bŏn') n. 1. A bone for flavoring soup. 2. marrowbones. Informal. The knees.

mar·row·fat (măr'ō-făt') n. One of several varieties of pea that produces large seeds. Also called marrow pea marrow squash (măr'ō skwŏsh) n. An edible squash having very large, elongated greenish fruit.

mar·ry¹ (măr'ē) v. mar·ried, mar·ry·ing, mar·ries. — v. tr. 1. a. To join as spouses by exchanging vows. b. To take as a spouse. c. To give in marriage. 2. To perform a marriage ceremony for: The rabbi married the couple. 3. To obtain by marriage: marry money. 4. Nautical. To join (two ropes) end to end by interweaving their strands. 5. To unite in a close, usually permanent way: "His material marries the domestic and the exotic" (Clifton Fadiman). — v. intr. 1. To take a husband or wife; wed: They married in their twenties. 2. To combine or blend agreeably: Let the flavors marry overnight. [Middle English marien, from Old French marier, from Latin marītāre, from marītus, married.]

mar·ry² (măr'ē) interj. Archaic. Used as an exclamation of surprise or emphasis. [Middle English Marie, the Virgin Mary, ultimately from Greek Maria. See MARI-ONETTE.]

Mar·ry·at (măr'ē-ət), Frederick. 1792-1848. British naval officer and writer whose works include the novel Mr. Midshipman Easy (1834-1836) and the children's book Masterman Ready (1841).

Mars (märz) n. 1. Roman Mythology. The god of war. 2. The fourth planet from the sun, having a sidereal period of revolution about the sun of 687 days at a mean distance of 227.8 million kilometers (141.6 million miles) and a mean diameter of approximately 6,726 kilometers (4,180 miles). [Middle English, from Latin Mārs.]

Mar-sa-la¹ (mär-sä'lə) A city of western Sicily on the Mediterranean Sea. Founded by the Carthaginians c. 397 B.C., it is noted for its wine. Population, 46,300.

Mar-sa-la² (mär-sä'lə) n. A sweet or dry fortified wine of Sicilian origin. — adj. Cooked or flavored with Marsala: veal Marsala. [Italian, after Marsala¹.]

mar-seille (mär-säl') also mar-seilles (-sälz') n. A heavy cotton fabric with a raised pattern of stripes or figures. [After Marseilles.]

Mar-seilles also Mar-seille (mär-säl') A city of southeast France on an arm of the Mediterranean Sea west-northwest of Toulon. The oldest city of France, it was founded c. 600 B.C. by Greeks from Asia Minor and overrun by barbarian tribes in the 5th and 6th centuries A.D. Marseilles became independent in the 13th century and passed to France in 1481. Today it is an industrial center and a major seaport. Population, 874,436.

marsh (märsh) n. An area of soft, wet, low-lying land, characterized by grassy vegetation and often forming a transition zone between water and land. [Middle English, from Old English mersc. See mori- in Appendix.]

Marsh (märsh), Ngaio. 1899-1982. New Zealand writer known for her detective novels, including A Man Lay Dead (1934) and Last Ditch (1977).

Marsh (märsh), Othniel Charles. 1831-1899. American paleontologist noted for his study of vertebrate fossils found in the northwestern United States.

Marsh (märsh), Reginald. 1898-1954. American painter whose works, such as Why Not Use the 'L'? and The Bowery (both 1930), depict life in New York City.

mar-shal (mär'shəl) n. 1. a. A military officer of the highest rank in some countries. b. A field marshal. 2. a. A U.S. federal officer of a judicial district who carries out court orders and discharges duties similar to those of a sheriff. b. A city law enforcement officer in the United States who carries out court orders. c. The head, especially of a fire department in the United States. d. A fire marshal. 3. A person in charge of a parade or ceremony. 4. A high official in a royal court, especially one aiding the sovereign in military affairs. — v.

mar-shaled also mar-shalled, mar-shal-ing also marshal-ing, mar-shals also mar-shals. — v. tr. 1. To arrange or place (troops, for example) in line for a parade, maneuver, or review. 2. To arrange, place, or set in methodical order: marshal facts in preparation for an exam. See Synonyms at arrange. 3. To enlist and organize: trying to marshal public support. 4. To guide ceremoniously; conduct or usher. — v. intr. 1. To take up positions in or as if in a military formation. 2. To take form or order: facts marshaling as research progressed. [Middle

English, from Old French mareschal, of Germanic origin.] —mar'shal·cy, mar'shal·ship n.

WORD HISTORY: Hard-riding marshals of the Wild West in pursuit of criminals reemphasize the relationship of the word marshal with horses. The Germanic ancestor of our word marshal is a compound made up of ·marhaz, “horse” (related to the source of our word mare), and ·skalkaz, “servant,” meaning as a whole literally “horse servant,” hence “groom.” The Frankish descendant of this Germanic word, ·marahskalk, starting from these humble beginnings, came to designate a high royal official and also a high military commander, not surprisingly so, given the importance of the horse in medieval warfare. The word passed into the period (beginning in 800) in which we speak of Old French, after the Franks and their Germanic language had been fused with the surrounding culture descended from Roman Gaul. When the Normans established a French-speaking official class in England, the Old French word came with them. The Middle English source of our word is first recorded as a surname in 1218 (and the surname Marshal, now spelled Marshall, has been held by some famous people), but it is first recorded as a common noun with the sense “high officer of the royal court” in the first English language proclamation (1258) by an English king, Henry III, after the Norman Conquest. Marshal was applied to this high royal official’s deputies, who were officers of courts of law, and the word continued to designate various officials involved with courts of law and law enforcement, including the horseback-riding marshals we are familiar with in the United States.

Mar·shall (mär'shəl) A city of northeast Texas west of Shreveport, Louisiana. It is a manufacturing center in a resort region. Population, 23,682.

Mar·shall (mär'shəl), George Catlett. 1880-1959. American soldier, diplomat, and politician. As U.S. secretary of state (1947-1949) he organized the European Recovery Program, often called the Marshall Plan, for which he received the 1953 Nobel Peace Prize.

Mar·shall (mär'shəl), John. 1755-1835. American jurist and politician who served as the chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1801-1835) and helped establish the practice of judicial review.

Mar·shall (mär'shəl), Louis. 1856-1929. American lawyer and religious leader noted as a defender of the rights of minority groups.

Mar·shall (mär'shəl), Thomas Riley. 1854-1925. Vice President of the United States (1913-1921) under Woodrow Wilson.

Mar·shall (mär'shəl), Thurgood. 1908-1993. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1967-1991).

Marshall Islands (mär'shəl i'ləndz) A self-governing island group in the central Pacific Ocean. First sighted by Spanish explorers in the early 16th century, they were governed by Spain and Germany until 1920, when they became a Japanese mandate. From 1947 until 1979 they were part of the U.S. Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. In 1986 the islands became a republic. Population, 30,873.

Mar·shall·town (mär'shəl-toun') A city of central Iowa northeast of Des Moines. It is a transportation and trade center. Population, 25,178.

marsh elder (märsh ěl'dər) n. Any of several herbs or shrubs of the genus Iva of eastern and central North America, often growing in salt marshes and having nodding, greenish flower heads with unisexual flowers.

Marsh·field (märsh'fēld') 1. A town of southeast Massachusetts on Massachusetts Bay southeast of Boston. The burial place of Daniel Webster, it is now a resort community. Population, 21,531. 2. A city of central Wisconsin southwest of Wausau. It is a processing center in a dairy region. Population, 19,291.

marsh gas (märsh gäs) n. Methane.

marsh hawk (märsh hôk) n. See northern harrier.

marsh hen (märsh hĕn) n. Any of various marsh birds of the family Rallidae, which includes the gallinules, coots, and rails.

marsh·land (märsh'länd') n. A marshy tract of land.

marsh·mal·low (märsh'mĕl'ō, -mäl'ō) n. 1. a. A light, spongy, very sweet confection made of corn syrup, gelatin, sugar, and starch and dusted with powdered sugar. b. A confection of sweetened paste, formerly made from the root of the marshmallow plant. 2. Often marsh mallow. Botany. A perennial plant (Althaea officinalis) native to Europe and naturalized in marshes of eastern North America, having showy pink flowers and a mucilaginous root occasionally used as a demulcent and in confectionery. 3. Slang. A timid, cowardly, or ineffective person. —marsh'mal'low·y adj.

marsh marigold (märsh măr'i-göld') n. Any of several plants of the genus Caltha, especially C. palustris, growing in swampy places and having bright yellow flowers. Also called cowslip marsh·y (mär'shĕ) adj. marsh·i·er, marsh·i·est. 1. Of, resembling, or characterized by a marsh or marshes; boggy. 2. Growing in marshes. —marsh/i·ness n.

Mar·sil·i·us of Pad·u·a (mär-sĭl'ē-əs ūf päj'ōō-ə, päd'yōō-ə), 1280?-1343?. Italian philosopher who wrote Defender of the Peace, a work that denied the secular authority of the pope.

Mar·ston (mär'stən), John. 1575?-1634. English playwright whose works include The Malcontent and The Dutch Courtezan (both 1604).

Marston Moor (mär'stən mōor) A site in northern England west of York. The first Parliamentary victory of the English Civil War occurred here on July 2, 1644.

mar·su·pi·a (mär-sōō'-pĕ-ə) n. Plural of marsupium.

mar·su·pi·al (mär-sōō'pē-əl) n. Any of various nonplacental mammals of the order Marsupialia, including kangaroos, opossums, bandicoots, and wombats, found principally in Australia and the Americas. — adj. 1. Of or belonging to the order Marsupialia. 2. Of or relating to a marsupium. [From MARSUPIUM.]

mar·su·pi·um (mär-sōō'pē-əm) n. pl. mar·su·pi·a (-pē-ə). 1. An external pouch or fold on the abdomen of most female marsupials, containing the mammary glands and in which the young continue to develop after leaving the uterus. 2. A temporary egg pouch in various fishes and crustaceans. [Late Latin marsūpium, pouch, from Latin marsīpium, marsuppium, from Greek marsippion, marsipion, diminutive of marsippos, marsuppos, purse, perhaps of Iranian origin; akin to Avestan marsū-, belly, paunch.]

mart (märt) n. 1. A trading center; a market. 2. Archaic. A fair. [Middle English, probably from Middle Flemish, from Vulgar Latin marcātus*. See MARKET.]

Mart. abbr. Martinique.

Mar·ta·ban (mär'tə-băn', -băn') , Gulf of. An arm of the Andaman Sea off southern Burma.

mar·ta·gon (mär'tə-gən) n. A Eurasian lily (Lilium martagon) usually having pinkish-purple, spotted flowers. Also called Turk's-cap lily [Middle English, from Old French, from Old Spanish, from Ottoman Turkish mārtağān, a kind of turban.]

Mar·tel (mär-těl'), Charles. See Charles Martel.

mar·ten (mär'tn) n. pl. marten or mar·tens. 1. Any of several principally arboreal carnivorous mammals of the genus Martes, related to the weasel, mainly inhabiting northern forests, and having a slender body, bushy tail, and soft fur. 2. The fur of one of these carnivorous mammals. [Middle English martrin, marten, from Old French martrine, from feminine of martrin, pertaining to the marten (from martre, marten), and from Medieval Latin martrīna both of Germanic origin.]

mar·ten·site (mär'tn-zīt') n. A solid solution of iron and up to 1 percent of carbon, the chief constituent of hardened carbon tool steels. [After Adolf Martens (1850-1914), German metallurgist.] — mar'ten·sit'ic (-zīt'ĭk) adj.

Mar·tha (mär'thə) In the New Testament, the sister of Lazarus and Mary and a friend of Jesus.

Mar·tha's Vine·yard (mär'thəz vĭn'yərd) An island of southeast Massachusetts off the southwest coast of Cape Cod. Settled in 1642, it was a whaling and fishing center in the 18th and early 19th centuries and is now a popular resort area.

Mar·tí (mär-tē'), José Julian. 1853-1895. Cuban revolutionary leader and poet who was killed while fighting for Cuban independence from Spain.

mar·tial (mär/'shəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or suggestive of war. 2. Relating to or connected with the armed forces or the profession of arms. 3. Characteristic of or befitting a warrior. [Middle English, from Latin Mārtiālis, from Mārs, Mārt-, Mars.] —mar'tial-ism n. —mar'tial-ist n. —mar'tial-ly adv.

Mar·tial (mär/'shəl), fl. first century B.C. Roman poet known for his books of epigrams.

martial art (mär/'shəl ärt) n. Any of several Oriental arts of combat or self-defense, such as aikido, karate, judo, or tae kwon do, usually practiced as sport. Often used in the plural.

martial law (mär/'shəl lô) n. 1. Temporary rule by military authorities, imposed on a civilian population especially in time of war or when civil authority has broken down. 2. The law imposed on an occupied territory by occupying military forces.

Mar·tian (mär/'shən) adj. Of or relating to the planet Mars or its hypothetical inhabitants. — n. A hypothetical inhabitant of the planet Mars, especially as a stock fictional character. [Middle English marciēn, from Latin Mārtius, from Mārs, Mārt-, Mars.]

mar·tin (mär/'tn) n. Any of various swallows, such as the house martin or the purple martin. [Middle English martoune, probably from the name Martin, Martin.]

Mar·tin I (mär/'tn), Saint. Died 655. Pope (649-655) who was banished by Emperor Constans II (630-668) because of disagreements concerning the nature of Christ.

Mar·tin V (mär/'tn), Originally Oddo Colonna. 1366-1431. Pope (1417-1431) who restored the authority of the Church in the Papal States.

Mar·tin (mär/'tn), Archer John Porter. Born 1910. British chemist. He shared a 1952 Nobel Prize for the development of partition chromatography.

Mar·tin (mär/'tn), Homer Dodge. 1836-1897. American painter whose landscapes include Lake Sanford (1870) and The Harp of the Winds (1895).

Mar·tin (mär/'tn), Lillian Jane. 1851-1943. American psychologist noted for her pioneering work in gerontology.

Mar·tin (mär/'tn), Mary. 1913-1990. American actress who has appeared in numerous Broadway hits, including Peter Pan (1954) and The Sound of Music (1959-1960).

Mar·tin Du Gard (mär-tän' dü gār'), Roger. 1881-1958. French writer whose novels include the eight-part series The Thibaults (1922-1940). He won the 1937 Nobel Prize for literature.

Mar·ti-neau (mär/'tn-ō), Harriet. 1802-1876. British writer whose Illustrations of Political Economy (1832-1834) explained the economic theories of Malthus, Mill, and Ricardo.

mar·ti·net (mär'tn-ět') n. 1. A rigid military disciplinarian. 2. One who demands absolute adherence to forms and rules. [After Jean Martinet (died 1672), French army officer.]

Mar·ti·nez (mär-tē'nəs) 1. A city of western California northeast of Oakland. It is a manufacturing and processing center. Population, 31,808. 2. A community of eastern Georgia, a suburb of Augusta. Population, 33,731.

mar·tin·gale (mär'tn-gäl') also mar·tin·gal (-gäl') n. 1. The strap of a horse's harness that connects the girth to the noseband and is designed to prevent the horse from throwing back its head. 2. Nautical. Any of several parts of standing rigging strengthening the bowsprit and jib boom against the force of the head stays. 3. Games. A method of gambling in which one doubles the stakes after each loss. 4. A loose half belt or strap placed on the back of a garment, such as a coat or jacket. [French, perhaps alteration of Spanish almártaga, almártiga, rein, harness, of Arabic origin.]

mar·ti·ni (mär-tē'nē) n. pl. mar·ti·nis. A cocktail made of gin or vodka and dry vermouth. [Origin unknown.]

Mar·ti·ni (mär-tē'nē), Simone. 1283?-1344. Italian painter whose work is representative of the Sieneese Gothic style.

Mar·ti·nique (mär'tī-nēk', -tn-ək') Abbr. Mart. An island and overseas department of France in the Windward Islands of the West Indies. Discovered by Columbus in 1502, it was colonized by French settlers after 1635. Fort-de-France is the capital. Population, 328,566.

Martin Luther King Day (mär'tn lōō'thər kīŋg dā) n. The third Monday in January, observed in the United States in commemoration of the birthday of Martin Luther King, Jr.

Mar·tin·mas (mär'tn-məs) n. 1. A Christian feast observed in commemoration of the death and burial of Saint Martin of Tours. 2. November 11, the day on which this feast is observed. [Middle English martinmesse : Martin, Saint Martin of Tours + messe, masse, Mass; see MASS.]

Mar·tin of Tours (mär'tn üv tōör, mär-tän'; tōör, tōör), Saint. A.D. 316?-397?. French prelate considered the patron saint of France.

Mar·tins (mär'tnz), Peter. Born 1946. Danish-born ballet dancer who became co-ballet master of the New York City Ballet in 1983.

Mar·tin·son (mär'tn-sôn', -tēn-), Harry Edmund. 1904-1978. Swedish writer whose works include the proletarian novel The Road (1948) and Aniara (1956), an epic poem about space travel. He shared the 1974 Nobel Prize for literature.

Mar·tins·ville (mär'tnz-vīl') An independent city of southern Virginia in the foothills of the Blue Ridge near the North Carolina border. It was founded in 1793. Population, 16,162.

mart·let (märt/'līt) n. 1. See house martin. 2. Heraldry. A representation of a bird without feet, used as a crest or bearing to indicate a fourth son. [French marcelet, from Martin, Saint Martin of Tours.]

mar·tyr (mär/'tər) n. 1. One who chooses to suffer death rather than renounce religious principles. 2. One who makes great sacrifices or suffers much in order to further a belief, cause, or principle. 3. a. One who endures great suffering: a martyr to arthritis. b. One who makes a great show of suffering in order to arouse sympathy. — v. tr. mar·tyred, mar·tyr·ing, mar·tyrs. 1. To make a martyr of, especially to put to death for devotion to religious beliefs. 2. To inflict great pain on; torment. [Middle English, from Old English, from Late Latin, from Late Greek martur, from Greek martus, martur-, witness.]

mar·tyr·dom (mär/'tər-dəm) n. 1. a. The state of being a martyr. b. The suffering of death by a martyr. 2. Extreme suffering of any kind.

mar·tyr·ize (mär/'tə-rīz') v. tr. mar·tyr·ized, mar·tyr·iz·ing, mar·tyr·iz·es. To martyr. — mar'tyr·i·za'tion (-tər-ī-zā/'shən) n.

mar·tyr·ol·o·gy (mär/'tə-röl'ə-jē) n. pl. mar·tyr·ol·o·gies. 1. An official list or catalog of religious martyrs, especially of Christian martyrs. 2. a. An account of the life and manner of death of a martyr. b. The branch of ecclesiastical history or hagiography that deals with martyrs. — mar'tyr·ol·o·gist n.

mar·vel (mär/'vəl) n. 1. One that evokes surprise, admiration, or wonder. See Synonyms at wonder. 2. Strong surprise; astonishment. — v. mar·veled also mar·velled, mar·vel·ing also mar·vel·ling, mar·vels also mar·vels. — v. intr. To become filled with wonder or astonishment. — v. tr. To feel amazement or bewilderment at or about: We marveled that they walked away unhurt from the car accident. [Middle English marvail, from Old French merveille, from Vulgar Latin mīribilia*, alteration of Latin mīrabilia, wonderful things, from neuter pl. of mīrabilis, wonderful, from mīrārī, to wonder, from mīrus, wonderful. See smei- in Appendix.]

Mar·vell (mär/'vəl), Andrew. 1621-1678. English metaphysical poet whose frequently satirical work includes the poems “To His Coy Mistress” (1650) and “The Definition of Love” (1681).

mar·vel·ous also mar·vel·lous (mär/'və-ləs) adj. 1. Causing wonder or astonishment. 2. Miraculous; supernatural. 3. Of the highest or best kind or quality; first-rate: has a marvelous collection of rare books. — mar'vel·ous·ly adv. — mar'vel·ous·ness n.

Marx (märks) Family of American comedians, including the brothers Julius (1890-1977), known as “Groucho”; Leonard (1891-1961), known as “Chico”; Arthur (1893-1964), known as “Harpo”; and Herbert (1901-1979), known as “Zeppo.” Some of their many popular motion pictures include Horse Feathers (1932) and Duck Soup (1933).

Marx (märks), Karl. 1818-1883. German philosopher, economist, and revolutionary. With the help and support of Friedrich Engels he wrote The Communist Manifesto (1848) and Das Kapital (1867-1894). These works explain historical development in terms of the interaction of contradictory economic forces, form the basis of all communist theory, and have had a profound influence on the social sciences.

Marx·i·an (märk'sē-ən) n. One that studies, advocates, or makes use of Karl Marx's philosophical or socioeconomic concepts as a method of analysis and interpretation, as in political economy or historical or literary criticism.

—Marx'i·an adj. —Marx'i·an·ism n.

Marx·ism (märk'siz'əm) n. The political and economic ideas of Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels, specifically a system of thought in which the concept of class struggle plays a primary role in analyzing Western society in general and in understanding its allegedly inevitable development from bourgeois oppression under capitalism to a socialist society and thence to Communism.

Marx·ism·Len·in·ism (märk'siz'əm-lən'i-niz'əm) n. The expansion of Marxism to include both Lenin's concept of imperialism as the final form of capitalism and a shift in the focus of struggle from the developed to the underdeveloped countries.

Marx·ist (märk'sist) n. One that believes in or follows the ideas of Marx and Engels, especially a militant Communist. —Marx'ist adj.

Mar·y¹ (mâr'ē) In the New Testament, the mother of Jesus and the principal saint of many Christian churches.

Mar·y² (mâr'ē) In the New Testament, a sister of Lazarus and Martha and a friend of Jesus.

Mar·y³ (mâr'ē) also Mary of Teck (tĕk), 1867-1953. Queen of George V of Great Britain and the mother of Edward VIII and George VI.

Mar·y I or Mar·y Tu·dor (mâr'ē tōō'dər, tyōō'-), 1516-1558. Queen of England and Ireland (1553-1558) who reestablished Roman Catholicism (1555). Her persecution of Protestants earned her the nickname "Bloody Mary."

Mar·y II (mâr'ē), 1662-1694. Queen of England, Scotland, and Ireland (1689-1694). The eldest daughter of James II, she ruled jointly with her husband, William III, the former William of Orange, at the behest of the Protestant opponents of her father.

Mar·y Jane (mâr'ē jān') n. Slang. Marijuana. [Possibly translation of Spanish María Juana, Mary Jane, by folk etymology from mariguana, marijuana. See MARIJUANA.]

Mar·y Janes (mâr'ē jānz) A trademark used for patent leather shoes for girls, usually having a low heel and a single strap that fastens at the side.

Mar·y·land (mĕr'ə-lənd) Abbr. MD, Md. A state of the east-central United States. It was admitted as one of the original Thirteen Colonies in 1788. The colony was founded by Lord Baltimore in 1634 as a refuge for English Roman Catholics. Annapolis is the capital and Baltimore the largest city. Population, 4,798,622. —Mar'y-land-er n.

Mar-y Mag-da-lene (mâr'ē măg'də-lən, -lĕn') In the New Testament, a woman whom Jesus cured of evil spirits. She is also identified with the repentent prostitute who washed the feet of Jesus.

Mar-y of Teck (mâr'ē ūv tĕk) See Mary³.

Mar-y-ol-o-gy (mâr'ē-ŏl'ə-jē) n. Variant of Mariology.

Mar-y Queen of Scots (mâr'ē kwĕn ūf skŏts), also Mary Stu-art (stŏŏ'ärt, styŏŏ'-) 1542-1587. Queen of Scotland (1542-1567). The Catholic monarch during the bitter Scottish Reformation, she was forced to abdicate in favor of her son, the future James I of England. After fleeing to England (1568), she was imprisoned by Elizabeth I. Catholic supporters plotted to place her on the English throne, resulting in her trial and execution for sedition.

Mar-y Tu-dor (mâr'ē tŏŏ'dər, tyŏŏ'-) See Mary I.

Mar-y-ville (mâr'ē-vĭl', mĕr'ĭ-vəl, -vĭl') A city of eastern Tennessee south of Knoxville. It is an aluminum-producing center. Population, 19,208.

mar-zi-pan (măr'zə-păn', märt'sə-păn') n. A confection made of ground almonds or almond paste, egg whites, and sugar, often molded into decorative shapes. [German, from Italian marzapane, container of a standard size, marzipan, from obsolete, fine box for comfits or originally rare coins, from Arabic mawṭabān, king on the throne, Byzantine coin with enthroned Christ figure.]

Ma-sac-cio (mə-sä'chĕ-ŏ, mə-sät'chŏ), 1401-1428. Italian painter of the Florentine school whose revolutionary use of linear perspective and mastery of light and shade profoundly influenced Renaissance painting.

Ma-sa-da (mə-sä'də, -tsä-dä') An ancient mountaintop fortress in southeast Israel on the southwest shore of the Dead Sea. In A.D. 73, after a two-year siege, members of the Zealot Jewish sect committed mass suicide rather than surrender to the Romans.

Ma-sai (mä-sī', mä'sī) n. pl. Masai or Ma-sais. 1. A member of a chiefly pastoral people of Kenya and parts of Tanzania. 2. Also Maa-sai. The Nilotic language of this people. —Ma-sai' adj.

Ma-san (mä'sän') A city of southeast South Korea west of Pusan. Its port was opened to foreign trade in 1899. Population, 424,000.

Mas-a-ryk (mä'sə-rĭk, mä'sä-), Tomáš Garrigue. 1850-1937. Czechoslovakian politician who served as the first president of independent Czechoslovakia (1918-1935). His son Jan Garrigue Masaryk (1886-1948) was the foreign minister of the provisional government in London (1940-1945) and the restored government in Prague (1945-1948).

Mas-ba-te (mä-sbä'tĕ, -tĕ) An island of the central Philippines south of Luzon. Its gold mines have been worked for centuries.

masc. abbr. Grammar. Masculine.

Mas-ca-gni (mä-s-kän'yē), Pietro. 1863-1945. Italian composer noted for his operas, including Iris (1898).

mas-car-a (mä-skär'ə) n. A cosmetic applied to darken the eyelashes. — v. tr. mas-car-aed, mas-car-a-ing, mas-car-as. To apply mascara to. [Probably Spanish máscara, mask; akin to Italian maschera. See MASK.]

Mas-ca-rene Islands (mä's-kə-rēn' ī'ləndz) A group of islands in the Indian Ocean east of Madagascar. Mauritius and the French island of Réunion are in the group.

mas-car-po-ne (mä's-kär-pō'ně, -pōn') n. A fresh, soft Italian cheese with a high butterfat content, made from cow's milk enriched with cream. [Italian, augmentative of dialectal mascarpa, whey cheese.]

mas-con (mä's-kōn') n. A mare on the moon having rock of greater density than that of the surrounding area, thus exerting a slightly higher gravitational force. [MAS(S) + CON(CENTRATION).]

mas-cot (mä's-kōt', -kət) n. A person, an animal, or an object believed to bring good luck, especially one kept as the symbol of an organization such as a sports team. [French mascotte, sorcerer's charm, mascot, from Provençal mascolo, sorcery, fetish, from masco, witch, ultimately from Late Latin, mask, specter, witch.]

WORD HISTORY: The word mascot, which usually denotes something or someone that brings good luck, enjoys a positive meaning that is a distinct improvement over the meanings of some of its ancestors. Mascot came into English as a borrowing of the French word mascotte, meaning “mascot, charm.” The English word is first recorded in 1881 shortly after the French word, itself first recorded in 1867, was popularized by the opera La Mascotte, performed in December 1880. The French word in turn came from the Modern Provençal word mascolo, “piece of witchcraft, charm, amulet,” a feminine diminutive of masco, “witch.” This word can probably be traced back to Late Latin masca, “witch, specter.” Perhaps a mascot is as powerful as people think; fortunately, it is now in our corner.

Mas-couche (mä-skōōsh') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, a suburb of Montreal on the upper bank of the St. Lawrence River. Population, 20,345.

mas-cu-line (mä's-kyə-līn) adj. 1. Of or relating to men or boys; male.

2. Suggestive or characteristic of a man; mannish. See Synonyms at male. 3.

Abbr. masc., m., M. Grammar. Relating or belonging to the gender of words or grammatical forms that refer chiefly to males or to things classified as male.

4. Music. Ending on an accented beat: a masculine cadence. — n. 1. Abbr.

masc., m., M. Grammar. a. The masculine gender. b. A word or word form of the masculine gender. 2. A male person. [Middle English masculin, from Old masculine ending (mäs'kyə-līn ěn'dĩng) n. 1. A stressed syllable that ends a line of verse. 2. Grammar. A final syllable or termination that marks or forms words in the masculine gender.

French, from Latin māsculīnus, from māsculus, male, diminutive of mās.]

—mas'cu-line-ly adv. —mas'cu-line-ness n.

masculine rhyme (mäs'kyə-līn rīm) n. A rhyme made on a single stressed syllable, as in sky/fly.

mas-cu-lin-i-ty (mäs'kyə-līn'ī-tē) n. pl. mas-cu-lin-i-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being masculine. 2. Something traditionally considered to be characteristic of a male.

mas-cu-lin-ize (mäs'kyə-lə-nīz') v. tr. mas-cu-lin-ized, mas-cu-lin-iz-ing, mas-cu-lin-iz-es. 1. To give a masculine appearance or character to. 2. To cause (a female) to assume masculine characteristics, as through hormonal imbalance or male hormone therapy. —mas'cu-lin-i-za'tion (-lə-nī-zā'shən) n.

Mase-field (mäs'fēld'), John. 1878-1967. British writer primarily known for his poetry, including the colloquial Everlasting Mercy (1911) and the Chaucerian Reynard the Fox (1919). He became poet laureate in 1930.

ma-ser (mā'zər) n. Any of several devices that amplify or generate electromagnetic waves, especially microwaves. [m(icrowave) a(mplification by) s(timulated) e(mission of) r(adiation).]

Mas-er-u (mäz'ə-rōō', mä'sə-rōō') The capital of Lesotho, in the western part of the country. It was founded in 1869. Population, 14,686.

mash (mäsh) n. 1. A fermentable starchy mixture from which alcohol or spirits can be distilled. 2. A mixture of ground grain and nutrients fed to livestock and fowl. 3. A soft, pulpy mixture or mass. 4. A crushing or grinding. — v. tr.

mashed, mash-ing, mash-es. 1. To convert (malt or grain) into mash. 2. To convert into a soft, pulpy mixture: mash potatoes. 3. To crush or grind. See Synonyms at crush. 4. Slang. To flirt with or make sexual advances to. [Middle English mash, as in mashfat, mash tub, from Old English māsc*, māsc*, māx-*, in *māxwyr*t, wort; see meik- in Appendix. V., sense 4, perhaps from Romany mash, to entice.]

MASH abbr. Mobile Army Surgical Hospital.

mash-er (mäsh'ər) n. 1. A kitchen utensil for mashing vegetables or fruit.

2. Slang. A man who attempts to force his attentions on a woman.

Ma-she-brum (müsh'ər-brōōm') A peak, 7,826.3 m (25,660 ft) high, in the Karakoram Range of the Himalaya Mountains in northern India. It was first scaled in 1960.

mash-gi-ah or mash-gi-ach (mäsh-gē'äkH) n. pl. mash-gi-him or mash-gi-chim (-gē'KHīm, -gē-KHēm'). An Orthodox rabbi, or a person appointed or approved by such a rabbi, whose responsibility is to prevent violations of Jewish dietary laws by inspection of slaughterhouses, meat markets, and restaurants where food assumed to be kosher is prepared for the public. [Hebrew mašgîah.]

Mash·had (mə-shād', mǎsh-hād') See Meshed.

mash·ie also mash·y (mǎsh'ē) n. pl. mash·ies. Sports. A five iron used in golf. [Perhaps from French massue, club, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin matteūca*, from mattea*, mace. See MACE¹.]

mashie niblick (mǎsh'ē nīb'līk) n. Sports. A six iron used in golf.

mas·jid (mūs'jīd) n. A mosque. [Arabic, from sajada, to worship.]

mask (mǎsk) n. 1. A covering worn on the face to conceal one's identity, as: a. A covering, as of cloth, that has openings for the eyes, entirely or partly conceals the face, and is worn especially at a masquerade ball. b. A grotesque or comical representation of a face, worn especially to frighten or amuse, as at Halloween. c. A facial covering worn for ritual. d. A figure of a head worn by actors in Greek and Roman drama to identify a character or trait and to amplify the voice. 2. a. A protective covering for the face or head. b. A gas mask. c. A covering for the nose and mouth that is used for inhaling oxygen or an anesthetic. d. A covering worn over the nose and mouth, as by a surgeon or dentist, to prevent infection. 3. a. A mold of a person's face, often made after death. b. An often grotesque representation of a head and face, used for ornamentation. 4. The face or facial markings of certain animals, such as foxes or dogs. 5. A face having a blank, fixed, or enigmatic expression. 6. Something, often a trait, that disguises or conceals: "If ever I saw misery under a mask, it was on her face" (Erskine Childers). 7. A natural or artificial feature of terrain that conceals and protects military forces or installations. 8. a. An opaque border or pattern placed between a source of light and a photosensitive surface to prevent exposure of specified portions of the surface. b. The translucent border framing a television picture tube and screen. 9. Computer Science. A pattern of characters, bits, or bytes used to control the elimination or retention of another pattern of characters, bits, or bytes. 10. A cosmetic preparation that is applied to the face and allowed to dry before being removed, used especially for cleansing and tightening the skin. 11. Variant of masque. 12. A person wearing a mask. — v. masked, mask·ing, masks. — v. tr. 1. To cover with a decorative or protective mask. 2. To make indistinct or blurred to the senses: spices that mask the strong flavor of the meat. 3. To cover in order to conceal, protect, or disguise. See Synonyms at disguise. 4. To block the view of: Undergrowth masked the entrance to the cave. 5. To cover (a part of a photographic film) by the application of an opaque border. 6. Chemistry. To prevent (an atom or a group of atoms) from taking part in a normal reaction. — v. intr. 1. To put on a mask, especially for a masquerade ball. 2. To conceal one's real personality, character, or intentions. [French masque, from Italian maschera, from Late Latin masca, specter, witch, mask.] — mask'able adj.

masked (mäskt) adj. 1. Wearing a mask. 2. Disguised or concealed as if by a mask: very cleverly masked emotions. 3. Latent or hidden, as a symptom or disease. 4. Botany. Personate. 5. Zoology. a. Having masklike markings on the head or face. b. Having the anatomy of the next developmental form outlined beneath the integument, as in certain insect pupae.

masked ball (mäskt bôl) n. A ball at which masks are worn.

mas-keg (mäsk'käg') n. Variant of muskeg.

mask-er also mas-quer (mäsk'kær) n. One who wears a mask, especially a participant in a masquerade or masque.

mask-ing (mäsk'king) n. 1. Physiology. The concealment or screening of one sensory process or sensation by another. 2. A piece of theatrical scenery used to conceal a part of the stage from the audience.

masking tape (mäsk'king tãp) n. An adhesive tape used to cover and protect a surface that is not to be painted.

Mas-low (mäz'lô), Abraham. 1908-1970. American psychologist and a founder of humanistic psychology who developed a hierarchical model of human motivation, in which a higher need, ultimately that for self-actualization, is expressed only after lower needs are fulfilled.

mas-och-ism (mäsk'ə-kiz'əm) n. 1. a. The act or an instance of deriving sexual gratification from being physically or emotionally abused. b. A psychological disorder in which sexual gratification is derived from being physically or emotionally abused. 2. a. The act or an instance of deriving pleasure from being offended, dominated, or mistreated. b. The tendency to seek such mistreatment. 3. The turning of destructive tendencies upon oneself. [After Leopold von Sacher-Masoch (1836-1895), Austrian novelist.] —mas'o-chist n. —mas'och-is'tic adj. —mas'och-is'ti-cal-ly adv.

ma-son (mä'sən) n. 1. One who builds or works with stone or brick. 2. Mason. A Freemason. — v. tr. ma-soned, ma-son-ing, ma-sons. To build or strengthen with masonry. [Middle English, from Old French maçon, masson, of Germanic origin. See mag- in Appendix.]

Ma-son (mä'sən), George. 1725-1792. American Revolutionary politician from Virginia. A member of the Constitutional Convention (1787), he voiced criticism that resulted in the drafting of the Bill of Rights. His grandson James Murray Mason (1798-1871) was a Confederate diplomat to Great Britain and France.

Ma-son (mä'sən), Lowell. 1792-1872. American musician and composer who developed the first music program for American public schools (1838) and composed several hymns, including "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

mason bee (mä'sən bē) n. Any of various solitary bees of the family Megachilidae, found worldwide, that build clay nests.

Mason City (mā'sən sīt'ē) A city of north-central Iowa north-northeast of Des Moines. It is a trade and industrial center in an agricultural region. Population, 29,040.

Ma-son-Dix-on Line (mā'sən-dīk'sən līn) The boundary between Pennsylvania and Maryland, regarded as the division between free and slave states before the Civil War. It was established between 1763 and 1767 by the British surveyors Charles Mason (1730-1787) and Jeremiah Dixon (died 1777).

Ma-son·ic (mə-sŏn'ik) adj. Of or relating to Freemasons or Freemasonry.

Ma-son·ite (mā'sə-nīt') A trademark used for a type of fiberboard employed for insulation, paneling, or partitions. This trademark sometimes occurs in print in lowercase: "Portions of the archways were reconstructed in masonite" (Chicago Tribune). "Four pieces of masonite... lace together like shoelaces" (New York Times).

Mason jar (mā'sən jār) n. A wide-mouthed glass jar with a screw top, used for canning and preserving food. [After John L. Mason (1832-1902), American inventor.]

ma-son·ry (mā'sən-rē) n. pl. ma-son·ries. 1. a. The trade of a mason.

b. Work done by a mason. c. Stonework or brickwork. 2. Masonry. Freemasonry.

masonry cement (mā'sən-rē sī-měnt') n. Cement used in the mortar of block and brick masonry.

mason wasp (mā'sən wŏsp) n. Any of various solitary wasps, especially of the subfamily Eumeninae, that build nests of mud.

Ma-so-ra also Ma-so-rah (mə-sŏr'ə, -sŏr'ə) n. 1. The body of Judaic tradition relating to correct textual reading of the Hebrew scriptures. 2. The critical notes made on manuscripts of the Hebrew scriptures before the tenth century, which embody this tradition. [Hebrew māsôrâ, from māsar, to hand over.]

—Mas'o-ret'ic (mäs'ə-rět'ik) adj.

masque also mask (măsk) n. 1. A dramatic entertainment, usually performed by masked players representing mythological or allegorical figures, that was popular in England in the 16th and early 17th centuries. 2. A dramatic verse composition written for such an entertainment. 3. See masquerade (n., sense 1a). [French. See MASK.]

mas-quer (măs'kər) n. Variant of masker.

mas-quer·ade (măs'kə-rād') n. 1. a. A costume party at which masks are worn; a masked ball. Also called masque b. A costume for such a party or ball.

2. a. A disguise or false outward show; a pretense: a masquerade of humility.

b. An involved scheme; a charade. — v. intr. mas-quer-ad-ed, mas-quer-ad-ing, mas-quer-ades. 1. To wear a mask or disguise, as at a masquerade: She masqueraded as a shepherd. 2. To go about as if in disguise; have or put on a deceptive appearance: The stowaway masqueraded as a crew member.

[French mascarade, from Italian mascarata, variant of mascherata, from Old Italian maschera, mask. See MASK.] —mas'quer-ad'er n.

mass (mä́s) n. 1. A unified body of matter with no specific shape: a mass of clay. 2. A grouping of individual parts or elements that compose a unified body of unspecified size or quantity: “Take mankind in mass, and for the most part, they seem a mob of unnecessary duplicates” (Herman Melville). 3. A large but nonspecific amount or number: a mass of bruises. 4. The principal part; the majority: the mass of the continent. 5. The physical volume or bulk of a solid body. 6. Abbr. m Physics. The measure of the quantity of matter that a body or an object contains. The mass of the body is not dependent on gravity and therefore is different from but proportional to its weight. 7. An area of unified light, shade, or color in a painting. 8. Pharmacology. A thick, pasty mixture containing drugs from which pills are formed. 9. masses. The body of common people or people of low socioeconomic status. Used with the. — v. tr. intr. massed, mass-ing, mass-es. To gather or be gathered into a mass. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, characteristic of, directed at, or attended by a large number of people: mass education; mass communication. 2. Done or carried out on a large scale: mass production. 3. Total; complete: The mass result is impressive. [Middle English masse, from Old French, from Latin massa, from Greek maza. See mag- in Appendix.]

Mass also mass (mä́s) n. 1. a. Public celebration of the Eucharist in the Roman Catholic Church and some Protestant churches. b. The sacrament of the Eucharist. 2. A musical setting of certain parts of the Mass, especially the Kyrie, Gloria, Credo, Sanctus, Benedictus, and Agnus Dei. [Middle English masse, from Old English mæsse, from Vulgar Latin messa*, from Late Latin missa, from Latin, feminine past participle of mittere, to send away, dismiss.]

Mass. abbr. Massachusetts.

Mas-sa (mä'sə) A city of north-central Italy near the Ligurian Sea north of Leghorn. It was the capital of an independent principality and duchy from the 15th to the 19th century. Population, 65,726.

Mas-sa-chu-sett also Mas-sa-chu-set (mä'sə-chōō'sīt, -zīt) *n. pl. Massachusett or Mas-sa-chu-setts also Massachuset or Mas-sa-chu-sets.

1. a. A Native American people formerly located along Massachusetts Bay from Plymouth north to Salem. Reduced by epidemics, the Massachusett ceased to exist as a people during the 17th century. b. A member of this people. 2. The Algonquian language of the Massachusett. [From the Massachusett name of Great Blue Hill south of Boston.]

Mas-sa-chu-setts (mä'sə-chōō'sīts) Abbr. MA, Mass. A state of the northeast United States. It was admitted as one of the original Thirteen Colonies in 1788. The first settlement was made by the Pilgrims of the Mayflower in 1620. Governed by the Massachusetts Bay Company from 1629 until 1684, the colony was a leader in the move for independence from Great Britain and the site of the first battles of the Revolutionary War in 1775. Boston is the capital and the largest city. Population, 6,029,051.

Massachusetts Bay (mä's'ə-chōō'sīts bā) An inlet of the Atlantic Ocean off eastern Massachusetts extending from Cape Ann in the north to Cape Cod in the south.

mas·sa·cre (mä's'ə-kər) n. 1. The act or an instance of killing a large number of human beings indiscriminately and cruelly. 2. The slaughter of a large number of animals. 3. Informal. A severe defeat, as in a sports event. — v. tr.

mas·sa·cred (-kərd), mas·sa·cring (-krīng, -kər-īng), mas·sa·cres. 1. To kill indiscriminately and wantonly; slaughter. 2. Informal. To defeat decisively.

[French, from Old French macecle, macecre, butchery, shambles.] —mas'sa·crer (-kər-ər, -krər) n.

mas·sage (mə-sāzh', -sāj') n. The rubbing or kneading of parts of the body to aid circulation or relax the muscles. — v. tr. mas·saged, mas·sag·ing, mas·sag·es. 1. To give a massage to. 2. To treat by means of a massage. 3. To coddle or cajole. 4. To manipulate (data, for example): Pollsters massaged the numbers to favor their candidate. [French, from masser, to massage, from Arabic masaha, to stroke, anoint, or massa, to touch.] —mas·sag'er n.

massage parlor (mə-sāzh' pār'lər) n. 1. An establishment that offers therapeutic massage. 2. An establishment that offers illicit sexual services under the guise of therapeutic massage.

Mas·sa·pe·qua (mä's-ə-pē'kwə) An unincorporated community of southeast New York on the southern coast of Long Island southeast of Mineola. It is chiefly residential. Population, 27,500. The village of Massapequa Park is to the east; its population is 22,018.

mas·sa·sau·ga (mä's'ə-sô'gə) n. A small, variably colored rattlesnake (Sistrurus catenatus) found in parts of the United States, Canada, and Mexico. [After the Mississagi, a river of southeast Ontario, Canada.]

Mas·sa·soit (mä's'ə-soit'), 1580?-1661. Wampanoag leader who aided the Pilgrim colonists and signed a peace treaty with them at Plymouth.

Mass card (mä's kărd) n. Roman Catholic Church. A card sent to a bereaved person or family indicating that the sender has arranged for a Mass to be said in memory of the deceased.

mass·cult (mä's'kült') n. Culture as popularized by the mass media. [MASS + CULT(URE).]

mass defect (mä's dē'fěkt') n. The amount by which the mass of an atomic nucleus is less than the sum of the masses of its constituent particles. Also called mass deficiency mas·sé (mä-sā') n. Games. A stroke in billiards made by striking the cue ball off center with the cue held nearly vertically, so that the cue ball moves in a curve around one ball before hitting another ball. [French, from past participle of masser, to make a massé shot, from masse, mace (an early form of billiard cue), from Old French, club. See MACE¹.]

mass-en-er-gy equivalence (mä's'ën'ər-jē ĭ-kwiv'ə-ləns) n. The physical principle that a measured quantity of energy is equivalent to a measured quantity of mass. The equivalence is expressed by Einstein's equation, $E = mc^2$, where E represents energy, m the equivalent mass, and c the speed of light.

Mas-se-net (mä's'ə-nā', mä-s-nā'), Jules Émile Frédéric. 1842-1912. French composer whose works include more than 20 operas, including Manon (1884) and Thaïs (1894).

mas-se-ter (mə-sē'tər, mə-) n. A thick muscle in the cheek that closes the jaws during chewing. [New Latin, from Greek masētēr, from masasthai, to chew.]

—mas'se-ter'ic (mä's'ī-tēr'ik) adj.

mas-seur (mä-sûr', mə-) n. A man who gives massages professionally. [French, from masser, to massage. See MASSAGE.]

mas-seuse (mä-sœz') n. A woman who gives massages professionally. [French, feminine of masseur, masseur. See MASSEUR.]

Mas-sey (mä's'ē), (Charles) Vincent. 1887-1967. Canadian politician who served as high commissioner for Canada in Great Britain (1935-1946) and as governor-general (1952-1959).

Mas-sey (mä's'ē), William Ferguson. 1856-1925. New Zealand politician who served as prime minister (1912-1925) and advocated agricultural reforms.

mas-si-cot (mä's'ī-kōt', -kō') n. 1. The mineral form of lead monoxide, PbO. 2. A yellow powder, PbO, used as a pigment. [Middle English masticot, from Old French, perhaps from Old Italian marzacotto, potter's glaze (perhaps from Spanish mazacote, mortar), possibly from Arabic mashaqūniyā, perhaps of Greek origin.]

mas-sif (mä-sēf') n. 1. A large mountain mass or compact group of connected mountains forming an independent portion of a range. 2. A large section or block of the earth's crust that is more rigid than the surrounding rock and has been moved or displaced as a unit. [French, massive, massif, from Old French. See MASSIVE.]

Mas-sif Cen-tral (mä-sēf' sən-träl', sän-) A mountainous plateau of south-central France. It includes the Cévennes and the Auvergne Mountains, which rise to the plateau's highest point, 1,887.3 m (6,188 ft).

Mas-sil-lon (mä's'ə-lən, -lōn') A city of northeast Ohio west of Canton. It is an industrial center with varied manufactures. Population, 31,007.

Mas-sine (mä-sēn'), Léonide. 1896-1979. Russian-born American dancer and choreographer who worked with Diaghilev's Ballets Russes. He choreographed more than 100 ballets, including Parade (1917), the first cubist ballet.

Mas-sin-ger (mä's'ın-jər), Philip. 1583-1640. English playwright known for his satirical comedies, most notably A New Way to Pay Old Debts (c. 1625).

mas-sive (mäś'iv) adj. 1. Consisting of or making up a large mass; bulky, heavy, and solid: a massive piece of furniture. 2. Large or imposing, as in quantity, scope, degree, intensity, or scale: "Local defense must be reinforced by the further deterrent of massive retaliatory power" (John Foster Dulles). See Synonyms at heavy. 3. Large in comparison with the usual amount: a massive dose of a drug. 4. Pathology. Affecting a large area of bodily tissue; widespread and severe: massive gangrene. 5. Mineralogy. Lacking internal crystalline structure; amorphous. 6. Geology. Without internal structure or layers and homogeneous in composition. Used of a rock. [Middle English massif, from Old French, from masse, mass. See MASS.] —mas/sive-ly adv. —mas/sive-ness n.

Mas-sive (mäś'iv), Mount. A peak, 4,398.4 m (14,421 ft) high, in the Sawatch Range of the Rocky Mountains in central Colorado.

mass-less (mäś'līs) adj. Having a mass of zero.

mass-mar-ker (mäś'mär'kīt) adj. Of, relating to, or produced for consumption by large numbers of people. Used especially of inexpensive paperback books.

mass medium (mäś mē'dē-əm) n. pl. mass media. A means of public communication reaching a large audience.

mass noun (mäś noun) n. A noun, such as sand, oil, or honesty, that denotes a substance or concept indivisible into countable units and is preceded in English indefinite constructions by modifiers such as some or much rather than a or one.

mass number (mäś nüm'bər) n. The sum of the number of neutrons and protons in an atomic nucleus. Also called nucleon number mass-pro-duce (mäś'prə-dōōs', -dyōōs') v. tr. mass-pro-duced, mass-pro-duc-ing, mass-pro-duc-es. To manufacture in large quantities often by or as if by assembly-line techniques.

mass production (mäś prə-dük'shən) n. The manufacture of goods in large quantities, often using standardized designs and assembly-line techniques.

mass spectrograph (mäś spēk'trə-gräf') n. An instrument used to determine the masses of atoms or molecules, in which a beam of charged particles is passed through an electromagnetic field that separates particles of different masses. The resulting distribution or spectrum of masses is recorded on a photographic plate.

mass-y (mäś'ē) adj. mass-i-er, mass-i-est. Having great mass or bulk; massive.

mast¹ (mäst) n. 1. Nautical. A tall vertical spar, sometimes sectioned, that rises from the keel or deck of a sailing vessel to support the sails and running rigging. 2. a. A vertical pole. b. A tall vertical antenna, as for a radio. 3. A captain's mast. [Middle English, from Old English mæst.]

mast² (mäst) n. The nuts of forest trees accumulated on the ground, used especially as food for swine. [Middle English, from Old English mæst.]

mast- pref. Variant of masto-.

mas·ta·ba also mas·ta·bah (mä's'tə-bə) n. An ancient Egyptian tomb with a rectangular base, sloping sides, and a flat roof. [Arabic maṣṭabah, stone bench.]

mast cell (mäst sēl) n. A cell found in connective tissue that contains numerous basophilic granules and releases substances such as heparin and histamine in response to injury or inflammation of bodily tissues. [Partial translation of German Mastzelle : Mast, food, mast (from Middle High German, from Old High German) + Zelle, cell.]

mas·tec·to·my (mä-stēk'tə-mē) n. pl. mas·tec·to·mies. Surgical removal of all or part of a breast, sometimes including excision of the underlying pectoral muscles and regional lymph nodes, usually performed as a treatment for cancer.

mas·ter (mä's'tər) n. Abbr. M. 1. One that has control over another or others.

2. The owner of a slave or an animal. 3. One who has control over or ownership of something: the master of a large tea plantation. 4. The captain of a merchant ship. Also called master mariner 5. An employer. 6. The man who serves as the head of a household. 7. One who defeats another; a victor. 8. a. One whose teachings or doctrines are accepted by followers. b. Master. Jesus. 9. A male teacher, schoolmaster, or tutor. 10. One who holds a master's degree. 11. a. An artist or a performer of great and exemplary skill. b. An old master. 12. A worker qualified to teach apprentices and carry on the craft independently.

13. An expert: a master of three languages. 14. a. Used formerly as a title for a man holding a naval office ranking next below a lieutenant on a warship. b. Used as a title for a man who serves as the head or presiding officer of certain societies, clubs, orders, or institutions. c. Chiefly British. Used as a title for any of various male law court officers. d. Master. Used as a title for any of various male officers having specified duties concerning the management of the British royal household. e. Master. Used as a courtesy title before the given or full name of a boy not considered old enough to be addressed as Mister. f. Archaic. Used as a form of address for a man; mister. 15. Master. A man who owns a pack of hounds or is the chief officer of a hunt. 16. An original, especially an original audio recording, from which copies can be made. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a master. 2. Principal or predominant: a master plot.

3. Controlling all other parts of a mechanism: a master switch. 4. Highly skilled or proficient: a master thief. 5. Being an original from which copies are made. — v. tr. mas·tered, mas·ter·ing, mas·ters. 1. To act as or be the master of.

2. To make oneself a master of: mastered the language in a year's study. 3. To overcome or defeat: He finally mastered his addiction to drugs. 4. To reduce to subjugation; break or tame (an animal, for example). 5. To produce a master audio recording for. 6. To season or age (dyed goods). [Middle English, from Old English māgister, mægister, and Old French maistre both from Latin magister. See meg- in Appendix.] — mas'ter·dom n.

13. An expert: a master of three languages. 14. a. Used formerly as a title for a man holding a naval office ranking next below a lieutenant on a warship. b. Used as a title for a man who serves as the head or presiding officer of certain societies, clubs, orders, or institutions. c. Chiefly British. Used as a title for any of various male law court officers. d. Master. Used as a title for any of various male officers having specified duties concerning the management of the British royal household. e. Master. Used as a courtesy title before the given or full name of a boy not considered old enough to be addressed as Mister. f. Archaic. Used as a form of address for a man; mister. 15. Master. A man who owns a pack of hounds or is the chief officer of a hunt. 16. An original, especially an original audio recording, from which copies can be made. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a master. 2. Principal or predominant: a master plot.

3. Controlling all other parts of a mechanism: a master switch. 4. Highly skilled or proficient: a master thief. 5. Being an original from which copies are made. — v. tr. mas·tered, mas·ter·ing, mas·ters. 1. To act as or be the master of. 2. To make oneself a master of: mastered the language in a year's study. 3. To overcome or defeat: He finally mastered his addiction to drugs. 4. To reduce to subjugation; break or tame (an animal, for example). 5. To produce a master audio recording for. 6. To season or age (dyed goods). [Middle English, from Old English māgister, mægister, and Old French maistre both from Latin magister. See meg- in Appendix.] — mas'ter·dom n.

mas-ter-at-arms (mä's'tär-ət-ärmz') n. pl. mas-ters-at-arms (mä's'tärz-). A petty officer assigned to maintain order.

master bedroom (mä's'tär bēd'rōm') n. A main bedroom in a house.

master chief petty officer (mä's'tär chēf pēt'ē ô'fī-sər) n. Abbr. MCPO, CPOM 1. The highest noncommissioned rank in the U.S. Navy or Coast Guard.
2. One who holds this rank.

mas-ter-ful (mä's'tär-fəl) adj. 1. Given to playing the master; imperious or domineering. 2. Fit to command. 3. Revealing mastery or skill; expert: a masterful technique; masterful moviemaking. —mas'ter-ful-ly adv.

—mas'ter-ful-ness n.

USAGE NOTE: According to a widely repeated dictum, masterful should be reserved for the sense “imperious, domineering,” as in a masterful tone of voice, whereas masterly should be the choice when the intended sense is “having the skill of a master,” as in a masterly performance of the sonata. The distinction is a nicety that some writers will want to continue to observe. But the use of masterful in the latter sense has long been common in reputable writing and cannot be regarded as incorrect.

master gunnery sergeant (mä's'tär gūn'ə-rē sār'jənt) n. Abbr. MGy Sgt

1. A noncommissioned rank in the U.S. Marine Corps that is above master sergeant and equivalent to the position of sergeant major. 2. One who holds this rank.

master key (mä's'tär kē) n. A key that opens every one of a given set of locks. Also called passkey mas-ter-ly (mä's'tär-lē) adj. Having or showing the knowledge or skill of a master. See Usage Note at masterful. — adv. With the skill of a master.

—mas'ter-li-ness n.

master mariner (mä's'tär mār'ə-nər) n. See master (n., sense 4).

master mason (mä's'tär mā'sən) n. 1. An expert mason. 2. Master Mason. The third degree of Freemasonry.

mas-ter-mind (mä's'tär-mīnd') n. A highly intelligent person, especially one who plans and directs a complex or difficult project: the mastermind of a robbery. — v. tr. mas-ter-mind-ed, mas-ter-mind-ing, mas-ter-minds. To direct, plan, or supervise (a project or an activity).

master of ceremonies (mä's'tär ūv sēr'ə-mō'nēz) n. pl. masters of ceremonies. 1. A person who acts as host at a formal event, making the welcoming speech and introducing other speakers. 2. A performer who conducts a program of varied entertainment by introducing other performers to the audience.

mas-ter-piece (mä's'tär-pēs') n. 1. An outstanding work of art or craft.
2. The greatest work, as of an artist. Also called masterwork 3. Something superlative of its kind: a masterpiece of political ingenuity. [Probably translation of Dutch meesterstuk, or German Meisterstück Dutch meester and German Meister, master + Dutch stuk and German Stück, piece of work.]

master plan (mä's'tər plän) n. A plan giving comprehensive guidance or instruction.

master race (mä's'tər rās) n. A people who consider themselves to be superior to other races and therefore suited to rule over them.

Mas-ters (mä's'tərz), Edgar Lee. 1869-1950. American poet whose Spoon River Anthology (1915), a collection of free verse epitaphs of the citizens of a small Midwestern town, was acclaimed for its directness and simplicity.

master's degree (mä's'tərz dī-grē') n. An academic degree conferred by a college or university upon those who complete at least one year of prescribed study beyond the bachelor's degree.

mas-ters-at-arms (mä's'tərz-ət-ärmz') n. Plural of master-at-arms.

master sergeant (mä's'tər sār'jənt) n. Abbr. M.Sgt., MSGT 1. a. A non-commissioned rank in the U.S. Army that is above sergeant first class and below the position of sergeant major. b. A noncommissioned rank in the U.S. Air Force that is above technical sergeant and below senior master sergeant. c. A noncommissioned rank in the U.S. Marine Corps that is above gunnery sergeant and below the position of sergeant major. 2. One who holds the rank of master sergeant.

mas-ter-ship (mä's'tər-shīp') n. 1. The office, function, or authority of a master. 2. The skill or dexterity of a master.

mas-ter-sing-er (mä's'tər-sīng'ər) n. See Meistersinger.

Mas-ter-son (mä's'tər-sən), William Barclay. Known as "Bat." 1853-1921.

American frontier marshal and journalist. Famed for his exploits as an army scout, gambler, and law enforcer in towns such as Dodge City and Tombstone, he was later a sports writer for the New York Morning Telegraph (1902-1921).

mas-ter-stroke (mä's'tər-strōk') n. An achievement or action revealing consummate skill or mastery: a masterstroke of diplomacy. See Synonyms at feat¹.

mas-ter-work (mä's'tər-wŭrk') n. See masterpiece (n., sense 2).

mas-ter-y (mä's'tə-rē) n. pl. mas-ter-ies. 1. Possession of consummate skill. 2. The status of master or ruler; control: mastery of the seas. 3. Full command of a subject of study: Her mastery of economic theory impressed the professors.

mast-head (mäst'hēd') n. 1. Nautical. The top of a mast. 2. The listing in a newspaper or periodical of information about its staff, operation, and circulation. 3. The title of a newspaper or periodical as it appears across the first page, front cover, or title page of each issue. In this sense, also called nameplate mas-tic (mä's'tik) n. 1. The mastic tree. 2. The aromatic resin of the mastic tree, used especially in varnishes, lacquers, adhesives, and condiments and as an astringent. 3. A pastelike cement used in highway construction, especially one made with powdered lime or brick and tar. [Middle English, mastic resin, from Old French mastich, from Latin mastichum, mastichē, from Greek mastikhē, chewing gum, mastic, from mastikhan, to grind the teeth.]

mas·ti·cate (mäś'tī-kāt') v. mas·ti·cat·ed, mas·ti·cat·ing, mas·ti·cates.

— v. tr. 1. To chew (food). 2. To grind and knead (rubber, for example) into a pulp. — v. intr. To chew food. [Late Latin masticāre, masticāt-, to masticate, from Greek mastikhan, to grind the teeth.] —mas'ti-ca'tion n. —mas'ti-ca'tor n.

mas·ti·ca·to·ry (mäś'tī-kə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or used in mastication: masticatory muscles. 2. Adapted for chewing. — n. pl.

mas·ti·ca·to·ries. A medicinal substance chewed to increase salivation.

mastic tree (mäś'tik trē) n. A small evergreen shrub (Pistacia lentiscus) of the Mediterranean region, cultivated for its resin. Also called lentisk mas·tiff (mäś'tif) n. Any of an ancient breed of large, strong dogs, probably originating in Asia and having a short, often fawn-colored coat. [Middle English mastif, alteration of Old French mastin, from Vulgar Latin (canis) mānsuētīnus*, tame (dog), from Latin mānsuētus, past participle of mānsuēscere, to tame : manus, hand; see man-² in Appendix + suēscere, to accustom; see s(w)e- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: The mastiff, which was at one time used in bullbaiting and bearbaiting as well as in dogfights, is ultimately named not for its fierceness but for its tameness. To find this tameness we must look back to the ultimate source of mastiff in the Latin word mānsuētus, “tame, domesticated,” itself derived from the past participle of manusuēscere, “to tame,” made up of the root man- found in the word manus, “hand,” and the verb suēscere, “to become accustomed to.” Tame beasts are accustomed to the hand. To explain how mansuēscere became mastiff, we must follow it through its Vulgar Latin development, mansuētīnus*, “domesticated,” and the later Old French development, mastin, “mastiff.” While being borrowed into English, mastin was probably blended with the Old French word mestif, “mongrel,” and was possibly influenced by the Medieval Latin word mastivus, “mastiff,” probably itself an error for mastīnus, which came from the same Vulgar Latin source as the Old French word. Mastiff is first recorded in Middle English (as mastif) in a work written before 1387.

mastiff bat (mäś'tif bät) n. Any of various snub-nosed bats of the family Molossidae, found in warm regions of most parts of the world and having narrow wings and brown, gray, or black fur.

mas·ti·goph·o·ran (mäś'tī-gōf'ər-ən) n. Any of various protozoans of the class Mastigophora, all of which possess one or more flagella. — adj. Of or belonging to the class Mastigophora. [From New Latin Mastigophora, class name : Greek mastix, mastig-, whip + New Latin -phora (from Greek, neuter pl. of -phoros, -phore).

mas-ti-tis (mä-stī'tis) n. Inflammation of the breast or udder. —mas-tit'ic (-tīt'ik) adj.

masto- or mast- pref. Breast; mammary gland; nipple: mastectomy. [From Greek mastos, breast.]

mas-to-don (mä'stə-dŏn') n. Any of several very large, extinct proboscidian mammals of the genus Mammot (sometimes Mastodon), resembling the elephant but having molar teeth of a different structure. [New Latin Mastodŏn, genus name : Greek mastos, nipple + Greek odŏn, odont-, tooth; see dent- in Appendix.] —mas'to-don'ic adj.

mas-to-dont (mä'stə-dŏnt') adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a mastodon. [From New Latin Mastodŏn, genus name. See MASTODON.]

mas-toid (mä's'toid') n. The mastoid process. — adj. 1. Of or relating to the mastoid process. 2. Shaped like a breast or nipple. [New Latin mastoidēs, nipple-like, mastoid (from its shape), from Greek mastoeidēs : mastos, breast + -oeidēs, -oid.]

mastoid bone (mä's'toid' bŏn) n. See mastoid process.

mastoid cell (mä's'toid' sĕl) n. Any of numerous air-filled spaces of various sizes in the mastoid process.

mas-toid-ec-to-my (mä's'toi-dĕk'tə-mĕ) n. pl. mas-toid-ec-to-mies. Surgical removal of mastoid cells or part or all of the mastoid process.

mas-toid-i-tis (mä's'toid-ī'tis) n. Inflammation of the mastoid process and mastoid cells.

mastoid process (mä's'toid' prŏs'ĕs') n. A conical protuberance of the posterior portion of the temporal bone that is situated behind the ear in human beings and many other vertebrates and serves as a site of muscle attachment. Also called mastoid bone mas-tur-bate (mä's'tər-bāt') v. mas-tur-bat-ed, mas-tur-bat-ing, mas-tur-bates. — v. intr. To perform an act of masturbation. — v. tr. To perform an act of masturbation on. [Latin masturbārī, masturbāt-.]

mas-tur-ba-tion (mä's'tər-bā'shən) n. Excitation of one's own or another's genital organs, usually to orgasm, by manual contact or means other than sexual intercourse. —mas'tur-ba'tion-al, mas'tur-ba-to'ry (-bə-tŏr'ĕ, -tŏr'ĕ) adj. —mas'tur-ba'tor n.

Ma-su-ri-a (mə-zŏr'ĕ-ə) A historical region of northeast Poland. Ruled by the Teutonic Knights after the 14th century and later part of East Prussia, it was assigned to Poland by the Potsdam Conference of 1945. —Ma-su'ri-an adj.

mat¹ (măt) n. 1. A flat piece of coarse fabric or other material used for wiping one's shoes or feet, or in various other forms as a floor covering. 2. A small, flat piece of decorated material placed under a lamp, dish of food, or other object.

3. Sports. A floor pad to protect athletes, as in wrestling or gymnastics. 4. A densely woven or thickly tangled mass: a mat of hair. 5. The solid part of a lace design. 6. A heavy woven net of rope or wire cable placed over a blasting site to keep debris from scattering. — v. mat-ted, mat-ting, mats. — v. tr. 1. To cover, protect, or decorate with mats or a mat. 2. To pack or interweave into a thick mass: High winds matted the leaves against the base of the fence. — v. intr. To be packed or interwoven into a thick mass; become entangled. [Middle English, from Old English matte, from Late Latin matta, possibly from Phoenician (Punic) maṭṭā; akin to Hebrew mitṭa, bed, couch.]

mat² (măt) n. 1. A decorative border placed around a picture to serve as a frame or provide contrast between the picture and the frame. 2. Also matte. a. A dull, often rough finish, as of paint, glass, metal, or paper. b. A special tool for producing such a surface or finish. 3. Printing. See matrix (n., sense 10a). — v. tr. mat-ted, mat-ting, mats. 1. To put a mat around (a picture). 2. To produce a dull finish on. — adj. also matte Having a dull finish. [From French, dull, from Old French, defeated, withered, perhaps from Latin mattus, stupefied, senseless, possibly from madius*, past participle of madēre, to be wet.]

mat. abbr. Matinee.

M.A.T. abbr. Master of Arts in Teaching.

Mat·a·be·le (mä'tä-běl'ā) n. pl. Matabele or Mat·a·be·les. See Ndebele.

Mat·a·be·le·land (mä'tə-běl'ā-länd') A region of western Zimbabwe. Inhabited by the Ndebele people after 1827, it came under the control of the British South Africa Company in 1889.

mat·a·dor (măt'ə-dôr') n. 1. A bullfighter who performs the final passes and kills the bull. 2. Games. One of the highest trumps in certain card games. [Spanish, from matar, to kill, possibly from Vulgar Latin mattāre*, to beat senseless, perhaps from Latin mattus, stupefied. See MAT².]

Mat·a·gor·da Bay (măt'ə-gôr'də bā) An inlet of southeast Texas separated from the Gulf of Mexico by the Matagordo Peninsula, a narrow sand spit.

Ma·ta Ha·ri (mä'tə här'ē, măt'ə här'ē), Originally Margaretha Geertruida Zelle. 1876-1917. Dutch spy. A professional dancer in Paris after 1905, she apparently spied for Germany during World War I and was arrested and executed by the French.

Ma·ta·mo·ros (măt'ə-môr'əs, -mōr'-, mä'tä-mô'rôs) A city of northeast Mexico near the mouth of the Rio Grande opposite Brownsville, Texas. It was captured by Zachary Taylor's forces in 1846 during the Mexican War. Population, 188,745.

Ma·tan·zas (mə-tăn'zəs, mä-tăn'säs) A city of northwest-central Cuba east of Havana. Founded in 1693, it was once a haven for pirates. Population, 100,367.

Mat·a·pan (măt'ə-păn'), Cape. See Cape Taínaron.

Ma-ta-ró (mä'tə-rō', -tä-) A city of northeast Spain on the Mediterranean Sea northeast of Barcelona. It is a port and manufacturing center. Population, 99,126.

match¹ (mäch) n. 1. a. One that is exactly like another; a counterpart. b. One that is like another in one or more specified qualities: He is John's match for bravery. 2. One that is able to compete equally with another: The boxer had met his match. 3. a. One that closely resembles or harmonizes with another: The napkins were a nice match for the tablecloth. b. A pair, each one of which resembles or harmonizes with the other: The colors were a close match. 4. Sports. a. A game or contest in which two or more persons, animals, or teams oppose and compete with each other: a soccer match. b. A tennis contest won by the player or side that wins a specified number of sets, usually two out of three or three out of five. 5. A marriage or an arrangement of marriage: a royal match. 6. A person viewed as a prospective marriage partner. — v. matched, match-ing, match-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To be exactly like; correspond exactly. b. To be like with respect to specified qualities. 2. To resemble or harmonize with: The coat matches the dress. 3. To adapt or suit so that a balanced or harmonious result is achieved; cause to correspond: You should match your deeds to your beliefs. 4. To find or produce a counterpart to: It's difficult to match the color of old paint. 5. To fit together or cause to fit together. 6. To join or give in marriage. 7. To place in opposition or competition; pit: She matched her skill against all comers. 8. To provide with an adversary or a competitor. 9. To do as well as or better than in competition; equal. 10. To set in comparison; compare: beauty that could never be matched. 11. To provide funds so as to equal or complement: The government will match all private donations to the museum. 12. To flip or toss (coins) and compare the sides that land face up. 13. To couple (electric circuits) by means of a transformer. — v. intr. To be a close counterpart; correspond. [Middle English macche, from Old English gemæcca, companion, mate. See mag- in Appendix.] —match'er n.

match² (mäch) n. 1. A narrow piece, usually of wood or cardboard, coated on one end with a compound that ignites when scratched against a rough or chemically treated surface. 2. An easily ignited cord or wick, formerly used to detonate powder charges or to fire cannons and muzzleloading firearms. [Middle English matche, lamp wick, from Old French mesche, from Vulgar Latin micca*, from Latin myxa, a lamp's nozzle, from Greek muxa, mucus, lamp wick.]

match-a-ble (mäch'ə-bəl) adj. That can be matched: matchable colors.
—match'a-bil/i-ty n.

match-board (mäch'bôrd', -bôrd') n. A board cut with a tongue on one side and a matching groove on the other to fit with other boards of similar cut.

match-book (mäch'böök') n. A small cardboard folder containing safety matches and having a striking surface along the bottom.

match-box (mäch'böks') n. A box in which to keep matches.

match·less (mäch'lis) adj. Having no match or equal; unsurpassed: matchless virtuosity at the keyboard. —match/less·ly adv. —match/less·ness n.

match·lock (mäch'lök') n. 1. A gunlock in which powder is ignited by a match. 2. A musket having such a gunlock.

match·mak·er (mäch'mā'kər) n. 1. One who arranges or tries to arrange marriages. 2. Sports. One who arranges athletic competitions. —match/mak'ing n.

match play (mäch plā) n. Sports. A method of scoring golf games by counting only the number of holes won by each side rather than the number of strokes taken.

match point (mäch point) n. Sports. The final point needed to win a sports match, especially in tennis.

match·stick (mäch'stīk') n. 1. A short, slender piece of wood from which a match is made. 2. Something similar to a matchstick, as in slenderness or strength. — adj. Short, narrow, and slender: matchstick arms; matchstick slices of potato.

match·up (mäch'üp') n. The pairing of two people or things, as for athletic competition or for comparison.

match·wood (mäch'wōd') n. 1. Wood in small pieces or splinters suitable especially for making matches. 2. Splinters: The vessel was beaten to matchwood on the rocks.

mate¹ (māt) n. 1. One of a matched pair: the mate to this glove. 2. A spouse. 3. a. Either of a pair of animals or birds that associate in order to propagate. b. Either of a pair of animals brought together for breeding. 4. a. A person with whom one is in close association; an associate. b. A good friend or companion. 5. A deck officer on a merchant ship ranking below the master. 6. A U.S. Navy petty officer who is an assistant to a warrant officer. — v. mat·ed, mat·ing, mates. — v. tr. 1. To join closely; pair. 2. To unite in marriage. 3. To pair (animals) for breeding. — v. intr. 1. To become joined in marriage. 2. a. To be paired for reproducing; breed. b. To copulate. [Middle English, from Middle Low German māte, gemate, messmate.] mate² (māt) Games. n. A checkmate. — v. tr. intr. mat·ed, mat·ing, mates. To checkmate or achieve a checkmate. [Middle English, from Old French mat, checkmated, from Arabic māṭ, dead. See CHECKMATE.]

ma·té (mä'tā, mä-tā') n. 1. A South American evergreen tree (Ilex paraguariensis) widely cultivated for its leaves, which are used to prepare a tealike beverage. 2. A tealike beverage, popular in South America, made from the dried leaves of this plant. In this sense, also called Paraguay tea, yerba maté. [American Spanish, from Quechua mate, hollow gourd used as a bowl or container for brewing yerba maté.]

mat·e·lote (măt'1-ōt', mā-tə-lōt') also mat·e·lotte (-l-ōt', -lōt') n. A fish stew that is cooked in a wine sauce. [French, from matelot, sailor, from Old French matenot, sailor, bunkmate (from the practice of sharing a berth with someone on an alternate watch), possibly from Middle Dutch mattenoot (perhaps from matte, bed from Late Latin matta; see mat¹ + noot, fellow), or from Old Norse mötunautr, messmate (mata, food, mess + nautr, companion).]

ma·ter (mā'tər) n. Chiefly British. Mother. [Latin māter. See māter- in Appendix.]

Ma·te·ra (mə-tēr'ə) A city of southern Italy in the Apennines south of Bari. It is an agricultural and industrial center. Population, 51,000.

ma·ter·fa·mil·i·as (mā'tər-fə-mīl'ē-əs) n. A woman who is the head of a household or the mother of a family. [Latin māterfamiliās: māter, mother; see MATER + familiās, archaic genitive of familia, household; see FAMILY.]

ma·te·ri·al (mə-tîr'ē-əl) n. 1. The substance or substances out of which a thing is or can be made. 2. Something, such as an idea or information, that is to be refined and made or incorporated into a finished effort: material for a comedy. 3. materials. Tools or apparatus for the performance of a given task: writing materials. 4. Yard goods or cloth. 5. A person who is qualified or suited for a position or activity: The members of the board felt that she was vice-presidential material. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or composed of matter. 2. Of, relating to, or affecting physical well-being; bodily: “the moral and material welfare of all good citizens” (Theodore Roosevelt). 3. Of or concerned with the physical as distinct from the intellectual or spiritual: “Great men are they who see that spiritual is stronger than any material force, that thoughts rule the world” (Ralph Waldo Emerson). 4. Being both relevant and consequential; crucial: testimony material to the inquiry. See Synonyms at relevant. 5. Philosophy. Of or relating to the matter of reasoning, rather than the form. [Middle English, consisting of matter, material, from Old French, from Late Latin māteriālis, from Latin māteria, matter. See māter- in Appendix.] — ma·te'ri·al·ness n.

ma·te·ri·al·ism (mə-tîr'ē-əl-īz'əm) n. 1. Philosophy. The theory that physical matter is the only reality and that everything, including thought, feeling, mind, and will, can be explained in terms of matter and physical phenomena. 2. The theory or doctrine that physical well-being and worldly possessions constitute the greatest good and highest value in life. 3. A great or excessive regard for worldly concerns. — ma·te'ri·al·ist n. — ma·te'ri·al·is'tic adj.
— ma·te'ri·al·is'ti·cal·ly adv.

ma·te·ri·al·i·ty (mə-tîr'ē-ăl'ī-tē) n. pl. ma·te·ri·al·i·ties. 1. The state or quality of being material. 2. Physical substance; matter.

ma·te·ri·al·ize (mə-tîr'ē-əl-īz') v. ma·te·ri·al·ized, ma·te·ri·al·iz·ing, ma·te·ri·al·iz·es. — v. tr. 1. To cause to become real or actual: By building the house, we materialized a dream. 2. To cause to become materialistic: “Inequality has the natural and necessary effect... of materializing our upper class, vulgarizing our middle class, and brutalizing our lower class" (Matthew Arnold). — v. intr.

1. To assume material or effective form: Their support on the eastern flank did not materialize. 2. To take physical form or shape. 3. To appear, especially suddenly. See Synonyms at appear. —ma·te'ri-al-i-za'tion (-ə-lī-zā'shən) n.

—ma·te'ri-al-iz'er n.

USAGE NOTE: In its original senses materialize is used intransitively to mean "to assume material form," as in Marley's ghost materialized before Scrooge's eyes, or transitively to mean "to cause to assume material form," as in Disney materialized his dream in a plot of orchard land in Orange County. But these uses are probably less common nowadays than two extended senses of the intransitive sense of the verb. In the first the meaning is roughly "to appear suddenly," as in No sooner had we set the menu down than a waiter materialized at our table. Some critics have labeled this use incorrect, but the criticism may suggest an overliteralism; used in this way, the verb has the sense "to appear as if by magic." Materialize also means "to take effective shape, come into existence," particularly as applied to things or events that have been foreseen or anticipated: The promised subsidies never materialized. It was thought the community would oppose the measure, but no new objections materialized. This usage has been criticized, but it is well established in reputable writing and follows a familiar pattern of metaphoric extension. The same logic that allows us to say The plans did not materialize allows us to use equivalent and unobjectionable paraphrases with expressions such as take form and take shape.

ma·te·ri·al·ly (mə-tîr'ē-ə-lē) adv. 1. With regard to the physical world.

2. With regard to matter as distinguished from form. 3. To a significant extent or degree; substantially.

ma·te·ri·als science (mə-tîr'ē-əlz sī'əns) n. The study of the characteristics and uses of the various materials, such as metals, ceramics, and plastics, that are employed in science and technology.

ma·te·ri·a med·i·ca (mə-tîr'ē-ə mēd'ī-kə) n. Medicine. 1. The scientific study of medicinal drugs and their sources, preparation, and use. 2. Substances used in the preparation of medicinal drugs. [New Latin materia medica (translation of Greek hulē iatrikē): Latin materia, material + Latin medica, medical.]

ma·te·ri·el or ma·té·ri·el (mə-tîr'ē-əl') n. The equipment, apparatus, and supplies of a military force or other organization. See Synonyms at equipment. [French matériel, consisting of matter, materiel, from Old French material. See MATERIAL.]

ma·ter·nal (mə-tûr'nəl) adj. 1. Relating to or characteristic of a mother or motherhood or motherly: maternal instinct. 2. Inherited from one's mother: a maternal trait. 3. Related through one's mother: my maternal uncle. [Middle English, from Old French maternel, from Medieval Latin māternālis, from Latin māternus, from māter, mother. See māter- in Appendix.] —ma·ter'nal·ism n. —ma·ter'nal·ly adv.

ma·ter·ni·ty (mə-tûr'nî-tē) n. pl. ma·ter·ni·ties. 1. The state of being a mother; motherhood. 2. The feelings or characteristics associated with being a mother; motherliness. 3. A maternity ward. — adj. Relating to or effective during pregnancy, childbirth, or the first months of motherhood: a maternity dress; maternity leave. [French maternité, from Medieval Latin māternitās, from Latin māternus, maternal, from māter, mother. See māter- in Appendix.]

maternity ward (mə-tûr'nî-tē wôrd) n. The department of a hospital that provides care for women during pregnancy and childbirth as well as for newborn infants.

mat·ey (mā'tē) adj. Chiefly British. Sociable; friendly.

math (măth) n. Mathematics.

math. abbr. 1. Mathematical. 2. Mathematician.

math·e·mat·i·cal (măth'ə-măt'î-kəl) also math·e·mat·ic (-îk) adj. Abbr.

math. 1. Of or relating to mathematics. 2. a. Precise; exact. b. Absolute; certain. 3. Possible according to mathematics but highly improbable: The team has only a mathematical chance to win the championship. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin mathēmaticālis, from Latin mathēmaticus, from Greek mathēmatikos, from mathēma, mathēmat-, science, learning, from manthanein, to learn. See mendh- in Appendix.] —math'e·mat'i·cal·ly adv.

mathematical induction (măth'ə-măt'î-kəl ïn-dûk'shən) n. Mathematics. Induction.

mathematical logic (măth'ə-măt'î-kəl löj'îk) n. See symbolic logic.

math·e·ma·ti·cian (măth'ə-mə-tîsh'ən) n. Abbr. math. A person skilled or learned in mathematics.

math·e·mat·ics (măth'ə-măt'îks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of the measurement, properties, and relationships of quantities, using numbers and symbols. [From Middle English mathematik, from Old French mathematique, from Latin mathēmatica, from Greek mathēmatikē (tekhnē), mathematical (science), feminine of mathēmatikos, mathematical. See MATHEMATICAL.]

math·e·ma·tize (măth'ə-mə-tîz') v. tr. math·e·ma·tized, math·e·ma·tiz·ing, math·e·ma·tiz·es. To reduce to or as if to mathematical formulas. —math'e·ma·ti·za'tion (-tî-zā'shən) n.

Math·er (măth'ər), Increase. 1639-1723. American clergyman and writer. He and his son Cotton (1663-1728) exerted great theological and political influence on the colony of Massachusetts through their staunch Puritanism and prolific writing.

Math·ew·son (mäth'yōō-sən), Christopher. Known as “Christy.” 1880-1925. American baseball player who won 373 games as a right-handed pitcher for the New York Giants (1900-1916).

Ma·thi·as (mə-thī'əs), Robert Bruce. Known as “Bob.” Born 1930. American athlete who won two consecutive Olympic gold medals in the decathlon (1948 and 1952).

maths (mäths) n. (used with a sing. verb). Chiefly British. Mathematics.

Ma·thu·ra (müt'ər-ə) also Mut·tra (müt'rə) A city of north-central India northwest of Agra. An important repository of ancient Indian art, it is a Hindu pilgrimage site revered as the reputed birthplace of Krishna. Population, 147,493.

Ma·til·da (mə-tīl'də), Known as “Empress Maud.” 1102-1167. English princess as the daughter of Henry I. After her first husband, Emperor Henry V, died, she married Geoffrey, Count of Anjou (died 1151), in 1128 and by him bore Henry II.

ma·til·i·ja poppy (mə-tīl'ē-hä' pöp'ē) n. A perennial herb (Romneya coulteri) of California and Baja California, having very large, solitary white flowers. [After Matilija Canyon in southwest California.]

mat·in (mät'n) also mat·in·al (-əl) adj. Of or relating to matins or to the early part of the day. [Middle English, from Old French, sing. of matines, matins. See MATINS.]

mat·i·nee or mat·i·née (mät'n-ā') n. Abbr. mat. An entertainment, such as a dramatic or musical performance, given in the daytime, usually in the afternoon. [French matinée, from matin, morning, from Old French matines, matins. See MATINS.]

mat·ins (mät'nz) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. a. Ecclesiastical. The office that formerly constituted the first of the seven canonical hours. b. The time of day appointed for this service, traditionally midnight or 2 A.M. but often sunrise. 2. Often Matins. See Morning Prayer. [Middle English matines, from Old French, from Medieval Latin (vigiliae) mātūtīnae, morning (vigils), feminine pl. of Latin mātūtīnus, of the morning, from Mātūta, goddess of dawn. See mā¹ in Appendix.]

Ma·tisse (mə-tēs', mə-), Henri. 1869-1954. French artist. A leading fauvist, he employed pure color, simple shapes, and an exquisite sense of design to produce paintings, such as The Dance (1930-1932), and collages that have influenced the course of modern art.

mat·jes herring (mät'yīs hēr'ŋ) n. Herring that have not spawned, filleted and prepared with salt, vinegar, sugar, and spices. [Partial translation of Dutch maatjesharing: maatjes (alteration of maeghdekin, genitive of maeghdekin, maiden diminutive of maagd, maid); see maghu- in Appendix + haring, herring.]

matri- or matro- or matr- pref. Mother; maternal: matrilineal. [Latin mātri-, from māter, mātr-, mother. See MATER.]

ma·tri·arch (mā'trē-ärk') n. 1. A woman who rules a family, clan, or tribe.

2. A woman who dominates a group or an activity. 3. A highly respected woman who is a mother. —ma'tri-ar'chal (-är'kəl), ma'tri-ar'chic (-är'kik) adj.

—ma'tri-ar'chal-ism n.

ma·tri·ar·chate (mā'trē-är'kīt, -kāt') n. 1. See matriarchy. 2. A hypothetical stage in the evolution of a society in which authority is held by women.

ma·tri·ar·chy (mā'trē-är'kē) n. pl. ma·tri·ar·chies. 1. A social system in which the mother is head of the family and descent is traced through the mother's side of the family. 2. A family, community, or society based on this system or governed by women. Also called matriarchate ma·tri·ces (mā'trī-sēz', mät'rī-) n. A plural of matrix.

mat·ri·cide (mät'rī-sīd') n. 1. The act of killing one's mother. 2. One who kills one's mother. —mat'ri-cid'al (-sīd'l) adj.

mat·ri·cli·nous (mät'rī-klī'nəs) adj. Having predominantly maternal hereditary traits. [MATRI- + Greek klinein, to lean; see klei- in Appendix + -OUS.]

ma·tric·u·lant (mə-trīk'yə-lənt) n. One who matriculates or is a candidate for matriculation.

ma·tric·u·late (mə-trīk'yə-lāt') v. tr. intr. ma·tric·u·lat·ed, ma·tric·u·lat·ing, ma·tric·u·lates. To admit or be admitted into a group, especially a college or university. — n. (-līt, -lāt') One who is admitted as a student to a college or university. [From Medieval Latin mātrīculāre, mātrīculāt-, from Late Latin mātrīcula, list, diminutive of mātrīx, mātrīc-. See MATRIX.]

—ma·tric'·u·la'tion n.

mat·ri·lin·e·age (mät'rə-līn'ē-ij) n. Line of descent as traced through the maternal side of a family.

mat·ri·lin·e·al (mät'rə-līn'ē-əl) adj. Relating to, based on, or tracing ancestral descent through the maternal line. —mat'ri·lin'e·al·ly adv.

mat·ri·lo·cal (mät'rə-lō'kəl) adj. Anthropology. Of or relating to the residence of a wife's kin group or clan. —mat'ri·lo'cal·ly adv.

mat·ri·mo·ny (mät'rə-mō'nē) n. pl. mat·ri·mo·nies. The act or state of being married; marriage. [Middle English, from Old French matrimoine, from Latin mātrimōnium, from māter, mātr-, mother. See māter- in Appendix.]

—mat'ri·mo'ni·al adj. —mat'ri·mo'ni·al·ly adv.

matrimony vine (mät'rə-mō'nē vīn) n. Any of various often thorny shrubs of the genus Lycium, some species of which are cultivated for their purplish flowers and brightly colored berries. Also called boxthorn ma·trix (mā'trīks) n. pl. ma·tri·ces (mā'trī-sēz', mät'rī-) or ma·trix·es. 1. A situation or surrounding substance within which something else originates, develops, or is contained: "Freedom of expression is the matrix, the indispensable condition, of nearly every form of freedom” (Benjamin N. Cardozo). 2. The womb. 3. Anatomy. a. The formative cells or tissue of a fingernail, toenail, or tooth. b. See ground substance (n., sense 1). 4. Geology. a. The solid matter in which a fossil or crystal is embedded. b. Groundmass. 5. A mold or die. 6. The principal metal in an alloy, as the iron in steel. 7. A binding substance, as cement in concrete. 8. a. Mathematics. A rectangular array of numeric or algebraic quantities subject to mathematical operations. b. Something resembling such an array, as in the regular formation of elements into columns and rows. 9. Computer Science. The network of intersections between input and output leads in a computer, functioning as an encoder or a decoder. 10. Printing. a. A mold used in stereotyping and designed to receive positive impressions of type or illustrations from which metal plates can be cast. Also called *mat*² b. A metal plate used for casting typefaces. 11. An electroplated impression of a phonograph record used to make duplicate records. [Middle English matrice, from Old French, from Late Latin mātrix, mātrīc-, from Latin, breeding-animal, from māter, mātr-, mother. See māter- in Appendix.]

matro- pref. Variant of matri-.

ma·tron (mā'trən) n. 1. A married woman or a widow, especially a mother of dignity, mature age, and established social position. 2. A woman who acts as a supervisor or monitor in a public institution, such as a school, hospital, or prison. [Middle English matrone, from Old French, from Latin mātrōna, from māter, mātr-, mother. See māter- in Appendix.] —ma'tron-al adj. —ma'tron-li-ness n. —ma'tron-ly adv. & adj.

matron of honor (mā'trən ūv ɔn'ər) n. pl. matrons of honor. A married woman serving as chief attendant of the bride at a wedding.

mat-ro-nym-ic (măt'rə-nīm'ik) adj. & n. Variant of metronymic.

Mat-su (măt'sōō') An island in the East China Sea off the southeast coast of mainland China. It remained a Nationalist stronghold after the Chinese Communist revolution of 1949 and is now administered by Taiwan.

Ma·tsu·do (mä-tsoō'dō) A city of east-central Honshu, Japan, a suburb of Tokyo. Population, 427,479.

Ma·tsu·o·ka (mä'tsoō-ō'kā), Yosuke. 1880-1946. Japanese politician who negotiated Japan's alliance with the Axis powers (1940) and a nonaggression pact with the U.S.S.R. (1941).

Ma·tsu·ya·ma (mä'tsoō-yä'mä) A city of western Shikoku, Japan, on the Inland Sea. A port and distribution center, it was an important fortress town during the feudal period. Population, 426,646.

Matt. abbr. Bible. Matthew.

Mat-tag-a-mi (mə-täg'ə-mē) A river, about 443 km (275 mi) long, of eastern Ontario, Canada, rising in Mattagami Lake and flowing north to the Moose River.

Mat·ta·po·ni (mä'tə-pə-nī') A river, about 201 km (125 mi) long, of eastern Virginia flowing southeast to the York River.

matte¹ (mät) n. Variant of mat² (n., sense 2). — adj. Variant of mat².

matte² (mät) n. A mixture of a metal with its sulfides, produced by smelting the sulfide ores of copper, lead, or nickel. [French.]

mat·ted (mä'tīd) adj. 1. Covered with or made from mats. 2. Tangled in a dense mass: tried to push through the matted undergrowth.

mat·ter (mä'tər) n. 1. a. Something that occupies space and can be perceived by one or more senses; a physical body, a physical substance, or the universe as a whole. b. Physics. Something that has mass and exists as a solid, liquid, or gas. 2. A specific type of substance: inorganic matter. 3. Discharge or waste, such as pus or feces, from a living organism. 4. Philosophy. In Aristotelian and Scholastic use, that which is in itself undifferentiated and formless and which, as the subject of change and development, receives form and becomes substance and experience. 5. Christian Science. That which is postulated by the mortal mind, regarded as illusion and as the opposite of substance or God: "Spirit is the real and eternal; matter is the unreal and temporal" (Mary Baker Eddy). 6. The substance of thought or expression as opposed to the manner in which it is stated or conveyed. 7. A subject of concern, feeling, or action: matters of foreign policy; a personal matter. See Synonyms at subject. 8. Trouble or difficulty: What's the matter with your car? 9. An approximated quantity, amount, or extent: The construction will last a matter of years. 10. Something printed or otherwise set down in writing: reading matter. 11. Something sent by mail. 12. Printing. a. Composed type. b. Material to be set in type. — v. intr. mat·tered, mat·ter·ing, mat·ters. To be of importance: "Love is most nearly itself/When here and now cease to matter" (T.S. Eliot). See Synonyms at count¹. — idioms. as a matter of fact. In fact; actually. for that matter. So far as that is concerned; as for that. no matter. Regardless of: "Yet there isn't a train I wouldn't take,/No matter where it's going" (Edna St. Vincent Millay). [Middle English, from Old French matere, from Latin māteria. See māter- in Appendix.]

Mat·ter·horn (mä'tər-hörn', mä'tər-) A mountain, 4,481.1 m (14,692 ft) high, in the Pennine Alps on the Italian-Swiss border. It was first scaled in 1865.

matter of course (mä'tər ÷v kôrs) n. A natural or logical outcome.

mat·ter·of·fact (mä'tər-əv-fäkt') adj. 1. Relating or adhering to facts; literal. 2. Straightforward or unemotional: "the matter-of-fact tones in which the local guides describe the history of the various places" (New York Times). — mat·ter·of·fact/ly adv. — mat·ter·of·fact/ness n.

Mat·thew (mäth'yōō) n. Abbr. Matt., Mt Bible. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

Mat·thew (mäth'yōō), Saint. First century A.D. One of the 12 Apostles and the traditionally accepted author of the first Gospel of the New Testament.

Mat-thews (mäth'yōōz), Stanley. 1824-1889. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1881-1889).

mat·ting¹ (mä't'ing) n. 1. a. Material formed into or considered as a mat: The forest floor had a thick matting of pine needles. b. A coarsely woven fabric used for covering floors and similar purposes. 2. The activity of making mats.

mat·ting² (mä't'ing) n. 1. A dull surface or finish. 2. The process of dulling a surface, as of metal.

mat·tins (mä't'nz) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Chiefly British. Variant of matins.

mat·tock (mä't'ək) n. A digging tool with a flat blade set at right angles to the handle. [Middle English, from Old English mattuc, perhaps from Vulgar Latin matteūca*, club; akin to mattea. See MACE¹.]

Mat·toon (mə-tōōn') A city of east-central Illinois southeast of Decatur. It is a processing and industrial center in a farm and dairy region. Population, 18,441.

mat·tress (mä't'rīs) n. 1. a. A usually rectangular pad of heavy cloth filled with soft material or an arrangement of coiled springs, used as or on a bed. b. An air-tight inflatable pad used as or on a bed or as a cushion. 2. A closely woven mat of brush and poles used to protect an embankment, a dike, or a dam from erosion. [Middle English mattresse, from Old French materas, from Old Italian mat-erasso, and from Medieval Latin matracium both from Arabic maṭraḥ, place where something is thrown, mat, cushion, from ṭaraḥa, to throw.]

WORD HISTORY: The history of the word mattress is a small lesson in the way amenities have come to Europe from the Middle East. During the earlier part of the Middle Ages, Arabic culture was more advanced than that of Europe. One of the amenities of life enjoyed by the Arabs was sleeping on cushions thrown on the floor. Derived from the Arabic word ṭaraḥa, “to throw,” the word maṭraḥ meant “place where something is thrown” and “mat, cushion.” This kind of sleeping surface was adopted by the Europeans during the Crusades, and the Arabic word was taken into Italian (materasso) and then into Old French (materas), from which comes the Middle English word materas, first recorded in a work written around 1300. The Arabic word also became Medieval Latin matracium, another source of our word.

mat·u·rate (mäch'ə-rāt') v. mat·u·ra·ted, mat·u·rat·ing, mat·u·rates. — v. intr. 1. To mature, ripen, or develop. 2. To suppurate. — v. tr. To cause to suppurate. [Latin mātūrāre, mātūrāt-, from mātūrus, mature. See MATURE.]
—mat'·u·ra'tive adj.

mat·u·ra·tion (mäch'ə-rā'shən) n. 1. The process of becoming mature. 2. Production or discharge of pus. 3. Biology. a. The processes by which gametes are formed, including the reduction of chromosomes in a germ cell from the dip-loid number to the haploid number by meiosis. b. The final differentiation processes in biological systems, such as the final ripening of a seed or the attainment of full functional capacity by a cell, a tissue, or an organ. —mat'ū-ra'tion-al adj.

maturation division (mäch'ə-rā'shən dī-vīzh'ən) n. Either of the two successive cell divisions of meiosis, with only one duplication of the chromosomes, that results in the formation of haploid gametes.

ma-ture (mə-tyōōr', -tōōr', -chōōr') adj. ma-tur-er, ma-tur-est. 1. a. Having reached full natural growth or development: a mature cell. b. Having reached a desired or final condition; ripe: a mature cheese. 2. Of, relating to, or characteristic of full development, either mental or physical: mature for her age.

3. a. Suitable or intended for adults: mature subject matter. b. Composed of adults: a mature audience. 4. Worked out fully by the mind; considered: a mature plan of action. 5. Having reached the limit of its time; due: a mature bond. 6. No longer subject to great expansion or development. Used of an industry, a market, or a product. 7. Geology. Having reached maximum development of form. Used of streams and landforms. — v. ma-tured, ma-tur-ing, ma-tures. — v. tr. 1. To bring to full development; ripen. 2. To work out fully in the mind: “able to digest and mature my thoughts for my own mind only” (John Stuart Mill). — v. intr. 1. To evolve toward or reach full development: The child's judgment matures as she grows older. 2. To become due. Used of notes and bonds. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin mātūrus. See mā¹ in Appendix.] —ma-ture'ly adv. —ma-ture'ness n.

SYNONYMS: mature, age, develop, ripen. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to bring or come to full development or maximum excellence”: maturing the wines in vats; aged the brandy for 100 years; developed the flavor slowly; fruits that were ripened on the vine.

ma-ture-on-set diabetes (mə-tyōōr'ōn'sēt' dī'ə-bē'tīs, -ōn', -tōōr', -chōōr'-) n. Non-insulin-dependent diabetes mellitus.

Ma-tu-rín (mä'tə-rēn', -tōō-) A city of northeast Venezuela east-southeast of Caracas. It was founded in 1710 by Capuchin missionaries. Population, 181,000.

ma-tur-i-ty (mə-tyōōr'ī-tē, -tōōr', -chōōr'-) n. pl. ma-tur-i-ties. 1. a. The state or quality of being fully grown or developed. b. The state or quality of being mature. 2. a. The time at which a note or bond is due. b. The state of a note or bond being due. 3. Geology. A stage in the development of streams or landscapes at which maximum development has been reached or at which the process of erosion is going on with maximum vigor. Maturity of a landscape continues throughout the period of maximum topographic differentiation or until about three fourths of the original mass is carried away by erosion. [Middle ma·tu·ti·nal (mə-tōōt'ŋ-əl, -tyōōt'ŋ-, mäch'ōō-tī'nəl) adj. Of, relating to, or occurring in the morning; early. [Late Latin mātūtīnālis, from Latin mātūtīnus. See MATINS.] —ma·tu·ti·nal·ly adv.

English maturite, from Old French, from Latin mātūritās, from mātūrus, mature. See MATURE.]

mat·zo also mat·zoh (mät'sə, -sô, mät-sä') n. pl. mat·zos also mat·zohs (-səz, -sôs') or mat·zot or mat·zoth (-sôt'). A brittle, flat piece of unleavened bread, eaten especially during Passover. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: matzo meal. [Yiddish matse, from Hebrew maṣṣâ.]

matzo ball (mät'sə bôl) n. A small dumpling made from matzo meal.

mat·zoh (mät'sə, -sô, mät-sä') n. Variant of matzo.

mat·zohs (mät'səz, -sôs') or mat·zot or mat·zoth (-sôt') n. Plurals of matzo.

Mau·á (mou-ä') A city of southeast Brazil, a suburb of São Paulo. Population, 205,740.

maud·lin (môd'līn) adj. Effusively or tearfully sentimental: “displayed an almost maudlin concern for the welfare of animals” (Aldous Huxley). See Synonyms at sentimental. [Alteration of (MARY) MAGDALENE, who was frequently depicted as a tearful penitent.] —maud·lin·ly adv. —maud·lin·ness n.

Maugham (môm), W(illiam) Somerset. 1874-1965. British writer whose short stories, such as “Miss Thompson” (1921), and novels, including Of Human Bondage (1915), illustrate his economy of expression and masterly storytelling.

mau·gre (mô'gər) prep. Archaic. Notwithstanding; in spite of. [Middle English, from Old French : mal-, mau-, bad; see MAL- + gre, liking, pleasure (from Latin grātum, from neuter of grātus, pleasing); see g^werə-² in Appendix.]

Mau·i (mou'ē) An island of Hawaii northwest of Hawaii Island. It is the second-largest island in the state, with an economy based chiefly on sugar cane, pineapples, and tourism.

maul also mall (môl) n. 1. A heavy, long-handled hammer used especially to drive stakes, piles, or wedges. 2. A heavy hammer having a wedge-shaped head and used for splitting logs. — v. tr. mauled also malled, mauling also mall·ing, mauls also malls. 1. To injure by or as if by beating: The boxer mauled the other fighter. The critics mauled the novelist's first effort. See Synonyms at batter¹. 2. To handle roughly: The package was mauled by the careless messenger. 3. To split (wood) with a maul and wedge. [Middle English malle, from Old French mail, from Latin malleus. See melə- in Appendix.] —maul'er n.

Maul·din (môl'dīn), William Henry. Known as “Bill.” Born 1921. American editorial cartoonist noted for his realistic, bitterly comic drawings of front-line soldiers. He won a Pulitzer Prize in 1944 and 1958.

maul·stick also mahl·stick (môl'stīk') n. A long wooden stick used by painters as a support to keep the hand that holds the brush from touching the painting surface. [Partial translation of Dutch maalstok : maalen, to paint (from Middle Dutch malen) + stok, stick.]

Mau·mee (mô-mē', mô'mē) A city of northwest Ohio, a residential suburb of Toledo. It was settled on the site of Fort Miami, a British port surrendered to the Americans in the War of 1812. Population, 15,561.

Maumee River (mô-mē' rĭv'ər) A river rising in northeast Indiana and flowing about 209 km (130 mi) east and northeast to Lake Erie at Toledo, Ohio.

Mau·na Ke·a (mou'nə kē'ə, mô'nə kē'ə) An active volcano, about 4,208 m (13,796 ft) high, of north-central Hawaii Island. It is the highest peak in the islands.

Mauna Lo·a (mou'nə lō'ə) An active volcano, 4,172.4 m (13,680 ft) high, of south-central Hawaii Island.

maund (mônd) n. A unit of weight varying in different countries of Asia from 11.2 to 37.4 kilograms (24.8 to 82.6 pounds) avoirdupois, the latter being the official maund in India. [Hindi mān, from Sanskrit mānam, measure.]

maun·der (môn'dər, män'-) v. intr. maun·dered, maun·der·ing, maun·ders. 1. To talk incoherently or aimlessly. 2. To move or act aimlessly or vaguely; wander. [Origin unknown.]

Maun·dy Thursday (môn'dē thūrz'dē, män'-) n. The Thursday before Easter, observed in commemoration of the Last Supper of Jesus. Also called Holy Thursday [From Middle English maunde, ceremony of washing the feet of the poor on this day, from Old French mande, from Latin (novum) mandātum, (new) commandment (from Jesus's words to the Apostles after washing their feet, John 13:34). See MANDATE.]

Mau·pas·sant (mō'pə-sānt', mō-pă-sān'), (Henri René Albert) Guy de. 1850-1893. French writer whose works, mainly realistic short stories such as "The Necklace," examine hypocrisy, madness, Parisian society, and peasant life in Normandy.

Mau·re·ta·ni·a (môr'ĭ-tā'nē-ə, -tān'yə, mār'-) An ancient district of the Roman Empire in present-day Morocco and Algeria. Settled by a Berber people, it was ruled by Rome from c. 100 B.C. to the fifth century A.D. —Mau·re·ta·ni·an adj. & n.

Mau·riac (môr'ē-āk', môr-yāk'), François. 1885-1970. French writer many of whose novels, notably Thérèse Desqueyroux (1927), are psychological studies of temptation, sin, and redemption in the lives of bourgeois characters. He won the 1952 Nobel Prize for literature.

Mau·rice of Nas·sau (môr'ĭs ŭv nās'ô', mör'-; nās'ô), Prince of Orange. 1567-1625. Dutch general and politician whose strategic and material improvements to the Dutch army led to the repulsion of Spanish forces from Dutch territory (1590-1609).

Mau-ri-ta-ni-a (môr'î-tā'nē-ə, -tān'yə, mār'-) A country of northwest Africa bordering on the Atlantic Ocean. Settled by Berbers c. 1000, the area was visited by European traders after the 15th century. French influence over the region lasted from the early 1800's until independence was achieved in 1960. Nouakchott is the capital and the largest city. Population, 1,727,000.

—Mau'ri-ta'ni-an adj. & n.

Mau-ri-tius (mô-rîsh'əs, -ē-əs) An island country in the southwest Indian Ocean comprising the island of Mauritius and several small dependencies in the Mascarene Islands. Probably known to Arab and Malay traders in the Middle Ages, Mauritius was controlled by the Dutch (1598-1710), the French (1715-1810), and the British (after 1814) before independence was achieved in 1968. Port Louis is the capital and the largest city. Population, 1,023,934. —Mau-ri-tian adj. & n.

Mau-rois (mô-r-wä'), André. Pen name of Émile Herzog. 1885-1967. French writer noted for his essays, biographies, and novels, including Atmosphere of Love (1929) and The Family Circle (1932).

Mau-ry (mô-r'ē), Matthew Fontaine. 1806-1873. American naval officer and oceanographer who charted the currents and winds of the Atlantic, Pacific, and Indian oceans and wrote the pioneering Physical Geography of the Sea (1855).

Mau-ser (mou'zər) A trademark used for a repeating rifle or pistol.

Mau-ser (mou'zər), Peter Paul. 1838-1914. German weapons manufacturer who with his brother Wilhelm (1834-1882) invented a breechloading rifle and a repeating pistol and rifle.

mau-so-le-um (mô'sə-lē'əm, -zə-) n. pl. mau-so-le-ums or mau-so-le-a (-lē'ə). 1. A large, stately tomb or a building housing such a tomb or several tombs. 2. A gloomy, usually large room or building. [Middle English, from Latin Mausōlēum, from Greek Mausōleion, from Mausōlos, Mausolus (died c. 353 B.C.), Persian satrap of Caria.] —mau'so-le'an adj.

mauve (mōv) n. Color. A moderate grayish violet to moderate reddish purple. [French, from Old French mallow, from Latin malva.] —mauve adj.

ma-ven also ma-vin (mā'vən) n. A person who has special knowledge or experience; an expert. [Yiddish meyvn, from Hebrew mēbîn.]

mav-er-ick (mäv'ər-īk, mäv'rīk) n. 1. An unbranded range animal, especially a calf that has become separated from its mother, traditionally considered the property of the first person who brands it. 2. One that refuses to abide by the dictates of or resists adherence to a group; a dissenter. — adj. Being independent in thought and action or exhibiting such independence: maverick politicians; a maverick decision. [Possibly after Samuel Augustus Maverick (1803-1870), American cattleman, or perhaps after Samuel Maverick (1602?-1676?), English-born colonist.]

ma-vin (mā'vən) n. Variant of maven.

ma·vis (mā'vīs) n. See song thrush. [Middle English, from Old French mau-vis, probably from mauve, seagull, mew.]

ma·vour·neen also ma·vour·nin (mə-vōōr'nēn') n. Irish. My darling. [Irish Gaelic mo mhuirín : mo, my (from Old Irish); see me¹ in Appendix + muirín, darling, diminutive of muirn, delight (from Old Irish, tumult, revels).]

maw (mô) n. 1. The mouth, stomach, jaws, or gullet of a voracious animal, especially a carnivore. 2. The opening into something felt to be insatiable: "I saw the opening maw of hell" (Herman Melville). [Middle English mawe, from Old English maga.]

mawk·ish (mô'kīsh) adj. 1. Excessively and objectionably sentimental. See Synonyms at sentimental. 2. Sickening or insipid in taste. [From Middle English mawke, maggot, variant of magot. See MAGGOT.] —mawk'ish·ly adv. —mawk'ish·ness n.

Maw·son (mô'sən), Sir Douglas. 1882-1958. British explorer and geologist who charted much of the coast of the Australian Antarctic.

max (mäks) Slang. n. The maximum: The car can seat five adults, but that's the max. The movie was boring to the max. — adj. Maximal. — adv. Maximally: We'll pay $250 max. — v. intr. maxed, max·ing, max·es. 1. To reach one's limit, as of endurance or capability: The weight lifter maxed out at 180 kilograms. 2. To reach a point from which no additional growth, improvement, or benefit is possible: The salary for this position maxes at $45,000.

max. abbr. Maximum.

max·i (mäk'sē) n. pl. max·is. A long skirt, coat, or dress that usually extends to or just past the ankles. [From MAXIMUM.]

max·il·la (mäk-sīl'ə) n. pl. max·il·lae (mäk-sīl'ē) or max·il·las. 1. Anatomy. Either of a pair of bones of the human skull fusing in the midline and forming the upper jaw. 2. A homologous bone of the skull in other vertebrates. 3. Either of two laterally moving appendages situated behind the mandibles in insects and most other arthropods. [Latin, jawbone.]

max·il·lar·y (mäk'sə-lēr'ē) adj. Of or relating to a jaw or jawbone, especially the upper one. — n. pl. max·il·lar·ies. A maxillary bone; a jawbone.

max·il·li·ped (mäk-sīl'ə-pēd') n. One of the three pairs of crustacean head appendages located just posterior to the maxillae and used in feeding. [MAXILL(A) + -PED.] max·il·lo·fa·cial (mäk-sīl'ō-fā'shəl) adj. Anatomy. Relating to or involving the maxilla and the face: a maxillofacial prosthesis. [MAXILL(A) + FACIAL.] max·im (mäk'sīm) n. A succinct formulation of a fundamental principle, general truth, or rule of conduct. See Synonyms at saying. [Middle English maxime, from Old French, from Medieval Latin maxima, from maxima (prōpositiō), greatest (premise), feminine of Latin maximus, greatest. See meg- in Appendix.]

Max·im (mäk'sim), Sir Hiram Stevens. 1840-1916. American-born British inventor of an automatic, recoil-operated machine gun (1884), which was widely used during World War I. His brother Hudson (1853-1927) invented smokeless gun powder, and his son Hiram Percy (1896-1936) developed a silencer for firearms.

max·i·ma (mäk'sə-mə) n. A plural of maximum.

max·i·mal (mäk'sə-məl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or consisting of a maximum.

2. Being the greatest or highest possible. — n. Mathematics. An element in an ordered set that is followed by no other. — max'i·mal·ly adv.

max·i·mal·ist (mäk'sə-mə-list) n. One who advocates direct or radical action to secure a social or political goal in its entirety: “the maximalists... who want the undivided land” (Arthur Hertzberg). [Russian maksimalist, name applied in 1906 to an extreme splinter group of the Russian Socialist Revolutionary Party, ultimately from Latin maximum, maximum. See MAXIMUM.] — max'i·mal·ist adj.

Maxim gun (mäk'sim gūn) n. An early, single-barreled, water-cooled machine gun. [After Sir Hiram Stevens MAXIM.]

Max·i·mil·ian (mäk'sə-mil'yən), 1832-1867. Austrian archduke and emperor of Mexico (1864-1867). Appointed emperor by the French, who had recently captured Mexico, he lacked popular support and was captured and executed by Mexican republicans when France withdrew from the country under American pressure.

Max·i·mil·ian I (mäk'sə-mil'yən), 1459-1519. King of Germany (1486-1519) and Holy Roman emperor (1493-1519) who through arranged marriages added greatly to the territory and power of the Hapsburgs.

Max·i·mil·ian II (mäk'sə-mil'yən), 1527-1576. Holy Roman emperor (1564-1576) who was tolerant of Lutheranism and supported Catholic reform.

max·i·mize (mäk'sə-mīz') v. tr. max·i·mized, max·i·miz·ing, max·i·miz·es. 1. To increase or make as great as possible: “the ideal of maximizing opportunity through the equalizing of educational opportunity” (Robert J. Havighurst). 2. To assign the highest possible importance to. 3. Mathematics. To find the largest value of (a function). — max'i·mi·za'tion (-mī-zā'shən) n.

— max'i·miz'er n.

max·i·mum (mäk'sə-məm) n. pl. max·i·mums or max·i·ma (-mə). Abbr.

max. 1. a. The greatest possible quantity or degree. b. The greatest quantity or degree reached or recorded; the upper limit of variation. c. The time or period during which the highest point or degree is attained. 2. An upper limit permitted by law or other authority. 3. Astronomy. a. The moment when a variable star is most brilliant. b. The magnitude of the star at such a moment.

4. Mathematics. a. The greatest value assumed by a function over a given interval. b. The largest number in a set. — adj. Abbr. max. 1. Having or being the greatest quantity or the highest degree that has been or can be attained: maxi- imum temperature. 2. Of, relating to, or making up a maximum: a maximum number in a series. [Latin, from neuter of maximus, greatest. See meg- in Appendix.]

max-i-mum-se-cu-ri-ty (mäk'sə-məm-sī-kyōōr'ī-tē) adj. Having more restrictions than others of its kind: a maximum-security prison; a maximum-security air force base.

max-well (mäks'wēl', -wəl) n. Abbr. Mx The unit of magnetic flux in the centimeter-gram-second system, equal to the flux perpendicularly intersecting an area of one square centimeter in a region where the magnetic intensity is one gauss. [After James Clerk Maxwell.]

Max-well (mäks'wēl', -wəl), Elsa. 1883-1963. American gossip columnist and professional hostess noted for her extravagant high-society parties.

Max-well (mäks'wēl', -wəl), James Clerk. 1831-1879. British physicist who made fundamental contributions to electromagnetic theory and the kinetic theory of gases.

may¹ (mā) v. aux. Past tense might (mīt). 1. To be allowed or permitted to: May I take a swim? Yes, you may. 2. Used to indicate a certain measure of likelihood or possibility: It may rain this afternoon. 3. Used to express a desire or fervent wish: Long may he live! 4. Used to express contingency, purpose, or result in clauses introduced by that or so that: expressing ideas so that the average person may understand. 5. To be obliged; must. Used in statutes, deeds, and other legal documents. See Usage Note at can¹. [Middle English, to be able, from Old English mæg, first and third person sing. of magan, to be strong, be able. See magh- in Appendix.]

may² (mā) n. Chiefly British. The blossoms of the hawthorn. [French mai, hawthorn, from Mai, May (so called because it blooms in May). See MAY.]

May (mā) n. 1. The fifth month of the year in the Gregorian calendar. See Table at calendar. 2. The springtime of life; youth. 3. The celebration of May Day. [Middle English, from Old French Mai, from Latin Maius (mēnsis), (the month) of Maia, from Maia, an Italic goddess. See meg- in Appendix.]

May, Cape. A peninsula of southern New Jersey between the Atlantic Ocean and Delaware Bay. The southern tip forms Cape May Point.

ma-ya (mä'yə) n. Hinduism. 1. The power of a god or demon to transform a concept into an element of the sensible world. 2. The transitory, manifold appearance of the sensible world, which obscures the undifferentiated spiritual reality from which it originates; the illusory appearance of the sensible world. [Sanskrit māyā.]

Ma-ya (mä'yə) n. pl. Maya or Ma-yas. 1. a. A member of a Mesoamerican Indian people inhabiting southeast Mexico, Guatemala, and Belize, whose civilization reached its height around A.D. 300-900. The Maya are noted for their architecture and city planning, their mathematics and calendar, and their hieroglyphic writing system. b. A modern-day descendant of this people. 2. Any of the Mayan languages, especially Quiché and Yucatec. [Spanish.] —Ma'ya adj.

Ma·ya·güez (mī'ə-gwěz', mä'yä-gwēs') A city of western Puerto Rico west-southwest of San Juan. It is a port of entry and manufacturing center. Population, 82,968.

Ma·ya·kov·ski (mä'yə-kôf'skē, mə-), Vladimir Vladimirovich. 1893-1930. Soviet poet. A leader of futurism in Russian literature, he wrote forceful, declamatory verse praising the Communist revolution.

Ma·yan (mä'yən) adj. Of or relating to the Maya, their culture, their languages, or the language group to which it belongs. — n. 1. A Maya. 2. A linguistic stock of Central America that includes Quiché and Yucatec.

May apple (mä äp'əl) n. 1. A rhizomatous plant (Podophyllum peltatum) of eastern North America, having a single, nodding white flower and oval yellow fruit. Although the pulp of the ripe fruit is edible, the roots, leaves, and seeds of the plant are poisonous. 2. The fruit of this plant. Also called mandrake may·be (mä'bē) adv. Perhaps; possibly. — n. Informal. 1. An uncertainty: There are so many maybes involved in playing the stock market. 2. An uncertain reply: It's better to receive a fast and honest no than a drawn-out maybe.

May beetle (mä bēt'l) n. See June beetle.

may·day (mä'dā') n. An international radiotelephone signal word used by aircraft and ships in distress. [From French m'aidez, help me!.]

WORD HISTORY: “Mayday, mayday!” comes the international distress signal over the radio, and nobody stops to ask why the first of May is being mentioned at a time of crisis. Mayday, in fact, has nothing to do with the first of May. Instead, it is a spelling that represents the pronunciation of French m'aidez, “help me,” or the latter part of the phrase venez m'aider, “come help me,” either of which are quite appropriate at such a critical juncture.

May Day (mä dā) n. 1. May 1, observed in the United States, Canada, and parts of Western Europe in celebration of the coming of spring. 2. May 1, observed as a holiday especially in socialist countries in honor of labor and labor organizations.

May·er (mī'ər), Julius Robert von. 1814-1878. German physicist noted for his contributions to the understanding of thermodynamics.

May·er (mä'ər), Louis Burt. 1885-1957. Russian-born American motion-picture producer who formed a film company (1918) and merged with Samuel Goldwyn to form Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer (1924). His many productions include Ben Hur (1926) and Dinner at Eight (1933).

May·er (mī'ər), Marie Goeppert. 1906-1972. German-born American physicist. She shared a 1963 Nobel Prize for research on the structure of the atom and its nucleus.

may·est (mā'ĭst) or mayst (māst) v. aux. Archaic. Second person singular present tense of may¹.

May·fair (mā'fâr') A fashionable district in the West End of London, England. It was named after an annual fair held in the district until 1708.

May·field Heights (mā'fēld' hīts) A city of northeast Ohio, a residential suburb of Cleveland. Population, 19,847.

may·flow·er (mā'flou'ər) n. 1. Any of various plants that bloom in May. 2. See trailing arbutus.

may·fly (mā'flī') n. Any of various fragile winged insects of the order Ephemeroptera that develop from aquatic nymphs and live in the adult stage no longer than a few days. Also called dayfly, shadfly.

may·hap (mā'hăp', mā-hăp') adv. Perhaps; perchance. [From the phrase it may hap.]

may·hem (mā'hēm', mā'əm) n. 1. Law. The offense of willfully maiming or crippling a person. 2. Infliction of violent injury on a person or thing; wanton destruction: children committing mayhem in the flower beds. 3. A state of violent disorder or riotous confusion; havoc. [Middle English maim, mayhem, from Anglo-Norman maihem, from Old French mahaigne, injury, from mahaignier, to maim, from Vulgar Latin mahanāre*, probably of Germanic origin.]

may·ing or May·ing (mā'ĭng) n. The celebration of May Day, especially by the gathering of spring flowers.

may·n't (mā'ənt, mānt) May not. See Usage Note at can¹.

may·o (mā'ō) n. Informal. Mayonnaise.

Ma·yo (mā'ō), William James. 1861-1939. American surgeon who with his brother Charles Horace Mayo (1865-1939) founded the Mayo Clinic, a renowned private medical center in Rochester, Minnesota.

Ma·yon (mä-yōn'), Mount. An active volcano, 2,461.4 m (8,070 ft) high, of southeast Luzon, Philippines. It is considered one of the world's most perfect cones.

may·on·naise (mā'ə-nāz', mā'ə-nāz') n. A dressing made of beaten raw egg yolk, oil, lemon juice or vinegar, and seasonings. [French mahonnaise, mayonnaise, possibly from Mahón, captured by Louis François Armand de Vignerot du Plessis, Duc de Richelieu (1696-1788), in 1756 (the duke's chef is said to have introduced mayonnaise in honor of this victory).]

may·or (mā'ər, mâr) n. The head of government of a city, town, borough, or municipal corporation. [Middle English maire, from Old French, from Medieval Latin māior, from Latin, greater, superior. See meg- in Appendix.] —may/or·al adj. —may/or·ship' n.

may-or-al-ty (mā'ər-əl-tē, mâr'əl-) n. pl. may-or-al-ties. 1. The office of a mayor. 2. The term of office of a mayor. [Middle English mairalte, from Anglo-Norman, from Old French maire, mayor. See MAYOR.]

may-or-ess (mā'ər-ĭs, mâr'ĭs) n. 1. A woman serving as the head of government of a city, town, borough, or municipal corporation. 2. The wife of a mayor.

Ma-yotte (mä-yôt') An island of the eastern Comoros in the Mozambique Channel of the Indian Ocean. It remained a French territory after the other islands declared their independence in 1975.

May-pole also may-pole (mā'pōl') n. A pole decorated with streamers that those celebrating May Day hold while dancing.

may-pop (mā'pöp') n. 1. A vine (Passiflora incarnata) of the southeast United States having purple and white flowers, three-lobed leaves, and edible yellow fruit. 2. The fruit of this plant. [Alteration of maycock, from earlier maracock, perhaps of Virginia Algonquian origin.]

Mays (māz), Willie Howard, Jr. Known as "the Say Hey Kid." Born 1931. American baseball player. An exciting outfielder, base runner, and hitter primarily for the New York and San Francisco Giants (1951-1972), he hit 660 home runs.

mayst (māst) v. aux. Variant of mayest.

may tree (mā trē) n. Chiefly British. The hawthorn.

may-weed (mā'wēd') n. A widespread weed (Anthemis cotula) having rank-smelling, bipinnately divided leaves and white-rayed flower heads. Also called stinking chamomile [Middle English maythe weed, mayyen wed, alteration (influenced by May, and maiden), of maithe, from Old English mægtha.]

May wine (mā wĭn) n. 1. A still white wine with woodruff flavoring, often containing orange or pineapple slices. 2. A punch of champagne, claret, and Moselle or Rhine wine, flavored with woodruff. [Translation of German Maiwein.]

May-wood (mā'wōd') 1. A city of southern California, a residential and industrial suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 27,850. 2. A village of northeast Illinois, a residential suburb of Chicago. Population, 27,139.

ma-zae-di-um (mə-zē'dē-əm) n. pl. ma-zae-di-a (-dē-ə). A fruiting body of some lichens in which the spores lie freely in a powdery mass that is enclosed in a peridium. [New Latin : Greek maza, lump; see mag- in Appendix + Latin aedēs, house.]

ma-zal tov (mä'zəl tōf', tōv', tōv') interj. Variant of mazel tov.

Maz-a-rin (mäz'ə-rän'), Jules. 1602-1661. Italian-born French cardinal who exercised great political influence as the tutor and chief minister to Louis XIV.

Ma-za-tlán (mä'sət-län') A city of western Mexico on the Pacific Ocean northwest of Guadalajara. It is a seaport and tourist center. Population, 199,830.

Maz-da-ism also Maz-de-ism (mäz'də-ĭz'əm) n. Zoroastrianism. [From Avestan mazdā, the good principle, from mazdā-, wise. See AHURA MAZDA.]

maze (māz) n. 1. a. An intricate, usually confusing network of interconnecting pathways, as in a garden; a labyrinth. b. A physical situation in which it is easy to get lost: a maze of bureaucratic divisions. 2. A graphic puzzle, the solution of which is an uninterrupted path through an intricate pattern of line segments from a starting point to a goal. 3. Something made up of many confused or conflicting elements; a tangle: a maze of government regulations. — v. tr. mazed, maz-ing, maz-es. Chiefly Southern U.S. 1. To bewilder or astonish. 2. To stupefy; daze. See Regional note at possum. [Middle English mase, confusion, maze, from masen, to confuse, daze, from Old English āmasian, to confound.]

ma-zel tov also ma-zal tov (mä'zəl tôf', tôv', tōv') interj. Used to express congratulations or best wishes. [Late Hebrew mazzālṭôb : mazzāl, luck + ṭôb, good.]

ma-zer (mä'zər) n. A large drinking bowl or goblet made of metal or hard wood. [Middle English, from Old French masere, kind of wood, maple burl, of Germanic origin.]

ma-zour-ka (mə-zûr'kə, -zöör'-) n. Variant of mazurka.

ma-zu-ma (mə-zōō'mə) n. Slang. Money; cash. [Yiddish mazume, mezumen, cash, from binzumen, in cash, from Medieval Hebrew bimēzumman, in fixed currency, from Mishnaic Hebrew mēzumman, fixed.]

ma-zur-ka also ma-zour-ka (mə-zûr'kə, -zöör'-) n. 1. A lively Polish dance resembling the polka, frequently adopted as a ballet form. 2. A piece of music for such a dance, written in 3/4 or 3/8 time with the second beat heavily accented. [Russian, possibly from Polish (tańczyć) mazurka, (to dance) the mazurka, accusative of mazurek, dance of the Mazovians from diminutive of Mazur, person from Mazovia, a historical region of eastern Poland.]

maz-y (mä'zē) adj. maz-i-er, maz-i-est. Resembling a maze, as in design or complexity; labyrinthine. — maz'i-ly adv. — maz'i-ness n.

maz-zard (mäz'ərd) n. A wild sweet cherry (Prunus avium) often used as grafting stock. [Perhaps alteration of Middle English mazer, goblet, hard wood. See MAZER.]

Maz-zi-ni (mät-sē'nē), Giuseppe. 1805-1872. Italian patriot who spurred the movement for an independent, unified Italy with his political writings and machinations, conducted mostly from exile in London.

mb abbr. Millibar.

MB abbr. 1. Bachelor of medicine. 2. Manitoba. 3. Megabyte.

M.B.A. or MBA abbr. Master of Business Administration.

Mba-bane (əm-bä-bän', -bä'nē) The capital of Swaziland, in the northwest part of the country. It is a commercial center for an agricultural region. Population, 33,000.

mbd abbr. Million barrels per day.

mbi-ra (ěm-bîr'ə, əm-) n. Music. An African instrument consisting of a hollow gourd or wooden resonator and a number of usually metal strips that vibrate when plucked. [Of Bantu origin; akin to Shona mbira.]

Mbu-ji Ma-yi (əm-bōō'jē mǎ'yē) A city of south-central Zaire east of Kinshasa. It is a commercial center in a diamond-mining region. Population, 423,363.

Mbun-du (əm-bōōn'dōō) n. pl. Mbundu or Mbun-dus. 1. A member of a Bantu people inhabiting southern and central Angola. Also called Ovimbundu 2. The Bantu language of this people. Also called Umbundu 3. A member of a Bantu people inhabiting northern Angola. Also called Ndongo 4. The Bantu language of this people. Also called Kimbundu mc abbr. Millicurie.

Mc abbr. Megacycle.

MC¹ (ěm'sē') n. A master of ceremonies.

MC² abbr. 1. Marine Corps. 2. Medical Corps. 3. M.C.. Member of Congress.

Mc-A-doo (mǎk'ə-dōō'), William Gibbs. 1863-1941. American railroad administrator and politician who served as U.S. secretary of the treasury (1913-1918), director of railways (1917-1919), and senator from California (1933-1938).

Mc-Al-es-ter (mĭ-kǎl'ĭ-stər) A city of southeast Oklahoma southeast of Oklahoma City. It is a distribution center in a stock-raising area. Population, 16,370.

Mc-Al-len (mĭ-kǎl'ən) A city of southern Texas on the Rio Grande west-northwest of Brownsville. It is a processing and shipping center for a citrus-growing region. Population, 84,021.

MCAT abbr. Medical College Admissions Test.

Mc-Au-liffe (mə-kô'lĭf), Anthony Clement. 1898-1975. American soldier noted for his staunch defense of American positions at Bastogne, Belgium, during the Battle of the Bulge (1944-1945).

Mc-Car-thy (mə-kär'thē), Joseph Raymond. 1908-1957. American politician. A U.S. senator from Wisconsin (1947-1957), he presided over the permanent subcommittee on investigations and held public hearings in which he accused army officials, members of the media, and public figures of being Communists. His charges were never proved, and he was censured by the Senate in 1954.

Mc-Car-thy (mə-kär'thē), Mary Therese. 1912-1989. American writer noted for her sharp literary criticism and satirical fiction, including the novels The Groves of Academe (1952) and The Group (1963).

Mc-Car-thy-ism (mə-kär'thē-ĭz'əm) n. 1. The practice of publicizing accusations of political disloyalty or subversion with insufficient regard to evidence.

2. The use of unfair investigatory or accusatory methods in order to suppress opposition. [After Joseph Raymond MCCARTHY.] —Mc-Car'thy-ist n.

- Mc·Cart·ney (mə-kärt'nē), (James) Paul. Born 1942. British musician and composer who was a member of the Beatles. With John Lennon he wrote many of the group's songs, including "She Loves You" and "A Day in the Life."
- Mc·Cau·ley (mə-kô'lē), Mary Ludwig Hays. Known as "Molly Pitcher." 1754-1832. American Revolutionary heroine who carried water to the soldiers during the Battle of Monmouth (June 28, 1778) and took over the gun of her husband after he was overcome with heat.
- Mc·Clel·lan (mə-klēl'an), George Brinton. 1826-1885. American general and commander of the Union Army (1861-1862) whose overcautious tactics prompted President Abraham Lincoln to relieve him of duty.
- Mc·Clin·tock (mə-klīn'tək, -tōk'), Barbara. Born 1902. American genetic botanist. She won a 1983 Nobel Prize for discovering that genes are mobile within the chromosomes of a plant cell.
- Mc·Clos·key (mə-klōs-kē), John. 1810-1885. American religious leader who became the first American Roman Catholic cardinal (1875).
- Mc·Clure (mə-klōr'), Samuel Sidney. 1857-1949. Irish-born American editor and publisher who founded McClure's Magazine (1893), an influential muck-raking periodical.
- McClure Strait (mə-klōr' strāt) An arm of the Beaufort Sea in western Northwest Territories, Canada, between Banks Island and Melville Island. Ice-breakers cut through the strait for the first time in 1954.
- Mc·Cor·mack (mə-kôr'mək, -mīk), John. 1884-1945. Irish-born American operatic tenor whose notable roles included Rodolpho in La Boheme and Lieutenant Pinkerton in Madame Butterfly.
- Mc·Cor·mick (mə-kôr'mīk), Anne Elizabeth O'Hare. 1882-1954. British-born American journalist. A foreign correspondent for the New York Times (1922-1954), she was the first woman to receive a Pulitzer Prize for journalism (1937).
- Mc·Cor·mick (mə-kôr'mīk), Cyrus Hall. 1809-1884. American inventor and manufacturer who developed a mechanical harvester (1831).
- Mc·Cor·mick (mə-kôr'mīk), Robert Rutherford. 1880-1955. American newspaper editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune (1911-1955), through which he espoused his conservative views.
- Mc·Coy (mə-koi') n. Informal. The authentic thing or quality; something that is not an imitation or substitute: This gem is the real McCoy. [Origin unknown.]
- Mc·Crae (mə-krā'), John. 1872-1918. Canadian poet noted for "In Flanders Fields" (1915), which he wrote while serving in France during World War I.
- Mc·Cul·lers (mə-kül'ərz), Carson Smith. 1917-1967. American writer whose fiction explores the spiritual isolation of misfits and outcasts of the South. Her novels include The Heart is a Lonely Hunter (1940) and The Member of the Wedding (1946).

- Mc·Dou·gall (mĭk-dōō'gəl), William. 1871-1938. British-born American psychologist who theorized that human behavior is determined by both instinctive and intentional strivings.
- Mc·Dow·ell (mĭk-dou'əl), Ephraim. 1771-1830. American surgeon who performed the first recorded ovarian surgery in America (1809).
- Mc·Dow·ell (mĭk-dou'əl), Irvin. 1818-1885. American general who commanded Union troops in the first and second Battles of Bull Run (1861 and 1862).
- mcf abbr. Thousand cubic feet.
- Mc·Gil·li·vray (mə-gĭl'ə-vrā'), Alexander. 1759?-1793. Creek leader who sided with the British during the American Revolution, accepted Spanish aid in resisting U.S. expansion, and signed a peace treaty with the United States (1790).
- Mc·Gov·ern (mə-gŭv'ərn), George Stanley. Born 1922. American politician. A U.S. senator from South Dakota (1963-1981), he opposed the Vietnam War and was defeated as the 1972 Democratic candidate for President.
- Mc·Graw (mə-grô'), John Joseph. Called "Little Napoleon." 1873-1934. American baseball player (1891-1900) and manager (1902-1932) of the New York Giants, which he led to 2,840 victories, including 10 pennants and 3 World Series championships (1905, 1921, and 1922).
- Mc·Guf·fey (mə-gŭf'ē), William Holmes. 1800-1873. American educator who compiled the McGuffey Eclectic Readers (1836-1857), schoolbooks that combined reading lessons with moralistic teachings.
- mCi abbr. Millicurie.
- Mc·In·tire (mäk'ĭn-tĭr'), Samuel. 1757-1811. American architect and craftsman who designed many colonial homes and public buildings in Salem, Massachusetts.
- Mc·In·tosh (mäk'ĭn-tōsh') n. A variety of red eating apple, grown commercially in the northern United States. [After John McIntosh (fl. 1796), Canadian farmer.]
- Mc·Kay (mə-kā'), Claude. 1890-1948. Jamaican-born American writer who figured prominently in the Harlem Renaissance of the 1920's. His works include collections of poetry, such as Constab Ballads (1912), and novels, including Home to Harlem (1928).
- Mc·Kees·port (mĭ-kēz'pōrt', -pōrt') A city of southwest Pennsylvania east-southeast of Pittsburgh. It is an industrial center. Population, 26,016.
- Mc·Ken·na (mə-kĕn'ə), Joseph. 1843-1926. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1898-1925).
- Mc·Ken·na (mə-kĕn'ə), Siobhan. 1923-1986. British actress noted for her portrayal of Joan of Arc and of Pegeen Mike in John Millington Synge's The Playboy of the Western World.

- Mc·Kim (mə-kīm'), Charles Follen. 1847-1909. American architect who was a leading proponent of the neoclassic revival. His designs include those of the Boston Public Library (1887) and the Rhode Island state capitol (1892).
- Mc·Kin·ley (mə-kīn'lē), John. 1780-1852. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1837-1852).
- McKinley, Mount. Also De·na·li (də-nä'lē). A peak, 6,197.6 m (20,320 ft) high, in the Alaska Range of south-central Alaska. The highest point in North America, it was first scaled in 1913.
- Mc·Kin·ley (mə-kīn'lē), William. 1843-1901. The 25th President of the United States (1897-1901). His presidency was marked by the Spanish-American War (1898), the annexation of Cuba and the Philippines, an open-door policy with China, and the passage of the Gold Standard Act (1900). He was assassinated by an anarchist in Buffalo, New York.
- Mc·Kin·ney (mə-kīn'ē) A city of northeast Texas north-northeast of Dallas. It is a distribution center for an agricultural region. Population, 21,2839.
- M.C.L. abbr. 1. Master of Civil Law. 2. Master of Comparative Law.
- Mc·Lean (mə-klān', -klēn') A community of northern Virginia, a residential suburb in the Washington, D.C., area. Population, 22,000.
- Mc·Lean (mə-klēn'), John. 1785-1861. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1830-1861).
- Mc·Lu·han (mə-klō'ən), (Herbert) Marshall. 1911-1980. Canadian cultural critic and communications theorist who maintained that the method of communicating information has more influence on the public than the information itself. His books include The Medium is the Message (1967).
- Mc·Mas·ter (mīk-mās'tər), John Bach. 1852-1932. American historian noted for his nine-volume History of the People of the United States (1883-1927).
- Mc·Mil·lan (mīk-mīl'ən), Edwin Mattison. 1907-1991. American physicist and chemist. He shared a 1951 Nobel Prize for the discovery of neptunium (1940).
- Mc·Mur·do Sound (mīk-mûr'dō sound) An inlet of the Ross Sea in Antarctica off the coast of Victoria Land. A U.S. research and exploration base is here.
- Mc·Na·mar·a (mäk'nə-mär'ə), Robert Strange. Born 1916. American public official who served as U.S. secretary of defense (1961-1968) during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.
- Mc·Naugh·ton (mīk-nôt'n), Andrew George Latta. 1887-1966. Canadian general and public official who commanded Canadian troops in Great Britain (1942-1944) and was secretary of national defense (1944-1945).
- Mc·Pher·son (mīk-fûr'sən), Aimee Semple. 1890-1944. Canadian-born American evangelist who founded the International Church of the Foursquare Gospel (1927) and was known for her flamboyant preaching and extravagant religious services.

MCP abbr. Male chauvinist pig.

MCPO abbr. Master chief petty officer.

Mc-Reynolds (mīk-rĕn'əldz), James Clark. 1862-1946. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1914-1941).

Md The symbol for the element mendelevium.

MD abbr. 1. Also Md.. Maryland. 2. Medical department. 3. Also M.D.. Latin. Medicinae Doctor (Doctor of Medicine). 4. Muscular dystrophy.

m/d abbr. Month after date.

M-day (ĕm'dā') n. The day on which national mobilization for war is ordered; mobilization day.

Mde-wa-kan-ton (əm-dĕ-wō'kən-tōn', mĕd'ĕ-wō'-) n. pl. Mdewakanton or Mde-wa-kan-tons. 1. A Sioux people of the Santee division. 2. A member of this people.

M.Div. abbr. Master of Divinity.

Mdm. abbr. Madam.

M.D.S. abbr. Master of Dental Surgery.

mdse. abbr. Merchandise.

MDT abbr. Mountain Daylight Time.

me (mĕ) pron. The objective case of I. 1. Used as the direct object of a verb: He assisted me. 2. Used as the indirect object of a verb: They offered me a ride.

3. Used as the object of a preposition: This letter is addressed to me. 4. Informal. Used as a predicate nominative: It's me. See Usage Note at be. See Usage Note at but. See Usage Note at I¹. [Middle English, from Old English mĕ. See me⁻¹ in Appendix.]

ME abbr. 1. Also Me.. Maine. 2. a. Mechanical engineering. b. Mechanical engineer. 3. Medical examiner. 4. or Or M.E. Middle English.

me-a cul-pa (mā'ə kŭl'pə, mĕ'ə) n. An acknowledgment of a personal error or fault. [Latin meā culpā, through my fault : meā, feminine ablative of meus, my + culpā, ablative of culpa, fault.]

mead¹ (mĕd) n. An alcoholic beverage made from fermented honey and water. [Middle English, from Old English meodu. See medhu- in Appendix.]

mead² (mĕd) n. Archaic. A meadow. [Middle English mede, from Old English mæd. See mĕ⁻⁴ in Appendix.]

Mead (mĕd), George Herbert. 1863-1931. American philosopher who was a leader of the American pragmatists and contributed greatly to the development of social psychology.

Mead, Lake. A reservoir of southeast Nevada and northwest Arizona formed by Hoover Dam on the Colorado River. It is the center of a large recreational area.

Mead (mĕd), Margaret. 1901-1978. American anthropologist noted for her landmark studies of adolescence and sexual behavior in primitive cultures. Her books include Coming of Age in Samoa (1928).

Meade (mēd), George Gordon. 1815-1872. American Union general who commanded the costly victory at Gettysburg (1863).

Meade (mēd), James Edward. 1907-1995. British economist. He shared a 1977 Nobel Prize for contributions to theories of international trade and finance.

mead·ow (mēd'ō) n. A tract of grassland, either in its natural state or used as pasture or for growing hay. [Middle English medwe, medoue, from Old English mædwe, from mæd, meadow. See mē-⁴ in Appendix.] —mead'ow·y adj.

meadow beauty (mēd'ō byōō'tē) n. Any of several North American plants of the genus Rhexia, growing in wet ground and having opposite leaves and showy purple flowers. Also called deer grass meadow fern (mēd'ō fûrn) n. See sweet gale.

meadow fescue (mēd'ō fēs'kyōō) n. A grass (Festuca eliator) grown for hay.

mead·ow·land (mēd'ō-länd') n. A tract of land having the characteristics of or used for a meadow.

mead·ow·lark (mēd'ō-lärk') n. Any of various songbirds of the genus Sturnella of North America, especially S. magna, the eastern meadowlark, and S. neglecta, the western meadowlark, having brownish plumage, a yellow breast, and a black crescent-shaped marking beneath the throat.

meadow mouse (mēd'ō mous) n. See field mouse.

meadow mushroom (mēd'ō mûsh'rōōm') n. An edible mushroom (Agaricus campestris) that thrives in moist soil and is widely cultivated for food.

meadow nematode (mēd'ō nēm'ə-tōd') n. Any of various nematodes of the genus Pratylenchus that are parasitic on the roots of plants.

meadow rue (mēd'ō rōō) n. Any of various plants of the genus Thalictrum, having compound leaves and clusters of small white, yellowish, or purplish apetalous flowers.

meadow saffron (mēd'ō sǎf'rən) n. See autumn crocus.

mead·ow·sweet (mēd'ō-swēt') n. 1. Either of two North American shrubs (Spiraea alba or S. latifolia) having umbel-shaped clusters of white flowers.

2. Any of various perennial herbs of the genus Filipendula in the rose family.

Mead·ville (mēd'vīl') A city of northwest Pennsylvania south of Erie. It is an industrial center in an agricultural area. Population, 15,544.

mea·ger also mea·gre (mē'gēr) adj. 1. Deficient in quantity, fullness, or extent; scanty. 2. Deficient in richness, fertility, or vigor; feeble: the meager soil of an eroded plain. 3. Having little flesh; lean. [Middle English meagre, thin, from Old French, from Latin macer. See māk- in Appendix.] —mea'ger·ly adv.

—mea'ger·ness n.

SYNONYMS: meager, spare, sparse, skimpy, scanty, scant. These adjectives mean lacking in quantity, fullness, or extent. Meager suggests leanness (a small, meager woman); in a less specific sense it implies an insufficiency of what is needed for completeness or richness: meager fare; meager resources. “The report that first reached us through the newspapers was meager and contradictory” (Thomas B. Aldrich). Spare implies bare sufficiency without excess: The library had a spare but efficient look about it. The author’s style is spare and elegant. Sparse indicates a lack of density and a thin distribution of units: a sparse hedge; sparse hair; “a party which as yet was... an unorganized mob-thick in one place, sparse in another” (Walter Besant). Skimpy implies inadequacy, as in length or fullness, such as might result from frugality or stinginess: a skimpy dress; a skimpy allowance. The skimpy rug barely covers the floor. Scanty implies a lack of sufficiency, as in extent, quantity, or degree: His knowledge of mathematics is superficial and scanty. The farmer’s financial difficulties were caused by a scanty harvest. Scant applies to what is barely enough (gave us scant respect) or to what falls short of an expected or desired amount (The movers gave me a scant hour’s notice of their arrival).

meal¹ (mēl) n. 1. The edible whole or coarsely ground grains of a cereal grass.

2. A granular substance produced by grinding. [Middle English mele, from Old English melu. See melə- in Appendix.]

meal² (mēl) n. 1. The food served and eaten in one sitting. 2. A customary time or occasion of eating food. [Middle English mele, from Old English mǣl. See mē-² in Appendix.]

meal·ie (mē'lē) n. South African. 1. An ear of corn. 2. mealies. Corn; maize. [Afrikaans mielie, from Portuguese milho, millet, from Latin milium. See melə- in Appendix.]

meal ticket (mēl tik'it) n. 1. A card or ticket entitling the holder to a meal or meals. 2. Informal. A person or thing depended on as a source of financial support.

meal·time (mēl'tīm') n. The usual time for eating a meal.

meal·worm (mēl'wûrm') n. The larva of various beetles of the genus Tenebrio that infest flour and other grain products and are often raised for bird feed.

meal·y (mē'lē) adj. meal·i·er, meal·i·est. 1. Resembling meal in texture or consistency; granular: mealy potatoes. 2. a. Made of or containing meal. b. Sprinkled or covered with meal or a similar granular substance. 3. Flecked with spots; mottled. 4. Lacking healthy coloring; pale: “I only know two sorts of boys. Mealy boys, and beef-faced boys” (Charles Dickens). 5. Mealy-mouthed. —meal/i·ness n.

meal·y·bug (mē'lē-bŭg') n. Any of various homopterous insects, especially of the family Pseudococcidae, some of which are destructive to citrus trees and other plants. [So called because it is covered with a white powdery substance.]

meal·y·mouthed (mē'lē-mouthd', -moutht') adj. Unwilling to state facts or opinions simply and directly.

WORD HISTORY: One does not hear the word mealy-mouthed today as much as one could, since the unwillingness to state facts or opinions directly seems a perennial condition of leaders and their underlings in all walks of life. It would be singularly appropriate if a man who was noted for not being mealy-mouthed had helped give us this word. The term does perhaps come to us from an expression such as German Mehl im Maule behalten, “to carry meal in the mouth, that is, not to be direct in speech.” The expression occurs in the writings of Martin Luther, who was willing to speak his mind. In English we find recorded the terms mealmouth (1546) and meal-mouthed (1576) around the same time that we find mealymouthed (around 1572), but only mealy-mouthed has survived, fortunately for us, as it seems there will always be a need for it.

mean¹ (mēn) v. meant (mĕnt), mean·ing, means. — v. tr. 1. a. To be used to convey; denote: “‘The question is,’ said Alice, ‘whether you can make words mean so many different things’” (Lewis Carroll). b. To act as a symbol of; signify or represent: In this poem, the budding flower means youth. 2. To intend to convey or indicate: “No one means all he says, and yet very few say all they mean, for words are slippery and thought is viscous” (Henry Adams). 3. To have as a purpose or an intention; intend: I meant to go running this morning, but I overslept. 4. To design, intend, or destine for a certain purpose or end: a building that was meant for storage; a student who was meant to be a scientist. 5. To have as a consequence; bring about: Friction means heat. 6. To have the importance or value of: The opinions of the critics meant nothing to him. She meant so much to me. — v. intr. To have intentions of a specified kind; be disposed: She means well, despite her blunders. — idiom. mean business. Informal. To be in earnest. [Middle English menen, from Old English mānan, to tell of. See mei-no- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: mean, denote, import, signify. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to convey a particular idea”: what does the word serendipity mean? Pro- may denote “earlier” or “anterior.” Philadelphia is the city of brotherly love; that is what its name imports. A crown signifies royal power.

mean² (mēn) adj. mean·er, mean·est. 1. a. Selfish in a petty way; unkind. b. Cruel, spiteful, or malicious. 2. Ignoble; base: a mean motive. 3. Miserly; stingy. 4. a. Low in quality or grade; inferior. b. Low in value or amount; paltry: paid no mean amount for the new shoes. 5. Common or poor in appearance; shabby: “The rowhouses had been darkened by the rain and looked meaner and grimmer than ever” (Anne Tyler). 6. Low in social status; of humble origins. 7. Humiliated or ashamed. 8. In poor physical condition; sick or debilitated. 9. Extremely unpleasant or disagreeable: The meanest storm in years. 10. Informal. Ill-tempered. 11. Slang. a. Hard to cope with; difficult or troublesome: He throws a mean fast ball. b. Excellent; skillful: She plays a mean game of bridge. [Middle English, from Old English gemāne, common. See mei-¹ in Appendix.] —mean'ly adv.

SYNONYMS: mean, low, base, abject, ignoble, sordid. These adjectives mean lacking in the elevation or dignity or falling short of the standards befitting human beings. Mean suggests pettiness; it may also connote traits such as spite or niggardliness: “chok'd with ambition of the meaner sort” (Shakespeare). “Never ascribe to an opponent motives meaner than your own” (J.M. Barrie). Something low violates standards of morality, ethics, or propriety: low cunning; a low trick. Base suggests a contemptible, mean-spirited, or selfish lack of human decency: “that liberal obedience, without which your army would be a base rabble” (Edmund Burke). Abject means brought low in condition; it often indicates starkness or hopelessness: abject submission; abject poverty. Ignoble means lacking those qualities, such as elevated moral character, that give human beings distinction of mind and soul: “For my part I think it a less evil that some criminals should escape than that the government should play an ignoble part” (Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr.). Sordid suggests foul, repulsive degradation: “It is through art... that we can shield ourselves from the sordid perils of actual existence” (Oscar Wilde).

mean³ (mēn) n. 1. Something having a position, quality, or condition midway between extremes; a medium. 2. Mathematics. a. A number that typifies a set of numbers, such as a geometric mean or an arithmetic mean. b. The average value of a set of numbers. 3. Logic. The middle term in a syllogism. 4. means. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A method, a course of action, or an instrument by which an act can be accomplished or an end achieved. 5. means. (used with a pl. verb). a. Money, property, or other wealth: You ought to live within your means. b. Great wealth: a woman of means. — adj. 1. Occupying a middle or intermediate position between two extremes. 2. Intermediate in size, extent, quality, time, or degree; medium. — idioms. by all means. Without fail; certainly. by any means. In any way possible; in any case: not by any means an easy opponent. by means of. With the use of; owing to: They succeeded by means of patience and sacrifice. by no means. In no sense; certainly not: This remark by no means should be taken lightly. [Middle English mene, middle, from Old French meien, from Latin mediānus, from medius. See medhyo- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: In the sense of “financial resources” means takes a plural verb: His means are more than adequate. In the sense of “a way to an end” means may be treated as either a singular or plural. It is singular when referring to a particular strategy or method: The best means of securing the cooperation of the builders is to appeal to their self-interest. It is plural when it refers to a group of strategies or methods: The most effective means for dealing with the drug problem have generally been those suggested by the affected communities. • Means is most often followed by of: a means of noise reduction. But for, to, and toward are also used: a means for transmitting signals; a means to an end; a means toward achieving social equality.

mean calorie (mēn käl'ə-rē) n. See calorie (n., sense 2).

me·an·der (mē-än'dər) v. intr. me·an·dered, me·an·der·ing, me·an·ders.

1. To follow a winding and turning course: Streams tend to meander through level land. 2. To move aimlessly and idly without fixed direction: vagabonds meandering through life. See Synonyms at wander. — n. 1. meanders. Circuitous windings or sinuosities, as of a stream or path. 2. Often meanders. A circuitous journey or excursion; ramble. 3. The Greek fret or key pattern, used in art and architecture. [From Latin maeander, circuitous windings, from Greek maiandros, after the Maeander River in Phrygia.] —me·an'der·er n.

—me·an'der·ing·ly adv. —me·an'drous (-drəs) adj.

mean deviation (mēn dē'vē-ā'shən) n. In a statistical distribution, the average of the absolute values of the differences between individual numbers and their mean.

mean·ie (mē'nē) n. Informal. A malicious or petty person.

mean·ing (mē'nīng) n. 1. Something that is conveyed or signified; sense or significance. 2. Something that one wishes to convey, especially by language: The writer's meaning was obscured by his convoluted prose. 3. An interpreted goal, intent, or end: "The central meaning of his pontificate is to restore papal authority" (Conor Cruise O'Brien). 4. Inner significance: "But who can comprehend the meaning of the voice of the city?" (O. Henry). — adj. 1. Full of meaning; expressive. 2. Disposed or intended in a specified manner. Often used in combination: a well-meaning fellow; ill-meaning intentions.

SYNONYMS: meaning, acceptance, import, sense, significance, signification. The central meaning shared by these nouns is "the idea that is conveyed by something, such as a word, an action, a gesture, or a situation": Synonyms are words that have the same or approximately the same meaning. In one of its acceptations value is a technical term in music. The import of his statement is ambiguous. The term anthropomorphism has only one sense. The significance of a green traffic light is generally understood. Scientists have been unable to determine the signification of most Etruscan inscriptions.

mean·ing·ful (mē'nīng-fəl) adj. 1. Having meaning, function, or purpose. 2. Fraught with meaning; significant: A meaningful glance. See Synonyms at expressive. —mean'ing·ful·ly adv. —mean'ing·ful·ness n.

mean·ing·less (mē'ning-līs) adj. Having no meaning or significance.

—mean'ing·less·ly adv. —mean'ing·less·ness n.

SYNONYMS: meaningless, senseless, mindless, irrational, pointless, purposeless.

These adjectives mean lacking import, direction, or purpose. Meaningless and senseless emphasize absence of meaning, significance, or motivation: a verbose but meaningless explanation; senseless violence. Mindless applies to that which lacks the will and thinking capacity characteristic of a conscious being: “the shrieking of the mindless wind” (John Greenleaf Whittier). “We must dare to think about ‘unthinkable things’ because when things become unthinkable, thinking stops and action becomes mindless” (J. William Fulbright). Irrational implies a lack of accord with or a lack of reason or sound judgment: “It is the function of speech to free men from the bondage of irrational fears” (Louis D. Brandeis). Pointless and purposeless stress the absence of an aim or end: The host bored his guests with a long and pointless anecdote. She feels that her life is purposeless and empty.

mean·ly (mēn'lē) adv. In a poor, lowly, or base manner.

mean·ness (mēn'nīs) n. 1. The state of being inferior in quality, character, or value; commonness. 2. The quality or state of being selfish or stingy. 3. A spiteful or malicious act.

mean solar day (mēn sō'lər dā) n. The period of time between two successive transits of the mean sun; the standard for the 24-hour day measured from midnight to midnight.

mean-spir-it-ed or mean spir-it-ed (mēn'spīr'ī-tīd) adj. Having or characterized by a malicious or petty spirit. —mean'-spir'it-ed-ly adv. —mean'-spir'it-ed-ness n.

mean square (mēn skwâr) n. Mathematics. The average of the squares of a set of numbers.

means test (mēnz tēst) n. An investigation into the financial well-being of a person to determine the person's eligibility for financial assistance.

mean sun (mēn sūn) n. A hypothetical sun defined as moving at a uniform rate along the celestial equator at the mean speed with which the real sun apparently moves along the ecliptic, used in computing the mean solar day.

meant (mēnt) v. Past tense and past participle of mean¹.

mean·time (mēn'tīm') n. The time between one occurrence and another; an interval. — adv. During a period of intervening time; meanwhile.

USAGE NOTE: Meantime is more common than meanwhile as a noun: In the meantime we waited. As an adverb meantime is less common than meanwhile: Meanwhile we waited. All of these uses are standard, however.

mean time (mēn tīm) n. Time measured with reference to the mean sun, giving equal 24-hour days throughout the year.

mean·while (mēn'hwīl', -wīl') n. The intervening time. — adv. 1. During or in the intervening time: Meanwhile, life goes on. 2. At the same time: The court is deliberating; meanwhile, we must be patient. See Usage Note at mean-time.

Mea·ny (mē'nē), George. 1894-1980. American labor leader who exerted great political influence as the first president of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations (1955-1979).

meas. abbr. Measurable; measure.

meas·les (mē'zəlz) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. a. An acute, contagious viral disease, usually occurring in childhood and characterized by eruption of red spots on the skin, fever, and catarrhal symptoms. Also called rubeola b. Black measles. c. Any of several other diseases, especially German measles, that cause similar but milder symptoms. 2. A disease of cattle and swine caused by tapeworm larvae. 3. A plant disease, usually caused by fungi, that produces minute spots on leaves and stems. [Middle English maseles, mesels, pl. of masel, measles-spot, of Middle Low German origin.]

meas·sly (mēz'lē) adj. meas·sli·er, meas·sli·est. 1. Slang. Contemptibly small; meager: gave the parking attendant a measly tip. 2. Infected with measles.

meas·ur·a·ble (mēzh'ər-ə-bəl) adj. Abbr. meas. 1. Possible to be measured: measurable depths. 2. Of distinguished importance; significant: a measurable figure in literature. — meas'ur·a·bil'i·ty n. — meas'ur·a·bly adv.

meas·ure (mēzh'ər) n. Abbr. meas. 1. Dimensions, quantity, or capacity as ascertained by comparison with a standard. 2. A reference standard or sample used for the quantitative comparison of properties: The standard kilogram is maintained as a measure of mass. 3. A unit specified by a scale, such as an inch, or by variable conditions, such as a day's march. 4. A system of measurement, such as the metric system. 5. A device used for measuring. 6. The act of measuring. 7. An evaluation or a basis of comparison: "the final measure of the worth of a society" (Joseph Wood Krutch). See Synonyms at standard. 8. Extent or degree: The problem was in large measure caused by his carelessness. 9. A definite quantity that has been measured out: a measure of wine. 10. A fitting amount: a measure of recognition. 11. A limited amount or degree: a measure of good-will. 12. Limit; bounds: generosity knowing no measure. 13. Appropriate restraint; moderation: "The union of... fervor with measure, passion with correctness, this surely is the ideal" (William James). 14. Often measures. An action taken as a means to an end; an expedient: desperate measures. 15. A legislative bill or enactment. 16. Poetic meter. 17. Music. The metric unit between two bars on the staff; a bar. — v. meas·ured, meas·ur·ing, meas·ures. — v. tr. 1. To ascertain the dimensions, quantity, or capacity of: measured the height of the ceil- ing. 2. To mark, lay out, or establish dimensions for by measuring: measure off an area. 3. To estimate by evaluation or comparison: “I gave them an account... of the situation as far as I could measure it” (Winston S. Churchill). 4. To bring into comparison: She measured her power with that of a dangerous adversary. 5. a. To mark off or apportion, usually with reference to a given unit of measurement: measure out a pint of milk. b. To allot or distribute as if by measuring; mete: The revolutionary tribunal measured out harsh justice. 6. To serve as a measure of: The inch measures length. 7. To consider or choose with care; weigh: He measures his words with caution. 8. Archaic. To travel over: “We must measure twenty miles today” (Shakespeare). — v. intr. 1. To have a measurement of: The room measures 12 by 20 feet. 2. To take a measurement. 3. To allow of measurement: White sugar measures more easily than brown. —phrasal verb. measure up.

1. To be the equal of. 2. To have the necessary qualifications: a candidate who just didn't measure up. —idioms. beyond measure. 1. In excess. 2. Without limit. for good measure. In addition to the required amount. in a measure (or in some measure). To a degree: The new law was in a measure harmful.

[Middle English, from Old French measure, from Latin mēnsūra, from mēnsus, past participle of mētīrī, to measure. See mē⁻² in Appendix.] —meas'ur-er n.

meas-ured (mĕzh'ərd) adj. 1. Determined by measurement: The measured distance was less than a mile. 2. Careful; restrained: spoke in measured words. 3. Calculated; deliberate: with measured irony. 4. Regular in rhythm and number: “A clock struck slowly in the house with a measured, solemn chime” (Thomas Wolfe). 5. Slow and stately. 6. Written in meter. 7. Music. Mensural.

—meas'ured-ly adv. —meas'ured-ness n.

meas-ure-less (mĕzh'ər-lis) adj. Too great to be measured; immeasurable: measureless happiness. See Synonyms at incalculable. —meas'ure-less-ly adv.

—meas'ure-less-ness n.

meas-ure-ment (mĕzh'ər-mənt) n. 1. The act of measuring or the process of being measured. 2. A system of measuring: measurement in miles. 3. The dimension, quantity, or capacity determined by measuring: the measurements of a room.

meas-ur-ing worm (mĕzh'ə-rĭng wûrm) n. A geometrid caterpillar that moves in alternate contractions and expansions suggestive of measuring. Also called inchworm, looper, spanworm.

meat (mēt) n. 1. The edible flesh of animals, especially that of mammals as opposed to that of fish or poultry. 2. The edible part, as of a piece of fruit or a nut. 3. The essence, substance, or gist: the meat of the editorial. 4. Slang. Something that one enjoys or excels in; a forte: Tennis is his meat. 5. Nourishment; food: “Love is not all: it is not meat nor drink” (Edna St. Vincent Millay). — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: meat products; a meat market. [Middle English mete, from Old English, food.]

CONVERSION BETWEEN METRIC AND U.S. CUSTOMARY UNITS

FROM U.S. CUSTOMARY TO METRIC

FROM METRIC TO U.S. CUSTOMARY UNITS

WHEN YOU KNOW	MULTIPLY BY	TO FIND	WHEN YOU KNOW	MULTIPLY BY	TO FIND inches	25.4	millime-	millimeters	0.04	inches ters			centimeters	0.39	inches
	2.54	centime-	meters	3.28	feet ters				1.09	yards
feet	30.48	centime-	kilometers	0.62	miles ters			milliliters	0.20	teaspoons yards	0.91	meters		0.06	table-miles	1.61	kilometers	spoons teaspoons	4.93	milliliters		0.03	fluid tablespoons	14.79	milliliters	ounces fluid ounces	29.57	milliliters	liters	1.06	quarts cups	0.24	liters		0.26	gallons pints	0.47	liters		4.23	cups quarts	0.95	liters		2.12	pints gallons	3.79	liters	cubic meters	35.31	cubic feet cubic feet	0.028	cubic		1.35	cubic meters			yards
cubic yards	0.76	cubic	grams	0.035	ounces meters			kilograms	2.20	pounds ounces	28.35	grams	metric ton	1.10	short ton pounds	0.45	kilograms	(1,000 kg) short tons	0.91	metric	square	0.16	square tons			inches
(2,000 lbs)			centimeters square inches	6.45	square	square meters	1.20	square centimeters			yards
square feet	0.09	square	square	0.39	square meters			miles
square yards	0.84	square	kilometers meters			hectares	2.47	acres square miles	2.59	square kilometers
acres	0.40	hectares

TEMPERATURE CONVERSION BETWEEN CELSIUS AND FAHRENHEIT

$$^{\circ}\text{C} = (^{\circ}\text{F} - 32) \div 1.8$$

$$^{\circ}\text{F} = (^{\circ}\text{C} \times 1.8) + 32$$

CONDITION	FAHRENHEIT	CELSIUS	CONDITION	FAHRENHEIT	CELSIUS
Boiling point of water	212°	100°	A cool day	50°	10°
A very hot day	104°	40°	Freezing point of water	32°	0°
Normal body temperature	98.6°	37°	Lowest temperature Gabriel Fahrenheit could obtain by mixing salt and ice	0°	-17.8°
A warm day	86°	30°
A mild day	68°	20°

U.S. CUSTOMARY SYSTEM

UNIT	RELATION TO OTHER U.S. CUSTOMARY UNITS	METRIC EQUIVALENT LENGTH
inch	1/12 foot	2.54 centimeters foot	12 inches or 1/3 yard	0.3048 meter yard	36 inches or 3 feet	0.9144 meter rod	16 1/2 feet or 5 1/2 yards	5.0292 meters furlong	220 yards or 1/8 mile	0.2012 kilometer mile (statute)	5,280 feet or 1,760 yards	1.6093 kilometers mile (nautical)	6,076 feet or 2,025 yards	1.852 kilometers

VOLUME OR CAPACITY (LIQUID MEASURE)

ounce	1/16 pint	29.574 milliliters gill	4 ounces	0.1183 liter pint	16 ounces	0.4732 liter quart	2 pints or 1/4 gallon	0.9463 liter gallon	128 ounces or 8 pints	3.7854 liters barrel
(wine)	31 1/2 gallons	119.24 liters
(beer)	36 gallons	136.27 liters
(oil)	42 gallons	158.99 liters

VOLUME OR CAPACITY (DRY MEASURE)

pint	1/2 quart	0.5506 liter quart	2 pints	1.1012 liters peck	8 quarts or 1/4 bushel	8.8098 liters bucket	2 pecks	17.620 liters bushel	2 buckets or 4 pecks	35.239 liters

U.S. CUSTOMARY SYSTEM

WEIGHT

grain	$\frac{1}{7000}$ pound	64.799 milligrams dram	$\frac{1}{16}$ ounce	1.7718 grams ounce	16 drams	28.350 grams pound	16 ounces	453.6 grams ton (short)	2,000 pounds	907.18 kilograms ton (long)	2,240 pounds	1,016.0 kilograms

GEOGRAPHIC AREA

acre	4,840 square yards	4,047 square meters
------	--------------------	---------------------

COOKING MEASURES

UNIT	RELATION TO OTHER COOKING MEASURES	CONVERSION TO METRIC UNITS drop	$\frac{1}{76}$ teaspoon	0.0649 milliliter teaspoon	76 drops or $\frac{1}{3}$ tablespoon	4.9288 milliliters table- spoon	3 teaspoons 16 tablespoons or $\frac{1}{2}$ pint	14.786 milliliters 0.2366 liter cup	2 cups	0.4732
pint	4 cups or 2 pints	0.9463 quart

BRITISH IMPERIAL SYSTEM

UNIT	RELATION TO OTHER BRITISH IMPERIAL UNITS	CONVERSION TO U.S. CUSTOMARY UNITS	CONVERSION TO METRIC UNITS
VOLUME OR CAPACITY (LIQUID MEASURE)
pint	$\frac{1}{2}$ quart	1.201 pints	0.5683 liter quart	2 pints or $\frac{1}{4}$ gallon	1.201 quarts	1.137 liters gallon	8 pints or 4 quarts	1.201 gallons	4.546 liters

VOLUME OR CAPACITY (DRY MEASURE)

peck	$\frac{1}{4}$ bushel	1.0314 pecks	9.087 liters bushel	4 pecks	1.0320 bushels	36.369 liters

APOTHECARY WEIGHTS

UNIT	RELATION TO OTHER APOTHECARY UNITS	CONVERSION TO U.S. CUSTOMARY UNITS	CONVERSION TO METRIC UNITS
grain	$\frac{1}{60}$ dram or $\frac{1}{5760}$ pound	equal to the U.S. Customary grain	64.799 milli-grams dram	60 grains or $\frac{1}{8}$ ounce	2.1943 grams	3.8879 grams ounce	8 drams	1.0971 ounces	31.1035 grams pound	12 ounces or 96 drams	0.8232 pound	373.242 grams

UNITS OF THE INTERNATIONAL SYSTEM

The International System (abbreviated SI, for Systeme International, the French name for the system) was adopted in 1960 by the 11th General Conference on Weights and Measures. An expanded and modified version of the metric system, the International System addresses the needs of modern science for additional and more accurate units of measurement. The key features of the International System are decimalization, a system of prefixes, and a standard defined in terms of an invariable physical measure.

The International System has base units from which all others in the system are derived. The standards for the base units, except for the kilogram, are defined by unchanging and reproducible physical occurrences. For example, the meter is defined as the distance traveled by light in a vacuum in $\frac{1}{299,792,458}$ of a second. The standard for the kilogram is a platinum–iridium cylinder kept at the International Bureau of Weights and Standards in SÈvres, France.

BASE UNITS

UNIT	QUANTITY	SYMBOL
meter	length	m
kilogram	mass	kg
second	time	s
ampere	electric current	A kelvin	temperature	K
mole	amount of matter	mol candela	luminous intensity	cd

SUPPLEMENTARY UNITS

The International System uses two supplementary units that are based on abstract geometrical concepts rather than physical standards.

UNIT	QUANTITY	SYMBOL
radian	plane angles	rad
steradian	solid angles	sr

UNITS OF THE INTERNATIONAL SYSTEM

PREFIXES

A multiple of a unit in the International System is formed by adding a prefix to the name of that unit. The prefixes change the magnitude of the unit by orders of ten from 10^{18} to 10^{-18} .

PREFIX	SYMBOL	MULTIPLYING FACTOR
exa-	E	$10^{18} = 1,000,000,000,000,000,000$
peta-	P	$10^{15} = 1,000,000,000,000,000$
tera-	T	$10^{12} = 1,000,000,000,000$
giga-	G	$10^9 = 1,000,000,000$ mega-	M	$10^6 = 1,000,000$ kilo-	K	$10^3 = 1,000$
hecto-	h	$10^2 = 1000$
deca-	da	$10 = 10$
deci-	d	$10^{-1} = 0.1$
centi-	c	$10^{-2} = 0.01$
milli-	m	$10^{-3} = 0.001$
micro-	mu	$10^{-6} = 0.000,001$
nano-	n	$10^{-9} = 0.000,000,001$ pico-	p	$10^{-12} = 0.000,000,000,001$
femto-	f	$10^{-15} = 0.000,000,000,000,001$
atto-	a	$10^{-18} = 0.000,000,000,000,000,001$

ADDITIONAL UNITS

Listed below are a few of the non-SI units that are commonly used with the International System.

UNIT	QUANTITY	SYMBOL
angstrom (= 10^{-10} m)	length	Å
electron-volt (= 0.160 aJ)	energy	eV hectare (= 10,000 m ²)	land area	ha liter (= 1.0 dm ³)	volume or capacity	l standard atmosphere (= 101.3 kPa)	pressure	atm

UNITS OF THE INTERNATIONAL SYSTEM

DERIVED UNITS

Most of the units in the International System are derived units, that is units defined in terms of base units and supplementary units. Derived units can be divided into two groups—those that have a special name and symbol, and those that do not.

WITHOUT NAMES AND SYMBOLS

MEASURE OF	DERIVATION
acceleration	m/s^2
angular acceleration	rad/s^2 angular velocity	rad/s density	kg/m^3
electric field	V/m
strength	cd/m^2
luminance	A/m
magnetic field	m/s strength velocity

WITH NAMES AND SYMBOLS

UNIT	MEASURE OF	SYMBOL	DERIVATION
coulomb	electric charge	C	$\text{A} \cdot \text{s}$ farad	electric capacitance	F	$\text{A} \cdot \text{s/V}$ henry	inductance	H	$\text{V} \cdot \text{s/A}$ hertz	frequency	Hz	cycles/s joule	quantity of energy	J	$\text{N} \cdot \text{m}$
lumen	flux of light	lm	$\text{cd} \cdot \text{sr}$
lux	illumination	lx	lm/m^2
newton	force	N	$\text{kg} \cdot \text{m/s}^2$ ohm	electric resistance	Ω	V/A pascal	pressure	Pa	N/m^2
tesla	magnetic flux den-	T	Wb/m^2 volt	sity	V	W/A
watt	voltage	W	J/s
weber	power	Wb	$\text{V} \cdot \text{s}$ magnetic flux

meat and potatoes (mēt ənd pə-tā'tōz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb).
Informal. The fundamental parts or part; the basis.

meat-and-po-ta-toes (mēt'n-pə-tā'tōz, -təz) adj. Informal. Fundamental; basic.

meat-ball (mēt'bôl') n. 1. A small ball of ground meat variously seasoned and cooked. 2. Slang. A stupid, clumsy, or dull person.

meat-head (mēt'hēd') n. Slang. A stupid or dull person.

meat hook (mēt hōök) n. 1. A hook used to hang the carcasses of slaughtered animals or large pieces of meat. 2. meat hooks. Slang. The hands or fists.

meat-less (mēt'līs) adj. 1. Lacking meat. 2. Being or relating to a time when meat is not to be eaten: meatless days.

meat loaf or meat-loaf (mēt'lōf') n. A mounded or molded dish, usually baked, of ground beef or a combination of various meats and other ingredients.

meat-pack-ing (mēt'pāk'ing) n. The business or activity of slaughtering animals and preparing the meat for sale. —meat'pack-er n.

me-a-tus (mē-ā'təs) n. pl. me-a-tus-es or meatus. A body opening or passage, such as the opening of the ear or the urethral canal. [Latin meātus, passage, from past participle of meāre, to pass. See mei⁻¹ in Appendix.]

meat-y (mē'tē) adj. meat-i-er, meat-i-est. 1. a. Of or relating to meat. b. Having the flavor or smell of meat. c. Full of or containing meat. 2. Heavily fleshed. 3. Prompting considerable thought: a meaty theme for study and debate. —meat'i-ness n.

mec-ca (mĕk'ə) n. 1. a. A place that is regarded as the center of an activity or interest. b. A goal to which adherents of a religious faith or practice fervently aspire. 2. A place visited by many people: a mecca for tourists. [After Mecca (from its being a place of pilgrimage).]

Mec-ca (mĕk'ə) A city of western Saudi Arabia near the coast of the Red Sea. The birthplace of Mohammed, it is the holiest city of Islam and a pilgrimage site for all devout believers of the faith. Population, 550,000.

mech. abbr. 1. Mechanical; mechanics. 2. Mechanism.

mechan- pref. Variant of mechano-.

me-chan-ic (mī-kăn'ik) n. A worker skilled in making, using, or repairing machines, vehicles, and tools. [From Middle English, mechanical, from Old French mecanique, from Latin mēchanicus, from Greek mēkhanikos, from mēkhanē, machine, device. See magh- in Appendix.] —me-chan'ic adj.

me-chan-i-cal (mī-kăn'ī-kəl) adj. Abbr. mech. 1. Of or relating to machines or tools: mechanical skill. 2. Operated or produced by a mechanism or machine: a mechanical toy dog. 3. Of, relating to, or governed by mechanics. 4. Performed or performing in an impersonal or machinelike manner; automatic: a droning, mechanical delivery of the speech. 5. Relating to, produced by, or dominated by physical forces: the mechanical aspect of trumpet playing. 6. Philosophy. Interpreting and explaining the phenomena of the universe by referring to causally determined material forces; mechanistic. 7. Of or relating to manual labor, its tools, and its skills. — n. Printing. A layout consisting of type proofs, artwork, or both, exactly positioned and prepared for making an offset or other printing plate. —me-chan'i-cal-ly adv. —me-chan'i-cal-ness n.

mechanical advantage (mĭ-kăn'ī-kəl äd-văn'tij) n. The ratio of the output force produced by a machine to the applied input force.

mechanical drawing (mĭ-kăn'ī-kəl drô'ing) n. 1. Drafting. 2. A drawing, such as an architect's plans, that enables measurements to be interpreted.

mechanical engineering (mĭ-kăn'ī-kəl ěn'jə-nîr'ing) n. Abbr. ME The branch of engineering that encompasses the generation and application of heat and mechanical power and the design, production, and use of machines and tools. —mechanical engineer n.

me·chan·ics (mĭ-kăn'īks) n. Abbr. mech. 1. (used with a sing. verb). The branch of physics that is concerned with the analysis of the action of forces on matter or material systems. 2. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Design, construction, and use of machinery or mechanical structures. 3. (used with a pl. verb). The functional and technical aspects of an activity: The mechanics of football are learned with practice.

mech·a·nism (mĕk'ə-nĭz'əm) n. Abbr. mech. 1. a. A machine or mechanical appliance. b. The arrangement of connected parts in a machine. 2. A system of parts that operate or interact like those of a machine: the mechanism of the solar system. 3. An instrument or a process, physical or mental, by which something is done or comes into being: "The mechanism of oral learning is largely that of continuous repetition" (T.G.E. Powell). 4. A habitual manner of acting to achieve an end. 5. Biology. The involuntary and consistent response of an organism to a given stimulus. 6. Psychology. A usually unconscious mental and emotional pattern that dominates behavior in a given situation or environment: a defense mechanism. 7. The sequence of steps in a chemical reaction. 8. Philosophy. The doctrine that all natural phenomena are explicable by material causes and mechanical principles. [New Latin mēchanismus, from Late Latin mēchanisma, from Greek mēkhanē, machine. See MECHANIC.]

mech·a·nist (mĕk'ə-nĭst) n. Philosophy. One who believes in the doctrine of mechanism.

mech·a·nis·tic (mĕk'ə-nĭs'tĭk) adj. 1. Mechanically determined.

2. Philosophy. Of or relating to the philosophy of mechanism, especially tending to explain phenomena only by reference to physical or biological causes.

3. Automatic and impersonal; mechanical. —mech'a·nis'ti·cal·ly adv.

mech·a·nize (mĕk'ə-nĭz') v. tr. mech·a·nized, mech·a·niz·ing, mech·a·niz·es. 1. To equip with machinery: mechanize a factory. 2. To equip (a military unit) with motor vehicles, such as tanks and trucks. 3. To make automatic or unspontaneous; render routine or monotonous. 4. To produce by or as if by machines. —mech'a·ni·za'tion (-nĭ-zā'shən) n. —mech'a·niz'er n.

mechano- or mechan- pref. 1. Machine; machinery: mechanize.

2. Mechanical: mechanotherapy. [Greek mēkhano-, from mēkhanē, machine. See MACHINE.]

mech·a·no·chem·i·cal (mĕk'ə-nō-kĕm'i-kəl) adj. Of or relating to conversion of chemical energy into mechanical work.

mech·a·no·re·cep·tor (mĕk'ə-nō-rĭ-sĕp'tər) n. Physiology. A specialized sensory end organ that responds to mechanical stimuli such as tension, pressure, or displacement. —mech'a·no·re·cep'tion n. —mech'a·no·re·cep'tive adj.

mech·a·no·ther·a·py (mĕk'ə-nō-thĕr'ə-pĕ) n. pl. mech·a·no·ther·a·pies. Medical treatment by mechanical methods, such as massage.

—mech'a·no·ther'a·pist n.

Mech·lin¹ (mĕk'lĭn) also Mech·e·len (mĕk'ə-lən, mĕKH'-) or Ma·lines (mə-lĕnz', mə-lĕn') A city of north-central Belgium north-northeast of Brussels. Founded in the early Middle Ages, it enjoyed its greatest prosperity during the 15th and early 16th centuries. Population, 77,010.

Mech·lin² (mĕk'lĭn) n. A lace in which the pattern details are defined by a flat thread. Also called malines [After Mechlin¹.]

Meck·len·burg (mĕk'lən-bûrg', -bŏŏrk') A historical region of northeast Germany on the Baltic Sea. It was originally occupied c. sixth century A.D. by Slavic peoples who were then displaced by Germanic settlements. After 1621 Mecklenburg was divided into two duchies, which joined the German Confederation in 1867.

mec·li·zine (mĕk'li-zĕn') n. A whitish crystalline powder, C₂₅H₂₇ClN₂, used to treat nausea and motion sickness. [ME(THYLBENZENE) + C(H)L(ORO-) + (PIP-ERA)ZINE.]

me·co·ni·um (mĭ-kō'nĕ-əm) n. A dark green fecal material that accumulates in the fetal intestines and is discharged at or near the time of birth. [Latin mēcōnium, from Greek mĕkōnion, from mĕkōn, poppy.]

me·cop·ter·an (mĭ-kŏp'tər-ən) n. Any of various carnivorous insects of the order Mecoptera, which includes the scorpion flies, characterized by long membranous wings and an elongated beaklike head having chewing mouthparts at the tip. [From New Latin Mecoptera, order name : Greek mĕkos, length; see māk- in Appendix + Greek ptera, pl. of pteron, wing; see pet- in Appendix.]

—me·cop'ter·ous adj.

med (mĕd) adj. Informal. Medical: med schools; med students.

med. abbr. 1. Medicine. 2. Medieval. 3. Medium.

M.Ed. abbr. Master of Education.

mé·dail·lon (mə-dä-yôN', mə-däl'yən) n. pl. mé·dail·lons (-yôN', -yənZ). A circular portion of food; a medallion. [French. See MEDALLION.]

me·da·ka (mĭ-dä'kə) n. A small Japanese fish (Oryzias latipes) commonly found in rice fields and often used in biological research or in stocking aquariums. [Japanese, killifish : me, eye + daka, high.]

med·al (mĕd'əl) n. 1. A flat piece of metal stamped with a design or an inscription commemorating an event or a person, often given as an award. 2. A piece of metal stamped with a religious device, used as an object of veneration or commemoration. — v. med·aled also med·alled, med·al·ing also med·al·ling, med·als also med·als. Informal. — v. intr. To win a medal, as in a sports contest: “We were the first Americans to medal” (Jill Watson). — v. tr. To award a medal to. [French médaille, from Old French, from Italian medaglia, coin worth half a denarius, medal, from Vulgar Latin medālia*, coins worth half a denarius, from Late Latin mediālia, little halves, from neuter pl. of mediālis, of the middle, medial. See MEDIAL.] — me·dal'lic (mə-dāl'ik) adj.

Med·al for Merit (mĕd'əl fôr mĕr'it) n. A decoration awarded by the United States to civilians for outstanding service in peace or war.

med·al·ist (mĕd'əl-ĭst) n. 1. One who has received a medal. 2. Sports. The winner at medal play in a golf tournament. 3. One who designs, makes, or collects medals.

me·dal·lion (mĭ-dāl'yon) n. 1. A large medal. 2. An emblem of registration for a taxicab. 3. Any of various large ancient Greek coins. 4. Something resembling a large medal, as: a. An oval or circular design used as decoration. b. A painting or an engraving set in an oval or circular frame. c. A circular portion of food, especially a boneless cut of meat: medallions of veal. [French médailion, from Italian medaglione, augmentative of medaglia, medal, from Old Italian. See MEDAL.]

med·al·list (mĕd'əl-ĭst) n. Chiefly British. Variant of medalist.

Medal of Freedom (mĕd'əl ÷v frĕ'dəm) n. A decoration awarded by the United States to civilians for outstanding achievement in various fields of endeavor.

Medal of Honor (mĕd'əl ÷v ɔn'ər) n. Abbr. MH The Congressional Medal of Honor.

medal play (mĕd'əl plā) n. Sports. Golf competition in which the total number of strokes taken is the basis of the score.

Me·dan (mə-dän') A city of Indonesia on northern Sumatra north-northwest of Padang. It is a shipping and trade center for an agricultural region. Population, 1,378,955.

Med·a·war (mĕd'ə-wər), Sir Peter Brian. 1915-1987. Brazilian-born British biologist. He shared a 1960 Nobel Prize for his work on acquired immunological tolerance.

med·dle (mĕd'əl) v. intr. med·dled, med·dling, med·dles. 1. To intrude into other people's affairs or business; interfere. See Synonyms at interfere. 2. To handle something idly or ignorantly; tamper. [Middle English medlen, from Anglo-Norman medler, variant of Old French mesler, from Vulgar Latin misculāre*, to mix thoroughly, from Latin miscēre, to mix. See meik- in Appendix.] —med'dler (mĕd'ɫər, mĕd'ɫ-ər) n.

med·dle·some (mĕd'ɫ-səm) adj. Inclined to meddle or interfere. —med'dle·some·ly adv. —med'dle·some·ness n.

Mede (mĕd) n. A member of an Iranian people, closely related to the Persians, inhabiting ancient Media. [Ultimately from Greek Mēdos, from Old Persian Māda.]

Me·de·a (mĭ-dĕ'ə) n. Greek Mythology. A princess and sorceress of Colchis who helped Jason obtain the Golden Fleece, lived as his consort, and killed their children as revenge for his infidelity.

me decade (mĕ dĕk'ād') n. The 1970's, viewed as being distinguished by self-centered attitudes and self-indulgent behavior.

Me·del·lín (mĕd'ɫ-ĕn', mĕ'thĕ-yĕn') A city of northwest-central Colombia northwest of Bogotá. Founded in 1675, it is a coffee market in a mining region at an altitude of about 1,525 m (5,000 ft). Population, 1,473,351.

med·e·vac (mĕd'ĭ-vāk') n. 1. Air transport of persons to a place where they can receive medical or surgical care; medical evacuation. 2. A helicopter or other aircraft used for such transport. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a medevac chopper; a medevac mission. — v. tr. med·e·vaced, med·e·vac·ing, med·e·vacs. To transport (a patient) to a place where medical care is available. [MED(ICAL) + EVAC(UATION).]

Med·fly also med·fly (mĕd'fli') n. Informal. The Mediterranean fruit fly.

Med·ford (mĕd'fərd) 1. A city of northeast Massachusetts, a residential and industrial suburb of Boston. Settled in 1630, it is the seat of Tufts University (chartered 1852). Population, 57,407. 2. A city of southwest Oregon west of Klamath Falls. It is a summer resort and processing center in a fruit and lumber area. Population, 46,951.

Med. Gr. abbr. Medieval Greek. me·di·a¹ (mĕ'dĕ-ə) n. A plural of medium. See Usage Note at medium.

me·di·a² (mĕ'dĕ-ə) n. 1. Linguistics. See medial (n., sense 1). 2. The middle, often muscular layer of the wall of a blood vessel. [Late Latin, from Latin, feminine of Latin medius, middle. See MEDIUM.]

Me·di·a (mĕ'dĕ-ə) An ancient country of southwest Asia in present-day northwest Iran. Settled by an Indo-European people, it became part of the Assyrian Empire and was conquered c. 550 B.C. by Cyrus the Great, who added it to the Persian Empire. —Me'di·an adj. & n.

me·di·a·cy (mĕ'dĕ-ə-sĕ) n. The state or quality of being mediate.

me·di·ae·val (mĕ'dĕ-ĕ'vəl, mĕd'ĕ-) adj. Variant of medieval.

me·di·ae·val·ism (mĕ'dĕ-ĕ'vəl-lĭz'əm, mĕd'ĕ-) n. Variant of medievalism.

me·di·ae·val·ist (mĕ'dĕ-ĕ'vəl-lĭst, mĕd'ĕ-) n. Variant of medievalist.

media event (mē'dē-ə ĭ-věnt') n. 1. An occasion that attracts prominent coverage by news organizations: “It was a media event with flowing blood and absurdist overtones” (Lance Morrow). 2. Informal. The central figure of such an occasion: “The... decision turned the startled author into a media event” (William Zinsser).

me·di·a·gen·ic (mē'dē-ə-jěn'ik) adj. Attractive as a subject for reporting by news media: “a minor leaguer of bumptious manner and mediagenic good looks” (Larry Martz).

me·di·al (mē'dē-əl) adj. 1. Relating to, situated in, or extending toward the middle; median. 2. Linguistics. Being a sound, syllable, or letter occurring between the initial and final positions in a word or morpheme. 3. Mathematics. Being or relating to an average or a mean. 4. Average; ordinary. — n. Linguistics. 1. A voiced stop, such as (b), (d), or (g). Also called *media*² 2. A sound, letter, or form of a letter that is neither initial nor final. [Late Latin mediālis, from Latin medius, middle. See medhyo- in Appendix.] — me'di-al·ly adv.

medial strip (mē'dē-əl strĭp) n. Pennsylvania. See median strip. See Regional note at neutral ground.

me·di·an (mē'dē-ən) adj. 1. Relating to, located in, or extending toward the middle. 2. Anatomy. Of, relating to, or situated in or near the plane that divides a bilaterally symmetrical animal into right and left halves; mesial. 3. Statistics. Relating to or constituting the middle value in a distribution. — n. 1. a. A median point, plane, line, or part. b. See median strip. See Regional note at neutral ground. 2. Statistics. The middle value in a distribution, above and below which lie an equal number of values. 3. Mathematics. a. A line that joins a vertex of a triangle to the midpoint of the opposite side. b. The line that joins the midpoints of the nonparallel sides of a trapezoid. [Latin mediānus, from medius, middle. See medhyo- in Appendix.] — me'di-an·ly adv.

median plane (mē'dē-ən plān) n. A plane dividing a bilaterally symmetrical animal into right and left halves.

median point (mē'dē-ən point) n. Mathematics. The intersection of the medians of a triangle.

median strip (mē'dē-ən strĭp) n. The dividing area, either paved or landscaped, between opposing lanes of traffic on some highways. Regional. Also called boulevardRegional., boulevard stripRegional., *mall*¹*Regional.*, medial strip, median-Regional., meridianRegional., neutral ground. See Regional note at neutral ground.

me·di·ant (mē'dē-ənt) n. Music. The third tone in a diatonic musical scale, determining the major or minor quality of the tonic chord. [Italian mediante, from Late Latin mediāns, mediant- present participle of mediāre, to be in the middle, from medius, middle. See MEDIUM.]

me·di·as·ti·num (mē'dē-ə-stī'nəm) n. pl. me·di·as·ti·na (-nə). Anatomy.

The region in mammals between the pleural sacs, containing the heart and all of the thoracic viscera except the lungs. [New Latin, from neuter of Medieval Latin mediastīnus, medial, alteration (influenced by Latin mediastīnus, inferior servant, drudge, probably from medius, middle, intermediary), of medius, middle. See medhyo- in Appendix.] —me'di·as·ti'nal (-nəl) adj.

me·di·ate (mē'dē-āt') v. me·di·at·ed, me·di·at·ing, me·di·ates. — v. tr.

1. To resolve or settle (differences) by working with all the conflicting parties: mediate a labor-management dispute. 2. To bring about (a settlement, for example) by working with all the conflicting parties. 3. To effect or convey as an intermediate agent or mechanism. — v. intr. 1. To intervene between two or more disputants in order to bring about an agreement, a settlement, or a compromise. 2. To settle or reconcile differences. 3. To have a relation to two differing persons or things. — adj. (-īt) 1. Acting through, involving, or dependent on an intervening agency. 2. Being in a middle position. [Late Latin mediāre, mediāt-, to be in the middle, from Latin medius, middle. See medhyo- in Appendix.]

—me'di·ate·ly (-īt-lē) adv.

me·di·a·tion (mē'dē-ā'shən) n. 1. The act of mediating; intervention. 2. The state of being mediated. 3. Law. An attempt to bring about a peaceful settlement or compromise between disputants through the objective intervention of a neutral party. —me'di·a'tive, me'di·a'to'ry (mē'dē-ə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

me·di·a·tize (mē'dē-ə-tīz') v. tr. me·di·a·tized, me·di·a·tiz·ing, me·di·a·tiz·es. To annex (a lesser state) to a greater state as a means of permitting the ruler of the lesser state to retain title and partial authority. [Probably French médiatiser, from médiat, dependent, from Old French, back-formation from immediat, independent, from Late Latin immediātus. See IMMEDIATE.]

—me'di·a·ti·za'tion (-tī-zā'shən) n.

me·di·a·tor (mē'dē-ā'tər) n. 1. One that mediates, especially one that reconciles differences between disputants. 2. Physiology. A substance or structure that mediates a specific response in a bodily tissue.

med·ic¹ or med·ick (mēd'ik) n. Any of several Old World herbs of the genus Medicago in the pea family, having clusters of small, usually yellow flowers and compound leaves with three leaflets. Several species are important for fodder and green manure. [Middle English medike, from Latin Mēdica, from Greek Mēdikē, from feminine of Mēdikos, of Media, from Mēdos, a Mede. See MEDE.]

med·ic² (mēd'ik) n. 1. A member of a military medical corps. 2. A physician or surgeon. 3. A medical student or intern. [Latin medicus, physician. See MEDICAL.]

med·i·ca·ble (mēd'i-kə-bəl) adj. Potentially responsive to treatment with medicine; curable: medicable conditions; a medicable complaint.

Med·i·caid also med·i·caid (mēd'i-kād') n. A program in the United States, jointly funded by the states and the federal government, that reimburses hospitals and physicians for providing care to qualifying people who cannot finance their own medical expenses. [MEDIC(AL) + AID.]

med·i·cal (mĕd'ī-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to the study or practice of medicine. 2. Requiring treatment by medicine. — n. Informal. A thorough physical examination. [Medieval Latin medicālis, from Latin medicus, physician, from medērī, to heal. See med- in Appendix.] —med'i·cal·ly adv.

medical examiner (mĕd'ī-kəl ɪg-zām'inər) n. 1. Abbr. ME A physician officially authorized by a governmental unit to ascertain causes of deaths, especially those not occurring under natural circumstances. 2. A physician who examines employees of a particular firm or applicants for life insurance.

medical jurisprudence (mĕd'ī-kəl jōōr'is-prōōd'nz) n. See forensic medicine.

medical law (mĕd'ī-kəl lô) n. The branch of law that deals with the application of medical knowledge to legal problems.

me·dic·a·ment (mī-dik'ə-mənt, mĕd'ī-kə-) n. An agent that promotes recovery from injury or ailment; a medicine. [Latin medicamentum, from medicāre, to cure. See MEDICATE.]

Med·i·care also med·i·care (mĕd'ī-kâr') n. A program under the U.S. Social Security Administration that reimburses hospitals and physicians for medical care provided to qualifying people over 65 years old. [MEDI(CAL) + CARE.]

med·i·cate (mĕd'ī-kāt') v. tr. med·i·cat·ed, med·i·cat·ing, med·i·cates.

1. To treat with medicine. 2. To tincture or permeate with a medicinal substance. [Latin medicāre, medicāt-, from medicus, doctor, from medērī, to heal. See med- in Appendix.] —med'i·ca'tive adj.

med·i·ca·tion (mĕd'ī-kā'shən) n. 1. A medicine; a medicament. 2. The act or process of treating with medicine. 3. Administration of medicine.

Med·i·ci (mĕd'ə-chē', mĕ'dē-) Italian noble family that produced three popes (Leo X, Clement VII, and Leo XI) and two queens of France (Catherine de Médicis and Marie de Médicis). Cosimo “the Elder” (1389-1464) was the first of the family to rule Florence. Lorenzo “the Magnificent” (1449-1492) was an outstanding patron of learning and the arts, whose clients included Michelangelo and Botticelli. —Med'i·ce'an (-chē'an, -sē') adj.

me·dic·i·nal (mī-dīs'ə-nəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or having the properties of medicine. 2. Having an unappealing, bitter flavor. —me-dic'i·nal·ly adv.

med·i·cine (mĕd'ī-sin) n. Abbr. med. 1. a. The science of diagnosing, treating, or preventing disease and other damage to the body or mind. b. The branch of this science encompassing treatment by drugs, diet, exercise, and other nonsurgical means. 2. The practice of medicine. 3. An agent, such as a drug, used to treat disease or injury. 4. Something, such as corrective discipline or punishment, that is unpleasant but necessary or unavoidable. 5. a. Shamanistic practices or beliefs, especially among Native Americans. b. Something, such as a ritual practice or sacred object, believed to control natural or supernatural powers or serve as a preventive or remedy. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a medicine cabinet; medicine bottles. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin medicīna, from feminine of medicīnus, of a doctor, from medicus, physician. See MEDICAL.] medicine ball (mĕd'ī-sīn bōl) n. Sports. A large, heavy stuffed ball used in conditioning exercises.

Med-i-cine Bow Mountains (mĕd'ī-sīn bō' moun'tənz) A range of the eastern Rocky Mountains in southeast Wyoming and northern Colorado. It rises to 3,664 m (12,013 ft) at Medicine Bow Peak in south-central Wyoming.

Medicine Bow River (mĕd'ī-sīn bou rīv'ər) A river, about 193 km (120 mi) long, of southern Wyoming flowing north and west to the North Platte River.

medicine bundle (mĕd'ī-sīn bŭn'dl) n. A covered or wrapped parcel containing items of personal or tribal religious significance, used by certain Native American peoples.

medicine dance (mĕd'ī-sīn dāns) n. A ritual dance performed by some Native American peoples to obtain supernatural assistance, as in healing or crop control.

Medicine Hat (mĕd'ī-sīn hăt) A city of southeast Alberta, Canada, near the Saskatchewan border southeast of Calgary. Founded in 1883, it is a trade center in a farming and ranching region with natural gas reserves. Population, 40,380.

medicine lodge (mĕd'ī-sīn lŏj) n. A building or structure used by some Native American peoples for ceremonies.

medicine man (mĕd'ī-sīn măn) n. 1. A shaman, especially a Native American shaman. 2. A hawker of brews and potions among the audience in a medicine show.

medicine show (mĕd'ī-sīn shō) n. A traveling show, popular especially in the 19th century, that offered varied entertainment, between the acts of which medicines were peddled.

med-ick (mĕd'ĭk) n. Variant of medic¹.

med-i-co (mĕd'ī-kō') n. pl. med-i-cos. Informal. 1. A physician. 2. A medical student. [Italian medico, or Spanish médico both from Latin medicus. See MEDICAL.]

med-i-co-le-gal (mĕd'ī-kō-lē'gəl) adj. Of, relating to, or concerned with medicine and law. [Latin medicus, physician; see MEDICAL + LEGAL.]

me-di-e-val also me-di-ae-val (mē'dē-ē'vəl, mĕd'ē-) adj. Abbr. med., M. 1. Relating or belonging to the Middle Ages. 2. Informal. Old-fashioned; unenlightened: parents with a medieval attitude toward dating. [From New Latin medium aevum, the middle age : Latin, neuter of medius, middle; see medhyo- in Appendix + Latin aevum, age; see aiw- in Appendix.] —me'di-e'val-ly adv.

Me·di·e·val Greek (mē'dē-ē'vəl grēk, mēd'ē-) n. Abbr. Med. Gr. The Greek language as used from about 800 to about 1500.

me·di·e·val·ism also me·di·ae·val·ism (mē'dē-ē'və-līz'əm, mēd'ē-) n.

1. The spirit or the body of beliefs, customs, or practices of the Middle Ages.
2. Devotion to or acceptance of the ideas of the Middle Ages.
3. Scholarly study of the Middle Ages.

me·di·e·val·ist also me·di·ae·val·ist (mē'dē-ē'və-līst, mēd'ē-) n. 1. A specialist in the study of the Middle Ages. 2. A connoisseur of medieval culture.

Medieval Latin (mē'dē-ē'vəl lăt'n) n. Abbr. Med. Lat. The Latin language as used from about 700 to about 1500.

Me·dill (mə-dīl'), Joseph. 1823-1899. American newspaperman who was a founder of the Republican Party (1854), staunchly supported Abraham Lincoln's presidential campaign and administration, and was editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune (1874-1899).

me·di·na (mī-dē'nə) n. The old section of an Arab city in North Africa. [Arabic madīna, city.]

Me·di·na (mī-dē'nə) 1. A city of western Saudi Arabia north of Mecca. Mohammed lived here after fleeing from Mecca in 622. The Mosque of the Prophet, containing Mohammed's tomb, is a holy site for Muslim pilgrims. Population, 290,000. 2. A city of northeast Ohio west-northwest of Akron. It is a processing and marketing center. Population, 19,231.

Me·di·na·Si·do·nia (mə-dē'nə-sī-dōn'yə, mə-thē'nä-sē-thô'nyä), Seventh Duke of Title of Alonso Pérez de Guzmán. 1550-1619. Spanish naval officer who led the Spanish Armada to utter defeat by English forces (1588).

me·di·o·cre (mē'dē-ō'kər) adj. Moderate to inferior in quality; ordinary. See Synonyms at average. [French médiocre, from Latin mediocris: medius, middle; see medhyo- in Appendix + ocris, a rugged mountain; see ak- in Appendix.]

me·di·oc·ri·ty (mē'dē-ōk'rī-tē) n. pl. me·di·oc·ri·ties. 1. The state or quality of being mediocre. 2. Mediocre ability, achievement, or performance. 3. One that displays mediocre qualities. —me·di·oc'ri·tize' (-tīz') v.

—me·di·oc'ri·ti·za'tion n.

Medit. abbr. Mediterranean.

med·i·tate (mēd'ī-tāt') v. med·i·tat·ed, med·i·tat·ing, med·i·tates. — v. tr. 1. To reflect on; contemplate. 2. To plan in the mind; intend: meditated a visit to her daughter. — v. intr. 1. To consider or reflect at length. 2. To engage in contemplation, especially of a spiritual or devotional nature. See Synonyms at ponder. [Latin meditārī, meditāt-. See med- in Appendix.] —med'ī·ta'tor n.

med·i·ta·tion (mēd'ī-tā'shən) n. 1. a. The act or process of meditating. b. A devotional exercise of or leading to contemplation. 2. A contemplative discourse, usually on a religious or philosophical subject. —med'ī·ta'tion·al adj.

med·i·ta·tive (mĕd'ī-tā'tīv) adj. Characterized by or prone to meditation. See Synonyms at pensive. —med'ī-ta'tive-ly adv. —med'ī-ta'tive-ness n.

med·i·ter·ra·ne·an (mĕd'ī-tə-rā'nē-ən, -rān'yən) adj. Surrounded nearly or completely by dry land. Used of large bodies of water, such as lakes or seas. [Latin mediterrāneus, inland : medius, middle; see medhyo- in Appendix + terra, land; see ters- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: When one hears the word mediterranean, one thinks of a specific place and perhaps of the great cultures that have surrounded it. But the word can also apply to any large body of water that is surrounded completely or almost completely by dry land. This usage goes back to the use in Late Latin of the Latin word mediterrāneus, the source of our word, as part of the name Mediterrāneum mare for the mostly landlocked Mediterranean Sea. But Latin mediterrāneus, which is derived from medius, “the middle of, the heart of,” and terra, “land,” in Classical Latin actually meant “remote from the coast, inland.” In Late Latin, in referring to the sea, mediterrāneus probably meant originally “in the middle of the earth” rather than “surrounded by land,” for to the Mediterranean cultures without knowledge of much of the earth, the Mediterranean Sea was in the center of the world. Our word mediterranean is first recorded in English in 1594 as the name of the sea.

Med·i·ter·ra·ne·an (mĕd'ī-tə-rā'nē-ən) Abbr. Medit. The region surrounding the Mediterranean Sea. Some of the most ancient civilizations flourished in the region, which was dominated for millenniums by Phoenicia, Carthage, Greece, Sicily, and Rome. —Med'ī-ter-ra'ne-an adj. & n.

Mediterranean fever (mĕd'ī-tə-rā'nē-ən fĕ'vər) n. See brucellosis (n., sense 1).

Mediterranean flour moth (mĕd'ī-tə-rā'nē-ən flour mōth) n. A small, pale gray moth (Anagasta kuehniella) now found worldwide, the larvae of which destroy flour and other stored grain products.

Mediterranean fruit fly (mĕd'ī-tə-rā'nē-ən frōot flī) n. A black and white two-winged fly (Ceratitidis capitata) found in many warm regions of the world, the larvae of which destroy citrus and other fruit crops.

Mediterranean Sea (mĕd'ī-tə-rā'nē-ən sē) An inland sea surrounded by Europe, Asia, Asia Minor, the Near East, and Africa. It connects with the Atlantic Ocean through the Strait of Gibraltar; with the Black Sea through the Dardanelles, the Sea of Marmara, and the Bosphorus; and with the Red Sea through the Suez Canal.

me·di·um (mĕ'dĕ-əm) n. pl. me·di·a (-dĕ-ə) or me·di·ums. Abbr. med., m., M. 1. Something, such as an intermediate course of action, that occupies a position or represents a condition midway between extremes. 2. An intervening substance through which something else is transmitted or carried on. 3. An agency by which something is accomplished, conveyed, or transferred: The train was the usual medium of transportation in those days. 4. pl. media. Usage Problem. a. A means of mass communication, such as newspapers, magazines, radio, or television. b. media. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The group of journalists and others who constitute the communications industry and profession. 5. pl. mediums. A person thought to have the power to communicate with the spirits of the dead or with agents of another world or dimension. Also called psychic 6. pl. media. a. A surrounding environment in which something functions and thrives. b. The substance in which a specific organism lives and thrives. c. A culture medium. 7. a. A specific kind of artistic technique or means of expression as determined by the materials used or the creative methods involved: the medium of lithography. b. The materials used in a specific artistic technique: oils as a medium. 8. A solvent with which paint is thinned to the proper consistency. 9. Chemistry. A filtering substance, such as filter paper. 10. A size of paper, usually 18 × 23 inches or 172 × 22 inches. — adj. Abbr. med., m., M. Occurring or being between two degrees, amounts, or quantities; intermediate: broil a medium steak. See Synonyms at average. [Latin, from neuter of medius, middle. See medhyo- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: The etymologically plural form media is often used as a singular to refer to a particular means of communication, as in This is the most exciting new media since television. This usage is widely regarded as incorrect; medium is preferred. A stronger case can be made in defense of the use of media as a collective term, as in The media has not shown much interest in covering the issue. As with the analogous words data and agenda, the originally plural form has begun to acquire a sense that departs from that of the singular: used as a collective term, media denotes an industry or community. Thus the example sentence given here would not be appropriately paraphrased as No medium has shown much interest in covering the issue, which suggests that the disinclination abides in the means of communication itself rather than in its practitioners. If media follows the pattern of data and agenda, this singular use may become entirely acceptable someday. But despite its utility, many people still regard it as a grammatical error.

medium frequency (mē'dē-əm frē'kwən-sē) n. Abbr. mf A radio frequency or radio-frequency band in the range 300 to 3,000 kilohertz.

medium of exchange (mē'dē-əm ūv'iks-chānj') n. pl. media of exchange or mediums of exchange. Something, such as a precious metal, that is commonly used in a specific area or among a certain group of people as money.

med·lar (mĕd'lər) n. 1. A deciduous European tree (Mespilus germanica) having white flowers and edible apple-shaped fruit. 2. The fruit of this plant, eaten fresh or made into preserves. [Middle English medler, from Old French meslier, medler, from mesle, medle, fruit of the medlar, from Late Latin mespila, from Greek mespilē.]

Med. Lat. abbr. Medieval Latin.

med·ley (mĕd'lē) n. pl. med·leys. 1. An often jumbled assortment; a mixture: “That night he dreamed he was traveling in a foreign country, only it seemed to be a medley of all the countries he’d ever been to and even some he hadn’t” (Anne Tyler). 2. Music. An arrangement made from a series of melodies, often from various sources. [Middle English medlee, from Anglo-Norman medlee, meddling, from past participle of medler, to meddle. See MEDDLE.]

Mé·doc¹ (mā-dōk', -dōk') A region of southwest France north of Bordeaux between the Bay of Biscay and the Gironde River estuary. It is noted for its vineyards.

Mé·doc² (mā-dōk', -dōk') n. A red Bordeaux wine. [After Médoc¹.]

me·dul·la (mĭ-dŭl'ə) n. pl. me·dul·las or me·dul·lae (-dŭl'ē). 1. The inner core of certain organs or body structures, such as the marrow of bone. 2. The medulla oblongata. 3. See myelin. 4. Botany. a. The pith in the stems or roots of certain plants. b. The central portion of a thallus in certain lichens and red or brown algae. [Middle English, from Latin, perhaps alteration (influenced by medius, middle); see MEDIAL, of merulla*.] —me·dul'lar, med'ul·lar'y (mĕd'l-ĕr'ē, mə-dŭl'ə-rē) adj.

medulla ob·lon·ga·ta (mĭ-dŭl'ə ɔb'lɔng-gä'tə) n. pl. medulla ob·lon·ga·tas or medullae ob·lon·ga·tae (-gä'tē). The lowermost portion of the vertebrate brain, continuous with the spinal cord, responsible for the control of respiration, circulation, and certain other bodily functions. [New Latin : Latin medulla, medulla + New Latin oblongata, oblong.]

medullary sheath (mĕd'l-ĕr'ē shĕth) n. See myelin sheath.

med·ul·lat·ed (mĕd'l-ā'tĭd) adj. 1. Myelinated. 2. Anatomy. Having a medulla.

med·ul·li·za·tion (mĕd'l-ĭ-zā'shən) n. Replacement of bone tissue by marrow, as in inflammatory bone disease.

me·du·sa (mĭ-dōō'sə, -zə, -dyōō'-) n. pl. me·du·sas or me·du·sae (-sē, -zē). The tentacled, usually bell-shaped, free-swimming sexual stage in the life cycle of a coelenterate, such as a jellyfish. [Latin Medūsa, Medusa (from the Medusa's snaky locks). See MEDUSA.]

Me·dus·a (mĭ-dōō'sə, -zə, -dyōō'-) n. pl. Me·du·sas or Me·du·sae (-sē, -zē). Greek Mythology. The Gorgon who was killed by Perseus. [Middle English Meduse, from Latin Medūsa, from Greek Medousa, from feminine present participle of medein, to protect, rule over. See med- in Appendix.]

me·du·soid (mĭ-dōō'soid', -zoid', -dyōō'-) n. 1. A shape resembling a jellyfish. 2. A jellyfish. —me-du'soid' adj.

meed (mēd) n. 1. A fitting recompense. 2. Archaic. A merited gift or wage. [Middle English mede, from Old English mēd.]

meek (mēk) adj. meek-er, meek-est. 1. Showing patience and humility; gentle. 2. Easily imposed on; submissive. [Middle English meke, of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse mjúkr, soft.] —meek'ly adv.

Meer (mēr, mār), Simon van der. Born 1925. Dutch engineer. He shared a 1984 Nobel Prize for his design of a particle accelerator that led to the discovery of three subatomic particles.

meer-schaum (mīr'shəm, -shôm') n. 1. A fine, compact, usually white claylike mineral of hydrous magnesium silicate, $H_4Mg_2Si_3O_{10}$, found in the Mediterranean area and used in fashioning tobacco pipes and as a building stone. Also called sepiolite. 2. A tobacco pipe with a bowl made of this mineral. [German : Meer, sea (from Middle High German mer, from Old High German marī); see mori- in Appendix + Schaum, foam (from Middle High German schūm, from Old High German scūm); see (s)keu- in Appendix.]

Mee-rut (mā'rət, mīr'ət) A city of north-central India northeast of Delhi. A Mogul city after the 14th century, it was the site of the first uprising (May 1857) against the British in the Indian Mutiny. Population, 417,395.

meet¹ (mēt) v. met (mēt), meet-ing, meets. — v. tr. 1. To come upon by chance or arrangement. 2. To be present at the arrival of: met the train. 3. To be introduced to. 4. To come into conjunction with; join: where the sea meets the sky. 5. To come into the company or presence of, as for a conference. 6. To come to the notice of (the senses): There is more here than meets the eye. 7. To experience; undergo: met his fate with courage. 8. To deal with; oppose: “We have met the enemy and they are ours” (Oliver Hazard Perry). 9. To cope or contend effectively with: meet each problem as it arises. 10. To come into conformity with the views, wishes, or opinions of: The firm has done its best to meet us on that point. 11. To satisfy (a need, for example); fulfill: meet all the conditions in the contract. See Synonyms at satisfy. 12. To pay; settle: enough money to meet expenses. — v. intr. 1. To come together: Let's meet tonight. 2. To come into conjunction; be joined: “East is East, and West is West, and never the twain shall meet” (Rudyard Kipling). 3. To come together as opponents; contend. 4. To become introduced. 5. To assemble. 6. To experience or undergo. Used with with: The housing bill met with approval. 7. To occur together, especially in one person or entity: “The hopes and fears of all the years/Are met in thee tonight” (Phillips Brooks). — n. A meeting or contest, especially an athletic competition. —idiom. meet (someone) halfway. To make a compromise with. [Middle English meten, from Old English mētan.]

meet² (mēt) adj. Fitting; proper: “It seems not meet, nor wholesome to my place” (Shakespeare). See Synonyms at fit¹. [Middle English mete, from Old English gemæte. See med- in Appendix.] —meet’ly adv.

meet-ing (mē’tīng) n. Abbr. mtg. 1. The act or process or an instance of coming together; an encounter. 2. An assembly or a gathering of people, as for a business, social, or religious purpose. —idiom. meeting of the minds.
Agreement; concord.

meet-ing-house (mē’tīng-hous’) n. A building used for public meetings and especially for Protestant or Quaker religious services.

mef·e·nam·ic acid (mēf’ə-nām’ik əs’id) n. A crystalline compound, C₁₅H₁₅NO₂, used as an anti-inflammatory drug and as an analgesic. [(DI)ME(THYL) + fen (alteration of PHENYL) + AM(INOBENZO)IC ACID.]

mega- pref. 1. Large: megadose. 2. One million (10⁶): megahertz. [Greek, from megas, great. See meg- in Appendix.]

meg·a·bit (mĕg’ə-bīt’) n. Computer Science. 1. A unit of storage capacity equal to 1,048,576 (2²⁰) bits. 2. One million bits.

meg·a·buck (mĕg’ə-bŭk’) n. Slang. One million dollars.

meg·a·byte (mĕg’ə-bīt’) n. Abbr. MB Computer Science. 1. A unit of storage capacity equal to 1,048,576 (2²⁰) bytes. 2. One million bytes.

meg·a·ceph·a·ly (mĕg’ə-sĕf’ə-lē) n. pl. meg·a·ceph·a·lies. See macrocephaly. —meg’ a·ce·phal’ic (-sə-fāl’ik), meg’ a·ceph’ a·lous (-sĕf’ə-lĕs) adj.

meg·a·cy·cle (mĕg’ə-sī’kəl) n. Abbr. Mc See megahertz.

me·ga·death (mĕg’ə-dĕth’) n. One million deaths. Used as a unit in reference to nuclear warfare.

meg·a·dose (mĕg’ə-dōs’) n. An exceptionally large dose, as of a drug or vitamin.

Me·gae·ra (mə-jîr’ə) n. Greek Mythology. One of the Furies.

meg·a·gam·ete (mĕg’ə-gām’ēt’, -gə-mēt’) n. See macrogamete.

meg·a·ga·me·to·phyte (mĕg’ə-gə-mĕ’tə-fit’) n. The female gametophyte that arises from a megaspore of a heterosporous plant.

meg·a·hertz (mĕg’ə-hŭrts’) n. pl. megahertz. Abbr. MHz One million cycles per second. Used especially as a radio-frequency unit. Also called megacycle meg·a·kar·y·o·cyte (mĕg’ə-kār’ē-ō-sīt’, -ə-sīt’) n. A large bone marrow cell with a lobulate nucleus that gives rise to blood platelets.

megal- pref. Variant of megalo-.

meg·a·lith (mĕg’ə-lith’) n. A very large stone used in various prehistoric architectures or monumental styles, notably in western Europe during the second millennium B.C. —meg’ a·lith’ic adj.

megalo- or megal- pref. Large; of exaggerated size or greatness: megalocephaly. [Greek, from megas, megal-, great. See meg- in Appendix.]

meg-a-lo-blast (mĕg'ə-lō-blăst') n. An abnormally large nucleated red blood cell found especially in people having pernicious anemia or certain vitamin deficiencies. —meg'a-lo-blas'tic adj.

meg-a-lo-car-di-a (mĕg'ə-lō-kăr'dē-ə) n. See cardiomegaly. [MEGALO- + Greek kardia, heart; see kerd- in Appendix.]

meg-a-lo-ceph-a-ly (mĕg'ə-lō-sĕf'ə-lē) n. pl. meg-a-lo-ceph-a-lies. See macrocephaly. —meg'a-lo-ce-phal'ic (-sə-făl'ĭk), meg'a-lo-ceph'a-lous (-sĕf'ə-ləs) adj.

meg-a-lo-ma-ni-a (mĕg'ə-lō-mā'nē-ə, -mān'yə) n. 1. A psychopathological condition in which delusional fantasies of wealth, power, or omnipotence predominate. 2. An obsession with grandiose or extravagant things or actions.

—meg'a-lo-ma'ni-ac' n. —meg'a-lo-ma-ni'a-cal (-mə-nī'ə-kəl), meg'a-lo-man'ic (-mān'ĭk) adj.

meg-a-lop-o-lis (mĕg'ə-lŏp'ə-lĭs) also me-gap-o-lis (mĭ-găp'ə-lĭs, mĕ-) n. A region made up of several large cities and their surrounding areas in sufficient proximity to be considered a single urban complex. [MEGALO- + Greek polis, city; see pelə-³ in Appendix.] —meg'a-lop-o-lis'tic adj. —meg'a-lo-pol'i-tan (-lŏ-pŏl'ĭ-tən) adj.

meg-a-lo-saur (mĕg'ə-lə-sŏr') n. A gigantic carnivorous dinosaur of the genus Megalosaurus of the Jurassic Period. [New Latin Megalosaurus, genus name : MEGALO- + Greek sauros, lizard.] —meg'a-lo-sau'ri-an adj. & n.

meg-a-phone (mĕg'ə-fŏn') n. A funnel-shaped device used to direct and amplify the voice. — v. tr. intr. meg-a-phoned, meg-a-phon-ing, meg-a-phones. To transmit (a message) or speak through or as if through a funnel-shaped voice amplification device. —meg'a-phon'ic (-fŏn'ĭk) adj.

—meg'a-phon'i-cal-ly adv.

meg-a-pode (mĕg'ə-pŏd') n. Any of various large-footed, ground-dwelling birds of the family Megapodiidae, found in Australia and many South Pacific islands, that build mounds or burrows of earth and compost in which to incubate their eggs. Also called moundbird, mound builder, scrub fowl. [From Megapodius, type genus : MEGA- + New Latin -podius, masculine of -podium, -pod.] me-gap-o-lis (mĭ-găp'ə-lĭs, mĕ-) n. Variant of megalopolis.

Meg-a-ra (mĕg'ər-ə) An ancient city of east-central Greece. It was the capital of Megaris, a small Dorian state between the Saronic Gulf and the Gulf of Corinth. Megara flourished as a maritime center from the eighth to the fifth century B.C.

meg-a-ron (mĕg'ə-rŏn') n. pl. meg-a-ra (-ər-ə). The main hall or central room of a palace or house, especially of Mycenaean Greece, having a pillared porch and a more or less central hearth. [Greek.]

meg·a·scop·ic (mĕg'ə-sköp'ik) adj. Macroscopic. —meg'a·scop'i·cal·ly adv.

meg·a·spo·ran·gi·um (mĕg'ə-spə-rän'jē-əm) n. pl. meg·a·spo·ran·gi·a (-jē-ə). A structure that produces one or more megaspores. Also called macrosporangium meg·a·spore (mĕg'ə-spôr', -spör') n. The larger of two types of spores that give rise to a female gametophyte. Also called macrospore —meg'a·spor'ic adj.

megaspore mother cell (mĕg'ə-spôr' mŭth'ər sĕl) n. Botany. A cell that undergoes meiosis to produce four megaspores. Also called megasporocyte meg·a·spo·ro·cyte (mĕg'ə-spôr'ə-sīt', -spör'-) n. See megaspore mother cell.

meg·a·spo·ro·gen·e·sis (mĕg'ə-spôr'ə-jĕn'ĭ-sĭs, -spör'-) n. pl.

meg·a·spo·ro·gen·e·ses (-sĕz). The formation of megaspores.

meg·a·spo·ro·phyll (mĕg'ə-spôr'ə-fĭl', -spör'-) n. A leaflike structure that bears megasporangia.

meg·a·struc·ture (mĕg'ə-strŭk'chər) n. An extremely large, tall building.

meg·a·there (mĕg'ə-thĭr') n. A large extinct ground sloth of the family Megatheriidae of the Miocene Epoch through the Pleistocene Epoch. [From New Latin Megatherium, type genus : MEGA- + Greek thēr, beast; see THEROPOD.]

—meg'a·the'ri·an adj.

meg·a·ton (mĕg'ə-tŭn') n. Abbr. MT A unit of explosive force equal to that of one million metric tons of TNT. —meg'a·ton'nage (-tŭn'ij) n.

meg·a·vi·ta·min (mĕg'ə-vĭ'tə-mĭn) n. A dose of a vitamin greatly exceeding the amount required to maintain health.

meg·a·volt (mĕg'ə-vōlt') n. Abbr. MV One million volts.

—meg'a·volt'age n.

meg·a·watt (mĕg'ə-wōt') n. Abbr. MW One million watts. —meg'a·wat't'age n.

me generation (mē jĕn'ə-rā'shən) n. The younger people of the 1970's, viewed as self-centered and self-indulgent.

Me·gid·do (mĭ-gĭd'ō) An ancient city of northwest Palestine on the southern edge of the Plain of Esdraelon. It was the scene of many battles throughout early history because of its strategic position on the route connecting Egypt with Mesopotamia.

Me·gil·lah (mə-gĭl'ə) n. 1. Judaism. The scroll containing the biblical narrative of the Book of Esther, traditionally read in synagogues to celebrate the festival of Purim. 2. megillah. Slang. A tediously detailed or embroidered account: told us the whole megillah. [Hebrew megillâ, scroll, from gālal, to roll.]

Me·grez (mē'grĕz') n. A star in the Big Dipper. [Short for Arabic mağriz ad-danab ad-dubb al-Akbar, the root of the tail of the greater bear.]

me·grim (mē'grīm) n. 1. See migraine. 2. Often megrims. A caprice or fancy. 3. megrims. Depression or unhappiness: "If these megrims are the effect of Love, thank Heaven, I never knew what it was" (Samuel Richardson). [Middle English migrem, variant of migraine. See MIGRAINE.]

Me·he·met A·li (mī-hēm'ēt ä-lē', mā'mēt) See Mohammed Ali.

Mehl·ville (mēl'vīl') A community of east-central Missouri, a suburb of St. Louis. Population, 27,557.

Meigh·en (mē'ən), Arthur. 1874-1960. Canadian politician who served as prime minister (1920-1921 and 1926).

Mei·ji (mā'jē') See Mutsuhito.

mei·o·sis (mī-ō'sīs) n. pl. mei·o·ses (-sēz'). 1. Genetics. The process of cell division in sexually reproducing organisms that reduces the number of chromosomes in reproductive cells, leading to the production of gametes in animals and spores in plants. 2. Rhetorical understatement. [Greek meiōsis, diminution, from meioun, to diminish, from meiōn, less. See mei-² in Appendix.]

—mei·ot'ic (-ōt'ik) adj. —mei·ot'i·cal·ly adv.

Me·ir (mī'ər, mā-ēr'), Golda. 1898-1978. Russian-born Israeli politician. After living in the United States (1906-1921), she moved to Palestine and later served as minister of labor (1949-1956), foreign minister (1956-1966), and prime minister (1969-1974) of Israel.

Meis·sen¹ (mī'sən) A city of east-central Germany on the Elbe River northwest of Dresden. Its porcelain industry dates to the early 18th century. Population, 38,710.

Meis·sen² (mī'sən) n. A delicate porcelain ware originally made in Meissen, Germany.

Meis·so·nier (mā'sən-yā', -sôn-), Jean Louis Ernest. 1815-1891. French painter noted for his genre and military scenes, such as La Barricade (1848).

Meis·ter·sing·er (mīs'tər-sīng'ər) n. pl. Meistersinger or Meis·ter·sing·ers. A member of one of the guilds organized in the principal cities of Germany in the 14th, 15th, and 16th centuries to establish competitive standards for the composition and performance of music and poetry. Also called mastersinger [German, from Middle High German : meister, master (from Old High German meistar, from Latin magister); see MASTER + singer, singer (from singen, to sing, from Old High German singan); see seng^{wh-} in Appendix.]

Meit·ner (mīt'nər), Lise. 1878-1968. Austrian-born Swedish physicist and pioneer in the study of nuclear fission.

Mek·nes (mĕk-nēs') A city of northern Morocco west-southwest of Fez. A capital of Moroccan sultans after c. 1672, it was once known as "the Versailles of Morocco" for its palatial buildings and splendid gardens. Population, 319,783.

Me·kong (mā'kōng', -kōng') A river of southeast Asia flowing about 4,183 km (2,600 mi) from southeast China to the South China Sea through a vast delta in southern Vietnam. The delta, a major rice-growing area, was the scene of heavy fighting during the Vietnam War.

mel·a·mine (mə'l'ə-mēn') n. 1. A white crystalline compound, $C_3H_6N_6$, used in making melamine resins and for tanning leather. 2. A plastic made from such resin. [Melam, distillate of ammonium thiocyanate + AMINE.]

melamine resin (mə'l'ə-mēn' rēz'īn) n. A thermosetting resin used for molded products, adhesives, and surface coatings.

melan- pref. Variant of melano-.

mel·an·cho·li·a (mə'l'ən-kō'lē-ə) n. Psychiatry. A mental disorder characterized by severe depression, apathy, and withdrawal. [Late Latin, melancholy. See MELANCHOLY.] —mel'an·cho'li·ac (-lē-āk') adj. & n.

mel·an·chol·ic (mə'l'ən-kōl'ik) adj. 1. Affected with or subject to melancholy. 2. Of or relating to melancholia. —mel'an·chol'ic n. —mel'an·chol'i·cal·ly adv.

mel·an·chol·y (mə'l'ən-kōl'ē) n. 1. Sadness or depression of the spirits; gloom: “There is melancholy in the wind and sorrow in the grass” (Charles Kuralt). 2. Pensive reflection or contemplation. 3. Archaic. a. Black bile. b. An emotional state characterized by sullenness and outbreaks of violent anger, believed to arise from black bile. — adj. 1. Affected with or marked by depression of the spirits; sad. See Synonyms at sad. 2. Tending to promote sadness or gloom: a letter with some melancholy news. 3. Pensive; thoughtful. [Middle English melancholie, from Old French, from Late Latin melancholia, from Greek melankholia: melas, melan-, black + kholē, bile; see ghel-² in Appendix.] —mel'an·chol'i·ly adv. —mel'an·chol'i·ness n.

Me·lanch·thon (mə-längk'thən, mā-länKH'tôn), Philipp. Originally Philipp Schwarzerd. 1497-1560. German theologian and a leader of the German Reformation. A friend of Martin Luther, he wrote Loci Communes (1521), the first extensive treatise on Protestant doctrine.

Mel·a·ne·sia (mə'l'ə-nē'zhə, -shə) A division of Oceania in the southwest Pacific Ocean comprising the islands northeast of Australia and south of the equator. It includes the Solomon Islands, New Hebrides, New Caledonia, the Bismarck Archipelago, various other island groups, and sometimes New Guinea.

Mel·a·ne·sian (mə'l'ə-nē'zhən, -shən) adj. Of or relating to Melanesia or its peoples, languages, or cultures. — n. 1. A member of any of the indigenous peoples of Melanesia. 2. A subfamily of the Austronesian languages that includes the languages of Melanesia.

mé·lange also me·lange (mā-länzh') n. A mixture: “[a] building crowned with a mélange of antennae and satellite dishes” (Howard Kaplan). [French, from Old French meslance, from mesler, to mix. See MEDDLE.]

me·lan·ic (mə-län'ik) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or exhibiting melanism. 2. Of, relating to, or affected with melanosis; melanotic.

mel·a·nin (mĕl'ə-nĭn) n. Any of a group of naturally occurring dark pigments, especially the pigment found in skin, hair, fur, and feathers.

mel·a·nism (mĕl'ə-nĭz'əm) n. 1. See melanosis. 2. Dark coloration of the skin, hair, fur, or feathers because of a high concentration of melanin.

—mel'a·nis'tic adj.

mel·a·nite (mĕl'ə-nīt') n. A black variety of garnet. —mel'a·nit'ic (-nīt'ĭk) adj.

melano- or melan- pref. Black; dark: melanin. [Greek, from melas, melan-, black.]

mel·a·no·blast (mĕl'ə-nō-blăst', mə-lăn'ə-) n. A precursor cell of a melanocyte or melanophore. —mel'a·no·blas'tic adj.

mel·a·no·cyte (mĕl'ə-nō-sīt') n. An epidermal cell capable of synthesizing melanin.

mel·a·no·cyte·stim·u·lat·ing hormone (mĕl'ə-nō-sīt'stĭm'yə-lā'tĭng hōr'mōn', mə-lăn'ə-) n. Abbr. MSH A hormone secreted by the pituitary gland that regulates skin color in human beings and other vertebrates by stimulating melanin synthesis in melanocytes and melanin granule dispersal in melanophores. Also called intermedin mel·a·noid (mĕl'ə-noid') adj. 1. Of or related to melanin; black-pigmented. 2. Of or affected with melanosis. —mel'a·noid' n.

mel·a·no·ma (mĕl'ə-nō'mə) n. pl. mel·a·no·mas or mel·a·no·ma·ta (-mə-tə). Pathology. A dark-pigmented, usually malignant tumor arising from a melanocyte and occurring most commonly in the skin.

mel·a·no·phore (mĕl'ə-nə-fōr', -fōr', mə-lăn'ə-) n. A pigment cell that contains melanin, especially as found in the skin of amphibians and reptiles.

mel·a·no·sis (mĕl'ə-nō'sĭs) n. pl. mel·a·no·ses (-sēz). Abnormally dark pigmentation of the skin or other tissues, resulting from a disorder of pigment metabolism. Also called melanism —mel'a·not'ic (-nōt'ĭk) adj.

mel·a·nous (mĕl'ə-nəs) adj. Having a swarthy or black complexion and black hair. —mel'a·nos'i·ty (-nōs'ĭ-tē) n.

mel·a·phyre (mĕl'ə-fĭr') n. A dark igneous porphyry embedded with feldspar crystals. [French mélaphyre: Greek melas, black + French porphyre, porphyry (from Medieval Latin porphyrium); see PORPHYRY.]

mel·a·to·nin (mĕl'ə-tō'nĭn) n. A hormone derived from serotonin and produced by the pineal gland that stimulates color change in the epidermis of amphibians and reptiles but whose function in mammals is not clear. [Greek melas, black + TONE + -IN.]

Mel·ba (mĕl'bə), Dame Nellie. Originally Helen Porter Mitchell. 1861-1931. Australian soprano primarily with London's Covent Garden (1889-1926) and the Metropolitan Opera in New York City (1893-1911).

Melba toast (mĕl'bə tōst) n. Very thinly sliced crisp toast. [After Dame Nellie MELBA.]

WORD HISTORY: One might think that Helen Porter Mitchell has nothing named after her until one learns that Mitchell's stage name was Dame Nellie Melba, her last name being an allusion to her native city, Melbourne, Australia. This famous opera singer of the late 19th and early 20th century inspired others to honor her by naming things, such as "soaps and sauces, ribbons and ruffles," after her. Perhaps the most well known of such honors are Melba toast and peach Melba. Auguste Escoffier, the famous chef, is thought to have had a hand in both. Melba toast is said to be derived from the crisp toast that was part of her diet during the year 1897, a year in which she was very ill. It was supposedly named toast Melba by César Ritz, the hotel proprietor, in a conversation with Escoffier. Pêche Melba was supposedly created by Escoffier in 1892 for a party honoring her at the Savoy Hotel in London, although neither Escoffier nor Melba agrees with this version. Peach Melba is first recorded in English in 1905 (in the form Pêches à la Melba and Melba toast) in 1925.

Mel-bourne (mĕl'bərn) 1. A city of southeast Australia southwest of Canberra. Settled in 1835, it was the seat of the Australian federal government from 1901 to 1927. The Summer Olympics were held here in 1956. Metropolitan area population, 2,722,817. 2. A city of east-central Florida on Indian River south of Cocoa Beach. It is a winter resort with varied light industries. Population, 59,646.

Mel-bourne (mĕl'bərn), Second Viscount Title of William Lamb. 1779-1848. British politician who served as prime minister (1834 and 1835-1841) during the early reign of Victoria.

Mel-chers (mĕl'chərz), Gari. 1860-1932. American painter of genre scenes, religious works, and the murals The Arts of War and The Arts of Peace (1893).

Mel-chi-or (mĕl'kē-ôr') In the New Testament, one of the three wise men from the East who came bearing gifts for the infant Jesus, guided by the Star of Bethlehem.

Mel-chi-or (mĕl'kē-ôr'), Lauritz Lebrecht Hommel. 1890-1973. Danish-born American operatic tenor noted for his Wagnerian roles, especially with the Metropolitan Opera in New York City (1926-1950).

Mel-chite (mĕl'kīt) n. Variant of Melkite.

Mel-chiz-e-dek¹ (mĕl-kīz'i-dĕk') In the Old Testament, the high priest and king of Salem who blessed Abraham.

Mel-chiz-e-dek² (mĕl-kīz'i-dĕk') n. Mormon Church. The higher order of priesthood. [After MELCHIZEDEK¹.] — Mel-chiz'e-dek' adj.

meld¹ (mĕld) Games. v. meld-ed, meld-ing, melds. — v. tr. To declare or display (a card or combination of cards in a hand) for inclusion in one's score in various card games, such as pinochle. — v. intr. To present a meld. — n. A combination of cards to be declared for a score. [Probably German melden, to announce, from Middle High German, from Old High German meldōn.]

meld² (mæld) v. meld-ed, meld-ing, melds. — v. tr. To cause to merge: “a professional position that seemed to meld all his training” (Art Jahnke). — v. intr. To become merged. — n. A blend or merger: “a meld of diverse ethnic stocks” (Kenneth L. Woodward). [Perhaps blend of MELT, and WELD².]

me-lee (mā'lā', mā-lā') also mê-lée (mĕ-lā') n. 1. a. Confused, hand-to-hand fighting in a pitched battle. b. A violent free-for-all. See Synonyms at brawl. 2. A confused, tumultuous mingling, as of a crowd: the rush-hour melee. [French mêlée, from Old French meslee, past participle of mesler, to mix. See MEDDLE.]

me-le-na (mā-lē'nə) n. A condition marked by black, tarry stool or vomit composed largely of blood that has been acted on by gastric juices, resulting from a hemorrhage along the digestive tract. [New Latin melēna, from Greek melaina, feminine of melas, black.]

mel-ic (mĕl'ik) adj. Of or relating to verse that is intended to be sung, especially Greek lyric verse of the seventh to fifth century B.C. [Greek melikos, from melos, song.]

Me-lil-la (mā-lĕl'yä) A Spanish city on the Mediterranean coast of northeast Morocco. Conquered by Spain c. 1496, it was the site of the army revolt that triggered the Spanish Civil War in 1936. Population, 56,247.

mel-i-lot (mĕl'ə-lŏt') n. Any of several Old World plants of the genus Melilotus in the pea family, having compound leaves with three leaflets and narrow racemes of small white or yellow flowers. Also called sweet clover [Middle English melilote, from Old French, from Latin melilōtos, from Greek : meli, honey; see melit- in Appendix + lōtos, lotus.]

mel-io-rate (mĕl'yə-rāt', mĕ'lĕ-ə-) v. mel-io-rat-ed, mel-io-rat-ing, mel-io-rates. — v. tr. To make better; improve. — v. intr. To grow better. [Latin meliōrāre, meliōrāt-, from melior, better. See mel-² in Appendix.]

—mel'io-ra-ble (-rə-bəl) adj. —mel'io-ra'tive adj., n. —mel'io-ra'tor n.

mel-io-ra-tion (mĕl'yə-rā'shən, mĕ'lĕ-ə-) n. 1. a. The act or process of improving something or the state of being improved. b. An improvement. 2. The linguistic process by which a word over a period of time grows more elevated in meaning or more positive in connotation.

mel-io-rism (mĕl'yə-rĭz'əm, mĕ'lĕ-ə-) n. The belief that society has an innate tendency toward improvement and that this tendency may be furthered through conscious human effort. [Latin melior, better; see mel-² in Appendix + -ISM.]

—mel'io-rist n. —mel'io-ris'tic adj.

me-lis-ma (mā-lĭz'mə) n. pl. me-lis-ma-ta (-mə-tə) or me-lis-mas. Music. A decorative passage of several notes sung to one syllable of text, as in Gregorian chant. [Greek, melody, from melizein, to sing, from melos, song.]

—mel'is-mat'ic (mĕl'iz-măt'ik) adj.

Mel-kite or Mel-chite (mĕl'kīt) n. 1. A member of the Christian churches in Egypt and Syria that accepted the Council of Chalcedon. 2. A member of a Christian church using the Byzantine rite and belonging to the patriarchates of Alexandria, Antioch, or Jerusalem, especially a Uniat Christian. [New Latin Melchitae, Melkites, from Medieval Greek Melkhitai, from Syriac malkāyê, royalists, pl. of malkā, king.]

mel-lif-er-ous (mə-lif'ər-əs) also mel-lif-ic (-lif'ik) adj. Forming or bearing honey. [From Latin mellifer: mel, mell-, honey; see melit- in Appendix + -fer, -fer.]

mel-lif-lu-ent (mə-lif'lō-ənt) adj. Mellifluous. —mel-lif'lu-ent-ly adv.

mel-lif-lu-ous (mə-lif'lō-əs) adj. 1. Flowing with sweetness or honey.

2. Smooth and sweet: “polite and cordial, with a mellifluous, well-educated voice” (H.W. Crocker III). [Middle English, from Late Latin mellifluus: Latin mel, mell-, honey; see melit- in Appendix + Latin -fluus, flowing; see bhleu- in Appendix.]

—mel-lif'lu-ous-ly adv. —mel-lif'lu-ous-ness n.

Mel-lon (mĕl'ən), Andrew William. 1855-1937. American financier and public official who served as U.S. secretary of the treasury (1921-1932) and endowed the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.

mel-lo-phone (mĕl'ō-fōn') n. Music. A brass wind instrument, similar to the French horn, often used in military or marching bands. [MELLO(W) + -PHONE.]

mel-low (mĕl'ō) adj. mel-low-er, mel-low-est. 1. a. Soft, sweet, juicy, and full-flavored because of ripeness: a mellow fruit. b. Suggesting softness or sweetness: “The mellow air brought in the feel of imminent autumn” (Thomas Hardy).

2. Rich and soft in quality: a mellow sound; a mellow wine. 3. Having the gentleness, wisdom, or tolerance often characteristic of maturity. 4. Relaxed and unhurried; easygoing: a mellow friend; a mellow conversation. 5. Slang.

a. Slightly and pleasantly intoxicated. b. Pleasantly high from a drug, especially from smoking marijuana. 6. Moist, rich, soft, and loamy. Used of soil. — v. tr. intr. mel-lowed, mel-low-ing, mel-lows. To make or become mellow.

—phrasal verb. mellow out. Slang. To become genial and pleasant; relax: “The cowboy mellowed out when they read him a sweet letter from his wife” (Bobbie Ann Mason). [Middle English melwe, perhaps from melowe, variant of mele, ground grain, meal. See MEAL¹.] —mel'low-ly adv. —mel'low-ness n.

me-lo-de-on (mə-lō'dē-ən) n. Music. A small reed organ. [Probably alteration of melodium, from MELODY.]

me-lod-ic (mə-lōd'ik) adj. Music. Of, relating to, or containing melody.

—me-lod'i-cal-ly adv.

me-lo-di-ous (mə-lō'dē-əs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or containing a pleasing succession of sounds; tuneful. 2. Agreeable to hear: a melodious voice; the melodious song of a bird. —me-lo'di-ous-ly adv. —me-lo'di-ous-ness n.

mel-o-dize (mĕl'ə-dīz') v. mel-o-dized, mel-o-diz-ing, mel-o-diz-es.

Music. — v. tr. 1. To write a melody for (a song lyric). 2. To make melodious. — v. intr. To compose a melody. —mel'o-diz'er, mel'o-dist n.

mel-o-dra-ma (mĕl'ə-dră'mə, -drăm'ə) n. 1. a. A drama, such as a play, film, or television program, characterized by exaggerated emotions, stereotypical characters, and interpersonal conflicts. b. The dramatic genre characterized by this treatment. 2. Behavior or occurrences having melodramatic characteristics. [Alteration of melodrame, from French mélodrame, spoken drama that includes some musical accompaniment, melodrama : Greek melos, song + French drame, drama (from Late Latin drāma); see DRAMA.]

mel-o-dra-mat-ic (mĕl'ə-drə-măt'ĭk) adj. 1. Having the excitement and emotional appeal of melodrama: “a melodramatic account of two perilous days spent among the planters” (Frank O. Gatell). 2. Exaggeratedly emotional or sentimental; histrionic: “Accuse me, if you will, of melodramatic embroidery” (Erskine Childers). See Synonyms at dramatic. 3. Characterized by false pathos and sentiment. —mel'o-dra-mat'i-cal-ly adv.

mel-o-dra-mat-ics (mĕl'ə-drə-măt'ĭks) n. 1. (used with a sing. verb). Melodramatic theatrical performance. 2. (used with a pl. verb). Exaggeratedly emotional behavior; histrionics.

mel-o-dy (mĕl'ə-dē) n. pl. mel-o-dies. 1. A pleasing succession or arrangement of sounds. 2. Musical quality: the melody of verse. 3. Music. a. A rhythmically organized sequence of single tones so related to one another as to make up a particular phrase or idea. b. Structure with respect to the arrangement of single notes in succession. c. The leading part or the air in a harmonic composition. 4. A poem suitable for setting to music or singing. [Middle English melodie, from Old French, from Late Latin melōdia, from Greek melōidia, singing choral song : melos, tune + aidē, song; see wed-² in Appendix.]

mel-oid (mĕl'oid', mĕl'ō-īd) n. See blister beetle. — adj. Of or relating to blister beetles. [From New Latin Meloidae, family name, from Meloe, type genus.]

mel-on (mĕl'ən) n. 1. Any of several varieties of two related vines (Cucumis melo or Citrullus lanatus) widely cultivated for their edible fruit. 2. The fruit of any of these plants, having a hard rind and juicy flesh. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin mēlō, mēlōn-, short for Latin mēlopepō, from Greek mēlopepōn : mēlon, apple + pepōn, gourd.]

mel-on-gene (mĕl'ən-jĕn') n. See eggplant (n., sense 1). [French mélongène, from Old French melanjan, melonge, from Medieval Latin melongēna, from Old Italian melanzana, melongiane, from Medieval Greek melintzana, melanzana, alteration (influenced by Greek melas, dark), of Arabic bāḍinjān, from Persian bādingān.]

Me·los (mē'lôz) See Milos.

Mel·pom·e·ne (mĕl-pŏm'ə-nē') n. Greek Mythology. The Muse of tragedy.

Mel·rose (mĕl'rōz') A city of northeast Massachusetts, a residential suburb of Boston. Population, 28,150.

Melrose Park (mĕl'rōz' pārk) A village of northeast Illinois, an industrial suburb of Chicago. Population, 20,859.

melt (mĕlt) v. melt·ed, melt·ing, melts. — v. intr. 1. To be changed from a solid to a liquid state by application of heat or pressure or both. 2. To dissolve: Sugar melts in water. 3. To disappear or vanish gradually as if by dissolving: The crowd melted away after the rally. 4. To pass or merge imperceptibly into something else: Sea melted into sky along the horizon. 5. To become softened in feeling: Our hearts melted at the child's tears. 6. Obsolete. To be overcome or crushed, as by grief, dismay, or fear. — v. tr. 1. To change (a solid) to a liquid state by the application of heat or pressure or both. 2. To dissolve: The tide melted our sand castle away. 3. To cause to disappear gradually; disperse. 4. To cause (units) to blend: "Here individuals of all races are melted into a new race of men" (Michel Guillaume Jean de Crèvecoeur). 5. To soften (someone's feelings); make gentle or tender. — n. 1. A melted solid; a fused mass. 2. The state of being melted. 3. a. The act or operation of melting. b. The quantity melted at a single operation or in one period. 4. A usually open sandwich topped with melted cheese: a tuna melt. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: glacial melt water; the summer melt season. [Middle English melten, from Old English meltan. See mel⁻¹ in Appendix.] — melt'a·bil'i·ty n. — melt'a·ble adj. — melt'er n. — melt'ing·ly adv. — melt'y adj.

SYNONYMS: melt, fuse, liquefy, thaw, deliquesce. These verbs mean to change or cause to change into a liquid. Melt implies liquefaction caused principally by heat: The candle softened and melted in the sun. I melted the butter in a saucepan. Figuratively the term suggests gradual dispersion, dissipation, and disappearance: "They melt like mist, the solid lands" (Tennyson). "The usual reserve of their manner... has... melted away" (Thomas De Quincey). Melt can also mean to become softened in feeling, as through pity, sympathy, or love: His heart melted at the sight of the injured child. Fuse primarily suggests the union of different constituents, such as two minerals, by or as if by heating: "It is the most formidable kind of faith—the kind that is emotionally fused with national pride" (Conor Cruise O'Brien). Liquefy, unlike the other terms in this group, is restricted to physical processes but is used of both gases and solids: a process that is used to liquefy nitrogen. Thaw applies to the partial or complete melting of something, such as ice, that is frozen; figuratively it suggests the softening or dissolution of something, as of formality or reserve, likened to a frozen substance: “The short, shy manner of their white-haired host thawed under the influence of Mrs. Elsmere’s racy, unaffected ways” (Mrs. Humphry Ward). To deliquesce is to become liquid, usually gradually, through absorption of moisture from the air: “Pure chloride of sodium is not liable to deliquesce” (David Page).

melt-age (mĕl’tj) n. 1. The substance or quantity of a substance produced by a melting process. 2. The act or process of melting.

melt-down (mĕlt’doun’) n. 1. Severe overheating of a nuclear reactor core, resulting in melting of the core and escape of radiation. 2. Informal. A situation likened to the melting of a nuclear reactor core: “After several corporate melt-downs, only two reporters remain in [the] bureau” (David Fitzpatrick).

melt-ing point (mĕl’tŭng point) n. Abbr. mp, m.p. Chemistry. 1. The temperature at which a solid becomes a liquid at standard atmospheric pressure. 2. The temperature at which a solid and its liquid are in equilibrium, at any fixed pressure.

melting pot (mĕl’tŭng pŏt) n. 1. A container in which a substance is melted. 2. A place where immigrants of different cultures or races form an integrated society: “Canadians... liked to think of their country as a mosaic rather than a melting pot” (Kenneth McNaught).

mel-ton (mĕl’tən) n. A heavy woolen cloth used chiefly for making overcoats and hunting jackets. [After Melton Mowbray, an urban district of central England.]

Mel-ville (mĕl’vĭl), Herman. 1819-1891. American writer whose experiences at sea provided the factual basis of his allegorical masterpiece Moby Dick (1851), considered among the greatest American novels. His other works include short stories, such as “Bartleby the Scrivener” (1856), and the novella Billy Budd (published 1924). —Mel-vil’le-an (-vĭl’ē-ən) adj.

Melville, Lake. A saltwater lake of Newfoundland, Canada, in southeast Labrador. It receives the Churchill River in Goose Bay, its southwest arm.

Melville Island (mĕl’vĭl ī’lænd) 1. An island of northern Australia in the Timor Sea. 2. An island of northern Northwest Territories, Canada, in the Queen Elizabeth Islands north of Victoria Island. It was discovered by the British explorer Sir William Parry in 1819.

Melville Peninsula (mĕl’vĭl pə-nĭn’syə-lə) A peninsula of eastern Northwest Territories, Canada, between Foxe Basin and an arm of the Gulf of Boothia. It is separated from Baffin Island by a narrow strait.

mem (mĕm) n. The 13th letter of the Hebrew alphabet. [Hebrew, perhaps from mayīm, water.]

mem. abbr. 1. Member. 2. Memoir. 3. Memorandum. 4. Memorial.

mem·ber (mēm/'bər) n. Abbr. mem. 1. A distinct part of a whole, especially:
a. Linguistics. A syntactic unit of a sentence; a clause. b. Logic. A proposition of a syllogism. c. Mathematics. An element in a set. 2. A part or an organ of a human or animal body, as: a. A limb, such as an arm or a leg. b. The penis. 3. A part of a plant. 4. One that belongs to a group or an organization: a club member; a bank that is a member of the FDIC. 5. Mathematics. The expression on either side of an equality sign. 6. A structural unit, such as a beam or wall. [Middle English membre, from Old French, from Latin membrum.]

member firm (mēm/'bər fûrm) n. A securities firm with officers or partners who are members of an organized exchange.

mem·ber·ship (mēm/'bər-shīp') n. 1. The state of being a member. 2. The total number of members in a group: an organization with a growing membership.

mem·brane (mēm/'brān') n. 1. Biology. a. A thin, pliable layer of tissue covering surfaces or separating or connecting regions, structures, or organs of an animal or a plant. b. Cell membrane. 2. A piece of parchment. 3. Chemistry. A thin sheet of natural or synthetic material that is permeable to substances in solution. [Latin membrāna, skin, from membrum, member of the body.]

—mem'bra·nal (-brə-nəl) adj.

membrane bone (mēm/'brān' bōn) n. A bone that forms directly in membranous connective tissue, as some cranial bones, instead of developing from cartilage.

mem·bra·nous (mēm/'brə-nəs) adj. 1. Relating to, made of, or similar to a membrane. 2. Pathology. Characterized by the formation of a membrane or a layer similar to a membrane.

membranous labyrinth (mēm/'brə-nəs lăb'ə-rīnth') n. The fluid-filled membranous sacs of the inner ear that are associated with the senses of hearing and balance.

Me·mel (mā/'məl) See Klaipeda.

me·men·to (mə-měn/'tō) n. pl. me·men·tos or me·men·toes. A reminder of the past; a keepsake. [Middle English, commemoration of the living or the dead in the Canon of the Mass, from Latin mementō, imperative of meminisse, to remember. See men⁻¹ in Appendix.]

memento mo·ri (mə-měn/'tō mōr'ē) n. pl. memento mori. 1. A reminder of death or mortality, especially a death's-head. 2. A reminder of human failures or errors. [Medieval Latin mementō morī*, be mindful of dying : Latin mementō, imperative of meminisse, to remember + Latin morī, to die.]

Mem·ling (mēm/'līŋ) also Mem·linc (-līŋk), Hans. 1430?-1494. Flemish painter of portraits and, more notably, religious works, such as the triptych Adoration of the Magi (1479).

Mem·non (mēm/'nōn') n. Greek Mythology. An Ethiopian king killed by Achilles and made immortal by Zeus.

mem·o (mĕm'ō) n. pl. mem·os. Informal. A memorandum.

mem·oir (mĕm'wâr', -wôr') n. Abbr. mem. 1. An account of the personal experiences of an author. 2. Often memoirs. An autobiography. 3. A biography or biographical sketch. 4. A report, especially on a scientific or scholarly topic. 5. memoirs. The report of the proceedings of a learned society. [French mémoire, from Old French memoire, memory. See MEMORY.] —mem'oir·ist n.

mem·o·ra·bil·i·a (mĕm'ər-ə-bĭl'ē-ə, -bĭl'yə) pl.n. 1. Objects valued for their connection with historical events, culture, or entertainment: posters, publicity photographs, and other movie memorabilia. 2. Events or experiences worthy of remembrance: a book containing the memorabilia of a life in the theater. [Latin memorabilia, neuter pl. of memorabilis, memorable. See MEMORABLE.]

mem·o·ra·ble (mĕm'ər-ə-bəl) adj. Worth being remembered or noted; remarkable: “memoirs of people who never had a memorable thought” (George F. Will). [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin memorabilis, from memorāre, to bring to remembrance, from memor, mindful. See (s)mer-¹ in Appendix.] —mem'o·ra·bil'i·ty, mem'o·ra·ble·ness n. —mem'o·ra·bly adv.

mem·o·ran·dum (mĕm'ə-răn'dəm) n. pl. me·mo·ran·dums or me·mo·ran·da (-də). Abbr. mem. 1. A short note written as a reminder. 2. A written record or communication, as in a business office. 3. Law. A short written statement outlining the terms of an agreement, a transaction, or a contract. 4. A business statement made by a consignor about a shipment of goods that may be returned. 5. A brief, unsigned diplomatic communication. [Middle English, to be remembered: used as a manuscript notation, from Latin, neuter sing. gerundive of memorāre, to bring to remembrance. See MEMORABLE.]

me·mo·ri·al (mə-môr'ē-əl, -môr'-) n. Abbr. mem. 1. Something, such as a monument or holiday, intended to celebrate or honor the memory of a person or an event. 2. A written statement of facts or a petition presented to a legislative body or an executive. — adj. 1. Serving as a remembrance of a person or an event; commemorative. 2. Of, relating to, or being in memory. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin memoriāle, from neuter of Latin memoriālis, belonging to memory, from memoria, memory. See MEMORY.] —me·mo'ri·al·ly adv.

Me·mo·ri·al Day (mə-môr'ē-əl dā, -môr'-) n. May 30, observed in the United States in commemoration of those members of the armed forces killed in war. It is officially observed on the last Monday in May. Also called Decoration Day me·mo·ri·al·ist (mə-môr'ē-əl-ĭst, -môr'-) n. 1. A person who writes memoirs. 2. A person who writes or signs a memorial.

me·mo·ri·al·ize (mə-môr'ē-əl-ĭz', mə-môr'-) v. tr. me·mo·ri·al·ized, me·mo·ri·al·iz·ing, me·mo·ri·al·iz·es. 1. To provide a memorial for; commemorate. 2. To present a memorial to; petition. —me·mo'ri-al-i-za'tion (-ə-lī-zā'shən) n. —me·mo'ri-al-iz'er n.

memorial park (mə-môr'ē-əl pārk) n. A cemetery.

mem·o·rize (mēm'ə-rīz') v. tr. mem·o·rized, mem·o·rizing, mem·o·rizes. 1. To commit to memory; learn by heart. 2. Computer Science. To store in memory: "Some programmable phones can now memorize up to 100 numbers" (Time). —mem'ō-riz'a-ble adj. —mem'ō-ri-za'tion (-rī-zā'shən) n. —mem'ō-riz'er n.

mem·o·ry (mēm'ə-rē) n. pl. mem·o·ries. 1. The mental faculty of retaining and recalling past experience. 2. The act or an instance of remembering; recollection: spent the afternoon lost in memory. 3. All that a person can remember: It hasn't happened in my memory. 4. Something remembered: pleasant childhood memories. 5. The fact of being remembered; remembrance: dedicated to their grandparents' memory. 6. The period of time covered by the remembrance or recollection of a person or group of persons: within the memory of humankind. 7. Biology. Persistent modification of behavior resulting from an animal's experience. 8. Computer Science. a. A unit of a computer that preserves data for retrieval. b. Capacity for storing information: two million bytes of memory. 9. Statistics. The set of past events affecting a given event in a stochastic process. 10. The capacity of a material, such as plastic or metal, to return to a previous shape after deformation. [Middle English memorie, from Anglo-French, from Latin memoria, from memor, mindful. See (s)mer⁻¹ in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: memory, remembrance, recollection, reminiscence. These nouns denote the act or an instance of remembering, or something remembered. Memory is the faculty of retaining and reviving impressions or recalling past experiences: He has a bad memory for facts and figures. "Even memory is not necessary for love" (Thornton Wilder). The word also applies to something recalled to the mind, a sense in which it often suggests a personal, cherished quality: "My earliest memories were connected with the South" (Thomas B. Aldrich). Remembrance most often denotes the process or act of recalling: The remembrance of his humiliation was almost too painful to bear. Recollection is sometimes interchangeable with memory: My recollection of the incident differs from yours. Often, though, the term suggests a deliberate, concentrated effort to remember: After a few minutes' recollection she produced the answer. Reminiscence is the act or process of recollecting past experiences or events within one's personal knowledge: "Her mind seemed wholly taken up with reminiscences of past gaiety" (Charlotte Brontë). When the word refers to what is remembered, it may involve the sharing of the recollection with another or others: They spent some time in reminiscence before turning to the business that had brought them together.

memory engram (mēm'ə-rē ěn'grām') n. An engram.

memory trace (mēm'ə-rē trās) n. An engram.

Mem-phīs (mēm'fīs) 1. An ancient city of Egypt south of Cairo. Reputedly founded by Menes, the first king of united Egypt, it retained its primacy until the conquest of Egypt by Alexander the Great. Its remains include an extensive necropolis. 2. A city of southwest Tennessee on the Mississippi River near the Mississippi border. Established and named (1819) by Andrew Jackson on the site of a fort built in 1797, it was an important Union base after its capture by federal troops in 1862 during the Civil War. Memphis is today a major port and a tourist center famous for its associations with blues music. Population, 610,337.

mem-sa-hib (mēm'sä'ĭb) n. Used formerly as a form of respectful address for a European woman in colonial India. [MA'AM + SAHIB.] men (mĕn) n. Plural of man.

men- pref. Variant of meno-.

men-ace (mĕn'is) n. 1. a. A possible danger; a threat: the menace of nuclear war. b. The act of threatening. 2. A troublesome or annoying person: a toddler who was a menace in a shop full of crystal. — v. men-aced, men-ac-ing, men-ac-es. — v. tr. 1. To utter threats against. 2. To constitute a threat to; endanger. See Synonyms at threaten. — v. intr. To make threats. [Middle English, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin minācia*, sing. of Latin mināciā, threats, menaces, from mināx, mināc-, threatening, from minārī, to threaten, from minae, threats. See men⁻² in Appendix.] — men'ac-er n.

—men'ac-ing-ly adv.

men-a-di-one (mĕn'ə-dī'ōn') n. A yellow crystalline powder, C₁₁H₈O₂, used in medicine as a vitamin K supplement. [ME(THYL) + NA(PHTHALENE) + DI⁻¹ + -ONE.]

mé-nage (mā-nāzh') n. 1. People living together as a unit; a household. 2. The management of a household. [French, from Old French, from manĕir, to stay, from Latin manĕre, to remain. See REMAIN.]

ménage à trois (mā-nāzh' ä trwä') n. A relationship wherein three people, such as a married couple and a lover, live together. [French : ménage, household + à, for + trois, three.]

me-nag-er-ie (mə-nāj'ə-rē, -nāzh'-) n. 1. a. A collection of live wild animals on exhibition. b. An enclosure in which wild animals are kept. 2. A diverse or miscellaneous group. [French ménagerie, from Old French menage, ménage. See MÉNAGE.]

Me-nan-der (mə-nān'dər), 342-292 B.C. Greek dramatist whose romantic works were influential in the development of comedy.

me-nar-che (mə-nār'kē) n. The first menstrual period, usually occurring during puberty. [MEN(O)- + Greek arkhē, beginning (from arkhein, to begin).]

—me-nar'che-al adj.

men-at-arms (mĕn'ət-ärmz') n. Plural of man-at-arms.

men-a-zon (mĕn'ə-zŏn') n. A colorless crystalline compound, C₆H₈N₅O₂PS₂, used as an insecticide against aphids. [(DI)ME(THYL) + (DIAMI)N(E) + (TRI)AZ(INE) + (thi)on(ate), salt or ester of a thionic acid (THION- + -ATE²).]

men-chil-dren (mĕn' chĭl'drən) n. Plural of man-child.

Men-ci-us (mĕn'shĕ-əs), Originally Meng-zi (mœng'zĕ') Fourth century B.C. Chinese Confucian philosopher who taught that man is innately good and that one's nature can be enhanced or perverted by one's environment.

Menck-en (mĕng'kən), H(enry) L(ouis). 1880-1956. American editor and critic. A founder and editor (1924-1933) of the American Mercury, he wrote essays of vitriolic social criticism, often directed toward the complacent middle class.

—Menck-e'ni-an (mĕng-kĕ'nĕ-ən) adj.

mend (mĕnd) v. mend-ed, mend-ing, mends. — v. tr. 1. To make repairs or restoration to; fix. 2. To reform or correct: mend one's ways. — v. intr.

1. a. To improve in health or condition: The patient is mending well. b. To heal: The bone mended in a month. 2. To make repairs or corrections. — n. 1. The act of mending: did a neat mend on the sock. 2. A mended place: You can't tell where the mend is. —idioms. mend fences. To improve poor relations, especially in politics: "Whatever thoughts he may have entertained about mending some fences with [them] were banished" (Conor Cruise O'Brien). on the mend.

Improving, especially in health. [Middle English menden, short for amenden, to amend. See AMEND.] —mend'a-ble adj. —mend'er n.

men-da-cious (mĕn-dā'shəs) adj. 1. Lying; untruthful: a mendacious child.

2. False; untrue: a mendacious statement. See Synonyms at dishonest. [From Latin mendācium, lie, from mendāx, mendāc-, mendacious.] —men-da'ciously adv.

men-dac-i-ty (mĕn-dās'ĭ-tĕ) n. pl. men-dac-i-ties. 1. The condition of being mendacious; untruthfulness. 2. A lie; a falsehood.

Men-del (mĕn'dl), Gregor Johann. 1822-1884. Austrian botanist and founder of the science of genetics. Through years of experiments with plants, chiefly garden peas, he discovered the principle of the inheritance of characteristics through the combination of genes from parent cells.

Men-de-le-ev (mĕn'də-lā'əf, myĭn-dĭ-lĕ'yĕf), Dmitri Ivanovich. 1834-1907. Russian chemist who first devised and published the periodic table of the elements (1869).

men-de-le-vi-um (mĕn'də-lĕ'vĕ-əm) n. Symbol Md A synthetic radioactive transuranium element of the actinide series. Atomic number 101; mass numbers 255 and 256; half-lives approximately 30 minutes (Md 255) and 1.5 hours (Md 256). [After Dmitri Ivanovich MENDELEEV.]

Men-de-li-an (mĕn-dĕ'lĕ-ən, -dĕl'yən) adj. Of, relating to, or designating Gregor Mendel or his theories of genetics.

Men·del·ism (mĕn'dl-ĭz'əm) also Men·de·li·an·ism (mĕn-dĕ'lĕ-ə-nĭz'əm) n.
The theoretical principles of heredity formulated by Gregor Mendel; Mendel's laws.

Men·del's law (mĕn'dlz lô) n. 1. One of two principles of heredity first formulated by Gregor Mendel, founded on his experiments with pea plants and stating that the members of a pair of homologous chromosomes segregate during meiosis and are distributed to different gametes. Also called law of segregation
2. The second of these two principles, stating that each member of a pair of homologous chromosomes segregates during meiosis independently of the members of other pairs, so that alleles carried on different chromosomes are distributed randomly to the gametes. Also called law of independent assortment

Men·dels·sohn (mĕn'dl-sən, -zōn'), Felix. Full name Jakob Ludwig Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy. 1809-1847. German conductor, pianist, and composer of works characterized by emotional restraint and classical form. They include the Reformation (1830), Italian (1833), and Scotch (1842) symphonies.

Men·dels·sohn (mĕn'dl-sən, -zōn'), Moses. 1729-1786. German philosopher noted for his writings on the inborn ability of human beings to recognize beauty, truth, and goodness. His influence and works aided the assimilation of Jews into German society.

Men·den (mĕn'dən) A city of west-central Germany east-southeast of Dortmund. It is an industrial center. Population, 51,959.

Men·de·res (mĕn'də-rĕs') A river of western Turkey flowing about 402 km (250 mi) southwest and west to the Aegean Sea. In ancient times it was called the Maeander and was legendary for its winding course.

Men·dès·France (mĕn'dĭs-frāns', mǎn-dĕs-frāns'), Pierre. 1907-1982. French politician who as prime minister (1954-1955) negotiated the withdrawal of France from Indochina and resigned when his liberal policies on the North African colonies were rejected.

men·di·cant (mĕn'dĭ-kənt) adj. Depending on alms for a living; practicing begging. — n. 1. A beggar. 2. A member of an order of friars forbidden to own property in common, who work or beg for their living. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin mendicāns, mendĭcant- present participle of mendĭcāre, to beg, from mendĭcus, needy, beggar, from mendum, physical defect.]
—men'di·can·cy, men·dic'i·ty (-dĭs'ĭ-tĕ) n.

mend·ing (mĕn'dĭŋ) n. Clothes and other articles that must be repaired: We let the mending accumulate until Wednesday.

Men·do·ci·no (mĕn'də-sĕ'nō), Cape. A promontory of northwest California south-southwest of Eureka. First sighted by a Spanish explorer in 1542, it is the westernmost extremity of the state.

Men-do·za (mĕn-dō'zə, -dō'sä) A city of western Argentina east-northeast of Santiago, Chile. Founded c. 1560, it was part of Chile until 1776. Population, 118,427.

Men-do·za (mĕn-dō'zə, -dō'thä), Antonio de. 1485?-1552. Spanish colonial administrator who was viceroy of the Mexican territories (1535-1550) and Peru (1551-1552). In 1535 he introduced the printing press to the New World.

men·eer (mə-nîr') n. Variant of mynheer.

Men·e·la·us (mĕn'ə-lā'əs) n. Greek Mythology. The king of Sparta at the time of the Trojan War; husband of Helen and brother of Agamemnon.

Men·e·lik II (mĕn'ə-lĭk), 1844-1913. Ethiopian emperor (1889-1913) who established independence from Italy and expanded Ethiopia's borders through military conquests.

Me·nén·dez de A·vi·lés (mə-nĕn'dəs də ä'və-läs', mĕ-nĕn'dĕth thĕ ä'vĕ-lĕs'), Pedro. 1519-1574. Spanish colonizer who founded the city of St. Augustine, Florida (1565).

Me·nes (mĕ'nĕz), fl. 3000 B.C. King of Egypt who founded the first dynasty uniting Upper and Lower Egypt.

men·folk (mĕn'fōk') or men·folks (-fōks') pl.n. 1. Men considered as a group. 2. The male members of a community or family.

Meng·zi (mœng'zĕ') See Mencius.

men·ha·den (mĕn-hād'n) n. pl. menhaden or men·ha·dens. Any of several species of fish of the genus Brevoortia, especially B. tyrannus of American Atlantic and Gulf waters, used as a source of fish oil, fertilizer, and bait. Also called moss-bunker, pogy. [Probably blend of Narragansett munnowhatteaûg, and English dialectal poghaden (probably of Algonquian origin).]

men·hir (mĕn'hîr') n. A prehistoric monument of a class found chiefly in the British Isles and northern France, consisting of a single tall, upright megalith. [French, from Breton : men, stone (from Middle Breton) + hir, long (from Middle Breton).]

me·ni·al (mĕ'nĕ-əl, mĕn'γəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to work or a job regarded as servile. 2. Of, relating to, or appropriate for a servant. — n. 1. A servant, especially a domestic servant. 2. A person who has a servile or low nature. [Middle English meinial, belonging to a household, from Anglo-Norman meignial, from meignee, household, from Vulgar Latin mānsiōnāta*, from Latin mānsiō, mānsiōn-, house. See MANSION.] — me'ni·al·ly adv.

Mé·nière's disease (mān-yārz' dĩ-zĕz') n. A pathological condition of the inner ear characterized by dizziness, ringing in the ears, and progressive loss of hearing. Also called Ménière's syndrome [After Prosper Ménière (1799-1862), French physician.]

mening- pref. Variant of meningo-.

me·nin·ge·al (mə-nĭn'jĕ-əl) adj. Of, relating to, or affecting the meninges.

me·nin·ges (mə-nĭn'jēz) n. Plural of meninx.

meningi- pref. Variant of meningo-.

me·nin·gi·o·ma (mə-nĭn'jē-ō'mə) n. pl. me·nin·gi·o·mas or me·nin·gi·o·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A slow-growing tumor of the meninges, occurring most often in adults. [Short for meningothelioma : MENINGO- + (ENDO)THELIOMA.]

men·in·gi·tis (mĕn'in-jī'tis) n. Inflammation of the meninges of the brain and the spinal cord, most often caused by a bacterial or viral infection and characterized by fever, vomiting, intense headache, and stiff neck. —men'in·git'ic (-jīt'ik) adj.

meningo- or meningi- or mening- pref. Meninges: meningococcus. [From Greek mēnix, mēning-, meninx.]

me·nin·go·coc·cus (mə-nĭng'gə-kök'əs, -nĭn'jə-) n. pl. me·nin·go·coc·ci (-kök'sī, -kī). A bacterium (Neisseria meningitidis) that causes cerebrospinal meningitis. —me·nin'go·coc'cal (-kök'əl), me·nin'go·coc'cic (-kök'sik) adj.

me·nin·go·en·ceph·a·li·tis (mə-nĭng'gō-ĕn-sĕf'ə-lī'tis) n. Inflammation of the brain and meninges. —me·nin'go·en·ceph'a·lit'ic (-līt'ik) adj.

me·ninx (mē'nĭngks) n. pl. me·nin·ges (mə-nĭn'jēz). A membrane, especially one of the three membranes enclosing the brain and spinal cord in vertebrates. [Greek mēnix.]

me·nis·cus (mə-nĭs'kəs) n. pl. me·nis·ci (-nĭs'ī, -kī, -kē) or me·nis·cus·es.

1. A crescent-shaped body. 2. A concavo-convex lens. 3. The curved upper surface of a nonturbulent liquid in a container that is concave if the liquid wets the container walls and convex if it does not. 4. Anatomy. A cartilage disk that acts as a cushion between the ends of bones that meet in a joint. [New Latin, from Greek mēniskos, diminutive of mēnē, moon, month. See mē⁻² in Appendix.] —me·nis'cal (-kəl), me·nis'cate' (-kāt'), me·nis'coid' (-koid'), men'is·coi'dal (mĕn'is-koid'l) adj.

Men·ken (mĕng'kən), Adah Isaacs. 1835?-1868. American actress and poet particularly noted for her role in the dramatization of Byron's Mazeppa (1861).

Men·lo Park (mĕn'lō pārk) 1. A city of western California southeast of San Francisco. It is mainly residential. Population, 28,040. 2. An unincorporated community of central New Jersey north of New Brunswick. A memorial tower marks the site of the laboratory where Thomas Edison perfected the incandescent light bulb in 1879.

Men·ning·er (mĕn'in-jər) Family of American psychiatrists, including Charles Frederick (1862-1953) and his sons Karl Augustus (1893-1990) and William Claire (1899-1966). The family founded the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kansas (1920), and the Menninger Foundation (1941), both dedicated to psychiatric treatment, research, training, and public education.

Men·non·ite (mĕn'ə-nīt') n. A member of an Anabaptist church characterized particularly by simplicity of life, pacifism, and nonresistance. [German Mennonit, after Menno Simons (1492-1559), Frisian religious leader.]

meno- or men- pref. 1. Menstruation: menarche. 2. Menses: menorrhagia. [Greek, from mĕn, month. See mĕ-² in Appendix.]

men-of-war (mĕn'ə-wōr') n. Plural of man-of-war.

Me·nom·i·nee (mə-nŏm'ə-nĕ) n. pl. Menominee or Me·nom·i·nees.

1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting an area along the Menominee River, with a present-day population in northeast Wisconsin. b. A member of this people. 2. The Algonquian language of the Menominee.

Menominee River (mə-nŏm'ə-nĕ rĭv'ər) A river rising in the Upper Peninsula of northwest Michigan and flowing about 190 km (118 mi) southeast along the Michigan-Wisconsin border to Green Bay.

Me·nom·o·nee Falls (mə-nŏm'ə-nĕ fōlz) A village of southeast Wisconsin, a manufacturing suburb of Milwaukee. Population, 26,840.

me·no mos·so (mā'nō mōs'sō, mĕ'nō) adv. & adj. Music. At a lower speed. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian : meno, less + mosso, agitated.]

men·o·pause (mĕn'ə-pōz') n. The period marked by the natural and permanent cessation of menstruation, occurring usually between the ages of 45 and 55. [New Latin mĕnopausis : MENO- + Greek pausis, pause; see PAUSE.]

—men'·o·paus'al adj.

me·no·rah (mə-nŏr'ə, -nŏr'ə) n. Judaism. 1. A nine-branched candelabrum used in celebration of Hanukkah. 2. Often Menorah. A ceremonial seven-branched candelabrum of the Jewish Temple symbolizing the seven days of the Creation. [Hebrew mĕnôrâ.]

Me·nor·ca (mə-nŏr'kə, mĕ-nŏr'kă) See Minorca¹.

men·or·rha·gi·a (mĕn'ə-rā'jĕ-ə) n. Abnormally heavy or extended menstrual flow. —men'·or·rha'gic (-jĭk) adj.

Me·not·ti (mə-nŏt'ē), Gian Carlo. Born 1911. Italian-born American composer and librettist whose operas include The Medium (1946) and The Consul (1950).

Men·sa (mĕn'sə) n. A southern constellation between Hydrus and Volans. [Latin mĕnsa, table.]

men·sal (mĕn'səl) adj. Belonging to or used at the table. [Middle English, from Late Latin mĕnsālis, from Latin mĕnsa, table.]

mensch or mensch (mĕnsh) n. pl. mensch-en (mĕn'shən) or mensch-es. Informal. A person having admirable characteristics, such as fortitude and firmness of purpose: "He radiates the kind of fundamental decency that has a name in Yiddish; he's a mensch" (James Atlas). [Yiddish, human being, mensch, from Middle High German, human being, from Old High German mennisco. See man-¹ in Appendix.]

men·ses (měn'sēz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The monthly flow of blood and cellular debris from the uterus that begins at puberty in women and the females of other primates. In women, menses ceases at menopause. Also called catamenia [Latin mēnsēs, pl. of mēnsis, month. See mē-² in Appendix.]

men·sh (měnsh) n. men·sch.

Men·she·vik (měn'shə-vīk) n. pl. Men·she·viks or Men·she·vi·ki (-vē'kē).

A member of the liberal minority faction of the Social Democratic Party that struggled against the Bolsheviks before and during the Russian Revolution. [Russian men'shevik, from men'she, less (from their minority status). See mei-² in Appendix.] —Men'she·vism n. —Men'she·vist n.

men's room (měnz rōom) n. A restroom for men.

men·stru·a (měn'strōo-ə) n. A plural of menstruum.

men·stru·al (měn'strōo-əl) also men·stru·ous (-əs) adj. 1. Of or relating to menstruation. 2. a. Taking place on a monthly basis. b. Lasting for one month. [Middle English, from Old French menstruel, from Latin mēnstruālis, from mēnstruus, menstrual, from mēnsis, month. See mē-² in Appendix.]

men·stru·ate (měn'strōo-āt') v. intr. men·stru·at·ed, men·stru·at·ing, men·stru·ates. To undergo menstruation. [Late Latin mēnstruāre, mēnstruāt-, from Latin mēnstrua, menses, from neuter pl. of mēnstruus, menstrual. See MENSTRUAL.]

men·stru·a·tion (měn'strōo-ā'shən) n. The process or an instance of discharging the menses.

men·stru·ous (měn'strōo-əs) adj. Variant of menstrual.

men·stru·um (měn'strōo-əm) n. pl. men·stru·ums or men·stru·a (-strōo-ə). A solvent, especially one used in extracting compounds from plant and animal tissues and preparing drugs. [Middle English, menstruation, from Medieval Latin, sing. of Latin mēnstrua, menses. See MENSTRUATE.]

men·su·ra·ble (měn'sər-ə-bəl, -shər-) adj. 1. That can be measured: mensurable results in employee performance; a mensurable increase in the cost of oil.

2. Having fixed rhythm and measure, as in music; mensural.

—men'su·ra·bil'i·ty, men'su·ra·ble·ness n.

men·su·ral (měn'sər-əl, -shər-) adj. 1. Of or relating to measure. 2. Music. Having notes of fixed rhythmic value. [Late Latin mēnsūrālis, from Latin mēnsūra, measure. See MEASURE.]

men·su·ra·tion (měn'sə-rā'shən, -shə-) n. 1. The act, process, or art of measuring. 2. Measurement of geometric quantities. [Late Latin mēnsūrātiō, mēnsūrātiōn-, from mēnsūrātus, past participle of mēnsūrāre, to measure, from Latin mēnsūra, measure. See MEASURE.] —men'su·ra'tive adj.

men·wear also men's wear (měnz'wâr') n. Clothing for men.

-ment suff. 1. Action; process: appeasement. 2. Result of an action or process: advancement. 3. Means, instrument, or agent of an action or process: adornment. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin -mentum, n. suff.] men·tal¹ (měn'tl) adj. 1. Of or relating to the mind; intellectual: mental powers. 2. Executed or performed by the mind; existing in the mind: mental images of happy times. See Usage Note at mental telepathy. 3. Of, relating to, or affected by a disorder of the mind. 4. Intended for treatment of people affected with disorders of the mind. 5. Of or relating to telepathy or mind reading. 6. Slang. a. Emotionally upset; crazed: got mental when he saw the dent in his new car. b. Offensive Slang. Mentally or psychologically disturbed. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin mentālis, from Latin mēns, ment-, mind. See men⁻¹ in Appendix.] —men'tal·ly adv.

men·tal² (měn'tl) adj. Of or relating to the chin. [From Latin mentum, chin. See men⁻² in Appendix.]

mental age (měn'tl āj) n. Abbr. MA, M.A. A measure of mental development as determined by intelligence tests, generally restricted to children and expressed as the age at which that level is typically attained.

mental deficiency (měn'tl dĩ-fish'ən-sē) n. See mental retardation.

mental hospital (měn'tl hōs'pī-tl) n. See psychiatric hospital.

men·tal·ism (měn'tl-iz'əm) n. 1. Parapsychological activities, such as telepathy and mind reading. 2. The belief that some mental phenomena cannot be explained by physical laws. —men'tal·ist n. —men'tal·is'tic adj.

men·tal·i·ty (měn-tāl'ī-tē) n. pl. men·tal·i·ties. 1. Cast or turn of mind: a vindictive mentality. 2. The sum of a person's intellectual capabilities or endowment.

mental retardation (měn'tl rē'tär-dā'shən) n. Subnormal intellectual development or functioning that is the result of congenital causes, brain injury, or disease and is characterized by any of various deficiencies, ranging from impaired learning ability to social and vocational inadequacy. Also called mental deficiency mental telepathy (měn'tl tə-lēp'ə-thē) n. Telepathy.

USAGE NOTE: Strictly speaking, the phrase mental telepathy ought to be regarded as redundant, but like some other fixed phrases (for example, hollow tube), it has become so well established that the objection smacks of nitpicking. See Usage Note at redundancy.

men·ta·tion (měn-tā'shən) n. Mental activity; thinking: “The heartless hip analysis of crime is... a part of my life and my mentation” (Scott Turow). [From Latin mēns, ment-, mind. See MENTAL¹.]

men·thol (mĕn/'thôl') n. A white crystalline organic compound, $\text{CH}_3\text{C}_6\text{H}_9(\text{C}_3\text{H}_7)\text{OH}$, obtained from peppermint oil or synthesized. It is used in perfumes, in cigarettes, as a mild topical anesthetic, and as a mint flavoring. [German, from Latin mentha, mint.] — men/'tho-lat'ed adj.

men·tion (mĕn/'shən) v. tr. men·tioned, men·tion·ing, men·tions. To refer to, especially incidentally. See Synonyms at refer. — n. 1. a. The act of referring to something briefly or casually. b. An incidental reference or allusion. 2. Honorable mention. [From Middle English mencioun, reference, from Old French, from Latin mentiō, mentiōn-. See men-¹ in Appendix.] — men/'tion-a-ble adj.

men·tor (mĕn/'tôr', -tər) n. 1. A wise and trusted counselor or teacher. 2. Mentor. Greek Mythology. Odysseus's trusted counselor, under whose disguise Athena became the guardian and teacher of Telemachus. — v. men·tored, men·tor·ing, men·tors. Informal. — v. intr. To serve as a trusted counselor or teacher, especially in occupational settings. — v. tr. To serve as a trusted counselor or teacher to (another person). [French Mentor, Mentor, from Latin Mentōr, from Greek. See men-¹ in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: The word mentor is an example of the way in which the great works of literature live on without our knowing it. The word has recently gained currency in the professional world, where it is thought to be a good idea to have a mentor, a wise and trusted counselor, guiding one's career, preferably in the upper reaches of the organization. We owe this word to the more heroic age of Homer, in whose Odyssey Mentor is the trusted friend of Odysseus left in charge of the household during Odysseus's absence. More important for our usage of the word mentor, Athena disguised as Mentor guides Odysseus's son Telemachus in his search for his father. Fénelon in his romance Télémaque (1699) emphasized Mentor as a character, and so it was that in French (1749) and English (1750) mentor, going back through Latin to a Greek name, became a common noun meaning "wise counselor," first recorded in 1750. Mentor is an appropriate name for such a person because it probably meant "adviser" in Greek and comes from the Indo-European root men-¹, meaning "to think."

Men·tor (mĕn/'tər) A city of northeast Ohio, a residential suburb of Cleveland on Lake Erie. Population, 47,358.

men·u (mĕn/'yōō, mā/'nyōō) n. 1. A list of the dishes to be served or available for a meal. 2. The dishes served or available at a meal. 3. a. Computer Science. A list, displayed on a monitor, of options available to a computer user. b. A similar list of options: a menu of professional opportunities. [French, small, minute, menu, from Old French menut, small, from Latin minūtus, past participle of minuere, to diminish. See mei-² in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: An enormous menu might be considered an oxymoron if one were to restrict the word etymologically. Menu can be traced back to the Latin word minūtus, meaning “small in size, amount, or degree” and also “possessing or involving minute knowledge.” Latin minūtus became Old French menut and Modern French menu, “small, fine, trifling, minute.” The French adjective came to be used as a noun with the sense of “detail, details collectively,” and “detailed list.” As such, it was used in the phrase menu de repas, “list of items of a meal,” which was shortened to menu. This word was borrowed into English, being first recorded in 1837. The French word had been borrowed before, perhaps only briefly, as a shortening of the French phrase menu peuple, “the common people.” This usage, however, is recorded in only one text, in 1658.

Men·u·hin (mĕn'yoō-ĭn), Yehudi. Born 1916. American violinist considered among the great virtuosos of his time.

Men·zies (mĕn'zēz), Sir Robert Gordon. 1894-1978. Australian politician who twice served as prime minister (1939-1941 and 1949-1966).

Me·o (mē-ou') n. Variant of Miao.

me·ow (mē-ou') n. 1. The cry of a cat. 2. Informal. A malicious, spiteful comment. — v. intr. me·owed, me·ow·ing, me·ows. To make the crying sound of a cat. [Imitative.]

mep or m.e.p. abbr. Mean effective pressure.

me·per·i·dine (mə-pĕr'ĭ-dĕn') n. A synthetic narcotic compound, C₁₅H₂₁NO₂, used in its hydrochloride form as an analgesic and a sedative. [ME(THYL) + (PI)PERIDINE.]

Meph·i·stoph·e·les (mĕf'ĭ-stŏf'ə-lēz') n. The devil in the Faust legend to whom Faust sold his soul. — Me·phis'to·phe'le·an, Me·phis'to·phe'li·an (mə-fĭs'tō-fē'lē-ən, -fēl'yən, mĕf'ĭ-stō-) adj.

me·phit·ic (mə-fĭt'ĭk) also me·phit·i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. Of, relating to, or resembling mephitis; poisonous or foul-smelling. See Synonyms at poisonous. — me·phit'ĭ·cal·ly adv.

me·phi·tis (mə-fĭ'tĭs) n. 1. An offensive smell; a stench. 2. A poisonous or foul-smelling gas emitted from the earth. [Latin mephītis.]

mep·ro·bam·ate (mĕp'rō-bām'āt', mĕ-prō'bə-) n. A bitter white powder, C₉H₁₈N₂O₄, used as a tranquilizer, a muscle relaxant, and an anticonvulsant. [ME(THYL) + PRO(PYL) + (CAR)BAMATE.]

Meq·uon (mĕk'wŏn') A city of southeast Wisconsin, a suburb of Milwaukee. Population, 18,885.

mer. abbr. Meridian.

mer- pref. Variant of mero-.

-mer suff. Variant of -mere.

Mer-a-mec River (mĕr'ə-măk' rĭv'ər) A river rising in southeast-central Missouri and flowing about 322 km (200 mi) northeast to the Mississippi River below St. Louis.

mer-bro-min (mər-brō'mĭn) n. A green crystalline organic compound, $C_{20}H_8Br_2HgNa_2O_6$, that forms a red aqueous solution, used as a germicide and an antiseptic. [MER(CURIC) + (ACETATE) + (DI)BROM(IDE) + (FLUORESC)IN.]

mer-can-tile (mûr'kən-tĕl', -tĭl', -tĭl) adj. 1. Of or relating to merchants or trade. 2. Of or relating to mercantilism. [French, from Italian, from mercante, merchant, from Latin mercāns, mercant- from present participle of mercārī, to trade, from merx, merc-, merchandise, goods.]

mer-can-til-ism (mûr'kən-tĕ-lĭz'əm, -tĭ-) n. 1. The theory and system of political economy prevailing in Europe after the decline of feudalism, based on national policies of accumulating bullion, establishing colonies and a merchant marine, and developing industry and mining to attain a favorable balance of trade. 2. The practice, methods, or spirit of merchants; commercialism. [MERCANTIL(E) + -ISM.] —mer/can-til-ist adj., n. —mer/can-til-is/tic adj.

mer-cap-tan (mər-kăp'tăn') n. A sulfur-containing organic compound with the general formula RSH where R is any radical, especially ethyl mercaptan, C_2H_5SH . Also called thiol [German, from Danish, from Medieval Latin (corpus) mercurium captāns, (a substance) seizing mercury : mercurium, accusative of mercurius, mercury (from Latin Mercurius, the god Mercury) + Latin captāns, present participle of captāre frequentative of capere, to seize; see CAPTURE.]

mercapto- pref. Containing the univalent radical -SH: mercaptipurine. [From MERCAPTAN.]

mer-cap-to-pu-rine (mər-kăp'tō-pyŏr'ĕn) n. A purine analogue, $C_5H_4N_4S$, that acts as an antimetabolite by interfering with purine synthesis, used primarily in the treatment of acute leukemia.

Mer-ca-tor (mər-kă'tər, mĕr-kă'tôr), Gerhardus. Originally Gerhard Kremer. 1512-1594. Flemish cartographer who developed the Mercator projection (1568).

Mercator projection (mər-kă'tər prə-jĕk'shən) n. A cylindrical map projection in which the meridians and parallels of latitude appear as lines crossing at right angles and in which areas appear greater farther from the equator. [After Gerhardus MERCATOR.]

Mer-ced (mər-sĕd') A city of central California in the San Joaquin Valley northwest of Fresno. It is a trade and tourist center in a farm and dairy region. Population, 56,216.

Mer-ce-da-rio (mĕr'sə-dăr'ĕ-ō, -sĕ-thă'ryô) A mountain, 6,774.4 m (22,211 ft) high, in the Andes of western Argentina on the border with Chile.

Merced River (mər-sĕd' rĭv'ər) A river, about 241 km (150 mi) long, of central California flowing west to the San Joaquin River.

mer·ce·nar·y (mûr'sə-nĕr'ĕ) adj. 1. Motivated solely by a desire for monetary or material gain. 2. Hired for service in a foreign army. — n. pl.

mer·ce·nar·ies. 1. One who serves or works merely for monetary gain; a hireling. 2. A professional soldier hired for service in a foreign army. [Middle English mercenarie, a mercenary, from Old French mercenaire, from Latin mercĕnārius, from mercĕs, wages, price.] —mer'ce·nar'i·ly adv.

—mer'ce·nar'i·ness n.

mer·cer (mûr'sər) n. Chiefly British. A dealer in textiles, especially silks. [Middle English, from Old French mercier, trader, from merz, merchandise, from Latin merx, merc-, merchandise.]

Mer·cer Island (mûr'sər ī'lənd) A city of west-central Washington, coextensive with Mercer Island in Lake Washington near Seattle. It is primarily residential. Population, 20,816.

mer·cer·ize (mûr'sə-rīz') v. tr. mer·cer·ized, mer·cer·iz·ing, mer·cer·iz·es. To treat (cotton thread) with sodium hydroxide so as to shrink the fiber and increase its luster and affinity for dye. [After John Mercer (1791-1866), British calico printer.]

Mer·cer·ville (mûr'sər-vīl') A community of west-central New Jersey, a suburb of Trenton. Population, 26,873.

mer·chan·dise (mûr'chən-dīz', -dīs') n. Abbr. mdse. Goods bought and sold in business; commercial wares. — v. also mer·chan·dize mer·chan·dised also mer·chan·dized, mer·chan·dis·ing also mer·chan·diz·ing, mer·chan·dis·es also mer·chan·diz·es (-dīz'). — v. tr. 1. To buy and sell (goods). 2. To promote the sale of, as by advertising or display: merchandised a new product. — v. intr. To buy and sell goods; trade commercially. [Middle English merchaundise, from Old French marchandise, trade, from marcheant, marchand, merchant. See MERCHANT.] —mer'chan·dis'a·ble adj.

—mer'chan·dis'er n.

mer·chan·dis·ing also mer·chan·diz·ing (mûr'chən-dī'zīng) n. The promotion of merchandise sales, as by coordinating production and marketing and developing advertising, display, and sales strategies.

mer·chant (mûr'chənt) n. 1. One whose occupation is the wholesale purchase and retail sale of goods for profit. 2. One who runs a retail business; a shopkeeper. — adj. 1. Of or relating to merchants, merchandise, or commercial trade: a merchant guild. 2. Of or relating to the merchant marine: merchant ships. [Middle English merchaunt, from Old French marcheant, from Vulgar Latin mercātāns*, present participle of mercātāre*, frequentative of Latin mercāri, to trade, from merx, merc-, merchandise.]

mer·chant·a·ble (mûr'chənt-ə-bəl) adj. Suitable for buying and selling; marketable. —mer'chant·a·bil'i·ty n.

mer·chant·man (mûr/'chənt-mən) n. 1. Nautical. A ship used in commerce.

2. Archaic. A merchant.

merchant marine (mûr/'chənt mə-rēn') n. 1. A nation's commercial ships.

2. The personnel of a nation's commercial ships.

Mer·ci·a (mûr/'shē-ə, -shə) An Anglo-Saxon kingdom of central England. It was settled by Angles c. A.D. 500 and enjoyed its greatest influence during the rule (757-796) of Offa. In 874 the kingdom was overrun by the Danes and split between Wessex and the Danelaw.

Mer·ci·an (mûr/'shē-ən, -shən) adj. Of or relating to Mercia or its people, dialect, or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Mercia. 2. The Old English dialect of Mercia.

Mer·cier (mĕr-syā'), Désiré Joseph. 1851-1926. Belgian theologian and religious leader who spoke out against the excesses of the German troops occupying Belgium during World War I and is noted for his application of the scholasticism of Saint Thomas Aquinas to modern thought.

mer·ci·ful (mûr/'sī-fəl) adj. Full of mercy; compassionate: sought merciful treatment for the captives. See Synonyms at humane. —mer/'ci·ful·ly adv.

—mer/'ci·ful·ness n.

mer·ci·less (mûr/'sī-līs) adj. Having no mercy; cruel. —mer/'ci·less·ly adv.

—mer/'ci·less·ness n.

mercur- pref. Variant of mercuro-.

mer·cu·rate (mûr/'kyə-rāt') v. tr. mer·cu·rat·ed, mer·cu·rat·ing, mer·cu·rates. To treat or combine with mercury or a mercury compound.

—mer/'cu·ra'tion n.

mer·cu·ri·al (mər-kyōōr/'ē-əl) adj. 1. Often Mercurial. a. Roman Mythology.

Of or relating to the god Mercury. b. Astronomy. Of or relating to the planet Mercury. 2. Having the characteristics of eloquence, shrewdness, swiftness, and thievishness attributed to the god Mercury. 3. Containing or caused by the action of the element mercury. 4. Quick and changeable in temperament; volatile: a mercurial nature. — n. A pharmacological or chemical preparation containing mercury. [Middle English, of the planet Mercury, from Latin mercuriālis, of the god or planet Mercury, from Mercurius, Mercury.] —mer·cu/'ri·al·ly adv.

mer·cu·ri·al·ism (mər-kyōōr/'ē-ə-līz'əm) n. Pathology. Poisoning caused by mercury or a compound containing mercury.

mer·cu·ric (mər-kyōōr/'īk) adj. Relating to or containing mercury, especially with valence 2.

mercuric chloride (mər-kyōōr/'īk klôr/'īd') n. A poisonous white crystalline compound, HgCl₂, used as an antiseptic and a disinfectant, in insecticides, preservatives, and batteries, and in metallurgy and photography. Also called corrosive sublimate mercuric sulfide (mə-kyōōr'ik sŭl'fid') n. A poisonous compound, HgS, having two forms: a. Black mercuric sulfide, a black powder obtained from mercury salts or by the reaction of mercury with sulfur, used as a pigment. b. Red mercuric sulfide, a bright scarlet powder derived from heating mercury with sulfur, used as a pigment.

mercuro- or mercur- pref. Mercury: mercurous. [From MERCURY.]

Mer-cu-ro-chrome (mə-kyōōr'ə-krōm') A trademark used for a solution of merbromin.

mer-cu-rous (mə-kyōōr'əs, mŭr'kyər-əs) adj. Relating to or containing mercury, especially with valence 1.

mercurous chloride (mə-kyōōr'əs klôr'id') n. See calomel.

mer-cu-ry (mŭr'kyə-rē) n. 1. Symbol Hg A silvery-white poisonous metallic element, liquid at room temperature and used in thermometers, barometers, vapor lamps, and batteries and in the preparation of chemical pesticides. Atomic number 80; atomic weight 200.59; melting point -38.87°C ; boiling point 356.58°C ; specific gravity 13.546 (at 20°C); valence 1, 2. Also called quicksilver 2. Temperature: The mercury had fallen rapidly by morning. 3. Any of several weedy plants of the genera Mercurialis or Acalypha. [Middle English mercurie, from Medieval Latin mercurius, from Latin Mercurius, Mercury.]

Mer-cu-ry (mŭr'kyə-rē) n. 1. Roman Mythology. A god that served as messenger to the other gods and was himself the god of commerce, travel, and thievery. 2. The smallest of the inner planets and the one nearest the sun, having a sidereal period of revolution about the sun of 88.0 days at a mean distance of 58.3 million kilometers (36.2 million miles) and a mean radius of approximately 2,414 kilometers (1,500 miles). [Middle English Mercurie, from Old French, from Latin Mercurius.] mer-cu-ry-va-por lamp (mŭr'kyə-rē-vā'pər lămp) n. A lamp in which ultraviolet and yellowish-green to blue visible light is produced by an electric discharge through mercury vapor.

mer-cy (mŭr'sē) n. pl. mer-cies. 1. Compassionate treatment, especially of those under one's power; clemency. 2. A disposition to be kind and forgiving: a heart full of mercy. 3. Something for which to be thankful; a blessing: It was a mercy that no one was hurt. 4. Alleviation of distress; relief: Distributing food among the homeless was an act of mercy. —idiom. at the mercy of. Without any protection against; helpless before: drifting in an open boat, at the mercy of the elements. [Middle English, from Old French merci, from Medieval Latin mercēs, from Latin, reward.]

SYNONYMS: mercy, leniency, lenity, clemency, charity. These nouns mean kind, forgiving, or sympathetic and humane treatment of or disposition toward others. Mercy is compassionate forbearance: "We hand folks over to God's mercy, and show none ourselves” (George Eliot). Leniency and lenity imply mildness, gentleness, and often a tendency to reduce the severity or harshness of punishment: “When you have gone too far to recede, do not sue [appeal] to me for leniency” (Charles Dickens). “His Majesty gave many marks of his great lenity, often... endeavoring to extenuate your crimes” (Jonathan Swift). Clemency is mercy shown by one in a position of authority or power and especially by one charged with administering justice: The judge believed in clemency for youthful offenders. Charity is goodwill and benevolence, especially as it manifests itself in kindly forbearance in judging others: “But how shall we expect charity towards others, when we are uncharitable to ourselves?” (Thomas Browne).

mercy killing (mûr'sē kîl'ing) n. Euthanasia.

mercy seat (mûr'sē sēt) n. 1. The golden covering of the ark of the covenant, regarded as the resting place of God. 2. The throne of God.

mere¹ (mîr) adj. Superlative mer-est. 1. Being nothing more than what is specified: a mere child; a mere 50 cents an hour. 2. Considered apart from anything else: shocked by the mere idea. 3. Small; slight: could detect only the merest whisper. 4. Obsolete. Pure; unadulterated. [Middle English, absolute, pure, from Old French mier, pure, from Latin merus.]

mere² (mîr) n. A small lake, pond, or marsh: “Sometimes on lonely mountain meres/I find a magic bark” (Tennyson). [Middle English, from Old English. See mori- in Appendix.]

mere³ (mîr) n. Archaic. A boundary. [Middle English, from Old English mære.]
-mere or -mer suff. Part; segment: blastomere. [French -mere, from Greek meros, part. See (s)mer-² in Appendix.]

Mer-e-dith (mĕr'î-dĭth), George. 1828-1909. British writer of novels, such as The Ordeal of Richard Feverel (1859), and poetic works, including Modern Love (1862).

Mer-e-dith (mĕr'î-dĭth), James Howard. Born 1933. American civil rights advocate whose registration (1963) at the traditionally segregated University of Mississippi prompted a riot, which was spurred by state officials who defied federal pleas for peaceful integration.

mere-ly (mîr'lē) adv. And nothing else or more; only: merely a flesh wound.

me-ren-gue (mə-rĕng'gā) n. 1. A ballroom dance of Dominican and Haitian folk origin, characterized by a sliding step. 2. Music for this dance, in rapid 2/4 time. [American Spanish, from Spanish, meringue, from French méringue.]

mer-e-tri-cious (mĕr'î-trĭsh'əs) adj. 1. a. Attracting attention in a vulgar manner: meretricious ornamentation. See Synonyms at gaudy¹. b. Plausible but false or insincere; specious: a meretricious argument. 2. Of or relating to prostitutes or prostitution: meretricious relationships. [Latin meretrĭcius, of prostitutes, from meretrīx, meretrīc-, prostitute, from merēre, to earn money. See (s)mer⁻² in Appendix.] —mer'e-tri'cious·ly adv. —mer'e-tri'cious·ness n.

mer-gan-ser (mər-gän'sər) n. Any of various fish-eating diving ducks of the genus Mergus or related genera, having a slim, hooked bill. Also called sheldrake [New Latin : Latin mergus, diver (from mergere, to plunge) + Latin ānser, goose; see ghans- in Appendix.]

merge (mûrj) v. merged, merg-ing, merg-es. — v. tr. 1. To cause to be absorbed, especially in gradual stages. 2. To combine or unite: merging two sets of data. — v. intr. 1. To blend together, especially in gradual stages. 2. To become combined or united. See Synonyms at mix. [Latin mergere, to plunge.] —mer'gence n.

Mer-gen-thal·er (mûr'gən-thô'lər, mĕr'gən-tă'-), Ottmar. 1854-1899. German-born American inventor of the Linotype typesetting machine (patented 1884).

merg-er (mûr'jər) n. 1. The act or an instance of merging; union. 2. The union of two or more commercial interests or corporations. 3. Law. The absorption of a lesser estate, liability, right, action, or offense into a greater one.

Mé-ri-da (mĕr'ī-də, mĕ'rĕ-thă) A city of southeast Mexico on the Yucatán Peninsula. It was founded in 1542 on the site of a ruined Mayan city. Population, 400,142.

Mer-i-den (mĕr'ī-dən) A city of south-central Connecticut north-northeast of New Haven. Settled in 1661, it is known for its silver industry, which dates to the 18th century. Population, 59,479.

me-rid-i-an (mə-rĭd'ē-ən) n. Abbr. m., M., mer. 1. a. An imaginary great circle on the earth's surface passing through the North and South geographic poles. All points on the same meridian have the same longitude. b. Either half of such a great circle from pole to pole. 2. Astronomy. A great circle passing through the two poles of the celestial sphere and the zenith of a given observer.

3. Mathematics. a. A curve on a surface of revolution, formed by the intersection of the surface with a plane containing the axis of revolution. b. A plane section of a surface of revolution containing the axis of revolution. 4. Any of the longitudinal lines or pathways on the body along which the acupuncture points are distributed. 5. Archaic. a. The highest point in the sky reached by the sun or another celestial body; a zenith. b. Noon. 6. The highest point or stage of development; peak: "Men come to their meridian at various periods of their lives" (John Henry Newman). 7. Upper Midwest. See median strip. See Regional note at neutral ground. — adj. 1. Of or relating to a meridian; meridional. 2. Of or at midday: the meridian hour. 3. Of, relating to, or constituting the highest point, as of development or power: the empire in its meridian period. [Middle English, from Old French, midday, from Latin merīdiānus, of midday, from merīdiēs, midday, from merīdiē, at midday, from Old Latin mediei diē* : mediei*, dative (locative) of medius, middle; see medhyo- in Appendix + diē, dative of diēs, day; see deiw- in Appendix.]

Me-rid-i-an (mə-rīd'ē-ən) A city of eastern Mississippi near the Alabama border east of Jackson. It was razed by Gen. William T. Sherman's troops in February 1864. Population, 46,577.

me-rid-i-o-nal (mə-rīd'ē-ə-nəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to meridians or a meridian. 2. Located in the south; southern. 3. Of or characteristic of southern areas or people. — n. An inhabitant of a southern region, especially the south of France. [Middle English, pertaining to the sun's position at noon, from Old French meridional, southern, from Late Latin merīdiōnālis, from Latin merīdiānus, of midday, southern. See MERIDIAN.]

Mé-ri-gnac (mā-rē'nyāk') A city of southwest France, an industrial suburb of Bordeaux. Population, 51,306.

Mé-ri-mée (měr'ə-mā', mā-rē-mā'), Prosper. 1803-1870. French writer of romantic stories and novels, such as Carmen (1846), on which Bizet's opera is based.

me-ningue (mə-räng') n. 1. A topping for pastry or pies made of a mixture of egg whites and sugar beaten until stiff and often baked until brown. 2. A small pastry shell or cake made of stiffly beaten, baked egg whites and sugar, often containing fruit or nutmeats. [French méringue.]

me-ri-no (mə-rē'nō) n. pl. me-ri-nos. 1. a. Any of a breed of sheep, originally from Spain, having long, fine wool. b. The wool of this sheep. 2. A soft, lightweight fabric made originally of merino wool but now of any fine wool. 3. a. A fine wool and cotton yarn used especially for knitting underwear and hosiery. b. A knitted fabric made from this yarn. [Spanish, perhaps from Berber Benī Merīn, name of the tribe that developed the breed, or from Spanish merino, local magistrate (from Latin māiorīnus, larger, from māior); see MAJOR.] —me-ri'no adj.

mer-i-stem (měr'ī-stēm') n. The undifferentiated plant tissue from which new cells are formed, as that at the tip of a stem or root. [Greek meristos, divided (from merizein, to divide, from meris, division); see (s)mer-² in Appendix + -em (as in xylem, and phloem).] —mer'i-ste-mat'ic (-stə-măt'ik) adj.

—mer'i-ste-mat'i-cal-ly adv.

me-ris-tic (mə-rīs'tik) adj. Biology. 1. Having or composed of segments; segmented. 2. Relating to a change in the number or placement of body parts or segments: meristic variation. [From Greek meristos, divided. See MERISTEM.]

—me-ris'ti-cal-ly adv.

mer-it (měr'it) n. 1. a. Superior quality or worth; excellence: a proposal of some merit; an ill-advised plan without merit. b. A quality deserving praise or approval; virtue: a store having the merit of being open late. 2. Demonstrated ability or achievement: promotions based on merit alone. 3. Often merits. An aspect of character or behavior deserving approval or disapproval: judging people according to their merits. 4. Theology. Spiritual credit granted for good works. 5. merits.

a. Law. A party's strict legal rights, excluding jurisdictional, personal, or technical aspects. b. The factual content of a matter, apart from emotional, contextual, or formal considerations. — v. mer-it-ed, mer-it-ing, mer-its. — v. tr. To earn; deserve. See Synonyms at earn¹. — v. intr. To be worthy or deserving: Pupils are rewarded or corrected, as they merit. [Middle English, from Old French merite, reward or punishment, from Latin meritum, from neuter past participle of merēre, to deserve. See (s)mer-2 in Appendix.] — mer/it-less adj.

mer-i-toc-ra-cy (měr'ī-tōk'rə-sē) n. pl. mer-i-toc-ra-cies. 1. A system in which advancement is based on individual ability or achievement. 2. a. A group of leaders or officeholders selected on the basis of individual ability or achievement. b. Leadership by such a group. — mer/it-o-crat' (-ī-tə-krăt') n. — mer/it-o-crat/ic adj.

mer-i-to-ri-ous (měr'ī-tōr'ē-əs, -tōr'-) adj. Deserving reward or praise; having merit. [Middle English, from Latin meritōrius, earning money, from meritus, past participle of merēre, to earn. See MERIT.] — mer/i-to/ri-ous-ly adv. — mer/i-to/ri-ous-ness n.

merit pay (měr'it pā) n. Extra pay awarded to an employee, especially a school-teacher, for past performance.

merit system (měr'it sīs'təm) n. The system of appointing and promoting civil service personnel on the basis of merit rather than on political affiliation or loyalty.

merle also merl (mûrl) n. See blackbird (n., sense 2). [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin merulus, merula.]

mer-lin (mûr'līn) n. A small falcon (Falco columbarius) of northern regions, having predominantly dark plumage and a black-striped tail. Also called pigeon hawk [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman merilun, from Old French esmerillon, diminutive of esmeril, of Germanic origin.]

Mer-lin (mûr'līn) n. In Arthurian legend, a magician and prophet who served as counselor to King Arthur.

Mer-lo (měr'lō) A city of eastern Argentina, a suburb of Buenos Aires. Population, 293,059.

mer-lon (mûr'lən) n. A solid portion of a crenelated wall between two open spaces. [French, from Italian merlone, augmentative of merlo, battlement, perhaps from Medieval Latin merulus, from Latin, merle (from their imagined similarity to blackbirds sitting on a wall).]

mer-lot or Mer-lot (mər-lō', mẽr-) n. A dry red wine made from a grape originating in southern France and Italy and introduced into California and Oregon. [French, young blackbird, merlot, diminutive of merle, blackbird (probably from the color of the grape), from Old French. See MERLE.]

mer-maid (mûr'mād') n. A legendary sea creature having the head and upper body of a woman and the tail of a fish. [Middle English : mere, sea, lake; see MERE² + maid, maid; see MAID.]

mer-man (mûr'măn', -mən) n. A legendary sea creature having the head and upper body of a man and the tail of a fish. [MER(MAID) + MAN.]

Mer-man (mûr'mən), Ethel. 1909-1984. American musical comedy actress noted for her powerful voice. She appeared in Annie Get Your Gun (1946) and many other productions.

mero- or mer- pref. 1. Part; segment: merozoite. 2. Partial; partially: meropia. [From Greek meros, part. See (s)mer-² in Appendix.]

mer-o-blas-tic (mĕr'ə-blăs'tik) adj. Embryology. Undergoing partial cleavage. Used of a fertilized egg. —mer'o-blas'ti-cal-ly adv.

mer-o-crine (mĕr'ə-krĭn, -krĭn', -krĕn') adj. Of or relating to a gland whose secretory cells remain undamaged during secretion. [MERO- + Greek krinein, to separate; see ENDOCRINE.]

Mer-o-ë also Mer-o-we (mĕr'ō-ē') An ancient city of northern Sudan on the Nile River north of Khartoum. It was the capital of a Cush dynasty from 530 B.C. to A.D. 350 and was noted for its iron smelting and casting.

mer-o-my-o-sin (mĕr'ə-mī'ə-sĭn) n. Either of two protein subunits of a myosin molecule, obtained especially through the digestive action of trypsin.

Mer-o-pe (mĕr'ə-pē') n. 1. Greek Mythology. One of the Pleiades, who hid her face in shame after marrying a mortal. 2. One of the six stars in the Pleiades cluster, faintly visible to the unaided eye. [Greek Meropē.]

me-ro-pi-a (mə-rō'pē-ə) n. Partial blindness. —me-ro'pic (-rō'pĭk, -rōp'ĭk) adj.

mer-o-plank-ton (mĕr'ə-plăngk'tən) n. Any of various organisms that spend part of their life cycle, usually the larval or egg stages, as plankton.

—mer'o-plank-ton'ic (-tŏn'ĭk) adj.

-merous suff. Having a specified kind or number of parts: isomalous. [From New Latin -merus, from Greek -meros, from meros, part. See (s)mer-² in Appendix.]

Mer-o-vin-gi-an (mĕr'ə-vĭn'jē-ən, -jən) A Frankish ruling dynasty (c. A.D.450-751) founded by Merovech (fl. fifth century) and brought to prominence by Clovis I. —Mer'o-vin'gi-an adj.

Mer-o-we (mĕr'ō-ē') See Meroë.

mer-o-zo-ite (mĕr'ə-zō'it) n. A protozoan cell that arises from the schizogony of a parent sporozoan and may enter either the asexual or sexual phase of the life cycle.

Mer-rick (mĕr'ĭk) An unincorporated community of southeast New York on southwest Long Island southeast of Mineola. It is mainly residential. Population, 23,042.

Mer-rick (mĕr'īk), David. Born 1912. American theatrical producer whose many successful Broadway productions include Becket (1960) and Hello Dolly! (1965).

Mer-ri-field (mĕr'ə-fēld'), R(ober) Bruce. Born 1921. American biochemist. He won a 1984 Nobel Prize for developing a method of mass-producing complex proteins.

Mer-rill-ville (mĕr'əl-vīl') A town of northwest Indiana, a suburb of Gary. Population, 27,257.

Mer-ri-mack (mĕr'ə-māk') A town of southern New Hampshire on the Merrimack River south of Manchester. It has varied light industries. Population, 22,156.

Merrimack River (mĕr'ə-māk' rĭv'ər) A river rising in south-central New Hampshire and flowing about 177 km (110 mi) south into northeast Massachusetts then northeast to the Atlantic Ocean. It was long used as a source of power for textile mills.

mer-ri-ment (mĕr'ī-mənt) n. High-spirited fun and enjoyment; hilarity. See Synonyms at mirth.

Mer-ritt Island (mĕr'īt ī'lənd) A city of east-central Florida on Merritt Island between the mainland and Cape Canaveral. Population, 32,886.

mer-ry (mĕr'ē) adj. mer-ri-er, mer-ri-est. 1. Full of high-spirited gaiety; jolly. See Synonyms at jolly. 2. Marked by or offering fun and gaiety; festive: a merry evening. 3. Archaic. Delightful; entertaining. 4. Brisk: a merry pace. [Middle English merri, from Old English mirige, pleasant. See mregh-u- in Appendix.] —mer'ri-ly adv. —mer'ri-ness n.

mer-ry-an-drew (mĕr'ē-ān'drō) n. A clown; a buffoon. [MERRY + the name Andrew.]

mer-ry-bells (mĕr'ē-bĕlz') pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). See bellwort.

mer-ry-go-round (mĕr'ē-gō-round') n. 1. A revolving circular platform fitted with seats, often in the form of animals, ridden for amusement. 2. A piece of playground equipment consisting of a small circular platform that revolves when pushed or pedaled. 3. A busy round; a whirl: a merry-go-round of parties.

mer-ry-mak-ing (mĕr'ē-mā'kĭng) n. 1. Participation in festive activities. 2. a. A festivity; a revelry. b. Festive activities. —mer'ry-mak'er n.

mer-ry-thought (mĕr'ē-thōt') n. Chiefly British. A wishbone.

Mer-sey (mûr'zē) A river of northwest England flowing about 113 km (70 mi) generally westward to the Irish Sea at Liverpool. Its large estuary is navigable for oceangoing vessels.

Mer-sin (mĕr-sĕn') A city of southern Turkey on the Mediterranean Sea west-southwest of Adana. It is a rail terminus and major port. Population, 216,308.

Mer-thi-o-late (mər-thī'ə-lāt') A trademark used for thimerosal.

Mer-thyr Tyd-fil (mûr'thər tîd'vîl) A borough of southern Wales north-northwest of Cardiff. It is a manufacturing center in a coal-mining region. Population, 60,200.

Mer-ton (mûr'tn), Robert King. Born 1910. American sociologist who proposed that deviant behavior results when a society offers no acceptable means of achieving acceptable goals.

Mer-ton (mûr'tn), Thomas. 1915-1968. American religious and writer of works on contemporary spiritual and secular life, including The Seven Story Mountain (1948) and No Man Is an Island (1955).

mes- pref. Variant of meso-.

me-sa (mā'sə) n. A broad, flat-topped elevation with one or more clifflike sides, common in the southwest United States. [Spanish, table, mesa, from Old Spanish, table, from Latin mēnsa.]

Me-sa (mā'sə) A city of south-central Arizona east of Phoenix. It is a winter resort and trade center with varied industries. Population, 288,091.

Me-sa-bi Range (mə-sä'bē rānj) A series of low hills in northeast Minnesota. Extensive iron ore deposits were discovered here in 1887.

mé-sal-li-ance (mā-zäl'ē-əns, mā'zä-lyäns') n. A marriage with a person of inferior social position. [French : més-, bad (from Old French mes-); see MIS-¹ + alliance, alliance (from Old French aliance); see ALLIANCE.]

mes-arch (měz'ärk', mēs'-, mē'zärk', -särk') adj. Ecology. Originating in a moderately moist habitat. Used of a sere. [MES(O)- + Greek arkhē, beginning.]

mes-cal (mēs-käl') n. 1. See peyote (n., sense 1). 2. a. A Mexican liquor distilled from the fermented juice of certain species of agave. b. A food prepared by cooking the fleshy leaf base and trunk of certain agaves. 3. See maguery (n., sense 1). [American Spanish, from Nahuatl mexcalli, mescal liquor, from metl, maguery plant.]

mescal button (mēs-käl' büt'n) n. The fresh or dried buttonlike tubercles of peyote, chewed as a drug by certain Native American peoples. Also called peyote

Mes-ca-le-ro (mēs'kə-lär'ō) n. pl. Mescalero or Mes-ca-le-ros. 1. An Apache tribe formerly inhabiting southern New Mexico, western Texas, and north-central Mexico, with a present-day population in southern New Mexico. 2. A member of this tribe.

mes-ca-line (mēs'kə-lēn', -līn) n. An alkaloid drug, (CH₃O)₃C₆H₂CH₂CH₂NH₂, obtained from mescal buttons, which produces hallucinations. Also called peyote Mes-dames¹ (mā-däm', -däm') n. Abbr. Mmes. Plural of Madam (n., sense 1).

Mes-dames² also mes-dames (mā-däm', -däm') n. Abbr. Mmes. Plural of Madame.

Mes-de-moi-selles also mes-de-moi-selles (mād'mwä-zël') n. Abbr.

Milles. Plural of Mademoiselle.

me-seems (mē-sēmz') v. intr. Past tense me-seemed. Archaic. It seems to me. [Middle English me semeth : me, to me; see ME + semeth, third person sing. present tense of semen, to seem; see SEEM.]

mes-en-ceph-a-lon (měz'ĕn-sĕf'ə-lŏn', mĕs'-) n. The portion of the vertebrate brain that develops from the middle section of the embryonic brain. Also called midbrain — mes'en-ce-phal'ic (-sə-fäl'ik) adj.

mes-en-chyme (měz'ən-kīm', mĕs'-) n. The part of the embryonic mesoderm, consisting of loosely packed, unspecialized cells set in a gelatinous ground substance, from which connective tissue, bone, cartilage, and the circulatory and lymphatic systems develop. [MES(O)- + -ENCHYMA.] — mes-en'chy-mal, mes'en-chym'a-tous (-kīmə-təs) adj.

mes-en-ter-i-tis (měz-ĕn'tə-rī'tis, mĕs-) n. Inflammation of the mesentery.

mes-en-ter-on (měz-ĕn'tə-rŏn', mĕs-) n. See midgut (n., sense 1).

— mes-en'ter-on'ic adj.

mes-en-ter-y (měz'ən-tĕr'ĕ, mĕs'-) n. pl. mes-en-ter-ies. Any of several folds of the peritoneum that connect the intestines to the dorsal abdominal wall, especially such a fold that envelops the jejunum and ileum. [Middle English mesenterie, from Medieval Latin mesenterium, from Greek mesenterion : meso-, meso- + enterion, diminutive of enteron, entrails; see en in Appendix.] — mes'en-ter'ic adj.

mesh (měsh) n. 1. a. Any of the open spaces in a net or network; an interstice. b. Often meshes. The cords, threads, or wires surrounding these spaces. 2. An openwork fabric or structure; a net or network: a screen made of wire mesh. 3. Often meshes. Something that snares or entraps: "Arabia had become entangled in the meshes of... politics" (W. Montgomery Watt). 4. a. The engagement of gear teeth. b. The state of being so engaged: gear teeth in mesh. — v. meshed, mesh-ing, mesh-es. — v. tr. 1. To catch in or as if in a net; ensnare. 2. To cause (gear teeth) to become engaged. 3. To cause to work closely together; coordinate. — v. intr. 1. To become entangled. 2. To become engaged or interlocked: gears that are not meshing properly. 3. a. To fit together effectively; be coordinated. b. To accord with another or each other; harmonize. [Middle English mesch, probably from Middle Dutch maesche.] — mesh'y adj.

Me-shach (mē'shäch) In the Old Testament, a young man who with Abednego and Shadrach emerged unharmed from the fiery furnace of Babylon.

Me-shed (mě-shĕd') also Mash-had (mə-shäd', mähsh-häd') A city of northeast Iran near the Turkmenistan and Afghanistan borders. It was long an important trade center on caravan routes from Tehran to India. Population, 1,130,000.

me-shu-ga also me-shug-ga (mə-shoög'ə) adj. Slang. Crazy; senseless. [Yiddish meshuge, from Hebrew mĕšuggā'.]

me·shu·gaas or mish·e·gaas or mish·e·goss (mĭsh'ə-gäs') n. Slang. Crazy or senseless activity or behavior; craziness. [Yiddish meshegas, from Hebrew mēšuggā'.]

me·shug·ga (mə-shöög'ə) adj. Variant of meshuga.

mesh·work (mĕsh'wûrk') n. Meshed material; network.

me·si·al (mē'zē-əl, -zhəl) adj. 1. Of, in, near, or toward the middle.

2. Dentistry. Situated toward the middle of the front of the jaw along the curve of the dental arch. —me'si·al·ly adv.

mes·ic (mĕz'ĭk, mĕs'-, mē'zĭk, -sĭk) adj. Ecology. Of, characterized by, or adapted to a moderately moist habitat.

me·sit·y·lene (mə-sīt'l-ēn') n. A hydrocarbon, C₆H₃(CH₃)₃, occurring in petroleum and coal tar or synthesized from acetone and used as a solvent. [MESI-TYL (OXIDE) + -ENE.]

mes·i·tyl oxide (mĕs'ĭ-tĭl ōk'sĭd') n. An oily liquid, (CH₃)₂C:CHCOCH₃, obtained from acetones and used as a solvent and in lacquers, paints, and varnishes. [Greek mesitēs, mediator (from its use as an intermediate in organic synthesis) (from mesos, middle); see MESO- + -YL.]

Mes·mer (mĕz'mər, mĕs'-), Franz or Friedrich Anton. 1734-1815. Austrian physician who sought to treat disease through animal magnetism, an early therapeutic application of hypnotism.

mes·mer·ism (mĕz'mə-rĭz'əm, mĕs'-) n. 1. A strong or spellbinding appeal; fascination. 2. Hypnotic induction believed to involve animal magnetism.

3. Hypnotism. [After Franz MESMER.] —mes·mer'ic (-mĕr'ĭk) adj.

—mes·mer'i·cal·ly adv. —mes'mer·ist n.

WORD HISTORY: When the members of an audience sit mesmerized by a speaker, their reactions do not take the form of dancing, sleeping, or falling into convulsions. But if Franz Anton Mesmer were addressing the audience, such behavior could be expected. Mesmer, a visionary 18th-century physician, believed cures could be effected by having patients do things such as sit with their feet in a fountain of magnetized water while holding cables attached to magnetized trees. Mesmer then came to believe that magnetic powers resided in himself, and during highly fashionable curative sessions in Paris he caused his patients to have reactions ranging from sleeping or dancing to convulsions. These reactions were actually brought about by hypnotic powers that Mesmer was unaware he possessed. One of his pupils, named Puységur, then used the term mesmerism (first recorded in English in 1802) for Mesmer's practices. The related word mesmerize (first recorded in English in 1829), having shed its reference to the hypnotic doctor, lives on in the sense "to enthrall."

mes·mer·ize (mĕz' mə-rīz', mĕs'-) v. tr. mes·mer·ized, mes·mer·iz·ing, mes·mer·iz·es. 1. To spellbind; enthrall: "He could mesmerize an audience by the sheer force of his presence" (Justin Kaplan). 2. To hypnotize. —mes' mer·i·za'·tion (-mə-r-ĭ-zā'shən) n. —mes' mer·iz'er n.

meso- or mes- pref. 1. In the middle; middle: mesoderm. 2. Intermediate: mesophyte. [Greek, from mesos, middle. See medhyo- in Appendix.]

Mes·o·a·mer·i·ca (mĕz' ō-ə-mĕr' ĭ-kə, mĕs'-) A region extending south and east from central Mexico to include parts of Guatemala, Belize, Honduras, and Nicaragua. In pre-Columbian times it was inhabited by diverse civilizations, including the Mayan and the Olmec. —Mes' o·a·mer' i·can adj. & n.

mes·o·blast (mĕz' ə-blăst', mĕs'-) n. The middle germinal layer of an early embryo, consisting of undifferentiated cells destined to become the mesoderm. —mes' o·blas'tic adj.

mes·o·carp (mĕz' ə-kărp', mĕs'-) n. Botany. The middle, usually fleshy layer of a fruit wall.

mes·o·ce·phal·ic (mĕz' ō-sə-făl' ĭk, mĕs'-) adj. Having a head of medium breadth, with a cephalic index between 76 and 80. —mes' o·ceph'al·ly (-ə-sĕf' ə-lĕ) n.

mes·o·derm (mĕz' ə-dŭrm', mĕs'-) n. The middle embryonic germ layer, lying between the ectoderm and the endoderm, from which connective tissue, muscle, bone, and the urogenital and circulatory systems develop. —mes' o·der'mal, mes' o·der'mic adj.

mes·o·gas·tri·um (mĕz' ə-găs'trĕ-əm, mĕs'-) n. pl. mes·o·gas·tri·a (-trĕ-ə). 1. The portion of the embryonic mesentery that is attached to the early stomach. 2. The region of the abdomen surrounding the navel. —mes' o·gas'tric adj.

mes·o·gle·a also mes·o·gloe·a (mĕz' ə-glĕ' ə, mĕs'-, mĕ' zə-, -sə-) n. The layer of gelatinous material that separates the inner and outer cell layers of a coelenterate. [New Latin mesogloea : MESO- + Medieval Greek gloia, glia, glue; see ZOOGLEA.] —mes' o·gle'al adj.

Mes·o·lith·ic (mĕz' ə-lĭth' ĭk, mĕs'-) adj. Of, relating to, or being the cultural period of the Stone Age between the Paleolithic and Neolithic ages, marked by the appearance of the bow and cutting tools. — n. The Mesolithic Age.

mes·o·mere (mĕz' ə-mîr', mĕs'-) n. 1. A blastomere of intermediate size, larger than a micromere but smaller than a macromere. 2. The middle zone of the mesoderm of a chordate vertebrate embryo, from which excretory tissue develops.

mes·o·morph (mĕz' ə-môrf', mĕs'-) n. Anatomy. A mesomorphic person. [MESO(DERM) + -MORPH.]

mes·o·mor·phic (mĕz' ə-môrf' ĭk, mĕs'-) adj. 1. Also mes·o·mor·phous (-môrf' fəs). Of, relating to, or existing in a state of matter intermediate between liquid and crystal. 2. Anatomy. Having or characterized by a robust, muscular body build caused by the predominance of structures developed from the embryonic mesodermal layer. —mes'ō-mor'phism, mes'ō-mor'phy n.

mes-on (mĕz'ŏn', mĕs'-, mĕ'zŏn', -sŏn') n. Any of a family of subatomic particles that participate in strong interactions, are composed of a quark and an anti-quark, and have masses generally intermediate between leptons and baryons.

—me-son'ic (mĕ-zŏn'ik, -sŏn', mĕ-) adj.

mes·o·neph·ros (mĕz'ə-nĕf'rəs, -rŏs', mĕs'-) n. Biology. The second of the three excretory organs that develop in a vertebrate embryo, becoming the functioning kidney in fish and amphibians but replaced by the metanephros in higher vertebrates. Also called Wolffian body [MESO- + Greek nephros, kidney.]

—mes'ō·neph'ric adj.

mes·o·pause (mĕz'ə-pôz', mĕs'-) n. An atmospheric area about 80 kilometers (50 miles) above the earth's surface, forming the upper boundary of the mesosphere.

mes·o·pe·lag·ic (mĕz'ə-pə-lāj'ik, mĕs'-) adj. Of, relating to, or living at ocean depths between about 180 and 900 meters (600 and 3000 feet): mesopelagic organisms.

mes·o·phyll (mĕz'ə-fil', mĕs'-) n. The photosynthetic tissue of a leaf, located between the upper and lower epidermis. —mes'ō·phyl'lic, mes'ō·phyl'lous adj.

mes·o·phyte (mĕz'ə-fīt', mĕs'-) n. A land plant that grows in an environment having a moderate amount of moisture. —mes'ō·phyt'ic (-fīt'ik) adj.

Mes·o·po·ta·mi·a (mĕs'ə-pə-tā'mĕ-ə) An ancient region of southwest Asia between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers in modern-day Iraq. Probably settled before 5000 B.C., the area was the home of numerous early civilizations, including Sumer, Akkad, Babylonia, and Assyria. It declined in importance after Mongol invaders destroyed its extensive irrigation system in A.D. 1258.

—Mes'ō·po·ta'mi·an adj. & n.

mes·o·some (mĕz'ə-sŏm', mĕs'-, mĕ'zə-, -sə-) n. A convoluted invagination of the cytoplasmic membrane in some bacterial cells.

mes·o·sphere (mĕz'ə-sfīr', mĕs'-) n. The portion of the atmosphere from about 30 to 80 kilometers (20 to 50 miles) above the earth's surface, characterized by temperatures that decrease from 10°C to -90°C (50°F to -130°F) with increasing altitude. —mes'ō·spher'ic (-sfīr'ik, -sfēr'-) adj.

mes·o·the·li·a (mĕz'ə-thĕ'lĕ-ə, mĕs'-) n. Plural of mesothelium.

mes·o·the·li·o·ma (mĕz'ə-thĕ'lĕ-ŏ'mə, mĕs'-, mĕ'zə-, -sə-) n. pl.

mes·o·the·li·o·ma·ta (-mə-tə) or mes·o·the·li·o·mas. A usually malignant tumor of mesothelial tissue, especially that of the pleura or peritoneum.

mes·o·the·li·um (mĕz'ə-thĕ'lĕ-əm, mĕs'-) n. pl. mes·o·the·li·a (-lĕ-ə). The layer of flat cells of mesodermal origin that lines the embryonic body cavity and gives rise to the squamous cells of the peritoneum, pericardium, and pleura.

[MESO- + (EPI)THELIUM.] —mes'ō-the'li-al adj.

mes·o·tho·rax (měz'ə-thôr'ăks', -thôr'-, mēs'-) n. pl. mes·o·tho·rax·es or mes·o·tho·ra·ces (-thôr'ə-sēz', -thôr'-). The middle of the three divisions of the thorax of an insect, bearing the middle pair of legs and the first pair of wings.

—mes'ō-tho·rac'ic (-thô-răś'ik, -thô-) adj.

mes·o·tho·ri·um (měz'ə-thôr'ē-əm, -thôr'-, mēs'-) n. Either of two decay products of thorium, mesothorium I, an isotope of radium, or mesothorium II, an isotope of actinium.

Mes·o·zo·ic (měz'ə-zô'ik, mēs'-) adj. Of, relating to, or being the third era of geologic time, including the Triassic Period, the Jurassic Period, and the Cretaceous Period and characterized by the development of flying reptiles, birds, and flowering plants and the appearance and extinction of dinosaurs. — n. The Mesozoic Era.

mes·quite (mě-skēt', mə-) n. Any of several small spiny trees or shrubs of the genus Prosopis in the pea family, native to hot, dry regions of the New World and important as plants for bees and forage for cattle, especially: a. P. glandulosa, native to the southwest United States and northern Mexico. Also called honey mesquite, western honey mesquite. b. P. juliflora, native to the Gulf Coast and Caribbean islands from Mexico to Venezuela. Also called algarroba [Spanish mezquite, from Nahuatl mizquitl.]

Mes·quite (mə-skēt', mẽ-) A city of northeast Texas, an industrial and residential suburb of Dallas. Population, 101,484.

mess (měs) n. 1. A disorderly or dirty accumulation, heap, or jumble: left a mess in the yard. 2. a. A cluttered, untidy, usually dirty condition: The kitchen was in a mess. b. A confused, troubling, or embarrassing condition; a muddle: With divorce and bankruptcy proceedings pending, his personal life was in a mess. c. One that is in such a condition: clothes that were a mess after painting the ceiling; made a mess of their marriage. 3. a. An amount of food, as for a meal, course, or dish: cooked up a mess of fish. b. A serving of soft, semiliquid food: a mess of porridge. 4. a. A group of people, usually soldiers or sailors, who regularly eat meals together. b. Food or a meal served to such a group: took mess with the enlistees. c. A mess hall. — v. messed, mess-ing, mess-es. — v. tr. 1. To make disorderly or soiled; clutter or foul: a puppy that still messes the floor. 2. To botch; bungle. — v. intr. 1. To cause or make a mess. 2. To use or handle something carelessly; fiddle: messed with the blender until he broke it. 3. To intrude; interfere: messing in the neighbors' affairs. 4. To take a meal in a military mess. — phrasal verbs. mess around. Informal. 1. To pass time in aimless puttering. 2. To associate casually or playfully: liked to mess around with pals on days off. mess up. 3. Informal. To make a mistake, especially from nervousness or confusion: messed up and dropped the ball. 4. Slang. To beat up; manhandle:

got messed up in a brawl. [Middle English mes, course of a meal, food, group of people eating together, from Old French, from Late Latin missus, from Latin, past participle of mittere, to place.]

mes·sage (mə'sʃij) n. Abbr. msg. 1. a. A usually short communication transmitted by words, signals, or other means from one person, station, or group to another. b. The substance of such a communication; the point or points conveyed: gestured to a waiter, who got the message and brought the bill. 2. A statement made or read before a gathering: a retiring executive's farewell message. 3. A basic thesis or lesson; a moral: a play with a message. — v. tr. mes·saged, mes·sag·ing, mes·sag·es. 1. To send a message to. 2. To send as a message: messaged the instruction by cable. — v. intr. To send a message; communicate. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin missaticum, from Latin missus, past participle of mittere, to send.]

Mes·sa·li·na (mə'sʃə-lī'nə), Valeria. Died A.D. 48. Roman empress as the third wife of Claudius I. She was executed after Claudius discovered that she had married a lover in his absence.

mes·sa·line (mə'sʃə-lēn') n. A lightweight, soft, shiny silk cloth with a twilled or satin weave. [French.]

Mes·sei·gneurs (mə-sě-nyœr') n. Plural of Monseigneur.

Mes·se·ne (mī-sē'nē) An ancient Greek city in the southwest Peloponnesus. It was founded c. 369 B.C. under Theban auspices as a new capital for the region of Messenia.

mes·sen·ger (mə'sʃən-jər) n. 1. One that carries messages or performs errands, as: a. A person employed to carry telegrams, letters, or parcels. b. A military or official courier. c. An envoy to another person, party, or government. 2. A bearer of news. 3. A forerunner; a harbinger: the crocus and other messengers of spring. 4. A prophet: the messenger of Allah. 5. Nautical. A chain or rope used for hauling in a cable. In this sense, also called messenger line — v. tr.

mes·sen·gered, mes·sen·ger·ing, mes·sen·gers. To send by messenger. [Middle English messanger, from Old French messagier, from message, message. See MESSAGE.]

messenger RNA (mə'sʃən-jər är'ĕn-ā') n. Abbr. mRNA The form of RNA that mediates the transfer of genetic information from the cell nucleus to ribosomes in the cytoplasm, where it serves as a template for protein synthesis. It is synthesized from a DNA template during the process of transcription.

Mes·se·ni·a (mī-sē'nē-ə, -sēn'yə) An ancient region of southwest Greece in the Peloponnesus on the Ionian Sea. It fought a series of wars against Sparta c. 736 to 371 B.C. The Romans conquered the area in 146 B.C. — Mes·sen'i·an adj. & n.

mess hall (mə's hōl) n. A building or room used for serving and eating meals, as on an army post.

Mes-si-ah (mĭ-sī'ə) n. 1. Also Mes-si-as (mĭ-sī'əs). The anticipated deliverer and king of the Jews. 2. Also Messias. Jesus. 3. messiah. A leader who is regarded as or professes to be a savior or liberator. [Middle English Messias, Messie, from Old French Messie, from Late Latin Messīās, from Greek, from Aramaic mēšīḥā, or Hebrew māšāḥ, the anointed, messiah.]

mes-si-an-ic also Mes-si-an-ic (měs'ē-ăn'ik) adj. 1. Of or relating to a messiah: messianic hopes. 2. Of or characterized by messianism: messianic nationalism. [New Latin messiānicus, from Late Latin messīās, Messiah. See MESSIAH.]

mes-si-a-nism (měs'ē-ə-nĭz'əm, mĭ-sī'-) n. 1. Belief in a messiah. 2. Belief that a particular cause or movement is destined to triumph or save the world. 3. Zealous devotion to a leader, cause, or movement. —mes'si-a-nist n.

Mes-si-as (mĭ-sī'əs) n. Variant of Messiah.

Mes-sieurs (mā-syœ', mẽs'ərz) n. Abbr. Messrs., M.M. Plural of Monsieur.

Mes-si-na (mĭ-sē'nə, mẽ-) A city of northeast Sicily, Italy, on the Strait of Messina, a channel separating Sicily from mainland Italy. Founded in the eighth century B.C. by Greek colonists. Messina was decimated by the plague in 1743 and suffered severe earthquakes in 1783 and 1908. The strait's rocks, currents, and whirlpools may have been the inspiration for the legend of Scylla and Charybdis. Population, 255,890.

mess jacket (měs jăk'it) n. A waist-length fitted jacket, worn chiefly as part of a uniform on formal occasions. Also called monkey jacket, shell jacket.

mess kit (měs kit) n. A set of cooking and eating utensils compactly arranged in a kit, used by soldiers and campers.

mess-mate (měs'māt') n. A person with whom one eats regularly, as in a military mess.

Messrs.¹ (měs'ərz) n. Plural of Mr.

Messrs.² abbr. Messieurs.

mess-y (měs'ē) adj. mess-i-er, mess-i-est. 1. Disorderly and dirty: a messy bedroom. 2. Exhibiting or demonstrating carelessness: messy reasoning.

3. Unpleasantly difficult to settle or resolve: a messy court case. —mess'i-ly adv. —mess'i-ness n.

Mes-ta (měs'tə), Perle. 1889-1975. American socialite and diplomat who served as U.S. minister to Luxembourg from 1949 to 1953.

mes-ti-za (měs-tē'zə) n. A woman of mixed racial ancestry, especially of mixed European and Native American ancestry. [Spanish, feminine of mestizo. See MESTIZO.]

mes-ti-zo (měs-tē'zō) n. pl. mes-ti-zos or mes-ti-zoes. A person of mixed racial ancestry, especially of mixed European and Native American ancestry. [Spanish, mixed, mestizo, from Old Spanish, mixed, from Late Latin mixticius, from Latin mixtus, past participle of miscēre, to mix. See meik- in Appendix.]

mes-tra-nol (mēs'trə-nōl', -nōl', -nōl') n. A synthetic estrogen, C₂₁H₂₆O₂, used in combination with a progestin in oral contraceptive preparations. [Alteration of ethynyl methoxy estratriene, one of its chemical names.]

Meštro-vić (mēsh'trə-vič', -trō-), Ivan. 1883-1962. Yugoslavian-born American sculptor of religious, mythological, and Slavic folklore subjects.

met (mět) v. Past tense and past participle of meet¹.

met. abbr. 1. a. Metaphor. b. Metaphoric. 2. Metaphysics.

3. a. Meteorological. b. Meteorology. 4. Metropolitan.

met- pref. Variant of meta-.

Me-ta (mā'tə, mē'tä) A river, about 1,102 km (685 mi) long, of northeast Colombia flowing partially along the border with Venezuela.

meta- or met- pref. 1. a. Later in time: metestrus. b. At a later stage of development: metanephros. 2. Situated behind: metacarpus. 3. a. Change; transformation: metachromatism. b. Alternation: metagenesis. 4. a. Beyond; transcending; more comprehensive: metalinguistics. b. At a higher state of development: metazoan. 5. Having undergone metamorphosis: metasomatic. 6. a. Derivative or related chemical substance: metaprotein. b. Of or relating to one of three possible isomers of a benzene ring with two attached chemical groups, in which the carbon atoms with attached groups are separated by one unsubstituted carbon atom: meta-dibromobenzene. [Greek, from meta, beside, after. See me⁻² in Appendix.]

met-a-a-nal-y-sis (mět'ə-ə-nāl'ī-sis) n. The process or technique of synthesizing research results by using various statistical methods to retrieve, select, and combine results from previous separate but related studies.

met-a-bol-ic (mět'ə-bōl'ik) adj. Biology. Of, relating to, or resulting from metabolism. [Greek metabolikos, changeable, from metabolē, change. See METABOLISM.] —met'a-bol/i-cal-ly adv.

me-tab-o-lism (mī-tāb'ə-līz'əm) n. Biology. 1. The complex of physical and chemical processes occurring within a living cell or organism that are necessary for the maintenance of life. In metabolism some substances are broken down to yield energy for vital processes while other substances, necessary for life, are synthesized. 2. The functioning of a specific substance within the living body: water metabolism; iodine metabolism. [From Greek metabolē, change, from metaballein, to change : meta-, meta- + ballein, to throw; see g^wel- in Appendix.]

me-tab-o-lite (mī-tāb'ə-līt') n. 1. A substance produced by metabolism. 2. A substance necessary for or taking part in a particular metabolic process. [METABOL(ISM) + -ITE¹.]

me-tab-o-lize (mī-tāb'ə-līz') v. me-tab-o-lized, me-tab-o-liz-ing, me-tab-o-liz-es. — v. tr. 1. To subject (a substance) to metabolism. 2. To produce (a substance) by metabolism. — v. intr. To undergo change by metabolism. —me-tab'o-liz'a-ble adj.

met·a·car·pal (mět'ə-kär'pəl) adj. Of or relating to the metacarpus. — n.

Any of the bones of the metacarpus. —met'a·car'pal·ly adv.

met·a·car·pus (mět'ə-kär'pəs) n. pl. met·a·car·pi (-pī). 1. The part of the human hand that includes the five bones between the fingers and the wrist.

2. The corresponding part of the forefoot of a quadruped.

met·a·cen·ter (mět'ə-sən'tər) n. The intersection of vertical lines through the center of buoyancy of a floating body when it is at equilibrium and when it is floating at an angle. The location of the metacenter is an indication of the stability of a floating body.

met·a·cen·tric (mět'ə-sən'trīk) adj. 1. Of or relating to a metacenter.

2. Genetics. Having the centromere in the median position so that the arms are of equal length. Used of a chromosome. — n. A metacentric chromosome.

—met'a·cen·tric'i·ty (-sən-trīs'ī-tē) n.

met·a·chro·ma·tism (mět'ə-krō'mə-tīz'əm) n. A change in color caused by variation of the physical conditions to which a body is subjected, especially such a change caused by variation in temperature. —met'a·chro·mat'ic (-mät'īk) adj.

met·a·eth·ics (mět'ə-ěth'īks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of the meaning and nature of ethical terms, judgments, and arguments.

—met'a·eth'i·cal adj.

met·a·fic·tion (mět'ə-fīk'shən) n. Fiction that deals, often playfully and self-referentially, with the writing of fiction or its conventions. —met'a·fic'tion·al adj. —met'a·fic'tion·ist n.

met·a·gal·ax·y (mět'ə-gäl'ək-sē) n. pl. met·a·gal·ax·ies. The assemblage of all galaxies; the entire physical universe.

met·a·gen·e·sis (mět'ə-jěn'ī-sīs) n. Biology. See alternation of generations. —met'a·ge·net'ic (-jə-nět'īk) adj.

me·tag·na·thous (mī-täg'nə-thəs) adj. Having a bill in which the tips of the mandibles cross. Used of a bird. —me·tag'na·thism n.

Met·ai·rie (mět'ə-rē) A community of southeast Louisiana, a suburb of New Orleans. Population, 149,428.

met·al (mět'l) n. 1. Abbr. M Any of a category of electropositive elements that usually have a shiny surface, are generally good conductors of heat and electricity, and can be melted or fused, hammered into thin sheets, or drawn into wires. Typical metals form salts with nonmetals, basic oxides with oxygen, and alloys with one another. 2. An alloy of two or more metallic elements. 3. An object made of metal. 4. Basic character; mettle. 5. Broken stones used for road surfaces or railroad beds. 6. Molten glass, especially when used in glassmaking. 7. Molten cast iron. 8. Printing. Type made of metal. — v. tr. met·aled also met·alled, met·al·ing also met·al·ling, met·als also met·als. To cover or surface (a roadbed, for example) with broken stones. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin metallum, from Greek metallon, mine, mineral, metal.]

metal. abbr. 1. Metallurgic. 2. Metallurgy.

met·a·lin·guis·tics (mět'ə-lĩng-gwĩs'tĩks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of the interrelationship between language and other cultural behavior.

metall. abbr. 1. Metallurgic. 2. Metallurgy.

metall- or metalli- pref. Variants of metallo-.

me·tal·lic (mə-täl'ĩk) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or having the characteristics of a metal. 2. Containing a metal: a metallic compound. 3. Having a quality suggesting or associated with metal, especially: a. Lustrous; sparkling: metallic colors.

b. Sharp-tasting: an unpleasant, metallic flavor. 4. Harshly resonant: "the strange metallic note of the meadow lark, suggesting the clash of vibrant blades" (Ambrose Bierce). — n. 1. A yarn or fiber made of or containing metal. 2. A fabric, typically shiny or iridescent, made of such yarn or fiber.

—me·tal'li·cal·ly adv.

metallic bond (mə-täl'ĩk bönd) n. The chemical bond characteristic of metals, in which mobile valence electrons are shared among atoms in a usually stable crystalline structure.

met·al·lif·er·ous (mět'l-ĩf'ər-əs) adj. Containing metal. Used of a mineral deposit or an ore. [From Latin metallifer : metallum, metal; see METAL + -fer, -fer.]

met·al·line (mět'l-ĩn, -ĩn') adj. 1. Of, resembling, or having the properties of a metal. 2. Containing metal ions.

metallo- or metall- or metalli- pref. Metal: metallography. [From Latin metallum, metal. See METAL.]

met·al·log·ra·phy (mět'l-ög'rə-fē) n. The study of the structure of metals and alloys, especially by optical and electron microscopy and x-ray diffraction.

—met'al·log'ra·pher n. —me·tal'lo·graph'ic (mə-täl'ə-grăf'ĩk) adj.

—me·tal'lo·graph'i·cal·ly adv.

met·al·loid (mět'l-oid') n. 1. A nonmetallic element, such as arsenic, that has some of the chemical properties of a metal. 2. A nonmetallic element, such as carbon, that can form an alloy with metals. — adj. also met·al·loi·dal (mět'l-oid'l) 1. Relating to or having the properties of a metalloid. 2. Having the appearance of a metal.

me·tal·lo·phone (mə-täl'ə-fōn') n. Music. A percussion instrument consisting of a graduated series of metal bars struck with either hand-held or keyboard-controlled hammers.

met·al·lur·gy (mět'l-ûr'jē) n. Abbr. metal., metall. 1. The science that deals with procedures used in extracting metals from their ores, purifying and alloying metals, and creating useful objects from metals. 2. The study of metals and their properties in bulk and at the atomic level. [New Latin metallurgia, from Greek metallourgos, miner, worker in metals : metallon, a mine, metal + -ourgos, - worker (from ergon, work); see werg- in Appendix.] —met'al-lur'gic, met'al-lur'gi-cal adj. —met'al-lur'gi-cal-ly adv. —met'al-lur'gist n.

met-al-mark (mět'l-märk') n. Any of several small, darkly colored butterflies of the family Riodinidae, occurring mainly in tropical regions and having iridescent lines or spots on the wings.

met-al-work (mět'l-wûrk') n. Work done in metal.

met-al-work-ing (mět'l-wûr'king) n. The process or art of shaping things out of metal. —met'al-work'er n.

met-a-math-e-mat-ics (mět'ə-măth'ə-măt'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The branch of mathematics that deals with the logic and consistency of mathematical proofs, formulas, and equations. —met'a-math'e-mat'i-cal adj. —met'a-math'e-ma-ti'cian (-mə-tîsh'ən) n.

met-a-mere (mět'ə-mîr') n. Zoology. Any of the homologous segments, lying in a longitudinal series, that compose the body of certain animals, such as earthworms and lobsters. Also called somite —met'a-mer'ic (-mēr'ik, -mîr'-) adj. —met'a-mer'i-cal-ly adv.

me-tam-er-ism (mə-tăm'ə-rîz'əm) n. The condition of having the body divided into metameres, exhibited in most animals only in the early embryonic stages of development.

met-a-mor-phy (mět'ə-môr'fîk) adj. 1. Also met-a-mor-phous (-fəs). Of, relating to, or characterized by metamorphosis. 2. Geology. Changed in structure or composition as a result of metamorphism. Used of rock. [METAMORPH(OSIS) + -IC.]

met-a-mor-phism (mět'ə-môr'fîz'əm) n. Geology. The process by which rocks are altered in composition, texture, or internal structure by extreme heat, pressure, and the introduction of new chemical substances. [METAMORPH(IC) + -ISM.]

met-a-mor-phrase (mět'ə-môr'fōz', -fōs') v. met-a-mor-phosed, met-a-mor-phos-ing, met-a-mor-phos-es. — v. tr. 1. To change into a wholly different form or appearance; transform: “His eyes turned bloodshot, and he was metamorphosed into a raging fiend” (Jack London). 2. To subject to metamorphosis or metamorphism. — v. intr. To be changed or transformed by or as if by metamorphosis or metamorphism. See Synonyms at convert. [French métamorphoser, from Old French, from metamorphose, metamorphosis, from Latin metamorphōsis. See METAMORPHOSIS.]

met-a-mor-pho-sis (mět'ə-môr'fə-sîs) n. pl. met-a-mor-pho-ses (-sēz'). 1. A transformation, as by magic or sorcery. 2. A marked change in appearance, character, condition, or function. 3. Biology. A change in the form and often habits of an animal during normal development after the embryonic stage. Metamorphosis includes, in insects, the transformation of a maggot into an adult fly and a caterpillar into a butterfly and, in amphibians, the changing of a tadpole into a frog. 4. Pathology. A usually degenerative change in the structure of a particular body tissue. [Latin metamorphōsis, from Greek, from metamorphoun, to transform : meta-, meta- + morphē, form.]

met·a·mor·phous (mět'ə-môr'fəs) adj. Variant of metamorphic (adj., sense 1).

met·a·neph·ros (mět'ə-něf'rös') n. The third and final excretory organ that develops in a vertebrate embryo. In birds, reptiles, and mammals it replaces the mesonephros as the functional excretory organ and develops into the adult kidney. [META- + Greek nephros, kidney.]

metaph. abbr. 1. Metaphor. 2. Metaphoric. 3. Metaphysics.

met·a·phase (mět'ə-fāz') n. The stage of mitosis and meiosis, following prophase and preceding anaphase, during which the chromosomes are aligned along the metaphase plate.

metaphase plate (mět'ə-fāz' plāt) n. An imaginary plane perpendicular to the spindle fibers of a dividing cell, along which chromosomes align during metaphase.

met·a·phor (mět'ə-fôr', -fər) n. 1. Abbr. met., metaph. A figure of speech in which a word or phrase that ordinarily designates one thing is used to designate another, thus making an implicit comparison, as in “a sea of troubles” or “All the world’s a stage” (Shakespeare). 2. One thing conceived as representing another; a symbol: “The high-rise garbage repository is a metaphor for both accomplishment and failure” (Richard Sever). [Middle English methaphor, from Old French metaphore, from Latin metaphora, from Greek, transference, metaphor, from metapherein, to transfer : meta-, meta- + pherein, to carry; see bher-¹ in Appendix.] —met'a·phor'ic (-fôr'ĭk, -fôr'-), met'a·phor'i·cal adj.

—met'a·phor'i·cal·ly adv.

met·a·phos·phate (mět'ə-fös'fāt') n. A salt or an ester of metaphosphoric acid.

met·a·phos·phor·ic acid (mět'ə-fös-fôr'ĭk äs'ĭd, -fôr'-) n. An inorganic compound, HPO₃, used as a dehydrating agent and in dental cements.

met·a·phrase (mět'ə-frāz') n. A word-for-word translation. — v. tr.

met·a·phrased, met·a·phras·ing, met·a·phras·es. 1. To translate, especially literally. 2. To alter the wording of (a text). [New Latin metaphrasis, from Greek, translation, paraphrase, from metaphrazein, to translate : meta-, meta- + phrazein, tell, show; see g^whren- in Appendix.] —met'a·phras'tic (-fräs'tĭk) adj.

met·a·phrast (mět'ə-fräst') n. One who renders a text into a different form, as by recasting prose in verse. [Medieval Greek metaphrastēs, from Greek metaphrazein, to translate. See METAPHRASE.]

met·a·phys·ic (mět'ə-fiz'ik) n. 1. a. Metaphysics. b. A system of metaphysics. 2. An underlying philosophical or theoretical principle: a belief in luck, the metaphysic of the gambler. [Middle English methaphisik, metaphisik. See METAPHYSICS.]

met·a·phys·i·cal (mět'ə-fiz'i-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to metaphysics. 2. Based on speculative or abstract reasoning. 3. Highly abstract or theoretical; abstruse. 4. a. Immaterial; incorporeal. See Synonyms at immaterial. b. Supernatural. 5. Often Metaphysical. Of or relating to the poetry of a group of 17th-century English poets whose verse is characterized by an intellectually challenging style and extended metaphors comparing very dissimilar things. [Middle English metaphisicalle, from Medieval Latin metaphysicālis, from metaphysica, metaphysics. See METAPHYSICS.] —met'a·phys'i·cal·ly adv.

met·a·phy·si·cian (mět'ə-fī-zīsh'ən) n. One who specializes or is skilled in metaphysics.

met·a·phys·ics (mět'ə-fiz'iks) n. Abbr. met., metaph. 1. (used with a sing. verb). Philosophy. The branch of philosophy that examines the nature of reality, including the relationship between mind and matter, substance and attribute, fact and value. 2. (used with a pl. verb). The theoretical or first principles of a particular discipline: the metaphysics of law. 3. (used with a sing. verb). A priori speculation upon questions that are unanswerable to scientific observation, analysis, or experiment. 4. (used with a sing. verb). Excessively subtle or recondite reasoning. [Pl. of Middle English methaphisik, from Medieval Latin metaphysica, from Medieval Greek (ta) metaphusika, Greek (Ta) meta (ta) phusika, (the things) after the physics, the title of Aristotle's treatise on first principles (so called because it followed his work on physics) : meta, after; see META- + phusika, physics; see PHYSICS.]

met·a·pla·sia (mět'ə-plā'zhə, -zhē-ə) n. 1. Normal transformation of tissue from one type to another, as in the ossification of cartilage to form bone.

2. Transformation of cells from a normal to an abnormal state.

—met'a·plas'tic (-plās'tik) adj.

met·a·plasm¹ (mět'ə-plāz'əm) n. Grammar. Alteration of a word by the addition, omission, or transposition of sounds or syllables or the letters that represent them. [Middle English metaplasumus, from Latin, from Greek metaplasmos, remodeling, from metaplassein, to remold : meta-, meta- + plassein, to mold; see pelə⁻² in Appendix.] —met'a·plas'tic (-plās'tik), met'a·plas'mic (-plāz'mik) adj.

met·a·plasm² (mět'ə-plāz'əm) n. Biology. Nonliving material in the protoplasm of a cell, such as pigment granules or nutritive substances.

—met'a·plas'mic (-plāz'mik) adj.

Met·a·pon·tum (mět'ə-pŏn'təm) An ancient city of southeast Italy on the Gulf of Taranto. It was settled by Greeks c. 700 B.C. Pythagoras taught here in the sixth century.

met·a·pro·tein (mět'ə-prō'tēn', -prō'tē-ĭn) n. Any of various organic compounds that result from a reaction between an acid or alkali and a protein and are soluble in weak acids or alkalis and insoluble in neutral solutions.

met·a·psy·chol·o·gy (mět'ə-sī-kŏl'ə-jē) n. Philosophical inquiry supplementing the empirical science of psychology. Metapsychology deals with aspects of the mind that cannot be evaluated on the basis of objective or empirical evidence.

met·a·so·ma·tism (mět'ə-sō'mə-tĭz'əm) also met·a·so·ma·to·sis (-sō'mə-tō'sĭs) n. The process by which the chemical composition of a rock is changed by interaction with fluids; replacement of one mineral by another without melting.

—met'·a·so·mat'ic (-măt'ĭk) adj. —met'·a·so·mat'ic·al·ly adv.

met·a·sta·ble (mět'ə-stā'bəl) adj. Of, relating to, or being a relatively unstable and transient but significant state of a chemical or physical system, as of a supersaturated solution or an excited atom. —met'·a·sta·bil'ity (-stə-bĭl'ĭ-tē) n.

me·tas·ta·sis (mə-tās'tə-sĭs) n. pl. me·tas·ta·ses (-sēz'). 1. Pathology. Transmission of pathogenic microorganisms or cancerous cells from an original site to one or more sites elsewhere in the body, usually by way of the blood vessels or lymphatics. 2. A secondary cancerous growth formed by transmission of cancerous cells from a primary growth located elsewhere in the body. [Greek, from methistanai, to change : meta-, meta- + histanai, to cause to stand, place; see stā- in Appendix.] —met'·a·stat'ic (mět'ə-stăt'ĭk) adj. —met'·a·stat'ic·al·ly adv.

me·tas·ta·size (mə-tās'tə-sĭz') v. intr. me·tas·ta·sized, me·tas·ta·sizing, me·tas·ta·siz·es. To be transmitted or transferred by or as if by metastasis.

met·a·tar·sal (mět'ə-tār'səl) adj. Of or relating to the metatarsus. — n. Any of the bones of the metatarsus. —met'·a·tar'sal·ly adv.

met·a·tar·sus (mět'ə-tār'səs) n. pl. met·a·tar·si (-sĭ, -sē). 1. The middle part of the human foot that forms the instep and includes the five bones between the toes and the ankle. 2. The corresponding part of the hind foot in quadrupeds or of the foot in birds.

me·ta·te (mə-tă'tē, mĕ-tă'tĕ) n. A stone block with a shallow concave surface, used with a mano for grinding corn or other grains. [American Spanish, from Nahuatl metlatl.]

me·tath·e·sis (mĭ-tăth'ĭ-sĭs) n. pl. me·tath·e·ses (-sēz'). 1. Linguistics. Transposition within a word of letters, sounds, or syllables, as in the change from Old English brid to modern English bird or in the confusion of modren for modern. 2. Chemistry. Double decomposition. [Late Latin, from Greek, from metatithenai, to transpose : meta-, meta- + tithenai, to place; see dhē- in Appendix.] —met'a-thet'ic (mět'ə-thět'ik), met'a-thet'i-cal adj.

—met'a-thet'i-cal-ly adv.

me-tath-e-size (mī-tāth'ī-sīz') v. tr. intr. me-tath-e-sized, me-tath-e-siz-ing, me-tath-e-siz-es. To subject to or undergo metathesis.

met-a-tho-rax (mět'ə-thôr'äks', -thôr'-) n. pl. met-a-tho-rax-es or met-a-tho-ra-ces (-thôr'ə-sēz', -thôr'-). The hindmost of the three divisions of the thorax of an insect, bearing the third pair of legs and the second pair of wings.

—met'a-tho-rac'ic (-thô-räs'ik, -thō-) adj.

Me-tax-as (mə-täk'səs, mět'täk-säs'), Joannes. 1871-1941. Greek general and dictator (1936-1941) who joined the Allies after Greece was invaded by Italy in 1940.

met-a-xy-lem (mět'ə-zī'ləm) n. Botany. The part of the primary xylem that differentiates after the protoxylem and is characterized by broader vessels and tracheids.

met-a-zo-an (mět'ə-zō'an) n. A multicellular animal of the subkingdom Metazoa, a division of the animal kingdom in traditional two-kingdom classification systems. [From New Latin Metazoa, a subdivision of the animal kingdom : META- + -zoa, pl. of -zoon, animal; see -ZOON.] —met'a-zo'al, met'a-zo'an, met'a-zo'ic adj.

Metch-ni-koff also Metch-ni-kov (mëch'nī-kôf', myëch'nī-kəf'), Elie. 1845-1916. Russian zoologist. He shared a 1908 Nobel Prize for discoveries and advances in immunology.

mete¹ (mēt) v. tr. met-ed, met-ing, metes. 1. To distribute by or as if by measure; allot: mete out punishment. 2. Archaic. To measure. [Middle English meten, from Old English metan. See med- in Appendix.]

mete² (mēt) n. A boundary line; a limit: metes and bounds. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin mēta, turning post, boundary.]

me-tem-psy-cho-sis (mə-tēm'sī-kō'sis, mět'əm-sī-) n. pl.

me-tem-psy-cho-ses (-sēz). Reincarnation. [Late Latin metempsychōsis, from Greek metempsychōsis, from metempsychousthai, to transmigrate : meta-, meta- + empsychos, animate (en, in; see en-² + psukhē, soul); see bhes- in Appendix.]

met-en-ceph-a-lon (mět'ən-sěf'ə-lŏn') n. pl. met-en-ceph-a-la (-lə). The anterior part of the embryonic hindbrain, which gives rise to the cerebellum and pons. —met'en-ce-phal'ic (-sə-fäl'ik) adj.

me-te-or (mē'tē-ər, -ôr') n. A bright trail or streak that appears in the sky when a meteoroid is heated to incandescence by friction with the earth's atmosphere. Also called falling star, shooting star. [Middle English metheour, atmospheric phenomenon, from Old French meteore, from Medieval Latin meteōrum, from Greek meteōron, astronomical phenomenon, from neuter of meteōros, high in the air : meta-, meta- + -aoros, lifted; akin to aeirein, to lift up; see AORTA.]

meteor. abbr. 1. Meteorological. 2. Meteorology.

me·te·or·ic (mē'tē-ōr'ik, -ōr'-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or formed by a meteoroid. 2. Of or relating to the earth's atmosphere. 3. Similar to a meteor in speed, brilliance, or brevity: a meteoric rise to fame. —me'te-or/i-cal·ly adv.

me·te·or·ite (mē'tē-ə-rīt') n. A stony or metallic mass of matter that has fallen to the earth's surface from outer space. —me'te-or-it'ic (-ə-rīt'ik), me'te-or-it/i-cal adj.

me·te·or·o·graph (mē'tē-ōr'ə-grāf', -ōr'-) n. An instrument that records simultaneously several meteorological conditions, such as temperature, pressure, and humidity.

me·te·or·oid (mē'tē-ə-roid') n. A solid body, moving in space, that is smaller than an asteroid and at least as large as a speck of dust.

me·te·or·ol·o·gist (mē'tē-ə-rōl'ə-jīst) n. 1. One who studies meteorology. 2. One who reports and forecasts weather conditions, as on television.

me·te·or·ol·o·gy (mē'tē-ə-rōl'ə-jē) n. Abbr. meteor., meteorol., met. The science that deals with the phenomena of the atmosphere, especially weather and weather conditions. [French météorologie, from Greek meteōrologia, discussion of astronomical phenomena : meteōron, astronomical phenomenon; see METEOR + -logia, -logy.] —me'te-or-o-log'i-cal (-ər-ə-lōj'ī-kəl), me'te-or-o-log'ic adj. —me'te-or-o-log'i-cal·ly adv.

meteor shower (mē'tē-ər shou'ər) n. A large number of meteors that appear together and seem to come from the same area in the sky.

me·ter¹ (mē'tər) n. 1. a. The measured arrangement of words in poetry, as by accentual rhythm, syllabic quantity, or the number of syllables in a line. b. A particular arrangement of words in poetry, such as iambic pentameter, determined by the kind and number of metrical units in a line. c. The rhythmic pattern of a stanza, determined by the kind and number of lines. 2. Music. a. Division into measures or bars. b. A specific rhythm determined by the number of beats and the time value assigned to each note in a measure. See Synonyms at rhythm. [Middle English, from Old English meter, and from Old French metre both from Latin metrum, from Greek metron, measure, poetic meter. See mē⁻² in Appendix.]

me·ter² (mē'tər) n. Abbr. m The international standard unit of length, approximately equivalent to 39.37 inches. It was redefined in 1983 as the distance traveled by light in a vacuum in 1/299,792,458 of a second. See Table at measurement. [French mètre, from Greek metron, measure. See mē⁻² in Appendix.]

me·ter³ (mē'tər) n. 1. Any of various devices designed to measure time, distance, speed, or intensity or indicate and record or regulate the amount or volume, as of the flow of a gas or an electric current. 2. A postage meter. 3. A parking meter. — v. tr. me·tered, me·ter·ing, me·ters. 1. To measure with a meter: meter a flow of water. 2. To supply in a measured or regulated amount: metered the allotted gasoline to each vehicle. 3. To imprint with postage or other revenue stamps by means of a postage meter or similar device: metering bulk mail. 4. To provide with a parking meter or parking meters: meter parking spaces. [From -METER.]

-meter suff. Measuring device: anemometer. [French -mètre, from Greek metron, measure. See mē⁻² in Appendix.]

me·ter·kil·o·gram·sec·ond (mē'tər-kīl'ə-grām-sĕk'ənd) adj. Abbr. mks, MKS Of, relating to, or being a system of units for mechanics, using the meter, the kilogram, and the second as basic units of length, mass, and time.

me·ter·kil·o·gram·sec·ond·am·pere (mē'tər-kīl'ə-grām-sĕk'ənd-əm'pîr) adj. Abbr. mksA Of, relating to, or being a system of units using the meter, the kilogram, the second, and the ampere as basic units of length, mass, time, and electric current.

meter maid (mē'tər mād) n. A woman member of a police traffic control department who issues tickets for parking violations.

me·tes·trus (mĕ-tĕs'trəs) n. The period of sexual inactivity that follows estrus. —me·tes'trous (-trəs) adj.

meth (mĕth) n. Slang. Methamphetamine.

meth- pref. Methyl: methane. [From METHYL.]

meth·acry·late (mĕth-āk'rĕ-lāt') n. 1. An ester of methacrylic acid, $\text{CH}_2\text{:C}(\text{CH}_3)\text{COOR}$, R being an organic radical. It is used in the manufacture of plastics. 2. A resin derived from methacrylic acid. [METH- + ACRYL(IC) + -ATE².]

meth·a·cryl·ic acid (mĕth'ə-krīl'ik əs'īd) n. A colorless liquid, $\text{CH}_2\text{:C}(\text{CH}_3)\text{COOH}$, used in the manufacture of resins and plastics.

meth·a·done (mĕth'ə-dŏn') n. A potent synthetic narcotic drug, $\text{C}_{21}\text{H}_{27}\text{NO}$, that is less addictive than morphine or heroin and is used as a substitute for these drugs in addiction treatment programs. [Short for methadone hydrochloride: (DI)METH(YL) + A(MINO) + D(IPHENYL) + (heptan)one, a ketone.]

meth·am·phet·a·mine (mĕth'əm-fĕt'ə-mĕn', -mĭn) n. An amine derivative of amphetamine, $\text{C}_{10}\text{H}_{15}\text{N}$, used in the form of its crystalline hydrochloride as a stimulant.

meth·ane (mĕth'ān') n. An odorless, colorless, flammable gas, CH_4 , the major constituent of natural gas, that is used as a fuel and is an important source of hydrogen and a wide variety of organic compounds.

methane series (mĕth'ān' sîr'ēz) n. Chemistry. See alkane series.

meth·a·nol (mĕth'ə-nŏl', -nŏl', -nŏl') n. A colorless, toxic, flammable liquid, CH_3OH , used as an antifreeze, a general solvent, a fuel, and a denaturant for ethyl alcohol. Also called carbinol, methyl alcohol, wood alcohol, wood spirits.

[METHAN(E) + -OL¹.]

meth·a·qua·lone (mĕth'ə-kwā'lŏn') n. A potentially habit-forming drug, $\text{C}_{16}\text{H}_{14}\text{N}_2\text{O}$, used as a sedative and hypnotic. [Blend of METH-, and quinazolinon, a derivative of quinoline.]

Meth·e·drine (mĕth'ī-drĕn', -drĭn) A trademark used for methamphetamine.

me·theg·lin (mə-thĕg'lin) n. A beverage typically made of fermented honey and water; mead. [Welsh meddyglyn : meddyg, medicinal (from Latin medicus, from medĕrĭ, to heal); see med- in Appendix + lyn, liquor.]

met·he·mo·glo·bin (mĕt-hĕ'mə-glō'bĭn) n. A brownish-red crystalline organic compound formed in the blood when hemoglobin is oxidated either by decomposition of the blood or by the action of various oxidizing drugs or toxic agents. It contains iron in the ferric state and cannot function as an oxygen carrier. [MET(A)- + HEMOGLOBIN.]

me·the·na·mine (mə-thĕ'nə-mĕn', -mĭn) n. An organic compound, (CH₂)₆N₄, used as a urinary tract antiseptic and in rubber vulcanizing. Also called hexamethylenetetramine [METH- + -EN(E) + AMINE.]

meth·i·cil·lin (mĕth'ī-sĭl'in) n. A synthetic antibiotic, C₁₇H₁₉N₂O₆NaS, related to penicillin and most commonly used in treatment of infections caused by penicillinase-producing staphylococci. [METH- + (PEN)ICILLIN.]

me·thinks (mĭ-thĭngks') v. intr. Past tense me·thought (-thôt'). Archaic. It seems to me. [Middle English me thinkes, from Old English mĕ thyncth : mĕ, to me; see ME + thyncth, it seems; see tong- in Appendix.]

me·thi·o·nine (mə-thī'ə-nĕn') n. A sulfur-containing essential amino acid, C₅H₁₁NO₂S, obtained from various proteins or prepared synthetically and used as a dietary supplement and in pharmaceuticals. [ME(TH)- + THION- + -INE².]

meth·od (mĕth'əd) n. 1. A means or manner of procedure, especially a regular and systematic way of accomplishing something: a simple method for making a pie crust; mediation as a method of solving disputes. See Usage Note at methodology. 2. Orderly arrangement of parts or steps to accomplish an end: random efforts that lack method. 3. The procedures and techniques characteristic of a particular discipline or field of knowledge: This field course gives an overview of archaeological method. 4. Method. A technique of acting in which the actor recalls emotions and reactions from past experience and uses them in identifying with and individualizing the character being portrayed. [Middle English, medical procedure, from Latin methodus, method, from Greek methodos, pursuit, method : meta-, beyond, after; see META- + hodos, way, journey.]

SYNONYMS: method, system, routine, manner, mode, fashion, way. These nouns refer to the plans or procedures followed to accomplish a task or attain a goal. Method implies a detailed, logically ordered plan: “The convention system has its faults, of course, but I do not know of a better method for choosing a presidential nominee” (Harry S Truman). System suggests order, regularity, and coordination of methods, often affecting all parts of a whole: “Of generalship, of strategic system... there was little or none” (John Morley). A routine is a habitual, often tiresome method: “The common business of the nation... is carried on in a constant routine by the clerks of the different offices" (Tobias Smollett). Manner emphasizes a personal or distinctive method of action or procedure: She has a precise, clearly articulated manner of speaking. The basset, in the manner of hunting dogs, dashed across the field, nose to the ground. Mode often denotes a manner influenced by or arising from tradition or custom: A nomadic mode of life was typical of many peoples of the Great Plains. Fashion is often synonymous with manner and mode; it sometimes suggests highly personal, even idiosyncratic behavior: The chief of staff issued a series of orders in an arbitrary and abrasive fashion. She sang, in her own inimitable fashion. Way is the least specific of these terms: "It is absurd to think that the only way to tell if a poem is lasting is to wait and see if it lasts" (Robert Frost). "For she and I were long acquainted/And I knew all her ways" (A.E. Housman).

me·thod·i·cal (mə-thōd'ī-kəl) also me·thod·ic (-īk) adj. 1. Arranged or proceeding in regular, systematic order. 2. Characterized by ordered and systematic habits or behavior. See Synonyms at orderly. —me·thod'i·cal·ly adv.

—me·thod'i·cal·ness n.

Meth·od·ism (mēth'ə-dīz'əm) n. 1. The beliefs, worship, and system of organization of the Methodists. 2. methodism. Emphasis on systematic procedure.

Meth·od·ist (mēth'ə-dīst) n. 1. A member of an evangelical Protestant church founded on the principles of John and Charles Wesley in England in the early 18th century and characterized by active concern with social welfare and public morals. 2. methodist. One who emphasizes or insists on systematic procedure.

—Meth'od-is'tic adj.

Me·tho·di·us (mī-thō'dē-əs), Saint. See Saint. Cyril.

meth·od·ize (mēth'ə-dīz') v. tr. meth·od·ized, meth·od·iz·ing, meth·od·iz·es. To reduce to or organize according to a method; systematize.

—meth'od-i·za'tion (-ə-dī-zā'shən) n. —meth'od·iz'er n.

meth·od·ol·o·gist (mēth'ə-dōl'ə-jīst) n. One who studies methodology.

meth·od·ol·o·gy (mēth'ə-dōl'ə-jē) n. pl. meth·od·ol·o·gies. 1. a. A body of practices, procedures, and rules used by those who work in a discipline or engage in an inquiry; a set of working methods: the methodology of genetic studies; an opinion poll marred by faulty methodology. b. The study or theoretical analysis of such working methods. 2. The branch of logic that deals with the general principles of the formation of knowledge. 3. Usage Problem. Means, technique, or procedure; method. —meth'od·o·log'i·cal (mēth'ə-də-lōj'ī-kəl) adj. —meth'od·o·log'i·cal·ly adv.

USAGE NOTE: Methodology can properly refer to the theoretical analysis of the methods appropriate to a field of study or to the body of methods and principles particular to a branch of knowledge. In this sense, one may speak of objections to the methodology of a geographic survey (i.e., objections dealing with the appropriateness of the methods used) or of the methodology of modern cognitive psychology (i.e., the principles and practices that underlie research in the field). In recent years, however, methodology has been increasingly used as a pretentious substitute for method in scientific and technical contexts, as in The oil company has not yet decided on a methodology for restoring the beaches. This usage may have been fostered in part by the tendency to use the adjective methodological to mean “pertaining to methods,” inasmuch as the regularly formed adjective methodical has been preempted to mean “orderly, systematic.” But the misuse of methodology obscures an important conceptual distinction between the tools of scientific investigation (properly methods) and the principles that determine how such tools are deployed and interpreted—a distinction that the scientific and scholarly communities, if not the wider public, should be expected to maintain.

meth·o·trex·ate (měth'ə-trěk'sāt) n. A toxic antimetabolite, $C_{20}H_{22}N_8O_5$, that acts as a folic acid antagonist to interfere with cellular reproduction and is used in the treatment of psoriasis and certain cancers. [METH- + trex- (of unknown origin) + -ATE².] me·thought (mĭ-thô't) v. Archaic. Past tense of methinks.

me·thox·y·chlor (mə-thök'sĭ-klôr', -klôr') n. A white crystalline compound, $Cl_3CCH(C_6H_4OCH_3)_2$, used as an insecticide. [METH- + OXY- + (tri)chlor(oet-hane), a chemical compound used in pesticides.]

Me·thu·en (mə-thō'ən, -thyō'-) A town of northeast Massachusetts on the New Hampshire border northeast of Lowell. It was settled c. 1642. Population, 39,990.

Me·thu·se·lah¹ (mə-thō'zə-lə) A biblical patriarch said to have lived 969 years.

Me·thu·se·lah² (mə-thō'zə-lə) n. An extremely old man.

meth·yl (měth'əl) n. The univalent hydrocarbon radical, CH_3 , derived from methane and occurring in many important organic compounds. [French méthyle, back-formation from méthylène, methylene. See METHYLENE.] —me·thyl'ic (mə-thĭl'ik) adj.

methyl acetate (měth'əl əs'ĭ-tāt') n. An organic compound, $CH_3CO_2CH_3$, used as a paint remover and general solvent and in the manufacture of perfumes.

meth·yl·al (měth'ə-ləl') n. A colorless flammable liquid, $CH_3OCH_2OCH_3$, used as a solvent and in the manufacture of perfumes, adhesives, and protective coatings. [METHYL + -AL³.]

methyl alcohol (měth'əl əl'kə-hôl') n. See methanol.

meth·yl·a·mine (měth'ə-lə-mēn', -lām'ēn, mə-thĭl'ə-mēn') n. A toxic flammable gas, CH_3NH_2 , produced by the decomposition of organic matter and synthesized for use as a solvent and in the manufacture of many products, such as dyes and insecticides.

meth·yl·ate (mĕth'ə-lāt') n. An organic compound in which the hydrogen of the hydroxyl group of methyl alcohol is replaced by a metal. — v. tr.

meth·yl·at·ed, meth·yl·at·ing, meth·yl·ates. 1. To mix or combine with methyl alcohol. 2. To combine with the methyl radical. —meth'yl·a'tion n.
—meth'yl·a'tor n.

meth·yl·at·ed spirit (mĕth'ə-lā'tid spīr'it) n. A denatured alcohol consisting of a mixture of ethyl alcohol and methyl alcohol. Often used in the plural.

meth·yl·ben·zene (mĕth'əl-bĕn'zĕn, -bĕn-zĕn') n. See toluene.

methyl bromide (mĕth'əl brō'mīd') n. A toxic gas, CH_3Br , used as a fumigant.

meth·yl·cel·lu·lose (mĕth'əl-sĕl'yə-lōs', -lōz') n. A powdery substance prepared synthetically by the methylation of natural cellulose and used as a food additive, a bulk-forming laxative, an emulsifier, and a thickener. It swells in water to form a gel.

methyl chloride (mĕth'əl klôr'id') n. An explosive gas, CH_3Cl , used in organic synthesis and polymerization as a refrigerant and an anesthetic.

meth·yl·do·pa (mĕth'əl-dō'pə) n. A drug, $\text{C}_{10}\text{H}_{13}\text{NO}_4$, used in the treatment of high blood pressure.

meth·yl·ene (mĕth'ə-lĕn') n. A bivalent hydrocarbon radical, CH_2 -, a component of unsaturated hydrocarbons. [French méthylène: Greek methu, wine; see medhu- in Appendix + Greek hulē, wood, substance.]

methylene blue (mĕth'ə-lĕn' blōō) n. A basic aniline dye, $\text{C}_{16}\text{H}_{18}\text{N}_3\text{SCl}\cdot 3\text{H}_2\text{O}$, that forms a deep blue solution when dissolved in water. It is used as an antidote for cyanide poisoning and a bacteriological stain.

methyl ethyl ketone (mĕth'əl ĕth'əl kĕ'tōn') n. See butanone.

methyl isocyanate (mĕth'əl ī'sō-sī'ə-nāt') n. A crystalline compound, $\text{C}_2\text{H}_3\text{NS}$, used as a pesticide.

methyl methacrylate (mĕth'əl mĕth-ăk'rə-lāt') n. A colorless liquid, $\text{CH}_2\text{C}(\text{CH}_3)\text{COOCH}_3$, used as a monomer in plastics.

meth·yl·naph·tha·lene (mĕth'əl-năf'thə-lĕn', -năp'thə-) n. An organic compound, $\text{C}_{10}\text{H}_7\text{CH}_3$, obtained from coal tar in two isomeric forms, one a liquid, the other a solid.

meth·yl·phen·i·date (mĕth'əl-fĕn'ī-dāt', -fĕ'nī-) n. A drug, $\text{C}_{14}\text{H}_{19}\text{NO}_2$, chemically related to amphetamine, that acts as a mild stimulant of the central nervous system and is used especially in the form of its hydrochloride for the treatment of narcolepsy in adults and hyperkinetic disorders in children.

[METHYL + PHEN(YL) + (PIPER)ID(INE) + (ACET)ATE.]

met-i-cal (mět'ī-kāl', mět'ī-kāl') n. A basic unit of currency in Mozambique. See Table at currency. [Portuguese, from Arabic mitqāl, mitqāl, a unit of weight, from taqala, to be heavy.]

me-tic-u-lous (mī-tik'yə-ləs) adj. 1. Extremely careful and precise.

2. Extremely or excessively concerned with details. [From Latin meticulōsus, timid, from metus, fear.] —me-tic'u-los'i-ty (-ləs'ī-tē), me-tic'u-lous-ness n. —me-tic'u-lous-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: meticulous, careful, painstaking, scrupulous, fastidious, punctilious. These adjectives mean showing or marked by attentiveness to all aspects or details. Meticulous stresses extreme, sometimes exaggerated care for small details: “He had throughout been almost worryingly meticulous in his business formalities” (Arnold Bennett). Careful suggests the exercise of attention, circumspection, and solicitude: A careful examination of the antique bronze showed it to be a forgery. Painstaking means extremely careful: The skillful repair of fine lace entails slow and painstaking work. Scrupulous suggests care prompted by conscience: “Cynthia was scrupulous in her efforts to give no trouble” (Winston Churchill). Fastidious implies concern, often excessive, for the requirements of taste: “Your true lover of literature is never fastidious” (Robert Southey). Punctilious specifically applies to strict, exact attention to minute details of conduct: “The more unpopular an opinion is, the more necessary is it that the holder should be somewhat punctilious in his observance of conventionalities generally” (Samuel Butler).

mé-tier (mě-tyā', mā-) n. 1. An occupation, a trade, or a profession. 2. Work or activity for which a person is particularly suited; one's specialty. See Synonyms at forte¹. [French, from Old French mestier, from Vulgar Latin misterium*, from Latin ministerium. See MINISTRY.]

mé-tis (mā-tēs') n. pl. métis. 1. A mestizo. 2. Often Métis. A person of mixed Native American and French-Canadian ancestry. 3. A crossbred animal. [Canadian French, from Old French metis, of mixed race, from Late Latin mixticius, mixed. See MESTIZO.]

Me-tis (mē'tīs) n. The satellite of Jupiter that is second in distance from the planet. [After Metis, Titaness who was a consort of Zeus (Jupiter), from Greek mētis, wisdom. See mē-2 in Appendix.]

Me-ton-ic cycle (mī-tōn'ik sī'kəl) n. A period of 235 lunar months, or about 19 years in the Julian calendar, at the end of which the phases of the moon recur in the same order and on the same days as in the preceding cycle. [After Meton (fl. fifth century B.C.), Athenian astronomer.]

met-o-nym (mět'ə-nīm') n. A word used in metonymy. [Back-formation from METONYMY.]

me·ton·y·my (mə-tŏn'ə-mē) n. pl. me·ton·y·mies. A figure of speech in which one word or phrase is substituted for another with which it is closely associated, as in the use of Washington for the United States government or of the sword for military power. [Late Latin metōnymia, from Greek metōnumia : meta-, meta- + onuma, name; see nō-men- in Appendix.] —met'ō·nym'ic (mĕt'ə-nĭm'ĭk), met'ō·nym'i·cal adj. —met'ō·nym'i·cal·ly adv.

me·too or me·too (mĕt'tōō') adj. Informal. Using principles, practices, or designs copied from and closely similar to those of a rival: “Ready availability of inexpensive components has created an age of metoo hardware in everything from mainframes to personal computers” (Business Week). —me'too' n. —me'too'er n. —me'too'ism n.

met·o·pe (mĕt'ə-pē) n. Architecture. Any of the spaces between two triglyphs on a Doric frieze. [Greek metopē : meta, between; see META- + opē, opening; see ok^w- in Appendix.]

me·top·ic (mə-tŏp'ĭk) adj. Of or relating to the forehead. [Greek metōpikos, from metōpon, forehead : meta, between; see META- + ōps, eye; see ok^w- in Appendix.]

met·o·pon (mĕt'ə-pŏn') n. A narcotic drug, C₁₈H₂₁NO₃, derived from morphine and used in the form of its hydrochloride as an analgesic.
[met(hyldihydr)o(mor)p(hin)on(e).] metr- pref. Variant of metro-.

me·tral·gi·a (mĭ-träl'jē-ə) n. Pain in the uterus.

Met·ra·zol (mĕt'rə-zŏl', -zŏl', -zŏl') A trademark used for pentylenetetrazol.

me·tre¹ (mĕ'tər) n. Chiefly British. Variant of meter¹.

me·tre² (mĕ'tər) n. Chiefly British. Variant of meter².

met·ric¹ (mĕt'rĭk) adj. Of or relating to the meter or the metric system: U.S. Customary units and their metric equivalents. [French métrique, from mètre, meter. See METER².]

met·ric² (mĕt'rĭk) n. 1. A standard of measurement. 2. Mathematics. A geometric function defined for a coordinate system such that the distance between any two points in that system may be determined from their coordinates. — adj. Of or relating to distance. [From Latin metricus, relating to measurement. See METRICAL.]

met·ric³ (mĕt'rĭk) n. Poetic meter. [Greek (hē) metrikē (tekhne), (the art) of meter, feminine of metrikos, relating to measurement. See METRICAL.]

-metric suff. Of or relating to measurement: volumetric. [Latin metricus. See METRICAL.]

met·ri·cal (mĕt'rĭ-kəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or composed in poetic meter: metrical verse; five metrical units in a line. 2. Of or relating to measurement. [Middle English, from Latin metricus, from Greek metrikos, from metron, measure, poetic meter. See mē⁻² in Appendix.] —met'ri·cal·ly adv.

met·ri·ca·tion (mět'ri-kā'shən) n. Conversion to the metric system of weights and measures; metrification.

met·rics (mět'riks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The use or study of metrical structures in verse; prosody.

-metrics suff. The application of statistics and mathematical analysis to a specified field of study: econometrics. [From METRIC².]

metric system (mět'rik sīs'təm) n. A decimal system of units based on the meter as a unit length, the kilogram as a unit mass, and the second as a unit time. See Table at measurement.

metric ton (mět'rik tūn) n. Abbr. m.t., M.T. A unit of mass equal to 1,000 kilograms (2,205 pounds).

met·ri·fy¹ (mět'rə-fī') v. tr. met·ri·fied, met·ri·fy·ing, met·ri·fies. To put into or compose in poetic meter; versify. [French métrifier, from Old French, from Medieval Latin metrificāre: Latin metrum, measure; see METER¹ + Latin -ficāre, -fy.] —met'ri·fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

met·ri·fy² (mět'rə-fī') v. tr. intr. met·ri·fied, met·ri·fy·ing, met·ri·fies. To convert into or adopt the metric system.

me·tri·tis (mī-trī'tīs) n. Inflammation of the uterus.

met·ro¹ (mět'rō) n. pl. met·ros. A subway system. [French métro, short for (chemin de fer) métropolitain, metropolitan (railway), from Late Latin mētrōpolītānus. See METROPOLITAN.] met·ro² (mět'rō) Informal. adj. Metropolitan: metro Los Angeles. — n. pl. met·ros. A metropolitan area: “This metro ranks number one in unemployment” (American Demographics).

metro- or metr- pref. Uterus: metritis. [From Greek mētra, uterus, from mētēr, mētr-, mother. See māter- in Appendix.]

me·trol·o·gy (mě-trōl'ə-jē) n. pl. me·trol·o·gies. 1. The science that deals with measurement. 2. A system of measurement. [French métrologie, from Greek metrologia, theory of ratios: metron, measure; see mē⁻² in Appendix + -logia, -logy.] —met'ro·log'i·cal (mět'rə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj. —met'ro·log'i·cal·ly adv. —me·trol'o·gist n.

me·tro·ni·da·zole (mět'rə-nī'də-zōl') n. A synthetic antimicrobial drug, C₆H₉N₃O₃, used in the treatment of vaginal trichomoniasis and intestinal amebiasis. [ME(THYL) + -tron- (alteration of NITRO-) + (IM)ID(E) + AZOLE.]

met·ro·nome (mět'rə-nōm') n. Music. A device used to mark time by means of regularly recurring ticks or flashes at adjustable intervals. [Greek metron, measure; see mē⁻² in Appendix + Greek nomos, rule, division; see nem- in Appendix.]

met·ro·nom·ic (mět'rə-nōm'ik) also met·ro·nom·i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj. 1. Music. Of or relating to a metronome. 2. Mechanically or unvaryingly regular in rhythm: a strict metronomic tempo. —met'ro·nom'i·cal·ly adv.

me-tro-nym-ic (mē'trə-nīm'ik, mēt'rə-) also mat-ro-nym-ic (măt'-) adj. Of, relating to, or derived from the name of one's mother or maternal ancestor. — n. A name so derived. [Greek mētrōnumikos : from mētēr, mētr-, mother; see METRO- + onuma, name; see nō-men- in Appendix.]

met-ro-plex also Metroplex (mēt'rə-plēks') n. A large metropolitan region, especially one encompassing two or more cities and their surrounding suburbs. [Probably METRO(POLITAN) + (COM)PLEX.]

me-trop-o-lis (mī-tröp'ə-līs) n. 1. A major city, especially the chief city of a country or region: Chicago, the metropolis of the Midwest. 2. A city or an urban area regarded as the center of a specific activity: a great cultural metropolis.

3. Ecclesiastical. The chief see of a metropolitan bishop. 4. The mother city or country of an overseas colony, especially in ancient Greece. [Middle English metropol, from Late Latin mētopolis, mother-city, from Greek : mētēr, mētr-, mother; see māter- in Appendix + polis, city; see pelə⁻³ in Appendix.]

met-ro-pol-i-tan (mēt'rə-pöl'i-tən) adj. Abbr. met. 1. a. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a major city: crowded metropolitan streets; a metropolitan newspaper. b. Of or constituting a large city or urbanized area, including adjacent suburbs and towns: the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolitan area; a metropolitan county. 2. Of, relating to, or constituting the home territory of an imperial or colonial state. 3. Of or relating to an ecclesiastical metropolitan. — n. 1. A citizen of a metropolis, especially one who displays urbane characteristics, attitudes, and values. 2. a. In the Western Christian churches, a bishop with provincial powers, with some authority over suffragan bishops. b. Eastern Orthodox Church. A bishop who is head of an ecclesiastical province and ranks next below the patriarch. [Middle English, of a metropolitan bishop, from Late Latin mētopolitānus, metropolitan, from Greek mētopolitēs, citizen of a metropolis, from mētopolis, mother city. See METROPOLIS.]

me-tror-rha-gi-a (mē'trə-rā'jē-ə, -jə) n. Bleeding from the uterus that is not associated with menstruation. — me'tror-rha'gic (-rā'jik) adj.

-metry suff. Process or science of measuring: isometry. [Greek -metria, from metron, measure. See mē⁻² in Appendix.]

Met-ter-nich (mēt'ər-nīk, -nīKH), Prince Klemens Wenzel Nepomuk Lothar von. 1773-1859. Austrian politician who helped form the Quadruple Alliance that ultimately defeated Napoleon I.

met-tle (mēt'l) n. 1. Courage and fortitude; spirit: troops who showed their mettle in combat. 2. Inherent quality of character and temperament. — idiom. on (one's) mettle. Prepared to accept a challenge and do one's best. [Variant of METAL.]

met-tle-some (mēt'l-səm) adj. Full of mettle; spirited and plucky. See Synonyms at brave.

Metz (mĕts, mĕs) A city of northeast France on the Moselle River north of Nancy. Settled before Roman times, it prospered as a free imperial city after the 12th century and was annexed by France in 1552. The city was ruled by Germany from 1871 to 1918. Population, 114,232.

meu-nière (mən-yâr') adj. Rolled in flour and fried in butter, usually with lemon juice and chopped parsley sprinkled on top. Used of fish. [French, from (à la) meunière, (in the style of) a miller's wife, from Old French munoiere, feminine of mounier, miller, from Late Latin molīnārius, from molīna, mill. See MILL¹.]

Meuse (myōōz, mœz) A river of western Europe flowing about 901 km (560 mi) from northeast France through southern Belgium and the southeast Netherlands to the North Sea. Its valley was the scene of severe fighting during World Wars I and II.

mev or Mev or MeV abbr. Million electron volts.

mew¹ (myōō) n. 1. A cage for hawks, especially when molting. 2. A secret place; a hideaway. 3. mew. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). a. A group of buildings originally containing private stables, often converted into residential apartments. b. A small street, alley, or courtyard on which such buildings stand. — v. mewed, mew-ing, mews. — v. tr. To confine in or as if in a cage. — v. intr. To molt. Used of a hawk. [Middle English meue, from Old French mue, from muer, to molt, from Latin mūtāre, to change. See mei-¹ in Appendix.]

mew² (myōō) v. intr. mewed, mew-ing, mews. To make the high-pitched, crying sound of a cat; meow. — n. The crying sound of a cat; a meow. [Middle English meuen, of imitative origin.]

mew³ (myōō) n. A seagull (Larus canus) of northern Eurasia and northwest North America. [Middle English meue, from Old English māw, mēu.]

mewl (myōōl) v. intr. mewled, mewl-ing, mewls. To cry weakly; whimper. [Perhaps imitative, or perhaps French mouiller (les yeux), to wet (the eyes), cry from Old French moillier, from Vulgar Latin molliāre*, to make soggy, from Latin mollis, soft, mild. See MOIL.]

Mex. abbr. 1. Mexican. 2. Mexico.

Mex-i-cal-i (mĕk'sī-kāl'ē, mĕ'hē-kā'lĕ) A city of northwest Mexico near the California border east of Tijuana. It is a distribution and processing center in an irrigated agricultural region. Population, 341,559.

Mex-i-can (mĕk'sī-kən) n. A native or inhabitant of Mexico. — adj. Abbr. Mex. Of or relating to Mexico or its people, language, or culture.

Mexican bean beetle (mĕk'sī-kən bĕn bĕt'l) n. A spotted ladybug (Epilachna varivestis) of the southern United States and Mexico that feeds on the leaves of the bean plant.

Mexican hairless (mĕk'sī-kən hâr'lĭs) n. Any of a breed of small dog of unknown origin, found in Mexico and having a smooth hairless body except for tufts on the head and tail.

Mexican ivy vine (mĕk'sī-kən ī'vĕ vīn) n. See cup-and-saucer plant.

Mexican Spanish (mĕk'sī-kən spän'īsh) n. The Spanish language as used in Mexico.

Mex·i·co (mĕk'sī-kō') Abbr. Mex. A country of south-central North America. Inhabited in pre-Columbian times by the Aztecs and Maya among others, Mexico was conquered by Cortés in 1521 and held by the Spanish until 1821. The Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo that ended the Mexican War (1846-1848) awarded all lands north of the Rio Grande to the United States. Mexico City is the capital and the largest city. Population, 67,395,826.

Mexico, Gulf of. An arm of the Atlantic Ocean in southeast North America bordering on eastern Mexico, the southeast United States, and Cuba. It connects with the Atlantic Ocean through the Straits of Florida and with the Caribbean Sea through the Yucatán Channel.

Mexico City (mĕk'sī-kō' sīt'ē) The capital and largest city of Mexico, at the southern end of the central plateau. Situated at an altitude of 2,379 m (7,800 ft), it was founded on the site of an ancient Aztec capital destroyed by Cortés in 1521. The 1968 Summer Olympics were held here. Population, 8,831,079.

Mey·er (mī'ər), Annie Florance Nathan. 1867-1951. American writer and a founder of Barnard College at Columbia University (1889). Her dramatic works include The Dominant Sex (1911) and Black Souls (1932).

Mey·er·beer (mī'ər-bīr'), Giacomo. 1791-1864. German composer of French operas, notably Les Huguenots (1836).

Mey·er·hof (mī'ər-hōf'), Otto. 1884-1951. German-born American physiologist. He shared a 1922 Nobel Prize for his discovery of the relationship between consumption of oxygen and production of lactic acid in muscles.

me·ze·re·on (mə-zîr'ē-ən) or me·ze·re·um (-əm) n. 1. A poisonous Eurasian ornamental shrub (Daphne mezereum) having fragrant lilac-purple flowers and small scarlet fruit. 2. The dried bark of this plant, formerly used externally as a vesicant and internally for arthritis. [Middle English mizerion, from Medieval Latin mezereon, from Arabic māzaryūn, of Persian origin.]

me·zu·zah also me·zu·za (mə-zōōz'ə, -zōō-zä') *n. pl. me·zu·zahs also me·zu·zas (-zōōz'əz) or me·zu·zot (-zōō-zôt'). A small piece of parchment inscribed with the biblical passages Deuteronomy 6:4-9 and 11:13-21 and marked with the word Shaddai, a name of the Almighty, that is rolled up in a container and affixed by many Jewish households to their door frames in conformity with Jewish law and as a sign of their faith. [Hebrew mēzûzâ, doorpost, mezuzah.]*

mez·za·nine (mĕz'ə-nĕn', mĕz'ə-nĕn') n. 1. A partial story between two main stories of a building. 2. The lowest balcony in a theater or the first few rows of that balcony. [French, from Italian mezzanino, diminutive of mezzano, middle, from Latin mediānus, in the middle. See MEDIAN.]

mez·za vo·ce (mět'sə vō'chā, mēd'zə, měž'ə) adv. & adj. Music. With moderate volume or in a subdued tone. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian : mezza, half + voce, voice.]

mez·zo (mět'sō, mēd'zō, měž'ō) n. pl. mez·zos. Music. A mezzo-soprano.

mezzo for·te (mět'sō fôr'tā) adv. & adj. Abbr. mf, m.f. Music. Moderately loud. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian : mezzo, half + forte, loud.]

mezzo pi·a·no (mět'sō pē-ä'nō) adv. & adj. Abbr. mp, m.p. Music. Moderately soft. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian : mezzo, half + piano, soft.]

mez·zo·re·lie·vo (mět'sō-rī-lē'vō, -rēl-yā'vō, mēd'zō-, měž'ō-) n. pl. mez·zo·re·lie·vos. See half relief. [Italian mezzorilievo : mezzo, half (from Latin medius); see MEDIUM + rilievo, relief; see RELIEVO.]

mez·zo·so·pran·o (mět'sō-sə-prän'ō, -prä'nō, mēd'zō-, měž'ō-) n. pl. mez·zo·so·pran·os. Music. 1. a. A voice having a range between soprano and contralto. b. A vocal part calling for a voice having such a range. 2. A woman having a mezzo-soprano voice. [Italian : mezzo, half (from Latin medius); see MEDIUM + soprano, soprano; see SOPRANO.]

mez·zo·tint (mět'sō-tint', mēd'zō-, měž'ō-) n. 1. A method of engraving a copper or steel plate by scraping and burnishing areas to produce effects of light and shadow. 2. A print made from a plate engraved by mezzotint. [Alteration of Italian mezzotinta, halftone : mezza, feminine of mezzo, half (from Latin medius); see MEDIUM + tinta, tint from feminine past participle of tingere (from Latin, to dye).]

mf abbr. 1. Medium frequency. 2. Also m.f. Music. Mezzo forte. 3. Also mF. Millifarad.

M.F.A. abbr. Master of Fine Arts.

mfd. abbr. Manufactured.

mfg. abbr. 1. a. Manufacture. b. Manufacturing. 2. Manufactured.

M.F.H. abbr. Master of Fox Hounds.

MFN abbr. Most-favored nation.

MFP abbr. Mean free path.

mfr. abbr. Manufacture; manufacturer.

mg abbr. Milligram.

Mg The symbol for the element magnesium.

MG abbr. 1. Machine gun. 2. Major general. 3. Military government.

mgd abbr. Million gallons per day.

mgmt. abbr. Management.

mgr. abbr. Manager.

Mgr. abbr. Monseigneur; Monsignor.

mgt. abbr. Management.

MGySgt abbr. Master gunnery sergeant.

mh also mH abbr. Millihenry.

MH abbr. 1. Medal of Honor. 2. Mental health.

MHC abbr. Major histocompatibility complex.

MHD abbr. Magnetohydrodynamic.

M.H.L. abbr. Master of Hebrew Literature.

mho (mō) n. pl. mhos. A siemens. [Backward spelling of OHM.]

MHW abbr. Mean high water.

MHz abbr. Megahertz.

mi (mē) n. Music. The third tone of the diatonic scale in solfeggio. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin. See GAMUT.]

Mi abbr. Bible. Micah.

MI abbr. 1. Michigan. 2. Military intelligence. 3. Myocardial infarction.

mi. abbr. 1. Mile. 2. Mill.

MIA (ēm'ī-ā') n. pl. MIA's also MIAs. A member of the armed services who is reported missing following a combat mission and whose status as to injury, capture, or death is unknown. [m(issing) i(n) a(ction).]

Mi-am-i¹ (mī-ām'ē, -ām'ə) n. pl. Miami or Mi-am-is. 1. a. A Native American people originally of the Green Bay area of Wisconsin, with various groups later inhabiting parts of southern Michigan and northern Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. Present-day populations are in northern Indiana and northeast Oklahoma. b. A member of this people. 2. The variety of Illinois spoken by the Miami.

Mi-am-i² (mī-ām'ē, -ām'ə) A city of southeast Florida on Biscayne Bay south of Fort Lauderdale. Settled in the 1870's near the site of a fort built in 1836, it expanded greatly during the land boom of the 1920's and again after World War II. Today it is an important resort and cruise center for the Caribbean. Population, 358,548.

Miami Beach (mī-ām'ē bēch) A city of southeast Florida across from Miami on an island between Biscayne Bay and the Atlantic Ocean. It was long famous for its gold coast strip of fashionable hotels, palatial estates, and recreational facilities. Population, 92,639.

Miami River or Great Miami River (mī-ām'ē rīv'ər) A river rising in western Ohio and flowing about 257 km (160 mi) generally southwest to the Ohio River at the Indiana border.

Mi-am-is-burg (mī-ām'ēz-bûrg') A city of southwest Ohio south of Dayton. It is an industrial center. Population, 17,834.

Miao (myou') also Me-o (mē-ou') n. pl. Miao or Miaos also Meo or Me-os. See Hmong.

Miao-Yao (myou' you') n. A small group of languages of uncertain affinity, including Hmong and Yao, spoken in southern China, northern Laos, Thailand, and Vietnam.

mi-as-ma (mī-āz'mə, mē-) n. pl. mi-as-mas or mi-as-ma-ta (-mə-tə). 1. A noxious atmosphere or influence: "The family affection, the family expectations, seemed to permeate the atmosphere... like a coiling miasma” (Louis Auchincloss).

2. a. A poisonous atmosphere formerly thought to rise from swamps and putrid matter and cause disease. b. A thick, vaporous atmosphere or emanation: wreathed in a miasma of cigarette smoke. [Greek, pollution, stain, from miainein, to pollute.] —mi-as’mal, mi’as-mat’ic (mī’əz-măt’ik) , mi-as’mic (-mīk) adj.

Mic abbr. Bible. Micah.

mi-ca (mī’kə) n. Any of a group of chemically and physically related aluminum silicate minerals, common in igneous and metamorphic rocks, characteristically splitting into flexible sheets used in insulation and electrical equipment. [Latin, grain (perhaps influenced by Latin micāre, to flash).] —mi-ca’ceous (-kā’shəs) adj.

Mi-cah (mī’kə) also Mi-che-as (mī-kē’əs) n. Bible. 1. A Hebrew prophet of the eighth century B.C. 2. Abbr. Mi, Mic A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

Mic-co-su-kee (mīk’ə-sōō’kē) n. Variant of Mikasuki.

mice (mīs) n. Plural of mouse.

mi-celle (mī-sĕl’) n. 1. A submicroscopic aggregation of molecules, as a droplet in a colloidal system. 2. An organic particle of colloidal size found in coal. 3. A coherent strand or structure in natural or synthetic fibers. 4. A submicroscopic structural unit of protoplasm, composed of a cluster of molecules. [New Latin mīcella, from Latin mīca, grain.] —mi-cel’lar (-sĕl’ər) adj.

Mich. abbr. Michigan.

Mi-chael (mī’kəl) n. The guardian archangel of the Jews in the Old Testament.

Mi-chael I (mī’kəl), Born 1921. King of Romania (1927-1930 and 1940-1947).

He was forced to abdicate in 1947 by the newly formed Communist government.

Mich-ael-mas (mīk’əl-məs) n. 1. A Christian feast observed in honor of the archangel Michael. 2. September 29, the day on which this feast is observed.

[Middle English mychelmesse, from Old English (Sanct) Michaeles mæsse, (Saint) Michael’s mass : Michaeles, genitive of Michael, the archangel Michael + mæsse, Mass; see MASS.]

Michaelmas daisy (mīk’əl-məs dā’zē) n. Any of several North American species of asters that have leafy stems and flower in the fall.

Mi-che-as (mī-kē’əs) n. Bible. Variant of Micah.

Mi-chel (mĕ’kĕl), Hartmut. Born 1948. German biochemist. He shared a 1988 Nobel Prize for determining the structure of complex proteins that are essential to photosynthesis.

Mi-chel-an-ge-lo Buo-nar-ro-ti (mī’kəl-ăn’jə-lō’ bwôn’ə-rô’tē, mīk’əl-, mĕ’kĕl-ăn’jĕ-lô), 1475-1564. Italian sculptor, painter, architect, and poet who created some of the greatest works of art of all time, including the marble sculpture David (1501), the paintings on the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel (1508-1512), and the plans for Saint Peter’s Church in Rome.

Mi·che·let (mēsh-ə-lā', mēsh-lā'), Jules. 1798-1874. French historian noted for his lively 17-volume Histoire de France (1833-1867).

Mi·chel·son (mī'kəl-sən), Albert Abraham. 1852-1931. German-born American physicist who with Edward Morley disproved the existence of ether, the hypothetical medium of electromagnetic waves. He won a 1907 Nobel Prize for his spectroscopic and metrological investigations.

Mich·e·ner (mīch'ə-nər, mīch'nər), James Albert. Born 1907. American writer of historical novels, such as Tales of the South Pacific (1947), for which he won a Pulitzer Prize, and The Source (1965).

Mich·i·gan (mīsh'i-gən) Abbr. MI, Mich. A state of the north-central United States. It was admitted as the 26th state in 1837. French explorers first visited the area in 1618, and the French retained nominal control until the end of the French and Indian Wars (1763), when the region passed to Great Britain. It was ceded to the United States in 1783, although the British held some areas until 1796. The Michigan Territory was organized in 1805 with Detroit as its capital. Lansing is the state capital (since 1847) and Detroit the largest city. Population, 9,328,784.
—Mich'i·gan'·der (-gän'dər) adj. & n.

Michigan, Lake. The third largest of the Great Lakes, between Wisconsin and Michigan. It is the only one of the lakes entirely within the United States. Lake Michigan is connected with the Mississippi River by the Illinois Waterway and with Lake Huron through the Straits of Mackinac. The St. Lawrence Seaway links it with the Atlantic Ocean.

Michigan City (mīsh'i-gən sīt'ē) A city of northwest Indiana on Lake Michigan northeast of Gary. It is a manufacturing and resort center. Population, 33,822.

mick (mīk) n. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for an Irish person. [Probably the name Mick, nickname for Michael.]

mick·ey (mīk'ē) n. pl. mick·eys. 1. Informal. A roasted potato. 2. Canadian. A small bottle of liquor, shaped to fit in a pocket. 3. Chiefly British. Self-assurance. [Perhaps from MICK.]

Mick·ey Finn (mīk'ē fīn') n. Slang. An alcoholic beverage that is surreptitiously altered to induce diarrhea or stupefy, render unconscious, or otherwise incapacitate the person who drinks it. [Origin unknown.]

Mickey Mouse (mīk'ē mous) adj. 1. a. Slang. Unimportant; trivial: "It's a Mickey Mouse operation compared to what goes on in Lyons or Paris" (Jack Higgins). b. Slang. Irritatingly petty: the school's Mickey Mouse requirements for graduation. 2. Slang. Intellectually unchallenging; simple: His Mickey Mouse assignments soon bored the students. 3. Music. a. Blandly sentimental. Used of popular compositions and performers. b. Relating to a soundtrack that accompanies the action in an unsubtle, melodramatic way suggestive of music written for animated films. [After the cartoon character Mickey Mouse, created by Walt Disney.]

Mic·kie·wicz (mīts-kyā'vich, -kyě'-), Adam. 1798-1855. Polish romantic poet and patriot whose most famous work is the epic Master Thaddeus (1834).

mick·le (mīk'əl) Scots. adj. Great. — adv. Greatly. [Middle English mikel, from Old English micel, and from Old Norse mikill; see meg- in Appendix.]

Mic·mac (mīk'māk') n. pl. Micmac or Mic·macs. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, and the Gaspé Peninsula of Quebec. b. A member of this people. 2. The Algonquian language of the Micmac.

MICR abbr. Magnetic ink character recognition.

micr- pref. Variant of micro-.

mi·cra (mī'krə) n. A plural of micron.

mi·cro (mī'krō) adj. Basic or small-scale: the economy's performance at the micro level. — n. pl. mi·cros. 1. Computer Science. a. A microcomputer. b. A microprocessor. 2. A microwave oven. [From MICRO-.]

micro- or micr- pref. 1. a. Small: microcircuit. b. Abnormally small: microcephaly. c. Requiring or involving microscopy: microsurgery. 2. One-millionth (10^{-6}): microampere. [Greek mikro-, from mikros, small.]

mi·cro·am·pere (mī'krō-ām'pîr) n. A unit of electric current equal to one millionth of an ampere.

mi·cro·a·nal·y·sis (mī'krō-ə-nāl'ī-sīs) n. pl. mi·cro·a·nal·y·ses (-sēz'). The chemical identification and analysis of extremely small quantities of matter.

—mi'cro-an'a-lyst (-ān'ə-līst) n. —mi'cro-an'a-lyt'ic (-ān'ə-līt'ik), mi'cro-an'a-lyt'i-cal adj.

mi·cro·a·nat·o·my (mī'krō-ə-nāt'ə-mē) n. Histology.

—mi'cro-an'a-tom'i-cal (-ān'ə-tōm'ī-kəl) adj.

mi·cro·bal·ance (mī'krō-bāl'əns) n. A balance designed to weigh very small loads, up to 0.1 gram.

mi·cro·bar (mī'krō-bār') n. A unit of pressure equal to one millionth of a bar.

mic·ro·bar·o·graph (mī'krō-bār'ə-grāf') n. An instrument used to record very small changes in atmospheric pressure.

mi·crobe (mī'krōb') n. A minute life form; a microorganism, especially a bacterium that causes disease. Not in technical use. [French : Greek mikro-, micro- + Greek bios, life; see g^wei- in Appendix.] —mi·cro'bi-al (mī-krō'bē-əl), mi·cro'bic (-krō'bik) adj.

mi·cro·bi·ol·o·gy (mī'krō-bī-ōl'ə-jē) n. The branch of biology that deals with microorganisms and their effects on other living organisms.

—mi'cro-bi'o-log'i-cal (-bī'ə-lōj'ī-kəl), mi'cro-bi'o-log'ic adj.

—mi'cro-bi'o-log'i-cal·ly adv. —mi'cro-bi-ol'o-gist n.

mi·cro·brew·er·y (mī'krō-brōō'ə-rē, -brōōr'ē) n. pl. mi·cro·brew·er·ies. A small brewery, generally producing fewer than 10,000 barrels of beer and ale a year and frequently selling its products on the premises. Also called boutique brewery, brewpub. —mi'cro·brew'er n.

mi·cro·burst (mī'krō-būrst') n. A sudden, violent downdraft of air over a small area. Microbursts are difficult to detect and predict with standard weather instruments and are especially hazardous to airplanes during landing or taking off.

mi·cro·bus (mī'krō-būs') n. pl. mi·cro·bus·es or mi·cro·bus·ses. A station wagon in the shape of a small bus.

mi·cro·cap·sule (mī'krō-kăp'səl, -sōol) n. A small, sometimes microscopic capsule designed to release its contents when broken by pressure, dissolved, or melted.

mi·cro·ceph·a·ly (mī'krō-sĕf'ə-lē) n. pl. mi·cro·ceph·a·lies. Abnormal smallness of the head. —mi'cro·ce·phal'ic (-sə-făl'ik) adj., n.

—mi'cro·ceph'a·lous (-sĕf'ə-ləs) adj.

mi·cro·chem·is·try (mī'krō-kĕm'ī-strē) n. Chemistry that deals with minute quantities of materials, frequently less than one milligram in mass or one milliliter in volume. —mi'cro·chem'i·cal (-i-kəl) adj. —mi'cro·chem'ist n.

mi·cro·chip (mī'krə-chīp') n. Computer Science. See chip¹ (n., sense 4a).

mi·cro·cir·cuit (mī'krō-sûr'kīt) n. An electric circuit consisting of miniaturized components. —mi'cro·cir'cuit·ry (-kī-trē) n.

mi·cro·cir·cu·la·tion (mī'krō-sûr-kyə-lā'shən) n. The flow of blood or lymph through the smallest vessels of the body, as the venules, capillaries, and arterioles. —mi'cro·cir'cu·la·to·ry (-lə-tôr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

mi·cro·cli·mate (mī'krō-klī'mīt) n. The climate of a small, specific place within an area as contrasted with the climate of the entire area.

—mi'cro·cli·mat'ic (-măt'ik) adj. —mi'cro·cli'ma·to·log'ic (-mə-tə-lŏj'ik), mi'cro·cli'ma·to·log'i·cal adj. —mi'cro·cli'ma·tol'o·gy (-tŏl'ə-jē) n.

mi·cro·cline (mī'krō-klīn') n. A mineral of the feldspar group, chiefly KAlSi_3O_8 , used in making glass, porcelain, and enamel. [Greek mikro-, micro- (from the fact that its cleavage angle is not exactly equal to 90°) + Greek klinein, to lean; see CLINE.]

mi·cro·coc·cus (mī'krō-kŏk'əs) n. pl. mi·cro·coc·ci (-kŏk'sī', -kŏk'ī'). A spherical, aerobic, gram-positive bacterium of the genus Micrococcus, usually occurring in irregular clusters. —mi'cro·coc'cal (-kŏk'əl) adj.

mi·cro·com·put·er (mī'krō-kəm-pyōō'tər) n. Computer Science. A very small computer, such as a laptop or personal computer, built around a microprocessor and designed to be used by one person at a time.

mi·cro·cop·y (mī'krō-kŏp'ē) n. pl. mi·cro·cop·ies. A greatly reduced photographic copy, usually reproduced by projection.

mi·cro·cosm (mī'krə-kōz'əm) n. A small, representative system having analogies to a larger system in constitution, configuration, or development: "He sees the auto industry as a microcosm of the U.S. itself" (William J. Hampton). [Middle English microcosme, man as a little world, from Old French, from Late Latin microcosmus, from Greek mikros kosmos: mikros, small + kosmos, world, order.]
—mi'cro·cos'mic (-kōz'mik), mi'cro·cos'mi·cal (-mī-kəl) adj.
—mi'cro·cos'mi·cal·ly adv.

microcosmic salt (mī'krə-kōz'mik sôlt) n. A white crystalline salt of phosphorus, $\text{HNaNH}_4\text{PO}_4 \cdot 4\text{H}_2\text{O}$, used in blowpipe analysis of minerals to test for the presence of certain metals.

mi·cro·crys·tal·line (mī'krō-kris'tə-līn) adj. Having a crystalline structure visible only under a microscope. —mi'cro·crys'tal n.

mi·cro·cyte (mī'krə-sīt') n. An abnormally small red blood cell that is less than five microns in diameter and may occur in certain forms of anemia. [MICRO- + (ERYTHRO)CYTE.] —mi'cro·cyt'ic (-sīt'ik) adj.

mi·cro·den·si·tom·e·ter (mī'krō-dēn'sī-tōm'ī-tər) n. An extremely sensitive densitometer used to detect on a film or photographic plate spectrum lines too faint to be seen by the human eye.

mi·cro·dot (mī'krə-dōt') n. A copy or photograph that has been reduced to an extremely small size for ease of transport and purposes of security.

mi·cro·ec·o·nom·ics (mī'krō-ĕk'ə-nōm'iks, -ĕk'ə-) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of the operations of the components of a national economy, such as individual firms, households, and consumers. —mi'cro·ec'o·nom'ic adj.

mi·cro·e·lec·trode (mī'krō-ĭ-lĕk'trōd') n. A very small electrode, often used to study electrical characteristics of living cells and tissues.

mi·cro·e·lec·tron·ics (mī'krō-ĭ-lĕk-trōn'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The branch of electronics that deals with miniature components.
—mi'cro·e·lec·tron'ic adj.

mi·cro·el·e·ment (mī'krō-ĕl'ə-mənt) n. A trace element.

mi·cro·en·cap·su·late (mī'krō-ĕn-kăp'sə-lāt') v. tr.

mi·cro·en·cap·su·lat·ed, mi·cro·en·cap·su·lat·ing, mi·cro·en·cap·su·lates. To enclose in microcapsules. —mi'cro·en·cap'su·la'tion n.

mi·cro·en·vi·ron·ment (mī'krō-ĕn-vī'rən-mənt, -vī'ərən-) n. The environment of a very small, specific area.

mi·cro·ev·o·lu·tion (mī'krō-ĕv'ə-lōō'shən, -ĕ'və-) n. Evolution resulting from a succession of relatively small genetic variations that often cause the formation of new subspecies. —mi'cro·ev'o·lu'tion·ar'y adj.

mi·cro·far·ad (mī'krō-făr'əd, -ăd) n. A unit of capacitance equal to one millionth (10^{-6}) of a farad.

mi·cro·fiche (mī'krō-fĕsh') n. pl. microfiche or mi·cro·fich·es. A card or sheet of microfilm capable of accommodating and preserving a considerable number of pages, as of printed text, in reduced form. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: microfiche data; a microfiche collection. [French : Greek mikro-, micro- + fiche, peg, slip of paper, index card (from Old French, peg, from fichier, to drive in, fasten, from Vulgar Latin fīgicāre*, from Latin fīgere); see dhīg^w- in Appendix.]

mi-cro-fil-a-ment (mī'krō-fīl'ə-mənt) n. Any of the minute fibers located throughout the cytoplasm of cells, composed of actin and functioning primarily in maintaining the structural integrity of a cell. — mi'cro-fil'a-men'tous (-mən'təs) adj.

mi-cro-fi-lar-i-a (mī'krə-fə-lâr'ē-ə) n. pl. mi-cro-fi-lar-i-ae (-ē-ē'). The minute larval form of a filarial worm. — mi'cro-fi-lar'i-al adj.

mi-cro-film (mī'krə-fīlm') n. 1. A film on which printed materials are photographed at greatly reduced size for ease of storage. 2. A reproduction on this kind of film. — v. tr. mi-cro-filmed, mi-cro-film-ing, mi-cro-films. To reproduce (documents, for example) on microfilm.

mi-cro-flop-py (mī'krō-flŏp'ē) n. pl. mi-cro-flop-pies. Computer Science. A computer disk 32 inches in diameter and encased in a hard protective covering.

mi-cro-form (mī'krə-fŏrm') n. An arrangement of images reduced in size, as on microfilm or microfiche.

mi-cro-fos-sil (mī'krō-fŏs'əl) n. A microscopic fossil, as of a pollen grain or unicellular organism.

mi-cro-gam-ete (mī'krō-gām'ēt', -gə-mēt') n. The smaller of a pair of conjugating gametes, usually the male, in an organism that reproduces by heterogamy.

mi-cro-ga-me-to-cyte (mī'krō-gə-mē'tə-sīt') n. A gametocyte that gives rise to microgametes.

mi-cro-graph (mī'krə-grăf') n. 1. A drawing or photographic reproduction of an object as viewed through a microscope. 2. An instrument used to make tiny writing or engraving. — mi'cro-graph'ic adj. — mi-crog'ra-phy (mī-krŏg'rə-fē) n.

mi-cro-hab-i-tat (mī'krō-hăb'ĭ-tăt') n. A very small, specialized habitat, such as a clump of grass or a space between rocks.

mi-cro-in-jec-tion (mī'krō-ĭn-jĕk'shən) n. Injection of minute amounts of a substance into a microscopic structure, such as a single cell. — mi'cro-in-ject' (-jĕkt') v.

mi-cro-in-struc-tion (mī'krō-ĭn-strŭk'shən) n. Computer Science. A small, specific instruction, used in series to make up a high-level machine instruction.

mi-cro-ma-nip-u-la-tor (mī'krō-mə-nĭp'yə-lā'tər) n. A device for manipulating minute instruments and needles under a microscope in order to perform delicate procedures, such as microsurgery. — mi'cro-ma-nip'u-la'tion n. — mi'cro-ma-nip'u-la'tive adj.

mi·cro·mere (mī'krō-mîr') n. A very small blastomere. [MICRO- + (BLASTO)MERE.]

mi·cro·me·te·or·ite (mī'krō-mē'tē-ə-rīt') n. A tiny particle of meteoric dust, especially one of many that fall to the surface of the earth or moon.

mi·cro·me·te·or·oid (mī'krō-mē'tē-ə-roid') n. A very small, often dust-sized meteoroid.

mi·cro·me·te·or·ol·o·gy (mī'krō-mē'tē-ə-rōl'ə-jē) n. The study of weather conditions in a very small area, such as the area immediately around the trunk of a tree, that can affect meteorological conditions.

—mi'cro·me'te·or'o·log'i·cal (-ôr'ə-lŏj'ī-kəl, -ər-ə-) adj.

—mi'cro·me'te·or·ol'o·gist n.

mi·crom·e·ter¹ (mī-krŏm'ī-tər) n. A device for measuring very small distances, objects, or angles, especially one based on the rotation of a finely threaded screw, as in relation to a microscope.

mi·crom·e·ter² (mī'krō-mē'tər) n. A unit of length equal to one thousandth (10^{-3}) of a millimeter or one millionth (10^{-6}) of a meter.

mi·crom·e·try (mī-krŏm'ī-trē) n. Measurement of minute objects with a micrometer. —mi'cro·met'ric (mī'krō-mēt'rik), mi'cro·met'ri·cal (-rī-kəl) adj. —mi'cro·met'ri·cal·ly adv.

mi·cro·min·i·a·tur·ize (mī'krō-mĭn'ē-chə-rīz', -mĭn'ə-) v. tr.

mi·cro·min·i·a·tur·ized, mi·cro·min·i·a·tur·iz·ing, mi·cro·min·i·a·tur·iz·es.
To construct (devices) on an extremely small scale. Used especially of electronic circuitry.

mi·cro·mole (mī'krō-mōl') n. One millionth (10^{-6}) of a mole.

mi·cron also mi·kron (mī'krŏn') n. pl. mi·crons or mi·cra (-krə) also mi·krons or mi·kra (-krə). A unit of length equal to one millionth (10^{-6}) of a meter. No longer in technical use. [Greek mikron, neuter of mikros, small.]

Mi·cro·ne·si·a (mī'krō-nē'zhə, -shə) A division of Oceania in the western Pacific Ocean comprising the islands east of the Philippines and north of the equator. It includes the Caroline, Marshall, Mariana, and Gilbert islands.

Micronesia, Federated States of. A group of associated islands in the Caroline Islands of the western Pacific Ocean. They were administered as part of the U.S. Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands from 1947 to 1986 and are now self-governing under a compact of free association with the United States. Palikir, on Pohnpei (Ponape) Island, is the capital. Population, 73,160.

Mi·cro·ne·sian (mī'krə-nē'zhən, -shən) adj. Of or relating to Micronesia or its peoples, languages, or cultures. — n. 1. A member of any of the peoples inhabiting Micronesia. 2. A subfamily of the Austronesian language family that includes the languages of Micronesia.

mi·cron·ize (mī'krə-nīz') *v. tr. mi·cron·ized, mi·cron·iz·ing, mi·cron·iz·es.
To reduce to particles that are only a few microns in diameter.*

mi·cro·nu·cle·us (mī'krō-nōō'klē-əs, -nyōō'-) n. pl. mi·cro·nu·cle·i (-klē-ī') or mi·cro·nu·cle·us·es. The smaller of two nuclei in ciliate protozoans that contains genetic material and functions in reproduction. —mi'cro·nu'cle·ar adj.

mi·cro·nu·tri·ent (mī'krō-nōō'trē-ənt, -nyōō'-) n. A substance, such as a vitamin or mineral, that is essential in minute amounts for the proper growth and metabolism of a living organism.

mi·cro·or·gan·ism (mī'krō-ōr'gə-nīz'əm) n. An organism of microscopic or submicroscopic size, especially a bacterium or protozoan.

mi·cro·pa·le·on·tol·o·gy (mī'krō-pā'lē-ōn-tōl'ə-jē, -ən-) n. The branch of paleontology that deals with microfossils. —mi'cro·pa'le·on'to·log'ic (-ōn'tl-ōj'ik), mi'cro·pa'le·on'to·log'i·cal adj. —mi'cro·pa'le·on·tol'o·gist n.

mi·cro·phage (mī'krə-fāj') n. A small phagocyte. —mi'cro·phag'ic adj.

mi·cro·phone (mī'krə-fōn') n. An instrument that converts sound waves into an electric current, usually fed into an amplifier, a recorder, or a broadcast transmitter. —mi'cro·phon'ic (-fōn'ik) adj.

mi·cro·pho·to·graph (mī'krō-fō'tə-grāf') n. 1. A photograph requiring magnification for viewing. 2. A photograph on microfilm. 3. See photomicrograph. —mi'cro·pho'to·graph'ic adj. —mi'cro·pho·tog'ra·pher (-fə-tōg'rə-fər) n. —mi'cro·pho·tog'ra·phy (-rə-fē) n.

mi·cro·phys·ics (mī'krō-fīz'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The physics of molecular, atomic, nuclear, and subnuclear systems. —mi'cro·phys'i·cal (-fīz'ī-kəl) adj. —mi'cro·phys'i·cal·ly adv. —mi'cro·phys'i·cist (-fīz'ī-sīst) n.

mi·cro·phyte (mī'krə-fīt') n. A plant of microscopic size. —mi'cro·phyt'ic (-fīt'ik) adj.

mi·cro·pi·pette (mī'krō-pī-pět') n. 1. A very small pipette used in microinjection. 2. A pipette used to measure very small volumes of liquids.

mi·cro·print (mī'krə-prīnt') n. The printed or positive reproduction of a microphotograph.

mi·cro·proc·es·sor (mī'krō-prōs'ēs-ər) n. Computer Science. An integrated circuit that contains the entire central processing unit of a computer on a single chip.

mi·cro·pro·gram·ming (mī'krō-prō'grām-īng, -grə-mīng) n. Computer Science. A method of operating the control unit of a computer by breaking down the control instructions into a sequence of small steps.

mi·cro·pub·lish·ing (mī'krō-pūb'li-shīng) n. Publishing by microform. —mi'cro·pub'lish·er n.

mi·cro·pyle (mī'krə-pīl') n. 1. Botany. A minute opening in the ovule of a seed plant through which the pollen tube usually enters. 2. Zoology. A pore in the membrane covering the ovum of some animals through which a spermatozoon can enter. [MICRO- + Greek pulē, gate.] —mi'cro·py'lar adj.

mi·cro·ra·di·o·graph (mī'krō-rā'dē-ō-grāf') n. An enlarged x-ray photograph, used to study small details. —mi'cro·ra'di·og'ra·phy (-ōg'rə-fē) n.

mi·cro·read·er (mī'krō-rē'dər) n. A device for reading materials in microform, such as microfilm and microfiche.

mi·cro·scope (mī'krə-skōp') n. 1. An optical instrument that uses a lens or a combination of lenses to produce magnified images of small objects, especially of objects too small to be seen by the unaided eye. 2. An instrument, such as an electron microscope, that uses electronic or other processes to magnify objects.

mi·cro·scop·ic (mī'krə-sköp'ik) also mi·cro·scop·i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj. 1. a. Too small to be seen by the unaided eye but large enough to be studied under a microscope. b. Of, relating to, or concerned with a microscope. 2. Exceedingly small; minute: "The activities of men... were reduced to a microscopic scale" (John Hersey). 3. Characterized by or done with extreme attention to detail: a microscopic investigation. —mi'cro·scop'i·cal·ly adv.

Mi·cro·sco·pi·um (mī'krə-skōp'ē-əm) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere. [New Latin Mīcroscopium, microscope, Microscopium : MICRO- + scopium, -scope.]

mi·cros·co·py (mī-krōs'kə-pē) n. pl. mi·cros·co·pies. 1. a. The study of microscopes. b. The use of microscopes. 2. Investigation employing a microscope. —mi·cros'co·pist n.

mi·cro·seism (mī'krə-sī'zəm) n. A faint earth tremor caused by natural phenomena, such as winds and strong ocean waves. —mi'cro·seis'mic (-sīz'mik, -sīs'-) adj.

mi·cro·some (mī'krə-sōm') n. A small particle in the cytoplasm of a cell, typically consisting of fragmented endoplasmic reticulum to which ribosomes are attached. —mi'cro·so'mal (-sō'məl), mi'cro·so'mic (-sō'mik) adj.

mi·cro·spo·ran·gi·um (mī'krō-spə-rānjē-əm) n. pl. mi·cro·spo·ran·gi·a (-jē-ə). Botany. A structure in which microspores are formed.

—mi'cro·spo·ran'gi·ate (-jē-īt) adj.

mi·cro·spore (mī'krə-spōr', -spōr') n. Botany. The smaller of two types of spores that give rise to a male gametophyte. —mi'cro·spo'ric, mi'cro·spo'rous (mī'krə-spōr'əs, -spōr'-, mī-krōs'pər-əs) adj.

microspore mother cell (mī'krə-spōr' mūth'ər sĕl) n. Botany. A cell that undergoes meiosis to produce four microspores. Also called microsporocyte mi·cro·spo·ro·cyte (mī'krə-spōr'ə-sīt', -spōr'-) n. Botany. See microspore mother cell.

mi·cro·spo·ro·phyll (mī'krə-spōr'ə-fīl', -spōr'-) n. Botany. A leaflike structure that bears microsporangia.

mi·cro·state (mī'krō-stāt') n. An independent country that is very small in area and population. Also called ministate mi·cro·struc·ture (mī'krō-strūk'chər) n. The structure of an organism or object as revealed through microscopic examination.

mi·cro·sur·ger·y (mī'krō-sûr'jə-rē) n. pl. mi·cro·sur·ger·ies. Surgery on minute body structures or cells performed with the aid of a microscope and other specialized instruments, such as a micromanipulator. —mi'cro-sur'gi-cal (-jī-kəl) adj.

mi·cro·teach·ing (mī'krə-tē'chīng) n. A method of practice teaching in which a videotape of a small segment of a student's classroom teaching is made and later evaluated.

mi·cro·tome (mī'krə-tōm') n. An instrument used to cut a specimen, as of organic tissue, into thin sections for microscopic examination.

mi·crot·o·my (mī-krōt'ə-mē) n. pl. mi·crot·o·mies. The preparation of specimens with a microtome. —mi'cro-tom'ic (mī'krə-tōm'ik) adj.

mi·cro·tone (mī'krə-tōn') n. Music. An interval smaller than a semitone.

—mi'cro-ton'al (-tō'nəl) adj. —mi'cro-to-nal'i·ty (-tō-nəl'ī-tē) n.

—mi'cro-ton'al·ly adv.

mi·cro·tu·bule (mī'krō-tōō'byōōl, -tyōō-) n. Any of the proteinaceous cylindrical hollow structures that are distributed throughout the cytoplasm of eukaryotic cells, providing structural support and assisting in cellular locomotion and transport. —mi'cro-tu'bu·lar adj.

mi·cro·vas·cu·la·ture (mī'krō-vās'kyə-lə-choōr', -chər) n. The portion of the circulatory system composed of the smallest vessels, such as the capillaries, arterioles, and venules. —mi'cro-vas'cu·lar (-kyə-lər) adj.

mi·cro·vil·lus (mī'krō-vīl'əs) n. pl. mi·cro·vil·li (-vīl'ī'). Any of the minute hairlike structures projecting from the surface of certain types of epithelial cells, especially those of the small intestine. —mi'cro-vil'lar (-lər) adj.

mi·cro·volt (mī'krə-vōlt') n. A unit of electric potential equal to one millionth (10^{-6}) of a volt.

mi·cro·watt (mī'krō-wōt') n. A unit of power equal to one millionth (10^{-6}) of a watt.

mi·cro·wave (mī'krə-wāv', -krō-) n. 1. A high-frequency electromagnetic wave, one millimeter to one meter in wavelength, intermediate between infrared and short-wave radio wavelengths. 2. Informal. A microwave oven. — v. tr.

mi·cro·waved, mi·cro·wav·ing, mi·cro·waves. To cook or heat (food) in a microwave oven. —mi'cro-wav'a·ble, mi'cro-wave'a·ble adj.

microwave oven (mī'krə-wāv' ūv'ən) n. An oven in which microwaves cook the food.

mic·tu·rate (mīk'chə-rāt', mīk'tə-) v. intr. mic·tu·rat·ed, mic·tu·rat·ing, mic·tu·rates. To urinate. [From Latin micturīre, to want to urinate, desiderative of mēiere, to urinate. See meigh- in Appendix.] —mic'tu·ri'tion (-rīsh'ən) n.

mid¹ (mĭd) adj. 1. Middle; central. 2. Being the part in the middle or center: in the mid Pacific. 3. Linguistics. Of, relating to, or being a vowel produced with the tongue in a position approximately intermediate between high and low, as the vowel in but. [Middle English, from Old English midd. See medhyo- in Appendix.]

mid² (mĭd) prep. Surrounded by; amid: mid smoke and flame. [Middle English. See MIDWIFE.]

mid. abbr. Middle.

mid- pref. Middle: midsummer. [Middle English, from mid, middle. See MID¹.]

USAGE NOTE: Many compounds other than those entered here may be formed with mid-. In forming compounds, mid- is normally joined to the following word or element without a space or hyphen: midpoint. However, if the second element begins with a capital letter, it is always separated with a hyphen: mid-May. It is always acceptable to separate the elements with a hyphen to prevent possible confusion with another form, as, for example, to distinguish mid-den (the middle of a den) from the word midden. Note that the adjective *mid*¹ is a separate word, though, as is the case with any adjective, it may be joined to another word with a hyphen when used as a unit modifier: in the mid Pacific but a mid-Pacific island.

mid-air (mĭd'âr') n. 1. A point or region in the air. 2. Informal. A collision involving two or more aircraft while fully airborne. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a midair hijacking; a midair emergency.

Mi-das (mĭ'dæs) n. The fabled king of Phrygia to whom Dionysus gave the power of turning to gold all that he touched. [Latin Midās, from Greek.]

Midas touch (mĭ'dæs tŭch) n. The ability to make, manage, and keep huge amounts of money: "Today's market has convinced dozens of kids barely out of college that they've got the Midas touch" (Business Week). [After MIDAS.]

Mid-At-lan-tic States (mĭd'ăt-lăn'tik stāts) See Middle Atlantic States.

mid-brain (mĭd'brān') n. See mesencephalon.

mid-course (mĭd'kōrs', -kōrs') n. 1. The part of a missile flight between the end of the launching phase and reentry, during which corrective maneuvers are made. 2. The middle point of a course or a course of action. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a midcourse personnel shakeup; a midcourse change in policy.

mid-cult (mĭd'kŭlt') n. A form of intellectual and artistic culture that has qualities of high culture and mass culture without being either. [MID(DLEBROW) + CULT(URE).]

mid-day (mĭd'dā') n. The middle of the day; noon. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a midday snack; midday meals.

mid·den (mĭd'ŋ) n. 1. A dunghill or refuse heap. 2. A kitchen midden. [Middle English midding, of Scandinavian origin.]

mid·dle (mĭd'l) adj. Abbr. mid. 1. Equally distant from extremes or limits; central: the middle point on a line. 2. Being at neither one extreme nor the other; intermediate. 3. a. Intervening between an earlier and a later period of time; being an intermediate part of a sequence or series: the middle years. b. Middle. Geology. Of or relating to a division of geologic time between an earlier and a later division: the Middle Paleozoic. 4. Middle. Of or relating to a stage in the development of a language or literature between earlier and later stages: Middle Swedish. 5. Grammar. Of a verb form or voice in which the subject both performs and is affected by the action specified. — n. 1. An area or a point equidistant between extremes; a center: the middle of a circle. 2. Something intermediate between extremes; a mean. 3. The interior portion: the middle of a chain. 4. The middle part of the human body; the waist. 5. Logic. A middle term. — v. tr.

mid·dled, mid·dling, mid·dles. 1. To place in the middle. 2. Nautical. To fold in the middle: middle the sail. [Middle English middel, from Old English. See medhyo- in Appendix.]

middle age (mĭd'l āj) n. The time of human life between youth and old age, usually reckoned as the years between 40 and 60. Also called midlife mid·dle·aged (mĭd'l-ājd') adj. Of or relating to middle age: middle-aged parents; middle-aged interests.

Middle Ages (mĭd'l ā'jĭz) pl.n. The period in European history between antiquity and the Renaissance, often dated from A.D. 476 to 1453.

Middle A·mer·i·ca¹ (mĭd'l ə-mēr'ĭ-kə) A region of southern North America comprising Mexico, Central America, and sometimes the West Indies. —Middle A·mer'·i·can adj. & n.

Middle A·mer·i·ca² (mĭd'l ə-mēr'ĭ-kə) n. 1. That part of the U.S. middle class thought of as being average in income and education and moderately conservative in values and attitudes. 2. The American heartland thought of as being made up of small towns, small cities, and suburbs.

Middle At·lan·tic States (mĭd'l āt-lăn'tĭk stāts) also Mid·At·lan·tic States (mĭd'āt-lăn'tĭk) The U.S. states of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and usually Delaware and Maryland.

Mid·dle·bor·ough or Mid·dle·bor·o (mĭd'l-bûr'ō, -bûr'ō) A town of southeast Massachusetts north of New Bedford. It is a processing and manufacturing center. Population, 16,404.

mid·dle·brow (mĭd'l-brou') n. Informal. One who is somewhat cultured; one who is neither highbrow nor lowbrow. [MIDDLE + (HIGH)BROW and (LOW)BROW.] —mid'dle·brow' adj.

Mid·dle·burg Heights (mĭd'l-bûrg' hĭts) A city of northeast Ohio, a suburb of Cleveland. Population, 16,218.

middle C (mɪd'ɪ sē') n. Music. The tone represented by a note on the first ledger line below a treble clef or the first ledger line above a bass clef. It is the first C below international pitch.

middle class (mɪd'ɪ klās) n. The members of society occupying a socioeconomic position intermediate between those of the lower working classes and the wealthy.

middle distance (mɪd'ɪ dɪs'təns) n. 1. The area between the foreground and background in a painting, drawing, or photograph. Also called middle ground
2. Sports. A division of competition in racing with events usually ranging from 400 meters to 1,500 meters or from 440 yards to 1 mile.

Middle Dutch (mɪd'ɪ dʊch) n. The Dutch language from the middle of the 12th through the 15th century.

middle ear (mɪd'ɪ ɪr) n. The space between the eardrum and the inner ear that contains the three auditory ossicles, which convey vibrations through the oval window to the cochlea. Also called tympanum

Middle East also Mid-east (mɪd-ēst') An area comprising the countries of southwest Asia and northeast Africa. In the 20th century the region has been the continuing scene of political and economic turmoil. —Middle East'ern adj.
—Middle East'ern-er n.

Middle English (mɪd'ɪ ɪŋ'ɡlɪʃ) n. Abbr. ME, M.E. The English language from about 1100 to 1500.

middle ground (mɪd'ɪ ɡraʊnd) n. 1. See middle distance (n., sense 1).
2. A point of view midway between extremes: “the middle ground between news and amusement” (Roderick Anscombe).

Middle High German (mɪd'ɪ hī jûr'mən) n. High German from the 11th through the 15th century.

mid-dle-in-come (mɪd'ɪ-ɪn'kʊm) adj. Of or relating to people or groups whose income falls in the middle of the range for an overall population.

Middle Irish (mɪd'ɪ ɪ'rɪʃ) n. Irish from the 10th through the 13th century.

middle lamella (mɪd'ɪ lə-měl'ə) n. Botany. The pectin-rich intercellular material cementing together the primary walls of adjacent plant cells.

Middle Loup (mɪd'ɪ loʊp) A river rising in central Nebraska and flowing about 354 km (220 mi) east and southeast to join the North Loup and South Loup rivers and form the Loup River.

Middle Low German (mɪd'ɪ lō jûr'mən) n. Low German from the middle of the 13th through the 15th century.

mid-dle-man (mɪd'ɪ-mǎn') n. 1. A trader who buys from producers and sells to retailers or consumers. 2. An intermediary; a go-between.

middle management (mɪd'ɪ mǎn'ɪj-mənt) n. A group of persons occupying managerial positions intermediate between lower and higher executives.

—middle manager n.

mid-dle-most (mĭd'1-mōst') adj. Midmost.

mid-dle-of-the-road (mĭd'1-əv-thə-rōd') adj. 1. Pursuing a course of action midway between extremes, especially following a course in politics that is neither liberal nor conservative. 2. Abbr. MOR Of, relating to, or being a type of entertainment, especially popular music, that appeals to a wide audience.

—mid/dle-of-the-road'er n.

Middle Pal-i-sade (mĭd'1 pāl'ī-sād') A mountain, 4,273.7 m (14,012 ft) high, of the Sierra Nevada in east-central California.

Middle River (mĭd'1 rĭv'ər) A community of northern Maryland, an industrial suburb of Baltimore. Population, 24,616.

Mid-dles-brough (mĭd'1lz-brə) A borough of northeast England at the mouth of the Tees River. It has iron, steel, and chemical works. Population, 150,600.

middle school (mĭd'1 skōōl) n. A school at a level between elementary and high school, typically including grades five through eight.

middle term (mĭd'1 tūrm) n. Abbr. M Logic. The term in a syllogism presented in both premises but not appearing in the conclusion.

Mid-dle-ton (mĭd'1-tən), Thomas. 1570?-1627. English playwright whose comedies, written between 1604 and 1611, include A Trick to Catch the Old One and A Chaste Maid in Cheapside.

Mid-dle-town (mĭd'1-toun') 1. A city of central Connecticut on the Connecticut River south of Hartford. It is an industrial center and the seat of Wesleyan University (chartered 1831). Population, 42,762. 2. A community of eastern New Jersey northwest of Red Bank. It was settled in 1665. Population, 62,298. 3. A city of southeast New York west-southwest of Newburgh. A summer resort, it is also an industrial center. Population, 24,160. 4. A city of southwest Ohio north-northeast of Cincinnati. Founded in 1802, it has a steel industry. Population, 46,022. 5. A town of southeast Rhode Island on Narragansett Bay north of Newport. It is a summer resort. Population, 19,460.

mid-dle-weight (mĭd'1-wāt') n. Sports. 1. A professional boxer weighing between 147 and 160 pounds (approximately 66.5-72.5 kilograms), heavier than a welterweight and lighter than a light heavyweight. 2. A contestant in various other sports in a similar weight class.

Middle Welsh (mĭd'1 wēlsh) n. Welsh from the 12th through the 15th century.

Middle West (mĭd'1 wĕst) See Midwest. —Middle West'ern adj.
—Middle West'ern-er n.

mid-dling (mĭd'1lĭng, -lĭn) adj. 1. Of medium size, position, or quality.

2. Mediocre. See Synonyms at average. — n. 1. Often middlings. Chiefly Southern U.S. a. Pork or bacon cut from between the ham and shoulder of a pig. b. Salt pork. Also called middling meat 2. middlings. Any of various products, such as partially refined petroleum or ore, that are intermediate in quality, size, price, or grade. 3. middlings. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Coarsely ground wheat mixed with bran. — adv. Informal. Fairly; moderately: “a middling nice cake” (Hatfield MA Valley Advocate). [Probably Middle English midlin : mid, mid; see MID¹ + -ling, having a quality; see *-LING*¹.] — mid’dling-ly adv.

mid-dy (mɪd’ē) n. pl. mid-dies. 1. Informal. A midshipman. 2. A middy blouse.

middy blouse (mɪd’ē blous) n. A woman’s or child’s loose blouse with a sailor collar.

Mid-east (mɪd-ēst’) See Middle East. — Mid-east’ern adj. — Mid-east-’ern-er n.

mid-field (mɪd’fēld’) n. Sports. 1. The section of a playing field midway between goals. 2. Players whose usual positions are in the midfield. — mid’field’er n.

Mid-gard (mɪd’gärd’) n. The part of the world inhabited by people, imagined as a fortress encircled by a huge serpent and built by the Norse gods around the middle region of the universe. [Old Norse Midhgardhr. See medhyo- in Appendix.]

midge (mɪj) n. 1. Any of various gnatlike flies of the family Chironomidae, found worldwide and frequently occurring in swarms near ponds and lakes. 2. Any of various similar dipteran insects, such as the biting midges of the family Ceratopogonidae. 3. A little person. [Middle English, from Old English mycg.]

midg-et (mɪj’ɪt) n. 1. Offensive. An extremely little person who is otherwise normally proportioned. 2. A small or miniature version of something. 3. A class of small objects, as a class of very small sailboats or racing cars. — adj.

1. Miniature; diminutive. 2. Belonging to a type or class much smaller than what is considered standard: a midget automobile. [Diminutive of MIDGE.]

mid-gut (mɪd’güt’) n. 1. The middle section of the digestive tract in a vertebrate embryo from which the ileum, jejunum, and portions of the duodenum and colon develop. Also called mesenteron 2. The middle portion of the digestive tract of certain invertebrates, such as arthropods, lined with an enzyme-secreting tissue and serving as the main site of digestion and absorption.

mid-i (mɪd’ē) n. pl. mid-is. A skirt or coat of mid-calf length. [Short for midiskirt : MID¹ + (MIN)ISKIRT.]

Mi-di (mē-dē’) The south of France.

MIDI (mɪd’ē) n. Computer Science. 1. An agreed-upon structure for representing sounds in form that a computer can interpret. 2. Software that conforms to this structure, used for composing and editing electronic music. [M(usical) I(nstrument) D(igital) I(nterface).]

Mid-i-an-ite (mɪd’ē-ə-nīt’) n. A member of an ancient tribe of Midian in northwest Arabia. — Mid’i-an-ite’ adj.

mid·i·ron (mĭd'ī'ərn) n. Sports. An iron golf club that has more loft than a driver and less than a three iron, used for medium fairway shots and long approach shots; a two iron.

mid·land (mĭd'lənd) n. The middle or interior part of a country or region. — adj. Of or in a midland.

Mid·land (mĭd'lənd) 1. A city of central Michigan west of Bay City. Chemical industries are important to its economy. Population, 38,053. 2. A city of west-central Texas west-southwest of Abilene. It is an industrial center in a cattle-ranching area. Population, 89,443.

Mid·lands (mĭd'ləndz) A region of central England. It roughly corresponds with the Anglo-Saxon kingdom of Mercia and is today a highly industrialized area.

mid·lev·el (mĭd'lěv'əl) n. The middle stage or level, as in a series, course of action, or career. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: midlevel managers; a midlevel crisis team.

mid·life (mĭd'līf') n. pl. mid·lives (-līvz'). See middle age. — adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of middle age: “a midlife lull when it was feared he was finished” (Curtis Wilkie).

midlife crisis (mĭd'līf' krī'sīs) n. A period of psychological doubt and anxiety that some people experience in middle age.

mid·line (mĭd'līn') n. A medial line, especially the medial line or plane of the body.

Mid·lo·thi·an (mĭd-lō'thē-ən) A region of southeast Scotland on the Firth of Forth surrounding Edinburgh. “The Heart of Midlothian” was a popular name for the former Tolbooth Prison in Edinburgh and was used by Sir Walter Scott as the title of his 1818 novel.

mid·morn·ing (mĭd'môr'nĭng) n. The middle of the morning. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: midmorning coffee; a midmorning appointment.

mid·most (mĭd'mōst') adj. 1. Situated in the very middle; middlemost.

2. Situated nearest the middle. — adv. In the middle.

Midn. abbr. Midshipman.

mid·night (mĭd'nīt') n. 1. The middle of the night, specifically 12 o'clock at night. 2. a. Intense darkness or gloom. b. A period of darkness and gloom. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a midnight swim; a midnight meeting.

midnight sun (mĭd'nīt' sŭn) n. The sun as seen at midnight during the summer within the Arctic and Antarctic regions.

mid·o·cean ridge (mĭd'ō'shən rĭj) n. A series of mountain ranges on the ocean floor, more than 84,000 kilometers (52,000 miles) in length, extending through the North and South Atlantic, the Indian Ocean, and the South Pacific.

According to the plate tectonics theory, volcanic rock is added to the sea floor as the mid-ocean ridge spreads apart.

mid·point (mĭd'pɔɪnt') n. 1. Mathematics. The point of a line segment or curvilinear arc that divides it into two parts of the same length. 2. A position midway between two extremes.

mid·range or mid-range (mĭd'rānj') n. 1. The middle part of an audio frequency. 2. The middle part of a series, a progression, or an array: prices in the midrange. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: midrange ballistic missiles; midrange torque.

Mid·rash (mĭd'rāsh') n. pl. Mid-rash·im (mĭd-rô'shĭm, mĭd'rä-shēm'). Any of a group of Jewish commentaries on the Hebrew Scriptures compiled between A.D. 400 and 1200 and based on exegesis, parable, and haggadic legend. [Late Hebrew midrāš, commentary, explanation, Midrash, from dāraš, to interpret.]

mid·rib (mĭd'rĭb') n. The central or principal vein of a leaf.

mid·riff (mĭd'rĭf) n. 1. See diaphragm (n., sense 1). 2. The middle outer portion of the front of the human body, extending roughly from just below the breast to the waistline. [Middle English midrif, from Old English midhrif: midd, mid; see MID¹ + hrif, belly; see k^wrep- in Appendix.] — mid'riff adj.

mid·rise (mĭd'rīz') adj. Moderately tall: a mid-rise office building. — n. A moderately tall building.

mid·sec·tion (mĭd'sĕk'shən) n. A middle section, especially the midriff of the human body.

mid·ship (mĭd'shĭp') adj. Nautical. Of, relating to, or located in the middle of a ship.

mid·ship·man (mĭd'shĭp'mən, mĭd-shĭp'mən) n. 1. Abbr. Midn. A student training to be a commissioned naval officer, especially a student at a naval academy. 2. Any of various fishes of the genus Porichthys, having several rows of light-producing organs along their bodies.

mid·ships (mĭd'shĭps') adv. Nautical. 1. Amidships. 2. In the center position. Used of the helm. [Probably short for AMIDSHIPS.]

mid·size or mid-size (mĭd'sīz') adj. Of intermediate size. Used especially of motor vehicles, such as cars.

midst (mĭdst, mĭtst) n. 1. The middle position or part; the center: in the midst of the desert. 2. A position of proximity to others: a stranger in our midst. 3. The condition of being surrounded or beset by something: in the midst of all of our problems. 4. A period of time approximately in the middle of a continuing condition or act: in the midst of the war. — prep. Among; amid. [Middle English middest, alteration of middes: mid, middle; see MID¹ + -es, adv. suff.; see -s³.]

mid·stream (mĭd'strēm') n. 1. The middle part of a stream. 2. The part of a course that is neither at the beginning nor at the end: the midstream of life.

mid·sum·mer (mĭd'sŭm'ər) n. 1. The middle of the summer. 2. The summer solstice, about June 21. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a midsummer night; midsummer showers.

Mid·sum·mer Day (mĭd'sŭm'ər dā) n. 1. June 24, observed in Europe, Latin America, and Scandinavian communities in the United States in commemoration of the summer solstice. 2. June 24, observed in many Christian churches in commemoration of the birth of Saint John the Baptist.

Midsummer Eve (mĭd'sŭm'ər ēv) n. 1. June 23, the day before Midsummer Day, celebrated in Europe, Latin America, and Scandinavian communities in the United States by merrymaking. 2. June 23, the day before Midsummer Day, celebrated in many Christian churches by feasting. In this sense, also called Saint John's Eve mid·term (mĭd'tŭrm') n. 1. The middle of an academic term or a political term of office. 2. a. An examination given at the middle of a school or college term. b. midterms. A series of such examinations. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: midterm examinations; a midterm break.

mid·town (mĭd'toun') n. A central portion of a city, between uptown and downtown. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: midtown traffic; midtown shops.

mid·Vic·to·ri·an (mĭd'vĭk-tôr'ē-ən, -tôr'-) adj. Relating to, occurring in, or characteristic of the middle period of the reign of Queen Victoria in Great Britain (1837-1901), a period known for rigid social standards. — n. 1. A person living in this period: "The mid-Victorians had moral zeal but no religion" (Keith Thomas). 2. A person having rigid social standards.

mid·way (mĭd'wā') n. 1. The area of a fair, a carnival, a circus, or an exposition where sideshows and other amusements are located. 2. Obsolete. a. The middle of a way or distance. b. A middle course of action or thought. — adv. In the middle of a way or distance; halfway: midway through the second quarter of the football game. — mid'way' adj.

Mid·way Islands (mĭd'wā' ī'ləndz) Two small islands and a surrounding coral atoll in the central Pacific Ocean northwest of Honolulu. Discovered in 1859, they were annexed by the United States in 1867 and remain a U.S. territory with an important naval base. A decisive World War II Allied victory in the Battle of Midway (June 3-6, 1942) was a major turning point in the war in the Pacific.

mid·week (mĭd'wēk') n. 1. The middle of the week. 2. Midweek. Wednesday. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a midweek appointment; midweek travel. — mid'week'ly adj. & adv.

Mid·west (mĭd-wĕst') or Middle West A region of the north-central United States around the Great Lakes and the upper Mississippi Valley. It is generally considered to include Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, and Nebraska. The area is known for its rich farmlands and highly industrialized centers. —Mid-west/ern adj. —Mid-west/ern-er n.

Midwest City (mīd-wĕst' sīt'ē) A city of central Oklahoma, a residential suburb of Oklahoma City. Population, 52,267.

mid-wife (mīd'wīf') n. pl. mid-wives (-wīvz'). 1. A person, usually a woman, who is trained to assist women in childbirth. Regional. Also called granny 2. One who assists in or takes a part in bringing about a result: “In the Renaissance, artists and writers start to serve as midwives of fame” (Carlin Romano). — v. tr.

mid-wifed or mid-wived (-wīvd'), mid-wif-ing or mid-wiv-ing (-wī'vīŋ), mid-wifes or mid-wives (-wīvz'). 1. To assist in the birth of (a baby). 2. To assist in bringing forth or about: “Washington's efforts to midwife a Mideast settlement” (Newsweek). [Middle English midwīf: probably mid, with (from Old English); see me-² in Appendix + wif, woman (from Old English wīf).]

WORD HISTORY: The word midwife is the sort of word whose etymology is perfectly clear until one tries to figure it out. Wife would seem to refer to the woman giving birth, who is usually a wife, but mid? A knowledge of older senses of words helps us with this puzzle. Wife in its earlier history meant “woman,” as it still did when the compound midwife was formed in Middle English (first recorded around 1300). Mid is probably a preposition, meaning “together with.” Thus a midwife was literally a “with woman” or “a woman who assists other women in childbirth.” Even though obstetrics has been rather resistant to midwifery until fairly recently, the etymology of obstetric is rather similar, going back to the Latin word obstetrīx, “a midwife,” from the verb obstāre, “to stand in front of,” and the feminine suffix -trix; the obstetrīx would thus literally stand in front of the baby.

mid-wife-ry (mīd-wīf'ə-rē, mīd'wīf'rē, -wī'fə-rē) n. The techniques and practice of a midwife.

mid-win-ter (mīd'wīn'tər) n. 1. The middle of the winter. 2. The period of the winter solstice, about December 22. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a midwinter day; midwinter storms.

mid-year (mīd'yîr') n. 1. The middle of the calendar or academic year.

2. a. An examination given in the middle of a school year. b. midyears. A series of such examinations. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: midyear examinations; a midyear break.

mien (mēn) n. 1. Bearing or manner, especially as it reveals an inner state of mind: “He was a Vietnam veteran with a haunted mien” (James Traub). See Synonyms at bearing. 2. An appearance or aspect. [Alteration (influenced by French mine, appearance); see MINAUDIÈRE, of Middle English demeine, demeanor, from Old French, from demener, to behave. See Demean¹.]

Mies Van Der Ro-he (mēz' vān dər rō'ə, rō', fān, mēs'), Ludwig. 1886-1969. German-born American architect considered a founder of the International Style. His steel-frame and glass buildings include the Seagram Building in New York City (1956-1959) and the Chicago Federal Center (1963-1968).

—Mies'i-an (mē'sē-ən) adj.

miff (mɪf) n. 1. A petulant, bad-tempered mood; a huff. 2. A petty quarrel or argument; a tiff. — v. tr. miffed, miff-ing, miffs. To cause to become offended or annoyed. [Possibly expressive of disgust.]

Mif-flin (mɪf'lɪn), Thomas. 1744-1800. American Revolutionary soldier and politician who served as president of the Continental Congress (1783-1784) and governor of Pennsylvania (1790-1799).

mif-fy (mɪf'ē) adj. mif-fi-er, mif-fi-est. 1. Informal. Easily offended; oversensitive. 2. Botany. Difficult to raise except under perfect conditions. Used of certain plants. —mif'fi-ness n.

might¹ (mīt) n. 1. The power, force, or influence held by a person or group. 2. Physical strength. 3. Strength or ability to do something. See Synonyms at strength. See Regional note at powerful. [Middle English, from Old English meaht, miht. See magh- in Appendix.]

might² (mīt) v. aux. Past tense of may¹. 1. a. Used to indicate a condition or state contrary to fact: She might help if she knew the truth. b. Used to indicate a possibility or probability that is weaker than may: We might discover a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. 2. Used to express possibility or probability or permission in the past: She told him yesterday he might not go on the trip. 3. Used to express a higher degree of deference or politeness than may, ought, or should: Might I express my opinion? [Middle English, from Old English meahte, mihte, first and third person sing. past tense of magan, to be able. See MAY¹.]

USAGE NOTE: In many Southern varieties of English, might is used in the “double modal” construction with could, as in We might could park over there. Less frequently, one hears may can and might should. These constructions are not familiar to the majority of American speakers and are best avoided in formal writing.

might-have-been (mīt'əv-bɪn') n. pl. might-have-beens (-bɪnz'). An event that could have but never did occur: “This is one of the great might-have-beens of modern history” (Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr.).

might-i-ly (mīt'l-ē) adv. 1. In a mighty manner; powerfully. 2. To a great degree; greatly.

might-n't (mīt'nt) Might not.

might-y (mī'tē) adj. might-i-er, might-i-est. 1. Having or showing great power, skill, strength, or force: a mighty orator; a mighty blow. 2. Imposing or awesome in size, degree, or extent: a mighty stone fortress. — adv. Chiefly Upper Southern U.S. To a great degree; extremely. Used as an intensive: mighty fine; mighty tired. See Regional note at powerful. — might/i-ness n.

mi·gnon·ette (mĭn'yə-nĕt') n. Any of several Mediterranean plants of the genus Reseda, especially R. odorata, widely cultivated for its terminal, dense, spikelike clusters of very fragrant but inconspicuous greenish flowers. [French, from feminine of mignonnet, dainty, pretty, from Old French, diminutive of mignon, lover, dainty. See MINION.]

mi·graine (mī'grān') n. A severe, recurring headache, usually affecting only one side of the head, characterized by sharp pain and often accompanied by nausea, vomiting, and visual disturbances. Also called megrin [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin hēmīcrānia, from Greek hēmīkrania: hēmi-, hemi- + kranion, head; see ker-¹ in Appendix.] — mi·grain'ous adj.

mi·grant (mī'grənt) n. 1. One that moves from one region to another by chance, instinct, or plan. 2. An itinerant worker who travels from one area to another in search of work. — adj. Migratory. [Latin migrāns, migrant- present participle of migrāre, to migrate. See MIGRATE.]

mi·grate (mī'grāt') v. intr. mi·grat·ed, mi·grat·ing, mi·grates. 1. To move from one country or region and settle in another. 2. To change location periodically, especially by moving seasonally from one region to another. [Latin migrāre, migrāt-. See mei-¹ in Appendix.] — mi'gra'tor n.

USAGE NOTE: Migrate, which is used of people and animals, sometimes implies a lack of permanent settlement, especially as a result of seasonal or periodic movement. Emigrate and immigrate are used only of people and imply a permanent move, generally across a political boundary. Emigrate describes the move relative to the point of departure: After the Nazis came to power in Germany, many scientists emigrated (that is, left Germany). By contrast, immigrate describes the move relative to the destination: The promise of prosperity in the United States encouraged many people to immigrate (that is, move to the United States).

mi·gra·tion (mī-grā'shən) n. 1. The act or an instance of migrating. 2. A group migrating together. 3. Chemistry & Physics. a. The movement of one atom or more from one position to another within a molecule. b. The movement of ions between electrodes during electrolysis. — mi·gra'tion·al adj.

mi·gra·to·ry (mī'grə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. 1. Characterized by migration; undergoing periodic migration: migratory birds. 2. Of or relating to a migration. 3. Roving; nomadic.

mih·rab (mīr'əb) n. Islam. 1. A niche in the wall of a mosque or a room in the mosque that indicates the direction of Mecca. 2. An undecorated oblong space in the middle of a Muslim prayer rug, pointed toward Mecca during worship. [Arabic miḥrāb.]

mi·ka·do (mī-kä'dō) n. pl. mi·ka·dos. An emperor of Japan. [Japanese : mi, honorific pref. + kado, gate.]

Mik·a·su·ki also Mic·co·su·kee (mīk'ə-sōō'kē) n. pl. Mikasuki or Mik·a·su·kis also Miccosukee or Mic·co·su·kees. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting northwest Florida, now forming part of the Seminole people of southern Florida. b. A member of this people. 2. The Muskogean language of the Mikasuki.

mike (mīk) Informal. n. 1. A microphone. 2. See Regional note at igg. — v. tr. miked, mik-ing, mikes. To supply with or transmit through a microphone.

mike fright (mīk frīt) n. Informal. Fear of performing or appearing on radio.

Mí·ko·nos (mē'kō-nōs') See Mykonos.

Mi·koy·an (mē'kō-yän', myī-kə-), Anastas Ivanovich. 1895-1978. Soviet politician who served under Stalin and Khrushchev as an international trade expert. He was chairman of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet (1964-1965).

mi·kron (mī'krōn') n. Variant of micron.

mik·vah (mīk'və, mēk-vä') n. pl. mik·voth or mik·vot (-vōt') or mik·vos (-vōs). 1. A ritual purification bath taken by Jews on certain occasions, as before the Sabbath or after menstruation or ejaculation. 2. A building, room, or fixture in which this bath takes place. [Hebrew miqwāh.]

mil (mīl) n. 1. A unit of length equal to one thousandth (10^{-3}) of an inch (0.0254 millimeter), used, for example, to specify the diameter of wire or the thickness of materials sold in sheets. 2. A milliliter; one cubic centimeter. 3. A unit of angular measurement used in artillery and equal to 6400 of a complete revolution. [Short for Latin millēsimus, thousandth, from Latin mīlle, thousand. See gheslo in Appendix.]

mil. abbr. Military; militia.

mi·la·dy (mī-lā'dē) n. pl. mi·la·dies. 1. An English noblewoman or gentlewoman. 2. Used as a form of address for such a woman. 3. A chic or fashionable woman. [French, from English, my lady.]

mil·age (mī'līj) n. Variant of mileage.

Mi·lan (mī-län', -län') A city of northern Italy northeast of Genoa. Probably of Celtic origin, it was taken by the Romans in 222 B.C. and has been an important commercial, financial, cultural, and industrial center since medieval times because of its strategic location. Population, 1,634,638. — Mil'a·nese' (mīl'ə-nēz', -nēs') adj. & n.

milch (mīlch) adj. Giving milk: a milch cow. [Middle English milche, from Old English -milce, in thrīmilce, May (when cows can be milked thrice in a day). See melg- in Appendix.]

mil·chig (mīl'kĥīk) adj. Derived from or made of milk or dairy products. [Yiddish milkhik, from milkh, milk, from Middle High German, from Old High German miluh. See melg- in Appendix.]

mild (mīld) adj. mild·er, mild·est. 1. Gentle or kind in disposition, manners, or behavior. 2. a. Moderate in type, degree, effect, or force: a mild pipe tobacco; a mild sedative. b. Not extreme: a mild winter storm. c. Warm and full of sunshine; pleasant: a mild spring day; mild weather in June. 3. Not severe or acute: a mild fever. 4. Easily molded, shaped, or worked; malleable: mild steel. [Middle English, from Old English milde. See mel-¹ in Appendix.] —mild'ly adv.

—mild'ness n.

mil·dew (mīl'dōō', -dyōō') n. 1. Any of various fungi that form a superficial, usually whitish growth on plants and various organic materials. 2. A superficial coating or discoloration of organic materials, such as cloth, paper, or leather, caused by fungi, especially under damp conditions. 3. A plant disease caused by such fungi. — v. tr. intr. mil·dewed, mil·dew·ing, mil·dews. To affect or become affected with mildew. [Middle English, from Old English mildēaw, honeydew, nectar. See melit- in Appendix.] —mil'dew'y adj.

mile (mīl) n. Abbr. mi., m. 1. A unit of length equal to 5,280 feet or 1,760 yards (1,609 meters), used in the United States and other English-speaking countries. Also called land mile, statute mile. See Table at measurement. 2. A nautical mile. 3. An air mile. 4. Sports. A race that is one mile long. 5. A relatively great distance: had to walk for miles in the airport. [Middle English, from Old English mīl, from Latin mīlia (passuum), a thousand (double paces), a Roman mile, pl. of mīlle, thousand. See gheslo- in Appendix.]

mile·age also mil·age (mī'līj) n. 1. Total length, extent, or distance measured or expressed in miles. 2. Total miles covered or traveled in a given time. 3. The amount of service, use, or wear estimated by miles used or traveled: This tire will give very good mileage. 4. The number of miles traveled by a motor vehicle on a given quantity of fuel. 5. a. An allowance for travel expenses established at a specified rate per mile. b. Expense per mile, as for the use of a car. 6. Informal. The amount of service something has yielded or may yield in the future; usefulness: a tape player that still has a lot of mileage left.

mile·post (mīl'pōst') n. A post set up to indicate distance in miles, as along a highway.

mil·er (mī'lər) n. Sports. One who competes in races one mile long.

Miles (mīlz), Nelson Appleton. 1839-1925. American general who led frontier campaigns against Native Americans.

mi·les glo·ri·o·sus (mē'lās glōr'ē-ō'səs, glōr'-) n. pl. mi·li·tes glo·ri·o·si (mē'lī-tās glōr'ē-ō'sē, glōr'-). A bragging and often cowardly soldier, especially as a stock character in comedy. [Latin mīles glōriōsus, after Mīles Glōriōsus, a comedy by Plautus.]

Mi-le-sian¹ (mī-lē'zhən, -shən) adj. Of or relating to Miletus or its inhabitants.
— n. A native or inhabitant of Miletus. [From Latin Milēsius, from Greek Milē-sios, from Milētos, Miletus.]

Mi-le-sian² (mī-lē'zhən, -shən) n. 1. Mythology. A member of a people who invaded Ireland and became the ancestors of the Irish. 2. A native or inhabitant of Ireland. — adj. Of or relating to Ireland; Irish. [After Milesius, legendary ancestor of the Irish people.]

mile-stone (mīl'stōn') n. 1. A stone marker set up on a roadside to indicate the distance in miles from a given point. 2. An important event, as in a person's career, the history of a nation, or the advancement of knowledge in a field; a turning point.

Mi-let-us (mī-lē'təs) An ancient Ionian city of western Asia Minor in present-day Turkey. Occupied by Greeks c. 1000 B.C., it became an important trading and colonizing settlement and also flourished as a center of learning. The city declined after its harbor silted up early in the Christian era.

mil-foil (mīl'fōil') n. 1. See yarrow. 2. Water milfoil. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin mīlifolium : mīlle, thousand; see gheslo- in Appendix + folium, leaf; see bhel-³ in Appendix.]

Mil-ford (mīl'fərd) 1. A city of southwest Connecticut on Long Island Sound southwest of New Haven. Founded in 1639, it was a shipbuilding center until the early 19th century. Today it is mainly residential with various light industries. Population, 48,168. 2. A city of south-central Massachusetts southeast of Worcester. It is an industrial center. Population, 25,355.

Mil-haud (mē-yō'), Darius. 1892-1974. French composer who experimented with polytonality and jazz styles. His works include the opera The Lost Sheep (1910) and the ballet Moïse (1940).

mil-i-a (mīl'ē-ə) n. Plural of mili-um.

mil-i-ar-i-a (mīl'ē-ār'ē-ə) n. See heat rash. [New Latin (fēbris) miliāria, miliary (fever), feminine of Latin miliārius, of millet. See MILIARY.] — mil'i-ar'i-al adj.

mil-i-ar-y (mīl'ē-ēr'ē) adj. 1. Having the appearance of millet seeds.

2. Pathology. Characterized by the presence of small skin lesions that have the size and appearance of millet seeds. [From Middle English miliaris, miliari, skin disease characterized by miliary eruptions, from Medieval Latin miliāris, from Latin miliārius, of millet, from mili-um, millet. See MILLET.]

miliary tuberculosis (mīl'ē-ēr'ē tōō-bûr'kyə-lō'sis) n. An acute form of tuberculosis characterized by very small tubercles in various body organs, caused by the spread of tubercle bacilli through the bloodstream.

mi-lieu (mīl-yōō', mē-lyœ') n. pl. mi-lieus or mi-lieux (-lyœ'). An environment or a setting. [French, from Old French, center : mi, middle (from Latin medius); see medhyo- in Appendix + lieu, place (from Latin locus).]

Mi-li-la-ni Town (mē'lē-lā'nē toun) A community of south-central Oahu, Hawaii, a suburb of Honolulu. Population, 29,359.

mil-i-tant (mīl'ī-tənt) adj. 1. Fighting or warring. 2. Having a combative character; aggressive, especially in the service of a cause: a militant political activist.

— n. A fighting, warring, or aggressive person or party. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin militāns, militant- present participle of militāre, to serve as a soldier. See MILITATE.] —mil'i-tance, mil'i-tan-cy n. —mil'i-tant-ly adv.

mil-i-tar-i-a (mīl'ī-tā'rē-ə) pl.n. Objects, such as weapons and uniforms, that are connected with warfare or military service and are usually collected for their historical interest. [MILITARY + -IA².]

mil-i-ta-rism (mīl'ī-tə-rīz'əm) n. 1. Glorification of the ideals of a professional military class. 2. Predominance of the armed forces in the administration or policy of the state. 3. A policy in which military preparedness is of primary importance to a state. —mil'i-ta-rist n. —mil'i-ta-ris'tic (-rīs'tīk) adj.

—mil'i-ta-ris'ti-cal-ly adv.

mil-i-ta-rize (mīl'ī-tə-rīz') v. tr. mil-i-ta-rized, mil-i-ta-riz-ing, mil-i-ta-riz-es. 1. To equip or train for war. 2. To imbue with militarism. 3. To adopt for use by or in the military. —mil'i-ta-ri-za'tion (-tər-ī-zā'shən) n.

mil-i-tar-y (mīl'ī-tēr'ē) adj. Abbr. mil. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of members of the armed forces: a military bearing; military attire. 2. Performed or supported by the armed forces: military service. 3. Of or relating to war: military operations. 4. Of or relating to land forces. — n. pl. military also

mil-i-tar-ies. 1. Armed forces: a country ruled by the military. 2. Members, especially officers, of an armed force. [Middle English, from Latin militāris, from mīles, milit-, soldier.] —mil'i-tar'ily (-tār'ə-lē) adv.

military attaché (mīl'ī-tēr'ē āt'ə-shā') n. An officer in the armed forces who is assigned to the official staff of an ambassador, a consul general, or a minister.

military intelligence (mīl'ī-tēr'ē ĭn-těl'ə-jəns) n. Abbr. MI 1. Information relating to the armed forces of a foreign country that is significant to the planning and conduct of another country's military doctrine, policy, and operations.

2. An agency of the armed forces that procures, analyzes, and uses information of tactical and strategic military value.

military law (mīl'ī-tēr'ē lô) n. The statutes, codes, and common traditions relating to and executed by military courts for the discipline, trial, and punishment of military personnel.

military police (mīl'ī-tēr'ē pə-lēs') n. Abbr. MP, M.P. The branch of an armed force assigned to perform law enforcement duties, as on a military installation.

military science (mīl'ī-tēr'ē sī'əns) n. The principles of military conflict and of warfare.

mil-i-tate (mīl'ī-tāt') v. intr. mil-i-tat-ed, mil-i-tat-ing, mil-i-tates. To have force or influence; bring about an effect or a change: “All these factors militated to a different targeting priority” (Tom Clancy). “The chaste banality of his prose... militates against the stories' becoming literature” (Anthony Burgess). [Latin militāre, militāt-, to serve as a soldier, from mīles, mīlit-, soldier.]

mi-li-tes glo-ri-o-si (mē'lī-tās glōr'ē-ō'sē, glōr'-) n. Plural of miles gloriosus.

mi-li-tia (mə-līsh'ə) n. Abbr. mil. 1. An army composed of ordinary citizens rather than professional soldiers. 2. A military force that is not part of a regular army and is subject to call for service in an emergency. 3. The whole body of physically fit civilians eligible by law for military service. [Latin militia, warfare, military service, from mīles, mīlit-, soldier.]

mi-li-tia-man (mə-līsh'ə-mən) n. A man who is a member of a militia.

mil-i-um (mīl'ē-əm) n. pl. mil-i-a (-ē-ə). A small, white or yellowish cystlike mass just below the surface of the skin, caused by retention of the secretion of a sebaceous gland. Also called whitehead [Middle English, millet, from Latin. See melə- in Appendix.]

milk (mīlk) n. 1. A whitish liquid containing proteins, fats, lactose, and various vitamins and minerals that is produced by the mammary glands of all mature female mammals after they have given birth and serves as nourishment for their young. 2. The milk of cows, goats, or other animals, used as food by human beings. 3. A liquid, such as coconut milk, milkweed sap, plant latex, or various medical emulsions, that is similar to milk in appearance. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: milk cows; milk products. — v. milked, milk-ing, milks. — v. tr. 1. a. To draw milk from the teat or udder of (a female mammal). b. To draw or extract a liquid from: milked the stem for its last drops of sap. 2. To press out, drain off, or remove by or as if by milking: milk venom from a snake. 3. Informal. a. To draw out or extract something from, as if by milking: milked the witness for information. b. To obtain money or benefits from, in order to achieve personal gain; exploit: “The dictator and his cronies had milked their country of somewhere between $5 billion and $10 billion” (Russell Watson). — v. intr. 1. To yield or supply milk. 2. To draw milk from a female mammal. [Middle English, from Old English milc. See melg- in Appendix.] — milk'er n.

milk adder (mīlk əd'ər) n. See milk snake.

milk-and-wa-ter (mīlk'ən-wō'tər, -wōt'ər) adj. Insipid; weak; wishy-washy.

milk chocolate (mīlk chō'kə-līt) n. Sweetened chocolate made with milk and other ingredients.

milk fever (mīlk fē'vər) n. 1. A mild fever, usually occurring at the beginning of lactation, associated with infection following childbirth. 2. A disease affecting dairy cows and occasionally sheep or goats, especially soon after giving birth.

milk·fish (mīlk'fīsh') n. pl. milkfish or milk·fish·es. A large silvery fish (Chanos chanos) of the South Pacific and Indian oceans, widely used for food. [From its color.]

milk glass (mīlk glās) n. An opaque or translucent whitish glass.

milk leg (mīlk lĕg) n. A painful swelling of the leg occurring in women after childbirth as a result of clotting and inflammation of the femoral veins.

milk·maid (mīlk'mād') n. A girl or woman who milks cows.

milk·man (mīlk'mān') n. A man who sells or delivers milk to customers.

milk of magnesia (mīlk ūv mäg-nē'zhə) n. A milky white aqueous suspension of magnesium hydroxide, $Mg(OH)_2$, used as an antacid and a laxative.

Milk River (mīlk rīv'ər) A river rising in the Rocky Mountains of northwest Montana and flowing about 1,006 km (625 mi) northward to southern Alberta then east and south back to northern Montana, where it joins the Missouri River.

milk run (mīlk rŭn) n. Slang. A routine trip involving stops at many places.

milk shake (mīlk shāk) n. 1. A beverage made of milk, flavoring, and ice cream, shaken or whipped until foamy. Regional. Also called cabinet Regional., frappé, shake Regional., velvet. 2. New England. A beverage made of milk and flavored syrup, whipped until foamy.

REGIONAL NOTE: To most Americans, a milk shake, that thick, sweet accompaniment to a hamburger and fries, naturally includes ice cream. But speakers in parts of New England make finer distinctions in their ice cream terminology. To a person living in Rhode Island or the adjoining part of Massachusetts, a milk shake consists of milk shaken up with flavored syrup and nothing more; if ice cream is included, the drink is called a cabinet, possibly, says food writer John F. Mariani in The Dictionary of American Food and Drink, named after the square wooden cabinet in which the mixer was encased. Farther north in New England, the same drink is called a velvet or a frappé (from French frapper, “to ice”). Other ice cream drinks and concoctions are known by different terms in various parts of the country: a banana split is called a houseboat in some locales, and a float made of root beer and vanilla ice cream is called a black cow in Chicago.

milk sickness (mīlk sīk'nīs) n. 1. An acute, now rare disease characterized by trembling, vomiting, and severe intestinal pain that affects individuals who eat dairy products or meat from a cow that has fed on white snakeroot. 2. See tremble (n., sense 3b).

milk snake (mīlk snāk) n. Any of various nonvenomous grayish or tan king snakes of the species Lampropeltis triangulum of the southeast and central United States and Mexico, often having red, yellow, and black markings. Also called house snake, milk adder. [From the claim that it sucks milk from cows.]

milk-sop (mĭlk'söp') n. A man lacking courage and other qualities deemed manly. —milk'sop'py adj.

milk sugar (mĭlk shōög'ər) n. See lactose.

milk toast (mĭlk tōst) n. Toast, usually buttered, served in warm milk, often with sugar or seasonings.

milk tooth (mĭlk tōoth) n. Any of the temporary first teeth of a young mammal. Also called baby tooth, primary tooth.

milk vetch (mĭlk vēch) n. Any of various plants of the genus Astragalus, having pinnate, compound leaves and clusters of purple, white, or yellowish flowers. [From the belief that it increases the milk yield of goats.]

milk-weed (mĭlk'wēd') n. Any of numerous plants of the genus Asclepias, having milky juice, usually opposite leaves, variously colored flowers grouped in umbels, and pods that split open to release seeds with downy tufts. Also called silkweed milkweed butterfly (mĭlk'wēd' bŭt'ər-flī') n. See monarch butterfly.

milk-wort (mĭlk'wŭrt', -wōrt') n. Any of various plants of the genus Polygala, having variously colored, irregular flowers with two petaloid sepals. [From the belief that it increases human lactation.]

milk-y (mĭl'kē) adj. milk-i-er, milk-i-est. 1. Resembling milk in color or consistency: milky glass. 2. Filled with, consisting of, or yielding milk or a fluid resembling milk: a milky kernel of corn. 3. Meek; timid. —milk'i-ness n.

milky disease (mĭl'kē dī-zēz') n. A bacterial disease of Japanese beetle larvae and other scarabaeid grubs that eventually turns the grub a milky white color. Also called milky spore disease

Milk-y Way (mĭl'kē wā) n. The galaxy containing the solar system, visible as a broad band of faint light in the night sky. [Middle English, translation of Latin via lactea : via, way + lactea, milky.]

mill¹ (mĭl) n. 1. a. A building equipped with machinery for grinding grain into flour or meal. b. A device or mechanism that grinds grain. 2. A machine or device that reduces a solid or coarse substance into pulp or minute grains by crushing, grinding, or pressing: a pepper mill. 3. A machine that releases the juice of fruits and vegetables by pressing or grinding: a cider mill. 4. a. A machine, such as one for stamping coins, that produces something by the repetition of a simple process. b. A steel roller bearing a raised design, used for making a die or a printing plate by pressure. c. Any of various machines for shaping, cutting, polishing, or dressing metal surfaces. 5. a. A building or group of buildings equipped with machinery for processing raw materials into finished or industrial products: a textile mill; a steel mill. b. A building or collection of buildings that has machinery for manufacture; a factory. 6. A process, an agency, or an institution that operates in a routine way or turns out products in the manner of a factory: The college was nothing more than a diploma mill. 7. A slow or laborious process: It took three years to get the bill through the legislative mill. — v. milled, mill-ing, mills. — v. tr. 1. To grind, pulverize, or break down into smaller particles in a mill. 2. To transform or process mechanically in a mill. 3. To shape, polish, dress, or finish in a mill or with a milling tool. 4. a. To produce a ridge around the edge of (a coin). b. To groove or flute the rim of (a coin or other metal object). 5. To agitate or stir until foamy. 6. Western U.S. To halt (a cattle stampede) by turning the lead animals in a wide arc so that they form the center of a gradually tightening spiral. — v. intr. 1. To move around in churning confusion: “A crowd of school children milled about on the curb looking scared” (Anne Tyler). 2. Slang. To fight with the fists; box. 3. To undergo milling. [Middle English milne, mille, from Old English mylen, from Late Latin molīna, molīnum, from feminine and neuter of molīnus, of a mill, from Latin mola, millstone, from molere, to grind. See melə- in Appendix.]

REGIONAL NOTE: To mill, in Western U.S. English, means “to halt a cattle stampede by turning the lead animals.” In the Oxford English Dictionary we find this 19th-century example of the verb: “At last the cattle ran with less energy, and it was presently easy to ‘mill’ them into a circle and to turn them where it seemed most desirable” (Munsey’s Magazine). This usage of mill comes from the resemblance of the cattle’s circular motion to the action of millstones. A related intransitive sense of the verb is better known in Standard English: A crowd milled around in the street. Originally this sense of mill also meant “circular motion”; now it means “to move around in churning confusion” with no pattern in particular.

WORD HISTORY: Industrial mill towns are a far cry from the small water mill grinding grain near an Anglo-Saxon settlement, but the same word mill is used in both contexts, showing how the meaning of a word can be generalized. The Old English word mylen, “water mill for grinding grain,” is itself adopted from Late Latin molīna or molīnum, “mill,” just as the Germanic peoples, such as the Anglo-Saxons, adopted the water mill from the Romans. In Middle English milne, the descendant of the Old English word, was generalized to refer to a windmill, any power-driven mill for grinding grain, and a fulling mill. But it was left for the postmedieval, increasingly industrialized world really to generalize the meaning of mill, applying it to machines such as pepper mills and cider mills and buildings such as textile mills and steel mills. Mill town is first recorded in 1847.

mill² (mīl) n. Abbr. mi., M. A monetary unit equal to 1000 of a U.S. dollar or 10 of a cent. [Short for Latin mīllēsīmus, thousandth. See MIL.]

Mill (mīl), James. 1773-1836. Scottish philosopher, economist, and a founder of utilitarianism. His works include Analysis of the Mind (1829).

Mill (mīl), John Stuart. 1806-1873. British philosopher and economist known especially for his interpretations of empiricism and utilitarianism. His many works include A System of Logic (1843), Principles of Political Economy (1848), and The Subjection of Women (1869).

mill-age (mīl'ij) n. A tax rate on property, expressed in mills per dollar of value of the property.

Mil-lais (mī-lā'), Sir John Everett. 1829-1896. British painter and founder of the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood (1848). His works include Christ in the Carpenter's Shop (1850) and Order of Release (1853).

Mil-lay (mī-lā'), Edna Saint Vincent. 1892-1950. American poet whose volumes include The Harp Weaver and Other Poems (1923), for which she won a Pulitzer Prize.

mill-board (mīl'bōrd', -bōrd') n. A stiff, heavy paperboard used primarily for book covers. [Alteration of milled board.]

Mill-brae (mīl'brā') A city of western California south of San Francisco. It is mainly residential. Population, 20,412.

Mill-burn (mīl'bərn) A community of northeast New Jersey, a residential suburb west of Newark. Population, 18,630.

Mill-creek (mīl'krēk') A community of north-central Utah, a suburb of Salt Lake City. Population, 24,150.

mill-dam (mīl'dām') n. A dam constructed across a stream to raise the water level so that the overflow will have sufficient power to turn a mill wheel.

mil-le-nar-i-an (mīl'ə-nâr'ē-ən) adj. 1. Of or relating to a thousand, especially to a thousand years. 2. Of, relating to, or believing in the doctrine of the millennium. — n. One who believes the millennium will occur.

—mil'le-nar'i-an-ism n.

mil-le-nar-y (mīl'ə-nēr'ē, mə-lĕn'ə-rē) adj. 1. Of or relating to a thousand, especially to a thousand years; millenarian. 2. a. Of or relating to the doctrine of the millennium; millenarian. b. Of or relating to millenarians. — n. pl.

mil-le-nar-ies. 1. A sum or total of one thousand, especially a thousand years. 2. A millenarian. [Latin mīllēnārius, from mīllēnī, a thousand each, from mīlle, thousand. See gheslo- in Appendix.]

mill end (mīl ĕnd) n. An end portion of a roll of carpeting or fabric.

mil-len-ni-um (mə-lĕn'ē-əm) n. pl. mil-len-ni-ums or mil-len-ni-a (-lĕn'ē-ə). 1. A span of one thousand years. 2. A thousand-year period of holiness mentioned in Revelation 20, during which Jesus and his faithful followers are to rule on earth. 3. A hoped-for period of joy, serenity, prosperity, and justice. 4. A thousandth anniversary. [New Latin : Latin mīlle, thousand; see gheslo- in Appendix + Latin annus, year; see at- in Appendix.] —mil-len'ni-al (-əl) adj.

—mil-len'ni-al-ism n. —mil-len'ni-al-ist n. —mil-len'ni-al-ly adv.

mil-le-pede (mīl'ə-pĕd') n. Variant of millipede.

mil-le-pore (mīl'ə-pôr', -pōr') n. Any of various reef-building hydrocorals of the order Milleporina of tropical marine waters, forming white or yellowish cal-careous structures and resembling the true corals of the class Anthozoa. [Italian millepora : mille, thousand (from Latin mille); see gheslo- in Appendix + -pora (alteration of poro, tufa, pore); see MADREPORE.]

mill-er (mīl'ər) n. 1. One who works in, operates, or owns a mill, especially a grain mill. 2. A milling machine. 3. Any of various moths whose wings and bodies have a powdery appearance.

Mil-ler (mīl'ər), Alice Duer. 1874-1942. American writer whose best-known work, the narrative poem The White Cliffs (1940), describes Great Britain in the midst of World War II.

Mil-ler (mīl'ər), Arthur. Born 1915. American playwright whose works include Death of a Salesman (1949), for which he won a Pulitzer Prize, and The Crucible (1953).

Mil-ler (mīl'ər), Glenn. 1909-1944. American bandleader and composer whose orchestra was one of the most popular groups of the big-band era.

Mil-ler (mīl'ər), Henry Valentine. 1891-1980. American writer whose novels Tropic of Cancer (1934) and Tropic of Capricorn (1939) were banned in the United States because of their sexual content.

Mil-ler (mīl'ər), Joaquin. Pseudonym of Cincinnatus Hiner Miller. 1837-1913. American poet whose work is based on his adventures in the West. His collections include Specimens (1868) and Joaquin et al. (1869).

Mil-ler (mīl'ər), Merton H. Born 1923. American economist. He shared a 1990 Nobel Prize for contributions to financial economics.

Mil-ler (mīl'ər), Samuel Freeman. 1816-1890. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1862-1890).

Mil-ler (mīl'ər), William. 1782-1849. American religious leader who preached that Christ's Second Coming would take place in 1843. Miller's followers later organized the Advent Christian Church (1860).

Mille-rand (mēl-rän'), Alexandre. 1859-1943. French politician who served as minister of war (1912-1913 and 1914-1915) and president (1920-1924).

mil-ler-ite (mīl'ə-rīt') n. A nickel sulfide mineral, NiS, usually occurring in long hairlike crystals and sometimes used as a nickel ore. [After William Hallowes Miller (1801-1880), British mineralogist.]

mill-er's thumb (mīl'ərz thŭm) n. Any of several small freshwater sculpins of the genus Cottus, especially C. gobio, found in Europe and North America and having a large spiny head and spiny fins. [From its stocky, thumblike shape (the phrase miller's thumb was originally a folk expression referring to millers who gave short weight by tipping the scales with their thumbs).]

Mil-les (mīl'əs), Carl. 1875-1955. Swedish sculptor noted for his monuments and fountains, which include the Poseidon in Göteborg (1927) and the Orpheus in Stockholm (1936).

- mil·les·i·mal (mə-lēs'ə-məl) adj. 1. Thousandth. 2. Consisting of a thousandth. 3. Relating to thousandths. — n. A thousandth. [From Latin millēsimus, from mille, thousand. See gheslo- in Appendix.] — mil·les'·i·mal·ly adv.
- mil·let (mīl'īt) n. 1. a. An annual grass (Panicum milaiceum) cultivated in Eurasia for its grains and in North America for hay. b. The white grains of this plant. 2. Any of several similar or related grasses. [Middle English milet, from Old French, diminutive of mīl, millet, from Latin mīlium. See melə- in Appendix.]
- Mil·let (mī-lā', mē-), Jean François. 1814-1875. French painter whose works, such as The Gleaners (1857) and Winter with Ravens (1862), portray peasant life and bucolic landscapes. He was a central figure of the Barbizon school.
- Mil·lett (mīl'īt), Kate. Born 1934. American feminist leader who wrote Sexual Politics (1970), a classic work of feminist theory.
- mill finish (mīl fīn'īsh) n. A smooth surface made by machine on various papers. Also called machine finish
- milli- pref. One thousandth (10^{-3}): millisecond. [Latin milli-, from mille, thousand. See gheslo- in Appendix.]
- mil·li·am·pere (mīl'ē-ām'pīr) n. Abbr. mA A unit of current equal to one thousandth (10^{-3}) of an ampere.
- mil·liard (mīl'yārd, -yārd', mīl'ē-ārd') n. Chiefly British. The cardinal number equal to 10^9 . [French, from Old French milliart, from milion, million. See MIL-LION.]
- mil·li·ar·y (mīl'ē-ēr'ē) adj. Relating to or marking the distance of an ancient Roman mile, which equaled 1,000 paces. [Latin milliārius, consisting of a thousand, one mile long, from mille (passuum), a thousand (double paces), a Roman mile. See gheslo- in Appendix.]
- mil·li·bar (mīl'ə-bār') n. Abbr. mb A unit of atmospheric pressure equal to one thousandth (10^{-3}) of a bar. Standard atmospheric pressure at sea level is about 1,013 millibars.
- mil·li·cur·ie (mīl'ī-kyōōr'ē, -kyōō-rē') n. Abbr. mCi, mc A unit of radioactivity equal to one thousandth (10^{-3}) of a curie.
- mil·li·far·ad (mīl'ə-fār'əd, -ād) n. Abbr. mf, mF A unit of capacitance equal to one thousandth (10^{-3}) of a farad.
- mil·li·gram (mīl'ī-grām') n. Abbr. mg A unit of mass equal to one thousandth (10^{-3}) of a gram. See Table at measurement.
- mil·li·hen·ry (mīl'ə-hēn'rē) n. pl. mil·li·hen·rys or mil·li·hen·ries. Abbr. mh, mH A unit of inductance equal to one thousandth (10^{-3}) of a henry.
- Mil·li·kan (mīl'ī-kən), Robert Andrews. 1868-1953. American physicist. He won a 1923 Nobel Prize for his measurement of the electron charge.
- mil·li·lam·bert (mīl'ə-lām'bərt) n. Abbr. mL A unit of luminance equal to one thousandth (10^{-3}) of a lambert.

mil·li·li·ter (mĭl'ə-lē'tər) n. Abbr. ml, mL A unit of volume equal to one thousandth (10^{-3}) of a liter. See Table at measurement.

mil·li·li·tre (mĭl'ə-lē'tər) n. Chiefly British. Variant of milliliter.

mil·lime (mĭl'im, -ēm) n. A unit of currency in Tunisia. See Table at currency. [French millième, thousandth, from Old French milisme, from Latin mīllēsīmus, thousandth, from mille, thousand. See gheslo- in Appendix.]

mil·li·me·ter (mĭl'ə-mē'tər) n. Abbr. mm A unit of length equal to one thousandth (10^{-3}) of a meter, or 0.0394 inch. See Table at measurement.

mil·li·me·tre (mĭl'ə-mē'tər) n. Chiefly British. Variant of millimeter.

mil·li·mi·cron (mĭl'ə-mī'krŏn) n. A unit of length equal to one thousandth (10^{-3}) of a micrometer or one billionth (10^{-9}) of a meter.

mil·li·mole (mĭl'ə-mōl') n. One thousandth (10^{-3}) of a mole.

mil·line (mĭl'īn') n. 1. A unit of advertising copy equal to one agate line one column wide printed in one million copies of a publication. 2. The cost of a unit of advertising copy. [MIL(LION) + LINE¹.]

mil·li·ner (mĭl'ə-nər) n. One that makes, trims, designs, or sells hats. [Probably alteration of Middle English Milener, native of Milan, from Milan, the source of goods such as bonnets and lace.]

mil·li·ner·y (mĭl'ə-nēr'ē) n. pl. mil·li·ner·ies. 1. Articles, especially women's hats, sold by a milliner. 2. The profession or business of a milliner.

mill·ing (mĭl'ing) n. 1. The act or process of grinding, especially grinding grain into flour or meal. 2. The operation of cutting, shaping, finishing, or working products manufactured in a mill. 3. The ridges cut on the edges of coins.

Mill·ing·ton (mĭl'ing-tən) A city of southwest Tennessee north of Memphis. It is a manufacturing center in a farming area. Population, 17,866.

mil·lion (mĭl'yən) n. pl. million or mil·lions. 1. The cardinal number equal to 10^6 . 2. A million monetary units, such as dollars: made a million in the stock market. 3. Often millions. An indefinitely large number: millions of bicycles on the road. 4. Often millions. The common people; the masses: entertainment for the millions. [Middle English, from Old French milion, probably from Old Italian milione, augmentative of mille, thousand, from Latin mille. See gheslo- in Appendix.] —mil'ion adj.

mil·lion·aire (mĭl'yə-nâr') n. A person whose wealth amounts to at least a million dollars, pounds, or the equivalent in other currency. [French millionnaire, from million, million, from Old French milion. See MILLION.]

mil·lionth (mĭl'yənθ) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number million in a series. 2. One of a million equal parts. —mil'ionth adv. & adj.

mil·li·pede or mil·le·pede (mĭl'ə-pēd') n. Any of various crawling, herbivorous myriapods of the class Diplopoda, found worldwide and having a cylindrical, segmented body with two pairs of legs attached to all segments except for the first four in the thoracic region. Also called diplopod [Latin mīlipeda, a kind of insect : mīlle, thousand; see gheslo- in Appendix + pēs, ped-, foot; see ped- in Appendix.]

mil·li·sec·ond (mīl'ī-sĕk'ənd) n. Abbr. ms, msec One thousandth (10^{-3}) of a second.

mil·li·volt (mīl'ə-vōlt') n. Abbr. mV A unit of potential difference equal to one thousandth (10^{-3}) of a volt.

mil·li·watt (mīl'ə-wōt') n. Abbr. mW A unit of power equal to one thousandth (10^{-3}) of a watt.

mill·pond (mīl'pōnd') n. A pond formed by a milldam.

mill·race (mīl'rās') n. 1. The fast-moving stream of water that drives a mill wheel. 2. The channel for the water that drives a mill wheel. Also called millrun mill·run (mīl'rūn') n. 1. See millrace. 2. The output of a sawmill. 3. a. A test of the mineral quality or content of an ore by milling. b. The mineral yielded by this test.

mill·run (mīl'rūn') adj. Being in the state in which a product leaves a mill; unsorted and uninspected: mill-run fabric.

Mills (mīlz), Robert. 1781-1855. American architect and engineer who designed a number of government buildings in Washington, D.C., including the General Post Office and the Washington Monument.

mill·stone (mīl'stōn') n. 1. One of a pair of cylindrical stones used in a mill for grinding grain. 2. A heavy weight; a burden: This job is a millstone around my neck.

mill·stream (mīl'strēm') n. The rapid stream of water flowing in a millrace.

Mill·ville (mīl'vīl') A city of southern New Jersey west of Atlantic City. Settled in the 18th century, it has varied light industries. Population, 25,992.

mill wheel (mīl hwēl) n. A wheel, typically driven by water, that powers a mill.

mill·work (mīl'wûrk') n. Woodwork, such as doors, window casings, and baseboards, ready-made by a lumber mill.

mill·wright (mīl'rit') n. One that designs, builds, or repairs mills or mill machinery.

Milne (mīln), A(lan) A(lexander). 1882-1956. British writer known especially for the children's books Winnie-the-Pooh (1926) and The House at Pooh Corner (1928).

Milne (mīln), John. 1850-1913. British mining engineer and inventor (1880) of the seismograph.

mi·lo (mī'lō) n. pl. mi·los. An early-growing, usually drought-resistant grain sorghum resembling millet. [Possibly from Afrikaans mealie, corn, probably from Portuguese milho, from Latin milium, millet. See MILLET.]

Mi·lo (mē'lō, mī'-) See Milos.

mi·lord (mī-lōrd') n. 1. An English nobleman or gentleman. 2. Used as a form of address for such a man. [French, from English my lord.]

Mi·los also Me·los (mē'lōs) or Mi·lo (mē'lō, mī'-) An island of southeast Greece in the Cyclades Islands of the Aegean Sea. It was a flourishing trade and obsidian-mining center in ancient times but lost importance when bronze replaced obsidian as a material for tools and weapons. The famous statue Venus de Milo was discovered here in 1820.

Mi·losz (mē'lōsh', -wōsh'), Czeslaw. Born 1911. Polish-born American writer whose poetry, fiction, and essays often explore the role of intellect and ideology in politics. He won the 1980 Nobel Prize for literature.

Mil·pi·tas (mīl-pē'təs) A city of western California north of San Jose. It is an industrial and residential suburb in a truck-farming region. Population, 50,686.

milque-toast (mīlk'tōst') n. One who has a meek, timid, unassertive nature. [After Caspar Milquetoast, a comic-strip character created by Harold Tucker Webster (1885-1952).] —milque'toast'y adj.

WORD HISTORY: An indication of the effect on the English language of popular culture such as that found in comic strips is the adoption of names from the strips as English words. Casper Milquetoast, created by Harold Webster in 1924, was a timid and retiring man, whose name was, of course, created from the name of a timid food. The first instance of milquetoast as a common noun is found in the mid-1930's. Milquetoast thus joins the ranks of other such words, including sad sack, from a blundering army private invented by George Baker in 1942, and Wimpy, from J. Wellington Wimpy in the Popeye comic strip, which became a trade name for a hamburger. If we look to the related world of the animated cartoon, we must of course acknowledge Mickey Mouse, which has become a slang term for something that is easy, insignificant, small-time, worthless, or petty.

Mil·stein (mīl'stēn'), Cesar. Born 1927. British-Argentinian immunologist. He shared a 1984 Nobel Prize for developing a method of producing monoclonal antibodies.

milt (mīlt) n. 1. a. Fish sperm, including the seminal fluid. b. The reproductive glands of male fishes when filled with this fluid. 2. The spleen of certain vertebrate animals, such as cows or pigs. — v. tr. milt-ed, milt-ing, milts. To fertilize (fish roe) with milt. [Middle English, roe, spleen, partly from Middle Dutch milte, and partly from Old English milte, spleen; see mel¹ in Appendix.]

milt·er (mīl'tər) n. A male fish that is ready to breed.

Mil·ti·a·des (mīl-tī'ə-dēz'), 540?-489? B.C. Athenian general who defeated the Persians in the Battle of Marathon (490 B.C.).

Mil·ton (mīl'tən) 1. A town of southeast Ontario west-southwest of Toronto. It is an industrial center. Population, 28,067. 2. A town of eastern Massachusetts, a residential suburb of Boston. Population, 25,725.

Mil-ton (mīl'tən), John. 1608-1674. English poet and scholar who is best known for the epic poem Paradise Lost (1667), an account of humanity's fall from grace.

Milton Keynes (mīl'tən kēnz) A town of south-central England northeast of Oxford. It was designated as a new town in 1967 to alleviate overcrowding in London. Population, 126,500.

Mil-wau-kee (mīl-wō'kē) A city of southeast Wisconsin on Lake Michigan. Established as a fur-trading post in 1795, it was a major center of German immigration during the last half of the 19th century and was long noted for its breweries and meat-packing plants. It is the largest city in the state. Population, 628,088.

Mil-wau-kie (mīl-wō'kē) A city of northwest Oregon, a trade and manufacturing suburb of Portland on the Willamette River. Population, 18,692.

Mi-mas (mī'mās, mē'-) n. The satellite of Saturn that is sixth in distance from the planet. [After Mimas, one of the Giants slain by Hercules.]

Mim-bres (mīm'brīs) n. The final period of the Mogollon culture, from the 9th to the 13th century, noted for its distinctive pottery bowls painted with black-on-white designs. [Spanish, pl. of mimbre, willow, withy, wicker, variant of vimbre, from Latin vīmen, vīmin-. See wei- in Appendix.]

mime (mīm) n. 1. a. A form of ancient Greek and Roman theatrical entertainment in which familiar characters and situations were farcically portrayed on stage, often with coarse dialogue and ludicrous actions. b. A performance of or dialogue for such an entertainment. c. A performer in a mime. 2. A modern performer who specializes in comic mimicry. 3. a. The art of portraying characters and acting out situations or a narrative by gestures and body movement without the use of words; pantomime. b. A performance of pantomime. c. An actor or actress skilled in pantomime. — v. tr. mimed, mim-ing, mimes. — v. tr. 1. To ridicule by imitation; mimic. 2. To act out with gestures and body movement. — v. intr. 1. To act as a mimic. 2. To portray characters and situations by gesture and body movement. [Latin mīmus, from Greek mimos.] — mim'er n.

mim-e-o (mīm'ē-ō') Informal. n. pl. mim-e-os. A mimeograph. — v. tr. mim-e-oed, mim-e-o-ing, mim-e-os. To mimeograph.

mim-e-o-graph (mīm'ē-ə-grāf') n. 1. A duplicator that makes copies of written, drawn, or typed material from a stencil that is fitted around an inked drum. 2. A copy made by this method of duplication. — v. mim-e-o-graphed, mim-e-o-graph-ing, mim-e-o-graphs. — v. tr. To make (copies) on a mimeograph. — v. intr. To use a mimeograph. [Originally a trademark.] mi-me-sis (mī-mē'sīs, mī-) n. 1. The imitation or representation of aspects of the sensible world, especially human actions, in literature and art. 2. Biology. Mimicry. 3. Medicine. The appearance, often caused by hysteria, of symptoms of a disease not actually present. [Greek mimēsis, from mimeisthai, to imitate, from mimos, imitator, mime.]

mi·met·ic (mī-mēt'ik, mī-) adj. 1. Relating to, characteristic of, or exhibiting mimicry. 2. a. Of or relating to an imitation; imitative. b. Using imitative means of representation: a mimetic dance. [Greek mimētikos, from mimēsis, mimicry. See MIMESIS.] —mi·met'i·cal·ly adv.

mim·ic (mīm'ik) v. tr. mim·icked, mim·ick·ing, mim·ics. 1. To copy or imitate closely, especially in speech, expression, and gesture; ape. 2. To copy or imitate so as to ridicule; mock: always mimicking the boss. See Synonyms at imitate. 3. To resemble closely; simulate: an insect that mimics a twig. 4. To take on the appearance of. — n. 1. One who imitates, especially: a. An actor or actress in a mime. b. One who practices the art of mime. c. One who copies or mimics others, as for amusement. 2. A copy or an imitation. — adj. 1. Relating to, acting as, resembling, or characteristic of a mimic or mimicry. 2. a. Tending to imitate; imitative. b. Make-believe; mock: a mimic battle. [From Latin mīmicus, mimic, from Greek mimikos, from mimos, imitator, mime.] —mim'ick·er n.

mim·ic·ry (mīm'ī-krē) n. pl. mim·ic·ries. 1. a. The act, practice, or art of mimicking. b. An instance of mimicking. 2. Biology. The resemblance of one organism to another or to an object in its surroundings for concealment and protection from predators.

Mi·mir (mē'mîr') n. Mythology. A Norse giant who lived by the roots of Yggdrasil, where he guarded the well of wisdom. [Old Norse. See (s)mer¹ in Appendix.]

mi·mo·sa (mī-mō'sə, -zə) n. 1. Any of various mostly tropical herbs, shrubs, and trees of the genus Mimosa, having globular heads of small flowers with protruding stamens and usually bipinnate, compound leaves that are often sensitive to touch or light. 2. See silk tree. 3. A drink consisting of champagne and orange juice. [New Latin Mimosa, genus name, from Latin mīmus, mime (from the plant's apparent mimicry of animal reactions), from Greek mimos.]

min. abbr. 1. a. Mineralogical. b. Mineralogy. 2. Minim. 3. Minimum. 4. Mining. 5. Minister. 6. Minor. 7. Also min. Minute.

mi·na¹ (mī'nə) n. pl. mi·nas or mi·nae (-nē). A varying unit of weight or money used in ancient Greece and Asia. [Latin, from Greek mna, from Akkadian manû, a unit of weight.]

mi·na² (mī'nə) n. Variant of myna.

min·a·ble or mine·a·ble (mī'nə-bəl) adj. That can be mined: a minable seam of gold.

mi·na·cious (mī-nā'shəs) adj. Of a menacing or threatening nature; minatory. [Latin mināx, mināc- (from minārī, to threaten, from minae, threats); see men² in Appendix + -IOUS.] —mi·na'cious·ly adv. —mi·na'cious·ness, mi·nac'i·ty (mī-nās'ī-tē) n.

mi·nae (mī'nē) n. A plural of mina¹.

Min·a·ma·ta disease (mĭn'ə-mă'tə dĭ-zēz') n. A degenerative neurological disorder caused by poisoning with a mercury compound found in seafood obtained from waters contaminated with mercury-containing industrial waste.

[After Minamata, a town of western Kyushu, Japan.]

min·a·ret (mĭn'ə-rēt') n. A tall, slender tower on a mosque, having one or more projecting balconies from which a muezzin summons the people to prayer.

[French, from Turkish minārat, from Arabic manārah, lamp.]

Mi·nas Basin (mī'nəs bā'sĭn) An arm of the Bay of Fundy extending into west-central Nova Scotia, Canada. It is connected with the bay by the Minas Channel.

Mi·na·ti·tlán (mē'nə-tĭ-tlän', -nä-tē-) A town of southeast Mexico southeast of Veracruz. It has a petroleum refinery. Population, 106,765.

min·a·to·ry (mĭn'ə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) also min·a·to·ri·al (mĭn'ə-tōr'ē-əl, -tōr'-) adj. Of a menacing or threatening nature; minacious. [French minatoire, from Late Latin minātōrius, from Latin minātus, past participle of minārī, to threaten. See MINACIOUS.] —min'a-to'ri-ly adv.

min·au·dière (mē'nō-dyâr') n. pl. min·au·dières (-dyârz', -dyâr'). A small ornamental case for a woman's cosmetics, jewelry, or personal items that is often carried as a handbag. [French, from feminine of minaudier, affected, smirking, from minauder, to simper, smirk, from mine, appearance, countenance, from Old French, probably from Breton min, muzzle.]

mince (mĭns) v. minced, minc-ing, minc-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To cut or chop into very small pieces. b. To subdivide (land, for example) into minute parts. 2. To pronounce in an affected way, as with studied elegance and refinement. 3. To moderate or restrain (words) for the sake of politeness and decorum; euphemize: Don't mince words: say what you mean. — v. intr. 1. To walk with very short steps or with exaggerated primness. 2. To speak in an affected way. — n. Finely chopped food, especially mincemeat. [Middle English mincen, from Old French mincier, from Vulgar Latin minūtiāre*, from Latin minūtia, smallness. See MINUTIA.] —minc'er n.

mince-meat (mĭns'mēt') n. 1. A mixture, as of finely chopped apples, raisins, spices, meat, and sometimes rum or brandy, used especially as a pie filling.

2. Finely chopped meat. —idiom. make mincemeat of. Slang. To destroy utterly: made mincemeat of the opponent's argument.

Minch (mĭnch) A channel, divided into North Minch and Little Minch, separating northwest Scotland from the Outer Hebrides.

minc-ing (mĭn'sĭng) adj. Affectedly refined or dainty. —minc'ing-ly adv.

mind (mĭnd) n. 1. The human consciousness that originates in the brain and is manifested especially in thought, perception, emotion, will, memory, and imagination. 2. The collective conscious and unconscious processes in a sentient organism that direct and influence mental and physical behavior. 3. The principle of intelligence; the spirit of consciousness regarded as an aspect of reality. 4. The faculty of thinking, reasoning, and applying knowledge: Follow your mind, not your heart. 5. A person of great mental ability: the great minds of the century. 6. a. Individual consciousness, memory, or recollection: I'll bear the problem in mind. b. A person or group that embodies certain mental qualities: the medical mind; the public mind. c. The thought processes characteristic of a person or group; psychological makeup: the criminal mind. 7. Opinion or sentiment: He changed his mind when he heard all the facts. 8. Desire or inclination: She had a mind to spend her vacation in the desert. 9. Focus of thought; attention: I can't keep my mind on work. 10. A healthy mental state; sanity: losing one's mind. 11. Mind. Christian Science. The Deity regarded as the perfect intelligence ruling over all of divine creation. — v. mind-ed, mind-ing, minds. — v. tr. 1. To bring (an object or idea) to mind; remember. 2. a. To become aware of; notice. b. Upper Southern U.S. To have in mind as a goal or purpose; intend. 3. To heed in order to obey: The children mind well. 4. To attend to: Mind closely what I tell you. 5. To be careful about: Mind the icy sidewalk! 6. a. To care about; be concerned about. b. To object to; dislike: doesn't mind doing the chores. 7. To take care or charge of; look after. — v. intr. 1. To take notice; give heed. 2. To behave obediently. 3. To be concerned or troubled; care: "Not minding about bad food has become a national obsession" (Times Literary Supplement). 4. To be cautious or careful. [Middle English minde, from Old English gemynd. See men-¹ in Appendix.] — mind'er n.

SYNONYMS: mind, intellect, intelligence, brain, wit, reason. These nouns denote the faculty of thinking, reasoning, and acquiring and applying knowledge. Mind, opposed to heart, soul, or spirit, refers broadly to the capacities for thought, perception, memory, and decision: "No passion so effectually robs the mind of all its powers of acting and reasoning as fear" (Edmund Burke). Intellect stresses the capacity for knowing, thinking, and understanding as contrasted with feeling and willing: "Opinion is ultimately determined by the feelings, and not by the intellect" (Herbert Spencer). Intelligence implies the capacity for solving problems, learning from experience, and reasoning abstractly: "The world of the future will be an ever more demanding struggle against the limitations of our intelligence" (Norbert Wiener). Brain suggests strength of intellect: Anyone with a brain knows that overwork leads to decreased efficiency. Many of the most successful people are endowed with brains, talent, and perseverance. Wit stresses quickness of intelligence or facility of comprehension: "There is no such whetstone, to sharpen a good wit and encourage a will to learning, as is praise" (Roger Ascham). He lacks formal education but is adept at living by his wits. Reason, the capacity for logical, rational, and analytic thought, embraces comprehending, evaluating, and drawing conclusions: "I am sure that, since I have had the full use of my reason, nobody has ever heard me laugh” (Earl of Chesterfield). See also Synonyms at tend² mind-al-ter-ing (mīnd'ôl'tər-ĭng) adj. Producing mood changes or distorted perceptions; hallucinogenic: a mind-altering drug.

Min-da-na-o (mĭn'də-nā'ō, -nou') An island of the southern Philippines northeast of Borneo. The Mindanao Sea borders the island on the west.

mind-bend-ing (mīnd'bĕn'dĭng) adj. Informal. Intensely affecting the mind, especially to the extent of producing hallucinations. —mind'-bend'er n.

—mind'-bend'ing-ly adv.

mind-blow-ing (mīnd'blō'ĭng) adj. Informal. 1. Producing hallucinatory effects: mind-blowing drugs. 2. Intensely affecting the mind or emotions: a mind-blowing horror story. —mind'blow'er n.

mind-bog-gling (mīnd'bŏg'ĭng) adj. Informal. Intellectually or emotionally overwhelming: “a mind-boggling bazaar of competing manufacturers and overlapping technologies” (William D. Marbach). —mind'-bog'gler n.

mind-ed (mīn'dĭd) adj. 1. Disposed; inclined: I am not minded to answer any of your questions. 2. Having a specified kind of mind. Often used in combination: fair-minded; evil-minded. 3. Directed or oriented toward something specified. Often used in combination: civic-minded; career-minded. —mind'ed-ness n.

Min-den (mĭn'dən) 1. A city of northwest Germany on the Weser River south of Bremen. Settled in Roman times, it was founded c. 800 as a bishopric by Charlemagne. Minden joined the Hanseatic League in the 13th century and passed to Prussia in 1814. Population, 75,419. 2. A city of northwest Louisiana east-northeast of Shreveport. It is a shipping center in a lumber and natural gas area. Population, 15,074.

mind-ex-pand-ing (mīnd'ĭk-spăn'dĭng) adj. 1. Producing intensified or distorted perceptions; psychedelic. 2. Producing an increased perceptive awareness: The trip into the wilderness was a mind-expanding experience.

mind-ful (mīnd'fəl) adj. Attentive; heedful: always mindful of family responsibilities. See Synonyms at careful. —mind'ful-ly adv. —mind'ful-ness n.

mind-less (mīnd'lĭs) adj. 1. a. Lacking intelligence or good sense; foolish. b. Having no intelligent purpose, meaning, or direction: mindless violence. See Synonyms at meaningless. 2. Giving or showing little attention or care; heedless: mindless of the dangers. —mind'less-ly adv. —mind'less-ness n.

Min-do-ro (mĭn-dŏr'ō, -dŏr'ō) An island of the west-central Philippines south of Luzon. It was first visited by Spaniards in 1570.

mind reading (mīnd rĕ'dĭng) n. The faculty of discerning another's thoughts through extrasensory means of communication; telepathy. —mind reader n.

mind-scape (mīnd'skăp') n. 1. A mental or psychological scene or area of the imagination: “mindscaapes, in which memories from an American childhood mingle with those from the fantasy world of the films” (Grace Glueck). 2. A representation of such a scene or an area, as in a work of art.

mind-set or mind-set (mīnd/’sēt/) n. 1. A fixed mental attitude or disposition that predetermines a person’s responses to and interpretations of situations.

2. An inclination or a habit.

mind’s eye (mīndz ī) n. 1. The inherent mental ability to imagine or remember scenes. 2. The imagination.

mine¹ (mīn) n. 1. a. An excavation in the earth from which ore or minerals can be extracted. b. The site of such an excavation, with its surface buildings, elevator shafts, and equipment. 2. A deposit of ore or minerals in the earth or on its surface. 3. An abundant supply or source of something valuable: This guidebook is a mine of information. 4. a. A tunnel dug under an enemy emplacement to gain an avenue of attack or to lay explosives. b. An explosive device used to destroy enemy personnel, shipping, fortifications, or equipment, often placed in a concealed position and designed to be detonated by contact, proximity, or a time fuse. 5. A burrow or tunnel made by an insect, especially a corridor on a leaf made by a leaf miner. — v. mined, min-ing, mines. — v. tr. 1. a. To extract (ore or minerals) from the earth. b. To dig a mine in (the earth) to obtain ore or minerals. 2. a. To tunnel under (the earth or a surface feature). b. To make (a tunnel) by digging. 3. To lay explosive mines in or under. 4. To attack, damage, or destroy by underhand means; subvert. 5. To delve into and make use of; exploit: mine the archives for detailed information. — v. intr. 1. a. To excavate the earth for the purpose of extracting ore or minerals. b. To work in a mine. 2. To dig a tunnel under the earth, especially under an enemy emplacement or fortification. 3. To lay explosive mines. [Middle English, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin mīna*, probably of Celtic origin.]

mine² (mīn) pron. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Used to indicate the one or ones belonging to me: The green gloves are mine. If you can’t find your hat, take mine. — adj. A possessive form of I¹. Archaic. Used instead of my before an initial vowel or the letter h. [Middle English, from Old English mīn. See me⁻¹ in Appendix.]

mine-a-ble (mī/nə-bəl) adj. Variant of minable.

mine detector (mīn dī-tēk/tər) n. An electromagnetic device used to locate explosive mines. — mine detection n.

mine-field (mīn/’fēld/) n. An area in which explosive mines have been placed.

mine-lay-er (mīn/’lā’ər) n. A ship equipped for laying explosive underwater mines.

Min-e-o-la (mīn/’ē-ō/lə) A village of southeast New York on west-central Long Island. It is a residential community. Population, 18,994.

min-er (mī/nər) n. 1. One whose work or business it is to extract ore or minerals from the earth. 2. A machine for the automatic extraction of minerals, especially of coal. 3. A member of a military unit engaged in laying explosive mines.

4. Zoology. A leaf miner.

min·er·al (mĭn'ər-əl) n. 1. A naturally occurring, homogeneous inorganic solid substance having a definite chemical composition and characteristic crystalline structure, color, and hardness. 2. Any of various natural substances, as: a. An element, such as gold or silver. b. An organic derivative, such as coal or petroleum. c. A substance, such as stone, sand, salt, or coal, that is extracted or obtained from the ground or water and used in economic activities. 3. A substance that is neither animal nor vegetable; inorganic matter. 4. An inorganic element, such as calcium, iron, potassium, sodium, or zinc, that is essential to the nutrition of human beings, animals, and plants. 5. An ore. 6. minerals. Chiefly British. Mineral water. — adj. 1. Of or relating to minerals: a mineral deposit. 2. Impregnated with minerals. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin minerāle, from neuter of minerālis, pertaining to mines, from Old French miniere, mine, from mine. See MINE¹.]

min·er·al·ize (mĭn'ər-əl-īz') v. min·er·al·ized, min·er·al·iz·ing, min·er·al·iz·es. — v. tr. 1. To convert to a mineral substance; petrify. 2. To transform a metal into a mineral by oxidation. 3. To impregnate with minerals. — v. intr. 1. To develop or hasten mineral formation. 2. To collect or study minerals. — min'er·al·iz'able adj. — min'er·al·iz'a'tion (-ə-lī-zā'shən) n. — min'er·al·iz'er n.

mineral kingdom (mĭn'ər-əl kĭng'dəm) n. The group of natural objects and substances that are composed only of inorganic matter.

min·er·al·o·cor·ti·coid (mĭn'ər-ə-lō-kōr'tī-koid') n. Any of a group of steroid hormones, such as aldosterone, that are secreted by the adrenal cortex and regulate the balance of water and electrolytes in the body.

min·er·al·o·gy (mĭn'ə-rōl'ə-jē, -rāl'-) n. pl. min·er·al·o·gies. Abbr. min. 1. The study of minerals, including their distribution, identification, and properties. 2. A book or treatise on mineralogy. — min'er·a·log'i·cal (-ər-ə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj. — min'er·a·log'i·cal·ly adv. — min'er·al'o·gist n.

mineral oil (mĭn'ər-əl oil) n. 1. Any of various light hydrocarbon oils, especially a distillate of petroleum. 2. A refined distillate of petroleum, used as a laxative.

mineral tar (mĭn'ər-əl tär) n. Maltha.

mineral water (mĭn'ər-əl wō'tər) n. Naturally occurring or prepared water that contains dissolved mineral salts, elements, or gases, often used therapeutically.

mineral wax (mĭn'ər-əl wäks) n. Ozocerite.

mineral wool (mĭn'ər-əl wōōl) n. An inorganic fibrous substance that is produced by steam blasting and cooling molten glass or a similar substance and is used as an insulator and a filtering material. Also called rock wool min-er's lettuce (mī'nərz lět'əs) n. See winter purslane.

Mi-ner-va (mī-nûr'və) n. Roman Mythology. The goddess of wisdom, invention, the arts, and martial prowess. [Latin. See men⁻¹ in Appendix.]

mine-shaft (mīn'shăft') n. A vertical, sloping passageway made in the earth for finding or mining ore and ventilating underground excavations.

min-e-stro-ne (mīn'ī-strō'nē) n. A thick soup of Italian origin containing assorted vegetables, beans, pasta such as vermicelli or macaroni, and herbs in a meat or vegetable broth. [Italian, augmentative of minestra, dish consisting of pasta, rice, vegetables or beans cooked in water, from Old Italian, from minestrare, to dish up, serve this dish, from Latin ministrāre, to serve food, from minister, servant. See mei⁻² in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: The thick vegetable soup known as minestrone did not come by its name because of its ingredients or their shape but rather because of service, something highly valued by many restaurant patrons. Minestrone is from the Italian word of the same form and sense, which in turn is derived from minestra, meaning “a dish generally consisting of pasta, rice, beans, or vegetables cooked in water.” Minestra has been borrowed into English as well, being first recorded in 1750, while minestrone is first found in 1891. The Italian word minestra is from the verb minestrare, meaning “to serve this type of soup” or “dish up,” which goes back to the Latin verb ministrāre, “to serve food,” from Latin minister, “servant.”

mine-sweep-er (mīn'swēp'ər) n. A ship equipped for detecting, destroying, removing, or neutralizing explosive marine mines. —mine/sweep'ing n.

mine-work-er (mīn'wûr'kər) n. One who works in a mine; a miner.

Ming (mīng) A Chinese dynasty (1368-1644) noted for its flourishing foreign trade, achievements in scholarship, and development of the arts, especially in porcelain, textiles, and painting. —Ming adj.

min-gle (mīng'gəl) v. min-gled, min-gling, min-gles. — v. tr. 1. To mix or bring together in combination, usually without loss of individual characteristics. See Synonyms at mix. 2. To mix so that the components become united; merge. — v. intr. 1. To be or become mixed or united. 2. To join or take part with others: The alumnae mingled with the trustees. [Middle English menglen, frequentative of mengen, to mix, from Old English mengan. See mag- in Appendix.]

—min'gler n.

min-gy (mīn'jē) adj. min-gi-er, min-gi-est. Informal. 1. Small in quantity; meager: mingy wages. 2. Mean and stingy. [Perhaps from M(EAN)² + (ST)INGY.]

Mi-nho (mē'nyōō) or Mi-ño (-nyô) A river flowing about 338 km (210 mi) from northwest Spain south and southwest to the Atlantic Ocean. Its lower course forms part of the border between Spain and Portugal.

min·i (mĭn'ē) n. pl. min·is. 1. Something, such as a minicomputer, that is distinctively smaller than other members of its type or class. 2. A miniskirt.

—min'i adj.

mini- pref. Small; miniature: minicar. [From MINIATURE, and MINIMUM.]

min·i·a·ture (mĭn'ē-ə-choōr', -chər, mĭn'ə-) n. 1. a. A copy or model that represents or reproduces something in a greatly reduced size. b. Something small of its class. 2. a. A small painting executed with great detail, often on a surface such as ivory or vellum. b. A small portrait, picture, or decorative letter on an illuminated manuscript. c. The art of painting miniatures. — adj. Being on a small or greatly reduced scale. See Synonyms at small. [Italian miniatura, illumination of manuscripts, small painting, from miniare, to illuminate, from Latin miniāre, to color red, from minium, red lead.] —min'i·a·tur'ist n.

miniature golf (mĭn'ē-ə-choōr' gölf) n. Games. A novelty version of golf played with a putter and golf ball on a miniature course and featuring obstacles such as alleys, bridges, and tunnels.

min·i·a·tur·ize (mĭn'ē-ə-čə-rīz', mĭn'ə-) v. tr. min·i·a·tur·ized, min·i·a·tur·iz·ing, min·i·a·tur·iz·es. To plan or make on a greatly reduced scale. —min'i·a·tur'i·za'tion (-chər-ĭ-zā'shən) n.

miniature pinscher (mĭn'ē-ə-choōr' pĭn'shər) n. Any of a breed of small dogs resembling the Doberman pinscher but typically reaching a height of only 25-30 centimeters (10-12 inches).

miniature schnauzer (mĭn'ē-ə-choōr' shnou'zər) n. Any of a breed of small schnauzers typically standing 30-35 centimeters (12-14 inches) high.

min·i·bar (mĭn'ē-bär') n. A small refrigerator, as in a hotel room, stocked with liquor and nonalcoholic beverages. Also called servibar min·i·bike (mĭn'ē-bĭk') n. A small motorbike having a low frame, small wheels, and elevated handlebars. [Originally a trademark.] —min'i·bik'er n.

min·i·bus (mĭn'ē-būs') n. pl. min·i·bus·es or min·i·bus·ses. A small bus typically used for short trips.

min·i·cab (mĭn'ē-kăb') n. A minicar used as a taxicab, especially in England.

min·i·cam (mĭn'ē-kăm') n. A small, portable television camera used especially for on-the-scene videotaping.

min·i·car (mĭn'ē-kär') n. A very small car, especially a subcompact.

min·i·com·put·er (mĭn'ē-kəm-pyōō'tər) n. Computer Science. A small computer, usually fitting within a single cabinet, that has more memory and a higher execution speed than a microcomputer.

Min·i·con·jou also Min·ne·con·jou (mĭn'ĭ-kōn'jōō) n. pl. Miniconjou or Min·i·con·jous also Minneconjou or Min·ne·con·jous. 1. A Native American people constituting a subdivision of the Teton Sioux, formerly inhabiting an area from the Black Hills to the Platte River, with a present-day population in west-central South Dakota. 2. A member of this people.

min·i·con·ven·tion (mĭn'ē-kən-vĕn'shən) n. A convention limited in size or extent, especially a political convention preliminary to a larger or national convention.

min·i·course (mĭn'ē-kōrs', -kōrs') n. A short, usually intensive course on a subject of study.

Mi·ni·coy Island (mĭn'ī-koi' ī'lənd) An island in the Arabian Sea off the southwest coast of India. It is part of the region of Lakshadweep.

min·ié ball (mĭn'ē bôl, mĭn'ē-ā') n. A conical rifle bullet used in the 19th century and designed with a hollow base that expanded when fired. [After Claude Étienne Minié (1814?-1879), French army officer.]

min·i·fy (mĭn'ə-fī') v. tr. min·i·fied, min·i·fy·ing, min·i·fies. To make smaller or less significant; reduce. [MIN(IMUM) + (MAGN)IFY.]

min·i·kin (mĭn'ī-kĭn) n. Archaic. A very small delicate creature. [Obsolete Dutch minneken, darling, from Middle Dutch, diminutive of minne, love. See men¹ in Appendix.]

min·im (mĭn'əm) n. 1. Abbr. min., M. A unit of fluid measure, as: a. In the United States, 60 of a fluid dram (0.0616 milliliters). b. In Great Britain, 20 of a scruple (0.0592 milliliters). 2. Music. A half note. 3. An insignificantly small portion or thing. 4. A downward vertical stroke in handwriting. [Middle English, half note, from Medieval Latin minimus, least, from Latin.]

min·i·ma (mĭn'ə-mə) n. A plural of minimum.

min·i·mal (mĭn'ə-məl) adj. 1. a. Smallest in amount or degree. b. Small in amount or degree. c. Only barely adequate. 2. Often Minimal. Of, relating to, or being minimalism. —min'·i·mal'·i·ty (-məl'ī-tē) n. —min'·i·mal·ly adv.

USAGE NOTE: Etymologically, minimal is properly used to refer to the smallest possible amount, as in The amplifier reduces distortion to the minimal level that can be obtained with present technologies. In recent years, however, the word has come to be used to refer simply to a small amount, as in If you would just put in a minimal amount of time on your homework, I am sure your grades would improve. Critics have often objected to this extension, but it appears to be well established. To determine the acceptability of the newer use, we presented the Usage Panel with the sentence Alcohol has a particularly unpleasant effect on me when I have a minimal amount of food in my stomach. Under the strict interpretation of minimal, this sentence should mean only “Alcohol has an unpleasant effect when I have eaten nothing.” If the looser interpretation is allowed, however, the sentence can also mean “... when I have eaten a bit.” Presented with the sentence, 29 percent of the Usage Panel said that it could have only the “eaten nothing” (that is, the strict) interpretation; 34 percent said that it could have only the “eaten a bit” (that is, the looser) interpretation; and 37 percent said that it could have either meaning. Thus the looser sense of minimal is accepted by 71 percent of the Panel and must be considered acceptable in nontechnical use. • In an analogous shift, the verb minimize is often used to mean “to reduce,” an extension of its strict etymological sense of “to reduce to the smallest possible level.” This looser usage is the result of the imprecision that usually attaches to the use of the verb in most nontechnical contexts. When a manager announces that The company wants to minimize the risk of accidents to line workers, we naturally interpret the manager as meaning that the risk is to be reduced to the smallest level consistent with considerations of efficiency and cost, not that risks are to be reduced to the lowest level logically possible. Even when used with allowable imprecision, however, the verb minimize should carry some implication that the relevant quantity is reduced as much as could reasonably be expected in the circumstances. Thus minimize retains at least an approximately superlative sense and so is inconsistent with modification by adverbs such as greatly or considerably, which imply that the verb is being used as a simple synonym for lessen or reduce.

minimal art (mĭn'ə-məl ärt) n. See minimalism (n., sense 1). —minimal artist n.

min·i·mal·ism (mĭn'ə-mə-lĭz'əm) n. 1. A school of abstract painting and sculpture that emphasizes extreme simplification of form, as by the use of basic shapes and monochromatic palettes of primary colors, objectivity, and anonymity of style. Also called ABC art, minimal art, reductivism, rejective art. 2. Use of the fewest and barest essentials or elements, as in the arts, literature, or design. 3. Music. A school or mode of contemporary music marked by extreme simplification of rhythms and patterns, prolonged chordal or melodic repetitions, and often the achievement of a throbbing, trancelike effect.

min·i·mal·ist (mĭn'ə-mə-lĭst) n. 1. One who advocates a moderate or conservative approach, action, or policy, as in a political or governmental organization. 2. A practitioner of minimalism. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, characteristic of, or in the style of minimalism. 2. Being or providing a bare minimum of what is necessary.

min·i·mal·ize (mĭn'ə-mə-lĭz') v. tr. min·i·mal·ized, min·i·mal·iz·ing, min·i·mal·iz·es. To make minimal. —min'·i·mal·i·za'tion (-mə-lĭ-zā'shən) n.

min·i·max (mĭn'ə-mäks') adj. Of or relating to the strategy in game theory that minimizes the maximum risk for a player. [MINI(MUM) + MAX(IMUM).]

min·i·mill (mĭn'ē-mĭl') n. A small mill or plant, especially a steel mill that uses electric furnaces to produce steel from scrap.

min·i·mize (mĭn'ə-mĭz') v. tr. min·i·mized, min·i·miz·ing, min·i·miz·es. 1. a. To reduce to the smallest possible amount, extent, size, or degree. b. Usage Problem. To reduce. See Usage Note at minimal. 2. To represent as having the least degree of importance, value, or size: minimized the magnitude of the crisis.

See Synonyms at decry. [From MINIMUM.] —min' i-mi-za'tion (-mī-zā'shən) n. —min' i-miz'er n.

min-i-mum (mĭn'ə-məm) n. pl. min-i-mums or min-i-ma (-mə). Abbr. min.

1. a. The least possible quantity or degree. b. The lowest degree or amount reached or recorded; the lower limit of variation. 2. A lower limit permitted by law or other authority. 3. A sum of money set by a nightclub or restaurant as the least amount each patron must spend on food and drink. 4. Mathematics. a. The smallest number in a finite set of numbers. b. A value of a function that is less than any other value of the function over a specific interval. — adj. Of, consisting of, or representing the lowest possible amount or degree permissible or attainable. [Latin, from neuter of minimus, least. See mei-² in Appendix.]

min-i-mum-se-cu-ri-ty (mĭn'ə-məm-sĭ-kyŭr'ĭ-tē) adj. Having fewer restrictions than others of its kind: a minimum-security prison; a minimum-security air force base.

minimum wage (mĭn'ə-məm wāj) n. 1. The lowest wage, determined by law or contract, that an employer may pay an employee for a specified job. 2. See living wage.

min-ing (mī'nĭŋ) n. Abbr. min. 1. The process or business of extracting ore or minerals from the ground. 2. The process of laying explosive mines.

min-ion (mĭn'yən) n. 1. An obsequious follower or dependent; a sycophant. 2. A subordinate official. 3. One who is highly esteemed or favored; a darling. [French mignon, darling, from Old French mignot, mignon.]

min-i-park (mĭn'ē-pärk') n. A very small park in a usually large city. Also called pocket park min-i-school (mĭn'ē-skŏl') n. 1. An alternative school offering specialized or one-on-one instruction. 2. A small school serving as an addition to or an extension of a larger one.

min-is-cule (mĭn'ĭ-skyŏl') adj. Variant of minuscule.

min-i-se-ries (mĭn'ē-sĭr'ēz) n. pl. miniseries. 1. A televised dramatic production, as of a novel or film, shown in a number of episodes. 2. Sports. A short series of performances or athletic contests.

min-i-ski (mĭn'ē-skē') n. pl. min-i-skis. Sports. A short ski used by beginners or skibobbers.

min-i-skirt (mĭn'ē-skŭrt') n. A short skirt with a hemline that falls above the knee. —min' i-skirt'ed adj.

min-i-state (mĭn'ē-stāt') n. See microstate.

min-is-ter (mĭn'ĭ-stər) n. Abbr. min. 1. a. One who is authorized to perform religious functions in a Christian church, especially a Protestant church. b. Roman Catholic Church. The superior in certain orders. 2. A high officer of state appointed to head an executive or administrative department of government. 3. An authorized diplomatic representative of a government, usually ranking next below an ambassador. 4. A person serving as an agent for another by carrying out specified orders or functions. — v. min-is-tered, min-is-ter-ing, min-is-ters. — v. intr. 1. To attend to the wants and needs of others: Volunteers ministered to the homeless after the flood. See Synonyms at tend². 2. To perform the functions of a cleric. — v. tr. To administer or dispense, as a sacrament. [Middle English, from Old French ministre, from Latin minister, servant. See mei-² in Appendix.]

min-is-te-ri-al (mĭn'ĭ-stĭr'ē-əl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a minister of religion or of the ministry. 2. Of or relating to administrative and executive duties and functions of government. 3. Law. Of, relating to, or being a mandatory act or duty admitting of no personal discretion or judgment in its performance. 4. Acting or serving as an agent; instrumental.
—min'is-te'ri-al-ly adv.

minister plenipotentiary (mĭn'ĭ-stər plĕn'ə-pə-tĕn'shē-ĕr'ē) n. pl. min-isters plenipotentiary. A diplomatic representative ranking below an ambassador but having full governmental power and authority; a plenipotentiary.

minister resident (mĭn'ĭ-stər rĕz'ĭ-dənt) n. pl. ministers resident. A diplomatic agent ranking below a minister plenipotentiary.

min-is-trant (mĭn'ĭ-strənt) n. One who ministers. — adj. Archaic. Serving attendance on someone. [From Latin ministrāns, ministrant- present participle of ministrāre, to serve, from minister, servant. See MINISTER.]

min-is-tra-tion (mĭn'ĭ-strā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of serving or aiding. 2. The act of performing the duties of a cleric. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin ministrātiō, ministrātiōn-, from ministrātus, past participle of ministrāre, to serve, from minister, servant. See MINISTER.] —min'is-tra'tive adj.

min-i-stroke (mĭn'ē-strōk') n. See transient ischemic attack.

min-is-try (mĭn'ĭ-strē) n. pl. min-is-tries. 1. a. The act of serving; ministrations. b. One that serves as a means; an instrumentality. 2. a. The profession, duties, and services of a minister. b. The Christian clergy. c. The period of service of a minister. 3. a. A governmental department presided over by a minister. b. The building in which such a department is housed. c. The duties, functions, or term of a governmental minister. d. Often Ministry. Governmental ministers considered as a group. [Middle English ministerie, from Old French ministere, from Latin ministerium, from minister, servant. See mei-² in Appendix.]

min-i-track (mĭn'ē-trāk') n. An electronic system designed to follow the course of satellites and rockets and correlate radio signals received by a network of ground stations.

min-i-um (mĭn'ē-əm) n. Red lead. [Latin.]

min-i-van (mĭn'ē-vān') n. A small passenger van having a boxlike shape, side and rear windows, and typically removable rear seats for cargo.

min·i-ver (mĭn'ə-vər) n. A white or light gray fur used as a trim on medieval robes and on ceremonial robes of state. [Middle English meniver, from Old French menu vair, small vair : menu, small; see MINUET + vair, vair; see VAIR.]

mink (mĭngk) n. pl. mink or minks. 1. Any of various semiaquatic carnivores of the genus Mustela, especially M. vison of North America, resembling the weasel and having short ears, a pointed snout, short legs, and partly webbed toes.

2. a. The soft, thick, lustrous fur of this animal. b. A coat, stole, or hat made of the fur of this animal. [Middle English, mink fur, possibly of Scandinavian origin.]

min·ke whale (mĭng'kē hwāl) n. See piked whale. [Partial translation of Norwegian minkehval : minke (perhaps after Meincke, member of a 19th-century Norwegian whaling crew) + hval, whale.]

Minn. abbr. Minnesota.

Min·nan (mĭ-nān') n. The dialect of Chinese spoken on most of Taiwan, in southern Fujian province, and in parts of Guangzhou and Hainan. Minnan is the vernacular of most traditional Chinese communities outside China. [Chinese (Mandarin) mĭn nán : mĭn, Fujian Province + nán, south.]

Min·ne-ap·o·lis (mĭn'ē-ăp'ə-lis) A city of southeast Minnesota on the Mississippi River adjacent to St. Paul. The largest city in the state, it was a leading lumbering center in the 19th century and today is a port of entry and major industrial hub. Population, 368,383.

Min·ne-con·jou (mĭn'ĭ-kŏn'jōō) n. Variant of Miniconjou.

min·ne-sing·er (mĭn'ĭ-sĭng'ər, -zĭng'-) n. One of the German lyric poets and singers in the troubadour tradition who flourished from the 12th to the 14th century. [German, from Middle High German : minne, love (from Old High German minna); see men⁻¹ in Appendix + singer, singer (from singen, to sing, from Old High German singan); see seng^{wh-} in Appendix.]

Min·ne-so·ta (mĭn'ĭ-sō'tə) Abbr. MN, Minn. A state of the northern United States bordering on Lake Superior and on Manitoba and Ontario, Canada. It was admitted as the 32nd state in 1858. First explored by the French in the mid-17th century, the area became part of the United States through the Treaty of Paris (1783) and the Louisiana Purchase (1803). St. Paul is the capital and Minneapolis the largest city. Population, 4,387,029. —Min'ne-so'tan adj. & n.

Minnesota River (mĭn'ĭ-sō'tə rĭv'ər) A river, about 534 km (332 mi) long, of southern Minnesota flowing southeast and northeast to the Mississippi River near St. Paul.

Min·ne-ton·ka (mĭn'ĭ-tŏng'kə) A city of southeast Minnesota, a residential suburb of Minneapolis. Population, 48,370.

Min·ne-wit (mĭn'ə-wĭt), Peter. See Peter Minit.

min·now (mĭn'ō) n. pl. minnow or minnows. 1. Any of a large group of small, freshwater fishes of the family Cyprinidae, widely used as live bait. 2. Any of various other small, often silver-colored fishes. [Middle English meneu. See men-⁴ in Appendix.]

Mi·ño (mē'nyô) See Minho.

Mi·no·an (mī-nō'ən) adj. Of or relating to the advanced Bronze Age culture that flourished in Crete from about 3000 to 1100 B.C. — n. A native or inhabitant of ancient Crete. [From Latin Mīnōus, of Minos, from Greek Minōios, from Minōs, Minos.]

mi·nor (mī'nər) adj. Abbr. min. 1. Lesser or smaller in amount, extent, or size. 2. Lesser in importance, rank, or stature: a minor politician. 3. Lesser in seriousness or danger: a minor injury. 4. Law. Being under legal age; not yet a legal adult. 5. Chiefly British. Relating to or being the junior or younger of two pupils with the same surname. 6. Of or relating to a secondary area of academic specialization. 7. Logic. Dealing with a more restricted category. 8. Music.

a. Relating to or being a minor scale. b. Less in distance by a half step than the corresponding major interval. c. Based on a minor scale: a minor key. — n.

1. One that is lesser in comparison with others of the same class. 2. Law. One who has not reached full legal age. 3. a. A secondary area of specialized academic study, requiring fewer courses or credits than a major. b. One studying in a secondary area of specialization: She is a chemistry minor. 4. Logic. a. A minor premise. b. A minor term. 5. Music. A minor key, scale, or interval. 6. minors. Sports. The minor leagues of a sport, especially baseball. — v. intr. mi·nored, mi·nor·ing, mi·nors. To pursue academic studies in a minor field: minored in literature. [Middle English, from Latin. See mei-² in Appendix.]

Mi·nor·ca¹ (mī-nôr'kə) also Me·nor·ca (mə-nôr'kə, mĕ-nôr'kă) A Spanish island in the Balearics of the western Mediterranean Sea. Held by the British and the French at various times during the 18th century, it was a Loyalist stronghold in the Spanish Civil War. — Mi·nor·can adj. & n.

Mi·nor·ca² (mī-nôr'kə) n. A domestic fowl of a breed originating in the Mediterranean region and having white or black plumage. [After Minorca¹.]

Mi·nor·ite (mī'nə-rīt') n. A Franciscan friar. [From Medieval Latin (Frātrēs) Minōrēs, minor (friars), from Latin minōrēs, pl. of minor, lesser. See MINOR.]

mi·nor·i·ty (mə-nôr'ī-tē, -nôr'-, mī-) n. pl. mi·nor·i·ties. 1. a. The smaller in number of two groups forming a whole. b. A group or party having fewer than a controlling number of votes. 2. a. A racial, religious, political, national, or other group regarded as different from the larger group of which it is part. b. A member of such a group. See Usage Note at color. 3. The state or period of being under legal age: still in her minority. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: the minority vote; minority political concerns. [French minorité, from Medieval Latin minōritās, from Latin minor, smaller. See MINOR.] minority leader (mə-nôr'ī-tē lē'dər) n. The head of the minority party in a legislative body.

minor league (mī'nər lēg) n. Sports. A league of professional sports clubs, especially baseball, not belonging to the major leagues.

mi·nor-league (mī'nər-lēg') adj. 1. Sports. Relating or belonging to a minor league. 2. Of subordinate position or importance: a minor-league politician.

mi·nor-leagu·er (mī'nər-lē'gər) n. A member of a minor-league team, especially a minor-league baseball player.

minor order (mī'nər ôr'dər) n. Ecclesiastical. One of the lower grades of the priesthood or ministry in some Christian churches, now consisting of lectors and acolytes in the Western church and of lectors and cantors in the Eastern. Often used in the plural.

minor planet (mī'nər plăn'it) n. See asteroid (n., sense 1).

minor premise (mī'nər prēm'is) n. Logic. The premise in a syllogism containing the minor term, which will form the subject of the conclusion.

Mi·nor Prophets (mī'nər prôf'īts) pl.n. The Hebrew prophets Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah, Nahum, Habakkuk, Zephaniah, Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi.

minor scale (mī'nər skāl) n. Music. A diatonic scale having an interval of a minor third between the first and third tones and several forms with different intervals above the fifth.

minor suit (mī'nər sōt) n. Games. The suit of clubs or of diamonds in bridge, both having a lower scoring value.

minor term (mī'nər tûrm) n. Logic. The term in a syllogism that is stated in the minor premise and forms the subject of the conclusion.

Mi·nos (mī'nəs, -nōs') n. Greek Mythology. A king of Crete, the son of Zeus and Europa, who was made one of the three judges in the underworld after his death.

Mi·not (mī'nōt') A city of northwest-central North Dakota north-northwest of Bismarck. It is a commercial and distribution center in an agricultural area. Population, 34,544.

Mi·not (mī'nət), George Richards. 1885-1950. American physician. He shared a 1934 Nobel Prize for discovering that a diet of liver relieves anemia.

Min·o·taur (mĭn'ə-tôr', mī'nə-) n. Greek Mythology. A monster who was half man and half bull, to whom young Athenian men and women were sacrificed in the Cretan labyrinth until Theseus killed him.

Minsk (mĭnsk, myēnsk) The capital of Belarus, in the central part of the country. First mentioned in 1067, it was ruled from the 13th to the 18th century by various powers, including Lithuania, Russia, Poland, and Sweden. Population, 1,472,000.

min·ster (mĭn'stər) n. Chiefly British. A monastery church. [Middle English, from Old English mynster, from Vulgar Latin monistĕrium*, from Late Latin monastĕrium, monastery. See MONASTERY.]

min-strel (mĭn'strəl) n. 1. A medieval entertainer who traveled from place to place, especially to sing and recite poetry. 2. a. A lyric poet. b. A musician. 3. a. One of a troupe of entertainers made up in blackface and presenting a comic variety show. b. A performance of such a show. [Middle English minstral, from Old French menestrel, servant, entertainer, from Late Latin ministeriālis, official in the imperial household, from Latin ministerium, ministry. See MINISTRY.]

minstrel show (mĭn'strəl shō) n. A comic variety show in which a troupe of actors made up in blackface present jokes, songs, dances, and comic skits.

min-strel-sy (mĭn'strəl-sē) n. pl. min-strel-sies. 1. The art or profession of a minstrel. 2. A troupe of minstrels. 3. Ballads and lyrics sung by minstrels. [Middle English minstralsie, from Anglo-Norman menestralsie, from Old French menestrel, entertainer. See MINSTREL.]

mint¹ (mĭnt) n. 1. A place where the coins of a country are manufactured by authority of the government. 2. A place or source of manufacture or invention. 3. An abundant amount, especially of money. — v. tr. mint-ed, mint-ing, mints. 1. To produce (money) by stamping metal; coin. 2. To invent or fabricate: a phrase that was minted for one occasion. — adj. Undamaged as if freshly minted: The painting was in mint condition. [Middle English, from Old English mynet, coin, from Latin monēta. See MONEY.] —mint'er n.

mint² (mĭnt) n. 1. A member of the mint family. 2. a. Any of various plants of the genus Mentha, characteristically having aromatic foliage and nearly regular flowers. Some plants are cultivated for their aromatic oil and used for flavoring. b. The fresh, dried foliage of some of these plants. 3. Any of various similar or related plants, such as the stone mint. 4. A candy flavored with mint. [Middle English mintē, from Old English, from Germanic mintā*, from Latin menta, possibly from Greek minthē.] —mint'y adj.

mint-age (mĭn'tij) n. 1. The act or process of minting coins. 2. Coins manufactured in a mint. 3. The fee paid to a mint by a government. 4. The impression stamped on a coin.

mint family (mĭnt fām'ə-lē) n. A large family of aromatic herbs, the Labiatae (or Lamiaceae), including lavender, mint, rosemary, sage, and thyme and characterized by opposite leaves, square stems, bilaterally symmetrical flowers with united petals, and a four-lobed ovary that produces four one-seeded nutlets.

mint julep (mĭnt jōō'lĭp) n. A tall, frosted drink made of bourbon whiskey or sometimes brandy or rum, sugar, crushed mint leaves, and shaved ice.

mint-mark (mĭnt'märk') n. A letter or symbol on a coin that identifies the mint of origin.

Min-ton (mĭn'tən), Sherman. 1890-1965. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1949-1956).

min·u·end (mĭn'yoō-ĕnd') n. Mathematics. The quantity from which another quantity, the subtrahend, is to be subtracted. In the equation $50 - 16 = 34$, the minuend is 50. [Latin minuendum, thing to be diminished, neuter gerundive of minuere, to lessen. See mei⁻² in Appendix.]

min·u·et (mĭn'yoō-ĕt') n. 1. A slow, stately pattern dance in 3/4 time for groups of couples, originating in 17th-century France. 2. The music for or in the rhythm of the minuet. [French menuet, from Old French, small, dainty (from the small steps characteristic of the dance), diminutive of menu, small, from Latin minūtus. See MINUTE².]

Min·u·it (mĭn'yoō-ĭt) also Min·ne·wit (-ə-wĭt), Peter. 1580-1638. Dutch colonial administrator who purchased Manhattan from Native Americans for the equivalent of $24.

mi·nus (mī'nəs) prep. 1. Mathematics. Reduced by the subtraction of; less: Nine minus three is six. 2. Informal. Without: I went to work minus my briefcase. — adj. 1. Mathematics. Negative or on the negative part of a scale: a minus value; minus five degrees. 2. Ranking on the lower end of a designated scale: a grade of A minus. — n. 1. Mathematics. a. The minus sign (-). b. A negative quantity. 2. A deficiency or defect. [Middle English, from Latin minus, comparative of minor, less. See mei⁻² in Appendix.]

min·us·cule (mĭn'ə-skyōōl', mĭ-nŭs'kyōōl') also min·is·cule (mĭn'ĭ-skyōōl') adj. 1. Very small; tiny. See Synonyms at small. 2. Of, relating to, or written in miniscule. — n. 1. A small, cursive script developed from uncial between the seventh and ninth centuries and used in medieval manuscripts. 2. A letter written in minuscule. 3. A lowercase letter. [French, from Latin minusculus, rather small, diminutive of minus neuter of minor, smaller. See mei⁻² in Appendix.] — mi·nus·cu·lar (mĭ-nŭs'kyə-lər) adj.

minus sign (mī'nəs sĭn) n. Mathematics. The symbol -, as in $4 - 2 = 2$, that is used to indicate subtraction or a negative quantity.

min·ute¹ (mĭn'ĭt) n. Abbr. min., min 1. A unit of time equal to one sixtieth of an hour, or 60 seconds. 2. A unit of angular measurement equal to one sixtieth of a degree, or 60 seconds. Also called minute of arc 3. A measure of the distance one can cover in a minute: lives ten minutes from school. 4. A short interval of time; moment. See Synonyms at moment. 5. A specific point in time: Stop that this minute! 6. A note or summary covering points to be remembered; a memorandum. 7. minutes. An official record of the proceedings at a meeting. — v. tr. min·ut·ed, min·ut·ing, min·utes. To record in a memorandum or the minutes of a meeting. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin (pars) minūta (prīma), (first) minute (part), from Latin minūta, feminine of minūtus, small. See MINUTE².] mi·nute² (mī-nōōt', -nyōōt', mĭ-) adj. 1. Exceptionally small; tiny. See Synonyms at small. 2. Beneath notice; insignificant. 3. Characterized by careful scrutiny and close examination: held a minute inspection of the grounds. See Synonyms at detailed. [Middle English, from Latin minūtus, past participle of minuere, to lessen. See mei-² in Appendix.] —mi-nute/ness n.

min-ute hand (mɪn'ɪt hænd) n. The long hand on a clock or watch that indicates minutes.

mi-nute-ly¹ (mī-nōōt'lē, -nyōōt'-, mī-) adv. 1. With attention to small details. 2. On a very small scale. 3. Into tiny pieces.

min-ute-ly² (mɪn'ɪt-lē) adj. Archaic. On a minute-by-minute basis.

min-ute-man (mɪn'ɪt-mæn') n. An armed man pledged to be ready to fight on a minute's notice just before and during the Revolutionary War in the United States.

min-ute of arc (mɪn'ɪt ūv ärk) n. See minute¹ (n., sense 2).

min-ute steak (mɪn'ɪt stāk) n. A small thin steak, often scored or cubed, that can be cooked quickly.

mi-nu-ti-a (mī-nōō'shē-ə, -shə, -nyōō'-) n. pl. mi-nu-ti-ae (-shē-ē'). A small or trivial detail: "the minutiae of experimental and mathematical procedure" (Frederick Turner). [From Late Latin minūtiae, petty details, from Latin minūtia, smallness, from minūtus, small. See MINUTE².]

minx (mɪŋks) n. 1. A girl or young woman who is considered pert, flirtatious, or impudent. 2. Obsolete. A promiscuous woman. [Origin unknown.] —minx'ish adj.

min-yan (mɪn'yæn, mēn-yän') n. pl. min-ya-nim (mēn-yä-nēm', mɪn-yô'nīm) or min-yans (mɪn'yənz). A minimum of ten Jews or, among the Orthodox, Jewish men required for a communal religious service. [Hebrew minyān, number, minyan.]

Mi-o-cene (mī'ə-sēn') adj. Of, belonging to, or characteristic of the geologic time, rock series, and sedimentary deposits of the fourth epoch of the Tertiary Period, characterized by the development of grasses and grazing mammals. — n. 1. The Miocene Epoch. 2. The deposits of the Miocene Epoch. [Greek meiōn, less; see mei-² in Appendix + -CENE.]

mi-o-sis also my-o-sis (mī-ō'sis) n. pl. mi-o-ses (-sēz). Constriction of the pupil of the eye, resulting from a normal response to an increase in light or caused by certain drugs or pathological conditions. [Greek muein, to close the eyes + -OSIS.]

mi-ot-ic (mī-ōt'ik) n. A substance that causes constriction of the pupil of the eye. — adj. Characterized by, involving, or causing miosis. [From MIOSIS.]

MIP abbr. Monthly investment plan.

Mi-que-lon (mɪk'ə-lŏn', mēk-lŏn') A French island in the Atlantic Ocean off the southern coast of Newfoundland, Canada. It is part of the overseas department of St. Pierre and Miquelon.

mir (mîr) n. A village community of peasant farmers in prerevolutionary Russia. [Russian, commune, peace, from Old Church Slavonic mirŭ, peace, possibly of Iranian origin.]

Mi-ra-beau (mîr'ə-bō', mē-rä-bō'), Comte de Title of Honoré Gabriel Victor Riqueti. 1749-1791. French revolutionist. As a member of the States-General (1789-1791) he attempted to create a constitutional monarchy.

mi-ra-bi-le dic-tu (mī-rä'bī-lē dīk'tōō) interj. Wonderful to relate. [Latin mīrābile dictū: mīrābile, neuter sing. of mīrābilis, wonderful + dictū, ablative sing. supine of dīcere, to say.]

mir-a-cle (mīr'ə-kəl) n. 1. An event that appears inexplicable by the laws of nature and so is held to be supernatural in origin or an act of God: "Miracles are spontaneous, they cannot be summoned, but come of themselves" (Katherine Anne Porter). 2. One that excites admiring awe. See Synonyms at wonder. 3. A miracle play. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin mīrāculum, from mīrārī, to wonder at, from mīrus, wonderful. See smei- in Appendix.]

miracle drug (mīr'ə-kəl drŭg) n. A usually new drug that proves extraordinarily effective. Also called wonder drug miracle play (mīr'ə-kəl plā) n. A medieval drama portraying events in the lives of saints and martyrs.

mi-rac-u-lous (mī-rāk'yə-ləs) adj. 1. Of the nature of a miracle; preternatural. 2. So astounding as to suggest a miracle; phenomenal: a miraculous recovery; a miraculous escape. 3. Able to work miracles. [Middle English miraculous, from Old French miraculeux, from Medieval Latin mīrāculōsus, from Latin mīrāculum, miracle. See MIRACLE.] —mi-rac'u-lous-ly adv. —mi-rac'u-lous-ness n.

mir-a-dor (mī'ə-dōr', -dōr') n. A window, balcony, or small tower affording an extensive view. [Catalan, from mirar, to view, from Latin mīrārī, to wonder at. See MIRAGE.]

mi-rage (mī-rāzh') n. 1. An optical phenomenon that creates the illusion of water, often with inverted reflections of distant objects, and results from distortion of light by alternate layers of hot and cool air. Also called fata morgana

2. Something illusory or insubstantial. [French, from mīrer, to look at, from Latin mīrārī, to wonder at, from mīrus, wonderful. See smei- in Appendix.]

Mir-a-mar (mīr'ə-mär') A city of southeast Florida south of Fort Lauderdale. It is a resort community. Population, 40,663.

Mi-ran-da¹ (mə-rän'də) n. The satellite of Uranus that is closest to the planet. [After Miranda, daughter of the magician Prospero in Shakespeare's The Tempest.]

Mi-ran-da² (mə-rän'də) adj. Of, relating to, upholding, or being a Supreme Court decision requiring that a person under arrest be informed of his or her rights to remain silent and to have legal counsel. [After Ernesto A. Miranda, plaintiff in the case of Miranda v. Arizona (1966).]

Mi-ran-dize (mə-răn'dīz') v. tr. Mi-ran·dized, Mi-ran·diz-ing, Mi-ran·diz-es. Slang. To inform (a suspect) of his or her legal rights: “[The police] Mirandized the... kid again, and pinned the Miranda card to his sheet” (Carsten Stroud).

mire (mīr) n. 1. An area of wet, soggy, muddy ground; a bog. 2. Deep, slimy soil or mud. 3. A disadvantageous or difficult condition or situation: the mire of poverty. — v. mired, mir-ing, mires. — v. tr. 1. a. To cause to sink or become stuck in or as if in mire. b. To hinder, entrap, or entangle as if in mire. 2. To soil with mud or mire. — v. intr. To sink or become stuck in mire. [Middle English, from Old Norse mýrr, bog.]

mire-poix (mīr-pwă') n. A seasoning composed of finely diced sautéed vegetables and herbs and sometimes diced ham, bacon, or salt pork. [After Charles Pierre Gaston François de Lévis, Duc de Mirepoix (1699-1757), French diplomat.]

mi-rem (mī'rēks') n. An insecticide, C₁₀Cl₁₂, used especially against ants. [Perhaps (PIS)MIR(E) + EX(TERMINATE).]

mir-in (mīr'in) n. A sweetened Japanese rice wine used especially in cooking. [Japanese.]

mirk (mûrk) n. & adj. Variant of murk.

mirk-y (mûr'kē) adj. Variant of murky.

mir-li-ton (mīr'li-tŏn', mīr-lē-tŏn') n. Southern Louisiana. See chayote.

[Louisiana French, from French, toy reed flute, tube-shaped pastry, perhaps of imitative origin.]

Mi-ró (mē-rŏ'), Joan. 1893-1983. Spanish artist whose abstract and surrealist paintings are characterized by bright colors and simple bold forms.

mir-ror (mīr'ər) n. 1. A surface capable of reflecting sufficient undiffused light to form a virtual image of an object placed in front of it. Also called looking glass. 2. Something that faithfully reflects or gives a true picture of something else. 3. Something worthy of imitation. — v. tr. mir-rored, mir-ror-ing, mir-rors. To reflect in or as if in a mirror: “The city mirrors many of the greatest moments of Western culture” (Olivier Bernier). [Middle English mirour, from Old French mireor, from mīrer, to look at, from Latin mīrārī, to wonder at, from mīrus, wonderful. See smei- in Appendix.]

mirror image (mīr'ər ɪm'ij) n. An image that has its parts arranged with a reversal of right and left, as it would appear if seen in a mirror.

mirth (mûrth) n. Gladness and gaiety, especially when expressed by laughter. [Middle English, from Old English myrgth. See mregh-u- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: mirth, merriment, jollity, hilarity, glee. These nouns denote a state of joyful exuberance. Mirth stresses lightheartedness and gaiety; it often suggests easy laughter: “Again the young friends gave way to their mirth” (Henry Wadsworth Longfellow). Merriment is high-spirited fun and enjoyment: Her escapades were a subject of merriment in the sorority house. Jollity applies to convivial merriment or celebration: “Perhaps [an English pub is] a place of rural jollity with log fires crackling and grinning farm lads slurping pints and squaring up to the dart board” (John Mortimer). Hilarity is great, often uproarious merriment: “Fan the sinking flame of hilarity with the wing of friendship; and pass the rosy wine” (Charles Dickens). Glee applies especially to jubilant delight resulting from a particular circumstance, such as winning a victory (Her glee knew no bounds when she crossed the finish line first); it may suggest spiteful pleasure such as that experienced at another’s bad fortune (He laughed with glee when he learned of his opponent’s defeat).

mirth·ful (mûrth’fəl) adj. 1. Full of gladness and gaiety. 2. Characterized by or expressing gladness and gaiety: a warm, tender, and mirthful movie.

—mirth’ful·ly adv. —mirth’ful·ness n. mirth·less (mûrth’līs) adj. Devoid of gladness and gaiety. —mirth’less·ly adv. —mirth’less·ness n.

MIRV (mûrv) n. pl. MIRVs. 1. An offensive ballistic missile system in which a number of warheads aimed at independent targets can be launched by a single booster rocket. 2. One of these warheads. — v. MIRVed, MIRV·ing, MIRVs. — v. tr. To provide with multiple independent warheads. — v. intr. To equip a military force with a missile system of multiple independent warheads. [m(ulti-)i(ndependently-targeted) r(entry) v(ehicles).] mir·y (mîr’ē) adj. mir·i·er, mir·i·est. 1. Full of or resembling mire; swampy. 2. Smearred with mire; muddy. —mir’i·ness n.

MIS abbr. Computer Science. Management information system.

mis-¹ pref. 1. Bad; badly; wrong; wrongly: misconduct. 2. Failure; lack: misfire. 3. Used as an intensive: misdoubt. [Partly from Middle English mis- (from Old English), and partly from Middle English mes-, mis- (from Old French); see mei-¹ in Appendix.]

mis-² pref. Variant of miso-.

mis·ad·dress (mīs’ə-drēs’) v. tr. mis·ad·dressed, mis·ad·dress·ing, mis·ad·dress·es. To address (a piece of mail) incorrectly.

mis·ad·ven·ture (mīs’əd-vĕn’chər) n. An instance of misfortune; a mishap. [Middle English misaventure, from Old French mesaventure, from mesavenir, to result in misfortune : mes-, badly; see MIS-¹ + avenir, to turn out (from Latin advenīre, to come to); see ADVENT.] mis·ad·vise (mīs’əd-vīz’) v. tr. mis·ad·vised, mis·ad·vis·ing, mis·ad·vis·es. To advise wrongly.

mis·a·ligned (mīs’ə-līnd’) adj. Incorrectly aligned. —mis’a·lign’ment (-līn’mənt) n.

mis·al·li·ance (mɪs'ə-lī'əns) n. 1. An unsuitable alliance, especially in marriage. 2. A mésalliance.

mis·al·lo·cate (mɪs-əl'ə-kāt') v. tr. mis·al·lo·cat·ed, mis·al·lo·cat·ing, mis·al·lo·cates. To allocate (resources or capital, for example) wrongly or inappropriately. —mis'al·lo·ca'tion n.

mis·al·ly (mɪs'ə-lī') v. tr. mis·al·li·ed, mis·al·ly·ing, mis·al·lies. To ally inappropriately.

mis·an·thrope (mɪs'ən-thrōp', mɪz'-) also mis·an·thro·pist (mɪs-ən'thrə-pɪst, mɪz'-) n. One who hates or mistrusts humankind. [French, from Greek misanthrōpos, hating mankind : miso-, miso- + anthrōpos, man.]

mis·an·throp·ic (mɪs'ən-thrōp'ɪk, mɪz'-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a misanthrope. 2. Characterized by a hatred or mistrustful scorn for humankind. —mis'an·throp'i·cal·ly adv.

mis·an·thro·pist (mɪs-ən'thrə-pɪst, mɪz'-) n. Variant of misanthrope.

mis·an·thro·py (mɪs-ən'thrə-pē, mɪz'-) n. Hatred or mistrust of humankind.

mis·ap·ply (mɪs'ə-plī') v. tr. mis·ap·pli·ed, mis·ap·ply·ing, mis·ap·plies. To use or apply wrongly. —mis·ap'pli·ca'tion (-əp'li-kā'shən) n.

mis·ap·pre·hend (mɪs-əp'rɪ-hɛnd') v. tr. mis·ap·pre·hend·ed, mis·ap·pre·hend·ing, mis·ap·pre·hends. To apprehend incorrectly; misunderstand. —mis·ap'pre·hen'sion (-hɛn'shən) n.

mis·ap·pro·pri·ate (mɪs'ə-prō'prē-āt') v. tr. mis·ap·pro·pri·at·ed, mis·ap·pro·pri·at·ing, mis·ap·pro·pri·ates. 1. a. To appropriate wrongly: misappropriating the theories of social science. b. To appropriate dishonestly for one's own use; embezzle. 2. To use illegally. —mis'ap·pro'pri·a'tion n.

mis·at·trib·ute (mɪs'ə-trɪb'yōt) v. tr. mis·at·trib·ut·ed, mis·at·trib·ut·ing, mis·at·trib·utes. To attribute incorrectly: misattributed the quotation to Dickens. —mis'at·tri·bu'tion (-ə-trɪ-byō'shən) n.

mis·be·come (mɪs'bɪ-kūm') v. tr. mis·be·came (-kām'), mis·be·come, mis·be·com·ing, mis·be·comes. To be unsuitable or inappropriate for.

mis·be·got·ten (mɪs'bɪ-gōt'n) adj. 1. a. Of, relating to, or being a child or children born to unmarried parents. b. Not lawfully obtained: misbegotten wealth. 2. Having an improper basis or origin; ill-conceived: misbegotten ideas about education.

mis·be·have (mɪs'bɪ-hāv') v. mis·be·hav·ed, mis·be·hav·ing, mis·be·haves. — v. intr. To behave badly. — v. tr. To behave (oneself) in an inappropriate way: The children misbehaved themselves at dinner. —mis'be·hav'er n. —mis'be·hav'ior (-hāv'yər) n.

mis·be·lief (mɪs'bɪ-lēf') n. 1. A wrong or faulty belief. 2. A heretical or unorthodox religious belief.

mis·be·lieve (mĭs'бі-lēv') v. intr. mis·be·lieved, mis·be·liev·ing, mis·be·lieves. Obsolete. To hold a false or erroneous belief or opinion, especially in religious matters. —mis'be·liev'er n.

mis·brand (mĭs-brānd') v. tr. mis·brand·ed, mis·brand·ing, mis·brands. To brand or label misleadingly or fraudulently.

misc. abbr. Miscellaneous.

mis·cal·cu·late (mĭs-kāl'kyə-lāt') v. tr. intr. mis·cal·cu·lat·ed, mis·cal·cu·lat·ing, mis·cal·cu·lates. To count or estimate incorrectly. —mis·cal'cu·la'tion n.

mis·call (mĭs-kôl') v. tr. mis·called, mis·call·ing, mis·calls. To call by a wrong name.

mis·car·riage (mĭs'kār'ij, mĭs-kār'-) n. 1. Premature expulsion of a nonviable fetus from the uterus. Also called spontaneous abortion 2. a. Bad administration; mismanagement: a miscarriage of justice. b. Failure to attain the right or desired end: the miscarriage of a cherished plan.

mis·car·ry (mĭs'kār'ē, mĭs-kār'ē) v. intr. mis·car·ried, mis·car·ry·ing, mis·car·ries. 1. To have a miscarriage; abort. 2. To go astray or be lost in transit, as mail or cargo. 3. To fail to attain an intended goal, as a plan or project.

mis·cast (mĭs-käst') v. tr. mis·cast, mis·cast·ing, mis·casts. 1. To cast in an unsuitable role. 2. To cast (a role or theatrical production) inappropriately.

mis·ceg·e·na·tion (mĭ-sěj'ə-nā'shən, mĭs'ī-jə-) n. 1. A mixture of different races. 2. Cohabitation, sexual relations, or marriage involving persons of different races. [Latin miscēre, to mix; see meik- in Appendix + genus, race; see genə- in Appendix + -ATION.] —mis·ceg'e·na'tion·al adj.

mis·cel·la·ne·a (mĭs'ə-lā'nē-ə) pl.n. Miscellaneous items or written works collected together. [Latin miscellānea, from neuter pl. of miscellāneus, miscellaneous. See MISCELLANEOUS.]

mis·cel·la·ne·ous (mĭs'ə-lā'nē-əs) adj. Abbr. misc. 1. Made up of a variety of parts or ingredients. 2. Having a variety of characteristics, abilities, or appearances. 3. Concerned with diverse subjects or aspects. [From Latin miscellāneus, from miscellus, mixed, from miscēre, to mix. See meik- in Appendix.] —mis'cel·la'ne·ous·ly adv. —mis'cel·la'ne·ous·ness n.

SYNONYMS: miscellaneous, heterogeneous, motley, mixed, varied, assorted. These adjectives mean consisting of a number of different kinds. Miscellaneous implies a varied, often haphazard combination: The shop carries suits, coats, shirts, and miscellaneous accessories. “My reading... had been extremely miscellaneous” (William Godwin). Heterogeneous emphasizes diversity and dissimilarity: The population of the United States is vast and heterogeneous. Motley emphasizes difference to the point of incongruity and discordance and is sometimes used derogatorily: The audience consisted of a motley crowd of property owners, renters, and drifters. Mixed suggests a combination of differing but not necessarily conflicting elements: The orchestra offered a mixed program of baroque and contemporary fare. Varied stresses absence of uniformity: “The assembly was large and varied, containing clergy and laity, men and women” (Nicholas P.S. Wisemen). Assorted often suggests the purposeful arrangement of different but complementary elements: The centerpiece is a luxuriant arrangement of assorted garden flowers.

mis-cel-la-nist (mĭs'ə-lā'nĭst, mĭ-sĕl'ə-) n. Chiefly British. One who compiles, writes, or edits miscellanies.

mis-cel-la-ny (mĭs'ə-lā'nē) n. pl. mis-cel-la-nies. 1. A collection of various items, parts, or ingredients, especially one composed of diverse literary works.

2. miscellanies. A publication containing various literary works. [Latin miscellānea, miscellanea. See MISCELLANEA.]

mis-chance (mĭs-chāns') n. 1. An unfortunate occurrence; a mishap. 2. Bad luck. See Synonyms at misfortune.

mis-char-ac-ter-ize (mĭs-kār'ək-tə-rĭz') v. tr. mis-char-ac-ter-ized, mis-char-ac-ter-iz-ing, mis-char-ac-ter-iz-es. To give a false or misleading character to: mischaracterized the findings of the study. —mis-char'ac-ter-i-za-tion (-tər-ĭ-zā'shən) n.

mis-chief (mĭs'chĭf) n. 1. Behavior that causes discomfiture or annoyance in another. 2. An inclination or a tendency to play pranks or cause embarrassment. 3. One that causes minor trouble or disturbance: The child was a mischief in school. 4. Damage, destruction, or injury caused by a specific person or thing: The broken window was the mischief of vandals. 5. The state or quality of being mischievous. [Middle English mischief, from Old French meschief, misfortune, from meschever, to end badly : mes-, badly; see MIS-¹ + chever, to happen, come to an end (from Vulgar Latin capāre*, to come to a head, from capum*, head, from Latin caput); see kaput- in Appendix.]

mis-chief-mak-er (mĭs'chĭf-mā'kər) n. One who causes mischief, especially one who makes trouble by spreading gossip. —mis'chief-mak'ing n.

mis-chie-vous (mĭs'chə-vəs) adj. 1. Causing mischief. 2. Playful in a naughty or teasing way. See Synonyms at playful. 3. Troublesome; irritating: a mischievous prank. 4. Causing harm, injury, or damage: mischievous rumors and falsehoods. [Middle English mischevous, from mischief, mischief. See MISCHIEF.]

—mis'chie-vous-ly adv. —mis'chie-vous-ness n.

mis-ci-ble (mĭs'ə-bəl) adj. Chemistry. That can be mixed in all proportions. Used of liquids. [Medieval Latin miscibilis, from Latin miscĕre, to mix. See meik- in Appendix.] —mis'ci-bil'i-ty n.

mis-clas-si-fy (mĭs-klās'ə-fĭ') v. tr. mis-clas-si-fied, mis-clas-si-fy-ing, mis-clas-si-fies. To classify incorrectly. —mis-clas'si-fi-ca'tion (-fĭ-kā'shən) mis-com-mu-ni-ca-tion (mĭs'kə-myōō'nĭ-kā'shən) n. 1. Lack of clear or adequate communication. 2. An unclear or inadequate communication.

mis-con-ceive (mĭs'kən-sēv') v. tr. mis-con-ceived, mis-con-ceiving, mis-con-ceives. To interpret incorrectly; misunderstand. —mis'con-ceive'er n.

mis-con-cep-tion (mĭs'kən-sĕp'shən) n. A mistaken thought, idea, or notion; a misunderstanding: had many misconceptions about the new tax program.

mis-con-duct (mĭs-kŏn'dŭkt) n. 1. a. Behavior not conforming to prevailing standards or laws; impropriety. b. The act or an instance of adultery.

2. Dishonest or bad management, especially by persons entrusted or engaged to act on another's behalf. 3. Deliberate wrongdoing, especially by government or military officials. — v. tr. mis-con-duct-ed, mis-con-duct-ing, mis-con-ducts (mĭs'kən-dŭkt'). 1. To mismanage. 2. To behave (oneself) improperly.

mis-con-struc-tion (mĭs'kən-strŭk'shən) n. 1. An inaccurate explanation, interpretation, or report; a misunderstanding. 2. Grammar. A faulty construction, especially of a sentence or clause.

mis-con-strue (mĭs'kən-strōō') v. tr. mis-con-strued, mis-con-struing, mis-con-strues. To mistake the meaning of; misinterpret.

mis-count (mĭs-kount') v. mis-count-ed, mis-count-ing, mis-counts. — v. tr. To count (something) incorrectly; miscalculate. — v. intr. To make an incorrect count. — n. (mĭs'kount') An inaccurate count.

mis-cre-ant (mĭs'krĕ-ənt) n. 1. An evildoer; a villain. 2. An infidel; a heretic. [Middle English miscreaunt, heretic, from Old French mescreant, present participle of mescroire, to disbelieve : mes-, wrongly, not; see MIS-¹ + croire, to believe (from Latin crēdere); see kerd- in Appendix.] —mis'cre-ant adj.

mis-cre-ate (mĭs'krĕ-āt') v. tr. mis-cre-at-ed, mis-cre-at-ing, mis-cre-ates. To make or shape badly. — adj. (mĭs'krĕ-īt, -āt') Formed unnaturally; misshapen or deformed. —mis'cre-a'tion n.

mis-cue (mĭs-kyōō') n. 1. Games. A stroke in billiards that misses or just brushes the ball because of a slip of the cue. 2. A mistake. — v. intr. mis-cued, mis-cu-ing, mis-cues. 1. To make a miscue. 2. To miss a stage cue.

mis-date (mĭs-dāt') v. tr. mis-dat-ed, mis-dat-ing, mis-dates. To date (a document or an event, for example) inaccurately. — n. An inaccurate date.

mis-deal (mĭs-dĕl') v. mis-dealt (-dĕlt'), mis-deal-ing, mis-deals. Games. — v. tr. To deal (cards) incorrectly. — v. intr. To deal cards incorrectly. —mis'deal' n. —mis-deal'er n.

mis-deed (mĭs-dĕd') n. A wrong or illegal deed; a wrongdoing.

mis-de-mean-ant (mĭs'dĭ-mĕ'nənt) n. Law. One who has been convicted of a misdemeanor.

mis·de·mean·or (mɪs'di-mē'nər) n. 1. A misdeed. 2. Law. An offense less serious than a felony.

mis·de·mean·our (mɪs'di-mē'nər) n. Chiefly British. Variant of misde-meanor.

mis·de·scribe (mɪs'di-skrīb') v. tr. mis·de·scribed, mis·de·scribing, mis·de·scribes. To describe wrongly or falsely. —mis'de·scrip'tion (-skrɪp'shən) n.

mis·di·ag·nose (mɪs-dī'æg-nōs', -nōz') v. tr. mis·di·ag·nosed, mis·di·ag·nos·ing, mis·di·ag·nos·es. To diagnose incorrectly.

mis·di·ag·no·sis (mɪs-dī'æg-nō'sis) n. pl. mis·di·ag·no·ses (-sēz). An incorrect diagnosis.

mis·di·al (mɪs-dī'əl) v. tr. intr. mis·di·aled or mis·di·alled, mis·di·al·ing or mis·di·al·ling, mis·di·als or mis·di·als. To dial or be dialed incorrectly. —mis'di'al n.

mis·did (mɪs-dɪd') v. Past tense of misdo.

mis·di·rect (mɪs'di-rɛkt', -dī-) v. tr. mis·di·rect·ed, mis·di·rect·ing, mis·di·rects. 1. To aim (a blow or projectile, for example) badly. 2. To give wrong instructions or directions to. 3. To put a wrong address on (a piece of mail).

mis·di·rec·tion (mɪs'di-rɛk'shən, -dī-) n. 1. Inaccurate aim. 2. Incorrect instructions or directions. 3. Law. An error made by a judge in charging a jury.

mis·do (mɪs-dō') v. tr. mis·did (-dɪd'), mis·done (-dʌn'), mis·do·ing, mis·does (-dʊz'). To do wrongly or awkwardly; botch. —mis·do'er n. —mis·do'ing n.

mis·doubt (mɪs-dout') v. tr. mis·doubt·ed, mis·doubt·ing, mis·doubts. To feel doubt or distrust about.

mis·ed·u·cate (mɪs-ɛj'ə-kāt') v. tr. mis·ed·u·cat·ed, mis·ed·u·cat·ing, mis·ed·u·cates. To educate improperly. —mis'ed·u·ca'tion n.

mise en scène (mēz' ən sɛn') n. pl. mise en scènes (sɛn'). 1. a. The arrangement of performers and properties on a stage for a theatrical production. b. A stage setting. 2. Physical environment; surroundings. [French, putting on stage : mise, putting + en, on + scène, stage.]

mi·ser (mī'zər) n. 1. One who lives very meagerly in order to hoard money. 2. A greedy or avaricious person. [From Latin, wretched.]

mis·er·a·ble (mɪz'ər-ə-bəl, mɪz'rə-) adj. 1. Very uncomfortable or unhappy; wretched. 2. Causing or accompanied by great discomfort or distress: a miserable climate. 3. Mean or shameful; contemptible: a miserable trick. 4. Wretchedly inadequate: lived in a miserable shack; fed the prisoners miserable rations. 5. Of poor quality; inferior: miserable handicraft. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin miserābilis, pitiable, from miserārī, to pity, from miser, wretched.]

—mis'er·a·ble n. —mis'er·a·ble·ness n. —mis'er·a·bly adv.

mis·e·re·re (mĭz'ə-râr'ē, -rĭr'ē) n. 1. Miserere. a. The 51st Psalm. b. A musical setting of this psalm. 2. a. A prayer for mercy. b. An expression of lamentation or complaint. 3. See miseri·cord (n., sense 2). [Latin, have mercy, the first word of the psalm, imperative sing. of miserēri, to feel pity, from miser, wretched.]

mis·er·i·cord or mis·er·i·corde (mĭz'ər-ĭ-kôrd', mĭ-zēr'-) n. 1. a. Relaxation of monastic rules, as a dispensation from fasting. b. The room in a monastery used by monks who have been granted such a dispensation. 2. A bracket attached to the underside of a hinged seat in a church stall against which a standing person may lean. Also called miserere. 3. A narrow dagger used in medieval times to deliver the death stroke to a seriously wounded knight. [Middle English, pity, from Old French, from Latin miseri·cordia, from miseri·cors, miseri·cord-, merciful : miserēri, to feel pity; see MISERERE + cor, cord-, heart; see kerd- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: A dagger, a support for someone who is standing, and a special monastic apartment are all called by the same name because, strangely enough, they are all examples of mercy. The word miseri·cord goes back to Latin miseri·cordia, “mercy,” derived from miseri·cors, “merciful,” which is in turn derived from miserēri, “to pity,” and cor, “heart.” In Medieval Latin the word miseri·cordia was used to denote various merciful things, and these senses were borrowed into English. Miseri·cordia referred to an apartment in a monastery where certain relaxations of the monastic rule were permitted, especially those involving food and drink. The word also designated a projection on the underside of a hinged seat in a choir stall against which a standing person could lean, no doubt a merciful thing during long services. Finally, miseri·cordia was used for a dagger with which the death stroke was administered to a seriously wounded knight.

mi·ser·ly (mĭ'zər-lē) adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a miser; avaricious, grasping, and penurious. See Synonyms at stingy. —mi'ser·li·ness n.

mis·er·y (mĭz'ə-rē) *n. pl. mis·er·ies. 1. a. The state of suffering and want as a result of physical circumstances or extreme poverty. b. Mental or emotional unhappiness or distress: “Our happiness or misery depends on our dispositions, and not on our circumstances” (Martha Washington). 2. A cause or source of suffering. 3. Informal. A physical ache or ailment. [Middle English miserie, from Old French, from Latin miseria, from miser, wretched.]*

mis·es·teem (mĭs'ə-stēm') v. tr. mis·es·teemed, mis·es·teem·ing, mis·es·teems. To fail to regard with deserved esteem.

mis·es·ti·mate (mĭs-ēs'tə-māt') *v. tr. mis·es·ti·mat·ed, mis·es·ti·mat·ing, mis·es·ti·mates. To estimate wrongly. —mis·es'ti·mate (-mĭt) n. —mis·es'ti·ma'tion *n.

mis·fea·sance (mĭs-fē'zəns) n. Law. Improper and unlawful execution of an act that in itself is lawful and proper. [Anglo-Norman mesfesaunce, from mesfere, to do wrong : mes-, wrongly (from Old French); see MIS⁻¹ + fere, to do (from Latin facere); see dhē- in Appendix.]

mis·fea·sor (mĭs-fē'zər) n. Law. One guilty of misfeasance. [Anglo-Norman mesfesor, from mesfere, to do wrong. See MISFEASANCE.]

mis·file (mĭs-fīl') v. tr. mis·filed, mis·fil·ing, mis·files. To file in the wrong place or order.

mis·fire (mĭs-fīr') v. intr. mis·fired, mis·fir·ing, mis·fires. 1. To fail to ignite when expected. Used of an internal-combustion engine. 2. To fail to discharge. Used of a firearm. 3. To fail to achieve an anticipated result: a scheme that misfired. — mis'fire' (mĭs'fīr', mĭs-fīr') n.

mis·fit (mĭs'fīt', mĭs-fīt') n. 1. Something of the wrong size or shape for its purpose. 2. One who is unable to adjust to one's environment or circumstances or is considered to be disturbingly different from others.

mis·for·tune (mĭs-fôr'chən) n. 1. a. Bad fortune or ill luck. b. The condition resulting from bad fortune or ill luck: wanted to help those in misfortune. 2. A distressing occurrence: "Misfortunes are too apt to wear out Friendship" (Charlotte Charke).

SYNONYMS: misfortune, adversity, mishap, mischance. These nouns all refer to a state or an instance of ill fortune or bad luck. Misfortune, which applies most broadly, often suggests the operation of distressing circumstances beyond the victim's control: She had the misfortune to become gravely ill. Adversity frequently implies continuing hardship or affliction: debt-ridden farmers struggling with adversity. Both mishap and mischance connote slight or negligible incidents or consequences: They arrived at their destination without any mishaps. By mischance I dialed a wrong number.

mis·fu·el (mĭs-fyōō'əl) v. tr. mis·fu·eled or mis·fu·elled, mis·fu·el·ing or mis·fu·el·ing, mis·fu·els or mis·fu·els. To provide (a motor vehicle) with inappropriate fuel, especially to provide with leaded gas when unleaded gas is required.

mis·give (mĭs-gĭv') v. mis·gave (-gāv'), mis·giv·en (-gĭv'ən), mis·giv·ing, mis·gives. — v. tr. To arouse suspicion or apprehension in (one's mind or heart, for example). — v. intr. To be suspicious, apprehensive, or doubtful. [MIS⁻¹ + GIVE, to suggest (obsolete).]

mis·giv·ing (mĭs-gĭv'ĭng) n. A feeling of doubt, distrust, or apprehension. See Synonyms at apprehension. See Synonyms at qualm.

mis-gov-ern (mĭs-gŭv'ərn) v. tr. mis-gov-erned, mis-gov-ern-ing, mis-gov-erns. To govern inefficiently or badly. —mis-gov'ern-ment n.
—mis-gov'er-nor n.

mis-guide (mĭs-gīd') v. tr. mis-guid-ed, mis-guid-ing, mis-guides. To lead or guide in the wrong direction; lead astray. —mis-guid'ance (-gīd'ns) n.
—mis-guid'er n.

mis-guid-ed (mĭs-gī'dīd) adj. Based or acting on error; misled: well-intentioned but misguided efforts; misguided do-gooders. —mis-guid'ed-ly adv.

mis-han-dle (mĭs-hān'dl) v. tr. mis-han-dled, mis-han-dling, mis-han-dles. 1. To deal with clumsily or inefficiently; mismanage. 2. To treat roughly; maltreat.

mis-hap (mĭs'hăp', mĭs-hăp') n. 1. Bad luck. 2. An unfortunate accident. See Synonyms at misfortune.

Mish-a-wa-ka (mĭsh'ə-wô'kə, -wôk'ə) A city of northern Indiana, an industrial suburb of South Bend. Population, 42,608.

mis-hear (mĭs-hîr') v. tr. intr. mis-heard (-hîrd'), mis-hear-ing, mis-hears. To hear wrongly; misunderstand.

mish-e-gaas or mish-e-goss (mĭsh'ə-gäs') n. Slang. Variants of meshugaas.

mis-hit (mĭs-hĭt') v. tr. mis-hit, mis-hit-ting, mis-hits. To hit (a tennis or cricket ball, for example) incorrectly or badly. —mis'hit' n.

mish-mash (mĭsh'măsh', -măsh') n. A collection or mixture of unrelated things; a hodgepodge. [Middle English misse-masche, probably reduplication of mash, soft mixture. See MASH.]

Mish-nah also Mish-na (mĭsh'nə) n. Judaism. 1. The first section of the Talmud, being a collection of early oral interpretations of the scriptures as compiled about A.D. 200. 2. A paragraph from this section of the Talmud. 3. The teaching of a rabbi or other noted authority on Jewish laws. [Rabbinical Hebrew mišnâ, repetition, instruction, from šānâ, to repeat.] —Mish-na'ic (mĭsh-nā'ĭk) adj.

Mishnaic Hebrew (mĭsh-nā'ĭk hē'brōō) n. The Hebrew language as used from the fifth century B.C. to the late seventh century A.D. Also called Rabbinic Hebrew mis-i-den-ti-fy (mĭs'ī-dĕn'tə-fī') v. tr. mis-i-den-ti-fied, mis-i-den-ti-fy-ing, mis-i-den-ti-fies. To identify incorrectly.

—mis'i-den'ti-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

mis-im-pres-sion (mĭs'ĭm-prĕsh'ən) n. A faulty or mistaken impression.

mis-in-form (mĭs'ĭn-fōrm') v. tr. mis-in-formed, mis-in-form-ing, mis-in-forms. To provide with incorrect information. —mis'in-form'ant (-fōr'mənt), mis'in-form'er n. —mis-in'for-ma'tion n.

mis-in-ter-pret (mĭs'ĭn-tŭr'prĭt) v. tr. mis-in-ter-pret-ed, mis-in-ter-pret-ing, mis-in-ter-pret-s. 1. To interpret inaccurately. 2. To explain inaccurately. — mis'in-ter'pre-ta'tion n. — mis'in-ter'pret-er n.

mis-join-der (mĭs-join'dər) n. Law. Improper joining of different causes of action or of different parties to a lawsuit.

mis-judge (mĭs-ĵŭj') v. mis-judged, mis-judg-ing, mis-judg-es. — v. tr. To judge wrongly. — v. intr. To be wrong in judging. — mis-judg'ment n.

Mis-ki-to (mĭ-skē'tō) n. pl. Miskito or Mis-ki-tos. 1. A member of an American Indian people inhabiting the Caribbean coast of northeast Nicaragua and southeast Honduras. 2. The language of the Miskito. Also called Mosquito mis-know (mĭs-nō') v. tr. mis-knew (-nōō', -nyōō'), mis-known (-nōn'), mis-know-ing, mis-knows. To misunderstand. — mis-knowl'edge (-nōl'ij) n.

Mis-kolc (mĭsh'kōlts') A city of northeast Hungary northeast of Budapest. A major industrial center, it was invaded by Mongols in the 13th century, by Turks in the 16th and 17th centuries, and by German imperial forces in the 17th and 18th centuries. Population, 211,645.

mis-la-bel (mĭs-lā'bəl) v. tr. mis-la-beled also mis-la-belled, mis-la-bel-ing also mis-la-bel-ling, mis-la-bels also mis-la-bels. To label inaccurately.

mis-lay (mĭs-lā') v. tr. mis-laid (-lād'), mis-lay-ing, mis-lays. 1. To put in a place that is afterward forgotten: I have mislaid my hat. 2. To place or put down incorrectly: They mislaid the linoleum. — mis-lay'er n.

mis-lead (mĭs-lēd') v. tr. mis-led (-lēd'), mis-lead-ing, mis-leads. 1. To lead in the wrong direction. 2. To lead into error of thought or action, especially by intentionally deceiving. See Synonyms at deceive. — mis-lead'er n.

mis-lead-ing (mĭs-lē'dĩŋ) adj. Tending to mislead. — mis-lead'ing-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: misleading, deceptive, delusive, delusory. These adjectives describe what leads or tends to lead one into error or wrongdoing. Misleading, the least specific, applies to something that inadvertently or deliberately guides one into an erroneous or wrong path: a misleading similarity. Something deceptive causes one to believe what is not true or fail to believe what is true; the term may or may not imply intentional misrepresentation: deceptive calm. Delusive and delusory both connote deception, sham, or fallaciousness: delusive expectations; a delusory pleasure.

mis-led (mĭs-lēd') v. Past tense and past participle of mislead.

mis-like (mĭs-lĭk') v. tr. mis-liked, mis-lik-ing, mis-likes. 1. To disapprove of; dislike. 2. Archaic. To displease. — n. Disapproval; dislike. [Middle English misliken, from Old English mislician: mis-, ill; see MIS-¹ + lician, to please; see LIKE¹.]

mis-man-age (mĭs-măn'ĭj) v. tr. mis-man-aged, mis-man-ag-ing, mis-man-ag-es. To manage badly or carelessly. —mis-man/age-ment n.

mis-match (mĭs-mäch') v. tr. mis-matched, mis-match-ing, mis-match-es. To match unsuitably or inaccurately. —mis/match' (mĭs'mäch', mĭs-mäch') n.

mis-mate (mĭs-māt') v. tr. mis-mat-ed, mis-mat-ing, mis-mates. To mate or match unsuitably.

mis-name (mĭs-nām') v. tr. mis-named, mis-nam-ing, mis-names. To call by a wrong name.

mis-no-mer (mĭs-nō'mər) n. 1. An error in naming a person or place.

2. a. Application of a wrong name. b. A name wrongly or unsuitably applied to a person or an object. [Middle English misnoumer, from Old French mesnomer, to misname : mes-, wrongly; see MIS⁻¹ + nommer, to name (from Latin nōmināre, from nōmen, name); see nō-men- in Appendix.] —mis-no/mered adj.

mi-so (mĕ'sō) n. pl. mi-sos. A thick fermented paste made by grinding together cooked soybeans, rice or barley, and salt and used especially in making soups and sauces. [Japanese.]

miso- or mis- pref. Hatred: misogamy. [Greek, from misein, to hate, and misos, hatred.]

mi-sog-a-my (mĭ-sŏg'ə-mĕ) n. Hatred of marriage. —mis'o-gam'ic (mĭs'ə-gām'ĭk) adj. —mis-og'a-mist n.

mi-sog-y-nist (mĭ-sŏj'ə-nĭst) n. One who hates women. — adj. Of or characterized by a hatred of women.

mi-sog-y-nis-tic (mĭ-sŏj'ə-nĭs'tĭk) also mi-sog-y-nous (-sŏj'ə-nəs) adj. Of or characterized by a hatred of women.

mi-sog-y-ny (mĭ-sŏj'ə-nĕ) n. Hatred of women: “Every organized patriarchal religion works overtime to contribute its own brand of misogyny” (Robin Morgan). [Greek misogunia : miso-, miso- + gunē, woman; see -GYNY.] —mis'o-gyn'ic (mĭs'ə-jĭn'ĭk, -gĭ'nĭk) adj.

mi-sol-o-gy (mĭ-sŏl'ə-jĕ) n. Hatred of reason, argument, or enlightenment. —mi-sol'o-gist n.

mis-o-ne-ism (mĭs'ə-nĕ'ĭz'əm) n. Hatred or fear of change or innovation. [Italian misoneismo : Greek miso-, miso- + Greek neos, new; see newo- in Appendix.] —mis'o-ne'ist n.

mis-o-ri-ent (mĭs-ŏr'ĕ-ənt, -ĕnt', -ŏr'-) v. tr. mis-o-ri-ent-ed, mis-o-ri-ent-ing, mis-o-ri-ents. To orient incorrectly or inappropriately. —mis-o'ri-en-ta'tion n.

mis-per-ceive (mĭs'pər-sĕv') v. tr. mis-per-ceived, mis-per-ceive-ing, mis-per-ceive-s. To perceive incorrectly; misunderstand. —mis/per-cep'tion (-sĕp'shən) n.

mis-pick-el (mĭs'pĭk'əl) n. See arsenopyrite. [German.]

mis-place (mĭs-plās') v. tr. mis-placed, mis-plac-ing, mis-plac-es. 1. a. To put into a wrong place: misplace punctuation in a sentence. b. To mislay: I have misplaced my wallet. 2. To bestow (confidence, for example) on an improper, unsuitable, or unworthy person or idea. —mis-place'ment n.

mis-placed modifier (mĭs'plāst' mōd'ə-fī'ər) n. A modifying clause or phrase placed so awkwardly as to create ambiguity or misunderstanding. For example, in Streaking through the sky, we watched the rocket reenter the atmosphere, the phrase Streaking through the sky is misplaced.

mis-play (mĭs-plā', mĭs'plā') n. Sports & Games. A mistaken play. — v. tr.

mis-played, mis-play-ing, mis-plays (mĭs-plā'). To make a misplay of.

mis-print (mĭs-prĭnt') v. tr. mis-print-ed, mis-print-ing, mis-prints. To print incorrectly. — n. (mĭs'prĭnt', mĭs-prĭnt') An error in printing.

mis-pri-sion¹ (mĭs-prĭzh'ən) n. Law. 1. Maladministration of public office.

2. Neglect in preventing or reporting a felony or treason by one not an accessory.

3. An act of sedition against a government or the courts. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, variant of Old French mesprison, from mespris, past participle of mesprendre, to make a mistake : mes-, wrongly; see MIS-¹ + prendre, to take, seize (from Latin prehendere, prendere); see ghend- in Appendix.]

mis-pri-sion² (mĭs-prĭzh'ən) n. Contempt; disdain. [mispris(e) (variant of MISPRIZE) + -ION.]

mis-prize (mĭs-prĭz') v. tr. mis-prized, mis-priz-ing, mis-priz-es. 1. To despise. 2. To undervalue. —mis-priz'er n.

mis-pro-nounce (mĭs'prə-nouns') v. mis-pro-nounced, mis-pro-nounc-ing, mis-pro-nounc-es. — v. tr. To pronounce badly or incorrectly. — v. intr. To make a poor pronunciation. —mis-'pro-nun'ci-a'tion (-nŭn'sē-ā'shən) n.

mis-quote (mĭs-kwōt') v. tr. mis-quot-ed, mis-quot-ing, mis-quotes. To quote incorrectly. —mis'quo-ta'tion (-kwō-tā'shən) n. —mis-quot'er n.

mis-read (mĭs-rēd') v. tr. mis-read (-rēd'), mis-read-ing, mis-reads. 1. To read inaccurately. 2. To misinterpret or misunderstand: misread our friendly concern as prying.

mis-reck-on (mĭs-rĕk'ən) v. mis-reck-oned, mis-reck-on-ing, mis-reck-ons. — v. tr. To reckon incorrectly; miscalculate. — v. intr. To engage in incorrect reckoning or miscalculation.

mis-re-mem-ber (mĭs'rĭ-mĕm'bər) v. tr. mis-re-mem-bered, mis-re-mem-ber-ing, mis-re-mem-bers. To remember incorrectly.

mis-re-port (mĭs'rĭ-pōrt' -pōrt') v. tr. mis-re-port-ed, mis-re-port-ing, mis-re-ports. To report mistakenly or falsely. — n. An inaccurate or wrong report. —mis're-port'er n.

mis-rep-re-sent (mĭs-rĕp'rĭ-zĕnt') v. tr. mis-rep-re-sent-ed, mis-rep-re-sent-ing, mis-rep-re-sents. 1. To give an incorrect or misleading representation of. 2. To serve incorrectly or dishonestly as an official representative of. —mis·rep'·re·sen·ta'tion n. —mis·rep'·re·sen'ta·tive (-zĕn'tə-tĭv) adj. —mis·rep'·re·sent'er n.

mis·rule (mĭs-rōol') n. 1. Disorder or lawless confusion. 2. Inept or unwise rule; misgovernment. — v. tr. mis·ruled, mis·rul·ing, mis·rules. To rule ineptly, unjustly, or unwisely; misgovern.

miss¹ (mĭs) v. missed, miss·ing, miss·es. — v. tr. 1. To fail to hit, reach, catch, meet, or otherwise make contact with. 2. To fail to perceive, understand, or experience: completely missed the point of the film. 3. To fail to accomplish, achieve, or attain (a goal). 4. To fail to attend or perform: never missed a day of work. 5. a. To leave out; omit. b. To let go by; let slip: miss a chance. 6. To escape or avoid: narrowly missed crashing into the tree. 7. To discover the absence or loss of: I missed my book after getting off the bus without it. 8. To feel the lack or loss of: Do you miss your family? — v. intr. 1. To fail to hit or otherwise make contact with something: fired the final shot and missed again. 2. a. To be unsuccessful; fail. b. To misfire, as an internal-combustion engine. — n. 1. A failure to hit, succeed, or find. 2. The misfiring of an engine. —idioms. miss fire. 1. To fail to discharge. Used of a firearm. 2. To fail to achieve the anticipated result. miss out on. To lose a chance for: missed out on the promotion. miss the boat. Informal. 4. To fail to avail oneself of an opportunity. 5. To fail to understand. [Middle English missen, from Old English missan. See mei-¹ in Appendix.]

miss² (mĭs) n. 1. Miss. Used as a courtesy title before the surname or full name of a girl or single woman. See Usage Note at Ms. 2. Used as a form of polite address for a girl or young woman: I beg your pardon, miss. 3. A young unmarried woman. 4. Miss. Used as a prefix to the name of that which a usually young woman is held to represent: She's Miss Personality. 5. mis·ses. A series of clothing sizes for women and girls of average height and proportions. [Short for MIS-TRESS.]

Miss. abbr. Mississippi.

mis·sa cantata (mĭs'ə kən-tā'tə) n. A Mass in which certain parts are sung but which is ceremonially less elaborate than a High Mass. [New Latin missa cantāta : Late Latin missa, Mass + Latin cantāta, sung.]

mis·sal (mĭs'əl) n. 1. Roman Catholic Church. A book containing all the prayers and responses necessary for celebrating the Mass throughout the year. 2. A prayer book. [Middle English messel, from Old French, from Medieval Latin missāle, from neuter of missālis, of the Mass, from Late Latin missa, Mass. See MASS.] mis·sel thrush (mĭs'əl thrūsh) n. Variant of mistle thrush.

mis-sense (mɪs'sɛns') n. Genetics. A section within a strand of messenger RNA containing a codon altered through mutation so that it codes for a different amino acid.

missense mutation (mɪs'sɛns' myōō-tā'shən) n. Genetics. A mutation that changes a codon for one amino acid into a codon for a different amino acid.

[MIS-¹ + (NON)SENSE.]

mis-shape (mɪs-shāp') v. tr. mis-shaped or mis-shap-en (-shā'pən), mis-shap-ing, mis-shapes. To shape badly; deform. —mis-shap'en-ly adv. —mis-shap'er n.

mis-sile (mɪs'əl, -ɪl') n. 1. An object or a weapon that is fired, thrown, dropped, or otherwise projected at a target; a projectile. 2. A guided missile. 3. A ballistic missile. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: missile technology; a missile silo. [Latin, from neuter of missilis, able to be thrown, from missus, past participle of mittere, to let go, throw.]

mis-sile-ry also mis-sil-ry (mɪs'əl-rē) n. 1. The science and technology of making and using guided or ballistic missiles. 2. Missiles considered as a group.

miss-ing (mɪs'ɪŋ) adj. 1. a. Not present; absent. b. Lost: a missing person; soldiers missing in action. 2. Lacking; wanting: This book has 12 missing pages.

missing link (mɪs'ɪŋ lɪŋk) n. 1. A theoretical primate postulated to bridge the evolutionary gap between the anthropoid apes and human beings.

2. Something lacking that is needed to complete a series.

mis-sion (mɪʃ'ən) n. 1. a. A body of persons sent to conduct negotiations or establish relations with a foreign country. b. The business with which such a body of persons is charged. c. A permanent diplomatic office abroad. d. A body of experts or dignitaries sent to a foreign country. 2. a. A body of persons sent to a foreign land by a religious organization, especially a Christian organization, to spread its faith or provide educational, medical, and other assistance. b. A mission established abroad. c. The district assigned to a mission worker. d. A building or compound housing a mission. e. An organization for carrying on missionary work in a territory. f. missions. Missionary duty or work. 3. A Christian church or congregation with no cleric of its own that depends for support on a larger religious organization. 4. A series of special Christian services for purposes of proselytizing. 5. A welfare or educational organization established for the needy people of a district. 6. a. A special assignment given to a person or group: an agent on a secret mission. b. A combat operation assigned to a person or military unit. c. An aerospace operation intended to carry out specific program objectives: a mission to Mars. 7. An inner calling to pursue an activity or perform a service; a vocation. — v. tr. mis-sioned, mis-sion-ing, mis-sions. 1. To send on a mission. 2. To organize or establish a religious mission among or in. — adj. 1. Of or relating to a mission. 2. Of or relating to a style of architecture or furniture used in the early Spanish missions of California.

3. Often Mission. Of, relating to, or having the distinctive qualities of an early 20th-century style of plain, heavy, dark-stained wood furniture. [French, from Old French, from Latin missiō, missiōn-, from missus, past participle of mittere, to send off.] —mis'sion·al adj.

Mission A city of southern Texas near the Rio Grande west-northwest of Brownsville. It is a distribution center in an oil and farm region. Population, 28,653.

mis-sion·ar·y (mĭsh'ə-nĕr'ē) n. pl. mis-sion·ar·ies. 1. One who is sent on a mission, especially one sent to do religious or charitable work in a territory or foreign country. 2. One who attempts to persuade or convert others to a particular program, doctrine, or set of principles; a propagandist. — adj. 1. Of or relating to missions or missionaries. 2. Engaged in the activities of a mission or missionary. 3. Tending to propagandize or use insistent persuasion: missionary fervor.

missionary position (mĭsh'ə-nĕr'ē pə-zĭsh'ən) n. A position for sexual intercourse in which a woman and man lie facing each other, with the woman on the bottom and the man on the top.

Mis-sion·ar·y Ridge (mĭsh'ə-nĕr'ē rĭj) A range of hills in southeast Tennessee and northwest Georgia. It was the site of an important Union victory (November 25, 1863) in the Civil War.

mis-sion·er (mĭsh'ə-nər) n. A missionary.

mis-sion·ize (mĭsh'ə-nĭz') v. mis-sion·ized, mis-sion·iz·ing, mis-sion·iz·es. — v. intr. To do missionary work. — v. tr. 1. To perform missionary work in or among. 2. To bring under the influence or control of a mission: “Eastern Apaches in what is now Texas were even missionized—briefly—in the eighteenth century” (William Brandon).

Mission Vi·e·jo (mĭsh'ən vĕ-ā'hō) A community of southern California southeast of Irvine. It is mainly residential. Population, 72,820.

mis-sis or mis-sus (mĭs'ĭz, -ĭs) n. Informal. 1. The mistress of a household. 2. Used as a term of reference by a man of his wife. [Alteration of MISTRESS.]

Mis-sis·sau·ga (mĭs'ĭ-sô'gə) A town of southern Ontario, Canada, a suburb of Toronto on Lake Ontario. Population, 315,056.

Mis-sis-sip·pi (mĭs'ĭ-sĭp'ē) Abbr. MS, Miss. A state of the southeast United States. It was admitted as the 20th state in 1817. The first settlers in the region (1699) were French, and the area became part of Louisiana. It passed to the British (1763-1779) and then to the Spanish before being ceded to the United States in 1783. The Mississippi Territory, organized in 1798 and enlarged in 1804 and 1813, also included the present state of Alabama. Jackson is the capital and the largest city. Population, 2,586,443.

Mis-sis-sip·pi·an (mĭs'ĭ-sĭp'ē-ən) adj. 1. Of or relating to the state or residents of Mississippi or the Mississippi River. 2. Of, belonging to, or being the geologic time, system of rocks, and sedimentary deposits of the fifth period of the Paleozoic Era, characterized by the submergence of extensive land areas under shallow seas. — n. 1. A native or resident of Mississippi. 2. The Mississippian Period. Also called Lower Carboniferous Mississippi River (mɪs'ɪ-sɪp'ē rɪv'ər) The chief river of the United States, rising in the lake region of northern Minnesota and flowing about 3,781 km (2,350 mi) generally southward to enter the Gulf of Mexico through a huge delta in southeast Louisiana. Probably discovered by Hernando de Soto in 1541, it was explored by Jacques Marquette and Louis Jolliet in 1673. La Salle claimed the entire region for France after he descended to the river's mouth in 1682.

Mississippi Sound (mɪs'ɪ-sɪp'ē saʊnd) An arm of the Gulf of Mexico bordering on southeast Louisiana, southern Mississippi, southwest Alabama, and a chain of small offshore islands. It is part of the Intracoastal Waterway.

mis-sive (mɪs'ɪv) n. A written message; a letter. See Synonyms at letter. [From Middle English (letter) missive, (letter) sent (by superior authority), from Medieval Latin (littere) missīve, feminine pl. of missīvus, sent, from Latin missus, past participle of mittere, to send.]

Mis-sou-la (mɪ-zōʊ'lə) A city of western Montana west-northwest of Helena. It is a processing and trade center in a farming and lumbering region and the seat of the University of Montana (founded 1893). Population, 42,918.

Mis-sou-ri¹ (mɪ-zōʊr'ē) n. pl. Missouri or Mis-sou-ris. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting north-central Missouri, with present-day descendants living with the Oto in north-central Oklahoma. b. A member of this people. 2. The Siouan language of the Missouri. [French, from Illinois ouemes-sourita, those that have dugout canoes.]

Mis-sou-ri² (mɪ-zōʊr'ē, -zōʊr'ə) Abbr. MO, Mo. A state of the central United States. It was admitted as the 24th state in 1821. Under Spanish control from 1762 to 1800, the area passed to the United States through the Louisiana Purchase of 1803. Organized as a territory in 1812, Missouri's application for admission as a slaveholding state in 1817 sparked a bitter controversy over the question of extending slavery into new territories. The Missouri Compromise of 1820 provided for the admission of Maine as a free state and Missouri as a slave state in the following year. Jefferson City is the capital and St. Louis the largest city. Population, 5,137,804. — Mis-sou'ri-an adj. & n.

Missouri City (mɪ-zōʊr'ē sɪt'ē) A city of southeast Texas, a suburb of Houston. Population, 36,176.

Missouri River (mɪ-zōʊr'ē rɪv'ər) A river of the United States rising in the Rocky Mountains as various headstreams that join to form the Missouri proper in southwest Montana. The longest river in the United States, it flows about 4,127 km (2,565 mi) in a meandering course to the Mississippi River north of St. Louis, Missouri. French explorers first reached the river in the late 17th century, and Lewis and Clark followed it on their journey westward (1804-1806).

mis-speak (mĭs-spēk') v. mis-spoke (-spōk'), mis-spo-ken (-spō'kən), mis-speak-ing, mis-speaks. — v. tr. To speak or pronounce incorrectly: The lead actor misspoke his lines. — v. intr. To speak mistakenly, inappropriately, or rashly.

mis-spell (mĭs-spēl') v. tr. mis-spelled or mis-spelt (-spēlt'), mis-spell-ing, mis-spells. To spell incorrectly.

mis-spell-ing (mĭs-spēl'ing) n. 1. The act or an instance of spelling incorrectly. 2. A word spelled incorrectly.

mis-spelt (mĭs-spēlt') v. A past tense and a past participle of misspell.

mis-spend (mĭs-spēnd') v. tr. mis-spent (-spēnt'), mis-spend-ing, mis-spends. To spend improperly or extravagantly; squander: misspent the funds; misspent their youth.

mis-spoke (mĭs-spōk') v. Past tense of misspeak.

mis-spo-ken (mĭs-spō'kən) v. Past participle of misspeak.

mis-state (mĭs-stāt') v. tr. mis-stat-ed, mis-stat-ing, mis-states. To state wrongly or falsely. — mis-state/ment n.

mis-step (mĭs-stēp') n. 1. A misplaced or awkward step. 2. An instance of wrong or improper conduct; a blunder.

mis-sus (mĭs'ĭz, -ĭs) n. Variant of missis.

miss-y (mĭs'ē) n. pl. miss-ies. Informal. Used as a familiar term of address for a young woman or girl.

mist (mĭst) n. 1. A mass of fine droplets of water in the atmosphere near or in contact with the earth. 2. Water vapor condensed on and clouding the appearance of a surface. 3. Fine drops of a liquid, such as water, perfume, or medication, sprayed into the air. 4. A suspension of fine drops of a liquid in a gas. 5. Something that dims or conceals. 6. A haze before the eyes that blurs the vision. 7. Something that produces or gives the impression of dimness or obscurity: the mists of the past. 8. A drink consisting of a liquor served over cracked ice. — v. mist-ed, mist-ing, mists. — v. intr. 1. To be or become obscured or blurred by or as if by mist. 2. To rain in a fine shower. — v. tr. 1. To conceal or veil as if with mist. 2. To moisturize (plants or dry air, for example) with a fine spray of water. [Middle English, from Old English. See meigh- in Appendix.]

mis-tak-a-ble (mĭ-stā'kə-bəl) adj. Capable of being mistaken or misunderstood: mistakable signals. — mis-tak'a-bly adv.

mis-take (mĭ-stāk') n. 1. An error or a fault resulting from defective judgment, deficient knowledge, or carelessness. 2. A misconception or misunderstanding. See Synonyms at error. — v. mis-took (mĭ-stōok'), mis-tak-en (mĭ-stā'kən), mis-tak-ing, mis-takes. — v. tr. 1. To understand wrongly; misinterpret: mistook my politeness for friendliness. 2. To recognize or identify incorrectly: He mistook her for her sister. — v. intr. To make a mistake; err. [From Middle mis-tak-en (mĭ-stā'kən) v. Past participle of mistake. — adj. 1. Wrong or incorrect in opinion, understanding, or perception. 2. Based on error; wrong: a mistaken view of the situation. —mis-tak'en-ly adv.

English mistaken, to misunderstand, from Old Norse mistaka, to take in error : mis-, wrongly; see mei-¹ in Appendix + taka, to take.] —mis-tak'er n.

Mis-tas-si-ni (mĭs'tə-sē'nē), Lake. A lake of south-central Quebec, Canada, draining westward into James Bay by way of the Rupert River.

Mis-ter (mĭs'tər) n. Abbr. Mr. 1. Used as a courtesy title before the surname, full name, or professional title of a man, usually written in its abbreviated form: Mr. Jones; Mr. Secretary. 2. Used as the official term of address for certain U.S. military personnel, such as warrant officers. 3. mister. Informal. Used as a form of address for a man: Watch your step, mister. 4. Informal. Used as a term of reference by a woman of her husband. [Alteration of MASTER.]

Mister Char-lie (mĭs'tər chär'lē) n. Offensive Slang. Variant of Mr. Charlie.

mist-flow-er (mĭst'flou'ər) n. A perennial plant (Eupatorium coelestinum) of the southeast and central United States, having corymbs of small blue flowers.

Mis-ti (mē'stē), El. See El Misti.

mis-time (mĭs-tīm') v. tr. mis-timed, mis-tim-ing, mis-times. To time inaccurately or inappropriately; misjudge the timing of: The basketball team mistimed the final play and lost the game.

mis-tle thrush also mis-sel thrush (mĭs'əl thrūsh) n. A European thrush (Turdus viscivorus) that feeds on berries, especially those of mistletoe. [From obsolete missel, mistletoe, from Middle English mistel, from Old English. See MISTLETOE.]

mis-tle-toe (mĭs'əl-tō') n. 1. A Eurasian parasitic shrub (Viscum album) having leathery evergreen leaves and waxy white berries. 2. Any of several American parasitic shrubs, such as Phoradendron flavescens of eastern North America. 3. A sprig of mistletoe, often used as a Christmas decoration. [Middle English mistelto, back-formation from Old English misteltān (tān, taken for pl. of tā, toe) : mistel, mistletoe; see meigh- in Appendix + tān, twig.]

mistletoe cactus (mĭs'əl-tō' kāk'təs) n. A leafless, epiphytic tropical American cactus (Rhipsalis baccifera).

mis-took (mĭ-stōök') v. Past tense of mistake.

mis-tral (mĭs'trəl, mĭ-sträl') n. A dry, cold northerly wind that blows in squalls toward the Mediterranean coast of southern France. [French, from Provençal maestral, from Old Provençal, from Late Latin magistrālis, of a master, from magister, master. See meg- in Appendix.]

Mis-tral (mĭ-sträl', mē-), Frédéric. 1830-1914. French writer and leader in the revival of Provençal as a literary language. He shared the 1904 Nobel Prize for literature.

Mis-tral (mĭ-strāl', mē-), Gabriela. Pen name of Lucila Godoy Alcayaga. 1889-1957. Chilean poet whose works include Sonnets of Death (1914) and Tala (1938). She won the 1945 Nobel Prize for literature.

mis-trans-late (mĭs'trāns-lāt', -trānz-, mĭs-trāns'lāt', -trānz'-) v. tr.

mis-trans-lat-ed, mis-trans-lat-ing, mis-trans-lates. To translate incorrectly. —mis'trans-la'tion n.

mis-treat (mĭs-trēt') v. tr. mis-treat-ed, mis-treat-ing, mis-treats. To treat roughly or wrongly; abuse. See Synonyms at abuse. —mis-treat'ment n.

mis-tress (mĭs'trĭs) n. 1. A woman in a position of authority, control, or ownership, as the head of a household: "Thirteen years had seen her mistress of Kellynch Hall" (Jane Austen). 2. A woman owner of an animal or a slave. 3. A woman with ultimate control over something: the mistress of her own mind.

4. a. A nation or country that has supremacy over others: Great Britain, once the mistress of the seas. b. Something personified as female that directs or reigns: "my mistress... the open road" (Robert Louis Stevenson). 5. A woman who has mastered a skill or a branch of learning: a mistress of the culinary art. 6. A woman who has a continuing sexual relationship with a usually married man who is not her husband and from whom she generally receives material support.

7. Mistress. Used formerly as a courtesy title when speaking to or of a woman.

8. Chiefly British. A woman schoolteacher. [Middle English maistresse, from Old French, feminine of maistre, master, from Latin magister. See MASTER.]

mis-tri-al (mĭs-trī'əl, -trīl') n. Law. 1. A trial that becomes invalid because of basic prejudicial error in procedure. 2. An inconclusive trial, as one in which the jurors fail to agree on a verdict.

mis-trust (mĭs-trŭst') n. Lack of trust or confidence arising from suspicion.

See Synonyms at uncertainty. — v. mis-trust-ed, mis-trust-ing, mis-trusts. — v. tr. To regard without trust or confidence. — v. intr. To be wary, suspicious, or doubtful. —mis-trust'ful adj. —mis-trust'ful-ly adv.

—mis-trust'ful-ness n.

mist-y (mĭs'tē) adj. mist-i-er, mist-i-est. 1. Consisting of or marked by mist: a misty rain; a misty night. 2. Obscured or clouded by or as if by mist: far-off, misty mountains. 3. a. Vague; hazy: a misty recollection of a dream. b. Full of tender emotion; sentimental: a love story that left us feeling misty and sad.

—mist'i-ly adv. —mist'i-ness n.

mist-y-eyed (mĭs'tē-īd') adj. 1. Having the eyes blurred, as with tears.

2. Having a sentimental or dreamy quality: a misty-eyed view of the past.

mis-un-der-stand (mĭs'-ŭn-dər-stānd') v. tr. mis-un-der-stood (-stōod'), mis-un-der-stand-ing, mis-un-der-stands. To understand incorrectly; misinterpret.

mis-un-der-stand-ing (mĭs'-ŭn-dər-stān'dĭng) n. 1. A failure to understand or interpret correctly. 2. A disagreement or quarrel.

mis·un·der·stood (mĭs'ŭn-dər-stōod') v. Past tense and past participle of misunderstand. — adj. 1. Incorrectly understood or interpreted. 2. Not appreciated or given sympathetic understanding: a sorely misunderstood child.

mis·us·age (mĭs-yōō'sĭj, -zĭj) n. 1. Abusive treatment. 2. Improper application, as of words.

mis·use (mĭs-yōōs') n. Improper, unlawful, or incorrect use; misapplication. — v. tr. mis·used, mis·us·ing, mis·us·es (-yōōz'). 1. To use incorrectly. 2. To mistreat or abuse. See Synonyms at abuse.

mis·us·er (mĭs-yōō'-zər) n. 1. One that misuses: a misuser of school athletic equipment. 2. Law. Unlawful use of an authorized privilege, right, or form of empowerment, as that of a franchise by a corporation.

mis·val·ue (mĭs-vāl'yōō) v. tr. mis·val·ued, mis·val·u·ing, mis·val·ues. To value or estimate incorrectly, especially to undervalue: The art critics had misvalued his work for years.

mis·word (mĭs-wŭrd') v. tr. mis·word·ed, mis·word·ing, mis·words. To express incorrectly; word improperly.

mis·write (mĭs-rĭt') v. tr. mis·wrote (-rōt'), mis·writ·ten (-rĭt'n), mis·writ·ing, mis·writes. To write incorrectly or carelessly: miswrite a word; miswrite a historical account.

Mi·tan·ni (mĭ-tăn'ē, -tă'nē) An ancient kingdom of northwest Mesopotamia extending from the bend in the Euphrates River nearly to the Tigris River. Founded probably by Aryans, the kingdom was established c. 1475 B.C. and lasted until c. 1275, when it fell to the Hittites. — Mi·tan'ni·an adj. & n.

Mitch·ell (mĭch'əl), John. 1870-1919. American labor leader who was president of the United Mine Workers from 1898 to 1908.

Mitch·ell (mĭch'əl), Margaret Munnerlyn. 1900-1949. American writer known for her novel Gone With the Wind (1936), for which she won a Pulitzer Prize.

Mitch·ell (mĭch'əl), Maria. 1818-1889. American astronomer and educator noted for her study of sunspots and nebulae and for the discovery of a comet (1847). She was the first woman elected to the Academy of Arts and Sciences (1848).

Mitchell, Mount. A peak, 2,038.6 m (6,684 ft) high, in the Appalachian Mountains of western North Carolina. It is the highest point east of the Mississippi River.

Mitch·ell (mĭch'əl), Peter Dennis. Born 1920. British biochemist. He won a 1978 Nobel Prize for contributions to the understanding of biological energy transfer.

Mitch·ell (mĭch'əl), William. Known as "Billy." 1879-1936. American soldier and aviation pioneer who was one of the first advocates of military air power.

mite¹ (mīt) n. Any of various small or minute arachnids of the order Acarina that are often parasitic on animals and plants, infest stored food products, and in some species transmit disease. [Middle English, from Old French mīte, from Middle Dutch.]

mite² (mīt) n. 1. a. A very small contribution or amount of money. b. A widow's mite. 2. A very small object, creature, or particle. 3. A coin of very small value, especially an obsolete British coin worth half a farthing. [Middle English, from Middle Dutch, and Middle Low German mīte, a small Flemish coin, tiny animal.]

mi·ter (mī'tər) n. 1. Ecclesiastical. The liturgical headdress and part of the insignia of a Christian bishop. In the Western church it is a tall pointed hat with peaks in front and back, worn at all solemn functions. 2. a. A thong for binding the hair, worn by women in ancient Greece. b. The ceremonial headdress worn by ancient Jewish high priests. 3. a. A miter joint. b. The edge of a piece of material that has been beveled preparatory to making a miter joint. c. A miter square. — v. mi·tered, mi·ter·ing, mi·ters. — v. tr. 1. To bestow a miter upon. 2. a. To make (two pieces or surfaces) join with a miter joint. b. To bevel the edges of for joining with a miter joint. — v. intr. To meet in a miter joint. [Middle English mitre, from Old French, from Medieval Latin, from Latin mitra, headdress of the Jewish high priest, from Greek.] — mi'ter·er n.

miter box (mī'tər bɒks) n. A fixed or adjustable device for guiding handsaws in cutting miter joints or in making crosscuts, especially an open-ended box with slotted sides.

miter joint (mī'tər joint) n. A joint made by beveling each of two surfaces to be joined, usually at a 45° angle, to form a corner, usually a 90° angle.

miter square (mī'tər skwâr) n. An instrument with straight edges that are set at a 45° angle or that are adjustable, used for marking the angles of a miter joint.

mi·ter·wort (mī'tər-wûrt', -wôrt') n. Any of several North American plants of the genus Mitella, having heart-shaped leaves and clusters of small white flowers with pinnately divided petals. Also called bishop's cap [From the shape of its capsule.]

Mit·ford (mīt'fərd), Mary Russell. 1787-1855. British writer whose magazine articles on country life were collected in Our Village (five volumes, 1824-1832).

Mith·ra·ism (mīth'rə-iz'əm, -rā-) n. A religious cult of Persian origin, especially popular among the Roman military, that flourished in the late Roman Empire, rivaling Christianity. — Mith·ra'ic (mī-thrā'ik) adj. — Mith·ra'ist n.

Mith·ras (mīth'rəs) n. Mythology. The ancient Persian god of light and guardian against evil, often identified with the sun.

mith·ri·date (mīth'rī-dāt') n. An antidote against poison, especially a confection formerly held to be an antidote to all poisons. [Medieval Latin mithridātum, alteration of Late Latin mithridātium, from Latin, neuter of Mithridātius, of

Mithridates, from Greek mithridateios, after MITHRIDATES VI, who is said to have acquired tolerance for poison.]

Mith·ri·da·tes VI (mīth' rī-dā'tēz), Known as "Mithridates the Great." 132?-63 B.C. King of Pontus (120-63) who expanded the kingdom through victories over the Romans during the early part of his reign but was later driven from Pontus by Pompey (66).

mith·ri·da·tism (mīth' rī-dā'tīz'əm) n. Tolerance or immunity to a poison acquired by taking gradually larger doses of it. [After MITHRIDATES VI, who is said to have acquired tolerance for poison.] —mith'ri·dat'ic (-dāt'ik) adj.

mi·ti·cide (mī'tī-sīd') n. An agent that kills mites. —mi'ti·cid'al (-sīd'l) adj.

mit·i·gate (mīt'īgāt') v. mit·i·gat·ed, mit·i·gat·ing, mit·i·gates. — v. tr. To moderate (a quality or condition) in force or intensity; alleviate. See Synonyms at relieve. — v. intr. To become milder. [Middle English mitigaten, from Latin mītigāre, mītigāt- : mītis, soft + agere, to drive, do; see ACT.]

—mit'i·ga·ble (-gə-bəl) adj. —mit'i·ga'tion n. —mit'i·ga'tive, mit'i·ga·to'ry (-gə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. —mit'i·ga'tor n.

Mi·to (mē'tō) A city of east-central Honshu, Japan, northeast of Tokyo. It was the center of an important shogunate after 1600. Population, 228,987.

mi·to·chon·dri·on (mī'tə-kōn'drē-ən) *n. pl. mi·to·chon·dri·a (-drē-ə). A spherical or elongated organelle in the cytoplasm of nearly all eukaryotic cells, containing genetic material and many enzymes important for cell metabolism, including those responsible for the conversion of food to usable energy. Also called chondriosome [New Latin : Greek mitos, warp thread + Greek khondrion, diminutive of khondros, grain, granule; see ghrendh- in Appendix.]*

—mi'to·chon'dri·al (-drē-əl) adj.

mi·to·gen (mī'tə-jən) n. An agent that induces mitosis. [MITO(SIS) + -GEN.]

—mi'to·gen'ic (mī'tə-jēn'ik, mīt'ə-) adj. —mi'to·ge·nic'i·ty (-jə-nīs'ī-tē) n.

mi·to·my·cin (mī'tə-mī'sīn) n. Any of a group of antibiotics produced by the soil actinomycete Streptomyces caespitosus that inhibit DNA synthesis and are used against bacteria and cancerous tumor cells. [Probably MITO(SIS) + -MYCIN.]

mi·to·sis (mī-tō'sīs) n. pl. mi·to·ses (-sēz). Biology. 1. The process in cell division by which the nucleus divides, typically consisting of four stages, prophase, metaphase, anaphase, and telophase, and normally resulting in two new nuclei, each of which contains a complete copy of the parental chromosomes. Also called karyokinesis 2. The entire process of cell division including division of the nucleus and the cytoplasm. [Greek mitos, warp thread + -OSIS.] —mi·tot'ic (-tōt'ik) adj. —mi·tot'i·cal·ly adv.

mi·tral (mī'trəl) adj. 1. Relating to or resembling a miter worn by certain ecclesiastics. 2. Relating to a mitral valve.

mitral stenosis (mī'trəl stə-nō'sis) n. A narrowing of the mitral valve, usually caused by rheumatic fever, resulting in an obstruction to the flow of blood from the left atrium to the left ventricle.

mitral valve (mī'trəl vālv) n. A valve of the heart, composed of two triangular flaps, that is located between the left atrium and left ventricle and regulates blood flow between these chambers. Also called bicuspid valve, left atrioventricular valve.

mi·tre (mī'tər) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of miter.

Mi·tro·pou·los (mī-trōp'ə-ləs, mē-trō'pō-lōs), Dimitri. 1896-1960. Greek-born American conductor who led the Minneapolis Symphony (1938-1949) and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra (1949-1958).

mitt (mīt) n. 1. A woman's glove that extends over the hand and only partially covers the fingers. 2. A mitten. 3. Baseball. A large, padded, protective leather glove, usually with one sheath for the thumb and one undivided sheath for the remaining fingers, used by catchers and first basemen. 4. Slang. A hand or fist. [Short for MITTEN.]

mit·ten (mīt'n) n. A covering for the hand that encases the thumb separately and the four fingers together. [Middle English, from Old French mitaine (from mite, cat's caress, mitten, from mit, cat), and from Medieval Latin mitta, mitten (possibly from Old French mite).]

Mit·ter·rand (mē'tə-ränd', -rān'), François Maurice. 1916-1996. French politician who served as president of France from 1981 until 1995.

mitz·vah (mīts'və) n. pl. mitz·voth (-vōt', -vōs') or mitz·vahs. 1. a. A commandment of the Jewish law. b. The fulfillment of such a commandment. 2. A worthy deed. [Hebrew miṣwâ, from šiwwâ, to command.]

Mi·wok (mē'wōk) n. pl. Miwok or Mi-woks. 1. a. A Native American people formerly composed of numerous groups inhabiting central California from the Sierra Nevada foothills to the San Francisco Bay area, with a small number of present-day descendants in the same region. b. A member of this people.

2. Any of the Penutian languages of this people.

mix (mīks) v. mixed, mix·ing, mix·es. — v. tr. 1. a. To combine or blend into one mass or mixture. b. To create or form by combining ingredients: mix a drink; mix cement. c. To add (an ingredient or element) to another: mix an egg into batter. 2. To combine or join: mix joy with sorrow. 3. To bring into social contact: mix boys and girls in the classroom. 4. To crossbreed. 5. Electronics.

a. To combine (two or more audio tracks or channels) to produce a composite audio recording. b. To produce (a soundtrack or recording) in this manner. —

v. intr. 1. a. To become mixed or blended together. b. To be capable of being blended together: Oil does not mix with water. 2. To associate socially or get along with others: He does not mix well at parties. 3. To be crossbred. 4. To become involved: In the case of a family argument, it is better for a friend not to mix in. — n. 1. An act of mixing. 2. a. A mixture, especially of ingredients packaged and sold commercially: a cake mix. b. A blend of diverse elements; an amalgamation: “a mix of mean streets and the grandest boulevards—no other place in Paris is as eclectic and eccentric... as the 17th” (Jean Rafferty). 3. Electronics. A recording that is produced by combining and adjusting two or more audio tracks or channels. —phrasal verbs. mix down. Electronics. To combine all of the audio components of a recording into a final soundtrack or mix. mix up. 2. To confuse; confound: His explanation just mixed me up more. I always mix up the twins. 3. To involve or implicate: He got himself mixed up with the wrong people. —idiom. mix it up. Slang. To fight. [Back-formation from Middle English mixt, mixed, mixed, from Anglo-Norman mixte, from Latin mixtus, past participle of miscēre, to mix. See meik- in Appendix.] —mix/a-ble adj.

SYNONYMS: mix, blend, mingle, coalesce, merge, amalgamate, fuse. These verbs mean to put into or come together in one mass so that constituent parts or elements are diffused or commingled. Mix is the least specific, implying only components capable of being combined: mix water and wine; motives that were mixed. Greed and charity don't mix. To blend is to mix intimately and harmoniously so that the components shade into each other, losing some or all of their original definition: blended mocha and java coffee beans; snow-covered mountains blending into the clouds. Mingle implies combination without loss of individual characteristics: “Respect was mingled with surprise” (Sir Walter Scott). “His companions mingled freely and joyously with the natives” (Washington Irving). Coalesce involves a union, often slowly achieved, with a distinct new identity: Indigenous peoples and conquerors gradually coalesced into the present-day population. Merge implies the absorption of one entity into another with resultant homogeneity: Tradition and innovation are merged in this new composition. Twilight merged into night. Amalgamate implies the integration of elements: “The four sentences of the original are amalgamated into two” (William Minto). Fuse emphasizes an enduring union, as that formed by heating metals, strongly marked by the merging of parts: “He diffuses a tone and spirit of unity, that blends, and (as it were) fuses, each into each” (Samuel Taylor Coleridge).

Mix (mīks), Thomas Edwin. Known as “Tom.” 1880-1940. American film actor noted for his performances in silent Westerns.

mixed (mīkst) adj. Abbr. mxd. 1. Blended together into one unit or mass; intermingled. 2. Composed of a variety of differing, sometimes conflicting entities: viewed the change in management with mixed emotions; a closet full of mixed outfits. See Synonyms at miscellaneous. 3. Made up of people of different sex, race, or social class. 4. a. Descended from two or more races or breeds. b. Crossbred.

mixed bag (mĭkst bæg) n. A collection of dissimilar things; an assortment.

mixed doubles (mĭkst düb'əlz) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). Sports. A game of doubles, as in tennis, that is played with each team composed of one man and one woman.

mixed drink (mĭkst drĭngk) n. A drink made of one or more kinds of liquor combined with other ingredients, usually shaken or stirred before serving.

mixed economy (mĭkst ĭ-kön'ə-mē) n. An economic system that allows for the simultaneous operation of publicly and privately owned enterprises.

mixed farm-ing (mĭkst fär'mĭng) n. The use of a single farm for multiple purposes, as the growing of cash crops or the raising of livestock.

mixed grill (mĭkst grĭl) n. A single dish consisting of a variety of broiled meats and vegetables.

mixed marriage (mĭkst măr'ij) n. Marriage between persons of different races or religions.

mixed media (mĭkst mē'dē-ə) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). 1. A technique involving the use of two or more artistic media, such as ink and pastel or painting and collage, that are combined in a single composition. 2. See multimedia.

—mixed'-me'di-a (mĭkst'mē'dē-ə) adj.

mixed metaphor (mĭkst mēt'ə-fôr') n. A succession of incongruous metaphors, as in The negotiator played his cards to the hilt.

mixed nerve (mĭkst nŭrv) n. A nerve that contains both sensory and motor fibers.

mixed number (mĭkst nŭm'bər) n. Mathematics. A number, such as 74, consisting of an integer and a fraction or decimal.

mixed-up (mĭkst'ŭp') adj. Informal. In a state of confusion; bewildered or muddled: just a mixed-up kid.

mixed-use (mĭkst'yŭōs') adj. Containing or zoned for commercial and residential facilities or development: a 40-story mixed-use tower; a mixed-use parcel of land.

mix·er (mĭk'sər) n. 1. One that mixes: a mixer of concrete; a mixer of drinks.

2. A sociable person: She's outgoing and a good mixer. 3. An informal dance or party arranged to give members of a group an opportunity to get acquainted.

4. A device that blends or mixes substances or ingredients, especially by mechanical agitation. 5. A beverage, such as soda water or ginger ale, used in diluting alcoholic drinks. 6. Electronics. a. One who mixes the audio components of a recording. b. A device used to combine and adjust sounds from a variety of sources in order to create a final recorded audio product, such as the soundtrack of a movie.

mix·ol·o·gy (mĭk-sŏl'ə-jē) n. The study or skill of preparing mixed drinks.

—mix·ol'o·gist n.

mixt (mĭkst) v. Archaic. A past tense and a past participle of mix.

Mix·tec (mēs'tĕk) n. pl. Mixtec or Mix·tecs. 1. a. A member of a Mesoamerican Indian people of southern Mexico whose civilization was overthrown by the Aztecs in the 16th century. b. A modern-day descendant of this people. 2. The language of this people. [Spanish, from Nahuatl mixtecatl, inhabitant of Mixtecapán, a province of the Mexican empire.]

mix·ture (mĭks'chər) n. 1. a. The act or process of mixing: an alloy made from the mixture of two metals. b. The condition of being mixed: the inevitable mixtures of urban neighborhoods. 2. Something produced by mixing. 3. One that consists of diverse elements: The day was a mixture of sun and clouds. 4. A fabric made of different kinds of thread or yarn. 5. Chemistry. A composition of two or more substances that are not chemically combined with each other and are capable of being separated. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin mixtura, from mixtus, past participle of miscēre, to mix. See meik- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: mixture, blend, admixture, compound, composite, amalgam. These nouns refer to a combination produced by mixing. Mixture has the widest application: a mixture of tea and honey; yarn that is a mixture of nylon and cotton. “He showed a curious mixture of eagerness and terror” (Francis Parkman). Blend denotes an intimate, harmonious mixture in which the original components lose their distinctness: The novel is a fascinating blend of illusion and reality. Admixture suggests that one of the components of the mixture is dissimilar to the others: The essential oil in the perfume contains a large admixture of alcohol. A compound is a combination of elements or parts that together constitute a new and independent entity: The word houseboat is a compound. Creative genius is a compound made up of exceptional intellect and superior imagination. A composite usually lacks the unity of a compound since the components may not wholly lose their identities: The suite is a composite of themes for various parts of the opera. Amalgam implies an intimate union of diverse elements likened to an alloy of mercury and another metal: an amalgam of charming agreeability and indefatigable humor.

mix-up also mix·up (mĭks'ŭp') n. 1. A state or an instance of confusion; a muddle: maddening bureaucratic mix-ups. 2. Informal. A fight or melee.

Mi·ya·za·ki (mē-yä'zä-kē, mē'yä-zä'kē) A city of southeast Kyushu, Japan, southeast of Kumamoto on an arm of the Pacific Ocean. It is an industrial and resort center. Population, 279,118.

Mi·zar (mī'zär') n. The double star in the middle of the handle of the Big Dipper. [Arabic mi'zar, cloak, Mizar.]

miz·zen or miz·en (mĭz'ən) n. Nautical. 1. A fore-and-aft sail set on the mizzenmast. 2. A mizzenmast. [Middle English mesan, from Old French misaine, Old Spanish mezana, or Old Italian mezzana all ultimately from Latin mediānus, of the middle, from medius, middle. See medhyo- in Appendix.] —miz'zen adj.

miz·zen·mast or miz·en·mast (mĭz'ən-məst, -mäst') n. Nautical. 1. The third mast aft on sailing ships carrying three or more masts. 2. See jigger mast (n., sense 2).

miz·zle¹ (mĭz'əl) v. intr. miz·zled, miz·zling, miz·zles. To rain in fine, mistlike droplets; drizzle. — n. A mistlike rain; a drizzle. [Middle English misellen; probably akin to Dutch dialectal mieselen. See meigh- in Appendix.] —miz'zly adv.

miz·zle² (mĭz'əl) v. intr. miz·zled, miz·zling, miz·zles. Chiefly British. To make a sudden departure. [Origin unknown.]

Mk abbr. Bible. Mark.

mk. abbr. 1. Mark (currency). 2. Markka.

mks or MKS abbr. Meter-kilogram-second.

mksA abbr. Meter-kilogram-second-ampere.

mkt. abbr. Market.

mktg. abbr. Marketing.

ml or mL abbr. Milliliter.

mL abbr. Millilambert.

MI abbr. Bible. Malachi.

MLA or M.L.A. abbr. Modern Language Association.

MLD abbr. Median lethal dose; minimum lethal dose.

Mlle. abbr. Mademoiselle.

Mlles. abbr. Mesdemoiselles.

M.L.S. abbr. Master of Library Science.

MLW abbr. Mean low water.

mm abbr. Millimeter.

m.m. abbr. Mutatis mutandis.

M.M. abbr. Messieurs.

Mme. abbr. Madame.

Mmes. abbr. Mesdames.

mmf or m.m.f. abbr. Magnetomotive force.

MMPI abbr. Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory.

Mn The symbol for the element manganese.

MN abbr. 1. Magnetic north. 2. Minnesota.

mne·mon·ic (nĭ-mŏn'ĭk) adj. Relating to, assisting, or intended to assist the memory. — n. A device, such as a formula or rhyme, used as an aid in remembering. [Greek mnēmonikos, from mnēmōn, mnēmon-, mindful. See men-¹ in Appendix.] —mne·mon'i·cal·ly adv.

mne·mon·ics (nĭ-mŏn'ĭks) n. (used with a sing. verb). A system to develop or improve the memory.

Mne·mos·y·ne (nĭ-mōs'ə-nē, -mōz'ə-) n. Greek Mythology. The goddess of memory, mother of the Muses.

mngr. abbr. Manager.

Mo The symbol for the element molybdenum.

MO or Mo. abbr. Missouri.

mo. abbr. Month.

m.o. or M.O. abbr. 1. Mail order. 2. Medical officer. 3. Modus operandi. 4. Also MO. Money order.

-mo suff. Used after numerals to indicate the number of leaves that results from folding a sheet of paper: twelvemo. [From (DUODECI)MO.]

mo·a (mō'ə) n. Any of various flightless ostrichlike birds of the family Dinornithidae, native to New Zealand and extinct for over a century. [Maori.]

Mo·ab (mō'āb) An ancient kingdom east of the Dead Sea in present-day southwest Jordan. According to the Old Testament, its inhabitants were descendants of Lot. Archaeological exploration has traced settlement in the area to at least the 13th century B.C.

Mo·ab·ite (mō'ə-bīt') n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Moab. 2. The Semitic language of Moab. — Mo'a·bite', Mo'a·bit'ish adj.

moan (mōn) n. 1. a. A low, sustained, mournful cry, usually indicative of sorrow or pain. b. A similar sound: the eerie moan of the night wind.

2. Lamentation. — v. moaned, moan·ing, moans. — v. intr. 1. a. To utter a moan or moans. b. To make a sound resembling a moan: A saxophone moaned in the background. 2. To complain, lament, or grieve: an old man who still moans about his misspent youth. — v. tr. 1. To bewail or bemoan: She moaned her misfortunes to anyone who would listen. 2. To utter with moans or a moan. [Middle English mone, from Old English mān*. See mei·no- in Appendix.]

moat (mōt) n. a. A deep, wide ditch, usually filled with water, typically surrounding a fortified medieval town, fortress, or castle as a protection against assault. b. A ditch similar to one surrounding a fortification: A moat separates the animals in the zoo from the spectators. — v. tr. moat·ed, moat·ing, moats. To surround with or as if with a deep, wide ditch. [Middle English mote, mound, moat, from Old French, mound, or Medieval Latin mota.]

mob (mōb) n. 1. A large disorderly crowd or throng. See Synonyms at crowd¹. 2. The mass of common people; the populace. 3. Informal. a. An organized gang of criminals; a crime syndicate. b. Often Mob. Organized crime. Often used with the: a murder suspect with links to the Mob. 4. An indiscriminate or loosely associated group of persons or things: a mob of boats in the harbor. 5. Australian. A flock or herd of animals. — v. tr. mobbed, mob·bing, mobs. 1. To crowd around and jostle or annoy, especially in anger or excessive enthusiasm: Eager fans mobbed the popular singer. 2. To crowd into: Visitors mobbed the fairgrounds.

3. To attack in large numbers; overwhelm: The quarterback was mobbed by the defensive line. [Short for mobile, from Latin mōbile (vulgus), fickle (crowd), neuter of mōbilis. See MOBILE.] —mob'bish adj. —mob'bish-ly adv.

mob·cap (mōb'kăp') n. A large, high, frilly cap with a full crown, worn indoors by women in the 18th and early 19th centuries. [Probably mob, mobcap (possibly from Dutch mopmuts, cap : obsolete Dutch mop-, to cover up + muts, cap) + CAP¹.] mo·bile (mō'bəl, -bēl', -bīl') adj. 1. Capable of moving or of being moved readily from place to place: a mobile organism; a mobile missile system.

2. a. Capable of moving or changing quickly from one state or condition to another: a mobile, expressive face. b. Fluid; unstable: a mobile situation following the coup. 3. a. Marked by the easy intermixing of different social groups: a mobile community. b. Moving relatively easily from one social class or level to another: an upwardly mobile generation. c. Tending to travel and relocate frequently: a restless, mobile society. 4. Flowing freely; fluid: a mobile liquid. — n.

(mō'bēl') A type of sculpture consisting of carefully equilibrated parts that move, especially in response to air currents. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin mōbilis, from movibilis*, from movēre, to move. See meuə- in Appendix.]

Mo·bile (mō-bēl', mō'bēl') A city of southwest Alabama at the mouth of the Mobile River, about 61 km (38 mi) long, on the north shore of Mobile Bay, an arm of the Gulf of Mexico. Founded c. 1710, the city was held by the French, British, and Spanish until it was seized by U.S. forces in 1813. In the Battle of Mobile Bay (August 1864) Adm. David Farragut defeated a major Confederate flotilla and secured Union control of the area. Population, 196,278.

mo·bile home (mō'bəl hōm, -bēl', -bīl') n. A large trailer, fitted with parts for connection to utilities, that can be installed on a relatively permanent site and that is used as a residence. Also called manufactured home mo·bile telephone (mō'bəl tēl'ə-fōn', -bēl', -bīl') also mobile phone n. A portable radiotelephone, especially one mounted in an automobile.

mo·bil·i·ty (mō-bīl'ə-tē) n. 1. The quality or state of being mobile. 2. The movement of people, as from one social group, class, or level to another: "There's been... restructuring of industry and downward mobility for Americans as a whole" (Lawrence W. Sherman).

mo·bi·lize (mō'bə-līz') v. mo·bi·lized, mo·bi·liz·ing, mo·bi·liz·es. — v. tr. 1. To make mobile or capable of movement. 2. a. To assemble, prepare, or put into operation for or as if for war: mobilize troops; mobilize the snowplows. b. To assemble, marshal, or coordinate for a purpose: mobilized the country's economic resources. — v. intr. To become prepared for or as if for war.

—mo'bi-li-za'tion (-lī-zā'shən) n.

Mö-bi-us strip (mœ' bē-əs strīp, mā'-, mō'-) n. A continuous one-sided surface that can be formed from a rectangular strip by rotating one end 180° and attaching it to the other end. [After August Ferdinand Möbius (1790-1868), German mathematician.]

mob-oc-ra-cy (mōb-ōk'rə-sē) n. pl. mob-oc-ra-cies. 1. Political control by a mob. 2. The mass of common people as the source of political control.

—mob'o-crat (mōb'ə-krät') n. —mob'o-crat'ic, mob'o-crat'i-cal adj.

mob-ster (mōb'stər) n. Informal. A member of a criminal gang or crime syndicate.

Mo-bu-to Lake (mō-bōō'tō lāk) See Lake Albert.

moc-ca-sin (mōk'ə-sīn) n. 1. A soft leather slipper traditionally worn by Native Americans. 2. Footwear resembling such a slipper. 3. A water moccasin. [Of Virginia Algonquian origin.]

moccasin flower (mōk'ə-sīn flou'ər) n. See lady's slipper.

mo-cha (mō'kə) n. 1. A rich, pungent Arabian coffee. 2. Coffee of high quality. 3. A flavoring made of coffee often mixed with chocolate. 4. A soft, thin, suede-finished glove leather usually made from sheepskin. 5. Color. A dark olive brown. [After Mocha, a town of southwest Yemen.] —mo'cha adj.

Mo-chi-ca (mō-chē'kə) or Mo-che (mō'chā, -chě) n. A pre-Incan civilization that flourished on the northern coast of Peru from about 200 B.C. to A.D. 600, known especially for its pottery vessels modeled into naturalistic human and animal figures.

mock (mōk) v. mocked, mock-ing, mocks. — v. tr. 1. To treat with ridicule or contempt; deride. 2. a. To mimic, as in sport or derision. See Synonyms at ridicule. b. To imitate; counterfeit. 3. To frustrate the hopes of; disappoint. — v. intr. To express scorn or ridicule; jeer: They mocked at the idea. — n.

1. a. The act of mocking. b. Mockery; derision: said it merely in mock. 2. An object of scorn or derision. 3. An imitation or a counterfeit. — adj. Simulated; false; sham: a mock battle. — adv. In an insincere or pretending manner: mock sorrowful. [Middle English mocken, from Old French mocquer.] —mock'er n. —mock'ing-ly adv.

mock-er-y (mōk'ə-rē) n. pl. mock-er-ies. 1. Scornfully contemptuous ridicule; derision. 2. A specific act of ridicule or derision. 3. An object of scorn or ridicule: made a mockery of the rules. 4. A false, derisive, or impudent imitation: The trial was a mockery of justice. 5. Something ludicrously futile or unsuitable: The few packages of food seemed a mockery in the face of such enormous destitution.

mock-he-ro-ic (mōk'hī-rō'ik) n. A satirical imitation or burlesque of the heroic manner or style. —mock'-he-ro'ic adj. —mock'-he-ro'i-cal-ly adv.

mock-ing-bird (mōk'ing-bûrd') n. Any of several species of New World birds of the family Mimidae, especially Mimus polyglottos, a gray and white bird of the southern and eastern United States, noted for the ability to mimic the sounds of other birds. [From its skill in mimicking other birdsongs.]

mock moon (mۆk mōōn) n. A paraselene.

mock orange (mۆk ۆr'ĩnj) n. 1. Any of numerous deciduous shrubs of the genus Philadelphus, having opposite, simple leaves and white, usually fragrant flowers with four petals and numerous stamens. 2. Any of various similar or related shrubs or trees.

mock sun (mۆk sۆn) n. A parhelion.

mock turtle soup (mۆk tۆr'tl sōōp) n. Soup made from calf's head, veal, or other meat and spiced to taste like green turtle soup.

mock-up also mock-up (mۆk'ۆp') n. 1. A usually full-sized scale model of a structure, used for demonstration, study, or testing. 2. A layout of printed matter.

mod¹ (mۆd) n. An unconventionally modern style of fashionable dress originating in England in the 1960's. — adj. 1. In or characteristic of this unconventionally modern style. 2. Fashionably up-to-date, especially in style, design, or dress. [After the Mods, name of several gangs of English youths in the 1960's, short for MODERN.]

mod² abbr. Mathematics. Modulus.

mod. abbr. 1. Moderate. 2. Music. Moderato. 3. Modern.

mod-a-cryl-ic (mۆd'ә-křil'ik) n. One of several synthetic, long-chain polymer textile fibers containing 35-85 percent acrylonitrile. [mod(ified) acrylic.] mod-al (mۆd'l) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a mode. 2. Grammar. Of, relating to, or expressing the mood of a verb. 3. Music. Of, relating to, characteristic of, or composed in any of the modes typical of medieval church music. 4. Philosophy. Of or relating to mode without referring to substance. 5. Logic. Expressing or characterized by modality. 6. Statistics. Of or relating to a statistical mode or modes. [Medieval Latin modālis, from Latin modus, measure. See med- in Appendix.] — mo'dal-ly adv.

modal auxiliary (mۆd'l ۆg-zřl'yә-rē) n. One of a set of English verbs, including can, may, must, ought, shall, should, will, and would, that are characteristically used with other verbs to express mood or tense.

mo-dal-i-ty (mō-dāl'i-tē) n. pl. mo-dal-i-ties. 1. The fact, state, or quality of being modal. 2. A tendency to conform to a general pattern or belong to a particular group or category. 3. Logic. The classification of propositions on the basis of whether they assert or deny the possibility, impossibility, contingency, or necessity of their content. Also called mode 4. modalities. The ceremonial forms, protocols, or conditions that surround formal agreements or negotiations: “[He] grew so enthusiastic about our prospects that he began to speculate on the modalities of signing” (Henry A. Kissinger). 5. Medicine. A therapeutic method or agent, such as surgery, chemotherapy, or electrotherapy, that involves the physical treatment of a disorder. 6. Physiology. Any of the various types of sensation, such as vision or hearing.

mode (mōd) n. 1. a. A manner, way, or method of doing or acting: modern modes of travel. See Synonyms at method. b. A particular form, variety, or manner: a mode of expression. c. A given condition of functioning; a status: The spacecraft was in its recovery mode. 2. The current or customary fashion or style. See Synonyms at fashion. 3. Music. a. Any of certain fixed arrangements of the diatonic tones of an octave, as the major and minor scales of Western music. b. A patterned arrangement, as the one characteristic of the music of classical Greece or the medieval Christian Church. 4. Philosophy. The particular appearance, form, or manner in which an underlying substance, or a permanent aspect or attribute of it, is manifested. 5. Logic. a. See modality (n., sense 3). b. The arrangement or order of the propositions in a syllogism according to both quality and quantity. 6. Statistics. The value or item occurring most frequently in a series of observations or statistical data. 7. Mathematics. The number or range of numbers in a set that occurs the most frequently. 8. Geology. The mineral composition of a sample of igneous rock. 9. Physics. Any of numerous patterns of wave motion. 10. Grammar. Mood. [Middle English, tune, from Latin modus, manner, tune. Sense 2, French from Old French, fashion, manner, from Latin modus. See med- in Appendix.]

mod·el (mōd'1) n. 1. A small object, usually built to scale, that represents in detail another, often larger object. 2. a. A preliminary work or construction that serves as a plan from which a final product is to be made: a clay model ready for casting. b. Such a work or construction used in testing or perfecting a final product: a test model of a solar-powered vehicle. 3. A schematic description of a system, theory, or phenomenon that accounts for its known or inferred properties and may be used for further study of its characteristics: a model of generative grammar; a model of an atom; an economic model. 4. A style or design of an item: My car is last year's model. 5. One serving as an example to be imitated or compared: a model of decorum. See Synonyms at ideal. 6. One that serves as the subject for an artist, especially a person employed to pose for a painter, sculptor, or photographer. 7. A person employed to display merchandise, such as clothing or cosmetics. 8. Zoology. An animal whose appearance is copied by a mimic. — v. mod·eled also mod·elled, mod·el·ing also mod·el·ing, mod·els also mod·els. — v. tr. 1. To make or construct a model of. 2. To plan, construct, or fashion according to a model. 3. To make conform to a chosen standard: He modeled his manners on his father's. 4. To make by shaping a plastic substance: model clay. 5. To display by wearing or posing. 6. In painting, drawing, and photography, to give a three-dimensional appearance to, as by shading or highlighting. — v. intr. 1. To make a model. 2. To serve as a model. — adj. 1. Being, serving as, or used as a model. 2. Worthy of imitation: a model child. [French modèle, from Italian modello, diminutive of modo, form, from Latin modus, measure, standard. See med- in Appendix.] —mod/el-er n.

mod-el-ing (mōd'1-īng) n. 1. The act or art of sculpturing or forming in a pliable material, such as clay or wax. 2. a. Representation of depth and solidity in painting, drawing, or photography. b. Visual shape and texture of something regarded aesthetically, especially the human face or form. 3. The act or profession of being a model.

mo-dem (mō'dēm') n. Computer Science. A device that converts data from one form into another, as from one form usable in data processing to another form usable in telephonic transmission. Also called data set [MO(DULATOR) + DEM(ODULATOR).]

Mo-de-na (mōd'n-ə, mō'dě-nä) A city of northern Italy west-northwest of Bologna. An ancient Etruscan settlement and later (after 183 B.C.) a Roman colony, Modena became a free commune in the 12th century A.D. and passed under the control of the powerful Este family in 1288. Population, 179,933.

mod-er-ate (mōd'ər-īt) adj. Abbr. mod. 1. Being within reasonable limits; not excessive or extreme: a moderate price. 2. Not violent or subject to extremes; mild or calm; temperate: a moderate climate. 3. a. Of medium or average quantity or extent. b. Of limited or average quality; mediocre. 4. Opposed to radical or extreme views or measures, especially in politics or religion. — n. One who holds or champions moderate views or opinions, especially in politics or religion. — v. mod-er-at-ed, mod-er-at-ing, mod-er-ates (mōd'ə-rāt'). — v. tr.

1. To lessen the violence, severity, or extremeness of. 2. To preside over: She was chosen to moderate the convention. — v. intr. 1. To become less violent, severe, or extreme; abate. 2. To act as a moderator. [Middle English moderat, from Latin moderātus, past participle of moderārī, to moderate. See med- in Appendix.]

—mod'er-ate-ly adv. —mod'er-ate-ness n. —mod'er-a'tion n.

SYNONYMS: moderate, qualify, temper. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to make less extreme or intense”: moderated the severity of the rebuke; qualified her criticism; admiration tempered with fear.

ANTONYM: intensify moderate breeze (mōd'ər-īt brēz) n. Meteorology. A wind with a speed from 13 to 18 miles (20 to 29 kilometers) per hour, according to the Beaufort scale.

moderate gale (mōd'ər-īt gāl) n. Meteorology. A wind with a speed from 32 to 38 miles (51 to 61 kilometers) per hour, according to the Beaufort scale. Also called near gale mod-er-ate-in-come (mōd'ər-īt-īn'kūm') adj. Of or relating to people or households supported by an average or slightly below average income: moderate-income housing.

mod·e·ra·to (möd'ə-rä'tō) adv. & adj. Abbr. mod. Music. In moderate tempo that is slower than allegretto but faster than andante. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, from Latin moderātus, moderate. See MODERATE.]

mod·er·a·tor (möd'ə-rā'tər) n. 1. One that moderates, as: a. One that arbitrates or mediates. b. One who presides over a meeting, forum, or debate. 2. The officer who presides over a synod or general assembly of the Presbyterian Church. 3. Physics. A substance, such as water or graphite, that is used in a nuclear reactor to decrease the speed of fast neutrons and increase the likelihood of fission.

mod·ern (möd'ərn) adj. Abbr. mod. 1. a. Of or relating to recent times or the present: modern history. b. Characteristic or expressive of recent times or the present; contemporary or up-to-date: a modern lifestyle; a modern way of thinking. 2. a. Of or relating to a recently developed or advanced style, technique, or technology: modern art; modern medicine. b. Avant-garde; experimental. 3. Modern. Linguistics. Of, relating to, or being a living language or group of languages: Modern Italian, Modern Romance languages. — n. 1. One who lives in modern times. 2. One who has modern ideas, standards, or beliefs. 3. Printing. Any of a variety of typefaces characterized by strongly contrasted heavy and thin parts. [French moderne, from Old French, from Late Latin modernus, from Latin modo, in a certain manner, just now, from modō, ablative of modus, manner. See med- in Appendix.] —mod'ern·ly adv. —mod'ern·ness n.

WORD HISTORY: The word modern, first recorded in 1585 in the sense “of present or recent times,” has traveled through the centuries designating things that inevitably must become old-fashioned as the word itself goes on to the next modern thing. We have now invented the word postmodern, as if we could finally fix modern in time, but even postmodern (first recorded in 1949) will seem fusty in the end, perhaps sooner than modern will. Going back to Late Latin modernus, “modern,” which is derived from modo in the sense “just now,” the English word modern (first recorded at the beginning of the 16th century) was not originally concerned with anything that could be later considered old-fashioned. It simply meant “being at this time, now existing,” an obsolete sense today. Beginning in the later 16th century, however, we see the word contrasted with the word ancient and also used of technology in a way that is clearly related to our own modern way of using the word. Modern was being applied specifically to what pertained to present times and also to what was new and not old-fashioned. Thus in the 19th and 20th centuries the word could be used to designate a movement in art, which is now being followed by postmodernism.

modern dance (mōd'ərn dāns) n. A style of theatrical dance that rejects the limitations of classical ballet and favors movement deriving from the expression of inner feeling.

mo·derne (mō-dâr'n') adj. Striving to be modern in appearance or style but lacking taste or refinement; pretentious. [French, modern, from Old French. See MODERN.]

Modern English (mōd'ərn ɪŋ'glɪʃ) n. English since about 1500. Also called New English Modern Greek (mōd'ərn grēk) n. Greek since the early 16th century. Also called New Greek Modern Hebrew (mōd'ərn hē'brōō) n. 1. The Hebrew language as used from 1948 to the present. 2. See New Hebrew.

mod·ern·ism (mōd'ər-nīz'əm) n. 1. a. Modern thought, character, or practice. b. Sympathy with or conformity to modern ideas, practices, or standards. 2. A peculiarity of usage or style, as of a word or phrase, that is characteristic of modern times. 3. Often Modernism. The deliberate departure from tradition and the use of innovative forms of expression that distinguish many styles in the arts and literature of the 20th century. 4. Often Modernism. A Roman Catholic movement, officially condemned in 1907, that attempted to examine traditional belief according to contemporary philosophy, criticism, and historiography. —mod'ern-ist n. —mod'ern-is'tic adj.

mo·der·ni·ty (mō-dûr'nī-tē, mō-) n. pl. mo·der·ni·ties. The state or quality of being modern: "Warriors of the... tribe, imposing symbols of a nomadic culture... are caught between tradition and modernity" (Sheila Rule).

mod·ern·ize (mōd'ər-nīz') v. mo·dern·ized, mo·dern·iz·ing, mo·dern·iz·es. — v. tr. To make modern in appearance, style, or character; update. — v. intr. To accept or adopt modern ways, ideas, or style.

—mod'ern-i-za'tion (-ər-nī-zā'shən) n. —mod'ern-iz'er n.

modern pentathlon (mōd'ərn pěn-tāth'lən) n. Sports. An athletic contest in which each participant competes in five events: running, swimming, horseback riding, fencing, and pistol shooting.

mod·est (mōd'ɪst) adj. 1. Having or showing a moderate estimation of one's own talents, abilities, and value. 2. Having or proceeding from a disinclination to call attention to oneself; retiring or diffident. See Synonyms at shy¹.

3. Observing conventional proprieties in speech, behavior, or dress. 4. Free from showiness or ostentation; unpretentious. See Synonyms at plain. 5. Moderate or limited in size, quantity, or range; not extreme: a modest price; a newspaper with a modest circulation. [Latin modestus. See med- in Appendix.]

—mod'est·ly adv.

Mo-des-to (mə-dēs'tō) A city of central California southeast of Stockton.

Founded in 1870, it is a processing and trade center in a farming and fruit-growing region of the San Joaquin Valley. Population, 164,730.

mod-es-ty (mōd'ī-stē) n. 1. The state or quality of being modest. 2. Reserve or propriety in speech, dress, or behavior. 3. Lack of pretentiousness; simplicity.

mod-i-cum (mōd'ī-kəm) n. pl. mod-i-cums or mod-i-ca (-kə). A small, moderate, or token amount: “England still expects a modicum of eccentricity in its artists” (Ian Jack). [Middle English, from Latin, from neuter of modicus, moderate, from modus, measure. See med- in Appendix.]

mod-i-fi-ca-tion (mōd'ə-fī-kā'shən) n. Abbr. modif. 1. The act of modifying or the condition of being modified. 2. A result of modifying. 3. A small alteration, adjustment, or limitation. 4. Biology. Any of the changes in an organism caused by environment or activity and not genetically transmissible to offspring. 5. Linguistics. a. A change undergone by a word that is borrowed from another language. b. A phonological change undergone by a word or morpheme when it is used in a construction, as the change of will to 'll in they'll. —mod'ī-fi-ca'tor n. —mod'ī-fi-ca'to-ry (-kā'tə-rē), mod'ī-fi-ca'tive (-kā'-tīv) adj.

mod-i-fied American plan (mōd'ə-fīd' ə-mēr'ī-kən plān) n. Abbr. MAP A system of hotel management in which guests pay a fixed daily or weekly rate for room, breakfast, and lunch or dinner.

mod-i-fi-er (mōd'ə-fī'ər) n. Grammar. A word, phrase, or clause that limits or qualifies the sense of another word or word group.

mod-i-fy (mōd'ə-fī') v. mod-i-fied, mod-i-fy-ing, mod-i-fies. — v. tr.

1. To change in form or character; alter. 2. To make less extreme, severe, or strong: refused to modify her stand on the issue. 3. Grammar. To qualify or limit the meaning of. For example, summer modifies day in the phrase a summer day. 4. Linguistics. To change (a vowel) by umlaut. — v. intr. To be or become modified; change. [Middle English modifien, from Old French modifier, from Latin modificāre, to measure, limit : modus, measure; see med- in Appendix + -ficāre, -fy.] —mod'ī-fi'a-bil'i-ty n. —mod'ī-fi'a-ble adj.

Mo-di-glia-ni (mō-dē'lē-ä'nē, mō'dē-lyä'nē), Amedeo. 1884-1920. Italian painter and sculptor noted for the graceful, elongated lines of his portraits and nudes, including Reclining Nude (1917).

Mo-di-glia-ni (mō-dē'lē-ä'nē, mō'dē-lyä'nē), Franco. Born 1918. American economist. He won a 1985 Nobel Prize for the analysis of household savings and corporate finance.

mo-dil-lion (mō-dīl'yən) n. Architecture. An ornamental bracket used in series under a cornice, especially a cornice of the Corinthian, Composite, or Ionic orders. [Italian modiglione, from Vulgar Latin mutiliō*, mutiliōn-, from Latin mūtulus, perhaps of Etruscan origin.]

mo-di-o-lus (mō-dī'ə-ləs) n. pl. mo-di-o-li (-lī'). The central, conical, bony core of the cochlea. [Latin, socket, hub, diminutive of modius, a measure of grain, measuring vessel. See med- in Appendix.]

mod-ish (mō'dīsh) adj. Being in or conforming to the prevailing or current fashion; stylish. See Synonyms at fashionable. —mod'ish-ly adv.
—mod'ish-ness n.

mo-diste (mō-dēst') n. One that produces, designs, or deals in women's fashions. [French, from mode, fashion. See MODE.]

Mo-djes-ka (mə-jēs'kə, mō-), Helena. 1840-1909. Polish-born American actress noted for her dramatic roles, especially in Shakespeare's tragedies.

Mo-doc (mō'dōk) n. pl. Modoc or Mo-docs. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting an area of the Cascade Range in south-central Oregon and northern California. b. A member of this people. 2. The dialect of Klamath spoken by the Modoc.

mod-u-lar (mōj'ə-lər) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or based on a module or modulus. 2. Designed with standardized units or dimensions, as for easy assembly and repair or flexible arrangement and use: modular furniture; modular homes.
—mod'u-lar n. —mod'u-lar'i-ty (-lār'ī-tē) n. —mod'u-lar-ly adv.

modular arithmetic (mōj'ə-lər ə-rīth'mī-tīk) n. Mathematics. A form of arithmetic dealing with the remainders after whole numbers are divided by a modulus: Clocks use modular arithmetic with modulus 12, so 4 hours after 9 o'clock is 1 o'clock.

mod-u-lar-ized (mōj'ə-lə-rīzd') adj. Having or made up of modules: modularized housing.

mod-u-late (mōj'ə-lāt') v. mod-u-lat-ed, mod-u-lat-ing, mod-u-lates. — v. tr. 1. To adjust or adapt to a certain proportion; regulate or temper. 2. To change or vary the pitch, intensity, or tone of (one's voice or a musical instrument, for example). 3. Electronics. a. To vary the frequency, amplitude, phase, or other characteristic of (electromagnetic waves). b. To vary (electron velocity) in an electron beam. — v. intr. Music. 1. To pass from one key or tonality to another by means of a regular melodic or chord progression. 2. To sing or play with modulation. [Latin modulārī, modulāt-, to measure off, to regulate, from modulus, diminutive of modus, measure. See med- in Appendix.]

—mod'u-la-bil'i-ty n. —mod'u-la'tive, mod'u-la-to'ry (-lə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

mod-u-la-tion (mōj'ə-lā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of modulating. 2. The state of being modulated. 3. Music. A passing from one key or tonality to another by means of a regular melodic or chord progression. 4. a. A change in stress, pitch, loudness, or tone of the voice; an inflection of the voice. b. An instance of such a change or an inflection. 5. The harmonious use of language, as in poetry or prose. 6. Electronics. The variation of a property of an electromagnetic wave or signal, such as its amplitude, frequency, or phase.

mod·u·la·tor (mōj'ə-lā'tər) n. Electronics. A device used to modulate an electromagnetic wave.

mod·ule (mōj'ool) n. 1. A standard or unit of measurement. 2. Architecture. The dimensions of a structural component, such as the base of a column, used as a unit of measurement or standard for determining the proportions of the rest of the construction. 3. A standardized, often interchangeable component of a system or construction that is designed for easy assembly or flexible use: a sofa consisting of two end modules. 4. Electronics. A self-contained assembly of electronic components and circuitry, such as a stage in a computer, that is installed as a unit. 5. Computer Science. A portion of a program that carries out a specific function and may be used alone or combined with other modules of the same program. 6. A self-contained unit of a spacecraft that performs a specific task or class of tasks in support of the major function of the craft. 7. A unit of education or instruction with a relatively high teacher-to-student ratio, in which a single topic or a small section of a broad topic is studied for a given period of time. [Latin modulus, diminutive of modus, measure. See med- in Appendix.]

mod·u·li (mōj'ə-lī') n. Plural of modulus.

mod·u·lo (mōj'ə-lō) prep. Mathematics. With respect to a specified modulus: 18 is congruent to 42 modulo 12 because both 18 and 42 leave 6 as a remainder when divided by 12. [Latin modulō, ablative of modulus diminutive of modus, measure. See MODE.] mod·u·lus (mōj'ə-ləs) n. pl. mod·u·li (-lī'). Abbr. m, M 1. Physics. A quantity that expresses the degree to which a substance possesses a property, such as elasticity. 2. a. Mathematics. The absolute value of a complex number. b. Abbr. mod A number by which two given numbers can be divided and produce the same remainder. c. The number by which a logarithm in one system must be multiplied to obtain the corresponding logarithm in another system. [Latin, diminutive of modus, measure. See med- in Appendix.]

mo·dus op·er·an·di (mō'dəs ɒp'ə-rän'dē, -dī') n. pl. mo·di operandi (mō'dē, -dī). Abbr. m.o., M.O. 1. A method of operating or functioning. 2. A person's manner of working. [New Latin modus operandi: Latin modus, mode + Latin operandi, genitive sing. gerund of operārī, to work.]

modus vi·ven·di (mō'dəs vī-vēn'dē, -dī') n. pl. modi vivendi. 1. A manner of living; a way of life. 2. A temporary agreement between contending parties pending a final settlement. [New Latin modus vivendi: Latin modus, mode + Latin vivendi, genitive sing. gerund of vivere, to live.]

Moers also Mörs (mœrs) A city of west-central Germany west of Essen. Chartered in 1300, it is a market and industrial center. Population, 97,753.

Moe-sia (mē'shə, -shē-ə) An ancient region of southeast Europe south of the Danube River in what is now eastern Yugoslavia and northern Bulgaria. Originally inhabited by Thracians, it was conquered by the Romans c. 29 B.C. and occupied by Goths in the fourth century A.D.

Moes-kroen (mōōs'krōōn') See Mouscron.

mo-fette also mof-fette (mō-fēt') n. 1. An opening in the earth from which carbon dioxide and other gases escape, usually marking the last stage of volcanic activity. 2. The gases escaping from such an opening. [French, gaseous exhalation, from Italian moffetta, diminutive of muffa, mold, moldy smell, probably of Germanic origin.]

Mog-a-dish-u (mög'ə-dīsh'ōō, -dē'shōō) The capital and largest city of Somalia, on the Indian Ocean. Settled by Arab colonists in the ninth or tenth century, it was occupied in 1871 by the sultan of Zanzibar, who leased it to the Italians in 1892. After 1905 it became the capital of Italian Somaliland. Population, 400,000.

Mo-gen Da-vid (mō'gən dō'vīd, dā'vīd, mā-gĕn' dā-vēd') n. Variant of Magen David.

Mo-ghul (mōō-gŭl') n. Variant of Mogul (n., sense 1).

Mo-gi das Cru-zes (mōō-zhĕ' dās krōō'zīs) A city of southeast Brazil east of São Paulo. Founded in 1611, it is an industrial center. Population, 122,434.

Mo-gi-lev (mög'ə-lĕf', mĕ-gī-lyōf') A city of east-central Belarus on the Dnieper River east of Minsk. Founded around a castle built in 1267, the city changed hands frequently before it passed to Russia in the First Partition of Poland (1772). Population, 343,000.

Mo-gol-lon (mō'gə-yōn') n. A Native American culture flourishing from the 2nd century B.C. to the 13th century A.D. in southeast Arizona and southwest New Mexico, especially noted for its development of pottery. [After the Mogollon (Plateau).]

Mogollon Plateau (mō'gə-yōn' plā-tō') A tableland, 2,135-2,440 m (7,000-8,000 ft) high, of east-central Arizona. Its southern edge is the rugged escarpment Mogollon Rim.

mo-gul (mō'gəl) n. Sports. A small hard mound or bump on a ski slope. [Probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse mūgi, heap.]

Mo-gul (mō'gəl, mō-gŭl') n. 1. Also Mo-ghul (mōō-gŭl'). a. A member of the force that under Baber conquered India in 1526. b. A member of the Muslim dynasty founded by Baber that ruled India until 1857. 2. A Mongol or Mongolian. 3. mogul. A very rich or powerful person; a magnate. [Persian, and Arabic muḡul from Mongolian Moṅgul.] —Mo'gul, mo'gul adj.

Mo-hács (mō'häch', -häch') A city of southern Hungary on the Danube River near the Yugoslavian border. It was the site of a Turkish victory (1526) that led to more than 150 years of Ottoman rule over the Hungarians. Population, 18,100.

mo·hair (mō'hâr') n. 1. The long, silky hair of the Angora goat. 2. Fabric made with yarn from this hair. [Alteration (influenced by HAIR), of obsolete Italian mocaiaro, from Arabic muḥayyar.]

Mo·ham·med (mō-hăm'id, -hä'mĭd, mōö-) also Mu·ham·mad (mōö-), 570?-632. Arab prophet of Islam. At the age of 40 he began to preach as God's prophet of the true religion. Mohammed established a theocratic state at Medina after 622 and began to convert Arabia to Islam.

Mohammed II also Muhammad II, 1429?-1481. Sultan of Turkey (1451-1481) and founder of the Ottoman Empire. He conquered Constantinople in 1453 and made it his capital.

Mohammed A·li (mō-hăm'id ä-lē') also Me·he·met Ali (mĭ-hēm'ēt, mā'mēt), 1769-1849. Turkish soldier and viceroy of Egypt (1805-1848) who wrested control of Egypt from the weakening Ottoman Empire (1811) and established a modern state, over which his family ruled until 1952.

Mo·ham·med·an (mō-hăm'i-dən) also Mu·ham·mad·an or Mu·ham·med·an (mōö-) adj. Of or relating to Mohammed or Islam; Muslim. — n. Offensive. A Muslim.

Mo·ham·med·an·ism (mō-hăm'i-də-nĭz'əm) also Mu·ham·mad·an·ism (mōö-) n. Offensive. The religion of Muslims; Islam.

Mo·har·ram (mō-här'əm) n. Variant of Muharram.

Mo·ha·ve also Mo·ja·ve (mō-hä'vē) n. pl. Mohave or Mo·ha·ves also Mojave or Mo·ja·ves. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting lands along the lower Colorado River on the Arizona-California border. b. A member of this people. 2. The Yuman language of the Mohave. [Mohave hàmakháav.]

Mohave Desert (mō-hä'vē dĕz'ərt) See Mojave Desert.

Mo·hawk¹ (mō'hôk') n. pl. Mohawk or Mo·hawks. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting northeast New York along the Mohawk and upper Hudson valleys north to the St. Lawrence River, with present-day populations chiefly in southern Ontario and extreme northern New York. The Mohawk were the easternmost member of the Iroquois confederacy. b. A member of this people. 2. The Iroquoian language of the Mohawk. [Narragansett Mohowaúg.]

Mo·hawk² (mō'hôk') n. pl. Mo·hawks. A hairstyle in which the scalp is shaved except for an upright strip of hair that runs across the crown of the head from the forehead to the nape of the neck. [After MOHAWK¹.]

Mohawk River (mō'hôk' rĭv'ər) A river of east-central New York flowing about 225 km (140 mi) south and southeast to the Hudson River. Long an important route to the West, it is now used mainly by pleasure craft.

Mo·he·gan (mō-hē'gən) n. pl. Mohegan or Mo·he·gans. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting eastern Connecticut, with present-day descendants in southeast Connecticut and Wisconsin. The Mohegan broke away from the Pequot in the early 17th century under the leadership of Uncas. b. A member of this people. 2. The Algonquian language of the Mohegan.

—Mo·he'gan adj.

Mo·hen·jo·Da·ro (mō-hě'n'jō-där'ō) A ruined prehistoric city of Pakistan in the Indus River valley northeast of Karachi. Its remains date to c. 3000 B.C.

Mo·hi·can (mō-hē'kən, mə-) n. Variant of Mahican.

Mo·ho (mō'hō') n. Geology. The Mohorovičić discontinuity.

Mo·holy·Nag·y (mə-hō'lē-nōj', mō'hoi-nōd'yə), Laszlo. 1895-1946. Hungarian-born American artist and educator known for his artistic experiments with modern technology. He founded and directed (1938-1946) the Chicago Institute of Design.

Mo·ho·ro·vi·čić discontinuity (mō'hə-rō'və-chích dīs-kön'tə-nōō'ī-tē) n. Geology. The boundary between the earth's crust and the underlying mantle, averaging 8 kilometers (5 miles) in depth under the oceans and 32 kilometers (20 miles) in depth under the continents. [After Andrija Mohorovičić (1857-1936), Croatian geophysicist.]

Mohs scale (mōz skāl) n. A scale for classifying minerals based on relative hardness, determined by the ability of harder minerals to scratch softer ones. The scale includes the following minerals, in order from softest to hardest: 1. talc; 2. gypsum; 3. calcite; 4. fluorite; 5. apatite; 6. orthoclase; 7. quartz; 8. topaz; 9. corundum; 10. diamond. [After Friedrich Mohs (1773-1839), German mineralogist.]

mo·hur (mō'ər, mə-hōor') n. A gold coin, equal to 15 rupees, that was used in British India in the 19th and early 20th centuries. [Hindi muhr, gold coin, seal, from Persian.]

moi·dore (moi'dôr', -dôr', moi-dôr', -dôr') n. A former Portuguese or Brazilian gold coin that was also current in England in the early 18th century. [Alteration of Portuguese moeda d'ouro: moeda (from Latin monēta, coin); see MONEY + de, of (from Latin dē); see DE- + ouro, gold (from Latin aurum, gold).]

moi·e·ty (moi'ī-tē) n. pl. moi·e·ties. 1. A half. 2. A part, portion, or share. 3. Either of two basic units in cultural anthropology that make up a tribe on the basis of unilateral descent. [Middle English moite, from Old French meitiet, moitie, from Late Latin medietās, from Latin, middle, from medius, middle. See medhyo- in Appendix.]

moil (moil) v. intr. moiled,moil-ing,moils. 1. To toil; slave. 2. To churn about continuously. — n. 1. Toil; drudgery. 2. Confusion; turmoil. [Middle English moillen, to soften by wetting, from Old French moillier, from Vulgar Latin mollīare*, from Latin mollia (pānis), the soft part (of bread), from neuter pl. of mollis, soft. See mel-¹ in Appendix.] —moil'er n. —moil/ing·ly adv.

moire (mwär, mwä-rä', mōr, mō-rä') n. A watered or moiré fabric. [French. See MOIRÉ.]

moi-ré (mwä-rā', mô-) adj. Having a wavy or rippled surface pattern. Used of fabric. — n. 1. Fabric, such as silk or rayon, finished so as to have a wavy or rippled surface pattern. 2. A similar pattern produced on cloth by engraved rollers. [French, from past participle of moirer, to water, from mouaire, moire, moiré fabric, probably alteration of English MOHAIR.] —moi-ré' adj.

moiré effect (mwä-rā' ĭ-fěkt') n. The effect of superimposing a repetitive design, such as a grid, on the same or a different design in order to produce a pattern distinct from its components.

Mois-san (mwä-sän'), (Ferdinand Frédéric) Henri. 1852-1907. French chemist. He won a 1906 Nobel Prize for isolating fluorine and developing an electric furnace.

moist (moist) adj. moist-er, moist-est. 1. Slightly wet; damp or humid. See Synonyms at wet. 2. Filled with or characterized by moisture. 3. Tearful. [Middle English moiste, from Old French, alteration (influenced by Latin mus-teus, juicy, from mustum, must); see MUST³, of Vulgar Latin muscidus*, alteration of Latin mūcidus, moldy, from mūcus, mucus.] —moist'ly adv. —moist'ness n.

mois-ten (moi'sən) v. tr. intr. mois-tened, mois-ten-ing, mois-tens. To make or become moist. —mois'ten-er n.

mois-ture (mois'chər) n. 1. Diffuse wetness that can be felt as vapor in the atmosphere or condensed liquid on the surfaces of objects; dampness. 2. The state or quality of being damp. [Middle English, from Old French, from moiste, moist. See MOIST.]

mois-tur-ize (mois'chə-rīz') v. tr. mois-tur-ized, mois-tur-iz-ing, mois-tur-iz-es. To add or restore moisture to: lotion that moisturizes the face.

mois-tur-iz-er (mois'chə-rī'zər) n. A cosmetic lotion or cream applied to the skin to counter dryness.

mo-jar-ra (mō-här'ə) n. pl. mojarra or mo-jar-ras. Any of several species of small, silvery, mainly tropical American marine fishes of the family Gerridae, having extremely protrusile mouths. [Spanish, knife, a kind of fish found off the coast of Spain, from Arabic muḥarrab, pointed, from ḥarrab, to sharpen, point.]

Mo-ja-ve (mō-hä'vē) n. Variant of Mohave.

Mojave Desert also Mohave Desert (mō-hä'vē dəz'ərt) An arid region of southern California southeast of the Sierra Nevada. Once part of an ancient inland sea, the desert was formed by volcanic action and by materials deposited by the Colorado River.

moke (mōk) n. 1. Slang. A dull or boring person. 2. Chiefly British. A donkey. 3. Australian. An old, broken-down horse. [Origin unknown.]

Mok-po (mōk'pō', mōk'-) A city of southwest South Korea on an inlet of the Yellow Sea. Its port was opened to foreign trade in 1897. Population, 228,000.

mol (mōl) n. Variant of mole⁵.

MOL abbr. Manned Orbital Laboratory.

mol. abbr. 1. Molecular. 2. Molecule.

mo-la¹ (mō'lä, -lä) n. pl. mo-las. A colorful fabric panel of Central American origin, sewn with a reverse-appliqué technique and used for decorative purposes, as on clothing or furniture or as a wall hanging. [Cuna (Panama Chibchan language), clothing, blouse, mola.]

mo-la² (mō'lä) n. pl. mola or mo-las. See ocean sunfish. [Latin, millstone (from its shape and rough skin). See melə- in Appendix.]

mo-lal (mō'läl) adj. Of or designating a solution that contains one mole of solute in 1,000 grams of solvent.

mo-lal-i-ty (mō-läl'ī-tē) n. pl. mo-lal-i-ties. The molal concentration of a solute, usually expressed as the number of moles of solute per 1,000 grams of solvent.

mo-lar¹ (mō'lär) adj. 1. Abbr. M Chemistry. a. Relating to or designating a solution that contains one mole of solute per liter of solution. b. Containing one mole of a substance. 2. Physics. Of or relating to a body of matter as a whole, perceived apart from molecular or atomic properties. [From MOLE⁵.]

mo-lar² (mō'lär) n. A tooth with a broad crown used to grind food, located behind the premolars. — adj. 1. Of or relating to the molars. 2. Capable of grinding. [From Middle English molares, molars, from Latin molāris, belonging to a mill, grinder, molar, from mola, millstone. See melə- in Appendix.]

mo-lar-i-ty (mō-lär'ī-tē) n. pl. mo-lar-i-ties. Abbr. M Chemistry. The molar concentration of a solution, usually expressed as the number of moles of solute per liter of solution.

mo-las-ses (mə-läs'iz) n. pl. molasses. A thick syrup produced in refining raw sugar and ranging from light to dark brown in color. [Portuguese melaços, pl. of melaço, from Late Latin mellāceum, must, from Latin mel, mell-, honey. See melit- in Appendix.]

mold¹ (möld) n. 1. A hollow form or matrix for shaping a fluid or plastic substance. 2. A frame or model around or on which something is formed or shaped. 3. Something that is made in or shaped on a mold. 4. The shape or pattern of a mold. 5. General shape or form: the oval mold of her face. 6. Distinctive character or type: a leader in the mold of her predecessors. 7. A fixed or restrictive pattern or form: a method of scientific investigation that broke the mold and led to a new discovery. 8. Architecture. See molding (n., sense 3). — v. mold-ed, mold-ing, molds. — v. tr. 1. To shape in or on a mold. 2. a. To form into a particular shape; give shape to. b. To guide or determine the growth or development of; influence: a teacher who helps to mold the minds of his students. 3. To fit closely by following the contours of. 4. To make a mold of or from (molten metal, for example) before casting. 5. To ornament with moldings. — v. intr. To be shaped in or as if in a mold: shoes that gradually molded to my feet. [Middle mold² (mōld) n. 1. Any of various fungi that often cause disintegration of organic matter. 2. The growth of such fungi. — v. intr. mold·ed, mold·ing, molds. To become moldy. [Middle English moulde, probably from past participle of moulen, to grow moldy, from Old Norse mygla.]

English molde, from Old French molle, molde, from Latin modulus, diminutive of modus, measure. See med- in Appendix.] —mold/a·ble adj. —mold'er n.

mold³ (mōld) n. 1. Loose, friable soil, rich in humus and fit for planting. 2. Chiefly British. a. The earth; the ground. b. The earth of the grave. 3. Archaic. Earth as the substance of the human body. [Middle English, from Old English molde. See melə- in Appendix.]

Mol·da·vi·a (mōl-dā'vĕ-ə, -dāv'yə) 1. A historical region of eastern Romania east of Transylvania. Part of the Roman province of Dacia, it became a principality in the 14th century and passed to the Ottoman Empire in 1504, although it was continually attacked and often virtually controlled by numerous other powers. In 1859 Moldavia united with Walachia to form the nucleus of modern Romania. 2. Also Mol·do·va (mōl-dô'və). A country of eastern Europe bordering on Romania. Acquired by Russia from the Romanian region of Moldavia in the late 18th and early 19th centuries, it became an autonomous republic of the U.S.S.R. in 1924 and was constituent republic from 1940 to 1991. Kishinev is the capital. Population, 4,111,000. —Mol·da·vi·an adj. & n.

mold·board (mōld'bōrd', -bōrd') n. The curved plate of a plow that turns over the soil. [MOLD³ + BOARD.]

mold·er (mōl'dær) v. mold·ered, mold·er·ing, mold·ers. — v. intr. To crumble to dust; disintegrate. — v. tr. To cause to crumble. See Synonyms at decay. [Probably frequentative of MOLD³.]

mold·ing (mōl'dĩng) n. 1. The act or process of molding. 2. Something that is molded. 3. An embellishment in strip form, made of wood or other structural material, that is used to decorate or finish a surface, such as the wall of a room or building or the surface of a door or piece of furniture. In this sense, also called *mold*¹ mold·y (mōl'dē) adj. mold·i·er, mold·i·est. 1. Covered with or containing mold; moldy bread. 2. Musty or stale, as from age or decay. —mold'i·ness n.

Mol·do·va (mōl-dō'və) See Moldavia.

mole¹ (mōl) n. A small congenital growth on the human skin, usually slightly raised and dark and sometimes hairy, especially a pigmented nevus. [Middle English, from Old English māl.]

mole² (mōl) n. 1. Any of various small, insectivorous mammals of the family Talpidae, usually living underground and having thickset bodies with light brown to dark gray silky fur, rudimentary eyes, tough muzzles, and strong forefeet for burrowing. 2. A machine that bores through hard surfaces, used especially for tunneling through rock. 3. A spy who operates from within an organization, especially a double agent operating against his or her own government from within its intelligence establishment. [Middle English molle; akin to possibly akin to MOLD³.]

mole³ (mōl) n. 1. A massive, usually stone wall constructed in the sea, used as a breakwater and built to enclose or protect an anchorage or a harbor. 2. The anchorage or harbor enclosed by a mole. [French môle, from Italian molo, from Late Greek mōlos, from Latin mōlēs, mass, mole.]

mole⁴ (mōl) n. A fleshy, abnormal mass formed in the uterus by the degeneration or abortive development of an ovum. [French môle, from Latin mola, millstone, mole. See melə- in Appendix.]

mole⁵ or mol (mōl) n. 1. The amount of a substance that contains as many atoms, molecules, ions, or other elementary units as the number of atoms in 0.012 kilogram of carbon 12. The number is 6.0225×10^{23} , or Avogadro's number. Also called gram molecule 2. The mass in grams of this amount of a substance, numerically equal to the molecular weight of the substance. Also called gram-molecular weight See Table at measurement. [German Mol, short for Molekulargewicht, molecular weight, from molekular, molecular, from French moléculaire, from molécule, molecule. See MOLECULE.]

mo-le⁶ (mō'lā') n. A spicy sauce of Mexican origin, made with unsweetened chocolate and a variety of chilies and spices and usually served with meat or poultry. [American Spanish, from Nahuatl mōlli.]

mole crab (mōl krāb) n. Any of various small crustaceans of the genus Emerita, having very long eyestalks and hairy antennae and commonly found burrowing in sand on ocean beaches.

mole cricket (mōl krīk'īt) n. Any of various burrowing crickets of the family Gryllotalpidae, having short wings and front legs well adapted for digging and feeding mainly on the roots of plants.

mo·lec·u·lar (mə-lĕk'yə-lər) adj. 1. Abbr. mol. Of, relating to, or consisting of molecules. 2. Of or relating to simple or basic structure or form.

—mo·lec'·u·lar'i·ty (-lār'i-tē) n. —mo·lec'·u·lar·ly adv.

molecular biology (mə-lĕk'yə-lər bī-ōl'ə-jē) n. The branch of biology that deals with the formation, structure, and activity of macromolecules essential to life, such as nucleic acids and proteins, and especially with their role in cell replication and the transmission of genetic information. —molecular biologist n.

molecular formula (mə-lĕk'yə-lər fōr'myə-lə) n. A chemical formula that shows the number and kinds of atoms in a molecule.

molecular genetics (mə-lĕk'yə-lər jə-nĕt'īks) n. (used with a sing. verb).

The branch of genetics that deals with hereditary transmission and variation on the molecular level.

molecular weight (mə-lĕk'yə-lər wāt) n. Abbr. mol wt The sum of the atomic weights of all the atoms in a molecule. Also called formula weight mol·e·cule (möl'ī-kyōōl') n. Abbr. mol. 1. The smallest particle into which an element or a compound can be divided without changing its chemical and physical properties; a group of like or different atoms held together by chemical forces.

2. A small particle; a tiny bit. [French molécule, from New Latin mōlēcula, diminutive of Latin mōlēs, mass.]

mole·hill (mōl'hīl') n. A small mound of loose earth raised by a burrowing mole. —idiom. make a mountain out of a molehill. To exaggerate a minor problem.

Mo·len·beek·Saint·Jean (mō'lən-bāk'sāN-zhāN') A city of central Belgium, a manufacturing suburb of Brussels. Population, 71,891.

mole rat (mōl rāt) n. 1. Any of several furry, short-limbed, tailless burrowing rodents of the genus Spalax, found in eastern Europe and the Middle East.

2. Any of various similar molelike rodents of the family Bathyergidae and especially of the genus Bathyergus, found from South Africa to Kenya.

mole·skin (mōl'skīn') n. 1. The short, soft, silky fur of a mole. 2. a. A heavy-napped cotton twill fabric. b. moleskins. Clothing, especially trousers, of this fabric. 3. A soft material, often with an adhesive backing, used especially on the feet to protect against chafing.

mo·lest (mə-lĕst') v. tr. mo·lest·ed, mo·lest·ing, mo·lests. 1. To disturb, interfere with, or annoy. 2. To subject to unwanted or improper sexual activity. [Middle English molesten, from Old French molester, from Latin molestāre, from molestus, troublesome.] —mo'les·ta'tion (mō'lĕ-stā'shən) n. —mo·lest'er n.

Mol·fet·ta (mōl-fĕt'ə, mōl-fĕt'tā) A city of southeast Italy on the Adriatic Sea west-northwest of Bari. It is a port and manufacturing center. Population, 65,951.

Mo·lière (mōl-yâr'), Jean Baptiste Poquelin. 1622-1673. French playwright whose sophisticated comedies include Tartuffe (1664), The Misanthrope (1666), and The Bourgeois Gentleman (1670).

Mo·line (mō-lĕn') A city of northwest Illinois on the Mississippi River across from Davenport, Iowa. Settled in 1847, it is a transportation and industrial center. Population, 43,202.

Mo·li·se (mō'li-zā') A region of south-central Italy bordering on the Adriatic Sea. Conquered by the Romans in the 4th century B.C., it was ruled by a Lombard duchy from the 6th to the 11th century A.D.

moll (mōl) n. Slang. 1. A woman companion of a gunman or gangster. 2. A prostitute. [Probably from the name Moll, nickname for Mary.]

mol·lie (mōl'ĕ) n. Variant of molly.

mol·li·fy (mōl'ə-fī') v. tr. mol·li·fied, mol·li·fy·ing, mol·li·fies. 1. To calm in temper or feeling; soothe. See Synonyms at pacify. 2. To lessen in intensity; temper. 3. To reduce the rigidity of; soften. [Middle English mollifien, from Old French mollifier, from Late Latin mollificāre: mollis, soft; see mel⁻¹ in Appendix + -ficāre, -fy.] —mol/li-fi/a-ble adj. —mol/li-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

—mol/li-fi'er n. —mol/li-fy/ing-ly adv.

mol-lusc (mōl'əsk) n. Variant of mollusk.

mol-lus-ca (mā-lūs'kə) n. Plural of molluscum.

mol-lus-can also mol-lus-kan (mā-lūs'kən) adj. Of or relating to the mollusks. — n. A mollusk.

mol-lus-ci-cide (mā-lūs'kī-sīd') n. An agent that kills mollusks.

—mol-lus'ci-cid'al (-sīd'l) adj.

mol-lus-coid (mā-lūs'koid) adj. Of, belonging to, or resembling the mollusks.

mol-lus-cum (mā-lūs'kəm) n. pl. mol-lus-ca (-kə). Any of various skin diseases in which soft, spherical tumors form on the face or other part of the body.

[Latin, a kind of fungus, from neuter of molluscus, soft. See MOLLUSK.]

mol-lusk also mol-lusc (mōl'əsk) n. Any of numerous chiefly marine invertebrates of the phylum Mollusca, typically having a soft unsegmented body, a mantle, and a protective calcareous shell and including the edible shellfish and the snails. [French mollusque, from New Latin Mollusca, phylum name, from neuter pl. of Latin molluscus, thin-shelled, from mollis, soft. See mel-¹ in Appendix.]

—mol-lus'cous (mā-lūs'kəs) adj.

mol-lus-kan (mā-lūs'kən) adj. & n. Variant of molluscan.

mol-ly also mol-lie (mōl'ē) n. pl. mol-lies. Any of several tropical and subtropical live-bearing fishes of the genus Poecilia or Mollienesia, commonly kept in aquariums. [From New Latin Mollienesia, former genus name, after Comte François Nicolas Mollien (1758-1850), French politician.]

mol-ly-cod-dle (mōl'ē-kōd'l) v. tr. mol-ly-cod-dled, mol-ly-cod-dling, mol-ly-cod-dles. To be overprotective and indulgent toward. See Synonyms at pamper. — n. A person, especially a man or a boy, who is pampered and over-protected. [molly, milksop (from the name Molly, nickname for Mary) + COD-DLE.] —mol/ly-cod'dler n.

Mol-nár (mōl'när', mōl'-), Ferenc. 1878-1952. Hungarian writer known particularly for his comedies, including The Devil (1907) and Liliom (1909).

mo-loch (mō'lōk', mōl'ək) n. A lizard (Moloch horridus) of the deserts and plains of central and southern Australia, having a head and back covered with large spiny scales. [Late Latin Moloch, Semitic deity. See MOLOCH.]

Mo-loch (mō'lōk', mōl'ək) n. 1. Bible. In the Old Testament, the god of the Ammonites and Phoenicians to whom children were sacrificed. 2. Something possessing the power to exact severe sacrifice. [Late Latin Moloch, from Greek Molokh, from Hebrew Môlek.]

Mo-lo-kai (mōl'ə-kī', mō'lə-) An island of central Hawaii between Oahu and Maui. The Belgian missionary Father Damien established a leper colony on the northern coast in 1860.

Mo·lo·po (mə-lō'pō) An intermittent river of South Africa flowing about 965 km (600 mi) generally westward to the Orange River. It forms part of the border with Botswana.

Mo·lo·tov (mōl'ə-tōf', mōl'-, mō'lə-), Vyacheslav Mikhailovich. 1890-1986. Soviet politician who was head of the Council of People's Commissars (1930-1941) and foreign minister (1939-1949 and 1953-1956).

Molotov cocktail (mōl'ə-tōf' kōk'tāl') n. A makeshift bomb made of a breakable container filled with flammable liquid and provided with a usually rag wick that is lighted just before being hurled. [After Vyacheslav Mikhailovich MOLOTOV.]

molt (mōlt) v. molt-ed, molt-ing, molts. — v. intr. To shed periodically part or all of a coat or an outer covering, such as feathers, cuticle, or skin, which is then replaced by a new growth. — v. tr. To shed or cast off (a bodily covering). — n. 1. The act or process of molting. 2. The material cast off during molting. [Alteration of Middle English mouten, from Old English -mūtian (in bemūtian, to exchange for), from Latin mūtāre, to change. See mei-¹ in Appendix.] —molt'er n.

mol·ten (mōl'tən) v. Archaic. A past participle of melt. — adj. 1. Made liquid by heat; melted: molten lead. 2. Made by melting and casting in a mold.

3. Brilliantly glowing, from or as if from intense heat: "A huge red bed of coals blazed and quivered with molten fury" (Richard Wright).

mol·to (mōl'tō) adv. Music. Very; much. Used chiefly in directions. [Italian, from Latin multum, from neuter sing. of multus, many, much. See mel-² in Appendix.]

Mo·luc·cas (mə-lŭk'əz) Formerly Spice Islands (spīs). A group of islands of eastern Indonesia between Celebes and New Guinea. Discovered in the early 16th century, the islands were settled by the Portuguese but taken in the 17th century by the Dutch, who used them as the basis for their monopoly of the spice trade. —Mo·luc'can adj. & n.

mol wt abbr. Molecular weight.

mo·ly (mō'lē) n. pl. mo·lies. Greek Mythology. A magic herb with black roots and white flowers that was given to Odysseus by Hermes to ward off the spells of Circe. [Latin mōly, from Greek mōlu.]

mo·lyb·de·nite (mə-līb'də-nīt') n. A mineral form of molybdenum sulfide, MoS₂, that is the principal ore of molybdenum. [MOLYBDEN(UM) + -ITE¹.]

mo·lyb·de·num (mə-līb'də-nəm) n. Symbol Mo A hard, silvery-white metallic element used to toughen alloy steels and soften tungsten alloy. An essential trace element in plant nutrition, it is used in fertilizers, dyes, enamels, and reagents. Atomic number 42; atomic weight 95.94; melting point 2,617°C; boiling point 4,612°C; specific gravity 10.22 (at 20°C); valence 2, 3, 4, 5, 6. [New Latin, from earlier molybdena, lead ore, from Latin molybdaena, galena, from Greek molubdaina, from molubdos, lead.]

mo-lyb-dic (mə-līb'dīk) adj. Designating molybdenum or a compound containing molybdenum, especially with a valence of 6.

mo-lyb-dous (mə-līb'dəs) adj. Designating molybdenum or a compound containing molybdenum, especially with a valence of less than 6.

mom (möm) n. Informal. Mother. [Shortening and alteration of MAMA.]

m.o.m. abbr. Middle of month.

mom-and-pop (möm'ən-pöp') adj. 1. Of or being a small business that is typically owned and run by members of a family: a mom-and-pop grocery store. 2. Resembling or evocative of the small-scale, homelike, or informal atmosphere of such a business: "toasted the advantages of mom-and-pop journalism" (Newsweek).

Mom-ba-sa (möm-bäs'ə, -bä'sä) A city of southeast Kenya mainly on Mombasa Island, in the Indian Ocean north of Zanzibar. Visited by Vasco da Gama on his first voyage to India (1498), the island-city was ruled successively by Portugal, Oman, Zanzibar, and Great Britain until the early 20th century. Population, 341,148.

mo-ment (mō'mənt) n. 1. A brief, indefinite interval of time. 2. A specific point in time, especially the present time: He is not here at the moment. 3. A particular period of importance, influence, or significance in a series of events or developments: a great moment in history; waiting for her big moment.

4. Outstanding significance or value; importance: a discovery of great moment.

5. A brief period of time that is characterized by a quality, such as excellence, suitability, or distinction: a lackluster performance that nevertheless had its moments. 6. Philosophy.

a. An essential or constituent element, as of a complex idea. b. A phase or an aspect of a logically developing process. 7. Abbr. M Physics.

a. The product of a quantity and its perpendicular distance from a reference point. b. The tendency to cause rotation about a point or an axis. 8. Statistics.

The expected value of a positive integral power of a random variable. The first moment is the mean of the distribution. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin mōmentum, from movimentum*, from movēre, to move. See meuə- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: moment, instant, minute, second, jiffy, flash. These nouns denote a brief interval of time. A moment is an indeterminately short but not insignificant period: I'll be with you in a moment. It took him a moment to answer. Instant is a period of time almost too brief to detect; it implies haste and often urgency: She hesitated for just an instant. Stop it this instant. Minute and second, used strictly, refer to measured intervals of time; often, though, minute is interchangeable with moment (Wait a minute. The plane will be arriving in a minute), and second with instant (I slipped out of the room for a few seconds to turn the oven on). Jiffy and flash occur principally in combinations preceded by in a; in a jiffy means in a short space of time, while in a flash suggests the almost imperceptible duration of a flash of light: “He was on his stool in a jiffy, driving away with his pen” (Charles Dickens). She was on her feet in a flash when the doorbell rang. See also Synonyms at importance mo·men·ta (mō-měŋ'tə) n. A plural of momentum.

mo·men·tar·i·ly (mō'mən-târ'ə-lē) adv. 1. For a moment or an instant.

2. Usage Problem. In a moment; very soon. 3. Moment by moment; progressively.

USAGE NOTE: Momentarily is widely used in speech to mean “in a moment,” as in The manager is on another line, but she'll be with you momentarily. This usage rarely leads to ambiguity since the intended sense can usually be determined on the basis of the tense of the verb and the context. Nonetheless, many critics hold that the adverb should be reserved for the senses “for a moment” or “moment by moment,” and the extended usage is unacceptable to 59 percent of the Usage Panel.

mo·men·tar·y (mō'mən-tēr'ē) adj. 1. Lasting for only a moment. See Synonyms at transient. 2. Occurring or present at every moment: in momentary fear of being exposed. 3. Short-lived or ephemeral, as a life. [Middle English momentare, from Latin mōmentārius, from mōmentum, moment. See MOMENT.]

—mo'men-tar'i-ness n.

mo·ment·ly (mō'mənt-lē) adv. 1. From moment to moment. 2. At any moment. 3. For a moment.

moment of inertia (mō'mənt ŭv ĭ-nûr'shə) n. pl. moments of inertia. A measure of a body's resistance to angular acceleration, equal to: a. The product of the mass of a particle and the square of its distance from a reference. b. The sum of the products of each mass element of a body multiplied by the square of its distance from an axis. c. The sum of the products of each element of an area multiplied by the square of its distance from a coplanar axis.

moment of truth (mō'mənt ŭv trōōth) n. pl. moments of truth. 1. A critical or decisive time on which much depends; a crucial moment. 2. Sports. The point in a bullfight at which the matador makes the kill. [Translation of Spanish el momento de verdad.]

mo·men·tous (mō-měŋ'təs) adj. Of utmost importance; of outstanding significance or consequence: a momentous occasion; a momentous decision.

—mo·men'tous-ly adv. —mo·men'tous-ness n.

mo·men·tum (mō-měŋ'təm) n. pl. mo·men·ta (-tə) or mo·men·tums. 1. Symbol p Physics. A measure of the motion of a body equal to the product of its mass and velocity. Also called linear momentum. 2. a. Impetus of a physical object in motion. b. Impetus of a nonphysical process, such as an idea or a course of events: The soaring rise in interest rates finally appeared to be losing momentum. 3. Philosophy. An essential or constituent element; a moment. [Latin mōmentum, movement, short for movimentum*, from movēre, to move. See meuə- in Appendix.]

mom·ma (mä'mə) n. Variant of mama.

Momm·sen (mōm'zən), Theodor. 1817-1903. German historian whose best-known work is the three-volume History of Rome (1854-1856). He won the 1902 Nobel Prize for literature.

mom·my (mۆm'ē) n. pl. mom·mies. Informal. Mother. [Alteration of MAMMY.]

Mo·mus (mō'məs) n. Greek Mythology. The god of blame and ridicule.

mon (mۆn) n. Scots. Man.

Mon (mōn) n. 1. A member of a Buddhist people inhabiting an area of eastern Burma and adjacent parts of Thailand. 2. The Mon-Khmer language of the Mon.

mon. abbr. 1. Monastery. 2. Monetary.

Mon. abbr. Monday.

mon- pref. Variant of mono-.

mon·a·chism (mۆn'ə-kiz'əm) n. Monasticism. [Medieval Latin monachismus, from Late Greek monakhismos, from Late Greek monakhos, monk. See MONK.]

Mon·a·co (mۆn'ə-kō', mə-nä'kō) A principality on the Mediterranean Sea consisting of an enclave in southeast France. Probably settled by Phoenicians, it has been ruled by the Grimaldi family since the 13th century (first by the Genovese line and later, after 1731, by a French line). Monaco was at various times under the protection of Spain, Sardinia, and France but regained its sovereignty in 1861. The village of Monaco, or Monaco-Ville, is the capital. Population, 27,063. —Mon'a·can adj. & n.

mo·nad (mō'näd') n. 1. Philosophy. An indivisible, impenetrable unit of substance viewed as the basic constituent element of physical reality in the metaphysics of Leibnitz. 2. Biology. A single-celled microorganism, especially a flagellate protozoan of the genus Monas. 3. Chemistry. An atom or a radical with a valence of 1. [Latin monas, monad-, unit, from Greek, from monos, single. See men-⁴ in Appendix.] —mo·nad'ic (mə-näd'ik), mo·nad'i·cal adj. —mo·nad'i·cal·ly adv. —mo'nad·ism n.

mon·a·del·phous (mۆn'ə-děl'fəs, mō'nə-) adj. Botany. Related to or being stamens with all the filaments united into a single tubelike group.

mo-nad·nock (mə-năd'nök') n. A mountain or rocky mass that has resisted erosion and stands isolated in an essentially level area. [After Mount Monadnock, a peak of southwest New Hampshire.]

mo-nan·drous (mə-năn'drəs) adj. 1. Botany. Having flowers bearing a single stamen, as in the poinsettia. 2. Of, relating to, or characterized by monandry.

mo-nan·dry (mə-năn'drē) n. 1. The state or practice of having one husband at a time. 2. Botany. The condition of being monandrous.

mo-nan·thous (mə-năn'thəs) adj. Botany. Bearing a single flower.

Mo-na Passage (mō'nə păs'ij) A strait between Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic connecting the northern Atlantic Ocean with the Caribbean Sea.

Mona Island, in the passage, was discovered by Columbus in 1493 and is today part of Puerto Rico.

mon·arch (mön'ærk, -ærk') n. 1. One who reigns over a state or territory, usually for life and by hereditary right, especially: a. A sole and absolute ruler. b. A sovereign, such as a king or an empress, often with constitutionally limited authority: a constitutional monarch. 2. One that commands or rules: "I am monarch of all I survey" (William Cowper). 3. One that surpasses others in power or preeminence: "Mont Blanc is the monarch of the mountains" (Byron). 4. A monarch butterfly. [Middle English monarke, from Old French monarque, from Late Latin monarcha, from Greek monarkhos: mono-, mono- + arkhein, to rule.]

—mo-nar'chal (mə-när'kæl), mo-nar'chic (-kik), mo-nar'chi-cal (-ki-kæl) adj. —mo-nar'chal-ly, mo-nar'chi-cal-ly adv.

monarch butterfly (mön'ærk бүt'ær-flī') n. A large American butterfly (Danaus plexippus) having light brown wings with black veins and white-spotted black borders, noted for its long-distance migrations and its brightly striped caterpillars that feed on the milkweed plant. Also called milkweed butterfly

Mon-ar·chi-an·ism (mə-när'kē-ə-niz'əm) n. Any of several Christian heresies of the second and third centuries A.D. that attempted to maintain monotheism and the unity of the Godhead but thereby denied the independent hypostasis of God the Son. [From Latin Monarchiānī, the Monarchians, from monarchia, monarchy. See MONARCHY.] —Mo-nar'chi-an n.

mon-ar·chism (mön'ær-kiz'əm, -är'-) n. 1. The system or principles of monarchy. 2. Belief in or advocacy of monarchy. —mon'ar-chist (-kist) n.

—mon'ar-chis'tic adj.

mon-ar·chy (mön'ær-kē, -är'-) n. pl. mon-ar·chies. 1. Government by a monarch. 2. A state ruled or headed by a monarch. [Middle English monarchie, from Old French, from Latin monarchia, from Greek monarkhia, from monarkhos, monarch. See MONARCH.] —mo-nar'chi-al (mə-när'kē-əl) adj.

mo-nar·da (mə-när'də) n. Any of various aromatic plants of the genus Monarda in the mint family, such as the bee balm. [New Latin Monarda, genus name, after Nicolas Monardes (1493-1588), Spanish botanist.]

mon-as-ter-y (mɒn'ə-stēr'ē) n. pl. mon-as-ter-ies. Abbr. mon. 1. A community of persons, especially monks, bound by vows to a religious life and often living in partial or complete seclusion. 2. The dwelling place of such a community. [Middle English monasterie, from Old French monastere, from Late Latin monastērium, from Late Greek monastērion, from Greek monazein, to live alone, from monos, alone. See men⁻⁴ in Appendix.] —mon'as-te'ri-al (mɒn'ə-stīr'ē-əl, -stēr'-) adj.

mo-nas-tic (mə-nās'tik) adj. also mo-nas-ti-cal (-tī-kəl) 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a monastery. Used often of monks and nuns. 2. Resembling life in a monastery in style, structure, or manner, especially: a. Secluded and contemplative. b. Strictly disciplined or regimented. c. Self-abnegating; austere. — n. A monk. [Middle English monastik, from Old French monastique, from Late Latin monasticus, from Late Greek monastikos, from Greek monazein, to live alone. See MONASTERY.] —mo-nas'ti-cal-ly adv.

mo-nas-ti-cism (mə-nās'tī-sīz'əm) n. The monastic life or system, especially as practiced in a monastery.

mon-a-tom-ic (mɒn'ə-tōm'ik) adj. 1. Occurring as single atoms: Helium is a monatomic gas. 2. Having one replaceable atom or radical. 3. Univalent. —mon'a-tom'ic-al-ly adv.

mon-au-ral (mɒn-ôr'əl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or designating sound reception by one ear. 2. Electronics. Relating to a system of transmitting, recording, or reproducing sound in which one or more sources are connected to a single channel; monophonic. —mon-au'ral-ly adv.

mon-ax-i-al (mɒn-äk'sē-əl) adj. Uniaxial.

mon-a-zite (mɒn'ə-zīt') n. A reddish-brown phosphate mineral containing rare-earth metals, (Ce, La, Y, Th)PO₄, important as a source of cerium and thorium. [Greek monazein, to live alone; see MONASTERY + -ITE¹.]

Mon-ca-lie-ri (môn'kə-lyēr'ē, -kə-) A city of northwest Italy on the Po River south of Turin. It is a commercial and industrial center. Population, 61,740.

Mön-chen-glad-bach (mün'kən-glät'bäk, mœn'KHƏn-glät'bäKH) A city of west-central Germany west-southwest of Düsseldorf. Established around a Benedictine abbey founded c. 972, the city was chartered in 1336. Population, 255,085.

Monck or Monk (müŋk), George First Duke of Albemarle. 1608-1670. English general who was instrumental in the restoration of Charles II (1660) and supervised London during the plague of 1665.

Mon-clo-va (môn-klō'və, -vä) A city of northeast Mexico northwest of Monterrey. It is a trade and processing center in a farming and mining region. Population, 115,786.

Monc-ton (müŋk'tən) A city of southeast New Brunswick, Canada, northeast of Saint John. Originally settled by Acadians, it was resettled by Germans in 1763. Population, 54,743.

Mon·dale (mön'däl'), Walter Frederick. Born 1928. Vice President of the United States (1977-1981) under Jimmy Carter. He earlier served as a U.S. senator from Minnesota (1964-1977) and was the unsuccessful 1984 Democratic nominee for President.

Mon·day (mün'dē, -dā') n. Abbr. M., Mon. The second day of the week. [Middle English, from Old English Mōnandæg (translation of Latin lūnae diēs, day of the moon) : mōnan, genitive of mōna, moon; see MOON + dæg, day; see DAY.]

Monday morning quarterback (mün'dē mōr'ning kwōr'tər-bāk') n. Informal. One who criticizes or passes judgment from a position of hindsight. —Monday morning quar·ter·back·ing (kwōr'tər-bāk'ing) n.

Mon·dri·an (môn'drē-än', mön'-), Piet. 1872-1944. Dutch painter whose works, characterized by intersecting perpendicular lines and planes of primary colors, and writings, notably Neoplasticism (1920), profoundly influenced the development of abstract art.

mo·ne·cious (mə-nē'shəs) adj. Variant of monoecious.

Mo·né·gasque (mô-nā-gäsk') n. A native or inhabitant of Monaco; a Monacan. [French, from Provençal mounegasc, from Mounegue, Monaco.] —Mo·né·gasque' adj.

Mo·nel (mō-nēl') A trademark used for an alloy of nickel, copper, iron, and manganese. This trademark sometimes occurs in print in lowercase: “Five-way configurations are offered in sizes to 18 in. of ductile iron, carbon steel, various stainless steels, monel, nickel, and a large selection of other alloys” (Offshore). “If pure oxygen is involved, or if the plant is near a sea coast with a salt-laden atmosphere, the use of monel may have to be considered” (Oil & Gas Journal).

mo·nen·sin (mō-nēn'sin) n. A broad-spectrum antibiotic, C₃₆H₆₂O₁₁, obtained from the actinomycete Streptomyces cinnamomensis and used chiefly as an additive to beef cattle feed. [New Latin (cinna)mōnēns(is), species name (from Latin cinnamon, cinnamōmum, cinnamon); see CINNAMON + -IN.]

mo·ne·ran (mə-nîr'ən) n. A member of the kingdom Monera (or Prokaryotae), comprising the prokaryotes and including all bacteria. — adj. Of or relating to the monerans. [From New Latin Monēra, kingdom name, from Greek monērēs, solitary, from monos, single, alone. See MONAD.]

mon·es·trous (mön-ēs'trəs) adj. Having one estrous cycle per year. Used of certain mammals.

Mo·net (mō-nā', mô-), Claude. 1840-1926. French painter and founder of impressionism who captured on canvas his spontaneous reaction to landscapes and outdoor events. He created several series of paintings, such as the Water Lilies murals (1899-1925), that examine the effect of changing light and atmosphere on a subject.

Mo-ne-ta (mō-nā'tə, mō-ně'tä), Ernesto Teodoro. 1833-1918. Italian journalist and pacifist who founded societies for the preservation of peace. He shared the 1907 Nobel Peace Prize.

mon-e-tar-ism (mɒn'ĩ-tə-rɪz'əm, mʌn' -) n. 1. A theory holding that economic variations within a given system, such as changing rates of inflation, are most often caused by increases or decreases in the money supply. 2. A policy that seeks to regulate an economy by altering the domestic money supply, especially by increasing it in a moderate but steady manner. —mon'e-tar-ist adj. & n.

mon-e-tar-y (mɒn'ĩ-tēr'ē, mʌn' -) adj. Abbr. mon. 1. Of or relating to money. 2. Of or relating to a nation's currency or coinage. See Synonyms at financial. [Late Latin monētārius, from Latin monēta, money, mint. See MONEY.]

—mon'e-tar'i-ly adv.

mon-e-tize (mɒn'ĩ-tɪz', mʌn' -) v. tr. mon-e-tized, mon-e-tiz-ing, mon-e-tiz-es. 1. To establish as legal tender. 2. To coin (money). 3. To convert (government debt) from securities into currency that can be used to purchase goods and services. [From Latin monēta, money. See MONEY.] —mon'e-ti-za-tion (-tĩ-zā'shən) n.

mon-ey (mʌn'ē) n. pl. mon-eyes or mon-ies. 1. A commodity, such as gold, or an officially issued coin or paper note that is legally established as an exchangeable equivalent of all other commodities, such as goods and services, and is used as a measure of their comparative values on the market. 2. The official currency, coins, and negotiable paper notes issued by a government. 3. Assets and property considered in terms of monetary value; wealth. 4. a. Pecuniary profit or loss: He made money on the sale of his properties. b. One's salary; pay: It was a terrible job, but the money was good. 5. An amount of cash or credit: raised the money for the new playground. 6. Often moneys or monies. Sums of money, especially of a specified nature: state tax moneys; monies set aside for research and development. 7. A wealthy person, family, or group: to come from old money; to marry into money. —idioms. for (one's) money. According to one's opinion, choice, or preference: For my money, it's not worth the trouble. in the money. 2. Slang. Rich; affluent. 3. Sports & Games. Taking first, second, or third place in a contest on which a bet has been placed, such as a horserace. on the money. Exact; precise. put money on. Sports & Games. To place a bet on. put (one's) money where (one's) mouth is. Slang. To live up to one's words; act according to one's own advice. [Middle English monēie, from Old French, from Latin monēta, mint, coinage, from Monēta, epithet of Juno, temple of Juno of Rome where money was coined.]

mon-ey-bag (mʌn'ē-bāg') n. 1. A bag for holding money. 2. moneybags. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Wealth. 3. moneybags. (used with a sing. verb). A rich, often extravagant person.

mon·ey·chang·er (mŭn'ē-chān'jər) n. 1. One that exchanges money, as from one currency to another. 2. A machine that holds and dispenses coins.

mon·eyed also mon·ied (mŭn'ēd) adj. 1. Having a great deal of money: the moneyed classes. See Synonyms at rich. 2. Representing or arising from the possession of money or wealth: the triumph of moneyed interests over landed interests.

mon·ey·grub·ber (mŭn'ē-grüb'ər) n. One who is intent on or preoccupied with accumulating money. —mon'ey·grub'bing adj. & n.

mon·ey·lend·er (mŭn'ē-lĕn'dər) n. One that lends money at an interest rate.

mon·ey·mak·ing (mŭn'ē-mā'kĭng) n. Acquisition of money or other wealth. — adj. 1. Engaged or successful in acquiring wealth. 2. Actually or potentially profitable: a moneymaking business proposition. —mon'ey·mak'er n.

mon·ey·man (mŭn'ē-măn') n. Informal. 1. A man who assesses or advises on economic policies and trends. 2. A man who manages the financial aspect of a business or an operation.

money market (mŭn'ē mār'kĭt) n. Economics. 1. The trade in short-term, low-risk securities, such as certificates of deposit and U.S. Treasury notes. 2. A mutual fund that sells its shares in order to purchase short-term securities, the income from which is distributed among shareholders in the form of additional shares in the fund. In this sense, also called money market fund money of account (mŭn'ē ŭv ə-kount') n. A monetary unit in which accounts are kept and that may or may not correspond to actual current denominations.

money order (mŭn'ē ôr'dər) n. Abbr. m.o., M.O., MO An order for the payment of a specified amount of money, usually issued and payable at a bank or post office.

money plant (mŭn'ē plănt) n. See honesty (n., sense 4).

money shell (mŭn'ē shĕl) n. See butter clam.

money supply (mŭn'ē sə-plĭ') n. The amount of money in the economy, measured according to varying methods or principles. One such method incorporates only money that is usually used to purchase goods and services, such as cash and the contents of checking accounts.

mon·ey·wort (mŭn'ē-wŭrt', -wôrt') n. A European creeping plant (Lysimachia nummularia) naturalized in eastern North America, having rounded, opposite leaves and single, axillary yellow flowers. Also called creeping Charlie, creeping Jennie. [From the round shape of its leaves.]

mon·ger (mŭng'gər, mŏng'-) n. 1. A dealer in a specific commodity. Often used in combination: an ironmonger. 2. A person promoting something undesirable or discreditable. Often used in combination: a scandalmonger; a warmonger. — v. tr. mon·gered, mon·ger·ing, mon·gers. To peddle. [Middle English mongere, from Old English mangere, from Latin mangō, probably of Greek origin.]

mon-go (mǒng'gō) n. pl. mongo. A unit of currency in Mongolia. See Table at currency. [Mongolian.]

Mon-gol (mǒng'gəl, -gōl', mǒn'-) n. 1. A member of any of the traditionally nomadic peoples of Mongolia. 2. See Mongolian (n., sense 4).

3. Anthropology. A member of the Mongoloid racial division. No longer in scientific use. — adj. 1. Of or relating to Mongolia, the Mongols, or their language or culture. 2. Anthropology. Of or relating to the Mongoloid racial division. No longer in scientific use. [Mongolian.]

Mon-go-li-a (mǒng-gō'lē-ə, -gōl'yə, mǒn-) 1. An ancient region of east-central Asia comprising modern-day Nei Monggol (Inner Mongolia) and the country of Mongolia. In the 13th century Genghis Khan, leader of the Mongols, united all the tribes of the area and forged a great empire that eventually stretched from China to the Danube River and into Persia. After the 17th century China and Russia contended for control of the area, with the southern part eventually joining China. 2. or Formerly Out-er Mongolia (out'ər) A country of north-central Asia between Russia and China. Originally part of the Mongol Empire, the area was under Chinese control from 1691 to 1911 and from 1919 to 1921, when it formed a separate state under the protection of the U.S.S.R. Ulan Bator is the capital and the largest city. Population, 1,866,300.

Mon-go-li-an (mǒng-gō'lē-ən, -gōl'yən, mǒn-) adj. 1. Of or relating to Mongolia, the Mongols, or their language or culture. 2. Also mongolian. Offensive. Of or relating to Down syndrome. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Mongolia. 2. A member of the Mongol people. 3. Anthropology. A member of the Mongoloid racial division. No longer in scientific use. 4. a. A subfamily of the Altaic language family, Mongolian and Kalmyk being the most important members. b. Any of the various spoken and written dialects and languages of the Mongols living in Mongolia and China. In this sense, also called Mongol Mongolian fold (mǒng-gō'lē-ən fōld) n. The epicanthic fold.

Mon-gol-ic (mǒng-gōl'ik, mǒn-) adj. Anthropology. Of or relating to the Mongoloid racial division. No longer in scientific use.

mon-gol-ism also Mon-gol-ism (mǒng'gə-liz'əm, mǒn'-) n. Offensive.

Down syndrome. [From MONGOLIAN, term used in a system of classification for mentally retarded people, devised around ethnic lines by John L.H. Down (1828-1896), British physician.]

Mon-gol-oid (mǒng'gə-loid', mǒn'-) adj. 1. Anthropology. Of, relating to, or being a major human racial division traditionally distinguished by physical characteristics such as yellowish-brown skin pigmentation, straight black hair, dark eyes with pronounced epicanthic folds, and prominent cheekbones and including peoples indigenous to central and eastern Asia. No longer in scientific use.

2. Characteristic of or resembling a Mongol. 3. Also mongoloid. Offensive. Of or relating to Down syndrome. — n. 1. Anthropology. A member of the Mongoid racial division. No longer in scientific use. 2. Also mongoloid. Offensive. A person affected with Down syndrome.

mon·goose (mǒng'gōōs', mǒn'-) n. pl. mon-goos-es. Any of various Old World carnivorous mammals of the genus Herpestes and related genera, having a slender agile body and a long tail and noted for the ability to seize and kill venomous snakes. [Marathi mangūs, of Dravidian origin.]

mon·grel (müng'grəl, mǒng'-) n. 1. An animal or a plant resulting from various interbreedings, especially a dog of mixed or undetermined breed. 2. A cross between different breeds, groups, or varieties, especially a mixture that is or appears to be incongruous. — adj. Of mixed origin or character. [Probably from Middle English mong, mixture, from Old English gemang. See mag- in Appendix.] — mon·grel'ism n. — mon'grel·ly adv.

mon·grel·ize (müng'grə-līz', mǒng'-) v. tr. mon·grel·ized, mon·grel·iz·ing, mon·grel·iz·es. To make mongrel in race, nature, or character. — mon'grel·i·za'tion (-grə-lī-zā'shən) n.

mon·ick·er (mǒn'ī-kər) n. Variant of moniker.

mon·ied (mün'ēd) adj. Variant of moneyed.

mon·ies (mün'ēz) n. A plural of money.

mon·i·ker or mon·ick·er (mǒn'ī-kər) n. Slang. A personal name or nickname. [Probably from Shelta munik, name, possibly alteration of Irish Gaelic ainm, from Old Irish. See nō-men- in Appendix.]

mo·nil·i·al (mə-nīl'ē-əl) adj. Of, relating to, or caused by a fungus of the genus Monilia (or Candida): monilial infections.

mo·ni·li·a·sis (mō'nə-lī'ə-sīs, mǒn'ə-) n. See candidiasis. [New Latin Monīlia, type genus (from Latin monīle, necklace) + -IASIS.]

mo·nil·i·form (mō-nīl'ə-fōrm') adj. Resembling a string of beads, as the roots of certain plants or the antennae of certain insects. [Latin monīle, necklace + -FORM.] — mo·nil'i·form'ly adv.

mon·ish (mǒn'ish) v. tr. mon·ished, mon·ish·ing, mon·ish·es. To admonish; warn. [Middle English monesten, monishe, from Old French monester, from Vulgar Latin monestāre*, alteration of Latin monēre, to warn. See men-¹ in Appendix.]

mo·nism (mō'nīz'əm, mǒn'īz'əm) n. Philosophy. 1. The view in metaphysics that reality is a unified whole and that all existing things can be ascribed to or described by a single concept or system. 2. The doctrine that mind and matter are formed, or reducible to, the same ultimate substance or principle of being. — mo'nist n. — mo·nis'tic (mō-nīs'tīk, mǒ-) adj. — mo·nis'ti·cal·ly adv.

mo·ni·tion (mō-nīsh'ən, mə-) n. 1. A warning or an intimation of something imminent, especially of impending danger. 2. Cautionary advice or counsel; an admonition. 3. A formal order from a bishop or an ecclesiastical court to refrain from a specified offense. 4. A summons or citation in civil or admiralty law.

[Middle English monicioun, from Old French monicion, from Latin monitiō, monitiōn-, from monitus, past participle of monēre, to warn. See men⁻¹ in Appendix.]

mon·i·tor (mŏn'ī-tər) n. 1. One that admonishes, cautions, or reminds, especially with respect to matters of conduct. 2. A pupil who assists a teacher in routine duties. 3. a. A usually electronic device used to record, regulate, or control a process or system. b. A receiver, such as a screen or speaker, that is used to check the quality or content of an electronic transmission: followed the broadcast on the television monitor. c. Computer Science. A device that accepts video signals from a computer and displays information on a screen. 4. Computer Science. A program that observes, supervises, or controls the activities of other programs. 5. An articulated device holding a rotating nozzle with which a jet of water is regulated, used in mining and firefighting. 6. a. A heavily ironclad warship of the 19th century with a low, flat deck and one or more gun turrets. b. A modern warship designed for coastal bombardment. 7. Biology. Any of various tropical carnivorous lizards of the family Varanidae, living in the East Indies, southern Asia, Africa, Australia, and New Guinea and ranging in length from several centimeters to 3 meters (10 feet). — v. mon·i·tored, mon·i·tor·ing, mon·i·tors. — v. tr. 1. To check the quality or content of (an electronic audio or visual signal) by means of a receiver. 2. To check by means of an electronic receiver for significant content, such as military, political, or illegal activity: monitor a suspected criminal's phone conversations. 3. To keep track of systematically with a view to collecting information: monitor the bear population of a national park; monitored the political views of the people. 4. a. To test or sample on a regular or ongoing basis: monitored the city's drinking water for impurities. b. To test (air or an object's surface, for example) for radiation intensity. 5. To keep close watch over; supervise: monitor an examination. 6. To direct. — v. intr. To act as a monitor. [Latin, from monēre, to warn. See men⁻¹ in Appendix.] — mon'·i·tor·ship' n.

mon·i·to·ri·al (mŏn'ī-tŏr'ē-əl, -tŏr'-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or performed by monitors. 2. Monitory. — mon'·i·to·ri·al·ly adv.

mon·i·to·ry (mŏn'ī-tŏr'ē, -tŏr'ē) adj. Conveying an admonition or a warning: a monitory glance. — n. pl. mon·i·to·ries. A letter of admonition, such as one from a bishop or an ecclesiastical court. [Middle English monitorie, letter of admonition, admonitory, from Medieval Latin monitōria, admonition, from feminine of Latin monitōrius, monitory, from monitor, monitor. See MONITOR.]

Mo·niz (mō-nēz', mŏ-nēsh'), Antonio Caetano de Abreu Freire Egas. 1874-1955. Portuguese neurologist. He shared a 1949 Nobel Prize for the development of prefrontal lobotomy as a radical treatment for severe psychoses.

monk (mŏngk) n. A man who is a member of a brotherhood living in a monastery and devoted to a discipline prescribed by his order: a Carthusian monk; a Buddhist monk. [Middle English munk, from Old English munuc, from Late Latin monachus, from Late Greek monakhos, from Greek, single, from monos. See men-4 in Appendix.]

Monk (müŋgk), George. See George Monck.

Monk (müŋgk), Thelonious Sphere. 1917-1982. American jazz pianist and composer whose spare piano style and unusual harmonic sense made him one of the most influential modern jazz musicians.

monk·er·y (müŋg'kə-rē) n. pl. monk·er·ies. 1. Monastic life or practices.

2. Monks considered as a group. 3. A monastery.

mon·key (müŋg'kē) n. pl. mon·keys. 1. Any of various long-tailed, medium-sized members of the order Primates, including the macaques, baboons, guenons, capuchins, marmosets, and tamarins and excluding the anthropoid apes and the prosimians. 2. One that behaves in a way suggestive of a monkey, as a mischievous child or a mimic. 3. The iron block of a pile driver. 4. Slang. A person who is mocked, duped, or made to appear a fool: They made a monkey out of him.

5. Slang. Drug addiction: have a monkey on one's back. — v. mon·keyed, mon·key·ing, mon·keys. — v. intr. Informal. 1. To play, fiddle, trifle, or tamper with something. 2. To behave in a mischievous or apish manner: Stop monkeying around! — v. tr. To imitate or mimic; ape. [Origin unknown.]

monkey bars (müŋg'kē bärz) pl.n. A three-dimensional structure of poles and bars on which children can play, as in a playground; a jungle gym.

monkey bread (müŋg'kē brəd) n. The hanging, gourdlike fruit of the baobab.

monkey business (müŋg'kē bīz'nīs) n. Slang. Silly, mischievous, or deceitful acts or behavior.

mon·key·faced owl (müŋg'kē-fāst' owl) n. See barn owl.

monkey flower (müŋg'kē flou'ər) n. Any of various herbs or shrubs of the genus Mimulus, having variously colored, two-lipped flowers. [From the pattern of spots on its flowers.]

monkey jacket (müŋg'kē jāk'it) n. 1. A short, tight-fitting jacket, traditionally worn by sailors. 2. See mess jacket. [From its resemblance to the jacket worn by an organ grinder's monkey.]

monkey pot (müŋg'kē pöt) n. 1. a. Any of various tropical American trees of the genus Lecythis, having a large, woody, urn-shaped pod that dehisces by a lid. b. The fruit of this tree. 2. A cylindrical or barrel-shaped melting pot used in making flint glass.

mon·key·puz·zle (müŋg'kē-püz'əl) n. A coniferous evergreen tree (Araucaria araucana) native to Chile, having intricately ramifying branches covered with overlapping, leathery, lanceolate, prickle-tipped leaves. [Perhaps from the obstacle its intertwined branches would pose.]

mon·key·shine (müŋg'kē-shīn') n. Slang. A mischievous or playful trick; a prank. Often used in the plural: laughed at my daughter's monkeyshines.

monkey wrench (mŭng'kē rĕnch) n. 1. A hand tool with adjustable jaws for turning nuts of varying sizes. 2. Informal. Something that disrupts: He threw a monkey wrench into our plans. [Origin unknown.]

monk·fish (mŭngk'fĭsh') n. pl. monkfish or monk·fish-es. See goosefish. [Perhaps from the cowed appearance of its head.]

Mon-Khmer (mōn'kmĕr') n. A subfamily of the Austro-Asiatic language family that includes Mon, Khmer, and other languages of southeast Asia.

monk·hood (mŭngk'hoōd') n. 1. The character, condition, or profession of a monk; monasticism. 2. Monks considered as a group.

monk·ish (mŭng'kĭsh) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of monks or monasticism. 2. Inclined to self-denial; ascetic. —monk'ish·ly adv.

—monk'ish·ness n.

monk's cloth (mŭngks klōth) n. A heavy cotton cloth in a coarse basket weave, now used chiefly for draperies.

monks·hood (mŭngks'hoōd') n. 1. See aconite. 2. A slender, erect, poisonous perennial herb (Aconitum napellus) native to northern Europe, having violet flowers and whose dried leaves and roots yield aconite. Also called wolfsbane

Mon·mouth (mōn'məth), Duke of Title of James Scott. 1649-1685. English pretender to the throne. The illegitimate son of Charles II, he led a rebellion after the succession of the Catholic James II but was defeated in battle, captured, and beheaded.

Mon·net (mō-nā'), Jean. 1888-1979. French economist and politician who laid the plans for the Common Market.

mon·o¹ (mōn'ō) n. Informal. Infectious mononucleosis.

mon·o² (mōn'ō) adj. Informal. Monaural; monophonic. [Short for MONOPHONIC.]

mono- or mon- pref. 1. One; single; alone: monomorphic. 2. Containing a single atom, radical, or group: monobasic. 3. Monomolecular; monatomic: monolayer. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin, from Greek, from monos, single, alone. See men⁴ in Appendix.]

mon·o·ac·id (mōn'ō-ās'ĭd) n. An acid having one replaceable hydrogen atom. — adj. also mon·o·a·cid·ic (-ə-sĭd'ĭk) Having only one hydroxyl group to react with acids.

mon·o·am·ine (mōn'ō-ām'ĕn, -ə-mĕn') n. An amine compound containing one amino group, especially a compound that functions as a neurotransmitter.

monoamine oxidase (mōn'ō-ām'ĕn ōk'sĭ-dās') n. Abbr. MAO An enzyme in the cells of most tissues that catalyzes the oxidation of monoamines such as norepinephrine and serotonin.

monoamine oxidase inhibitor (mōn'ō-ām'ĕn ōk'sĭ-dās' ĭn-hĭb'ĭ-tər) n. Abbr. MAOI Any of a class of antidepressant drugs that block the action of monoamine oxidase in the brain, thereby allowing the accumulation of monoamines such as norepinephrine.

mon·o·ba·sic (mŏn'ə-bā'sīk) adj. 1. Having only one hydrogen ion to donate to a base in an acid-base reaction; monoprotic. 2. Having only one metal ion or positive radical.

mon·o·carp (mŏn'ə-kärp') n. A monocarpic plant.

mon·o·car·pel·lar·y (mŏn'ə-kär'pə-lër'ē) adj. Botany. Consisting of only one carpel.

mon·o·car·pic (mŏn'ə-kär'pīk) also mon·o·car·pous (-kär'pəs) adj. Botany. Flowering and bearing fruit only once.

mon·o·ce·phal·ic (mŏn'ō-sə-fäl'īk) adj. Botany. Bearing one flower head, as in the scape of a dandelion.

Mo·noc·er·os (mə-nŏs'ər-əs) n. A constellation near Canis Major and Canis Minor. [Middle English, unicorn, from Old French, from Latin, from Greek monokerōs, having one horn : mono-, mono- + keras, horn; see ker¹ in Appendix.]

mon·o·cha·si·um (mŏn'ə-kā'zē-əm, -zhē-) n. pl. mon·o·cha·si·a (-zē-ə, -zhē-ə, -zhə). Botany. A cyme having a single flower on each axis. [MONO- + (DI)CHASIUM.] —mon'·o·cha'si·al adj.

mon·o·chord (mŏn'ə-kôrd') n. Music. An acoustical instrument consisting of a sounding box with one string and a movable bridge, used to study musical tones. [Middle English monocorde, from Old French, from Medieval Latin monochordum, from Greek monokhordon : mono-, mono- + khordē, string; see CORD.]

mon·o·chro·mat (mŏn'ə-krō'măt) n. A person with monochromatism.

mon·o·chro·mat·ic (mŏn'ə-krō-măt'īk) adj. 1. Having or appearing to have only one color. 2. Of or composed of radiation of only one wavelength: monochromatic light. 3. Done in monochrome: monochromatic prints and paintings.

4. Of or exhibiting monochromatism. —mon'·o·chro·mat'i·cal·ly adv.

—mon'·o·chro'ma·tic'i·ty (-mə-tīs'ī-tē) n.

mon·o·chro·ma·tism (mŏn'ə-krō'mə-tīz'əm) n. The condition of being completely colorblind.

mon·o·chrome (mŏn'ə-krōm') n. 1. a. A picture, especially a painting, done in different shades of a single color. b. The art or technique of executing such a picture. 2. The state of being in a single color. 3. A black-and-white image, as in photography or cinematography. [Medieval Latin monochroma, from feminine of Greek monokhrōmos, of one color : mono-, mono- + chrōma, color.]

—mon'·o·chrome', mon'·o·chro'mic (-krō'mīk) adj.

mon·o·cle (mŏn'ə-kəl) n. An eyeglass for one eye. [French, from Late Latin monoculus, having one eye : Greek mono-, mono- + Latin oculus, eye; see ok^{w-} in Appendix.] —mon'·o·cled (-kəld) adj.

mon·o·cline (mŏn'ə-klīn') n. A geologic structure in which all layers are inclined in the same direction. —mon'·o·cli'nal adj.

mon·o·clin·ic (mŏn'ə-klīn'ik) adj. Of or relating to three unequal crystal axes, two of which intersect obliquely and are perpendicular to the third.

mon·o·cli·nous (mŏn'ə-klī'nəs) adj. Botany. Having pistils and stamens in the same flower. [New Latin monoclinus : MONO- + Greek klinē, bed; see klei- in Appendix.]

mon·o·clo·nal (mŏn'ə-klō'nəl) adj. Of, forming, or derived from a single clone: a monoclonal population of tumor cells.

monoclonal antibody (mŏn'ə-klō'nəl ăn'tī-bŏd'ē) n. Any of a class of highly specific antibodies that are produced by the clones of a single hybrid cell formed in the laboratory by the fusion of a B cell with a tumor cell. Such a hybrid cell and its clones combine the specificity of the B cell with the ability of the tumor cell to reproduce indefinitely. Monoclonal antibodies are used widely in medical and biological research.

mon·o·coque (mŏn'ə-kōk', -kōk') n. A metal structure, such as an aircraft, in which the skin absorbs all or most of the stresses to which the body is subjected. [French : mono-, mono- + coque, shell (from Old French, from Latin coccum, berry, from Greek kokkos.)] mon·o·cot (mŏn'ə-kŏt') n. A monocotyledon.

mon·o·cot·y·le·don (mŏn'ə-kŏt'l-ēd'n) n. Any of various flowering plants, such as grasses, orchids, and lilies, having a single cotyledon in the seed. —mon'·o·cot'y·le'don·ous adj.

mo·noc·ra·cy (mŏ-nŏk'rə-sē, mə-) n. pl. mo·noc·ra·cies. Government or rule by a single person; autocracy. —mon'·o·crat' (mŏn'ə-krăt') n. —mon'·o·crat'ic adj.

mo·noc·u·lar (mŏ-nŏk'yə-lər, mə-) adj. 1. Having or relating to one eye. 2. Of, relating to, or intended for use by only one eye: a monocular microscope. [From Late Latin monoculus, having one eye. See MONOCLE.] —mo·noc'u·lar·ly adv.

mon·o·cul·ture (mŏn'ə-kŭl'chər) n. 1. The cultivation of a single crop on a farm or in a region or country. 2. A single, homogeneous culture without diversity or dissension. —mon'·o·cul'tur·al adj.

mon·o·cy·cle (mŏn'ə-sī'kəl) n. A unicycle.

mon·o·cy·cl·ic (mŏn'ə-sī'klīk, -sīk'līk) adj. 1. Having a single cycle, as of activity or development. 2. Biology. Having a single whorl, as certain flowers and the shells of certain invertebrates. 3. Chemistry. Having a molecular structure with only one ring.

mon·o·cyte (mŏn'ə-sīt') n. A large, circulating, phagocytic white blood cell, having a single well-defined nucleus and very fine granulation in the cytoplasm.

Monocytes constitute from 3 to 8 percent of the white blood cells in human beings. —mon'o-cyt'ic (-sīt'ik), mon'o-cy'toid' (-sī'toid') adj.

mon·o·cy·to·sis (mōn'ə-sī-tō'sis) n. pl. mon·o·cy·to·ses (-sēz). An abnormal increase of monocytes in the blood, occurring in infectious mononucleosis and certain bacterial infections such as tuberculosis.

Mo·nod (mô-nō'), Jacques Lucien. 1910-1976. French biochemist. He shared a 1965 Nobel Prize for the study of regulatory activity in body cells.

mon·o·dac·tyl (mōn'ə-dāk'təl) n. An animal having only one toe, digit, or claw on each extremity. —mon'o-dac'ty-lous adj.

mon·o·dra·ma (mōn'ə-drā'mə, -drām'ə) n. A dramatic composition written for one performer. —mon'o-dra-mat'ic (-drə-măt'ik) adj.

mon·o·dy (mōn'ə-dē) n. pl. mon·o·dies. 1. An ode for one voice or actor, as in Greek drama. 2. A poem in which the poet or speaker mourns another's death. 3. Music. a. A style of composition having or dominated by a single melodic line; monophony. b. A composition in this style. [Late Latin monōdia, from Greek monōidia: mono-, mono- + ōidē, song; see wed⁻² in Appendix.] —mo·nod'ic (mə-nōd'ik), mo·nod'i·cal (-i-kəl) adj. —mo·nod'i·cal·ly adv.

—mon'o·dist (mōn'ə-dīst) n.

mo·noe·cious also mo·ne·cious (mə-nē'shəs) adj. 1. Botany. Having unisexual reproductive organs or flowers, with the organs or flowers of both sexes borne on a single plant, as in corn and pines. 2. Zoology. Hermaphroditic. [New Latin Monoecia, class name: MONO- + Greek oikia, dwelling; see weik⁻¹ in Appendix.] —mo·noe'cious·ly adv. —mo·noe'cism (mə-nē'siz'əm) n.

mon·o·es·ter (mōn'ō-ēs'tər) n. An ester having only one ester group.

mon·o·fil·a·ment (mōn'ə-fil'ə-mənt) n. A single strand of untwisted synthetic fiber, such as nylon, used especially for fishing line.

mo·nog·a·my (mə-nōg'ə-mē) n. 1. The practice or condition of being married to only one person at a time. 2. The practice of marrying only once in a lifetime. 3. Zoology. The condition of having only one mate. —mo·nog'a·mist n. —mo·nog'a·mous adj. —mo·nog'a·mous·ly adv.

mon·o·ge·ne·an (mōn'ə-jē'nē-ən) n. Any of various trematodes of the order Monogenea that typically pass the entire life cycle as ectoparasites on a single fish. [From New Latin Monogenea, order name: MONO- + Greek genea, race; see GENEALOGY.] —mon'o·ge'ne·an adj.

mon·o·gen·e·sis (mōn'ə-jēn'i-sis) n. 1. The theory that all living organisms are descended from a single cell or organism. 2. Asexual reproduction, as by sporulation. —mo·nog'e·nous (mə-nōj'ə-nəs) adj.

mon·o·ge·net·ic (mōn'ə-jə-nēt'ik) adj. 1. Relating to or exhibiting monogenesis. 2. Having a single host through the course of the life cycle. 3. Produced under a single set of continuing conditions. Used of soil.

mon·o·gen·ic (mŏn'ə-jĕn'ik) adj. 1. a. Of or relating to monogenesis; monogenetic. b. Relating to monogenism. 2. Of or regulated by one gene or one of a pair of allelic genes. 3. Producing offspring of only one sex, as some species of aphids. —mon'·o·gen'i·cal·ly adv.

mo·nog·e·nism (mə-nŏj'ə-nĭz'əm) n. The theory that all human beings are descended from a single pair of ancestors. —mo·nog'e·nist n.
—mo·nog'e·nis'tic adj.

mon·o·glot (mŏn'ə-glŏt') n. A person who knows only one language. — adj. Knowing only one language; monolingual. [MONO- + (POLY)GLOT.]

mon·o·gram (mŏn'ə-grām') n. A design composed of one or more letters, typically the initials of a name, used as an identifying mark. — v. tr.

mon·o·grammed also mon·o·gramed, mon·o·gram·ming also mon·o·gram·ing, mon·o·grams also mon·o·grams. To mark with a design composed of one or more letters. [Late Latin monogramma, from Late Greek monogrammon, from neuter of monogrammos, consisting of a single letter : Greek mono-, mono- + Greek gramma, letter; see -GRAM.]

—mon'·o·gram·mat'ic (-grə-măt'ik) adj.

mon·o·graph (mŏn'ə-gräf') n. A scholarly piece of writing of essay or book length on a specific, often limited subject. — v. tr. mon·o·graphed, mon·o·graph·ing, mon·o·graphs. To write a monograph on.

—mo·nog'ra·pher (mə-nŏg'rə-fər) n. —mon'·o·graph'ic adj.

—mon'·o·graph'i·cal·ly adv.

mo·nog·y·ny (mə-nŏj'ə-nĕ) n. The practice or condition of having only one wife at a time. —mo·nog'y·nist n. —mo·nog'y·nous adj.

mon·o·hy·brid (mŏn'ō-hĭ'brĭd) n. Genetics. The hybrid of parents that differ at only one gene locus, for which each parent is homozygous with a different allele.

mon·o·hy·drate (mŏn'ō-hĭ'drāt') n. A compound, such as calcium chloride monohydrate, $\text{CaCl}_2 \cdot \text{H}_2\text{O}$, that contains one molecule of water.

—mon'·o·hy'drat'ed adj.

mon·o·hy·dric (mŏn'ō-hĭ'drĭk) adj. Containing one replaceable atom of hydrogen.

mo·noi·cous (mə-noi'kəs) adj. Botany. Having archegonia and antheridia on the same plant; bisexual. [Alteration of MONOECIOUS.]

mon·o·lay·er (mŏn'ō-lā'ər) n. 1. A film or layer of a compound one molecule thick. 2. A layer of cells one cell thick, grown in a culture.

mon·o·lin·gual (mŏn'ə-lĭng'gwəl) adj. Using or knowing only one language. —mon'·o·lin'gual n. —mon'·o·lin'gual·ism n.

mon·o·lith (mŏn'ə-lĭth') n. 1. A large block of stone, especially one used in architecture or sculpture. 2. Something, such as a column or monument, made from one large block of stone. 3. Something suggestive of a large block of stone, as in immovability, massiveness, or uniformity. [French monolithe, from Greek monolithos, consisting of a single stone : mono-, mono- + lithos, stone.]

mon·o·lith·ic (mŏn'ə-līth'īk) adj. 1. Constituting a monolith: a monolithic sculpture. 2. Massive, solid, and uniform: the monolithic proportions of Stalinist architecture. 3. Constituting or acting as a single, often rigid, uniform whole: a monolithic worldwide movement. —mon'·o·lith'i·cal·ly adv.

mon·o·logue also mon·o·log (mŏn'ə-lŏg', -lŏg') n. 1. a. A dramatic soliloquy. b. A literary composition in the form of a soliloquy. 2. A continuous series of jokes or comic stories delivered by one comedian. 3. A long speech made by one person, often monopolizing a conversation. — v. mon·o·logued also mon·o·logged, mon·o·logu·ing also mon·o·log·ging, mon·o·logues also mon·o·logs. — v. intr. To give or perform a monologue. — v. tr. To address a monologue to. [French : Greek mono-, mono- + Greek -logos, -logue.]

—mon'·o·log'ic (-lŏj'īk), mon'·o·log'i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj. —mon'·o·logu'ist (mŏn'ə-lŏg'īst, -lŏg'-), mo·nol'·o·gist (mə-nŏl'ə-jīst, mŏn'ə-lŏg'īst, -lŏg'-) n.

mon·o·ma·ni·a (mŏn'ə-mā'nē-ə, -mān'yə) n. 1. Pathological obsession with one idea or subject, as in paranoia. 2. Intent concentration on or exaggerated enthusiasm for a single subject or idea. —mon'·o·ma'ni·ac' (-mā'nē-āk') n. —mon'·o·ma·ni'a·cal (-mā-nī'ə-kəl) adj. —mon'·o·ma·ni'a·cal·ly adv.

mon·o·mer (mŏn'ə-mər) n. A molecule that can combine with others to form a polymer. [MONO- + (POLY)MER.] —mon'·o·mer'ic (-mēr'īk) adj.

mon·o·me·tal·lic (mŏn'ō-mə-tāl'īk) adj. 1. Consisting of or containing one metal. 2. Of, advocating, or practicing monometallism.

mon·o·met·al·lism (mŏn'ō-mēt'l-īz'əm) n. The economic theory or practice of using only one metal as a monetary standard. —mon'·o·met'al·list n.

mo·nom·e·ter (mə-nŏm'ī-tər) n. A verse consisting of a single metrical foot or one dipody.

mo·no·mi·al (mŏ-nŏ'mē-əl, mə-) n. 1. Mathematics. An algebraic expression consisting of only one term. 2. Biology. A taxonomic name consisting of a single word. [MON(O)- + (BIN)OMIAL.] —mo·no'mi·al adj.

mon·o·mo·lec·u·lar (mŏn'ō-mə-lĕk'yə-lər) adj. 1. Of or relating to a single molecule. 2. Of or consisting of a layer one molecule thick. —mon'·o·mo·lec'u·lar·ly adv.

mon·o·mor·phic (mŏn'ō-mŏr'fīk) also mon·o·mor·phous (-fəs) adj. 1. Chemistry. Having only one form, as one crystal form. 2. Zoology. Having one or the same genotype, form, or structure through a series of developmental changes. —mon'·o·mor'phism n.

Mo·non·ga·he·la River (mə-nŏng'gə-hĕ'lə rĭv'ər) A river rising in northern West Virginia and flowing about 206 km (128 mi) generally north into southwest Pennsylvania, where it joins the Allegheny River at Pittsburgh to form the Ohio River.

mon·o·nu·cle·ar (mŏn'ō-nōō'klē-ər, -nyōō'-) adj. 1. Having only one nucleus: a mononuclear cell. 2. Chemistry. Monocyclic.

mon·o·nu·cle·o·sis (mŏn'ō-nōō'klē-ō'sis, -nyōō-) n. 1. The presence of an abnormally large number of white blood cells with single nuclei in the blood-stream. 2. Infectious mononucleosis. [MONO- + NUCLE(US) + -OSIS.]

mon·o·nu·cle·o·tide (mŏn'ō-nōō'klē-ə-tīd', -nyōō'-) n. A nucleotide consisting of one molecule each of a phosphoric acid, a sugar, and either a purine or a pyrimidine base.

mon·o·pet·al·ous (mŏn'ə-pět'l-əs) adj. Botany. Having the petals united to form one unit; gamopetalous.

mo·noph·a·gous (mə-nŏf'ə-gəs) adj. Eating only one kind of food.

—mo·noph'a·gy (-ə-jē) n.

mon·o·pho·bi·a (mŏn'ō-fō'bē-ə) n. An abnormal fear of being alone.

—mon'o·pho'bic (-fō'bīk) adj.

mon·o·phon·ic (mŏn'ə-fŏn'īk) adj. 1. Music. Having a single melodic line; monodic. 2. Electronics. Monaural. —mon'o·phon'i·cal·ly adv.

mo·noph·o·ny (mə-nŏf'ə-nē) n. pl. mo·noph·o·nies. Music. Music consisting of a single melodic line. [MONO- + (POLY)PHONY.]

mon·oph·thong (mŏn'əf-thŏng', -thŏng') n. Linguistics. 1. A single vowel articulated without change in quality throughout the course of a syllable, as the vowel of English bed. 2. Two written vowels representing a single sound, as oa in boat. [Late Greek monophthongos : Greek mono-, mono- + Greek phthongos, sound.] —mon'oph·thon'gal (-thŏng'gəl, -thŏng'-) adj.

mon·o·phy·let·ic (mŏn'ō-fī-lět'īk) adj. 1. Of or concerning a single taxon of animals. 2. Relating to, descended from, or derived from one stock or source.

—mon'o·phy·let'ic·al·ly adv.

Mo·noph·y·site (mə-nŏf'ə-sīt') n. Theology. An adherent of the doctrine that in the person of Jesus there was but a single, divine nature. Coptic and Syrian Christians profess this doctrine. [Late Latin monophysita, from Late Greek monophusitēs : Greek mono-, mono- + Greek phusis, nature; see bheuə- in Appendix.] —Mo·noph'y·site, Mo·noph'y·sit'ic (-sīt'īk) adj.

—Mo·noph'y·sit'ism n.

mon·o·plane (mŏn'ə-plān') n. An airplane with only one pair of wings.

mon·o·ple·gi·a (mŏn'ə-plē'jē-ə, -plē'jə) n. Paralysis of a single limb, muscle, or muscle group. —mon'o·ple'gic (-plē'jīk) adj.

mon·o·ploid (mŏn'ə-ploid') adj. Having a single set of chromosomes; haploid. — n. A monoploid cell or organism.

mon·o·pod (mŏn'ə-pŏd') n. A single-legged support for a camera or other hand-held device.

mon·o·pode (mŏn'ə-pŏd') n. 1. A creature having only one foot. 2. Botany. A monopodium. [Late Latin monopodium, one-footed. See MONOPODIUM.]

mon·o·po·di·um (mɒn'ə-pō'dē-əm) n. pl. mon·o·po·di·a (-dē-ə). A main axis of a plant, such as the trunk of a spruce, that maintains a single line of growth, giving off lateral branches. [New Latin, from Late Latin monopodius, one-footed, from Greek monopous: mono-, mono- + pous, pod-, foot; see ped- in Appendix.] —mon'·o·po'di·al (-dē-əl) adj.

mon·o·pole (mɒn'ə-pōl') n. A magnetic monopole.

mo·nop·o·lize (mə-nɒp'ə-līz') v. tr. mo·nop·o·lized, mo·nop·o·liz·ing, mo·nop·o·liz·es. 1. To acquire or maintain a monopoly of. 2. To dominate by excluding others: monopolized the conversation. —mo·nop'·o·li·za'tion (-lī-zā'shən) n. —mo·nop'·o·liz'er n.

SYNONYMS: monopolize, absorb, consume, engross, preoccupy. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to have exclusive possession or control of”: desirable housing monopolized by the wealthy; study that absorbs all her time; was consumed by fear; engrossed herself in her reading; a mind that was preoccupied with financial worries.

mo·nop·o·ly (mə-nɒp'ə-lē) n. pl. mo·nop·o·lies. 1. Exclusive control by one group of the means of producing or selling a commodity or service. 2. Law. A right granted by a government giving exclusive control over a specified commercial activity to a single party. 3. a. A company or group having exclusive control over a commercial activity. b. A commodity or service so controlled. 4. a. Exclusive possession or control: arrogantly claims to have a monopoly on the truth. b. Something that is exclusively possessed or controlled: showed that scientific achievement is not a male monopoly. [Latin monopōlium, from Greek monopōlion: mono-, mono- + pōlein, to sell; see pel-⁴ in Appendix.] —mo·nop'·o·lism n. —mo·nop'·o·list n. —mo·nop'·o·lis'tic adj. —mo·nop'·o·lis'ti·cal·ly adv.

mon·o·pro·pel·lant (mɒn'ō-prə-pěl'ənt) n. A rocket propellant consisting of a single substance or mixture that contains both fuel and oxidizer.

mon·o·pro·tic (mɒn'ə-prō'tik) adj. Monobasic. [MONO- + PROT(ON) + -IC.]

mo·nop·so·ny (mə-nɒp'sə-nē) n. pl. mo·nop·so·nies. A market situation in which the product or service of several sellers is sought by only one buyer. [MON(O)- + Greek opsōnia, purchase of food; see DUOPSONY.] —mo·nop'·so·nist n. —mo·nop'·so·nis'tic adj.

mon·o·rail (mɒn'ə-rāl') n. 1. A single rail serving as a track for wheeled vehicles traveling on it or suspended from it. 2. A railway system using a single rail.

mon·o·sac·cha·ride (mɒn'ə-sāk'ə-rīd', -rīd) n. A carbohydrate that cannot be decomposed by hydrolysis, especially one of the hexoses, having the general formula C₆H₁₂O₆. Also called simple sugar mon·o·sep·al·ous (mŏn'ə-sĕp'ə-ləs) adj. Botany. Having the sepals united to form one unit; gamosepalous.

mon·o·so·di·um glu·ta·mate (mŏn'ə-sō'dē-əm glōō'tə-māt') n. Abbr.

MSG A white crystalline compound, $\text{COOH}(\text{CH}_2)_2\text{CH}(\text{NH}_2)\text{COONa}$, used as a flavor enhancer in foods. [MONO- + SODIUM + GLUTAM(IC ACID) + -ATE².]

mon·o·some (mŏn'ə-sŏm') n. 1. A chromosome having no homologue, especially an unpaired X-chromosome. 2. A single ribosome, especially one that is combined with a molecule of messenger RNA. —mon'·o·so'mic (-sō'mĭk) adj.
—mon'·o·so'my n.

mon·o·sper·mous (mŏn'ə-spŭr'məs) also mon·o·sper·mal (-məl) adj. Botany. Having a single seed.

mon·o·stich (mŏn'ə-stĭk') n. 1. A poem consisting of a single line. 2. A single line of poetry.

mon·o·stome (mŏn'ə-stŏm') also mo·nos·to·mous (mə-nŏs'tə-məs) adj.

Having only one mouth or oral sucker, as certain flatworms. [From Greek monostomos : mono-, mono- + stoma, mouth.]

mon·o·sty·lous (mŏn'ə-stī'ləs) adj. Botany. Having one style.

mon·o·syl·lab·ic (mŏn'ə-sĭ-lăb'ĭk) adj. Linguistics. 1. Having only one syllable. 2. Characterized by or consisting of monosyllables.

—mon'·o·syl·lab'ic·al·ly adv.

mon·o·syl·la·ble (mŏn'ə-sĭl'ə-bəl) n. Linguistics. A word or an utterance of one syllable. [From Late Latin monosyllabon, from Greek monosullabon : mono-, mono- + sullabē, syllable; see SYLLABLE.]

mon·o·syn·ap·tic (mŏn'ō-sə-năp'tĭk) adj. Having one neural synapse.

—mon'·o·syn·ap'ti·cal·ly adv.

mon·o·the·ism (mŏn'ə-thē-ĭz'əm) n. The doctrine or belief that there is only one God. —mon'·o·the'ist n. —mon'·o·the·is'tic adj.

—mon'·o·the·is'ti·cal·ly adv.

mon·o·the·mat·ic (mŏn'ə-thē-măt'ĭk) adj. Having only one theme.

mon·o·tint (mŏn'ə-tĭnt') n. A monochrome painting or print.

mon·o·tone (mŏn'ə-tŏn') n. 1. A succession of sounds or words uttered in a single tone of voice. 2. Music. a. A single tone repeated with different words or time values, as in plainsong. b. A chant in a single tone. 3. Sameness or dull repetition in sound, style, manner, or color. — adj. 1. Characterized by or uttered in a monotone: a monotone recitation of names. 2. Of or having a single color: a cat with a monotone coat. 3. Also mon·o·ton·ic (mŏn'ə-tŏn'ĭk). Mathematics. Designating sequences, the successive members of which either consistently increase or decrease but do not oscillate in relative value. Each member of a monotone increasing sequence is greater than or equal to the preceding member; each member of a monotone decreasing sequence is less than or equal to the preceding member. [From Greek monotonos, monotonous. See MONOTONOUS.]

—mon'·o·ton'ic (-tŏn'ik) adj. —mon'·o·ton'i·cal·ly adv.

mo·not·o·nous (mə-nŏt'n-əs) adj. 1. Sounded or spoken in an unvarying tone. 2. Tediously repetitious or lacking in variety. See Synonyms at boring. [Greek monotonos : mono-, mono- + tonos, tone; see TONE.]

—mo·not'o·nous·ly adv. —mo·not'o·nous·ness n.

mo·not·o·ny (mə-nŏt'n-ē) n. pl. mo·not·o·nies. 1. Uniformity or lack of variation in pitch, intonation, or inflection. 2. Tedious sameness or repetitiousness: the monotony of daily routine. [Greek monotonia, from monotonos, monotonous. See MONOTONOUS.]

mon·o·treme (mŏn'ə-trēm') n. A member of the Monotremata, an order of primitive egg-laying mammals restricted to Australia and New Guinea and consisting of only the platypus and the echidna. [From New Latin Monotremata, order name : MONO- + Greek trēma, perforation; see terə⁻¹ in Appendix.]

—mon'·o·trem'a·tous (-trēm'ə-təs) adj.

mo·not·ri·chous (mə-nŏt'ri-kəs) also mon·o·trich·ic (mŏn'ə-trīk'ik) or mo·not·ri·chate (mə-nŏt'ri-kīt) adj. Having one flagellum at only one pole or end, as certain bacteria.

mon·o·type (mŏn'ə-tīp') n. 1. Biology. The sole member of its group, such as a single species that constitutes a genus. 2. A unique print made by pressing paper against a painted or inked surface. —mon'·o·typ'ic (-tīp'ik) adj.

Mon·o·type (mŏn'ə-tīp') A trademark used for a typesetting machine operated from a keyboard that activates a unit that casts and sets individual characters.

mon·o·va·lent (mŏn'ə-vā'lənt) adj. 1. Chemistry. Having a valence of 1; univalent. 2. Immunology. a. Containing antigens from a single strain of a microorganism: a monovalent vaccine; a monovalent serum. b. Having only one site of attachment. Used of an antibody or antigen. —mon'·o·va'lence, mon'·o·va'len·cy n.

mon·ox·ide (mə-nŏk'sīd') n. An oxide with each molecule containing one oxygen atom.

mon·o·zy·got·ic (mŏn'ō-zī-gŏt'ik) adj. Derived from a single fertilized ovum or embryonic cell mass. Used especially of identical twins.

Mon·roe (mən-rŏ') 1. A city of northeast-central Louisiana east of Shreveport. Founded in 1785, it is an industrial center. Population, 54,909. 2. A city of southeast Michigan on Lake Erie southwest of Detroit. It was settled c. 1778 and today is a manufacturing and shipping center for an area noted for its nurseries. Population, 22,902.

Mon·roe (mən-rŏ'), Harriet. 1860-1936. American poet who founded and edited (1912-1936) Poetry, an influential magazine in which works of Marianne Moore, Wallace Stevens, and William Carlos Williams were first published.

Mon-roe (mə-n-rō'), James. 1758-1831. The fifth President of the United States (1817-1825), whose administration was marked by the acquisition of Florida (1819), the Missouri Compromise (1820), in which Missouri was declared a slave state, and the profession of the Monroe Doctrine (1823), which declared U.S. opposition to European interference in the Americas.

Mon-roe (mə-n-rō'), Marilyn. Originally Norma Jean Baker. 1926-1962.

American actress noted for her great sex appeal. She appeared in several motion pictures, including Some Like It Hot (1959) and The Misfits (1961).

Mon-roe-ville (mə-n-rō'vīl') A borough of southwest Pennsylvania, a residential suburb of Pittsburgh. Population, 29,169.

Mon-ro-vi-a (mə-n-rō'vĕ-ə) 1. The capital and largest city of Liberia, in the northwest part of the country on the Atlantic Ocean. It was founded in 1822 as a haven for freed slaves and named after President James Monroe. Population, 243,243. 2. A city of southern California, an industrial and residential suburb of Los Angeles in the foothills of the San Gabriel Mountains. Population, 35,761.

mons (mɔnz) n. pl. mon-tes (mɔn'tēz). A protuberance of the human body, especially that formed by the pubic bones. [Latin mōns, mountain. See men-² in Appendix.]

Mons (mɔns) A city of southwest Belgium near the French border southwest of Brussels. Founded on the site of a Roman camp, it was an important cloth market in the 14th century. Population, 91,868.

Mon-sei-gneur (môn-sĕ-nyœr') n. pl. Mes-sei-gneurs (mā-sĕ-nyœr').

Abbr. Msgr., Mgr. Used as an honorific in French-speaking areas, especially as accorded to princes and prelates. [French, from Old French : mon, my; see MONSIEUR + seigneur, lord, sir; see SEIGNIOR.]

Mon-sieur (mə-syœr') n. pl. Mes-sieurs (mā-syœr', mĕs'ærz). 1. Abbr. M.

Used as a courtesy title before the surname, full name, or professional title of a man in a French-speaking area: Monsieur Cartier; Monsieur Jacques Cartier.

2. monsieur. Used as a form of polite address for a man in a French-speaking area. [French, from Old French : mon, my (from Latin meum, accusative of meus); see me-¹ in Appendix + sieur, lord, sir; see SEIGNIOR.]

Mon-si-gnor also mon-si-gnor (mɔn-sĕn'yær) n. Abbr. Msgr., Mgr. Roman Catholic Church. 1. A title and an office conferred on a male cleric by a pope.

2. Used as a form of address prefixed to the name of such a cleric. [Italian, from French Monseigneur. See MONSEIGNEUR.] —Mon'si-gnor'i-al (mɔn'sĕn-yôr'ĕ-əl, -yôr'-) adj.

mon-soon (mɔn-sōn') n. 1. A wind system that influences large climatic regions and reverses direction seasonally. 2. a. A wind from the southwest or south that brings heavy rainfall to southern Asia in the summer. b. The rain that accompanies this wind. [Obsolete Dutch monssoen, from Portuguese monção, from Arabic mawsim, season.] —mon-soon'al adj.

mons pubis (mɔnz pyōō'bis) n. pl. montes pubis. A rounded fleshy protuberance situated over the pubic bones that becomes covered with hair during puberty. [New Latin mōns pūbis : Latin mōns, mount + Latin pūbis, genitive of pūbēs, pubis.]

mon·ster (mɔn'stər) n. 1. a. An imaginary or legendary creature, such as a centaur or Harpy, that combines parts from various animal or human forms. b. A creature having a strange or frightening appearance. 2. An animal, a plant, or other organism having structural defects or deformities. 3. Pathology. A fetus or an infant that is grotesquely abnormal and usually not viable. 4. A very large animal, plant, or object. 5. One who inspires horror or disgust: a monster of selfishness. [Middle English monstre, from Old French, from Latin mōnstrum, portent, monster, from monēre, to warn. See men-¹ in Appendix.]

mon·strance (mɔn'strəns) n. Roman Catholic Church. A receptacle in which the host is held. Also called ostensorium [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin mōnstrantia, from Latin mōnstrāns, mōnstrant- present participle of mōnstrāre, to show, from mōnstrum, portent, monster. See MONSTER.] mon·stros·i·ty (mɔn-strōs'ī-tē) n. pl. mon-stros-i-ties. 1. One that is monstrous. 2. The quality or character of being monstrous. [Middle English monstruosite, from Old French, from Late Latin mōnstrōsitās, from Latin mōnstruōsus, monstrous. See MONSTROUS.] mon·strous (mɔn'strəs) adj. 1. Shockingly hideous or frightful. See Synonyms at outrageous. 2. Exceptionally large; enormous: a monstrous tidal wave. 3. Deviating greatly from the norm in appearance or structure; abnormal. 4. Of or resembling a fabulous monster. [Middle English, from Old French monstruos, from Latin mōnstruōsus, from mōnstrum, portent, monster. See MONSTER.] —mon'strous-ly adv. —mon'strous-ness n.

mons ve·ne·ris (mɔnz vɛn'ər-īs) n. pl. montes veneris. The female mons pubis. [New Latin mōns veneris : Latin mōns, mount + Latin Veneris, genitive of Venus, Venus.]

Mont. abbr. Montana.

mon·tage (mɔn-tāzh', mɔn-) n. 1. a. A single pictorial composition made by juxtaposing or superimposing many pictures or designs. b. The art or process of making such a composition. 2. a. A rapid succession of different images or shots in a movie. b. The use of such successive images as a cinematic technique. 3. A composite of closely juxtaposed elements: a montage of voices on an audiotape. — v. tr. mon-taged, mon-tag-ing, mon-tag-es. To use or incorporate in a montage. [French, from monter, to mount, from Old French. See MOUNT¹.]

Mon·tag·nais (mɔn'tən-yā') n. pl. Montagnais. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting an extensive area in Quebec and Labrador. b. A member of this people. 2. The Algonquian language of the Montagnais and Naskapi. [Canadian French, from French montagne, mountain. See MONTAGNARD.]

Mon·ta·gnard also mon·ta·gnard (mǒn'tən-yärd') n. A member of a people inhabiting the mountains and highlands of southern Vietnam near the border of Cambodia. — adj. Of or relating to the Montagnards or their culture. [French, mountaineer, from montagne, mountain, from Old French montaigne. See MOUNTAIN.]

Mon·ta·gu (mǒn'tə-gyōō'), Ashley. Born 1905. British-born American anthropologist whose books, such as The Natural Superiority of Women (1953), helped popularize anthropology.

Mon·ta·gu (mǒn'tə-gyōō'), Lady Mary Wortley. 1689-1762. English writer noted for her erudite and amusing letters, first published in Turkish Letters (1763).

Mon·taigne (mǒn-tān', mōn-těn'yə), Michel Eyquem de. 1533-1592. French essayist whose discursive, lively personal essays are considered the highest expression of 16th-century French prose.

Mon·ta·le (mōn-tä'lā, -lē), Eugenio. 1896-1981. Italian poet whose works, which greatly influenced 20th-century Italian literature, include Le Occasioni (1939) and Satura (1962). He won the 1975 Nobel Prize for literature.

Mon·tan·a (mǒn-tän'ə) Abbr. MT, Mont. A state of the northwest United States bordering on Canada. It was admitted as the 41st state in 1889. Most of the area passed to the United States through the Louisiana Purchase of 1803 and was explored by Lewis and Clark in 1805 and 1806. Split for many years among other western territories, the region was organized as the Montana Territory in 1864. Helena is the capital and Billings the largest city. Population, 803,655.

—Mon·tan'an adj. & n.

mon·tane (mǒn-tān', mǒn'tān') adj. Of, growing in, or inhabiting mountain areas. [Latin montānus, from mōns, mont-, mountain. See men-² in Appendix.]

mon·tan wax (mǒn'tən wäks, -tän') n. A hard, white wax obtained from lignite and used in the manufacture of polishes, paints, and phonograph records. [From Latin montānus, montane. See MONTANE.]

Mon·tauk (mǒn'tōk') n. pl. Montauk or Mon·tauks. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting the eastern end of Long Island in New York. b. A member of this people. 2. The Algonquian language of the Montauk, dialectally related to Mohegan and Pequot. 3. A member of any of various Algonquian peoples of eastern and central Long Island connected with the Montauk. [From a place name of Montauk origin.]

Montauk Point (mǒn'tōk' point) The eastern extremity of Long Island, in southeast New York. It is a popular resort area.

Mont Blanc (mōnt blängk, mōn blän') See Mont Blanc.

Mont·calm de Saint·Ve·ran (mōnt-käm' də sän'vā-rän', mōn-kälm'), Marquis Louis Joseph de. 1712-1759. French commander in Canada during the French and Indian War. He repelled a British attack on Fort Ticonderoga (1758) and held Quebec until the Battle of the Plains of Abraham (1759), in which he and the British general James Wolfe were killed.

Mont-clair (mönt-klâr') 1. A city of southern California northeast of Pomona. It is a residential community in a citrus-growing area. Population, 28,434. 2. A town of northeast New Jersey, a residential suburb of New York City. Population, 37,729.

mon-te (möñ'tē) n. Games. A card game in which two cards are chosen from four laid out faceup and a player bets that one of the two will be matched in suit by the dealer before the other one. [Spanish, mountain, pile, monte, from Italian, from Latin mōns, mont-, mountain. See men-² in Appendix.]

Mon-te Al-bán (môn'tē ä'l-bän') A ruined Zapotec city of southern Mexico near Oaxaca. Excavations (begun in 1931) have revealed that an advanced culture flourished here c. 200 B.C.

Mon-te-bel-lo (möñ'tə-běl'ō) A city of southern California, a residential and industrial suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 59,564.

Mon-te Car-lo¹ (möñ'tē kär'lō) A town of Monaco on the Mediterranean Sea and the French Riviera. It is a noted resort famed for its casino and luxurious hotels. Population, 11,599.

Mon-te Car-lo² (möñ'tē kär'lō) adj. Of or relating to a problem-solving technique that uses random samples and other statistical methods for finding solutions to mathematical or physical problems. [After Monte Carlo¹.]

Mon-te-go Bay (möñ-tē'gō bā) A town of northwest Jamaica on the Caribbean Sea. Visited by Columbus in 1494, it is today a port and popular resort area. Population, 70,285.

mon-teith (möñ-tēth') n. A large punch bowl having a notched rim on which cups can be hung. [Possibly after Monteith (Monteigh), an eccentric 17th-century Scotsman who wore a cloak scalloped at the hem.]

Mon-te-ne-gro (möñ'tə-nē'grō, -nēg'rō) A region of the western Balkan Peninsula bordering on the Adriatic Sea. An ancient Balkan state, it long resisted the Turks and from 1910 to 1918 was an independent kingdom. Montenegro then joined the newly formed Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes, which became Yugoslavia after 1929. With Serbia it formed present-day Yugoslavia in April 1992. Titograd is the capital. Population, 502,207.

Mon-te-rey (möñ'tə-rā') A city of western California south of San Francisco on Monterey Bay, an inlet of the Pacific Ocean. First settled in 1770 around a Franciscan mission, Monterey was a Spanish colonial capital for much of the time from 1774 to 1846, when it was taken by U.S. naval forces. The city and scenic Monterey Peninsula attract many tourists to the area. Population, 31,954.

Monterey Park (möñ'tə-rā' pārk) A city of southern California, a residential suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 60,738.

Mon·te·rí·a (môn'tə-rē'ə) A city of northwest Colombia south-southwest of Cartagena. It is an inland river port and a trade and manufacturing center. Population, 158,064.

mon·te·ro (mön-târ'ō) n. pl. mon·te·ros. A hunter's cap with side flaps. [Spanish, hunter, from monte, mountain, from Latin mōns, mont-. See MOUNTAIN.]

Mon·ter·rey (mön'tə-rā', môn'tě-) A city of northeast Mexico east of Matamoros. Founded in 1579, the city was captured (September 1846) by Zachary Taylor's forces during the Mexican War. Population, 1,090,099.

mon·tes (mön'tēz) n. Plural of mons.

Mon·tes Cla·ros (môn'tis klä'rōos) A city of east-central Brazil north of Belo Horizonte. It is a trade and shipping center in an agricultural region. Population, 151,713.

Mon·tes·quieu (mön'tə-skyōō', môn-tě-skyœ'), Baron de la Brede et de Montesquieu. Title of Charles de Secondat. 1689-1755. French philosopher and jurist. An outstanding figure of the early French Enlightenment, he wrote the influential Parisian Letters (1721), a veiled attack on the monarchy and the ancien régime, and The Spirit of the Laws (1748), a discourse on government.

Mon·tes·so·ri (mön'ti-sôr'ē, -sôr'ē), Maria. 1870-1952. Italian physician and pioneer educator who proposed a method of teaching young children that stresses the development of initiative and natural abilities.

Mon·tes·so·ri·an (mön'ti-sôr'ē-ən, -sôr'-) adj. Of or relating to the Montessori method.

Montessori method (mön'ti-sôr'ē mēth'əd) n. A method of educating young children that stresses development of a child's own initiative and natural abilities, especially through practical play. [After Maria MONTESSORI.]

Mon·teux (mön-tōō', môn-tœ'), Pierre. 1875-1964. French-born American conductor of many major orchestras. He was noted as an interpreter of 20th-century music.

Mon·te·ver·di (mön'tə-vâr'dē, môn'tě-), Claudio. 1567-1643. Italian composer considered a founder of opera. His works include sacred music, many madrigals, and the opera Orfeo (1607).

Mon·te·vi·de·o (mön'tə-vī-dā'ō, -vīd'ē-ō', môn'tě-vē-thě'ô) The capital and largest city of Uruguay, in the southern part of the country on the Río de la Plata estuary. Founded by the Spanish c. 1726 on the site of a captured Portuguese fort, it became the capital after Uruguay achieved independence in 1828. Population, 1,237,227.

Mon·tez (mön'těz, mön-těz'), Lola. Originally Marie Gilbert. 1818-1861. Irish-born American dancer noted for her beauty and her love affairs with Liszt, Dumas père, and Ludwig I (1786-1868), king of Bavaria.

Mon·te·zu·ma II (mɒn'ti-zō'mə), 1466?-1520. Last Aztec emperor in Mexico (1502-1520). He was overthrown by the Spanish conquistador Hernando Cortés.

Mont·fer·rat (mɒnt-fə-rät') A historical region of northwest Italy south of the Po River. Claimed by a noble family of Mantua and the house of Savoy after 1612, it was finally awarded to Savoy by the Peace of Utrecht (1713).

Mont·fort (mɒnt'fərt, mɒN-fɔr'), Simon de Earl of Leicester. 1208?-1265. French-born English nobleman who led the baronial opposition to Henry III. After his military victory over the king at Lewes in southeast England (1264), Montfort was the effective ruler of England. In 1265 he called a representative legislature regarded as England's first full parliament.

Mont·gol·fier (mɒnt-gɔl'fē-ər, mɒN-gɔl-fyā'), Joseph Michel. 1740-1810. French aeronautic inventor who with his brother Jacques Étienne (1745-1799) built and ascended in the first practical hot-air balloon (1783).

Mont·gom·er·y (mɒnt-gʊm'ə-rē, -gʊm'rē) The capital of Alabama, in the southeast-central part of the state south-southeast of Birmingham. Designated the state capital in 1847, the city boomed as a cotton market and port on the Alabama River. From February to May 1861 it served as the first capital of the Confederate States of America. Population, 187,106.

Mont·gom·er·y (mɒnt-gʊm'ə-rē, -gʊm'rē), Sir Bernard Law First Viscount Montgomery of Alamein. 1887-1976. British army officer who during World War II commanded the British victories over German forces in North Africa (1942) and the Allied advance through Normandy (1944).

Montgomery Village (mɒnt-gʊm'ə-rē vɪl'ij) A community of central Maryland, a suburb of Washington, D.C. Population, 16,600.

month (mʊnth) n. Abbr. m., mo. 1. A unit of time corresponding approximately to one cycle of the moon's phases, or about 30 days or 4 weeks. 2. One of the 12 divisions of a year as determined by a calendar, especially the Gregorian calendar. Also called calendar month 3. A period extending from a date in one calendar month to the corresponding date in the following month. 4. A sidereal month. 5. A lunar month. 6. A solar month. —idiom. month of Sundays. Informal. An indefinitely long period of time: It will take you a month of Sundays to chop all that wood. [Middle English moneth, from Old English mōnath. See mē-² in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: The singular month, preceded by a numeral (or number) and a hyphen, is used as a compound attributive: a three-month vacation. The plural possessive form without a hyphen is also possible: a three months' vacation.

month·ly (mʊnth'lē) adj. 1. Occurring, appearing, or coming due every month: a monthly meeting; monthly rent payments. 2. Continuing or lasting for a month. — adv. Once a month; every month. — n. pl. month-lies. 1. A periodical publication appearing once each month. 2. monthlies. Informal. The menses.

Mon-ti-cel-lo (mŏn'tĭ-chĕl'ō, -sĕl'ō) An estate of central Virginia southeast of Charlottesville. Designed by Thomas Jefferson, it was begun in 1770 and was his home for 56 years. Owned by other families from shortly after Jefferson's death until 1923, it is now a national shrine.

mon-ti-cule (mŏn'tĭ-kyōōl') n. A minor cone of a volcano. [French, from Late Latin monticulus, diminutive of Latin mōns, mont-, mountain. See men-² in Appendix.]

Mont-mar-tre (mŏN-mär'trə) A hill and district of northern Paris, France, on the Right Bank. It is noted for its nightlife and for its associations with artists such as Van Gogh, Toulouse-Lautrec, and Utrillo. The original village of Montmartre was annexed by Paris in 1860.

Mont-mo-ren-cy (mŏnt'mə-rĕn'sĕ, mŏN-mô-rāN-sĕ'), Duc Anne de. 1493-1567. French marshal. A politically powerful nobleman, he fought in numerous battles against Spain, the Huguenots, and Holy Roman Emperor Charles V.

Mont-par-nasse (mŏN-pär-näs') A district of south-central Paris, France, on the Left Bank. Its cafés have long been famous as gathering places for artists, writers, and intellectuals.

Mont-pel-ier (mŏnt-pĕl'yər) The capital of Vermont, in the north-central part of the state. Founded in 1780, it became the state capital in 1805. Population, 8,247.

Mont-pel-lier (mŏN-pĕl-yā') A city of southern France near the Mediterranean Sea west-northwest of Marseilles. Founded in the eighth century, it was purchased by Philip VI of France in 1349. The city was later a Huguenot center and was besieged and captured by Louis XIII in 1622. Population, 197,231.

Mon-tre-al (mŏn'trĕ-ôl') or Mont-ré-al (mŏN'rā-äl') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, on Montreal Island in the St. Lawrence River. Named after Mount Royal, a hill at its center, it was founded by the French as Ville Marie de Montréal in 1642 and grew rapidly as a fur-trading center and starting point for western exploration. The English captured the city in 1760. Today Montreal is Canada's largest city, a major port, and a cultural, commercial, and industrial hub. Population, 980,354.

Montreal North or Mont-ré-al-Nord (mŏN'rā-äl-nôl') A town of southern Quebec, Canada, a suburb of Montreal on Montreal Island. Population, 94,914.

Mon-treuil (mŏN-trœ'yə) A town of north-central France, an industrial suburb of Paris. Population, 93,368.

Mon-trose (mŏn-trōz'), First Marquis of Title of James Graham. 1612-1650. Scottish Covenanter who changed allegiance (1643) and led a force of Highlanders in a series of military victories on behalf of Charles I during the English Civil War.

Mont Roy-al (môn rwä-yäl') or Mount Roy-al (roi'əl) A town of southern Quebec, Canada, a suburb of Montreal on Montreal Island. Population, 19,247.

Mont-Saint-Mi-chel (môn-săn-mē-shěl') A small island off the coast of northwest France in an arm of the English Channel. Crowned by an abbey founded c. 708, it is a major tourist attraction.

Mont-ser-rat (mönt'sə-răt') An island in the Leeward Islands of the British West Indies northwest of Guadeloupe. Discovered and named by Columbus in 1493, it was colonized by the English after 1632 but held by the French at various periods before being awarded to Great Britain in 1783.

Mont-ville (mönt'vil') A town of southeast Connecticut on the Thames River north-northwest of New London. It was settled in 1670. Population, 16,455.

mon·u·ment (mön'yə-mənt) n. 1. A structure, such as a building or sculpture, erected as a memorial. 2. An inscribed marker placed at a grave; a tombstone. 3. Something venerated for its enduring historic significance or association with a notable past person or thing: traditions that are monuments to an earlier era. 4. a. An outstanding, enduring achievement: a translation that is a monument of scholarship. b. An exceptional example: "Thousands of them wrote texts, some of them monuments of dullness" (Robert L. Heilbroner). 5. An object, such as a post or stone, fixed in the ground so as to mark a boundary or position. 6. A written document, especially a legal one. [Middle English, from Latin monumentum, memorial, from monēre, to remind. See men⁻¹ in Appendix.]

mon·u·men·tal (mön'yə-měnt'l) adj. 1. Of, resembling, or serving as a monument. 2. Impressively large, sturdy, and enduring. 3. Of outstanding significance: Einstein's monumental contributions to physics. 4. Astounding: monumental cowardice; monumental talent. —mon'·u·men·tal'·i·ty (-měnt-täl'ī-tē) n. —mon'·u·men·tal·ly adv.

mon·u·men·tal·ize (mön'yə-měnt'l-īz') v. tr. mon·u·men·tal·ized, mon·u·men·tal·iz·ing, mon·u·men·tal·iz·es. To memorialize with a monument.

mon·u·ron (mön'yə-rŏn') n. A crystalline compound, C₉H₁₁ClN₂O, used as a herbicide for grasses and broadleaf weeds. [MON(O)- + UR(EA) + -ON³.]

Mon·za (mŏn'zə, mŏn'tsă) A city of northern Italy north-northeast of Milan. An ancient capital of Lombardy, it is now a major industrial center with diversified manufactures. Population, 122,103.

mon·zo·nite (mŏn-zŏ'nīt', mŏn'zə-nīt') n. An igneous rock composed chiefly of plagioclase and orthoclase, with small amounts of other minerals. [French, after Mount Monzoni in northeast Italy.] —mon'zo·nit'ic (mŏn'zə-nīt'ik) adj.

moo (mōō) v. intr. mooed, moo-ing, moos. To emit the deep, bellowing sound made by a cow; low. — n. pl. moos. The lowing of a cow or a similar sound. [Imitative.]

mooch (mōōch) v. mooched, mooch-ing, mooch-es. Slang. — v. tr. 1. To obtain or try to obtain by begging; cadge. See Synonyms at cadge. 2. To steal; filch. — v. intr. 1. To get or try to get something free of charge; sponge: lived by mooching off friends. 2. To wander about aimlessly. 3. To skulk around; sneak. [Middle English mowchen, probably from Old French muchier, to hide, skulk.] — mooch'er n.

mood¹ (mōōd) n. 1. A state of mind or emotion. 2. A pervading impression of an observer: the somber mood of the painting. 3. An incidence of sulking or angry behavior. 4. Inclination; disposition. [Middle English mod, from Old English mōd, disposition. See mē⁻¹ in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: mood, humor, temper. These nouns refer to a temporary state of mind or feeling. Mood is the most inclusive term: a contentious mood; a cheerful mood. “I was in no mood to laugh and talk with strangers” (Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley). Humor often implies a state of mind resulting from one’s characteristic disposition or temperament; it sometimes suggests fitfulness or variability: The humor of the Cabinet shifted after the scandal was exposed. “All which had been done... was the effect not of humor, but of system” (Edmund Burke). Temper most often refers to a state of mind marked by irritability or intense anger: “The nation was in such a temper that the smallest spark might raise a flame” (Macaulay).

mood² (mōōd) n. 1. Grammar. A set of verb forms or inflections used to indicate the speaker’s attitude toward the factuality or likelihood of the action or condition expressed. In English the indicative mood is used to make factual statements, the subjunctive mood to indicate doubt or unlikelihood, and the imperative mood to express a command. 2. Logic. The arrangement or form of a syllogism. [Alteration of MODE.]

mood-y (mōō'dē) adj. mood-i-er, mood-i-est. 1. Given to frequent changes of mood; temperamental. 2. Subject to periods of depression; sulky. 3. Expressive of a mood, especially a sullen or gloomy mood: a moody silence. — mood'i-ly adv. — mood'i-ness n.

Moo-dy (mōō'dē), Dwight Lyman. 1837-1899. American evangelist who toured major American and British cities and founded several educational institutions.

Moo-dy (mōō'dē), Helen Wills. See Helen Newington Wills.

Moo-dy (mōō'dē), William Henry. 1853-1917. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1906-1910).

Moo-dy (mōō'dē), William Vaughn. 1869-1910. American writer noted for his poetry and dramas, particularly The Great Divide (1906) and The Faith Healer (1909).

moo goo gai pan (mōō' gōō' gī' pǎn') n. A Cantonese dish of chicken, mushrooms, vegetables, and spices sautéed together. [Cantonese, corresponding to Mandarin mú gū jī piān : mú gū, mushroom + jī, chicken + piān, slice.]

moo-la or moo-lah (mōō'lə) n. Slang. Money. [Origin unknown.]

moon (mōōn) n. 1. The natural satellite of Earth, visible by reflection of sunlight and having a slightly elliptical orbit, approximately 356,000 kilometers (221,600 miles) distant at perigee and 406,997 kilometers (252,950 miles) at apogee. Its mean diameter is 3,475 kilometers (2,160 miles), its mass approximately one eightieth that of Earth, and its average period of revolution around Earth 29 days 12 hours 44 minutes calculated with respect to the sun. 2. A natural satellite revolving around a planet. 3. The moon as it appears at a particular time in its cycle of phases: the full moon; a half moon. 4. A month, especially a lunar month. 5. A disk, globe, or crescent resembling the natural satellite of Earth. 6. Moonlight. 7. Slang. The bared buttocks. — v. moon, moon-ing, moons. — v. intr. 1. To wander about or pass time languidly and aimlessly. 2. To yearn or pine as if infatuated. 3. Slang. To expose one's buttocks in public as a prank or disrespectful gesture. — v. tr. Slang. To expose one's buttocks to (others) as a prank or disrespectful gesture: "threatened to moon a passing... camera crew" (Vanity Fair). [Middle English moone, from Old English mōna. See mē² in Appendix.]

moon-beam (mōōn'bēm') n. A ray of moonlight.

moon-blind (mōōn'blīnd') adj. Affected with moon blindness.

moon blindness (mōōn blīnd'nīs) n. Recurrent inflammation of a horse's eyes, often resulting in eventual blindness. Also called mooneye moon-calf (mōōn'kǎf', -kǎf') n. 1. A fool. 2. A freak.

moon-child (mōōn'chīld') n. One who is born under the sign of Cancer. [From the astrological association of Cancer and the moon.]

moon dog (mōōn dōg) n. A paraselene.

moon-eye (mōōn'ī') n. 1. A silvery freshwater fish of the family Hiodontidae, especially Hiodon tergisus of eastern North America. 2. See moon blindness.

moon-eyed (mōō'īd') adj. Moonblind.

moon-faced (mōōn'fāst') adj. Having a round face.

moon-fish (mōōn'fish') n. pl. moonfish or moon-fish-es. 1. Any of several marine fishes of the family Carangidae, found in warm coastal waters of North and South America and having short, compressed bodies and a silver to yellowish color. Also called dollarfish 2. See opah.

moon-flow-er (mōōn'flou'ər) n. Any of several night-blooming vines related to the morning glories.

moon·light (mōon/'lit') n. The light reflected from the surface of the moon.
— v. intr. moon·light·ed, moon·light·ing, moon·lights. Informal. To work at another job, often at night, in addition to one's full-time job. —moon/'light-'er n.

moon·lit (mōon/'lit') adj. Lighted by moonlight.

moon·quake (mōon/'kwāk') n. A quake or series of vibrations on the moon similar to an earthquake but usually of very low magnitude.

moon·rise (mōon/'rīz') n. The event or time of the appearance of the moon above the eastern horizon.

moon·scape (mōon/'skāp') n. 1. A view or picture of the surface of the moon. 2. A desolate landscape.

moon·seed (mōon/'sēd') n. Any of several dioecious vines of the closely related genera Cocculus and Menispermum, having inconspicuous flowers and red or blackish fruit.

moon·set (mōon/'sēt') n. The event or time of the disappearance of the moon below the western horizon.

moon shell (mōon shěll) n. Any of various marine gastropod mollusks of the family Naticidae, having a smooth, rounded shell.

moon·shine (mōon/'shīn') n. 1. Moonlight. 2. Informal. Foolish talk or thought; nonsense. 3. Illegally distilled whiskey. In this sense, also called Regional white lightning — v. intr. moon·shined, moon·shin·ing, moon·shines. To distill and sell liquor illegally. —moon/'shin'er n.

moon·stone (mōon/'stōn') n. A variety of feldspar valued as a gem for its pearly translucence.

moon·struck (mōon/'strūk') also moon·strick·en (-strīk'ən) adj. 1. Dazed or distracted with romantic sentiment. 2. Affected by insanity; crazed. [From the belief that the moon caused insanity.]

moon·walk (mōon/'wōk') n. A walk on the surface of the moon by an astronaut. — v. intr. moon·walked, moon·walk·ing, moon·walks. To walk on the surface of the moon. —moon/'walk'er n.

moon·ward (mōon/'wərd) adv. & adj. Toward the moon.

moon·wort (mōon/'wûrt', -wōrt') n. See grape fern.

moon·y (mōo/'nē) adj. moon·i·er, moon·i·est. 1. Of or suggestive of the moon or moonlight. 2. Moonlit. 3. Dreamy in mood or nature; absent-minded.

moor¹ (mōor) v. moored, moor·ing, moors. — v. tr. 1. To make fast (a vessel, for example) by means of cables, anchors, or lines: moor a ship to a dock; a dirigible moored to a tower. 2. To fix in place; secure. See Synonyms at fasten. — v. intr. 1. To secure a vessel or an aircraft with lines or anchors. 2. To be secured with lines or anchors: The freighter moored alongside the wharf. [Middle English moren.] moor² (mōor) n. A broad area of open land, often high but poorly drained, with patches of heath and peat bogs. [Middle English mor, from Old English mōr.]

Moor (mōor) n. 1. A member of a Muslim people of mixed Berber and Arab descent, now living chiefly in northwest Africa. 2. One of the Muslims who invaded Spain in the 8th century and established a civilization in Andalusia that lasted until the late 15th century. [Middle English More, from Old French, from Medieval Latin Mōrus, from Latin Maurus, Mauritanian, from Greek Mauros.]

moor-age (mōor'ij) n. 1. The act or an instance of mooring. 2. A place where a ship or an aircraft may be moored. 3. A charge for mooring.

moor cock (mōor kōk) n. The male red grouse.

Moore (mōor, mōr) A city of central Oklahoma, an industrial suburb of Oklahoma City. Population, 40,318.

Moore (mōor, mōr), Alfred. 1755-1810. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1799-1804).

Moore (mōor, mōr), Clement Clarke. 1779-1863. American scholar and poet who wrote the Christmas poem "A Visit from St. Nicholas" (1823).

Moore (mōor, mōr), George. 1852-1933. Irish writer whose works include poetry, drama, criticism, and novels, such as Esther Waters (1894).

Moore (mōor, mōr), George Edward. 1873-1958. British philosopher whose theories, presented in Principia Ethica (1903) and other works, influenced 20th-century epistemology and linguistic analysis.

Moore (mōor, mōr), Henry. 1898-1986. British sculptor whose works, mostly semiabstract human figures, are characterized by smooth, organic forms.

Moore (mōor, mōr), John Bassett. 1860-1947. American jurist noted for his codification of international law.

Moore (mōor, mōr), Marianne Craig. 1887-1972. American poet whose descriptive works, published in Poems (1921), Complete Poems (1967), and other collections, are characterized by wit, irony, and unconventional meter.

Moore (mōor, mōr), Stanford. 1913-1982. American biochemist. He shared a 1972 Nobel Prize for pioneering studies of enzymes.

Moore (mōor, mōr), Thomas. 1779-1852. Irish romantic poet. Many of his nostalgic and patriotic lyrics, such as "The Minstrel Boy," were set to traditional Irish tunes.

Moorestown (mōorz'toun', mōorz'-, mōrz'-) A community of southwest-central New Jersey east of Camden. It was a headquarters for Hessian troops in 1776. Population, 15,596.

moor-fowl (mōor'foul') n. See red grouse.

Moorhead (mōor'hēd', mōr'-) A city of western Minnesota on the Red River opposite Fargo, North Dakota. Founded in 1871, it is a trade center in an agricultural region. Population, 32,295.

moor·hen (mōōr'hĕn') n. Chiefly British. 1. A common, widely distributed species of gallinule, Gallinula chloropus. 2. The female red grouse.

moor·ing (mōōr'ing) n. 1. A place or structure to which a vessel or aircraft can be moored. 2. Equipment, such as anchors or chains, for holding fast a vessel or an aircraft. 3. Often moorings. Elements providing stability or security: lost their emotional moorings during the war.

Moor·ish (mōōr'ish) adj. 1. Of or relating to the Moors or their culture. 2. Of, relating to, or being a style of Spanish architecture of the 8th to the 16th century, characterized by the horseshoe arch and ornate decoration.

moor·land (mōōr'lānd') n. Land consisting of moors.

moose (mōōs) n. pl. moose. A hoofed mammal (Alces alces) found in forests of northern North America and in Eurasia and having a broad, pendulous muzzle and large, palmate antlers in the male. [Eastern Abenaki mos.]

moose·bird (mōōs'bûrd') n. See gray jay.

Moose·head Lake (mōōs'hĕd' lāk) A lake of west-central Maine north of Augusta. It is the center of a popular resort area.

Moose Jaw (mōōs jô) A city of south-central Saskatchewan, Canada, west of Regina. Founded in 1882, it is a processing center for an agricultural and oil-producing area. Population, 33,941.

Moose River (mōōs rĭv'ər) A river, about 547 km (340 mi) long, of northeast Ontario, Canada, flowing northeast to James Bay as the estuary of the Abitibi, Mattagami, and other rivers.

moose·wood (mōōs'wōōd') n. 1. See striped maple. 2. See leatherwood (n., sense 1).

moot (mōōt) n. 1. Law. A hypothetical case argued by law students as an exercise. 2. An ancient English meeting, especially a representative meeting of the freemen of a shire. — v. tr. moot·ed, moot·ing, moots. 1. a. To bring up as a subject for discussion or debate. b. To discuss or debate. See Synonyms at broach¹. 2. Law. To plead or argue (a case) in a moot court. — adj.

1. Subject to debate; arguable: a moot question. 2. a. Law. Without legal significance, through having been previously decided or settled. b. Of no practical importance; irrelevant. [Middle English, meeting, from Old English mōt, gemōt.] —moot'ness n.

USAGE NOTE: As an adjective moot has come to be widely used to mean “no longer important, irrelevant,” as in It's a purely moot question which corporation you make your rent check out to; Brown will get the money in either case. This usage may be originally the result of a misinterpretation of its legal sense in phrases such as a moot question. A number of critics have objected to this use, but it was accepted by 59 percent of the Usage Panel in the sentence The nominee himself chastised the White House for failing to do more to support him, but his concerns became moot when a number of Republicans announced that they, too, would oppose the nomination.

moot court (mōōt kōrt) n. Law. A mock court where hypothetical cases are tried for the training of law students.

mop (mōp) n. 1. A household implement made of absorbent material attached to a typically long handle and used for washing, dusting, or drying floors. 2. A loosely tangled bunch or mass: a mop of unruly hair. — v. mopped, mop-ping, mops. — v. tr. To wash or wipe with or as if with a mop: mopped the hallway; mopping the spilled water; mopped her forehead with a towel. — v. intr. To use a mop to wash or dry surfaces: mopped along the baseboards.

—phrasal verb. mop up. 1. To clear (an area) of remaining enemy troops after a victory. 2. Informal. To perform the minor tasks that conclude a project or an activity. [Middle English mappe, perhaps from Old French dialectal, napkin, from Latin mappa, towel, cloth. See MAP.] —mop'per n.

mop-board (mōp'bōrd', -bōrd') n. See baseboard.

mope (mōp) v. intr. moped, mop-ing, mopes. 1. a. To be gloomy or dejected. b. To brood or sulk. See Synonyms at brood. 2. To move in a leisurely or aimless manner; dawdle. — n. 1. A person given to gloomy or dejected moods. 2. mopes. Low spirits; the blues. Often used with the. [Origin unknown.] —mop'er n. —mop'ish, mop'ey adj. —mop'ish-ly adv.

mo-ped (mō'pēd') n. A lightweight motorized bicycle that can be pedaled as well as driven by a low-powered gasoline engine. [From MO(TOR) + PED(AL).]

mop-pet (mōp'īt) n. A young child. [From obsolete mop, fool, child, from Middle English moppe.]

mop-up (mōp'ŭp') n. The act or an instance of mopping up; a concluding operation.

mo-quette (mō-kēt') n. 1. A heavy fabric with a thick nap, used for upholstery. 2. A carpet with a deep, tufted pile. [French, alteration of obsolete moucade.]

MOR abbr. Middle-of-the-road.

mor. abbr. Morocco (leather).

Mor. abbr. 1. Morocco. 2. Moroccan.

mo-ra (mōr'ə, mōr'ə) n. pl. mo-rae (mōr'ē, mōr'ē) or mo-ras. The minimal unit of metrical time in quantitative verse, equal to the short syllable. [Latin, pause.]

Mo-rad-a-bad (mā-rā'də-bād', mōr'ə-də-bād') A city of north-central India east-northeast of Delhi. Founded in 1625, it is an important agricultural market and manufacturing center. Population, 330,051.

Mor-a-ga (mā-rā'gə) A city of western California east of Oakland. It is mainly residential. Population, 15,852.

mo-raine (mə-rān') n. An accumulation of boulders, stones, or other debris carried and deposited by a glacier. [French, from French dialectal morena, mound of earth, from Provençal morre, muzzle, from Vulgar Latin murrum*.] —mo-rain'al, mo-rain'ic adj.

mor-al (môr'əl, mōr'-) adj. 1. Of or concerned with the judgment of the goodness or badness of human action and character: moral scrutiny; a moral quandary. 2. Teaching or exhibiting goodness or correctness of character and behavior: a moral lesson. 3. Conforming to standards of what is right or just in behavior; virtuous: a moral life. 4. Arising from conscience or the sense of right and wrong: a moral obligation. 5. Having psychological rather than physical or tangible effects: a moral victory; moral support. 6. Based on strong likelihood or firm conviction, rather than on the actual evidence: a moral certainty. — n. 1. The lesson or principle contained in or taught by a fable, a story, or an event. 2. A concisely expressed precept or general truth; a maxim. 3. morals. Rules or habits of conduct, especially of sexual conduct, with reference to standards of right and wrong: a person of loose morals; a decline in the public morals. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin mōrālis, from mōs, mōr-, custom. See mē¹ in Appendix.] —mor'al-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: moral, ethical, virtuous, righteous. These adjectives mean in accord with principles or rules of right or good conduct. Moral applies to personal character and behavior, especially sexual conduct, measured against prevailing standards of rectitude: “The fact that man knows right from wrong proves his intellectual superiority to the other creatures; but the fact that he can do wrong proves his moral inferiority to any creature that cannot” (Mark Twain). Ethical stresses conformity with idealistic standards of right and wrong, as those applicable to the practices of lawyers and doctors: “The world has achieved brilliance without conscience. Ours is a world of nuclear giants and ethical infants” (Omar N. Bradley). Virtuous implies moral excellence and loftiness of character; in a narrower sense it refers to sexual chastity: “The life of the nation is secure only while the nation is honest, truthful, and virtuous” (Frederick Douglass). Righteous emphasizes moral uprightness and especially the absence of guilt or sin; when it is applied to actions, reactions, or impulses, it often implies justifiable outrage: “The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much” (James 5:16). “He was... stirred by righteous wrath” (John Galsworthy).

mo-rale (mə-rāl') n. The state of the spirits of a person or group as exhibited by confidence, cheerfulness, discipline, and willingness to perform assigned tasks. [French, morality, good conduct, from feminine of moral, moral, from Old French. See MORAL.]

SYNONYMS: morale, esprit, esprit de corps. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a spirit, as of dedication to a common goal, that unites a group”: the high morale of the troops; the esprit of an orchestra; the esprit de corps of a football team.

moral hazard (môr'əl hăz'ərd) n. A risk to an insurance company resulting from uncertainty about the honesty of the insured.

mor·al·ism (môr'ə-liz'əm, mör'-) n. 1. A conventional moral maxim or attitude. 2. The act or practice of moralizing. 3. Often undue concern for morality.

mor·al·ist (môr'ə-list, mör'-) n. 1. A teacher or student of morals and moral problems. 2. One who follows a system of moral principles. 3. One who is unduly concerned with the morals of others.

mor·al·is·tic (môr'ə-lis'tik, mör'-) adj. 1. Characterized by or displaying a concern with morality. 2. Marked by a narrow-minded morality.

—mor'al-is'ti-cal-ly adv.

mo·ral·i·ty (mə-räl'i-tē, mô-) n. pl. mo·ral·i·ties. 1. The quality of being in accord with standards of right or good conduct. 2. A system of ideas of right and wrong conduct: religious morality; Christian morality. 3. Virtuous conduct. 4. A rule or lesson in moral conduct.

morality play (mə-räl'i-tē plā) n. A drama in the 15th and 16th centuries using allegorical characters to portray the soul's struggle to achieve salvation.

mor·al·ize (môr'ə-liz', mör'-) v. mor·al·ized, mor·al·iz·ing, mor·al·iz·es.

— v. intr. To think about or express moral judgments or reflections. — v. tr.

1. To interpret or explain the moral meaning of. 2. To improve the morals of; reform. —mor'al-i-za'tion (-ə-lī-zā'shən) n. —mor'al-iz'er n.

moral philosophy (môr'əl fī-lōs'ə-fē) n. Ethics.

mo·rass (mə-răs', mô-) n. 1. An area of low-lying, soggy ground.

2. Something that hinders, engulfs, or overwhelms: a morass of detail. [Dutch moeras, from Middle Dutch maras, from Old French mareis, probably of Germanic origin. See mori- in Appendix.]

mor·a·to·ri·um (môr'ə-tôr'ē-əm, -tôr'-, mör'-) n. pl. mor·a·to·ri·ums or mor·a·to·ri·a (-tôr'ē-ə, -tôr'-). 1. Law. a. An authorization to a debtor, such as a bank or nation, permitting temporary suspension of payments. b. An authorized period of delay in the performance of an obligation. 2. A suspension of an ongoing or planned activity: a moratorium on the deployment of a new weapon.

[From Late Latin, neuter of morātōrius, delaying. See MORATORY.] mor·a·to·ry (môr'ə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē, mör'-) adj. Authorizing delay in payment.

[French moratoire, from Late Latin morātōrius, delaying, from Latin morātus, past participle of morārī, to delay, from mora, delay.]

Mo-ra-va (môr'ə-və, mô'rä-vä) 1. A river of rising in eastern Czech Republic and flowing about 386 km (240 mi) generally southward to the Danube River near Bratislava, Slovakia. 2. A river of east-central Serbia flowing about 209 km (130 mi) north-northwest to the Danube River east of Belgrade.

Mo-ra-vi-a (mə-rä'vĕ-ə, mô-) A region of central Czechoslovakia. Settled by a Slavic people at the end of the sixth century A.D., it became an independent kingdom in 870 but fell to the Magyars in 906 and later to the Bohemians. In 1526 Moravia came under the rule of the Austrian Hapsburgs. It was incorporated into Czechoslovakia in 1918.

Mo-ra-vi-a (mō-rä'vĕ-ə, mô-rä'vyä), Alberto. Pen name of Alberto Pincherle. 1907-1990. Italian writer best known for his novels, such as Time of Desecration (1978), which explore the alienation and ennui of the middle class.

Mo-ra-vi-an (mə-rä'vĕ-ən) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Moravia. 2. A group of Czech dialects spoken in Moravia. 3. A member of a Protestant denomination founded in Saxony in 1722 by Hussite emigrants from Moravia. — adj. 1. Of or relating to Moravia or its people, dialects, or culture. 2. Of or relating to the Moravian denomination.

Moravian Gate or Moravian Gap (mə-rä'vĕ-ən gāt) A mountain pass of central Europe between the Sudetes and the western Carpathian Mountains. It was long a strategic trade and communications route.

mo-ray (môr'ā, mə-rā') n. Any of numerous chiefly tropical, brightly colored marine eels of the family Muraenidae that are ferocious fighters and commonly inhabit coral reefs. [Portuguese moréia, from Latin mūrēna, from Greek muraina.]

Mor-ay Firth (mûr'ē fûrth) An inlet of the North Sea on the northeast coast of Scotland. It is the northern outlet of the Caledonian Canal system.

mor-bid (môr'bĭd) adj. 1. a. Of, relating to, or caused by disease; pathological or diseased. b. Psychologically unhealthy or unwholesome: "He suffered much from a morbid acuteness of the senses" (Edgar Allan Poe). 2. Characterized by preoccupation with unwholesome thoughts or feelings: read the account of the murder with a morbid interest. 3. Gruesome; grisly. [Latin morbidus, diseased, from morbus, disease. See mer- in Appendix.] —mor'bid-ly adv. —mor'-bid-ness n.

mor-bid-i-ty (mōr-bĭd'ĭ-tē) n. pl. mor-bid-i-ties. 1. The quality of being morbid; morbidity. 2. The rate of incidence of a disease.

mor-da-cious (môr-dā'shəs) adj. 1. Given to biting; biting. 2. Caustic; sarcastic. [Latin mordāx, mordāc- (from mordēre, to bite); see mer- in Appendix + -IOUS.] —mor-da'cious-ly adv. —mor-dac'i-ty (-dās'ĭ-tē) n.

mor-dant (môr'dnt) adj. 1. a. Bitingly sarcastic: mordant satire. b. Incisive and trenchant: an inquisitor's mordant questioning. 2. Bitingly painful.

3. Serving to fix colors in dyeing. — n. 1. A reagent, such as tannic acid, that fixes dyes to cells, tissues, or textiles or other materials. 2. A corrosive substance, such as an acid, used in etching. — v. tr. mor·dant·ed, mor·dant·ing, mor·dants. To treat with a mordant. [French, from Old French, present participle of mordre, to bite, from Vulgar Latin mordere*, from Latin mordēre, to bite. See mer- in Appendix.] —mor'dan·cy n. —mor'dant·ly adv.

mor·dent (môr'dnt, môr-děnt') n. Music. A melodic ornament in which a principal tone is rapidly alternated with the tone a half or full step below. [German, from Italian mordente, from mordere, to bite, from Vulgar Latin mordere*, from Latin mordēre. See mer- in Appendix.]

Mord·vin·i·a (môrd-vĭn'ē-ə) also Mor·do·vi·a (môr-dō'vĕ-ə) A region of southwest Russia. Settled by a Finno-Ugric people first mentioned in the sixth century A.D., it was annexed by Russia in 1552.

more (môr, mōr) adj. Comparative of many, much. 1. a. Greater in number: a hall with more seats. b. Greater in size, amount, extent, or degree: more land; more support. 2. Additional; extra: She needs some more time. — n. A greater or additional quantity, number, degree, or amount: The more I see of you the more I like you. — pron. (used with a pl. verb). A greater or additional number of persons or things: I opened only two bottles but more were in the refrigerator. — adv. Comparative of much. 1. a. To or in a greater extent or degree: loved him even more. b. Used to form the comparative of many adjectives and adverbs: more difficult; more softly. See Usage Note at perfect. 2. In addition: phoned twice more. 3. Moreover; furthermore. —idioms. more and more. To a steadily increasing extent or degree: getting more and more worried. more or less. 2. About; approximately: holds two tons, more or less. 3. To an undetermined degree: were more or less in agreement. [Middle English, from Old English māra, and māre; see mē⁻³ in Appendix.]

More (môr, mōr), Hannah. 1745-1833. British writer whose works include tragedies, such as Percy (1777), the novel Coelebs in Search of a Wife (1809), and religious tracts advocating reforms for the poor.

More (môr, mōr), Sir Thomas. 1478-1535. English politician, humanist scholar, and writer who refused to comply with the Act of Supremacy, by which English subjects were enjoined to recognize Henry VIII's authority over the pope, and was imprisoned in the Tower of London and beheaded for treason. His political essay Utopia (1516), speculates about life under an ideal government. More was canonized in 1935.

Mo·reau River (môr'ō rĭv'ər, mōr'ō) A river of northwest South Dakota flowing about 402 km (250 mi) eastward to the Missouri River.

mo·reen (mə-rĕn', mô-) n. A sturdy ribbed fabric of wool, cotton, or wool and cotton, often with an embossed finish, used for clothing and upholstery. [Possibly from MOIRÉ.]

mo-rel (mə-rĕl', mō-) n. Any of various edible mushrooms of the genus Morchella and related genera, characterized by a brownish spongelike cap. [French morille, from Old French, perhaps from Vulgar Latin maurīcula*, feminine diminutive of Latin Maurus, Mauritanian, Moor. See MOOR.]

Mo-re-lia (mə-rāl'yə, mō-rĕ'lyä) A city of southwest Mexico west-northwest of Mexico City. Founded in 1541 as Valladolid, it was renamed in 1828 after the revolutionary hero José María Morelos y Pavón (1765-1815). Population, 297,544.

mo-rel-lo (mə-rĕl'ō) n. pl. mo-rel-los. A variety of the sour cherry (Prunus cerasus var. austera) having double flowers and fruit with dark red skin. [Perhaps from Italian amarello, from Medieval Latin amārellum, diminutive of Latin amārus, bitter.]

Mo-re-no (mō-rĕ'nō) A city of eastern Argentina, a suburb of Buenos Aires. Population, 188,524.

more-o-ver (môr-ō'vər, mōr-, môr'ō'vər, mōr'-) adv. Beyond what has been stated; besides. See Synonyms at also.

mo-res (môr'āz', -ēz, mōr'-) pl.n. 1. The accepted traditional customs and usages of a particular social group. 2. Moral attitudes. 3. Manners; ways. [Latin mōrēs, pl. of mōs, custom. See mē¹ in Appendix.]

Mo-resque (mō-rĕsk', mə-) adj. Characteristic of Moorish art or architecture. — n. An ornament or a decoration in Moorish style. [French, from Old French, from Spanish Morisco, Morisco. See MORISCO.]

Mor-gan (môr'gən) n. Any of a breed of American saddle and trotting horses noted for strength, speed, and endurance. [After Justin Morgan (1747-1798), American schoolteacher.]

Mor-gan (môr'gən), Daniel. 1736-1802. American Revolutionary soldier who commanded the defeat of the British at the Battle of Cowpens, South Carolina (1781).

Mor-gan (môr'gən), Sir Henry. 1635?-1688. Welsh buccaneer who raided Spanish ships and settlements in the Caribbean and was acting governor of Jamaica (1680-1682).

Mor-gan (môr'gən), John Hunt. 1825-1864. American Confederate soldier who led cavalry raids behind Union lines in Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana, and Ohio.

Mor-gan (môr'gən), John Pierpont. 1837-1913. American financier and philanthropist noted for his reorganization and control of major railroads, his consolidation of the U.S. Steel Corporation (1901), and his collection of art and the establishment of the Morgan Library in New York City, which was donated to the public (1924) by his son John Pierpont, Jr. (1867-1943).

Mor-gan (môr'gən), Lewis Henry. 1818-1881. American anthropologist who studied Native Americans, particularly the Seneca. His written works include Ancient Society (1877).

Mor-gan (môr'gən), Thomas Hunt. 1866-1945. American biologist. He won a 1933 Nobel Prize for discoveries concerning the hereditary function of chromosomes.

mor-ga-nat-ic (môr'gə-năt'ik) adj. Of or being a legal marriage between a person of royal or noble birth and a partner of lower rank, in which it is agreed that no titles or estates of the royal or noble partner are to be shared by the partner of inferior rank nor by any of the offspring of the marriage. [New Latin morganāticus, from Medieval Latin (mātrimōnium ad) morganāticam, (marriage for the) morning-gift, of Germanic origin.] —mor'ga-nat'i-cal-ly adv.

Mor-gan City (môr'gən sīt'ē) A city of southern Louisiana south of Baton Rouge. Settled in 1850, it is a trade center in a bayou area with shrimp and oyster industries. Population, 16,114.

Mor-gan Hill (môr'gən hīl) A city of western California southeast of San Jose. It is a processing center. Population, 23,928.

mor-gan-ite (môr'gə-nīt') n. A rosy-pink variety of beryl, valued as a semiprecious gem. [After John Pierpont MORGAN.]

Mor-gan le Fay (môr'gən lə fā') n. In Arthurian legend, the sorceress sister and enemy of King Arthur.

Mor-gan-town (môr'gən-toun') A city of northern West Virginia on the Monongahela River near the Pennsylvania border. It is a shipping and industrial center. Population, 25,879.

mor-gen (môr'gən) n. pl. morgen or mor-gens. A Dutch and South African unit of land area equal to 2.1 acres. [Dutch, morning (referring to the amount of land that can be plowed in a morning), from Middle Dutch morghen.]

Mor-gen-thau (môr'gən-thô', -tou'), Henry, Jr. 1891-1967. American public official who as U.S. secretary of the treasury (1934-1945) was able to stabilize and strengthen the dollar during the Depression and World War II.

morgue (môrg) n. 1. A place in which the bodies of persons found dead are kept until identified and claimed or until arrangements for burial have been made. 2. A reference file in a newspaper or magazine office. [French, from la Morgue, building in Paris used as a morgue, probably from morgue, haughty manner, from Old French morguer, to look at solemnly, from Vulgar Latin murricāre*, to make a face, from murrum*, muzzle.]

mor-i-bund (môr'ə-bünd', mōr'-) adj. 1. Approaching death; about to die. 2. On the verge of becoming obsolete: moribund customs; a moribund way of life. [Latin moribundus, from morī, to die. See mer- in Appendix.]

—mor'i-bun'di-ty (-bün'dī-tē) n. —mor'i-bund'ly adv.

Mo-ri-o-ka (môr'ē-ō'kə) A city of northern Honshu, Japan, south-southeast of Aomori. It is a commercial and cultural center. Population, 235,469.

mo-ri-on (môr'ē-ōn', mōr'-) n. A crested metal helmet with a curved peak in front and back, worn by soldiers in the 16th and 17th centuries. [French, from Spanish morrión, from morro, round object, probably from Vulgar Latin murrum*, muzzle.]

Mo-ris-co (mə-rīs'kō) n. pl. Mo-ris-cos or Mo-ris-coes. A Moor, especially a Spanish Moor. [Spanish, from Moro, Moor, from Latin Maurus. See MOOR.]
—Mo-ris'co adj.

Mor-i-son (môr'ī-sən, mör'-), Samuel Eliot. 1887-1976. American historian noted for his works on American and maritime history.

Mo-ri-sot (mô-rē-zō'), Berthe. 1841-1895. French impressionist painter most admired for her graceful canvases featuring women and children.

Mor-ley (môr'lē), Christopher Darlington. 1890-1957. American writer who was a founder and editor (1924-1941) of Saturday Review and wrote prolifically, most notably popular novels, including Parnassus on Wheels (1917).

Mor-ley (môr'lē), Edward Williams. 1838-1923. American chemist and physicist who with Albert Michelson disproved the existence of ether, the hypothetical medium of electromagnetic waves.

Mor-ley (môr'lē), John Viscount Morley of Blackburn. 1838-1923. British politician and biographer who served as secretary for Ireland (1886 and 1892-1895) and India (1905-1910). His biographical works include Voltaire (1872) and Oliver Cromwell (1900).

Mor-mon (môr'mən) Mormon Church. n. 1. An ancient prophet who compiled a sacred history of the Americas, which Joseph Smith translated and published as the Book of Mormon in 1830. 2. A member of the Mormon Church. In this sense, also called Latter-day Saint — adj. Of or relating to the Mormons, their religion, or the Mormon Church. —Mor'mon-ism n.

Mormon Church (môr'mən chûrch) n. A church founded by Joseph Smith at Palmyra in western New York in 1830 and having its headquarters since 1847 in Salt Lake City, Utah. Its doctrines are based chiefly on the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and other revelations made to church leaders. Also called Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Mormon cricket (môr'mən krīk'īt) n. A large, wingless, long-horned grasshopper (Anabrus simplex) of the western United States that is often destructive to crops.

morn (môrn) n. 1. The morning. 2. The dawn. [Middle English, from Old English morgen.]

Mor-nay (môr-nā') adj. Being or served with a white sauce flavored with grated cheese and seasonings: eggs Mornay. [Perhaps after Philippe de MORNAY.]

Mornay, Philippe de. Known as Duplessis-Mornay. Called "Pope of the Huguenots." 1549-1623. French Huguenot leader during the reigns of Henry III and Henry IV.

morn-ing (môr'nĭng) n. Abbr. m. 1. The first or early part of the day, lasting from midnight to noon or from sunrise to noon. 2. The dawn. 3. The first or early part; the beginning: the morning of a new nation. [Middle English, from morn, morn. See MORN.]

morn·ing·af·ter pill (môr'ning-ăf'tər pīl) n. A pill containing a drug, especially an estrogen or estrogen substitute such as diethylstilbestrol, that prevents implantation of a fertilized ovum and is therefore effective as a contraceptive after sexual intercourse.

morning glory (môr'ning glôr'ē) n. Any of numerous, usually twining vines of the related genera Argyreia, Calystegia, Convolvulus, Merremia, and Ipomoea, having funnel-shaped, variously colored flowers that close late in the day.

Morn·ing Prayer (môr'ning prâr) n. The liturgical service used for morning worship in the Anglican Church. Also called matins morning sickness (môr'ning sĭk'nĭs) n. Nausea and vomiting upon rising in the morning, especially during early pregnancy.

morning star (môr'ning stâr) n. A planet, especially Venus, visible in the east just before or at sunrise.

Mo-ro (môr'ō, mōr'ō) n. pl. Moro or Mo-ros. 1. A member of any of the predominantly Muslim Malay tribes of the southern Philippines. 2. Any of the Austronesian languages of the Moro. [Spanish, Moor, Moro, from Latin Maurus, Moor. See MOOR.]

mo·roc·co (mə-rōk'ō) n. pl. mo-roc-cos. Abbr. mor. A soft, fine leather of goatskin tanned with sumac, used for book bindings and shoes. [After Morocco.]

Mo-roc-co (mə-rōk'ō) Abbr. Mor. A country of northwest Africa on the Mediterranean Sea and the Atlantic Ocean. Inhabited from ancient times by Berbers, the region became a Roman province in the 1st century B.C. and was overrun by Arabs in the 7th century A.D. European powers first penetrated the area in the 15th century and increasingly disputed control of Morocco until 1912, when the French gained a protectorate over most of the territory. Morocco achieved independence in 1956. Rabat is the capital and Casablanca the largest city. Population, 20,419,555. —Mo-roc'can adj. & n.

Moro Gulf (môr'ō gŭlf) An inlet of the Celebes Sea southwest of Mindanao, Philippines.

mo·ron (môr'ōn', mōr'-) n. 1. A person regarded as very stupid. 2. Psychology. A person of mild mental retardation having a mental age of from 7 to 12 years and generally having communication and social skills enabling some degree of academic or vocational education. The term belongs to a classification system no longer in use and is now considered offensive. [From Greek mōron, neuter of mōros, stupid, foolish.] —mo·ron'ic (mə-rōn'ĭk, mō-) adj. —mo·ron'i·cal·ly adv. —mo'ron'ism, mo·ron'i·ty (mə-rōn'ĭ-tē, mō-) n.

Mo·rón (mô-rôn') A city of eastern Argentina, an industrial suburb of Buenos Aires. Population, 596,769.

Mo-ro-ni (mə-rō'nē, mō-) The capital of the Comoros, on Great Comoro Island at the northern end of the Mozambique Channel. Population, 20,112.

mo-rose (mə-rōs', mō-) adj. Sullenly melancholy; gloomy. See Synonyms at glum. [Latin mōrōsus, peevish, from mōs, mōr-, self-will, caprice, manner. See mē¹ in Appendix.] —mo-rose/ly adv. —mo-rose/ness n.

morph (mōrf) n. 1. Linguistics. a. An allomorph. b. A phoneme or sequence of phonemes that is assumed to be an allomorph though its assignment to a particular morpheme has not been established. 2. Biology. One of various distinct forms of an organism or a species.

morph. abbr. 1. Morphological. 2. Morphology.

morph- pref. Variant of morpho-.

-morph suff. 1. Form; shape; structure: endomorph. 2. Morpheme: allomorph. [Greek -morphos, from morphē, shape.]

mor-phal-lax-is (mōr'fə-lăk'sīs) n. pl. mor-phal-lax-es (-lăk'sēz). The regeneration of a body part by means of structural or cellular reorganization with only limited production of new cells, observed primarily in invertebrate organisms, such as certain lobsters. [New Latin : MORPH(O)- + Greek allaxis, exchange (from allassein, to exchange, from allos, other); see al¹ in Appendix.]

mor-phem (mōr'fēm') n. Linguistics. A meaningful linguistic unit consisting of a word, such as man, or a word element, such as -ed in walked, that cannot be divided into smaller meaningful parts. [French morphème, blend of Greek morphē, form, and French phonème, phoneme; see PHONEME.] —mor-phem/ic adj. —mor-phem/i-cal-ly adv.

mor-phem-ics (mōr-fē'mīks) n. (used with a sing. verb). Linguistics. 1. The study, description, and classification of morphemes. 2. The morphemic structure of a language.

Mor-phe-us (mōr'fē-əs, -fyōōs') n. The god of dreams in Ovid's Metamorphoses. —Mor'phe-an (-fē-ən) adj.

mor-phi-a (mōr'fē-ə) n. See morphine. [New Latin, from Latin Morpheus, Morpheus.]

-morphic suff. Having a specified shape or form: geomorphic.

mor-phine (mōr'fēn') n. A bitter, crystalline alkaloid, C₁₇H₁₉NO₃·H₂O, extracted from opium, the soluble salts of which are used in medicine as an analgesic, a light anesthetic, or a sedative. Also called morphia [French, from Morphée, Morpheus, from Latin Morpheus.]

mor-phin-ism (mōr'fē-nīz'əm, mōr'fə-) n. 1. Addiction to morphine. 2. A diseased condition caused by habitual or addictive use of morphine.

—mor'phin-ist n.

-morphism suff. The condition or quality of having a specified form: homomorphism.

mor-pho (môr'fō) n. pl. mor-phos. Any of various large, brightly colored butterflies of the genus Morpho, found in tropical parts of Central and South America and including especially M. menelaus and M. rhetenor. These butterflies are noted for the brilliant iridescent blue color of their wings. [New Latin Morphō, genus name, from Greek, epithet of Aphrodite, perhaps from morphē, shape, form.]

morpho- or morph- pref. 1. Form; shape; structure: morphogenesis.

2. Morpheme: morphophonemics. [From Greek morphē, shape.]

mor-pho-gen-e-sis (môr'fō-jěn'ī-sīs) n. Formation of the structure of an organism or part; differentiation and growth of tissues and organs during development. —mor'pho-ge-net'ic (-jə-nět'ik), mor'pho-gen'ic adj. —mor'-pho-ge-net'i-cal-ly adv.

mor-phol-o-gy (môr-fōl'ə-jē) n. pl. mor-phol-o-gies. Abbr. morph., morphol. 1. a. The branch of biology that deals with the form and structure of organisms without consideration of function. b. The form and structure of an organism or one of its parts: the morphology of a cell; the morphology of vertebrates. 2. Linguistics. The study of the structure and form of words in language or a language, including inflection, derivation, and the formation of compounds. —mor'pho-log'i-cal (-fə-lōj'ī-kəl), mor'pho-log'ic adj. —mor'-pho-log'i-cal-ly adv. —mor-phol'o-gist n.

mor-pho-pho-ne-mics (môr'fō-fə-nē'mīks) n. Linguistics. 1. (used with a pl. verb). The changes in pronunciation undergone by allomorphs of morphemes as they are modified by neighboring sounds, as the plural allomorphs in cat-s, dog-s, box-es, or as they are modified for grammatical reasons in the course of inflection or derivation, as house versus to house and housing. 2. (used with a sing. verb). The study of the morphophonemics of a language. —mor'-pho-pho-ne'mic adj.

mor-pho-sis (môr-fō'sīs) n. pl. mor-pho-ses (-sēz). The manner in which an organism or any of its parts changes form or undergoes development. [Greek morphōsis, process of forming, from morphoun, to form, from morphē, form.]

-morphous suff. Having a specified shape or form: polymorphous. [Greek -morphos, from morphē, shape.]

mor-ris (môr'ris, mör'-) n. An English folk dance in which a story is enacted by costumed dancers. [Middle English moreys (daunce), morris (dance), from moreys, Moorish, from Old French morois, from More, Moor. See MOOR.] —mor'ris adj.

Mor-ris (môr'ris, mör'-), Esther Hobart McQuigg Slack. 1814-1902. American suffragist who was instrumental in the passage of women's suffrage in Wyoming Territory (1869) and was the first woman justice of the peace in the United States (1870).

Mor-ris (môr'is, mör'-), Gouverneur. 1752-1816. American political leader and diplomat who led the committee that produced the final draft of the U.S. Constitution (1787).

Mor-ris (môr'is, mör'-), Robert. 1734-1806. American Revolutionary politician and financier. A signer of the Declaration of Independence, he raised money for the Continental Army, attended the Constitutional Convention (1787), and was financially ruined by land speculation.

Mor-ris (môr'is, mör'-), William. 1834-1896. British poet, painter, craftsman, and social reformer best remembered for his poetry, including the epic Sigurd the Volsung (1876).

Morris chair (môr'is châ) n. A large easy chair with arms, an adjustable back, and removable cushions. [After William MORRIS.]

Morris Jes-up (môr'is jës'əp), Cape. A cape of northern Greenland on the Arctic Ocean. It is the northernmost point in the world.

Mor-ris-on (môr'ī-sən, mör'-), Toni. Born 1931. American writer whose novels, such as Sula (1973) and Beloved (1987), examine the experiences of Black American women. She won a 1993 Nobel Prize for Literature.

Mor-ris-town (môr'is-toun', mör'-) 1. A town of northern New Jersey west-northwest of Newark. The Continental Army encamped here during the winters of 1776-1777 and 1779-1780. Population, 16,189. 2. A city of northeast Tennessee east-northeast of Knoxville. Settled in 1783, it is a manufacturing and processing center. Population, 21,385.

Mor-ro Castle (môr'ō kās'əl, mör'ō) A fort at the entrance to the harbor of Havana, Cuba. Built by the Spanish (1589-1597) to protect the city from buccaneers, it was captured by the British in 1762 and bombarded by American forces during the Spanish-American War (1898).

mor-row (môr'ō, mör'ō) n. 1. The following day: resolved to set out on the morrow. 2. The time immediately subsequent to a particular event. 3. Archaic. The morning. [Middle English morwe, morow, variant of morwen, from Old English morgen, morning.]

Mörs (mørs) See Moers.

Morse (môrs), Jedidiah. 1761-1826. American religious leader and geographer who wrote the first geography text published in the United States (1784).

Morse (môrs), Samuel Finley Breese. 1791-1872. American painter and inventor. A portraitist whose subjects included Lafayette, he refined (1838) and patented (1854) the telegraph and developed the telegraphic code that bears his name.

Morse code (môrs kōd) n. Either of two codes used for transmitting messages in which letters of the alphabet and numbers are represented by various sequences of dots and dashes or short and long signals. [After Samuel Finley Breese MORSE.]

mor-sel (môr'səl) n. 1. A small piece of food. 2. A tasty delicacy; a tidbit. 3. A small amount; a piece: a morsel of gossip. 4. One that is delightful and extremely pleasing. [Middle English, from Old French, diminutive of mors, bite, from Latin morsum, from neuter past participle of mordēre, to bite. See mer- in Appendix.]

mort¹ (môrt) n. The note sounded on a hunting horn to announce the death of a deer. [Middle English, death, from Old French, from Latin mors, mort-. See mer- in Appendix.]

mort² (môrt) n. A great number or quantity. [Perhaps from MORTAL.]

mor-ta-del-la (môr'tə-dě'lə) n. An Italian sausage made of pork, beef, and cubes of pork fat, flavored with wine and spices and smoked, steamed, or baked. [Italian, feminine diminutive of murtato, seasoned with myrtle berries, from Latin myrtātus, murtātus, from myrtus, myrta, myrtle. See MYRTLE.]

mortal (môr'tl) adj. 1. Liable or subject to death. 2. Of or relating to human-kind; human: the mortal limits of understanding. 3. Of, relating to, or accompanying death: mortal throes. 4. Causing death; fatal: a mortal wound. See Synonyms at fatal. 5. Fighting or fought to the death; unrelenting: a mortal enemy; a mortal attack. 6. Of great intensity or severity; dire: mortal terror.

7. Conceivable: no mortal reason for us to go. 8. Used as an intensive: a mortal fool. — n. A human being. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin mortālis, from mors, mort-, death. See mer- in Appendix.] —mor'tal-ly adv.

mortal-i-ty (môr-tăl'ī-tē) n. pl. mortal-i-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being mortal. 2. Death, especially of large numbers; heavy loss of life: the mortality wrought by an epidemic. 3. Death rate. 4. The rate of failure or loss: the high mortality among family-run farms.

mortal sin (môr'tl sĭn) n. Theology. A sin, such as first-degree murder or perjury, that is so heinous it deprives the soul of sanctifying grace and causes damnation.

mor-tar (môr'tər) n. 1. A vessel in which substances are crushed or ground with a pestle. 2. A machine in which materials are ground and blended or crushed. 3. a. A portable, muzzleloading cannon used to fire shells at low velocities, short ranges, and high trajectories. Also called trench mortar b. Any of several similar devices, such as one that shoots life lines across a stretch of water.

4. Any of various bonding materials used in masonry, surfacing, and plastering, especially a plastic mixture of cement or lime, sand, and water that hardens in place and is used to bind together bricks or stones. — v. tr. mor-tared, mor-tar-ing, mor-tars. 1. To bombard with mortar shells. 2. To plaster or join with mortar. [Middle English morter, from Old English mortere, and from Old French mortier both from Latin mortārium. See mer- in Appendix.]

mor-tar-board (môr'tər-bôrd', -bôrd') n. 1. A square board with a handle used for holding and carrying masonry mortar. 2. An academic cap topped by a flat square.

mort-gage (môr'gĭj) n. Abbr. mtg., mtge. 1. A temporary, conditional pledge of property to a creditor as security for performance of an obligation or repayment of a debt. 2. A contract or deed specifying the terms of a mortgage. 3. The claim of a mortgagee upon mortgaged property. — v. tr. mort-gaged, mort-gag-ing, mort-gag-es. 1. To pledge or convey (property) by means of a mortgage. 2. To make subject to a claim or risk; pledge against a doubtful outcome: mortgaged their political careers by taking an unpopular stand. [Middle English morgage, from Old French : mort, dead (from Vulgar Latin mortus*, from Latin mortuus, past participle of morī, to die); see mer- in Appendix + gage, pledge (of Germanic origin).]

WORD HISTORY: The great jurist Sir Edward Coke, who lived from 1552 to 1634, has explained why the term mortgage comes from the Old French words mort, “dead,” and gage, “pledge.” It seemed to him that it had to do with the doubtfulness of whether or not the mortgagor will pay the debt. If the mortgagor does not, then the land pledged to the mortgagee as security for the debt “is taken from him for ever, and so dead to him upon condition, &c. And if he doth pay the money, then the pledge is dead as to the [mortgagee].” This etymology, as understood by 17th-century attorneys, of the Old French term morgage, which we adopted, may well be correct. The term has been in English much longer than the 17th century, being first recorded in Middle English with the form morgage and the figurative sense “pledge” in a work written before 1393.

mort-ga-gee (môr'gĭ-jē') n. One that holds a mortgage.

mort-ga-gor (môr'gĭ-jôr', môr'gĭ-jər) also mort-gag-er (môr'gĭ-jər) n. One that mortgages property.

mor-tice (môr'tis) n. & v. Variant of mortise. mor-ti-cian (môr-tish'ən) n. See funeral director. [Latin mors, mort-, death; see MORTAL + -ICIAN.]

mor-ti-fi-ca-tion (môr'tə-fĭ-kā'shən) n. 1. A feeling of shame, humiliation, or wounded pride. 2. Discipline of the body and the appetites by self-denial or self-inflicted privation. 3. Pathology. Death or decay of one part of a living body; gangrene or necrosis.

mor-ti-fy (môr'tə-fĭ') v. mor-ti-fied, mor-ti-fy-ing, mor-ti-fies. — v. tr. 1. To cause to experience shame, humiliation, or wounded pride; humiliate.

2. To discipline (one's body and physical appetites) by self-denial or self-inflicted privation. — v. intr. 1. To practice ascetic discipline or self-denial of the body and its appetites. 2. Pathology. To undergo mortification; become gangrenous or necrosed. [Middle English mortifien, to deaden, subdue, from Old French mortifier, from Latin mortificāre, to kill : mors, mort-, death; see mer- in Appendix + -ficāre, -fy.]

Mor-ti-mer (môr'tə-mər), Roger de Eighth Baron of Wigmore and First Earl of March. 1287-1330. Welsh rebel and lover of Edward II's wife, Isabella (1292-1358), with whom he raised an army to invade England from France (1326). They deposed Edward (1327) and ruled until 1330, when Edward III seized power and Mortimer was condemned to death by Parliament.

mor-tise also mor-tice (môr'tis) n. 1. A usually rectangular cavity in a piece of wood, stone, or other material, prepared to receive a tenon and thus form a joint.

2. Printing. A hole cut in a plate for insertion of type. — v. tr. mor-tised also mor-ticed, mor-tis-ing also mor-tic-ing, mor-tis-es also mor-tic-es. 1. To join or fasten securely, as with a mortise and tenon. 2. To make a mortise in.

3. Printing. a. To cut a hole in (a plate) for the insertion of type. b. To cut such a hole and insert (type). [Middle English mortaise, from Old French, perhaps from Arabic murtazz, fastened, from irtazza, to be fixed (in place).]

mort-main (môrt'mān') n. 1. Law. Perpetual ownership of real estate by institutions such as churches that cannot transfer or sell it. 2. The often oppressive influence of the past on the present. [Middle English mortemayne, from Old French mortemain: morte, feminine of mort, dead; see MORTGAGE + main, hand (from Latin manus); see man-² in Appendix.]

Mor-ton (môr'tn), Ferdinand Joseph La Menthe. Known as "Jelly Roll." 1885-1941. American musician and composer who recorded seminal jazz works during the 1920's and claimed to have invented jazz.

Mor-ton (môr'tn), Levi Parsons. 1824-1920. Vice President of the United States (1889-1893) under Benjamin Harrison.

Mor-ton (môr'tn), Thomas. Died c. 1647. English-born American colonist who was twice deported to England (1628 and 1630) by Puritans who disapproved of his business practices and frolicsome ways.

Mor-ton (môr'tn), William Thomas Green. 1819-1868. American dentist who demonstrated the use of ether as an anesthetic (1846).

Morton Grove (môr'tn grōv) A village of northeast Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Population, 22,408.

mor-tu-ar-y (môr'chō-ēr'ē) n. pl. mor-tu-ar-ies. A place, especially a funeral home, where dead bodies are kept before burial or cremation. [Middle English mortuarie, gift to a parish priest from the estate of the deceased, funeral service, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin mortuārium, receptacle for dead things, neuter of mortuārius, of the dead, from mortuus, dead, past participle of morī, to die. See mer- in Appendix.]

mor-u-la (môr'yə-lə, môr'ə-) n. pl. mor-u-lae (-lē'). The spherical embryonic mass of blastomeres formed before the blastula and resulting from cleavage of the fertilized ovum. [New Latin, feminine diminutive of Latin mōrum, mulberry.] —mor'u-lar adj. —mor'u-la'tion n.

MOS abbr. 1. Metal-oxide semiconductor. 2. Military occupational specialty.

mos. abbr. Months.

mo-sa-ic (mō-zā'ik) n. 1. a. A picture or decorative design made by setting small colored pieces, as of stone or tile, into a surface. b. The process or art of making such pictures or designs. 2. A composite picture made of overlapping, usually aerial, photographs. 3. Something that resembles a mosaic: a mosaic of testimony from various witnesses. 4. Botany. A virus disease of plants, resulting in light and dark areas in the leaves, which often become shriveled and dwarfed. 5. A photosensitive surface, as in the iconoscope of a television camera. 6. Biology. An individual exhibiting mosaicism. — v. tr. mo-sa-icked, mo-sa-ick-ing, mo-sa-ics. 1. To make by mosaic: mosaic a design on a rosewood box. 2. To adorn with or as if with mosaic: mosaic a sidewalk. [Middle English musycke, from Old French mosaique, from Old Italian mosaico, from Medieval Latin mūsāicum, neuter of mūsāicus, of the Muses, from Latin Mūsa, Muse, from Greek Mousa. See men⁻¹ in Appendix.] — mo-sa'i-cist (mō-zā'ī-sist) n.

Mo-sa-ic (mō-zā'ik) adj. Of or relating to Moses or the laws and writings attributed to him.

mosaic gold (mō-zā'ik gōld) n. Ormolu. [From its use in making mosaics.]

mo-sa-i-cism (mō-zā'ī-siz'əm) n. A condition in which tissues of genetically different types occur in the same organism.

Mosaic Law (mō-zā'ik lô) n. The ancient law of the Hebrews, attributed to Moses and contained in the Pentateuch. Also called Law of Moses mo-sa-saur (mō'sə-sôr') n. Any of various very large extinct aquatic lizards of the genus Mosasaurus, having modified limbs that served as paddles for swimming. These lizards, thought to have been viviparous and carnivorous, may be early ancestors of the modern monitor lizard. [New Latin Mosasaurus, genus name : Latin Mosa, the Meuse River (where fossils of the genus were first discovered) + Greek sauros, lizard.]

Mos-by (mōz'bē), John Singleton. 1833-1916. American Confederate soldier who led a small cavalry unit, Mosby's Rangers, on raids against advanced Union positions.

mos-cha-tel (mōs'kə-těl', mōs'kə-těl') n. A perennial herb (Adoxa moschatellina) native to northern regions of Eurasia and North America, having greenish-white, musk-scented flowers. Also called muskroot [French moscatelle, from Italian moscatella, feminine diminutive of moscato, musk, from Late Latin muscus. See MUSK.]

Mos-cow (mōs'kou, -kō) 1. The capital and largest city of Russia, in the west-central European part of the country on the Moscow River, flowing about 499 km (310 mi) eastward to the Oka River. Inhabited since Neolithic times and first mentioned in Russian chronicles in 1147, Moscow became the capital of the principality of Muscovy and by the 15th century was the capital of the Russian state and the seat of the metropolitan (later patriarch) of the Russian Orthodox Church. The capital was transferred to St. Petersburg in 1712 but returned to Moscow by the Soviets in 1918. It was the site of the 1980 Summer Olympics. Population, 8,408,000. 2. A city of northwest Idaho on the Washington border north of Lewiston. It is the seat of the University of Idaho (chartered 1889). Population, 18,519.

Mo-sel (mō'zəl) See Moselle¹.

Mose-ley (mōz'lē), Henry Gwyn Jeffreys. 1887-1915. British physicist who determined that the atomic number of an element can be deduced from the element's x-ray spectrum.

Mo-selle¹ (mō-zě'l') also Mo-sel (mō'zəl) A river rising in the Vosges Mountains of northeast France and flowing about 547 km (340 mi) north then northeast to the Rhine River in western Germany. The German valley of the river is noted for its old castles and celebrated vineyards.

Mo-selle² (mō-zě'l') n. A light, dry white wine produced in the valley of the Moselle River.

Mos-es (mō'ziz, -zīs) In the Old Testament, the Hebrew prophet and lawgiver who led the Israelites out of Egypt.

Mos-es (mō'ziz, -zīs), Anna Mary Robertson. Known as "Grandma Moses." 1860-1961. American painter noted for her primitive and colorful paintings of rural scenes.

Mos-es (mō'ziz, -zīs), Robert. 1888-1981. American public official who planned many important public works and buildings in New York City, including Lincoln Center and the United Nations complex.

mo-sey (mō'zē) v. intr. mo-seyed, mo-sey-ing, mo-seys. Informal. 1. To move in a leisurely, relaxed way; saunter: moseyed over to the club after lunch. 2. To get going; move along. [Origin unknown.]

mo-shav (mō-shäv') n. pl. mo-sha-vim (mō'shā-vem'). An Israeli cooperative settlement consisting of small separate farms. [Modern Hebrew môšāb, from Hebrew, dwelling.]

Mos-lem (mۆz'ləm, mۆs'-) n. Variant of Muslim. —Mos'lem adj.

Mos-ley (mōz'lē), Sir Oswald Ernald. 1896-1980. British politician and the founder and leader of the British fascist party.

mosque (mۆsk) n. A Muslim house of worship. [French mosquée, from Old French mousquaie, from Old Italian moschea, from moscheta, from Old Spanish mezquita, from Arabic masjid, from sajada, to worship.]

mos-qui-to (mə-skē'tō) n. pl. mos-qui-toes or mos-qui-tos. Any of various two-winged insects of the family Culicidae, in which the female of most species is distinguished by a long proboscis for sucking blood. Some species are vectors of diseases such as malaria and yellow fever. Regional. Also called skeeter See Regional note at possum. [Spanish, and Portuguese, from diminutive of mosca, fly from Latin musca.]

WORD HISTORY: Flies will never be popular creatures, in spite or because of their omnipresence. Two examples of the fly's influence on our lives can be found in the etymologies of the words mosquito and musket, both of which can be traced back to musca, the Latin word for fly. This Latin word became mosca in Spanish and Portuguese, Romance languages that developed from Vulgar Latin. Mosquito, the diminutive of mosca, was borrowed into English (first recorded around 1583) with the same sense "mosquito" that it had in Spanish and Portuguese. The Romance language French was the source of our word musket (first recorded around 1587), which came from French mousquet, but this word entered French from yet another Romance language, Italian. From the descendant of Latin musca, Italian mosca, was formed the diminutive moschetta with the senses "bolt for a catapult" and "small artillery piece." From moschetta came moschetto, "musket," the source of French mousquet. The use of moschetta, literally "little fly," to mean "bolt from a crossbow" can be ascribed to the fact that both bolt and insect fly, buzz, and sting.

Mos-qui-to (mə-skē'tō) n. pl. Mosquito or Mos-qui-tos. See Miskito.

mosquito boat (mə-skē'tō bōt) n. Chiefly British. A PT boat.

Mosquito Coast (mə-skē'tō kōst) A region of eastern Nicaragua and north-east Honduras. A British protectorate from 1655 to 1860, it then became an autonomous state known as the Mosquito Kingdom. In 1894 Nicaragua appropriated the territory, and in 1960 the northern part was awarded to Honduras by the International Court of Justice.

mosquito fern (mə-skē'tō fûrn) n. Any of several free-floating ferns of the genus Azolla of warm regions, having two-lobed minute leaves arranged in two rows.

mosquito fish (mə-skē'tō fîsh) n. Any of various fishes that feed on the larvae of mosquitoes, especially a small gambusia (Gambusia affinis) native to the southeast United States but introduced into many parts of the world for use in controlling mosquito populations.

mosquito hawk (mə-skē'tō hōk) n. 1. See nighthawk (n., sense 1a).

2. Lower Southern U.S. See dragonfly. See Regional note at dragonfly.

mosquito net (mə-skē'tō nēt) n. A fine net or screen used to keep out mosquitoes.

moss (mōs, mōs) n. 1. a. Any of various green, usually small, nonvascular plants of the class Musci of the division Bryophyta. b. A patch or covering of such plants. 2. Any of various other unrelated plants having a similar appearance or manner of growth, such as the club moss, Irish moss, and Spanish moss. — v. tr. mossed, moss-ing, moss-es. To cover with moss. [Middle English, from Old English mos, bog, and from Medieval Latin mossa, moss (of Germanic origin).]

moss animal (môs än'ə-məl) n. See bryozoan.

moss-back (môs'băk', mۆs'-) n. 1. An old shellfish or turtle with a growth of algae on its back. 2. An old, large, or sluggish fish. 3. An extremely conservative or old-fashioned person. —moss/backed' adj.

Möss-bau-er (mөs'bou'ər, mۆs'-, mۆs'-), Rudolf Ludwig. Born 1929. German physicist. He shared a 1961 Nobel Prize for his method of producing and measuring recoil-free gamma rays.

Mössbauer effect (mөs'bou'ər ı-fěkt') n. The recoilless emission of gamma rays by radioactive nuclei of crystalline solids, and the subsequent absorption of the emitted rays by other nuclei. [After Rudolf Ludwig Mössbauer.]

moss-bunk-er (mөs'büŋg'kər, mۆs'-) n. See menhaden. [Dutch marsbanker.]

moss campion (môs kăm'pē-ən) n. A low-growing plant (Silene acaulis) of cool regions, having purplish-red flowers and forming dense, cushionlike mats.

moss green (môs grĕn) n. Color. A moderate yellow green to grayish or moderate olive or dark yellowish green. —moss/green' (mөs'grĕn', mۆs'-) adj.

moss-grown (mөs'grōn', mۆs'-) adj. 1. Overgrown with moss. 2. Old-fashioned; antiquated: mossgrown ideas about family life.

mos-so (mөs'sō) adv. Music. With motion or animation. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, past participle of muovere, to move, from Latin movĕre. See meuə in Appendix.]

Mos-so-ró (mōō-sōō-rô') A city of northeast Brazil west-northwest of Natal. It is a shipping center in a mining and agricultural region. Population, 117,971.

moss pink (mөs pıŋk) n. A low-growing eastern North American plant (Phlox subulata) forming dense, mosslike mats and widely cultivated for its profuse pink or white flowers.

Moss Point (mөs point, mۆs) A city of extreme southeast Mississippi east of Biloxi. Fishing is important to its economy. Population, 18,998.

moss rose (mөs rōz) n. A variety of rose (Rosa centifolia) native to the Caucasus, having a mossy flower stalk and calyx and fragrant pink flowers, used as a source of attar.

moss-troop-er (mөs'trōō'pər, mۆs'-) n. 1. One of a band of raiders operating in the bogs on the borders of England and Scotland during the 17th century. 2. A plunderer; a marauder.

moss-y (mө'sē, mۆs'ē) adj. moss-i-er, moss-i-est. 1. Covered with moss or something like moss: mossy banks. 2. Resembling moss. 3. Old-fashioned; antiquated. —moss/i-ness n.

most (mōst) adj. Superlative of many, much. 1. a. Greatest in number: won the most votes. b. Greatest in amount, extent, or degree: has the most compassion. 2. In the greatest number of instances: Most fish have fins. — n. 1. The greatest amount or degree: She has the most to gain. 2. Slang. The greatest, best, or most exciting. Used with the: That party was the most! — pron. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The greatest part or number: Most of the town was destroyed. Most of the books were missing. — adv. Superlative of more, much. 1. In or to the highest degree or extent. Used with many adjectives and adverbs to form the superlative degree: most honest; most impatiently. 2. Very: a most impressive piece of writing. 3. Informal. Almost: Most everyone agrees. — idiom. at (the) most. At the maximum: We saw him for ten minutes at the most. She ran two miles at most. [Middle English, from Old English māst, māst; see mē³ in Appendix. Adv., sense 3, probably short for ALMOST.]

Most (mōst) A city of northwest Czech Republic near the German border northwest of Prague. It dates to at least the 11th century. Population, 63,634.

-most suff. 1. Most: innermost. 2. Nearest to: aftmost. [Middle English, alteration (influenced by most, most); see MOST, of -mest, from Old English : -mo, -ma, superlative suff. + -est, superlative suff.] mos-tac-cio-li (mô-stä'chə-lē', -stät'chō-) n. Short, tubular pasta with slanted ends. [Italian, pl. of mostacciolo, cake, bun, from Latin mustāceum, cake made with must, from mustum, must. See MUST³.]

most-fav-ored-na-tion (mōst'fā'vərd-nā'shən) adj. Of or relating to the status or terms embodied in a commercial treaty by which each signatory agrees to accord the other the same treatment that is or will be accorded to any other nation.

most-ly (mōst'lē) adv. 1. For the greatest part; mainly. 2. Generally; usually.

Mó-sto-les (mô'stô-lēs') A city of central Spain, an industrial suburb of Madrid. Population, 164,304.

Mo-sul (mō-sōol', mō'səl) A city of northern Iraq on the Tigris River north-northwest of Baghdad. An important center on the historical caravan route across northern Mesopotamia, it became part of the Ottoman Empire in the 16th century. Mosul was awarded to Iraq by the League of Nations in 1925. Population, 570,926.

mot (mō) n. A witty or incisive remark. [French, from Old French, word, saying, probably from Vulgar Latin mōttum*, from Late Latin muttum, grunt, mutter, of imitative origin.]

mote¹ (mōt) n. A very small particle; a speck: “Dust motes hung in a slant of sunlight” (Anne Tyler). [Middle English mot, from Old English.]

mote² (mōt) v. aux. Archaic. May; might. [Middle English moten, from Old English mōtan. See med- in Appendix.]

mo-tel (mō-tĕl') n. An establishment that provides lodging for motorists in rooms usually having direct access to an open parking area. Also called motor court, motor lodge. [Blend of MOTOR, and HOTEL.]

mo-tet (mō-tĕt') n. Music. A polyphonic composition based on a text of a sacred nature and usually sung without accompaniment. [Middle English, from Old French, diminutive of mot, word. See MOT.]

moth (môth, möth) n. pl. moths (môthz, möthz, môths, möths). 1. Any of numerous insects of the order Lepidoptera, generally distinguished from butterflies by their nocturnal activity, hairlike or feathery antennae, stout bodies, and the frenulum that holds the front and back wings together. 2. A clothes moth. [Middle English moththe, from Old English moththe.]

moth-ball (môth'bôl', möth'-) n. 1. A marble-sized ball, originally of camphor but now of naphthalene, stored with clothes to repel moths. 2. mothballs. a. A condition of long storage for possible future use: put the battleship into mothballs. b. A condition of being set aside or discarded: decided to put the plan into mothballs. — v. tr. moth-balled, moth-ball-ing, moth-balls. 1. To remove (a ship, for example) from active service or use and put into protective storage. 2. To defer indefinitely; shelve: mothball a project.

moth-eat-en (môth'ĕt'n, möth'-) adj. 1. Eaten away by moth larvae. 2. Old and timeworn; stale: a moth-eaten phrase. 3. Shabby; decrepit.

moth-er¹ (mŭth'ər) n. 1. A woman who conceives, gives birth to, or raises and nurtures a child. 2. A female parent of an animal. 3. A female ancestor. 4. A woman who holds a position of authority or responsibility similar to that of a mother: a den mother. 5. Roman Catholic Church. a. A mother superior. b. Used as a form of address for such a woman. 6. A woman who creates, originates, or founds something: "the discovery of radium, which made Marie Curie mother to the Atomic Age" (Alden Whitman). 7. A creative source; an origin: Philosophy is the mother of the sciences. 8. Used as a title for a woman respected for her wisdom and age. 9. Maternal love and tenderness: brought out the mother in her. 10. Vulgar Slang. Something considered extraordinary, as in disagreeableness, size, or intensity. — adj. 1. Relating to or being mother. 2. Characteristic of a mother: mother love. 3. Being the source or origin: the mother church. 4. Derived from or as if from one's mother; native: one's mother language. — v. tr. moth-ered, moth-er-ing, moth-ers. 1. To give birth to; create and produce. 2. To watch over, nourish, and protect maternally. See Usage Note at father. [Middle English moder, mother, from Old English mōdor. See māter- in Appendix.]

moth-er² (mŭth'ər) n. A stringy slime composed of yeast cells and bacteria that forms on the surface of fermenting liquids and is added to wine or cider to start the production of vinegar. [Probably alteration (influenced by MOTHER¹), of obsolete Dutch moeder, from Middle Dutch, probably from moeder, mother of children. See māter- in Appendix.]

moth·er·board (mũth'ər-bōrd', -bōrd') n. Computer Science. The main board of a computer, usually containing the circuitry for the central processing unit, keyboard, and monitor and often having slots for accepting additional circuitry.

Moth·er Car·ey's chicken (mũth'ər kâr'ēz chĭk'ən) n. A petrel, especially a storm petrel. [Possibly translation and alteration of Medieval Latin mater cāra, Virgin Mary : Latin mater, mother + Latin cāra, dear.]

mother cell (mũth'ər sĕl) n. A cell that divides to produce two or more daughter cells.

mother country (mũth'ər kũn'trē) n. 1. The country of one's birth or one's ancestors. 2. The country from which the settlers of a territory originally came.

mother figure (mũth'ər fig'yər) n. An older woman, often one in a position of power or influence, who elicits the emotions usually reserved for a mother.

moth·er·fuck·er (mũth'ər-fŭk'ər) n. Obscene. 1. A person regarded as thoroughly despicable. 2. Something regarded as thoroughly unpleasant, frustrating, or despicable.

Mother Goose (mũth'ər gōos) n. The imaginary author of Mother Goose's Tales, a collection of nursery rhymes first published in London in the 18th century.

mother hen (mũth'ər hĕn) n. A person who fusses over others in an overprotective manner.

moth·er·hood (mũth'ər-hōod') n. 1. The state of being a mother. 2. The qualities of a mother. 3. Mothers considered as a group.

moth·er·house (mũth'ər-hous') n. 1. The convent in which the mother superior of a religious community lives. 2. The original convent of a religious community.

Mother Hub·bard (mũth'ər hŭb'ərd) n. A woman's loose, unbelted dress. [Probably from illustrations of Mother Hubbard, character in a nursery rhyme by Sarah Catherine Martin (1768-1826), British writer.]

moth·er·ing (mũth'ər-ĭng) n. The nurturing and raising of a child or children by a mother: "Because they are involved in careers and mothering, many women lead exhausting lives" (David E. Bloom).

moth·er·in·law (mũth'ər-ĭn-lō') n. pl. moth·ers·in·law (mũth'ərz-). 1. The mother of one's wife or husband. 2. Archaic. A stepmother.

moth·er·land (mũth'ər-lānd') n. 1. One's native land. 2. The land of one's ancestors. 3. A country considered as the origin of something.

moth·er·less (mũth'ər-ləs') adj. 1. Having no living mother. 2. Having no known mother. —moth'er·less·ness n.

- mother lode (mŭth'ər lōd) n. 1. The main vein of ore in a region. 2. An abundant or rich source: “the kind... who makes Boston the mother lode of advance men” (David Nyhan).
- moth·er·ly (mŭth'ər-lē) adj. 1. Of, like, or appropriate to a mother: motherly love. 2. Showing the affection of a mother. — adv. In a manner befitting a mother. — moth'er-li-ness n.
- moth·er-of-pearl (mŭth'ər-əv-pŭrl') n. The pearly internal layer of certain mollusk shells, used to make decorative objects. Also called nacre — moth'er-of-pearl' adj.
- Moth·er's Day (mŭth'ərz dā) n. The second Sunday in May, observed in the United States in honor of mothers.
- moth·ers-in-law (mŭth'ərz-ĭn-lō') n. Plural of mother-in-law.
- mother superior (mŭth'ər sōō-pîr'ē-ər) n. pl. mothers superior or mother superiors. A woman in charge of a religious community of women.
- mother tongue (mŭth'ər tŭŋ) n. 1. One's native language. 2. A parent language.
- Moth·er·well (mŭth'ər-wĕl'), Robert. 1915-1991. American artist whose abstract expressionist paintings are characterized by brilliantly colored amorphous figures.
- Moth·er·well and Wish·aw (mŭth'ər-wĕl' ənd wĭsh'ô, -wəl; wĭsh'ô) A burgh of south-central Scotland on the Clyde River southeast of Glasgow. Consolidated in 1920, it has various heavy industries. Population, 149,900.
- mother wit (mŭth'ər wĭt) n. Innate intelligence or common sense.
- moth·er·wort (mŭth'ər-wŭrt', -wôrt') n. Any of several Eurasian plants of the genus Leonurus, especially L. cardiaca, a weed having clusters of small purple or pink flowers and spine-tipped calyx lobes. [Middle English moderwort : moder, womb (from its use in treating diseases of the uterus); see MOTHER¹ + wort, wort; see WORT¹.]
- moth·proof (môth'prōōf', mōth'-) adj. Resistant to damage by moths. — v. tr. moth·proofed, moth·proof·ing, moth·proofs. To make resistant to damage by moths. — moth'proof'er n.
- moth·y (mô'thē, mōth'ē) adj. moth·i·er, moth·i·est. 1. Infested by moths. 2. Moth-eaten.
- mo·tif (mō-tĕf') n. 1. a. A recurrent thematic element in an artistic or literary work. b. A dominant theme or central idea. 2. Music. A short significant phrase in a composition. 3. A repeated figure or design in architecture or decoration. See Synonyms at figure. [French, from Old French, motive. See MOTIVE.]
- mo·tile (mōt'l, mō'tĭl') adj. 1. Biology. Moving or having the power to move spontaneously: motile spores. 2. Psychology. Of or relating to mental imagery that arises primarily from sensations of bodily movement and position rather than from visual or auditory sensations. [Latin mōtus, motion, from past participle of movēre, to move; see MOTION + -ILE¹.] —mo·til/i·ty (mō-tīl'ī-tē) n.

mo·tion (mō'shən) n. 1. The act or process of changing position or place. 2. A meaningful or expressive change in the position of the body or a part of the body; a gesture. 3. Active operation: set the plan in motion. 4. The ability or power to move: lost motion in his arm. 5. The manner in which the body moves, as in walking. 6. A prompting from within; an impulse or inclination: resigned of her own motion. 7. Music. Melodic ascent and descent of pitch. 8. Law. An application made to a court for an order or a ruling. 9. A formal proposal put to the vote under parliamentary procedures. 10. a. A mechanical device or piece of machinery that moves or causes motion; a mechanism. b. The movement or action of such a device. — v. mo·tioned, mo·tion-ing, mo·tions. — v. tr. To direct by making a gesture: motioned us to our seats. — v. intr. To signal by making a gesture: motioned to her to enter. —idiom. go through the motions. To do something in a mechanical manner indicative of a lack of interest or involvement. [Middle English mocioun, from Old French motion, from Latin mōtiō, mōtiōn-, from mōtus, past participle of movēre, to move. See meuə- in Appendix.]

mo·tion·less (mō'shən-līs) adj. Having or making no motion. —mo'/tion-less-ly adv. —mo'tion-less-ness n.

motion picture (mō'shən pīk'chər) n. 1. A movie. 2. motion pictures. The movie industry. —mo'tion-pic'ture (mō'shən-pīk'chər) adj.

motion sickness (mō'shən sīk'nīs) n. Nausea and dizziness induced by motion, as in travel by aircraft, car, or ship.

motion study (mō'shən stūd'ē) n. See time and motion study.

mo·ti·vate (mō'tə-vāt') v. tr. mo·ti·vat-ed, mo·ti·vat-ing, mo·ti·vates. To provide with an incentive; move to action; impel. —mo'ti·va'tor n.

mo·ti·va·tion (mō'tə-vā'shən) n. 1. a. The act or process of motivating. b. The state of being motivated. 2. Something that motivates; an inducement or incentive. —mo'ti·va'tion-al adj. —mo'ti·va'tion-al-ly adv.

motivational research (mō'tə-vā'shə-nəl rī-sûrch') n. Systematic analysis of the motives behind consumer decisions, used especially by advertisers and marketers to assess attitudes toward products and services. Also called motivation research mo·tive (mō'tīv) n. 1. An emotion, desire, physiological need, or similar impulse that acts as an incitement to action. 2. (mō'tīv, mō-tēv') A motif in art, literature, or music. — adj. 1. Causing or able to cause motion: motive power. 2. Impelling to action: motive pleas. 3. Of or constituting an incitement to action. — v. tr. mo·tived, mo·tiv-ing, mo·tives. To motivate. [Middle English motif, motive, from Old French motif, from Late Latin mōtīvus, of motion, from Latin mōtus, past participle of movēre, to move. See meuə- in Appendix.]

mo-tiv-ic (mō-tiv'ik') adj. Music. Of or relating to a motif: sparse motivic improvisations.

mo-ti-vi-ty (mōtiv'i-tē) n. pl. mo-ti-vi-ties. The power of moving or causing motion.

mot juste (mō zhüst') n. pl. mots justes (mō zhüst'). Exactly the right word or expression. [French : mot, word + juste, right.]

mot-ley (mōt'lē) adj. 1. Having elements of great variety or incongruity; heterogeneous: "Most Ivy League freshman classes are chosen from a motley collection of constituencies... and a bare majority of entering students can honestly be called scholars" (New York Times). See Synonyms at miscellaneous. 2. Having many colors; variegated; parti-colored: a motley tunic. — n. pl. mot-leys. 1. The parti-colored attire of a court jester. 2. A heterogeneous, often incongruous mixture of elements. [Middle English motlei, variegated cloth, variegated, probably Anglo-Norman, probably from Middle English mot, speck. See MOTE¹.]

Mot-ley (mōt'lē), John Lothrop. 1814-1877. American historian and diplomat whose written works include The Rise of the Dutch Republic (1856).

mot-mot (mōt'mōt') n. Any of several tropical American birds of the family Momotidae, usually having green and blue plumage with long tail feathers that spread out at the tip. [New Latin motmot, probably of imitative origin.]

mo-to-cross (mō'tō-krōs', -krōs') n. Abbr. MX Sports. A cross-country motorcycle race over a closed course of rough terrain with steep hills and sharp curves. [French moto-cross : moto, motorcycle (short for motocyclette, from moto-, motor, from moteur, from Latin mōtor, mover); see MOTOR + CROSS-COUNTRY.]

mo-to-neu-ron (mō'tə-nōōr'ōn', -nyōōr'-) n. A motor neuron. [MOTO(R) + NEURON.]

mo-tor (mō'tər) n. 1. Something, such as a machine or an engine, that produces or imparts motion. 2. A device that converts any form of energy into mechanical energy, especially an internal-combustion engine or an arrangement of coils and magnets that converts electric current into mechanical power. 3. A motor vehicle, especially an automobile. — adj. 1. Causing or producing motion: motor power. 2. Driven by or having a motor. 3. Of or for motors or motor vehicles: motor oil. 4. Of, relating to, or designating nerves that carry impulses from the nerve centers to the muscles. 5. Involving or relating to movements of the muscles: motor coordination; a motor reflex. — v. mo-tored, mo-tor-ing, mo-tors. — v. intr. To drive or travel in a motor vehicle. — v. tr. To carry by motor vehicle. [Middle English motour, prime mover, from Latin mōtor, from mōtus, past participle of movēre, to move. See meuə- in Appendix.]

mo-tor-bike (mō'tər-bīk') n. 1. A lightweight motorcycle. 2. A pedal bicycle that has an attached motor.

mo-tor-boat (mō'tər-bōt') n. Nautical. A boat propelled by an internal-combustion engine or other motor. Also called powerboat mo-tor-bus (mō'tər-büs') n. pl. mo-tor-bus-es or mo-tor-bus-es. A passenger bus that is powered by a motor. Also called motor coach mo-tor-cade (mō'tər-kād') n. A procession of motor vehicles, as in a parade.

—mo'tor-cade' v.

mo-tor-car (mō'tər-kär') n. See automobile.

motor coach (mō'tər kōch) n. See motorbus.

motor cortex (mō'tər kōr'tēks') n. The area of the cerebral cortex where impulses from the nerve centers to the muscles originate.

motor court (mō'tər kōrt) n. See motel.

mo-tor-cy-cle (mō'tər-sī'kəl) n. A two-wheeled motor vehicle resembling a heavy bicycle, sometimes having two saddles and a sidecar with a third wheel.
—mo'tor-cy'cle v. —mo'tor-cy'clist n.

motor drive (mō'tər drīv) n. A system consisting of an electric motor and accessory parts, used to power machinery. —mo'tor-driv'en (mō'tər-drīv'ən) adj.

motor home (mō'tər hōm) n. A motor vehicle built on a truck or bus chassis and designed to serve as self-contained living quarters for recreational travel.

motor inn (mō'tər ĩn) n. An urban motel usually having several stories. Also called motor hotel mo-tor-ist (mō'tər-ĭst) n. One who drives or travels in an automotive vehicle.

mo-tor-ize (mō'tə-rīz') v. tr. mo-tor-ized, mo-tor-iz-ing, mo-tor-iz-es.

1. To equip with a motor. 2. To supply with motor-driven vehicles. 3. To provide with automobiles. —mo'tor-i-za'tion (-tər-ĭ-zā'shən) n.

motor lodge (mō'tər löj) n. See motel.

mo-tor-man (mō'tər-mən) n. One who drives an electrically powered street-car, locomotive, or subway train.

motor mouth (mō'tər mouth) n. Slang. An incessant talker.

motor neuron (mō'tər nōör'ōn') n. A neuron that conveys impulses from the central nervous system to a muscle, gland, or other effector tissue.

motor pool (mō'tər pōōl) n. A centrally managed group of motor vehicles intended for the use of personnel, as of a governmental agency or military installation.

motor scooter (mō'tər skōō'tər) n. A two-wheeled vehicle with small wheels and a low-powered gasoline engine geared to the rear wheel.

motor vehicle (mō'tər vē'ī-kəl) n. A self-propelled wheeled conveyance, such as a car or truck, that does not run on rails.

mo-tor-way (mō'tər-wā') n. Chiefly British. A superhighway.

Mott (möt), John Raleigh. 1865-1955. American religious leader. He shared the 1946 Nobel Peace Prize for his leadership of the YMCA.

Mott (möt), Lucretia Coffin. 1793-1880. American feminist and social reformer who was active in the antislavery movement and with Elizabeth Cady Stanton called the first convention for women's rights, held at Seneca Falls, New York (1848).

Mott (möt), Sir Nevill Francis. Born 1905. British physicist. He shared a 1977 Nobel Prize for developments in computer memory.

motte¹ also mott (möt) n. Western U.S. A copse or small stand of trees on a prairie. [American Spanish mata, from Spanish, shrub, probably from Late Latin matta, mat. See MAT¹.]

motte² also mott (möt) n. Upper Southern U.S. A tuft of human or animal hair standing up on the head or body. [From French, from Old French mote, mound. See MOAT.]

Mot-tel-son (möt'l-sən, -sôn), Ben Roy. Born 1926. American-born Danish physicist. He shared a 1975 Nobel Prize for discovering the asymmetry of atomic nuclei.

mot-tle (möt'l) v. tr. mot-tled, mot-tling, mot-tles. To mark with spots or blotches of different shades or colors. — n. 1. A spot or blotch of color. 2. A variegated pattern, as on marble. [Probably back-formation from MOTLEY.]
—mot'tler n.

mot-tled (möt'ld) adj. Spotted or blotched with different shades or colors.

mottled enamel (möt'ld ĭ-näm'əl) n. Discolored and spotted tooth enamel caused by excessive amounts of fluorides in drinking water.

mot-to (möt'ō) n. pl. mot-toes or mot-tos. 1. A brief statement used to express a principle, a goal, or an ideal. See Synonyms at saying. 2. A sentence, phrase, or word of appropriate character inscribed on or attached to an object. 3. A maxim adopted as a guide to one's conduct. [Italian, word, motto, probably from Vulgar Latin mōttum*, word. See MOT.]

mouch (mōoch) v. Chiefly British. Variant of mooch.

moue (mōō) n. A small grimace; a pout. [French, from Old French moe, of Germanic origin.]

mou-flon also mouf-flon (mōōf'lōn') n. pl. mouflon or mou-flons also moufflon or mouf-flons. A small, wild European sheep (Ovis musimon), native to Sardinia and Corsica and having large curving horns in the male.

[French, alteration of Italian dialectal muvrone, from Late Latin mufrō, mufrōn-.]

mouil-lé (mōō-yā') adj. Linguistics. Pronounced as a palatal sound, as the ll in French fille. [French, past participle of mouiller, to moisten, palatalize, from Old French moillier, to soften by soaking. See MOIL.]

mou-jik (mōō-zhēk', -zhĭk') n. Variant of muzhik.

mou-lage (mōō-lāzh') n. 1. A mold, as of a footprint, made for use in a criminal investigation. 2. The making of such a mold or cast, as with plaster of Paris. [French, from Old French, fee for inspection of wood by use of a standard frame, from mouler, to mold, measure with a standard frame, from moule, mold. See MOLD¹.]

mould¹ (mōld) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of mold¹.

mould² (mōld) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of mold².

mould³ (mōld) n. Chiefly British. Variant of mold³.

moul-der (mōl'dər) v. Chiefly British. Variant of molder.

mould-ing (mōl'dɪŋ) n. Chiefly British. Variant of molding.

mould-y (mōl'dē) adj. Chiefly British. Variant of moldy.

mou-lin (mō-lăn') n. A nearly vertical shaft or cavity worn in a glacier by surface or rock debris falling through a crack in the ice. [French, mill, moulin, from Old French molīn, mill, from Late Latin molīnum. See MILL¹.]

Moul-mein (mōol-măn', mōl-) A city of southern Burma on the Gulf of Martaban east of Rangoon. The chief town of British Burma from 1826 to 1852, it is a port and commercial center. Population, 219,991.

moult (mōlt) v. & n. Chiefly British. Variant of molt.

Moul-trie (mōl'trē) A city of southern Georgia southeast of Albany. It grew as a lumbering town and is now a processing center. Population, 14,865.

Moul-trie (mōol'trē, mōl'-), William. 1730-1805. American Revolutionary soldier who defended Charleston, South Carolina, against British attacks (1776 and 1779).

mound (mound) n. 1. A pile of earth, gravel, sand, rocks, or debris heaped for protection or concealment. 2. A natural elevation, such as a small hill. 3. A raised mass, as of hay; a heap. See Synonyms at heap. 4. Archaeology. A large pile of earth or stones marking a burial site. 5. Baseball. The slightly elevated pitcher's area in the center of the diamond. 6. Archaic. A hedge or fence. — v. tr. mound-ed, mound-ing, mounds. 1. To fortify or conceal with a mound. 2. To heap into a raised mass. [Origin unknown.]

mound-bird (mound'bûrd') n. See megapode.

mound builder (mound bîl'dər) n. See megapode.

Mound Builder (mound bîl'dər) n. A member of any of various Native American peoples flourishing from around the 5th century B.C. to the 16th century A.D. especially in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys, practicing settled agriculture and known for their often large burial and effigy mounds.

mount¹ (mount) v. mount-ed, mount-ing, mounts. — v. tr. 1. To climb or ascend: mount stairs. 2. To place oneself upon; get up on: mount a horse; mount a platform. 3. To climb onto (a female) for copulation. Used of male animals. 4. a. To furnish with a horse for riding. b. To set on a horse: mount the saddle. 5. To set in a raised position: mount a bed on blocks. 6. a. To fix securely to a support: mount an engine in a car. b. To place or fix on or in the appropriate support or setting for display or study: mount stamps in an album; mount a specimen on a slide. 7. To provide with scenery, costumes, and other equipment necessary for production: mount a play. 8. To organize and equip: mount an army. 9. To prepare and set in motion: mount an attack. 10. a. To set in position for use: mount guns. b. To carry as equipment: The warship mounted ten guns.

11. To post (a guard). — v. intr. 1. To go upward; rise. 2. To get up on something, as a horse or bicycle. 3. To increase in amount, extent, or intensity:

Expenses are mounting up. Costs quickly mounted. See Synonyms at rise. — n.

1. The act or manner of mounting. 2. A means of conveyance, such as a horse, on which to ride. 3. An opportunity to ride a horse in a race. 4. An object to which another is affixed or on which another is placed for accessibility, display, or use, especially: a. A glass slide for use with a microscope. b. A hinge used to fasten stamps in an album. c. A setting for a jewel. d. An undercarriage or stand on which a device rests while in service. [Middle English mounten, from Old French monter, from Vulgar Latin montāre*, from Latin mōns, mont-, mountain. See men-² in Appendix.] — mount/a-ble adj. — mount'er n.

mount² (mount) n. 1. Abbr. mt., Mt. A mountain or hill. Used especially as part of a proper name. 2. Any of the seven fleshy cushions around the edges of the palm of the hand in palmistry. [Middle English mont, from Old English mnt, and from Old French mont, mnt both from Latin mōns, mont-. See men-² in Appendix.]

moun-tain (moun'tən) n. 1. Abbr. mt., Mt., mtn., Mtn. A natural elevation of the earth's surface having considerable mass, generally steep sides, and a height greater than that of a hill. 2. a. A large heap: a mountain of laundry. b. A huge quantity: a mountain of trouble. [Middle English mountaine, from Old French montaigne, muntaigne, from Vulgar Latin montānea*, from feminine of montāneus*, of a mountain, from Latin montānus, from mōns, mont-, mountain. See men-² in Appendix.] — moun'tain-y adj.

mountain ash (moun'tən äsh) n. Any of various deciduous trees of the genus Sorbus, such as the rowan, having clusters of small white flowers and bright orange-red berries arranged in clusters.

mountain avens (moun'tən äv'ənz) n. A creeping evergreen plant (Dryas octopetala) in the rose family, widely distributed in northern portions of Eurasia and North America and having flowers with white petals and feathery styles.

mountain beaver (moun'tən bē'vər) n. See sewellel.

mountain bike (moun'tən bīk) n. A sturdy bicycle distinguished by wide tires and horizontal handlebars, often used for off-road cycling. — mountain biking n.

mountain bluebird (moun'tən blō'bürd') n. A bluebird (Sialia currucoides) of the western United States, having a light blue breast.

Moun-tain Brook (moun'tən brōök) A city of north-central Alabama, a suburb of Birmingham. Population, 19,810.

mountain cat (moun'tən kät) n. See mountain lion.

mountain climbing (moun'tən klī'mɪŋ) n. Sports. The climbing of mountains, especially the scaling of rock faces by means of special equipment and technique.

mountain cranberry (moun'tən krän'bĕr'ĕ) n. See cowberry.

mountain dew (moun'tən dō) n. Illegally distilled corn liquor.

moun-tain-eer (moun'tə-nîr') n. 1. A native or inhabitant of a mountainous area. 2. Sports. One who climbs mountains for sport. — v. intr.

moun-tain-eered, moun-tain-eer-ing, moun-tain-eers. Sports. To climb mountains for sport.

moun-tain-eer-ing (moun'tn-ēr'ɪŋ) n. Sports. The climbing of mountains for sport.

mountain goat (moun'tən gōt) n. A goat antelope (Oreamnos americanus) of the northwest North American mountains, having short, curved black horns and shaggy, yellowish-white hair and beard. Also called Rocky Mountain goat mountain laurel (moun'tən lôr'əl) n. An evergreen shrub (Kalmia latifolia) of eastern North America, having leathery, poisonous leaves and clusters of pink or white flowers. Also called calico bush mountain lion (moun'tən lî'ən) n. A large, powerful, wild cat (Felis concolor) of mountainous regions of the Western Hemisphere, having an unmarked tawny body. Also called catamount, cougar, mountain cat Regional., painter³, panther, puma.

moun-tain-ous (moun'tə-nəs) adj. 1. Having many mountains.

2. Resembling a mountain in size; huge: mountainous waves.

mountain range (moun'tən rānj) n. A series of mountain ridges alike in form, direction, and origin.

mountain sheep (moun'tən shēp) n. 1. See bighorn. 2. A wild sheep inhabiting a mountainous area.

mountain sickness (moun'tən sĭk'nĭs) n. Altitude sickness brought on by the diminished oxygen pressure at mountain elevations.

moun-tain-side (moun'tən-sĭd') n. The side of a mountain.

Mountain Standard Time (moun'tən stān'dərd tīm) n. Abbr. MST, M.S.T. Standard time in the seventh time zone west of Greenwich, England, reckoned at 105° west and used in the Rocky Mountain states of the United States.

Also called Mountain Time moun-tain-top (moun'tən-tōp') n. The summit of a mountain.

Mountain View (moun'tən vyō) A city of western California on San Francisco Bay northwest of San Jose. It is a manufacturing center with research facilities. Population, 67,460.

mountain whitefish (moun'tən hwīt'fĭsh') n. A whitefish (Prospium williamsoni) with a slender body and short head, found in mountain streams of western North America.

Mount Ath-os (mount äth'ös, ä'thös, ä'thôs) See Athos.

Mount-bat-ten (mount-bät'n), Louis First Earl Mountbatten of Burma.

1900-1979. British naval officer and colonial administrator who was supreme Allied commander in southeast Asia (1943-1946) and the last viceroy and governor-general of India (1947). He was assassinated by the Irish Republican Army.

Mount Clem-ens (mount klēm'ənz) A city of southeast Michigan north-northeast of Detroit. It is a health resort known for its mineral waters. Population, 18,405.

Mount Des-ert Island (mount dəz'ərt ī'lənd) An island in the Atlantic Ocean off the southern coast of Maine. Named by 17th-century French explorers for its Monts Deserts, or "wilderness peaks," it is a popular summer resort.

moun-te-bank (moun'tə-bāngk') n. 1. A hawker of quack medicines who attracts customers with stories, jokes, or tricks. 2. A flamboyant charlatan. See Synonyms at impostor. — v. moun-te-banked, moun-te-bank-ing, moun-te-banks. — v. intr. To act as a mountebank. — v. tr. Archaic. To ensnare or prevail over with trickery. [Italian montabanco, from the phrase monta im banco, one gets up onto the bench : monta, one gets up, third person sing. present tense of montare, to get up (from Vulgar Latin montāre*); see MOUNT¹ + im, onto (variant of in, on, onto, from Latin); see IN⁻² + banco, bench (variant of banca, from Old Italian, bench, table, from Old High German bank).]

Mount-ie also Mount-y (moun'tē) n. pl. Mount-ies. Informal. A member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

mount-ing (moun'tiŋ) n. Something that serves as a support, setting, or backing: a mounting for a gem.

Mount-lake Terrace (mount'lāk' tēr'is) A city of northwest Washington south of Everett. It is mainly residential. Population, 19,320.

Mount Leb-a-non (mount lēb'ə-nən, -nōn') A community of southwest Pennsylvania, a residential suburb of Pittsburgh. Population, 33,362.

Mount Pleas-ant (mount plēz'ənt) A city of central Michigan west-northwest of Saginaw. Oil was discovered nearby in 1928. Population, 23,285.

Mount Pros-pect (mount prös'pēkt') A village of northeast Illinois, an industrial suburb of Chicago. Population, 53,170.

Mount Roy-al (mount roi'əl) See Mont Royal.

Mount Ver-non¹ (mount vûr'nən) An estate of northeast Virginia on the Potomac River near Washington, D.C. It was the home of George Washington from 1752 until his death in 1799. The mansion, built in 1743 by Lawrence Washington, George's half-brother, has been restored and is open to the public.

Mount Ver-non² (mount vûr'nən) 1. A city of south-central Illinois east-southeast of East St. Louis. It is a trade and industrial center in a farming region. Population, 16,988. 2. A city of southeast New York adjacent to the Bronx. Primarily residential, it was laid out as a planned community in the 1850's. Population, 67,153.

Mount-y (moun'tē) n. Variant of Mountie.

mourn (môrn, mōrn) v. mourned, mourn-ing, mourns. — v. intr. 1. To feel or express grief or sorrow. See Synonyms at grieve. 2. To show grief for a death by conventional signs, as by wearing black clothes. 3. To make a low, indistinct, mournful sound. Used especially of a dove. — v. tr. 1. To feel or express deep regret for: mourned the wasted years. 2. To grieve over (someone who has died). 3. To utter sorrowfully. [Middle English mournen, from Old English mur-nan. See (s)mer-¹ in Appendix.] —mourn'er n. —mourn'ing-ly adv.

mourn-ful (môrn'fəl, mōrn'-) adj. 1. Feeling or expressing sorrow or grief; sorrowful. 2. Causing or suggesting sadness or melancholy: the mournful sound of a train whistle. —mourn'ful-ly adv. —mourn'ful-ness n.

mourn-ing (môr'nĭng, mōr'-) n. 1. The actions or expressions of one who has suffered a bereavement. 2. Conventional outward signs of grief for the dead, such as a black armband or black clothes. 3. The period during which a death is mourned.

mourning cloak (môr'nĭng klōk) n. A large butterfly (Nymphalis antiopa) of Europe and North America, having purplish-brown wings with a broad yellow border.

mourning dove (môr'nĭng düv) n. A grayish-brown, swift-flying wild dove (Zenaidura macroura) of North America, noted for its mournful call. Also called turtledove mourning warbler (môr'nĭng wôr'blər) n. A yellow and olive warbler (Oporornis philadelphia) of eastern North America, having a bluish gray hood set off by a black band on its breast.

Mous-cron (mōō-skrôn') also Moes-kroen (mōōs'krōōn') A city of western Belgium near the French border west-southwest of Brussels. It was founded as a frontier station. Population, 54,402.

mouse (mous) n. pl. mice (mīs). 1. a. Any of numerous small rodents of the families Muridae and Cricetidae, such as the common house mouse (Mus musculus), characteristically having a pointed snout, small, rounded ears, and a long, naked or almost hairless tail. b. Any of various similar or related animals, such as the jumping mouse, the vole, or the jerboa. 2. A cowardly or timid person. 3. Informal. A discolored swelling under the eye caused by a blow; a black eye. 4. pl. mice or mous-es (mous'ĭz). Computer Science. A hand-held, button-activated input device that when rolled along a flat surface directs an indicator to move correspondingly about a computer screen, allowing the operator to move the indicator freely, as to select operations or manipulate text or graphics. — v. intr. moused, mous-ing, mous-es (mouz). 1. To hunt mice. 2. To search furtively for something; prowl. [Middle English mous, from Old English mūs. See mūs- in Appendix.]

mouse deer (mous dîr) n. See chevrotain. [Probably alteration (influenced by MOOSE, and MOUSE), of MUSK DEER.]

mouse-ear chickweed (mous'îr' chik'wēd') n. Any of numerous herbs of the genus Cerastium, having opposite leaves and cylindrical capsules with ten toothlike projections.

mous·er (mou'zər) n. An animal, especially a cat, that catches mice.

mouse-tail (mous'tāl') n. A plant of the genus Myosurus, especially M. minimus, having a taillike flower spike.

mouse-trap (mous'trăp') n. A trap for catching mice. — v. tr.

mouse-trapped, mouse-trap-ping, mouse-traps. To trap or ensnare, as by a stratagem.

mous·ey (mou'sē, -zē) adj. Variant of mousy.

mous·ing (mou'zɪŋ) n. Nautical. A binding or metal shackle around the point and shank of a hook to prevent it from slipping from an eye. [From MOUSE, a large mouselike knot on a rope.]

mous·sa·ka (mōō-sä'kə, mōō'sä-kä') n. A Greek dish consisting of layers of ground lamb or beef and sliced eggplant topped with a cheese sauce and baked. [Serbo-Croatian, from Turkish mussakka, from Arabic musakka.]

mousse (mōōs) n. 1. Any of various chilled desserts made with flavored whipped cream, gelatin, and eggs: chocolate mousse. 2. A molded dish containing meat, fish, or shellfish combined with whipped cream and gelatin. 3. An aerosol foam used to control and style the hair. — v. tr. moussed, mouss·ing, mouss·es. To apply a styling foam to (the hair). [French, foam, mousse, from Old French, moss, foam, partly of Germanic origin, and partly from Latin mulsa, hydromel, from feminine of mulsus, honey-sweet; see melit- in Appendix.]

mousse·line (mōōs-lēn') n. 1. A fine sheer fabric resembling muslin, originally made in Mosul, Iraq. 2. A hollandaise sauce to which whipped cream has been added. 3. An aspic containing whipped cream. [French. See MUSLIN.]

mousseline de soie (mōōs-lēn' də swä') n. pl. mousselines de soie. A fine, crisp fabric made of silk or rayon. [French : mousseline, muslin + de, of + soie, silk.]

mous·tache (müs'tăsh', mə-stăsh') n. Variant of mustache.

mous·ta·chioed (mə-stăch'ōd, -stăsh'ē-ōd', -stă'shōd, -shē-ōd') adj. Variant of mustachioed.

Mous·te·ri·an (mōō-stîr'ē-ən) adj. Archaeology. Designating or belonging to a Middle Paleolithic culture following the Acheulian and associated with Neanderthal man, characterized by the use of flaked tools. [French moustérien, after Le Moustier, a cave in southwest France.]

mous·y also mous·ey (mou'sē, -zē) adj. mous·i·er, mous·i·est.

1. Resembling a mouse, especially: a. Having a drab, pale brown color: mousy hair. b. Having small, sharp features: a mousy face. c. Quiet; timid; shy.

2. Infested with mice.

mouth (mouth) n. pl. mouths (mouthz). 1. a. The body opening through which an animal takes in food. b. The cavity lying at the upper end of the alimentary canal, bounded on the outside by the lips and inside by the oropharynx and containing in higher vertebrates the tongue, gums, and teeth. c. This cavity regarded as the source of sounds and speech. d. The opening to any cavity or canal in an organ or a bodily part. 2. The part of the lips visible on the human face. 3. A person viewed as a consumer of food: has three mouths to feed at home. 4. A pout, grimace, or similar expression. 5. a. Utterance; voice: gave mouth to her doubts. b. A tendency to talk excessively or unwisely. c. Impudent or vulgar talk: Watch your mouth. 6. A spokesperson: a mouthpiece. 7. A natural opening, as the part of a stream or river that empties into a larger body of water or the entrance to a harbor, canyon, valley, or cave. 8. The opening through which a container is filled or emptied. 9. The opening between the jaws of a vise or other holding or gripping tool. 10. Music. a. An opening in the pipe of an organ.

b. The opening in the mouthpiece of a flute across which the player blows. — v. mouthed, mouth·ing, mouths (mouth). — v. tr. 1. To speak or pronounce, especially: a. To declare in a pompous manner; declaim: mouthed his opinions of the candidates. b. To utter without conviction or understanding: mouthed empty compliments. c. To form soundlessly: I mouthed the words as the others sang. d. To utter indistinctly; mumble. 2. To take or move around in the mouth. — v. intr. 1. To orate affectedly; declaim. 2. To grimace. — phrasal verb. mouth off. Slang. 1. a. To express one's opinions or complaints in a loud, indiscreet manner. b. To speak impudently; talk back. 2. a. To express one's opinions or complaints in a loud, indiscreet manner. b. To speak impudently; talk back. [Middle English, from Old English mūth. See men-² in Appendix.]

mouth·breed·er (mouth'brē'dər) n. Any of various fishes, especially of the genera Haplochromis and Tilapia, that carry their eggs and young in the mouth.

mouth·ful (mouth'fööl') n. 1. The amount of food or other material that can be placed or held in the mouth at one time. 2. A small amount to be tasted or eaten. 3. A long word, name, or phrase that is difficult to pronounce. 4. An important or perceptive remark: You said a mouthful!

mouth·ing (mou'thɪŋ) n. A bombastic or empty phrase or speech. Often used in the plural: mouthings about sin and morality.

mouth organ (mouth ôr'gən) n. Music. 1. See harmonica (n., sense 1). 2. See panpipe.

mouth·part (mouth/'pärt') n. Any of the parts of the mouth of an insect or other arthropod, especially a part or an organ adapted to a specific way of feeding.

mouth·piece (mouth/'pēs') n. 1. A part, as of a musical instrument or a telephone, that functions in or near the mouth. 2. Sports. A protective rubber device worn over the teeth, as by boxers. 3. Informal. One, such as a spokesperson, through which views are expressed. 4. Slang. A defense lawyer.

mouth-to-mouth resuscitation (mouth/'tə-mouth/' rī-sūs/'ī-tā/'shən) n. A technique used to resuscitate a person who has stopped breathing, in which the rescuer presses his or her mouth against the mouth of the victim and, allowing for passive exhalation, forces air into the lungs at intervals of several seconds.

mouth·wash (mouth/'wōsh', -wōsh') n. A flavored, usually antiseptic solution used for cleaning the mouth and freshening the breath.

mouth·wa·ter·ing or mouth·wa·ter·ing (mouth/'wô'tər-ĭng) adj. Appealing to the sense of taste; appetizing: the mouthwatering aroma of a baking pie.

mouth·y (mou/'thē, -thē) adj. mouth·i·er, mouth·i·est. 1. Annoyingly talkative. 2. Given to ranting or bombast. —mouth/i·ness n.

mou·ton (mōō/'tōn') n. Sheepskin that has been sheared and processed to resemble beaver or seal. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: mouton jackets; a mouton hat. [French, sheep, from Old French. See MUTTON.]

mou·ton·née (mōō/'tə-nā') also mou·ton·néed (-nād') adj. Geology.

Rounded by glacial action into a shape likened to a sheep's back. Used of a rock formation. [Short for French roche moutonnée: roche, rock + moutonnée, fleecy, past participle of moutonner, to make fleecy (from mouton, sheep); see MOUTON.]

mov·a·ble also move·a·ble (mōō/'və-bəl) adj. 1. Possible to move: a movable stove; a movable rock. 2. Varying in date from year to year: a movable holiday.

3. Law. Of or relating to personal property that can be moved. — n.

1. Something, especially a piece of furniture, that can be moved. 2. Often movables. Law. Personal property. —mov'a·bil'i·ty, mov'a·ble·ness n.

—mov'a·bly adv.

movable feast (mōō/'və-bəl fēst) n. A religious holiday, such as Easter, that changes in date from year to year.

movable type (mōō/'və-bəl tīp) n. Printing. Type in which each character is cast on a separate piece of metal.

move (mōōv) v. moved, mov·ing, moves. — v. intr. 1. To change in position from one point to another: moved away from the window. 2. To progress in sequence; go forward: a novel that moves slowly. 3. To follow a specified course: Earth moves around the sun. 4. To progress toward a particular state or condition: moving up in the company; moved into the lead. 5. To go from one residence or location to another; relocate. 6. To start off; depart. 7. To be disposed of by sale: Woolens move slowly in the summer. 8. To change posture or position; stir: was afraid to move. 9. Games. To change the position of a piece in a board game. 10. To be put in motion or to turn according to a prescribed motion. Used of machinery. 11. To exhibit great activity or energy. 12. To initiate an action; act. 13. To be active in a particular environment: moves in diplomatic circles. 14. To stir the emotions: words that have the power to move. 15. To make a formal motion in parliamentary procedure: move for an adjournment. 16. To evacuate. Used of the bowels. — v. tr. 1. To change the place or position of: moved her office; could not move his arm. 2. To cause to go from one place to another: moved the crowd away. 3. Games. To change (a piece) from one position to another in a board game: moved a pawn. 4. To change the course of: moved the discussion to other matters. 5. To dislodge from a fixed point of view, as by persuasion: “Speak to him, ladies, see if you can move him” (Shakespeare). 6. To prompt to an action; rouse: Anger moved her to speak out. 7. a. To set or keep in motion. b. To cause to function. c. To cause to progress or advance. 8. a. To arouse the emotions of; affect. b. To excite or provoke to the expression of an emotion: The film moved me to tears. See Synonyms at affect¹. 9. a. To propose or request in formal parliamentary procedure: moved that a vote be taken. b. To make formal application to (a court, for example). 10. To dispose of by sale: moved the new merchandise quickly. 11. To cause (the bowels) to evacuate. — n. 1. a. The act or an instance of moving. b. A particular manner of moving: made some intricate moves on the dance floor. 2. A change of residence or location. 3. Games. a. An act of transferring a piece from one position to another in board games. b. The prescribed manner in which a piece may be played. c. A participant’s turn to make a play. 4. An action taken to achieve an objective; a maneuver: a move to halt the arms race. — phrasal verb. move in. To begin to occupy a residence or place of business. — idioms. get a move on. Informal. To get started; get going. move in on. 2. To make intrusive advances toward; intrude on. 3. To attempt to seize control of: moving in on their territory. on the move. 4. Busily moving about; active: A nurse is on the move all day. 5. Going from one place to another: troops on the move. 6. Making progress; advancing: a technology that is clearly on the move. [Middle English moven, from Old French movoir, from Latin movēre. See meuə- in Appendix.]

move·a·ble (mōv’və-bəl) adj. & n. Variant of movable.

move·ment (mōv’mənt) n. 1. a. The act or an instance of moving; a change in place or position. b. A particular manner of moving. 2. A change in the location of troops, ships, or aircraft for tactical or strategic purposes. 3. a. A series of actions and events taking place over a period of time and working to foster a principle or policy: a movement toward world peace. b. An organized effort by supporters of a common goal: an early leader of the labor movement. 4. A tendency or trend: a movement toward larger kitchens. 5. A change in the market price of a security or commodity. 6. a. An evacuation of the bowels. b. The matter so evacuated. 7. The suggestion or illusion of motion in a painting, sculpture, or design. 8. The progression of events in the development of a literary plot. 9. The rhythmical or metrical structure of a poetic composition. 10. Music. A self-contained section of a composition. 11. A mechanism, such as the works of a watch, that produces or transmits motion.

mov·er (mōō'vər) n. 1. One that moves: a fast mover in corporate circles.

2. One that transports household or office goods from one location to another as an occupation.

mover and shaker (mōō'vər ənd shā'kər) n. pl. movers and shakers.

One who wields power and influence in a sphere of activity: "the importance of hanging out with the movers and shakers of the art world" (Richard Colvin).

mov·ie (mōō'vē) n. 1. a. A sequence of photographs projected onto a screen with sufficient rapidity as to create the illusion of motion and continuity. b. A connected cinematic narrative represented in this form. 2. A theater that shows movies. 3. movies. a. A showing of a movie. Often used with the. b. The movie industry. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a movie producer; movie stars. [Shortening and alteration of MOVING PICTURE.]

mov·ie·dom (mōō'vē-dəm) n. See filmdom.

mov·ie·go·er (mōō'vē-gō'ər) n. One who goes to see movies.

—mov'ie·go'ing adj. & n.

mov·ie·mak·er (mōō'vē-mā'kər) n. One that makes movies, especially professionally. —mov'ie·mak'ing adj. & n.

mov·ing (mōō'vɪŋ) adj. 1. Changing or capable of changing position: a moving target. 2. Relating to or involved in a transfer of furnishings from one location to another: moving expenses; moving van. 3. Causing or producing motion. 4. Involving a motor vehicle in motion: a moving violation. 5. Arousing or capable of arousing deep emotion: a moving account of the tragedy. —mov'ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: moving, stirring, poignant, touching, pathetic, affecting. These adjectives mean arousing or capable of arousing deep, usually somber emotion. Moving is the least specific: "A... widow... has laid her case of destitution before him in a very moving letter" (Nathaniel Hawthorne). Something stirring excites strong, turbulent, but not unpleasant feelings, as of inspiration: An advocate for the homeless gave a stirring speech about their plight. Poignant suggests the evocation of keen, painful emotion: "Poignant grief cannot endure forever" (W.H. Hudson). Touching emphasizes sympathy or tenderness: Her expression of gratitude was simple and touching. Pathetic stresses pity and compassion: "The old, rather shabby room struck her as extraordinarily pathetic" (John Galsworthy). Affecting applies especially to what is heart-rending or bittersweet: The homecoming of the released hostages and their reunion with their families was an affecting scene.

moving picture (mōō'vīng pīk'chər) n. A movie.

moving sidewalk (mōō'vīng sīd'wōk') n. A conveyor for transporting pedestrians along a flat expanse.

mow¹ (mou) n. 1. The place in a barn where hay, grain, or other feed is stored. 2. A stack of hay or other feed stored in a barn. [Middle English, stack of hay, from Old English mūga.]

mow² (mō) v. mowed, mowed or mown (mōn), mow-ing, mows. — v. tr. 1. To cut down (grass or grain) with a scythe or a mechanical device. 2. To cut (grass or grain) from: mow the lawn. — v. intr. To cut down grass or other growth. — phrasal verb. mow down. 1. To destroy in great numbers as if cutting down, as in battle. 2. To overwhelm: mowed down the opposition with strong arguments. [Middle English mowen, from Old English māwan. See mē⁻⁴ in Appendix.] — mow'er (mō'ər) n.

mox-ie (mōk'sē) n. Slang. 1. The ability to face difficulty with spirit and courage. 2. Aggressive energy; initiative: "His prose has moxie, though it rushes and stumbles from a pent-up surge" (Patricia Hampl). 3. Skill; know-how. [From Moxie, trademark for a soft drink.]

moy-en âge (mwä-yēn äzh') n. The Middle Ages. [French : moyen, middle + âge, age.]

Mo-zam-bique (mō'zəm-bēk', -zām-) Abbr. Moz. A country of southeast Africa. The Portuguese colonized the area beginning in 1505 and governed it as part of their Indian holdings until 1752, when a separate administrative unit was formed. As Portuguese East Africa it became an overseas province in 1951, but increasing nationalist feeling and guerrilla activity forced Portugal to grant Mozambique its independence in 1975. Maputo is the capital and the largest city. Population, 12,130,000. — Mo'zam-bi'can (-bē'kən) adj. & n.

Mozambique Channel (mō'zəm-bēk' chän'əl) An arm of the Indian Ocean between Madagascar and the mainland of southeast Africa.

Moz-ar-ab (mō-zār'əb) n. One of a group of Spanish Christians who adopted certain aspects of Arab culture under Muslim rule but practiced a modified form of Christian worship. [Spanish Mozárabe, from Arabic musta'rib, would-be Arab, from 'arab, Arab.] — Moz-ar'a-bic adj.

Mo-zart (mōt'särt), Wolfgang Amadeus. 1756-1791. Austrian composer considered among the greatest and most prolific composers in history. Of his more than 600 compositions, the finest works, including his last three symphonies (1788) and the operas Don Giovanni (1787) and The Magic Flute (1791), were written in the last five years of his short life.

mo-zet-ta (mō-zēt'tə, mōt-sēt'tä) n. Variant of mozzetta.

mo-zo (mō'zō) n. pl. mo-zos. Southwestern U.S. 1. A man who helps with a pack train or serves as a porter. 2. An assistant. [Spanish, boy, servant, mozo, from Old Spanish moço.]

REGIONAL NOTE: In the world of pack trains and cattle roundups, a mozo provides a useful pair of extra hands. Back home on the ranch, the mozo helps with odd jobs, especially heavy work around the house. In the southwest United States mozo has taken on a general sense of “assistant,” even in areas not related to ranching: “An enterprising deputy of the opposition Partido de Acción Nacional (PAN) called a quorum count, only to find that... many of the reclining figures occasionally raising their hands were mozos (attendants)” (Latin America). In fact, to call an assistant a mozo is essentially to call him a “boy,” for mozo is Spanish for “young man.” Even though a mozo may not be a boy in years, the word is not used disparagingly. In other languages porters or guides are commonly referred to as “boys”—for example, gillie, from Scottish Gaelic gille, means “boy.”

moz-za-rel-la (mōt'sə-rēl'ə, mōt'-) n. A mild, white Italian cheese that has a rubbery texture and is often eaten melted, as on pizza. [Italian, diminutive of mozza, a cut, mozzarella, from mozzare, to cut off, from mozzo, mutilated, from Vulgar Latin mutius*, from Latin mutilus.]

moz-zet-ta or mo-zet-ta (mō-zēt'ə, mōt-sēt'tä) n. Roman Catholic Church. A short, hooded cape worn over the rochet by the pope and by bishops and other dignitaries. [Italian, from Medieval Latin almutia.]

mp or m.p. abbr. 1. Melting point. 2. Music. Mezzo piano.

MP or M.P. abbr. 1. Member of Parliament. 2. Military police. 3. Military police officer. 4. Mounted police.

M.P.A. abbr. 1. Master of Public Administration. 2. Master of Public Accounting.

M.P.E. abbr. Master of Public Education.

mpg or m.p.g. abbr. Miles per gallon.

mph or m.p.h. abbr. Miles per hour.

M.P.H. abbr. Master of Public Health.

Mr. (mīs'tər) n. pl. Messrs. (mēs'ərz). Used as a courtesy title before the surname or full name of a man. See Usage Note at Ms. [Middle English, abbreviation of maister, master. See MASTER.]

Mr. Char-lie or Mister Char-lie (mīs'tər chār'lē) n. Offensive Slang. A white person or white people considered as a group. [From the name Charlie, nickname for Charles.]

Mr. Clean (mīs'tər klēn) n. Slang. A man who adheres to the highest standards of personal and professional conduct, especially a public figure of unquestioned integrity. [From Mr. Clean, trademark used for a cleaning product.]

M.R.E. abbr. Meals Ready to Eat.

MRI abbr. Magnetic resonance imaging.

mRNA abbr. Messenger RNA.

Mr. Right (mɪs'tər rīt) n. Slang. The man who would make an ideal mate: “self-help guides for women in search of Mr. Right” (Los Angeles Times).

Mrs. (mɪs'ɪz) n. pl. Mmes. (mā-dām', -dām'). 1. Used as a courtesy title for a married or widowed woman before the surname or full name of her husband: Mrs. Doe; Mrs. John Doe. 2. Used as a courtesy title for a married, widowed, or divorced woman before her own surname or full name: Mrs. Doe; Mrs. Jane Doe. See Usage Note at Ms. [Abbreviation of MISTRESS.]

Mrs. Grundy (mɪs'ɪz grʌn'dē) n. An extremely conventional or priggish person. [After Mrs. Grundy, character alluded to in the play Speed the Plough by Thomas Morton (1764-1838), British playwright.]

ms abbr. Millisecond.

MS abbr. 1. Mississippi. 2. Multiple sclerosis.

Ms. also Ms (mɪz) n. pl. Mses. also Mses also Mss. or Mss (mɪz'ɪz). Used as a courtesy title before the surname or full name of a woman or girl: Ms. Doe; Ms. Jane Doe. [Blend of MISS, and MRS..]

USAGE NOTE: Ms. has come to be widely used in both professional and social contexts. Many women prefer it to Miss or Mrs. because they feel that information about their marital status properly belongs to the realm of private life and is often inappropriate to many of the contexts in which such titles are used. Many people also find Ms. convenient, since information about an addressee's marital status is not always available. But there are also many women who continue to prefer Miss or Mrs., and practices vary widely according to the region and social setting. • The use of Ms. is equivalent to that of Mr.: Mr. Green, Mr. Paul Green; Ms. Smith, Ms. Judith Smith. If a woman keeps her own name after marriage, Ms. is the appropriate courtesy title: if Judith Smith marries Paul Green and does not change her name to Green, Ms. Smith is the appropriate title and Mrs. Smith is incorrect. If a woman takes her husband's name, either Ms. or Mrs. may be used, although Ms. should not be used if the woman is addressed by her husband's given name and surname: Ms. Green, Ms. Judith Green, but not Ms. Paul Green. Some women who keep their own names for professional purposes use the title Miss in that context, while others use Ms.

MS. or MS also ms. or ms abbr. Manuscript.

M.S. abbr. Latin. Magister Scientiae (Master of Science).

M.Sc. abbr. Latin. Magister Scientiae (Master of Science).

MS-DOS (ɛm'ɛs-dōs', -dōs') A trademark for a microcomputer operating system.

msec abbr. Millisecond.

Mses. (mīz'īz) also Mses n. Plurals of Ms.

MSG abbr. Monosodium glutamate.

msg. abbr. Message.

Msgr. abbr. 1. Monseigneur. 2. Monsignor.

M.Sgt. or MSGT abbr. Master sergeant.

MSH abbr. Melanocyte-stimulating hormone.

M.S. in L.S. abbr. Master of Science in Library Science.

m.s.l. or M.S.L. abbr. Mean sea level.

M.S.N. abbr. Master of Science in Nursing.

Mss. (mīz'īz) or Mss n. Plurals of Ms.

MSS. or MSS also mss. or mss abbr. Manuscripts.

MST or M.S.T. abbr. Mountain Standard Time.

M.S.T.S. abbr. Military Sea Transportation Service.

M.S.W. abbr. 1. Master of Social Welfare. 2. Master of Social Work.

Mt abbr. Bible. Matthew.

MT abbr. 1. Machine translation. 2. Megaton. 3. Montana. 4. Or M.T. Mountain Time.

mt. or Mt. abbr. Mount; mountain.

m.t. or M.T. abbr. Metric ton.

mtg. abbr. 1. Meeting. 2. Mortgage.

mtge. abbr. Mortgage.

mtn. or Mtn. abbr. Mountain.

mts. or Mts. abbr. Mountains.

mu (myōō, mōō) n. The 12th letter of the Greek alphabet. [Greek, of Phoenician origin; akin to Hebrew mēm.]

Mu-bar-ak (mōō-bār'ək), Hosni. Born 1929. Egyptian politician who was appointed president after the assassination of Anwar el-Sadat (1981).

muc- pref. Variant of muco-.

much (mūch) adj. more (mōr, mōr), most (mōst). Great in quantity, degree, or extent: not much rain; much affection. — n. 1. A large quantity or amount: Much has been written. 2. Something great or remarkable: I've never been much to look at. — adv. more, most. 1. To a great degree or extent: much smarter. 2. Just about; almost: much the same. 3. Frequently; often: doesn't get out much. — idiom. much less. And certainly not: "Happiness is an emotion not often spoken of at the magazine, much less experienced" (Brendan Gill). [Middle English muche, short for muchel, from Old English mycel. See meg- in Appendix.]

much as (mūch āz) conj. However much: Much as she needed the job, she had to refuse.

much-ness (mūch'nīs) n. Greatness of quantity, degree, or extent.

muci- pref. Variant of muco-.

mu-cic acid (myōō'sīk əs'īd) n. An organic acid, HOOC(CHOH)₄COOH, often derived from milk sugar.

mu-cif-er-ous (myōō-sīf'ər-əs) adj. Secreting, producing, or containing mucus.

mu-ci-lage (myōō'sə-līj) n. 1. A sticky substance used as an adhesive. 2. A gummy substance obtained from certain plants. [Middle English muscilage, gelatinous plant substance, from Old French mucilage, from Late Latin mūcilāgō, mūcilāgin-, from Latin mūcēre, to be musty, from mūcus, mucus.]

mu-ci-lag-i-nous (myōō'sə-lāj'ə-nəs) adj. 1. Resembling mucilage; moist and sticky. 2. Relating to or secreting mucilage.

mu-cin (myōō'sin) n. Any of a group of glycoproteins found especially in the secretions of mucous membranes. —mu'cin-ous adj.

muck (mūk) n. 1. A moist, sticky mixture, especially of mud and filth. 2. Moist farmyard dung; manure. 3. Dark, fertile soil containing decaying vegetable matter. 4. Something filthy or disgusting. 5. Earth, rocks, or clay excavated in mining. — v. tr. mucked, muck-ing, mucks. 1. To fertilize with manure or compost. 2. To make dirty with or as if with muck. 3. To remove muck or dirt from (a mine, for example). —phrasal verbs. muck about. Chiefly British. To spend time idly; putter. muck up. Informal. To bungle, damage, or ruin.

[Middle English muk, of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse myki, dung.]

—muck'i-ly adv. —muck'y adj.

muck-a-muck (mūk'ə-mūk') n. Slang. A high muckamuck. [Short for HIGH MUCKAMUCK.]

muck-rake (mūk'rāk') v. intr. muck-raked, muck-rak-ing, muck-rakes. To search for and expose misconduct in public life. [From the man with the muck-rake, who cannot look up to heaven because he is so obsessed with the muck of worldly profit, in Pilgrim's Progress by John Bunyan.] —muck'rak'er n.

muck-worm (mūk'wūrm') n. Any wormlike insect larva, as of certain beetles, that lives and grows in manure.

muco- or muci- or muc- pref. 1. Mucus: mucoprotein. 2. Mucosa: mucin. [From Latin mūcus, mucus.]

mu-co-cu-ta-ne-ous (myōō'kō-kyōō-tā'nē-əs) adj. Of or relating to the skin and a mucous membrane.

mu-coid (myōō'koid') n. Any of various glycoproteins, especially a mucoprotein, similar to the mucins. — adj. Of, relating to, or resembling mucus.

mu-co-lyt-ic (myōō'kə-līt'ik) adj. Breaking down or hydrolyzing mucus or mucopolysaccharides.

mu-co-pep-tide (myōō'kō-pèp'tīd) n. See peptidoglycan.

mu-co-pol-y-sac-char-ide (myōō'kō-pōl'ē-sāk'ə-rīd') n. See glycosaminoglycan.

mu-co-pro-tein (myōō'kō-prō'tēn', -prō'tē-īn) n. Any of a group of organic compounds, such as the mucins, that consist of a complex of proteins and glycosaminoglycons and are found in body tissues and fluids.

mu-co-pu-ru-lent (myōō'kō-pyōōr'ə-lənt, -yə-lənt) adj. Containing mucus and pus.

mu-co-sa (myōō-kō'sə) n. pl. mu-co-sae (-sē) or mu-co-sas. See mucous membrane. [From Latin, feminine of mūcōsus, mucous. See MUCOUS.] —mu-co'sal adj.

mu-cous (myōō'kəs) adj. 1. Containing, producing, or secreting mucus: a mucous tissue. 2. Relating to, consisting of, or resembling mucus: a mucous substance. [Latin mūcōsus, from mūcus, mucus.]

mucous membrane (myōō'kəs mēm'brān') n. A membrane lining all body passages that communicate with the air, such as the respiratory and alimentary tracts, and having cells and associated glands that secrete mucus. Also called mucosa mu-co-vis-ci-do-sis (myōō'kō-vīs'ī-dō'sīs) n. See cystic fibrosis.

mu-cro (myōō'krō) n. pl. mu-cro-nes (myōō-krō'nēz). A sharp, pointed part or organ, especially a sharp terminal point, as of a leaf or shell. [Latin mūcrō, mūcrōn-, sharp point.]

mu-cro-nate (myōō'krə-nāt') adj. Of or having a mucro; ending abruptly in a sharp point: mucronate feathers; a mucronate leaf. —mu'cro-na'tion n.

mu-cro-nes (myōō-krō'nēz) n. Plural of mucro.

mu-cus (myōō'kəs) n. The viscous, slippery substance that consists chiefly of mucin, water, cells, and inorganic salts and is secreted as a protective lubricant coating by cells and glands of the mucous membranes. [Latin mūcus.]

mud (mūd) n. 1. Wet, sticky, soft earth, as on the banks of a river. 2. Slang. Wet plaster, mortar, or cement. 3. Slanderous or defamatory charges or comments: slinging mud at his opponent. — v. tr. mud-ded, mud-ding, muds. To cover or spatter with or as if with mud. [Middle English mudde, probably from Middle Low German, and Middle Dutch modde.]

Mu-dan-jiang (mōō'dän'jyāng') also Mu-tan-chiang (-tän'chyāng') A city of northeast China southeast of Harbin. It is a railroad junction and industrial center. Population, 400,000.

mud-bug (mūd'būg') n. See crayfish (n., sense 1).

mud cat (mūd kăt) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. See catfish.

mud dauber (mūd dôb'ər) n. Midland U.S. See mud wasp (n., sense 1).

mud-der (mūd'ər) n. A racehorse that runs well on a wet or muddy track.

mud-dle (mūd'l) v. mud-dled, mud-dling, mud-dles. — v. tr. 1. To make turbid or muddy. 2. To mix confusedly; jumble. 3. To confuse or befuddle (the mind), as with alcohol. See Synonyms at confuse. 4. To mismanage or bungle. 5. To stir or mix (a drink) gently. — v. intr. To think, act, or proceed in a confused or aimless manner: muddled along through my high-school years. — n.

1. A disordered condition; a mess or jumble. 2. Mental confusion. —phrasal verb. muddle through. To push on to a favorable outcome in a disorganized way. [Possibly from obsolete Dutch moddelen, to make water muddy, from Middle Dutch, frequentative of modden*, to make muddy, from modde, mud.]

—mud'dler n.

mud·dle·head·ed (müd'l-hĕd'ĭd) adj. 1. Mentally confused. 2. Inept; blundering. —mud'dle·head'ed·ness n.

mud·dy (müd'ĕ) adj. mud·di·er, mud·di·est. 1. Full of or covered with mud. 2. a. Not bright or pure: a muddy color. b. Not clear; cloudy, as with sediment: muddy coffee. 3. Lacking luster; dull: a muddy complexion. 4. Confused or vague: muddy thinking. — v. tr. mud·died, mud·dy·ing, mud·dies. 1. To make dirty or muddy. 2. To make dull or cloudy. 3. To make obscure or confused. —mud'di·ly adv. —mud'di·ness n.

mud eel (müd ēl) n. A small amphibian (Siren lacertina), found in swamps and shallow waters of the southeast United States, that is eellike in appearance and has only front legs, which are partially concealed by external gills.

Mu·dé·jar (moō-thĕ'här) n. pl. Mu·dé·ja·res (-hä-rĕs'). A Muslim who remained in Spain after it had been reconquered by the Christians in the Middle Ages. — adj. Of or relating to a style of Spanish architecture of the 13th to 16th centuries, combining Moorish and Gothic forms: “Geometric designs... interlaced friezes, and coffered ceilings mark the Mudejar style” (Teague Jackson). [Spanish, possibly from Arabic dajana, to remain, stay.]

mud·fish (müd'fĭsh') n. pl. mudfish or mud·fish·es. See bowfin.

mud flat (müd flät) n. Low-lying muddy land that is covered at high tide and exposed at low tide.

mud·flow (müd'flō') n. A downhill movement of soft wet earth and debris, made fluid by rain or melted snow and often building up great speed.

mud·guard (müd'gärd') n. A shield over or behind a vehicle's wheel to prevent mud or water from splashing onto that vehicle or a following vehicle. Also called splashguard mud hen (müd hĕn) n. Any of various birds, such as the coot or rail, inhabiting marshy or coastal regions.

mud minnow (müd mĭn'ō) n. Any of various very small fishes of the family Umbridae, especially of the genus Umbra, living in the muddy areas of North American lakes and ponds and often used as bait.

mud puppy also mud·pup·py (müd'püp'ĕ) n. pl. mud pup·pies also mud·pup·pies. 1. Any of several large North American salamanders of the genus Necturus, especially N. maculosus, that live in lakes and streams and have conspicuous clusters of dark red external gills. Also called water dog 2. Northern U.S. See catfish.

mu·dra (mə-drā') n. A series of symbolic body postures and hand movements used in East Indian classical dancing. [Sanskrit mudrā, seal, mystery, mudra.]

mud·room (müd'rōom', -rōom') n. A small room or entryway in a house where wet or muddy footwear and clothing can be removed.

mud·sill (müd'sil') n. The lowest sill, block, or timber supporting a building, located at or below ground level.

mud·skip·per (müd'skip'ər) n. Any of several fishes of the family Gobiidae, especially of the genus Periophthalmus, that are found along the western coast of tropical Africa and in the Indo-Pacific region and are able to survive out of water and maneuver on land.

mud·slide (müd'slid') n. A mudflow, especially a slow-moving one.

mud·sling·er (müd'slɪŋ'ər) n. One who makes malicious charges and otherwise attempts to discredit an opponent, as in a political campaign. —mud/sling'ing n.

mud snake (müd snāk) n. A burrowing snake (Farancia abacura) of swamps and lowlands of the southeast United States, having black scales with reddish markings.

mud·stone (müd'stōn') n. A fine-grained, dark gray sedimentary rock, formed from silt and clay and similar to shale but without laminations.

mud turtle (müd tûr'tl) n. Any of various small turtles of the genus Kinosternon, having hinged lobes on the ventral part of the shell and found in slow-moving fresh waters throughout the Western Hemisphere.

mud wasp (müd wɔsp) n. 1. Northeastern U.S. Any of various wasps that build nests of mud with cellular compartments for eggs and paralyzed prey. Regional. Also called mud dauber 2. See potter wasp.

Muen·ster or Mun·ster (mün'stər, mōon'-) n. A semisoft, creamy cheese of mild flavor. [After Munster, a town of northeast France.]

mues·li (myōōz'lē) n. A mixture of usually untoasted rolled oats and dried fruit, often used as a breakfast cereal. [German dialectal, diminutive of German Mus, mush, from Middle High German muos, a meal, mushlike food, from Old High German.]

mu·ez·zin (myōō-ēz'in, mōō-) n. Islam. The crier who calls the faithful to prayer five times a day. [Ottoman Turkish müezzin, or Persian muazzin from Arabic mu'addin, active participle of 'addana, to cause to listen, from 'udn, ear.]

muff¹ (müf) v. muffed, muff·ing, muffs. — v. tr. 1. To perform or handle clumsily; bungle. See Synonyms at botch. 2. Sports. To fail to make (a catch). — v. intr. To perform an act clumsily. — n. 1. A clumsy or bungled action. 2. Sports. A failure to make a catch. [Origin unknown.]

muff² (müf) n. 1. A small cylindrical fur or cloth cover, open at both ends, in which the hands are placed for warmth. 2. A cluster of feathers on the side of the face of certain breeds of fowl. [Dutch mof, from Middle Dutch moffel, from Old

French moufle, mitten, from Medieval Latin muffula, perhaps of Germanic origin.]

muf·fin (mŭf'ɪn) n. 1. A small, cup-shaped quick bread, often sweetened and usually served warm. 2. An English muffin. [Possibly from Low German Muffen, pl. of Muffe, small cake, from Middle Low German.]

muffin pan (mŭf'ɪn păn) n. A baking pan in the form of connected cup-shaped molds, used in making muffins and cupcakes.

muf·fle¹ (mŭf'əl) v. tr. muf·fled, muf·fling, muf·fles. 1. To wrap up, as in a blanket or shawl, for warmth, protection, or secrecy. 2. a. To wrap or pad in order to deaden the sound: muffled the drums. b. To deaden (a sound): The sand muffled the hoofbeats. 3. To make vague or obscure: "His message was so muffled by learning and 'artiness'" (Walter Blair). 4. To repress; stifle. — n.

1. Something that muffles. 2. A kiln or part of a kiln in which pottery can be fired without being exposed to direct flame. [Middle English muflen, possibly from Old French mofler, to stuff, from mofle, glove. See MUFF².]

muf·fle² (mŭf'əl) n. The fleshy, hairless snout of certain mammals, such as ruminants. [French mufl, perhaps blend of moufle, chubby face (from Old French); see MUFF², museau, muzzle (from Old French musel); see MUZZLE.]

muf·fler (mŭf'lər) n. 1. A heavy scarf worn around the neck for warmth. 2. A device that absorbs noise, especially one used with an internal-combustion engine.

muf·fu·let·ta (moo'fə-lət'ə) n. New Orleans. A sandwich made with a large round roll of Italian bread split in half and filled with layers of hard salami, ham, provolone, and olive salad. [Italian dialectal, bread with a filling, from Italian muffa, mold, probably of Germanic origin.]

REGIONAL NOTE: The New Orleans muffuletta is one of the only American sandwiches not made with a long crusty roll. Instead, it is made by filling a round loaf of Italian bread with layers of hard salami, ham, provolone, and olive salad. The shape of the bread and the presence of the olive salad distinguishes the muffuletta from the submarine sandwich. Marian Burros of the New York Times traces the creation of the muffuletta to Salvatore Lupa's Central Grocery in New Orleans in 1910. The sandwich was a favorite lunch for Louisiana farmers on their trips into town.

muf·ti¹ (mŭf'tē, mōof'-) n. pl. muf·tis. A Muslim scholar who interprets the shari'a. [Arabic muftī, from 'aftā, to decide by legal opinion.]

muf·ti² (mŭf'tē) n. pl. muf·tis. Civilian dress, especially when worn by one who normally wears a uniform. [Probably from MUFTI¹.]

mug¹ (mŭg) n. 1. A heavy cylindrical drinking cup usually having a handle. 2. The amount that such a cup can hold. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin.]

mug² (müg) n. 1. Informal. a. The human face. See Synonyms at face. b. The area of the human mouth, chin, and jaw. c. A grimace. d. A mug shot. 2. A thug; a hoodlum. 3. Chiefly British. A victim or dupe. — v. mugged, mug-ging, mugs. — v. tr. 1. Informal. To photograph (a person's face) for police files. 2. To threaten or assault (a person) with the intent to rob. — v. intr. To make exaggerated facial expressions, especially for humorous effect. [Probably from MUG¹ (possibly in allusion to mugs decorated with grotesque faces).]

WORD HISTORY: Various senses of the term mug illustrate uses and abuses of the human face. One use to which the face was put in the 18th century was as a form of decoration for cups or mugs. It is probably from these grotesque and striking faces that mug came to mean “face,” the word in this sense being first recorded in 1708. The next recorded development of mug is its use as a verb in 1818 in the sense “to strike in the face.” This verb has developed the sense “to attack and rob,” all too familiar to urban dwellers. The face's role in conveying emotion explains the development of the verb sense “to make faces, grimace,” recorded first in 1855. Another sense of the noun, “photograph or portrait of the face,” found earliest in 1887, is an obvious development, although it is ironic that those who mug criminally end up in a mug book. The use of the face to express affection explains the sense “to kiss, fondle,” recorded first in Australia in 1890.

Mu-ga-be (moo-gä'bē), Robert Gabriel. Born 1924. Zimbabwean politician who led the Black nationalist struggle against the white minority government of Rhodesia. After Zimbabwe's independence (1980), he was elected prime minister.

mug-ger¹ (müg'ər) n. 1. One who commits a mugging. 2. One who makes exaggerated faces, as in performing.

mug-ger² (müg'ər) n. A large crocodile (Crocodilus palustris) of southwest Asia, having a very broad wrinkled snout. [Hindi magar, from Sanskrit makaraḥ, crocodile, of Dravidian origin.]

mug-ging (müg'ging) n. An assault upon a person especially with the intent to rob.

mug-gy (müg'ē) adj. mug-gi-er, mug-gi-est. Warm and extremely humid. [Probably from Middle English mugen, to drizzle; akin to Old Norse mugga, a drizzle.] — mug'gi-ness n.

mu-gho pine or mu-go pine (myoo'gō pīn, moo'-) n. A shrubby, prostrate European pine (Pinus mugo) widely cultivated as an ornamental. [French, from Italian mugo.]

mug shot (müg shōt) n. Informal. A photograph of a person's face, especially one made for police files.

mug·wump (mŭg'wŭmp') n. 1. A person who acts independently or remains neutral, especially in politics. 2. Often Mugwump. A Republican who bolted the party in 1884, refusing to support presidential candidate James G. Blaine.

[Massachusetts mugguomp, mummugguomp, war leader.] —mug'wump'er·y n.

Mu·ham·mad (mōō-hām'id, -hā'mīd) See Mohammed.

Mu·ham·mad (mōō-hām'id, -hā'mīd), Elijah. Originally Elijah Poole. 1897-1975. American activist and leader of the Black Muslims (1934-1975) who favored political, social, and economic independence for Black Americans.

Mu·ham·mad·an or Mu·ham·med·an (mōō-hām'i-dən) adj. & n. Variants of Mohammedan.

Mu·ham·mad·an·ism (mōō-hām'i-də-nīz'əm) n. Variant of Mohammedanism.

Mu·har·ram (mōō-hār'əm) also Mo·har·ram (mō-) or Mu·har·rum (mōō-) n. 1. The first month of the Muslim calendar. See Table at calendar. 2. A Shiite festival held during the first ten days of this month. [Arabic Muḥarram, from past participle of ḥarrama, to forbid.]

Muhl·en·berg (myōō'lən-bûrg'), Henry Melchior. 1711-1787. German-born American religious leader of all Lutheran groups in the colonies. His son John Peter Gabriel (1746-1807) was a Revolutionary soldier and a U.S. representative from Pennsylvania (1789-1791, 1793-1795, and 1799-1801). Another son, Frederick Augustus (1750-1801), was a delegate to the Continental Congress (1779-1780) and a U.S. representative (1789-1797) who served as the first speaker of the house.

Muir (myōōr), John. 1838-1914. British-born American naturalist who promoted the creation of national parks and reservations.

mu·ja·hi·deen also mu·ja·he·deen or mu·ja·hi·din (mōō-jā'hě-dēn') pl. n. Muslim guerrilla warriors engaged in a jihad: "As a fighting force, the mujahideen still retain a grim determination to pursue their jihad (holy war) against the invaders from the north" (Edward Girardet). [Arabic, or Persian mujāhidīn, pl. of mujāhid, one who fights in a jihad from jihād, jihad.]

mu·jik (mōō-zhĕk', -zhĭk') n. Variant of muzhik.

Muk·den (mōōk'dən, -dĕn', mōōk'-) See Shenyang.

muk·luk (mŭk'lŭk') n. 1. A soft boot made of reindeer skin or sealskin and worn by Eskimos. 2. A slipper with a soft sole resembling this boot. [Yupik Eskimo maklak, bearded seal.]

mu·lat·to (mōō-lăt'ō, -lătō, myōō-) n. pl. mu·lat·tos or mu·lat·toes. 1. A person having one white and one Black parent. 2. A person of mixed white and Black ancestry. [Spanish, from Arabic muwallad, person of mixed race, from walada, to engender, give birth.]

mul·ber·ry (mŭl'bĕr'ĕ, -bĕ-rĕ) n. 1. a. Any of several deciduous trees of the genus Morus, having unisexual flowers in drooping catkins and edible multiple fruit. b. The sweet fruit of any of these trees. 2. Any of several similar or related trees. 3. Color. A grayish to dark purple. In this sense, also called murrey [Middle English mulberrie, from Old English mōrberie, and Middle Low German mülberi, mūrberi both from Latin mōrum + Old English berie, berry or Old High German beri, berry; see bhā-¹ in Appendix.] — mul'ber'ry adj.

mulch (mŭlch) n. A protective covering, usually of organic matter such as leaves, straw, or peat, placed around plants to prevent the evaporation of moisture, the freezing of roots, and the growth of weeds. — v. tr. mulched, mulch-ing, mulch-es. To cover or surround with mulch. [Probably from Middle English melsche, molsh, soft, from Old English melsc, mellow, mild. See mel-¹ in Appendix.]

mulct (mŭlkt) n. A penalty such as a fine. — v. tr. mulct-ed, mulct-ing, mulcts. 1. To penalize by fining or demanding forfeiture. 2. To acquire by trickery or deception. 3. To defraud or swindle. [From Middle English multen, to fine, from Latin multāre, mulctāre, from mulcta, fine.]

Mul·doon (mŭl-dōon'), Robert David. Born 1921. New Zealand politician and prime minister (1975-1984) who enacted economic reforms to counteract the nation's high inflation, unemployment, and national debt.

mule¹ (myōol) n. 1. The sterile hybrid offspring of a male donkey and a female horse, characterized by long ears and a short mane. 2. A sterile hybrid, as between a canary and other birds or between certain plants. 3. Informal. A stubborn person. 4. A spinning machine that makes thread or yarn from fibers. 5. A small, usually electric tractor or locomotive used for hauling over short distances. 6. Slang. A person who serves as a courier of illegal drugs. [Middle English, from Old French mul, and from Old English mūl both from Latin mūlus.]

mule² (myōol) n. A slipper that has no counter or strap to fit around the heel. [Probably French, slipper, possibly from Middle Dutch muil, ultimately from Latin mulleus (calceus), reddish-purple (ceremonial shoe).]

mule deer (myōol dîr) n. A brownish-gray deer (Odocoileus hemionus) of western North America, having long mulelike ears, large branching antlers in the male, and a black-tipped tail. Also called black-tailed deer mule-skin-ner (myōol'skîn'ər) n. Informal. A driver of mules.

mu·le·ta (mōō-lā'tə, -lēt'ə) n. A short red cape suspended from a hollow staff, used by a matador to maneuver a bull during the final passes before a kill. [Spanish, small mule, crutch, muleta, diminutive of mula, she-mule, from Latin mūla, feminine of mūlus, mule.]

mu·le·teer (myōō'lə-tîr') n. A driver of mules. [French muletier, from Old French, from mulet, diminutive of mul, mule. See MULE¹.]

mu·ley (myōō'lē, mōōl'ē, mōō'lē) adj. Having no horns: muley cattle. — n. pl. mu·leys. An animal without horns, especially a cow. [From Irish Gaelic maol (from Old Irish mael), or from Welsh moel, bald, hornless.]

Mul·ha·cén (mōō'lā-sān', -thěn') A mountain, 3,480.4 m (11,411 ft) high, of southern Spain in the Sierra Nevada east of Granada. It is the highest point in the country.

Mül·heim (mōōl'hīm, myōōl'-, mül'-) A city of west-central Germany on the Ruhr River east of Duisburg. First mentioned in 1093, it passed to Prussia in 1815 and is today a highly industrialized city with diverse manufactures. Population, 173,190.

Mul·house (mə-lōōz', mü-) A city of northeast France south of Colmar. Dating from at least 803, it became a free imperial city in 1308, allied itself with the Swiss from the 15th to the 18th century, and in 1798 voted to join France. Population, 112,157.

mu·li·eb·ri·ty (myōō'lē-ĕb'rī-tē) n. 1. The state of being a woman.

2. Femininity. [Latin muliēbritās, state of womanhood (as against maidenhood), from muliēbris, womanly, from mulier, woman.]

mul·ish (myōō'līsh) adj. Stubborn and intractable; recalcitrant. See Synonyms at obstinate. —mul'ish·ly adv. —mul'ish·ness n.

mull¹ (mül) v. tr. mulled, mull·ing, mulls. To heat and spice (wine, for example). [Origin unknown.]

mull² (mül) v. mulled, mull·ing, mulls. — v. tr. To go over extensively in the mind; ponder. — v. intr. To ruminate; ponder: mull over a plan. See Synonyms at ponder. [Probably Middle English mullen, to moisten, crumble. See MOIL.]

mull³ (mül) n. A soft, thin muslin used in dresses and for trimmings. [Short for mulmull, from Hindi malmal.]

Mull (mül) An island of western Scotland in the Inner Hebrides. It is separated from the mainland on the northeast by the Sound of Mull.

mul·lah also mul·la (mül'ə, mōōl'ə) n. Islam. 1. A male religious teacher or leader. 2. Used as a form of address for such a man. [Urdu mullā, from Persian, from Arabic mawlā, master.] —mul'lah·ism n.

mul·lein (mül'ən) n. Any of various Eurasian plants of the genus Verbascum, especially V. thapsus, a tall plant having closely clustered yellow flowers and leaves covered with dense, woolly down. Also called flannel leaf, velvet plant. [Middle English moleine, from Anglo-Norman, probably from mol, soft, from Latin molis. See MOUILLÉ.]

mullein pink (mül'ən pīngk) n. See rose campion.

mul·ler (mül'ər) n. An implement of stone or other hard substance used as a pestle to grind paints or drugs. [Middle English molour, probably from mullen, to grind. See MULL².]

Mul·ler (mül'ər), Hermann Joseph. 1890-1967. American geneticist. He won a 1946 Nobel Prize for the study of the hereditary effect of x-rays on genes.

Mül·ler (mül'ər, myōō'lər, mü'(-), (Friedrich) Max. 1823-1900. German-born British philologist and Orientalist noted for his studies of Sanskrit language and literature.

Mül·ler (mül'ər, myōō'lər, mü'(-), Johann. Known as Re·gi·o·mon·ta·nus (rē'jē-ō-mōn-tā'nəs, -tā'(-), rēj'ē-) 1436-1476. German mathematician and astronomer who established the study of algebra and trigonometry in Germany and contributed to the revival of astronomy during the Renaissance.

Mül·ler (mül'ər, myōō'lər, mü'(-), Karl Alex. Born 1927. Swiss physicist. He shared a 1987 Nobel Prize for pioneering research in superconductivity.

Mül·ler (mül'ər, myōō'lər, mü'(-), Paul Hermann. 1899-1965. Swiss chemist. He won a 1948 Nobel Prize for his discovery of the insect-killing properties of DDT.

Mül·le·ri·an mimicry (myōō-lîr'ē-ən mīm'i-krē, mə-, mī-) n. A form of protective mimicry in which two or more distasteful or harmful species, especially of insects, closely resemble each other and are therefore avoided equally by all their natural predators. [After Fritz (Johann Friedrich Theodor) Müller (1821-1897), German-born Brazilian zoologist.]

mul·let (mül'it) n. pl. mullet or mul·lets. 1. Any of various stout-bodied, edible fishes of the family Mugilidae, found worldwide in tropical and temperate coastal waters and some freshwater streams. Also called gray mullet. 2. The red mullet. [Middle English molet, from Medieval Latin muletus, probably from Old French mulet, from mul, from Latin mullus, from Greek mullos.]

mul·li·gan (mül'i-gən) n. Sports. A golf shot not tallied against the score, granted in informal play after a poor shot especially from the tee. [Probably from the name Mulligan.]

mulligan stew (mül'i-gən stōō) n. A stew made of bits of various meats and vegetables. [Probably from the name Mulligan.]

mul·li·ga·taw·ny (mül'i-gə-tô'nē) n. pl. mul·li·ga·taw·nies. An East Indian soup having a meat or chicken base and curry seasoning. [Tamil mīlagutaṇṇī : mīlagu, pepper + taṇṇīr, cool water (taṇ, cool + ṇīr, water).]

Mul·li·kan (mül'i-kən), Robert Sanderson. 1896-1986. American chemist and physicist. He won a 1966 Nobel Prize for research on the bond between atoms in a molecule.

mul·lion (mül'γən) n. A vertical strip dividing the panes of a window. [Alteration of Middle English moniel, from Anglo-Norman moynel, perhaps from moienel, middle, from moien, from Latin mediānus, from medius. See medhyo- in Appendix.] —mul'lioned adj.

Mul·ro·ney (mül-rō'nē, -rōō'(-), (Martin) Brian. Born 1939. Canadian politician who served as prime minister (1984-1993). His administration was marked by trade agreements with the United States and Mexico, and by attempts to settle the question of Quebec's autonomy.

- Mul-tan (mōōl-tān') A city of east-central Pakistan southwest of Lahore. Conquered c. 326 B.C. by Alexander the Great, it was captured by Tamerlane in 1398 and was under British jurisdiction from 1849 until 1947. Population, 694,000.
- multi- pref. 1. Many; much; multiple: multicolor. 2. a. More than one: multiparous. b. More than two: multilateral. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin, from multus, much, many. See mel-² in Appendix.]
- mul-ti-ad-dress (mūl'tē-ād'rēs', -tī-) adj. Computer Science. Of, relating to, or designating a storage system of data-processing computers in which it is possible to store instructions or quantities in more than one position.
- mul-ti-cel-lu-lar (mūl'tē-sēl'γə-lər, -tī-) adj. Having or consisting of many cells: multicellular organisms. —mul'ti-cel'lu-lar'i-ty (-lār'ī-tē) n.
- mul-ti-col-or (mūl'tī-kūl'ər) also mul-ti-col-ored (-kūl'ərd) adj. 1. Having many colors. 2. Printing. Capable of printing in two or more colors simultaneously.
- mul-ti-cul-tur-al (mūl'tē-kūl'chər-əl, -tī-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or including several cultures. 2. Of or relating to a social or educational theory or program that encourages interest in many cultures within a society rather than in only a mainstream culture. —mul'ti-cul'tur-al-ism n.
- mul-ti-den-tate (mūl'tī-dēn'tāt) adj. Having many teeth or toothlike processes.
- mul-ti-di-men-sion-al (mūl'tī-dī-mēn'shə-nəl) adj. Of, relating to, or having several dimensions. —mul'ti-di-men'sion-al'i-ty (-shə-nāl'ī-tē) n.
- mul-ti-di-rec-tion-al (mūl'tē-dī-rēk'shə-nəl, -dī-, -tī-) adj. 1. Reaching out in several directions: a multidirectional campaign. 2. Operating or functioning in more than one direction: a multidirectional television antenna; multidirectional stereo speakers.
- mul-ti-dis-ci-pli-nar-y (mūl'tē-dīs'ə-plə-nēr'ē, -tī-) adj. Of, relating to, or making use of several disciplines at once: a multidisciplinary approach to teaching.
- mul-ti-eth-nic (mūl'tē-ēth'nīk, -tī-) adj. Of, relating to, or including several ethnic groups.
- mul-ti-fac-et-ed (mūl'tē-fās'ī-tīd, -tī-) adj. Having many facets or aspects. See Synonyms at versatile.
- mul-ti-fac-to-ri-al (mūl'tī-fāk-tōr'ē-əl, -tōr'-) adj. Involving, dependent on, or controlled by several factors. —mul'ti-fac-tor'i-al-ly adv.
- mul-ti-fam-i-ly (mūl'tē-fām'ə-lē, -tī-) adj. Of, relating to, or intended for use by several families: a multifamily house.
- mul-ti-far-i-ous (mūl'tə-fâr'ē-əs) adj. Having great variety; diverse. See Synonyms at versatile. [From Latin multifāriam, in many places : multi-, multi- + -fāriam, adv. suff.; see dhē- in Appendix.] —mul'ti-far'i-ous-ly adv.
—mul'ti-far'i-ous-ness n.

mul-ti·fid (mŭl'tə-fīd') adj. Biology. Having many clefts forming lobes: multifid leaves.

mul-ti·flo·ra rose (mŭl'tə-flōr'ə rōz, -flōr'ə) n. A climbing or sprawling shrub (Rosa multiflora) of eastern Asia, having clusters of small fragrant flowers. It is the origin of many horticultural varieties. [Partial translation of New Latin Rosa multiflōra, species name : Latin rosa, rose + Late Latin multiflōra, feminine of multiflōrus, multiflorous (Latin multi-, multi- + Latin flōs, flōr-, flower); see FLORA.]

mul-ti·flo·rous (mŭl'tə-flōr'əs, -flōr'-) adj. Botany. Bearing many flowers.

mul-ti·foil (mŭl'tə-foīl') n. Architecture. A flat object or opening with scalloped edges or ornaments.

mul-ti·fold (mŭl'tə-fōld') adj. Numerous and varied; manifold.

mul-ti·form (mŭl'tə-fōrm') adj. Occurring in or having many forms or shapes. — mul'ti·for'mi·ty (-fōr'mī-tē) n.

mul-ti·gen·er·a·tion·al (mŭl'tī-jĕn'ə-rā'shə-nəl) adj. Of or relating to several generations: multigenerational family traditions.

mul-ti·grav·i·da (mŭl'tī-grāv'ī-də) n. A woman who has had two or more previous pregnancies. [MULTI- + New Latin prīmigravida (Latin prīmus, first; see prime + Latin gravida, feminine of gravidus, pregnant); see GRAVID.]

mul-ti·lane (mŭl'tē-lān', -tī-) adj. Having several lanes: a multilane highway.

mul-ti·lat·er·al (mŭl'tī-lăt'ər-əl) adj. 1. Having many sides. 2. Involving more than two nations or parties: multilateral trade agreements.

— mul'ti·lat'er·al·ly adv.

mul-ti·lay·ered (mŭl'tē-lā'ərd, -tī-) adj. Consisting of or involving several individual layers or levels.

mul-ti·lev·el (mŭl'tə-lĕv'əl) adj. Having several levels: a multilevel parking garage.

mul-ti·lin·gual (mŭl'tē-līng'gwəl, -tī-) adj. 1. Of, including, or expressed in several languages: a multilingual dictionary. 2. Using or having the ability to use several languages: a multilingual translator. — mul'ti·lin'gual·ism n.

mul-ti·loc·u·lar (mŭl'tī-lōk'yə-lər) adj. Having or consisting of many small compartments or cavities.

mul-ti·me·di·a (mŭl'tē-mĕ'dĕ-ə, -tī-) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). 1. The combined use of several media, such as movies, slides, music, and lighting, especially for the purpose of education or entertainment. 2. The use of several mass media, such as television, radio, and print, especially for the purpose of advertising or publicity. Also called mixed media 3. The combined use of media such as text, graphics, video, and sound, as on a computer system. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a multimedia presentation; a multimedia advertising campaign.

mul-ti-mil-lion-aire (mŭl'tē-mīl'yə-nār', -tī-) n. One whose financial assets are worth several million dollars.

mul-ti-na-tion-al (mŭl'tē-nāsh'ə-nəl, -nāsh'nəl, -tī-) adj. 1. Having operations, subsidiaries, or investments in more than two countries: a multinational corporation. 2. Of or involving more than two countries: a multinational research project. — n. A company or corporation operating in more than two countries. — mul'ti-na'tion-al-ism n.

mul-ti-no-mi-al (mŭl'tī-nō'mē-əl) n. Mathematics. See polynomial (n., sense 2a). [MULTI- + (BI)NOMIAL.] — mul'ti-no'mi-al adj.

multinomial theorem (mŭl'tī-nō'mē-əl thē'ər-əm) n. Mathematics. The theorem that establishes the rule for forming the terms of a polynomial expansion.

mul-ti-nu-cle-ar (mŭl'tē-nōō'klē-ər, -nyōō'-, -tī-) adj. Multinucleate.

mul-ti-nu-cle-ate (mŭl'tē-nōō'klē-ət, -nyōō'-, -tī-) also mul-ti-nu-cle-at-ed (-ā'tīd) adj. Having two or more nuclei: the multinucleate cells of striated muscle.

mul-ti-pack (mŭl'tī-pāk') n. A packaged product containing more than two items.

mul-tip-a-ra (mŭl-tīp'ər-ə) n. pl. mul-tip-a-ras also mul-tip-a-rae (-rē). A woman who has given birth two or more times.

mul-tip-a-rous (mŭl-tīp'ər-əs) adj. 1. Having given birth two or more times. 2. Giving birth to more than one offspring at a time. — mul'ti-par'i-ty (mŭl'tī-pār'ī-tē) n.

mul-ti-par-tite (mŭl'tī-pār'tīt') adj. 1. Divided into many parts. 2. Involving more than two nations or parties; multilateral.

mul-ti-par-ty (mŭl'tə-pār'tē) adj. Of, relating to, or involving more than two political parties.

mul-ti-ped (mŭl'tə-pēd') also mul-ti-pede (-pēd') adj. Having many feet. — n. An animal with many feet.

mul-ti-ple (mŭl'tə-pəl) adj. Having, relating to, or consisting of more than one individual, element, part, or other component; manifold. — n. Mathematics. A number that may be divided by another number with no remainder: 4, 6, and 12 are multiples of 2. [French, from Old French, from Late Latin multiplum, a multiple : Latin multi-, multi- + Latin -plus, -fold; see pel-² in Appendix.]

multiple allele (mŭl'tə-pəl ə-lēl') n. Any of a set of three or more alleles, or alternative states of a gene, only two of which can be present in a diploid organism.

mul-ti-ple-choice (mŭl'tə-pəl-chois') adj. 1. Offering several answers from which the correct one is to be chosen: a multiple-choice question. 2. Consisting of questions of this type: a multiple-choice test.

multiple factor (mŭl'tə-pəl fāk'tər) n. See polygene.

multiple fruit (mŭl'tə-pəl frōōt) n. A fruit, such as a fig, mulberry, or pineapple, derived from several flowers that are combined into a single structure.

multiple myeloma (mŭl'tə-pəl mī'ə-lō'mə) n. A malignant proliferation of plasma cells in bone marrow causing numerous tumors and characterized by the presence of abnormal proteins in the blood.

multiple neuritis (mŭl'tə-pəl nōō-rī'tīs) n. Inflammation of several nerves at one time, as in leprosy. Also called polyneuritis multiple personality (mŭl'tə-pəl pŭr'sə-nāl'ī-tē) n. A psychological disorder in which a person exhibits two or more disassociated personalities, each functioning as a distinct entity. Also called split personality multiple sclerosis (mŭl'tə-pəl sklə-rō'sīs) n. Abbr. MS A chronic degenerative disease of the central nervous system in which gradual destruction of myelin occurs in patches throughout the brain or spinal cord or both, interfering with the nerve pathways and causing muscular weakness, loss of coordination, and speech and visual disturbances. It occurs chiefly in young adults and is thought to be caused by a defect in the immune system that may be of genetic or viral origin.

multiple star (mŭl'tə-pəl stār) n. A group of three or more stars, usually with a common gravitational center, that appear as one to the unaided eye.

multiple store (mŭl'tə-pəl stôr) n. Chiefly British. A chain store.

mul-ti-plet (mŭl'tə-plĕt', -plīt) n. Physics. 1. A spectral line having more than one component, representing slight variations in the energy states characteristic of an atom. 2. Any of several classes or groupings of subatomic particles, such as the nucleon, that are similar in most properties but different in electric charge.

[MULTIPL(E) + (DOUBL)ET.]

mul-ti-plex (mŭl'tə-plĕks') adj. 1. Relating to, having, or consisting of multiple elements or parts: “the whole complex and multiplex detail of the noble science of dinner” (Thomas Love Peacock). 2. Relating to or being a system of simultaneous communication of two or more messages on the same wire or radio channel. — n. A building, especially a movie theater or dwelling, with multiple separate units. — v. mul-ti-plexed, mul-ti-plex-ing, mul-ti-plex-es. — v. intr. To send messages or signals simultaneously using a multiplex system. — v. tr. To send simultaneously using a multiplex system. [Middle English, a multiple, from Latin, various, complicated : multi-, multi- + -plex, -fold; see plek- in Appendix.]

mul-ti-pli-a-ble (mŭl'tə-plī'ə-bəl) also mul-ti-PLIC-a-ble (-plĭk'ə-bəl) adj.

That can be multiplied: multipliable fractions.

mul-ti-PLI-cand (mŭl'tə-plī-kānd') n. Mathematics. The number that is or is to be multiplied by another. In 8×32 , the multiplicand is 32. [Latin multiplicandum, neuter gerundive of multiplicāre, to multiply. See MULTIPLY¹.]

mul·tip·li·cate (mŭl'tĭp'li-kĭt) adj. 1. Having more than one layer or fold, as some shells or leaves. 2. Multiple. [Middle English, from Latin multiplicātus, past participle of multiplicāre, to multiply. See MULTIPLY¹.]

mul·ti·pli·ca·tion (mŭl'tə-plĭ-kā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of multiplying or the condition of being multiplied. 2. Propagation of plants and animals; procreation. 3. Mathematics. a. The operation that, for integers, consists of adding a number (the multiplicand) to itself a certain number of times. The operation is extended to other real numbers according to the rules governing the multiplication of integers. b. Any of certain analogous operations involving expressions other than real numbers. —mul'ti·pli·ca'tion-al adj.

multiplication sign (mŭl'tə-plĭ-kā'shən sĭn) n. Mathematics. The sign used to indicate multiplication, either a times sign (\times) or a raised dot (\cdot).

multiplication table (mŭl'tə-plĭ-kā'shən tā'bəl) n. Mathematics. A table, used as an aid in memorization, that lists the products of certain numbers multiplied together, typically the numbers 1 to 12.

mul·ti·pli·ca·tive (mŭl'tə-plĭk'ə-tĭv, mŭl'tə-plĭ-kā'tĭv) adj. 1. Tending to multiply or capable of multiplying or increasing. 2. Having to do with multiplication. —mul'ti·pli·ca·tive·ly adv.

multiplicative inverse (mŭl'tə-plĭk'ə-tĭv ĭn-vŭrs') n. Mathematics. See inverse (n., sense 2a).

mul·ti·plic·i·ty (mŭl'tə-plĭs'ĭ-tē) n. pl. mul·ti·plic·i·ties. 1. The state of being various or manifold: the multiplicity of architectural styles on that street. 2. A large number: a multiplicity of ideas. [Middle English, from Old French multiplicite, from Late Latin multiplicitās, from multiplex, various. See MULTIPLEX.]

mul·ti·pli·er (mŭl'tə-plĭ'ər) n. 1. One that multiplies: This old house is becoming a multiplier of expenses. 2. Mathematics. The number by which another number is multiplied. In 8×32 , the multiplier is 8. 3. Physics. A device, such as a phototube, used to enhance or increase an effect.

mul·ti·ply¹ (mŭl'tə-plĭ') v. mul·ti·plied, mul·ti·ply·ing, mul·ti·plies. — v. tr. 1. To increase the amount, number, or degree of. 2. Mathematics. To perform multiplication on. — v. intr. 1. To grow in amount, number, or degree. See Synonyms at increase. 2. To breed or propagate. 3. Mathematics. To perform multiplication. [Middle English multiplien, from Old French multiplier, from Latin multiplicāre, from multiplex, multiplex. See MULTIPLEX.]

mul·ti·ply² (mŭl'tə-plē') adv. In many or multiple ways.

mul·ti·po·lar (mŭl'tĭ-pō'lər) adj. Having or conceiving multiple centers of power or influence: a multipolar world; a multipolar approach to foreign policy.

mul·ti·port (mŭl'tĭ-pōrt', -pōrt') adj. Having, relating to, or being a system of multiple ports for injecting fuel separately into each cylinder of an engine.

mul-ti-pronged (mŭl'tī-prôngd', -prôngd') adj. 1. Having many prongs.

2. Involving several different directions, aspects, or elements: a multipronged attack; a multipronged tax bill.

mul-ti-pur-pose (mŭl'tē-pûr'pəs, -tī-) adj. Designed or used for several purposes: a multipurpose room; multipurpose software.

mul-ti-ra-cial (mŭl'tē-rā'shəl, -tī-) adj. Made up of, involving, or acting on behalf of various races: a multiracial society.

mul-ti-ra-cial-ism (mŭl'tē-rā'shə-lîz'əm, -tī-) n. Equality of political representation and social acceptance in a society made up of various races.

mul-ti-re-lig-ious (mŭl'tē-rī-lîj'əs, -tī-) adj. Made up of, involving, or acting on behalf of various religions or religious groups.

mul-ti-screen (mŭl'tī-skrēn') adj. Having or using several movie, slide, or video screens.

mul-ti-sense (mŭl'tī-səns') adj. Having multiple meanings: a multisense word.

mul-ti-sen-so-ry (mŭl'tī-sən'sə-rē) adj. Relating to or involving several bodily senses: multisensory methods of reading instruction.

mul-ti-serv-ice (mŭl'tī-sûr'vîs) adj. 1. Offering or involving a variety of services: a multiservice agency for the elderly. 2. Involving, relating to, or composed of members of various branches of the armed forces.

mul-ti-sport (mŭl'tī-spôrt', -spôrt') also mul-ti-sports (-spôrts', -spôrts') adj. Sports. 1. Composed of, involving, or accommodating several sports: a multisport competition; a multisport stadium. 2. Skilled in several sports: a multisport athlete.

mul-ti-stage (mŭl'tī-stāj') adj. 1. Functioning in more than one stage: a multistage design project. 2. Relating to or composed of two or more propulsion units.

multistage rocket (mŭl'tī-stāj' rök'it) n. A rocket composed of two or more propulsion units that fire in succession. Also called step rocket mul-ti-state (mŭl'tī-stāt') adj. Of, relating to, or involving several states: a multistate environmental campaign.

mul-ti-sto-ry (mŭl'tī-stôr'ē, -stôr'ē) also mul-ti-sto-ried (-stôr'ēd, -stôr'-) adj. Having several stories: a multistory hotel.

mul-ti-track (mŭl'tī-trāk') adj. 1. Having, using, or produced with multiple recording tracks: a multitrack tape recorder. 2. Having several different aspects, elements, or functions: multitrack negotiations; a multitrack business executive. 3. Having or using several schedules: students in a multitrack program with staggered vacations.

mul-ti-tude (mŭl'tī-tōd', -tyōd') n. 1. The condition or quality of being numerous. 2. A very great number. 3. The masses; the populace: the concerns of the multitude. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin multitūdō, from multus, many. See mel² in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: multitude, host, legion, army. These nouns all denote a very great number of people or things. Multitude is the most general term: a multitude of friends; a multitude of reasons. Host and legion both stress impressively, sometimes countlessly large numbers: a host of ideas; a legion of complaints. Army emphasizes order and often purposeful association: an army of mosquitoes; an army of fire-fighters.

mul-ti-tu-di-nous (mŭl'tī-tōōd'n-əs, -tyōōd'-) adj. 1. Very numerous; existing in great numbers. 2. Consisting of many parts. 3. Populous; crowded.

[From Latin multitūdō, multitūdīn-, multitude. See MULTITUDE.]

—mul'ti-tu'di-nous-ly adv. —mul'ti-tud'in-ous-ness n.

mul-ti-va-lent (mŭl'tī-vā'lənt, mŭl-tiv'ə-lənt) adj. 1. Chemistry. Polyvalent. 2. Genetics. Of or relating to the association of three or more homologous chromosomes during the first division of meiosis. 3. Immunology. Having several sites of attachment for an antibody or antigen. 4. Having various meanings or values: subtle, multivalent allegory. —mul'ti-val'ence n.

mul-ti-ver-si-ty (mŭl'tī-vŭr'sī-tē) n. pl. mul-ti-ver-si-ties. A university that has numerous constituent and affiliated institutions, such as separate colleges, campuses, and research centers. [MULTI- + (UNI)VERSITY.]

mul-ti-vi-ta-min (mŭl'tə-vī'tə-mĭn) adj. Containing many vitamins. — n. A preparation containing many vitamins.

mul-ti-vol-tine (mŭl'tī-vōl'tēn) adj. Producing several broods in a single season: multivoltine moths. [MULTI- + French -voltine, having a given number of broods in one season (from Italian volta, time, turn, from Old Italian); see VOLT².]

Mult-no-mah Falls (mŭlt-nō'mə fōlz) A waterfall, 189.1 m (620 ft) high, in a tributary of the Columbia River in northwest Oregon east of Portland.

mum¹ (mŭm) adj. Not verbalizing; silent. — interj. Used as a command to stop speaking. —idiom. mum's the word. Say nothing of the secret you know: Mum's the word on the surprise party. [Middle English.]

mum² (mŭm) v. intr. mummed, mum-ming, mums. 1. To act or play in a pantomime. 2. To go merrymaking in a mask or disguise especially during a festival. [Middle English mummen, from Old French momer, to wear a mask.]

mum³ (mŭm) n. Chiefly British. Mother. [Short for MUMMY².]

mum⁴ (mŭm) n. A chrysanthemum.

mum⁵ (mŭm) n. A strong beer originally brewed in Brunswick, Germany. [German Mumme.]

mum-ble (mŭm'bəl) v. mum-bled, mum-bling, mum-bles. — v. tr. 1. To utter indistinctly by lowering the voice or partially closing the mouth: mumbled an insincere apology. 2. To chew slowly or ineffectively without or as if without teeth. — v. intr. 1. To speak words indistinctly, as by lowering the voice or partially closing the mouth. 2. To chew food slowly or ineffectively, as if with the gums. — n. A low, indistinct sound or utterance. [Middle English momelen, from Middle Dutch mommelen.] — mum'bler n. — mum'bly adj.

mum-ble-ty-peg (mŭm'bəl-tē-pĕg', mŭm'blē-pĕg') also mum-ble-the-peg (mŭm'bəl-thə-pĕg') n. Games. A game in which players toss a jackknife in various prescribed ways, with the object being to make the blade stick firmly into the ground. [From the phrase mumble the peg, from the fact that originally the loser had to pull up with his teeth a peg driven into the ground.]

mum-bo jum-bo or mum-bo-jum-bo (mŭm'bō-jŭm'bō) n. pl. mum-bo jum-bos or mum-bo-jum-bos. 1. Unintelligible or incomprehensible language; gibberish. 2. Language or ritualistic activity intended to confuse. 3. A complicated or obscure ritual. 4. An object believed to have supernatural powers; a fetish. [Perhaps of Mandingo origin.]

mu meson (myōō mĕz'ŏn') n. Physics. See muon.

Mum-ford (mŭm'fərd), Lewis. 1895-1990. American social critic and writer whose works, such as The Culture of Cities (1938) and The Conduct of Life (1951), decry dehumanizing technology and call for a return to humanitarian and moral values.

mum-mer (mŭm'ər) n. 1. A masked or costumed merrymaker, especially at a festival. 2. a. One who acts or plays in a pantomime. b. An actor. [Middle English, from Old French momeur, from momer, to wear a mask, pantomime.]

mum-mer-y (mŭm'ər-rē) *n. pl. mum-mer-ies. 1. A performance by mummers. 2. A pretentious or hypocritical show or ceremony. [French mommerie, from Old French momer, to wear a mask, pantomime.]*

mum-mi-chog (mŭm'i-chŏg') n. A stout-bodied killifish (Fundulus heteroclitus) of the Atlantic coast south of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, valued especially as bait. [Narragansett moamitteaug.]

mum-mi-fy (mŭm'ə-fi') *v. mum-mi-fied, mum-mi-fy-ing, mum-mi-fies. — v. tr. 1. To make into a mummy by embalming and drying. 2. To cause to shrivel and dry up. — v. intr. To shrivel or dry up like a mummy.*

— mum'mi-fi-ca'tion (-fi-kā'shən) n.

mum-my¹ (mŭm'ē) *n. pl. mum-mies. 1. The dead body of a human being or an animal that has been embalmed and prepared for burial, as according to the practices of the ancient Egyptians. 2. A withered, shrunken, or well-preserved body that resembles an embalmed body. [Middle English mummie, medicinal material from embalmed corpses, from Old French momie, from Medieval Latin mumia, from Arabic mūmiyā, from mūm, wax.]*

mum-my² (mŭm'ē) n. pl. mum-mies. Informal. Mother. [Alteration of MAMMY.]

mumps (mŭmps) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). An acute, inflammatory, contagious disease caused by a paramyxovirus and characterized by swelling of the salivary glands, especially the parotids, and sometimes of the pancreas, ovaries, or testes. This disease, mainly affecting children, can be prevented by vaccination. [From pl. of dialectal mump, grimace.]

munch (munch) v. munched, munch-ing, munch-es. — v. intr. 1. To chew food audibly or with a steady working of the jaws. 2. To eat with pleasure. — v. tr. To chew or eat (food) audibly or with pleasure. [Middle English monchen.] — munch'er n.

Munch (mooŋk), Edvard. 1863-1944. Norwegian artist whose works include etchings, lithographs, and paintings, such as The Scream (1893) and Frieze of Life (1897).

Munch-hau-sen also Mun-chau-sen (munch'hou'zən, munch'hou'-, münKH'hou'-), Baron Karl Friedrich Hieronymus von. 1720-1797. German soldier and raconteur known for his fantastic stories about his adventures as a hunter, sportsman, and soldier.

munch-ies (munch'chēz) pl.n. Slang. 1. Food for snacking. 2. A craving for snack foods. Often used with the: an attack of the munchies.

munch-kin (munch'kīn) n. 1. A very small person, especially one with an elf-like appearance. 2. Informal. A child. 3. Informal. A minor official. [After the Munchkins, characters in The Wonderful Wizard of Oz by L. Frank Baum.]

Mun-cie (munch'sē) A city of east-central Indiana northeast of Indianapolis. Established on the site of an earlier Delaware settlement, it was the setting for Robert and Helen Lynd's pioneering sociological study Middletown (1929). Population, 71,035.

mun-dane (munch-dān', munch'dān') adj. 1. Of, relating to, or typical of this world; secular. 2. Relating to, characteristic of, or concerned with common-places; ordinary. [Middle English mondeine, from Old French mondain, from Latin mundānus, from mundus, world.] — mun-dane'ly adv. — mun-dane'-ness n.

Mun-de-lein (munch'dl-īn') A village of northeast Illinois southwest of Waukegan. It was incorporated as Area in 1909 and renamed in 1925. Population, 21,215.

mung bean (munch bēn) n. 1. An Asian plant (Vigna radiata) in the pea family, widely cultivated for its edible seeds and pods. It is the chief source of bean sprouts. 2. The seeds or pods of this plant. [Hindi mūḡ, from Sanskrit mudgaḥ.]

mu-ni (myoo'nē) Informal. adj. Municipal. — n. pl. mu-nis. A municipal bond.

Mu-nich (myoo'nīk) A city of southeast Germany near the Bavarian Alps southeast of Augsburg. Founded in 1158, it has long been the center of Bavaria. Adolf Hitler organized the Nazi Party here after World War I and signed the Munich Pact, widely regarded as a symbol of appeasement, with Great Britain, France, and Italy in 1938. The city was largely rebuilt after extensive Allied bombing in World War II. Munich was the site of the 1972 Summer Olympics. Population, 1,267,451.

mu·nic·i·pal (myōō-nīs'ə-pəl) adj. 1. a. Of, relating to, or typical of a municipality. b. Having local self-government. c. Issued on the authority of a local or state government. 2. Of or relating to the internal affairs of a nation. — n. A municipal bond: invested in tax-free municipals. [Latin municipālis, from municipium, town, from municipes, citizen : mūnus, public office, duty; see mei¹ in Appendix + capere, to take; see kap- in Appendix.] — mu·nic'i·pal·ly adv.

municipal bond (myōō-nīs'ə-pəl bönd) n. An often tax-exempt bond issued by a city, county, state, or other government for the financing of public projects.

mu·nic·i·pal·i·ty (myōō-nīs'ə-pāl'i-tē) n. pl. mu·nic·i·pal·i·ties. 1. A political unit, such as a city or town, incorporated for local self-government. 2. A body of officials appointed to manage the affairs of a local political unit.

mu·nic·i·pal·ize (myōō-nīs'ə-pə-līz') v. tr. mu·nic·i·pal·ized, mu·nic·i·pal·iz·ing, mu·nic·i·pal·iz·es. 1. To place under municipal ownership. 2. To make into a municipality. — mu·nic'i·pal·i·za'tion (-pə-lī-zā'shən) n.

mu·nif·i·cent (myōō-nīf'i-sənt) adj. 1. Very liberal in giving; generous. 2. Showing great generosity: a munificent gift. See Synonyms at liberal. [Latin mūnificēns, mūnificent-, from mūnificus : mūnus, gift; see mei¹ in Appendix + facere, to make; see FACT.] — mu·nif'i·cence n. — mu·nif'i·cent·ly adv.

mu·ni·ment (myōō'nə-mənt) n. 1. muniments. Law. Documentary evidence by which one can defend a title to property or a claim to rights. 2. Archaic. A means of defense or protection. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin mūnīmentum, from Latin, defense, protection, from mūnīre, to fortify.]

mu·ni·tion (myōō-nīsh'ən) n. War materiel, especially weapons and ammunition. Often used in the plural. — v. tr. mu·ni·tioned, mu·ni·tion·ing, mu·ni·tions. To supply with munitions. [Middle English municion, privilege supported by a document, from Old French, fortification, from Latin mūnitiō, mūnitiōn-, from mūnītus, past participle of mūnīre, to defend.]

Mu·ñoz Ma·rín (mōō-nyōs' mā-rēn'), Luis. 1898-1980. Puerto Rican journalist and politician who served as the first elected governor of Puerto Rico (1948-1964).

Mun·ro (mən-rō'), Alice. Born 1931. Canadian writer noted for vivid novels and short stories of life in rural Ontario. Her collections of stories include Dance of the Happy Shades (1968) and Something I've Been Meaning to Tell You (1974).

Mun·ro (mən-rō'), Hector Hugh. Pen name Saki. 1870-1916. British writer known for his witty and sometimes bitter short stories, published in collections such as The Chronicles of Clovis (1911).

Mun·see (mūn'sē) n. 1. One of the two Algonquian languages of the Delaware peoples, spoken in northern New Jersey, downstate New York, and western Long Island. 2. A speaker of this language.

Mun·sey (mūn'sē, -zē), Frank Andrew. 1854-1925. American publisher and major figure in the trend toward consolidating competing newspapers under one owner.

Mun·ster¹ (mūn'stər) 1. A historical region and province of southwest Ireland. It was one of the kingdoms of ancient Ireland. 2. A town of northwest Indiana, a suburb of Gary on the Illinois border. Population, 19,949.

Mun·ster² (mūn'stər, mōon'-) n. Variant of Muenster.

Mün·ster (mōon'stər, mūn'-, mūn'-) A city of west-central Germany north-northeast of Cologne. Founded c. 800 as a Carolingian episcopal see, it was a prominent member of the Hanseatic League after the 14th century. Today it is an industrial center and a canal port. Population, 272,626.

Mün·ster·berg (mōon'stər-bûrg', mūn'stər-bërk'), Hugo. 1863-1916. Prussian-born American psychologist considered a pioneer in applied psychology.

mun·tin (mūn'tən) n. A strip of wood or metal separating and holding panes of glass in a window. [Middle English mountaunt, upright post or stud, from Old French montant, from present participle of monter, to mount. See MOUNT¹.]

munt·jac also munt·jak (mūnt'jāk') n. Any of several small deer of the genus Muntiacus of southeast Asia and the East Indies. [Malay mênjangan, deer.]

mu·on (myōō'ōn') n. Physics. An elementary particle in the lepton family (not a meson), having a mass 209 times that of the electron, a negative electric charge, and a mean lifetime of 2.2×10^{-6} second. Also called mu meson [Short for MU MESON.]

muon neutrino (myōō'ōn' nōō-trē'nō) n. Physics. A stable elementary particle in the lepton family having a mass less than 0.49 times that of the electron and no charge.

mup·pie (müp'ē) n. Informal. A middle-aged or mature professional person, especially one considered to be affluent, ambitious, and trendy. [M(IDDLE-AGED) + (Y)UPPIE.]

Mur (mōor) also Mu·ra (mōor'ə) A river, about 483 km (300 mi) long, of south-central Austria and northern Yugoslavia flowing east, northeast, south, and southeast to the Drava River.

mu·ral (myōor'əl) n. A very large image, such as a painting or an enlarged photograph, applied directly to a wall or ceiling. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a wall. 2. Painted on or applied to a wall. [Middle English, of a wall, from Old French, from Latin mūrālis, from mūrus, wall.] — mu'ral·ist n.

mu·raled also mu·ralled (myōor'əld) adj. Decorated with murals or a mural: muraled halls.

mu-ram·ic acid (myōō-rām'ik äs'id) n. An amino sugar, C₉H₁₇NO₇, found in the peptidoglycan layer of the cell walls of many bacteria. [Latin mūrus, wall + AM(IDE) + -IC.]

Mu-ra-sa-ki Shi-ki-bu (mōō'rä-sä'kē shē'kē-bōō'), Baroness. 978?-1031?. Japanese writer whose masterpiece The Tale of Genji is considered to be the greatest work of Japanese fiction and the first full novel.

Mu-rat (myōō-rä', mü-), Joachim. 1767?-1815. French marshal who aided Napoleon's coup d'état (1799) and was appointed king of Naples (1808).

Mur-chi-son River (mûr'chī-sən rīv'ər) An intermittent river of western Australia flowing about 708 km (440 mi) generally southwest to the Indian Ocean.

Mur-cia (mûr'shə, -shē-ə, mōōr'thyä) 1. A region and former kingdom of southeast Spain on the Mediterranean Sea. Settled by Carthaginians, it was conquered by the Moors in the 8th century and became an independent Moorish kingdom in the 11th century. It was annexed by Castile in 1266. 2. A city of southeast Spain north-northwest of Cartagena. Originally a Roman settlement, it was the capital of the ancient kingdom of Murcia. Population, 200,300.

mur-der (mûr'dər) n. 1. The unlawful killing of one human being by another, especially with premeditated malice. 2. Slang. Something that is very uncomfortable, difficult, or hazardous: The rush hour traffic is murder. — v. mur-dered, mur-der-ing, mur-ders. — v. tr. 1. To kill (another human being) unlawfully. 2. To kill brutally or inhumanly. 3. To put an end to; destroy: murdered their chances. 4. To spoil by ineptness; mutilate: a speech that murdered the English language. 5. Slang. To defeat decisively; trounce. — v. intr. To commit murder. — idioms. get away with murder. Informal. To escape punishment for or detection of an egregiously blameworthy act. murder will out. Secrets or misdeeds will eventually be disclosed. [Middle English murther, from Old English morthor. See mer- in Appendix.] — mur'der-er n. — mur'der-ess n.

mur-der-ous (mûr'dər-əs) adj. 1. Capable of, guilty of, or intending murder: a group of murderous thugs. 2. Characteristic of or giving rise to murder or bloodshed: murderous mistrust. 3. Informal. Capable of devastating or overwhelming: a murderous exam. — mur'der-ous-ly adv. — mur'der-ous-ness n.

Mur-doch (mûr'dök'), (Jean) Iris. Born 1919. Irish-born writer whose intricate and philosophical novels include Under the Net (1954) and The Sea, the Sea (1978).

Mur-dock (mûr'dök'), William. 1754-1839. British engineer and inventor who was the first to use coal gas for illumination.

mu-re-in (myōōr'ē-īn, myōōr'ēn') n. See peptidoglycan. [MUR(AMIC ACID) + -EIN.]

Mu-re-şul (mōōr'ə-sōōl', mōō'rě-shōōl') or Mu-reş (mōō'rěsh) A river rising in the Carpathian Mountains of north-central Romania and flowing about 756 km (470 mi) generally westward into southern Hungary.

mu-rex (myōōr'ěks) n. pl. mu-ri-ces (myōōr'ĩ-sēz') or mu-rex-es. Any of various marine gastropods of the genus Murex common in tropical seas and having rough, spiny shells, especially M. trunculus, the source of Tyrian purple. [New Latin Murex, genus name, from Latin mūrex, purple-fish.]

Mur-free (mûr'frē), Mary Noailles. Pen name Charles Egbert Craddock. 1850-1922. American writer of short stories and novels, such as Down the Ravine (1885), set in the mountains of Tennessee.

Mur-frees-bor-o (mûr'frēz-bûr'ō, -bûr'ō) A city of central Tennessee south-east of Nashville. The state capital from 1819 to 1825, it was the site of a hard-fought Union victory in the Battle of Murfreesboro (December 31, 1862-January 2, 1863). Population, 44,922.

Mur-gab also Mur-ghab (mōōr-gāb') A river rising in northeast Afghanistan and flowing about 853 km (530 mi) generally west and northwest into the Kara Kum Desert in southeast Turkmenistan.

mu-ri-at-ic acid (myōōr'ē-ăt'ík äs'íd) n. Hydrochloric acid. [Latin muriāticus, pickled, from muria, brine.]

mu-ri-cate (myōōr'ĩ-kāt') also mu-ri-cat-ed (-kā'tíd) adj. Covered with many short spines. [Latin mūricātus, shaped like a murex, pointed, from mūrex, murex.]

mu-ri-ces (myōōr'ĩ-sēz') n. A plural of murex.

Mu-ril-lo (myōō-ril'ō, mōō-rē'lyô), Bartolomé Esteban. 1617-1682. Spanish painter of genre scenes, portraits, and religious subjects, such as Immaculate Conception (1668).

mu-rine (myōōr'ĩn') adj. 1. Of or relating to a member of the rodent family Muridae, including rats and mice. 2. Caused, transmitted, or affected by rodents of the family Muridae: a murine plague. — n. A murine rodent. [Latin mūrīnus, of mice, from mūs, mūr-, mouse. See mūs- in Appendix.]

murine typhus (myōōr'ĩn' tĩ'fəs) n. A comparatively mild, acute, endemic form of typhus caused by the microorganism Rickettsia typhi, transmitted from rats to human beings by fleas and characterized by fever, headache, and muscular pain.

murk also mirk (mûrk) n. Partial or total darkness; gloom. — adj. Archaic. Partially or totally dark; gloomy. [Middle English mirke, from Old Norse myrkr, or Old English mirce.]

murk-y also mirk-y (mûr'kē) adj. murk-i-er, murk-i-est. 1. Dark, dim, or gloomy: a murky dungeon. See Synonyms at dark. 2. a. Heavy and thick with smoke, mist, or fog; hazy. b. Darkened or clouded with sediment: murky waters.

3. Lacking clarity or distinctness; cloudy or obscure. —murk'·i-ly adv.

—murk'·i-ness n.

Mur-mansk (mōōr-mānsk', mōōr'mānsk) A city of northwest Russia on the northern Kola Peninsula on an inlet of the Barents Sea. A major ice-free port, it was the terminus of an important supply line to the U.S.S.R. in World Wars I and II. Population, 419,000.

mur-mur (mûr'mər) n. 1. A low, indistinct, continuous sound: spoke in a murmur; the murmur of the waves. 2. An indistinct, whispered, or confidential complaint; a mutter. 3. Medicine. An abnormal sound, usually emanating from the heart, that sometimes indicates a diseased condition. — v. mur-mured, mur-mur-ing, mur-murs. — v. intr. 1. To make a low, continuous, indistinct sound or succession of sounds. 2. To complain in low mumbling tones; grumble. — v. tr. To say in a low indistinct voice; utter indistinctly: murmured his approval. [Middle English murmure, from Old French, from Latin murmur, a humming, roaring.] —mur'mur-er n. —mur'mur-ing-ly adv. —mur'mur-ous adj. —mur'mur-ous-ly adv.

Mu-rom (mōōr'əm) A city of west-central Russia on the Oka River southwest of Gorky. One of the oldest cities in Russia, it was first mentioned in a chronicle of 862. Population, 121,000.

Mur-phy (mûr'fē) n. pl. Mur-phies. Slang. 1. Also murphy. A Murphy game. 2. murphy. A potato. [From Murphy, a common Irish name.]

Mur-phy (mûr'fē), William Francis. Known as “Frank.” 1890-1949. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1940-1949).

Mur-phy (mûr'fē), William Parry. 1892-1987. American physician. He shared a 1934 Nobel Prize for discovering that a diet of liver relieves anemia.

Mur-phy bed (mûr'fē bēd) n. A bed that folds or swings into a closet for concealment. [After William Lawrence Murphy (1876-1959), American inventor.]

Mur-phy game also mur-phy game (mûr'fē gām) n. Slang. Any of various confidence games often having the services of a prostitute as a lure and brought off by switching an envelope containing the victim's cash with one containing scrap paper.

Mur-phy's Law (mûr'fēz lô) n. Any of certain humorous axioms stating that anything that can possibly go wrong, will go wrong. [From the name Murphy.] mur-rain (mûr'īn) n. 1. Any of various highly infectious diseases of cattle, as anthrax. 2. Obsolete. A pestilence or dire disease. [Middle English moreine, from Old French morine, from Medieval Latin morina, from Latin morī, to die. See mer- in Appendix.]

Mur-ray (mûr'ē) A city of northern Utah, an industrial suburb of Salt Lake City. Population, 31,282.

- Mur-ray (mûr'ē), (George) Gilbert (Aimé). 1866-1957. Australian-born British classical scholar and pacifist noted for his verse translations of Greek dramas and for his advocacy of the League of Nations and the United Nations.
- Mur-ray (mûr'ē), Sir James Augustus Henry. 1837-1915. British philologist and the original lexicographer (1879-1915) of the Oxford English Dictionary.
- Mur-ray (mûr'ē), Joseph E. Born 1919. American physician. He shared a 1990 Nobel Prize for developing organ transplant techniques.
- Mur-ray (mûr'ē), Lindley. 1745-1826. American grammarian who wrote several widely used schoolbooks, including Grammar of the English Language (1795).
- Mur-ray (mûr'ē), Philip. 1886-1952. British-born American labor leader who was president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations (1940-1952) and the United Steel Workers of America (1942-1952).
- Murray River (mûr'ē rīv'ər) A river of southeast Australia rising in the Australian Alps and flowing about 2,589 km (1,609 mi) northwest then south to an arm of the Indian Ocean south of Adelaide.
- murre (mûr) n. pl. murre or murres. Any of several large auks of the genus Uria, having black plumage and white markings. [Origin unknown.]
- mur-rey (mûr'ē) n. Color. See mulberry (n., sense 3). [Middle English murrei, from Old French more, from Latin mōrum, mulberry, blackberry.] —mur'rey adj.
- Mur-row (mûr'ō, mûr'ō), Edward R(oscoe). 1908-1965. American broadcast journalist noted for his dramatic factual reports from London during World War II.
- Mur-rum·bidg·ee (mûr'əm-bīj'ē) A river of southeast Australia rising in the Australian Alps and flowing about 1,689 km (1,050 mi) westward to the Murray River.
- Mur-rys·ville (mûr'ēz-vīl', mûr'-) A borough of southwest Pennsylvania, a suburb of Pittsburgh. Population, 17,240.
- mur-ther (mûr'thər) n. & v. Obsolete. Variant of murder.
- mus. abbr. 1. Museum. 2. Music; musical; musician.
- Mus.B. abbr. Latin. Musicae Baccalaureus (Bachelor of Music).
- Mus-ca (mŭs'kə) n. A constellation in the polar region of the Southern Hemisphere near Apus and Carina. [Latin musca, fly.]
- Mus-ca-det (mŭs'kə-dā') n. A dry white wine made from grapes originating in the Loire River valley. [French, from Old French, from musc, musky odor. See MUSK.]
- mus-ca·dine (mŭs'kə-dīn', -dīn) n. A woody vine (Vitis rotundifolia) of the southeast United States, bearing a musky grape used to make wine. Also called scuppernong [Alteration of MUSCATEL.]
- mus-ca·rine (mŭs'kə-rēn') n. A highly toxic alkaloid, C₉H₂₀NO₂, related to the cholines, derived from the red form of the mushroom Amanita muscaria and found in decaying animal tissue. [New Latin muscaria, Amanita species (from Latin muscārius, of flies, from musca, fly) + -INE².] —mus'ca-rin'ic (-rĭn'ĭk) adj.

mus-cat (müs'kät', -kät) n. 1. Any of various sweet white grapes used for making wine or raisins. 2. Muscatel wine. [French, from Old French, from Old Provençal muscat*, from musc, musk, from Late Latin muscus. See MUSK.]

Mus-cat (müs'kät', -kät, müs-kät') The capital of Oman, in the northern part of the country on the Gulf of Oman. Held by Portugal from 1508 to 1648, it became the capital of Oman in 1741. Population, 30,000.

Muscat and O-man (müs'kät' ənd ō-män') See Oman.

mus-ca-tel (müs'kə-tĕl') n. 1. A rich, sweet wine made from muscat grapes. 2. A muscat grape or raisin. [Middle English muscadelle, partly from Medieval Latin muscātellum (from muscātus, nutmeg, musky, from Late Latin muscus, musk); see MUSK, and partly from Old French muscadel (from Old Provençal, diminutive of muscat*, muscat). See MUSCAT.]

Mus-ca-tine (müs'kə-tĕn') A city of southeast Iowa on the Mississippi River west-southwest of Davenport. Founded in 1833, it grew as a river port and lumber center. Population, 22,881.

mus-cid (müs'ĭd) n. A fly of the family Muscidae, which includes the common housefly. — adj. Of or belonging to the family Muscidae. [From New Latin Muscidae, family name, from Musca, type genus, from Latin musca, fly.]

mus-cle (müs'əl) n. 1. A tissue composed of fibers capable of contracting to effect bodily movement. 2. A contractile organ consisting of a special bundle of muscle tissue, which moves a particular bone, part, or substance of the body: the heart muscle; the muscles of the arm. 3. Muscular strength: enough muscle to be a high jumper. 4. Informal. Power or authority: put some muscle into law enforcement. — v. intr. mus-cled, mus-cling, mus-cles. Informal. To make one's way by or as if by force: muscled into the conversation. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin mūsculus, diminutive of mūs, mouse. See mūs- in Appendix.] —mus'cly adj.

mus-cle-bound also mus-cle-bound (müs'əl-bound') adj. 1. Having inelastic, overdeveloped muscles, usually as the result of excessive exercise.

2. a. Hindered by or as if by overdeveloped muscles. b. Characterized by inflexibility; rigid.

muscle car (müs'əl kär) n. A high-performance automobile, often with flashy, sporty styling.

muscle fiber (müs'əl fĭ'bər) n. A cylindrical, multinucleate cell composed of numerous myofibrils that contracts when stimulated.

mus-cle-man also mus-cle man (müs'əl-män') n. Informal. 1. A man who is physically powerful, especially one with well-developed muscles. 2. A strong man hired as a bodyguard or thug.

muscle spindle (müs'əl spīn'dl) n. A stretch receptor in vertebrate muscle.

mus-co-vite (müs'kə-vīt') n. A potassium aluminum silicate mineral, $KAl_2(AlSi_3O_{10})(OH)_2$, the most common form of mica, which ranges from colorless or pale yellow to gray and brown, has a pearly luster, and is used as an insulator. Also called white mica [Muscovy glass, its former name + -ITE¹.]

Mus-co-vite (müs'kə-vīt') n. A native or resident of Moscow or Muscovy. — adj. Of or relating to Moscow, Muscovy, or the Muscovites.

Mus-co-vy (müs'kə-vē) A former principality in west-central Russia. Centered on Moscow, it was founded c. 1280 and existed as a separate entity until the 16th century, when it was united with another principality to form the nucleus of the early Russian empire. The name was then used for the expanded territory.

Muscovy duck (müs'kə-vē dük) n. A greenish-black, gooselike duck (Cairina moschata), having heavy red wattles and found wild from Mexico to northern Argentina but widely domesticated around the world for its succulent flesh. Also called musk duck [Alteration (influenced by Muscovy), of musk duck.]

mus-cu-lar (müs'kyə-lər) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or consisting of muscle: muscular contraction. 2. Having well-developed muscles: a muscular build.

3. Having or suggesting great power; forceful or vigorous: muscular advocacy groups. 4. Having or suggesting an emphasis on hard physical activity, as at the expense of subtlety: muscular religion; muscular reasoning that does not take the details into account. [From Latin mūsculus, muscle. See MUSCLE.]

—mus'cu-lar'i-ty (-lär'ī-tē) n. —mus'cu-lar-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: muscular, athletic, brawny, burly, sinewy. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “strong and powerfully built”: a muscular boxer; a robust and athletic young woman; brawny arms; a burly stevedore; a lean and sinewy frame.

muscular dystrophy (müs'kyə-lər dīs'trə-fē) n. Abbr. MD 1. Any of a group of progressive muscle disorders caused by a defect in one or more genes that control muscle function and characterized by gradual irreversible wasting of skeletal muscle. 2. Duchenne's muscular dystrophy.

mus-cu-la-ture (müs'kyə-lə-chōōr') n. The system or arrangement of muscles in a body or a body part. [French, from Latin mūsculus, muscle. See MUSCLE.]

mus-cu-lo-skel-e-tal (müs'kyə-lō-skēl'ī-tl) adj. Relating to or involving the muscles and the skeleton. [Latin mūsculus, muscle; see MUSCLE + SKELETAL.]

Mus.D. abbr. Latin. Musicae Doctor (Doctor of Music).

Mus.Dr. abbr. Latin. Musicae Doctor (Doctor of Music).

muse (myōōz) v. mused, mus-ing, mus-es. — v. intr. To be absorbed in one's thoughts; engage in meditation. See Synonyms at ponder. — v. tr. To consider or say thoughtfully: mused that it might take longer to drive than walk.

— n. A state of meditation. [Middle English musen, from Old French muser (possibly from mus, snout, from Medieval Latin mūsum), or of Germanic origin.]

—mus'ing-ly adv.

Muse (myōōz) n. 1. Greek Mythology. Any of the nine daughters of Mnemosyne and Zeus, each of whom presided over a different art or science. 2. muse. a. A guiding spirit. b. A source of inspiration. 3. muse. A poet. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin Mūsa, from Greek Mousa. See men-¹ in Appendix.]

mu-se-ol-o-gy (myōō'zē-ōl'ə-jē) n. The discipline of museum design, organization, and management. —mu'se-o-log'i-cal (-ə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj.

—mu'se-o-log'i-cal-ly adv. —mu'se-ol'o-gist n.

mu-sette (myōō-zēt') n. 1. Music. a. A small French bagpipe operated with a bellows and having a soft sound. b. A soft pastoral air that imitates bagpipe music. 2. A musette bag. [Middle English, from Old French, diminutive of muse, from muser, to play the musette, muse. See MUSE.]

musette bag (myōō-zēt' bæg) n. A small canvas or leather bag with a shoulder strap, as one used by soldiers or travelers.

mu-se-um (myōō-zē'əm) n. Abbr. mus. A building, place, or institution devoted to the acquisition, conservation, study, exhibition, and educational interpretation of objects having scientific, historical, or artistic value. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: museum exhibits; museum tours. [Latin Mūsēum, from Greek Mouseion, shrine of the Muses, from Mouseios, of the Muses, from Mousa, Muse. See men-¹ in Appendix.]

mu-se-um-go-er (myōō-zē'əm-gō'ər) n. 1. A visitor to a museum. 2. One who visits museums frequently.

mush¹ (mūsh) n. 1. A thick porridge or pudding of cornmeal boiled in water or milk. 2. Something thick, soft, and pulpy. 3. Informal. Mawkish sentimentality, affection, or amorousness. — v. tr. mushed, mush-ing, mush-es. To reduce to mush; mash or crush. [Probably alteration of MASH.]

mush² (mūsh) v. mushed, mush-ing, mush-es. — v. intr. To travel, especially over snow with a dogsled. — v. tr. To drive (a dogsled or team of dogs). — n. A journey, especially by dogsled. — interj. Used to command a team of dogs to begin pulling or move faster. [Possibly alteration of French marchons, first person pl. imperative of marchier, to walk, go, from Old French. See MARCH¹.] —mush'er n.

mush bread (mūsh brəd) n. Midland U.S. & Lower Southern U.S. See johnnycake. See Regional note at johnnycake.

Mu-shin (mōō'shīn') A city of southwest Nigeria, an industrial and residential suburb of Lagos. Population, 234,500.

mush-room (mūsh'rōōm', -rōōm') n. 1. Any of various fleshy fungi of the class Basidiomycota, characteristically having an umbrella-shaped cap borne on a stalk, especially any of the edible kinds, as those of the genus Agaricus.

2. Something shaped like one of these fungi. — v. intr. mush-roomed, mush-room-ing, mush-rooms. 1. To multiply, grow, or expand rapidly: The population mushroomed in the postwar decades. 2. To swell or spread out into a shape similar to a mushroom. — adj. 1. Relating to, consisting of, or containing mushrooms: mushroom sauce. 2. Resembling a mushroom in shape: a mushroom cloud. 3. Resembling mushrooms in rapidity of growth or evanescence: mushroom towns. [Middle English musheron, from Anglo-Norman moscheron, musherum, from Old French mousseron, from Medieval Latin musariō, musariōn-.]

mush-y (mŭsh/'ē, mōōsh/'ē) adj. mush-i-er, mush-i-est. 1. Resembling mush in consistency; soft. 2. Informal. a. Excessively sentimental. See Synonyms at sentimental. b. Given to or displaying mawkish affection or amorousness. —mush'i-ly adv. —mush'i-ness n.

Mu-si-al (myōō/'zē-əl), Stanley Frank. Known as “Stan the Man.” Born 1920. American baseball player who as an outfielder and first baseman for the St. Louis Cardinals (1941-1963) accrued a lifetime batting average of .331 and hit 475 home runs and 3,630 base hits.

mu-sic (myōō/'zĭk) n. Abbr. mus. 1. The art of arranging sounds in time so as to produce a continuous, unified, and evocative composition, as through melody, harmony, rhythm, and timbre. 2. Vocal or instrumental sounds possessing a degree of melody, harmony, or rhythm. 3. a. A musical composition. b. The written or printed score for such a composition. c. Such scores considered as a group: We keep our music in a stack near the piano. 4. A musical accompaniment. 5. A particular category or kind of music. 6. An aesthetically pleasing or harmonious sound or combination of sounds: the music of the wind in the pines. [Middle English, from Old French musique, from Latin mūsica, from Greek (hē) mousikē (tekhne), (art) of the Muses, feminine of mousikos, of the Muses, from Mousa, Muse. See men⁻¹ in Appendix.]

mu-si-cal (myōō/'zĭ-kəl) adj. Abbr. mus. 1. Of, relating to, or capable of producing music: a musical instrument. 2. Characteristic of or resembling music; melodious: a musical speaking voice. 3. Set to or accompanied by music: a musical revue. 4. Devoted to or skilled in music. — n. Abbr. mus. 1. A play or movie in which an often simple plot, developed by dialogue, is interspersed with songs and sometimes dances. 2. Archaic. A musicale. —mu'si-cal-ly adv.

musical chairs (myōō/'zĭ-kəl chārz) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). 1. Games. A game in which players walk to music around a group of chairs containing one chair fewer than the number of players and rush to sit down when the music stops. The player left standing in each round is eliminated. 2. Informal. A rearrangement, as of the elements of a problem, having little practical influence or significance.

musical comedy (myōō'zī-kəl kōm'ī-dē) n. A play or movie in which dialogue is interspersed with songs; a musical.

mu-si-cale (myōō'zī-kāl') n. A program of music performed at a party or social gathering. [French, from (soirée) musicale, musical (evening), from musique, music. See MUSIC.]

mu-si-cal-i-ty (myōō'zī-kāl'ī-tē) n. 1. The quality or condition of being musical. 2. Musical sensitivity or talent.

mu-si-cal-ize (myōō'zī-kə-līz') v. tr. mu-si-cal-ized, mu-si-cal-iz-ing, mu-si-cal-iz-es. To adapt for performance with singing and musical accompaniment; set to music: to musicalize a play by Shakespeare. —mu'si-cal-i-za'tion (-kə-lī-zā'shən) n.

musical saw (myōō'zī-kəl sō) n. Music. A handsaw on which varying musical tones are produced by flexing the blade and stroking it with a violin bow or striking it with a hammer.

music box (myōō'zīk bōks) n. Music. A music-making device consisting of a housing or box enclosing a sounding mechanism, especially one in which a row of tuned steel teeth are plucked by pins set in a revolving cylinder to produce a melody.

music drama (myōō'zīk drā'mə) n. Music. An opera in which the continuity is not interrupted by arias, recitatives, or ensembles, and in which the music reflects or embodies the action of the drama.

music hall (myōō'zīk hōl) n. 1. An auditorium for musical performances. 2. Chiefly British. a. A vaudeville theater. b. Vaudeville.

mu-si-cian (myōō-zīsh'ən) n. Abbr. mus. One who composes, conducts, or performs music, especially instrumental music. [Middle English musicien, from Old French, from Latin mūsica, music. See MUSIC.] —mu-si'cian-ly adj. —mu-si'cian-ship' n.

music of the spheres (myōō'zīk ūv thē sfīrz) n. A perfectly harmonious music, inaudible on Earth, thought by Pythagoras and later classical and medieval philosophers to be produced by the movement of celestial bodies.

mu-si-col-o-gy (myōō'zī-kōl'ə-jē) n. The historical and scientific study of music. —mu'si-co-log'i-cal (-kə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj. —mu'si-co-log'i-cal-ly adv. —mu'si-col'o-gist n.

music video (myōō'zīk vīd'ē-ō') n. A filmed or videotaped rendition of a recorded song, often portraying musicians performing the song or including visual images interpreting the lyrics.

mu-sique con-crète (mōō-zēk' kōn-krēt', mū-zēk kōN-krēt') n. Music. Electronic music composed of instrumental and natural sounds often altered or distorted in the recording process. [French : musique, music + concrète, concrete.]

musk (mŭsk) n. 1. a. A greasy secretion with a powerful odor, produced in a glandular sac beneath the skin of the abdomen of the male musk deer and used in the manufacture of perfumes. b. A similar secretion produced by certain other animals, such as the otter or civet. c. A synthetic chemical resembling natural musk in odor or use. 2. a. The odor of musk. b. An odor similar to musk. 3. A musk deer. [Middle English, from Old French musc, from Late Latin muscus, from Greek moskhos, from Persian mušk, probably from Sanskrit muṣkaḥ, testicle.]

musk deer (mŭsk dîr) n. A small, antlerless deer (Moschus moschiferus) of the mountainous regions of central and northeast Asia, the male of which secretes musk.

musk duck (mŭsk dŭk) n. 1. See Muscovy duck. 2. A waterfowl (Biziura lobata) of Australia, the male of which has a leathery chin lobe and emits a musky odor during the breeding season.

mus-keg (mŭs'kĕg') also mas-keg (mäs'-) n. A swamp or bog formed by an accumulation of sphagnum moss, leaves, and decayed matter resembling peat. [Cree maskek.]

Mus-ke-go (mŭ-skĕ'gō) A city of southeast Wisconsin, a suburb of Milwaukee. Population, 16,813.

Mus-ke-gon (mŭ-skĕ'gən) A city of southwest Michigan west-northwest of Grand Rapids at the mouth of the Muskegon River, which flows about 365 km (227 mi) from west-central Michigan southwest to Lake Michigan. The city was founded on the site of a fur-trading post established c. 1810. Population, 40,283.

mus-kel-lunge or mus-ke-lunge (mŭs'kə-lŭnj') also mas-ki-nonge (mäs'kə-nŏng', -nŏnj') n. pl. muskellunge or mus-kel-lung-es or muskellunge or mus-ke-lung-es also maskinonge or mas-ki-nong-es. A large food and game fish (Esox masquinongy), the largest member of the pike family, found in lakes and rivers of the northern United States and southern Canada. [Canadian French maskinongé, from Ojibwa maashkinoozhe.]

mus-ket (mŭs'kĭt) n. A smoothbore shoulder gun used from the late 16th through the 18th century. [French mousquet, from Italian moschetto, a type of crossbow, musket, diminutive of mosca, fly, from Latin musca.]

mus-ket-eer (mŭs'kĭ-tîr') n. 1. A soldier armed with a musket. 2. A member of the French royal household bodyguard in the 17th and 18th centuries. [French mousquetaire, from mousquet, musket. See MUSKET.]

mus-ket-ry (mŭs'kĭ-trĕ) n. 1. The technique of using small arms. 2. Muskets considered as a group. 3. Musketeers considered as a group.

Mus-kho-ge-an (mŭs-kō'gĕ-ən) n. Variant of Muskogean.

mus-kie or mus-ky (mŭs'kĕ) n. pl. mus-kies. The muskellunge.

Mus-kie (mŭs'kĕ), Edmund Sixtus. 1914-1996. American politician. A Democratic U.S. senator from Maine (1958-1980), he also served as U.S. secretary of state (1980-1981).

Mus-king-um River (mə-skɪŋ'əm rɪv'ər, -gəm) A river of eastern Ohio flowing about 179 km (111 mi) south and southeast to the Ohio River at Marietta.

musk mallow (mʊsk məl'ō) n. 1. See abelmosk. 2. A European and North African herb (Malva moschata) naturalized in eastern North America.

musk-mel-on (mʊsk'mɛl'ən) n. 1. Any of several varieties of the melon Cucumis melo, such as the cantaloupe, having fruit characterized by a netted rind and edible flesh with a musky aroma. 2. The fruit of any of these plants.

Mus-ko-ge-an also Mus-kho-ge-an (mʊs-kō'gē-ən) n. A family of Native American languages of the southeast United States that includes Choctaw, Chickasaw, Creek, and Alabama.

Mus-ko-gee¹ (mʊs-kō'gē) n. See Creek. [Creek maaskóoki.]

Mus-ko-gee² (mə-skō'gē) A city of eastern Oklahoma on the Arkansas River southeast of Tulsa. Founded in 1872, it is a trade and industrial center. Population, 37,708.

musk ox or musk-ox (mʊsk'öks') n. pl. musk oxen or musk-ox-en (-ök'sən). A large, stocky ox (Ovibos moschatus) native to the coastal regions of northern Canada and Greenland, having broad flat horns with curved tips and a long, shaggy, brown or black coat and emitting a musky odor.

musk-rat (mʊs'krät') n. pl. muskrat or musk-rats. 1. A large aquatic rodent (Ondatra zibethica) of North America, related to the lemming and the vole and having a dense brown coat and musk glands under a broad, flat tail. Also called musquash, water rat. 2. The fur of this rodent.

musk-root (mʊsk'rōöt', -rōöt') n. See moschatel.

musk rose (mʊsk rōz) n. A prickly Mediterranean shrub (Rosa moschata) cultivated for its clustered, musk-scented white flowers.

musk turtle (mʊsk tûr'tl) n. Any of several small freshwater turtles of the genus Sternotherus of the eastern United States and Canada, which emit a musky odor when disturbed.

musk-y¹ (mʊs'kē) adj. musk-i-er, musk-i-est. Of, relating to, or having the odor of musk. —musk-i-ness n.

mus-ky² (mʊs'kē) n. Variant of muskie.

Mus-lim (mʊz'ləm, mōöz'-, mʊs'-, mōös'-) or Moslem (mōz'ləm, mōs'-) n. 1. A believer in or adherent of Islam. 2. A Black Muslim. [Arabic muslim, one who surrenders, active participle of aslama, to surrender, from Syriac ʿašlem.] —Mus'lim adj.

Muslim calendar (mʊz'ləm käl'ən-dər) n. The lunar calendar used by Muslims, reckoned from the year of the Hegira in A.D. 622. See Table at calendar.

mus-lin (mʊz'lɪn) n. Any of various sturdy cotton fabrics of plain weave, used especially for sheets. [French mousseline, from Italian mussolina, from Mussolo, Mosul, Iraq, from Arabic Al-Mawşil.]

Mus.M. abbr. Latin. Musicae Magister (Master of Music).

mus-quash (mŭs'kwōsh', -kwōsh') n. See muskrat (n., sense 1). [Perhaps of Massachusetts origin; akin to Western Abenaki mōskwas.]

muss (mŭs) v. tr. mused, muss-ing, muss-es. To make messy or untidy; rumple. — n. A state of disorder; a mess. [Probably alteration of MESS.]
—muss'i-ly adv. —muss'i-ness n. —muss'y adj.

mus-sel (mŭs'əl) n. 1. Any of several marine bivalve mollusks, especially the edible members of the family Mytilidae and in particular Mytilus edulis, a blue-black species raised commercially in Europe. Mussels are often found attached to rocky surfaces or the sides of ships. 2. Any of several freshwater bivalve mollusks of the genera Anodonta and Unio, found in the central United States, that burrow in the sand or mud of lakes and streams. [Alteration (possibly influenced by Dutch mossel, from Middle Dutch mosscele), of Middle English muscle, from Old English muscelle, from Medieval Latin mūscula, from Latin mūsculus, sea mussel. See MUSCLE.]

Mus-sel-shell (mŭs'əl-shĕl') A river of central Montana flowing about 483 km (300 mi) east then north to the Missouri River.

Mus-set (mōō-sā', mŭ-), (Louis Charles) Alfred de. 1810-1857. French writer. A leading poet of the French romantic movement, he also wrote comedies of manners, such as Lorenzaccio (1834).

Mus-so-li-ni (mōō'sə-lĕ'nĕ, mōōs'ə-, mōōs'sō-), Benito. Known as "Il Duce." 1883-1945. Italian Fascist dictator and prime minister (1922-1943) who conducted an expansionist foreign policy, formalized an alliance with Germany (1939), and brought Italy into World War II (1940). Dismissed by Victor Emmanuel III (1943), he led a puppet Nazi government in northern Italy until 1945, when he was assassinated.

Mus-sorg-sky (mə-zōrg'skĕ, -sōrg'-, mōō'sərg-), Modest Petrovich. 1839-1881. Russian composer whose works include the opera Boris Godunov and the piano suite Pictures at an Exhibition (both 1874).

Mus-sul-man (mŭs'əl-mən) n. pl. mus-sul-men or mus-sul-mans. Archaic. A Moslem. [Turkish musulmān, probably alteration of Arabic muslim, Muslim. See MUSLIM.]

must¹ (mŭst) v. aux. 1. To be obliged or required by morality, law, or custom: Citizens must register in order to vote. 2. To be compelled, as by a physical necessity or requirement: Plants must have oxygen in order to live. 3. Used to express a command or an admonition: You must not go there alone. You simply must be careful. 4. To be determined to; have as a fixed resolve: If you must leave, do it quietly. 5. a. Used to indicate inevitability or certainty: We all must die. b. Used to indicate logical probability or presumptive certainty: If the lights were on, they must have been at home. — v. intr. Archaic. To be required or obliged to go: "I must from hence" (Shakespeare). — n. Something that is absolutely required or indispensable: Promptness on the job is a must. Comfortable shoes are a must when taking a walking tour of Wales. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a new book that is must reading; a list of must legislation for the session. [Middle English moste, from Old English mōste, past tense of mōtan, to be allowed. See med- in Appendix.]

must² (müst) n. The quality or condition of being stale or musty. [Probably back-formation from MUSTY.]

must³ (müst) n. The unfermented or fermenting juice expressed from fruit, especially grapes. [Middle English, from Old English, from Latin mustum, neuter of mustus, new, fresh.]

must⁴ (müst) n. Variant of musth.

must⁵ (müst) n. Musk. [Scottish, from Old French, variant of musc. See MUSK.]

mus-tache also mous-tache (müs'tāsh', mə-stāsh') n. 1. The hair growing on the human upper lip, especially when cultivated and groomed. 2. Something similar to the cultivated, groomed hair on the human upper lip, as: a. A group of bristles or hairs about the mouth of an animal. b. Distinctive coloring or feathers near the beak of a bird. c. Food or drink sticking conspicuously to the upper lip, as after a deep draft: a milk mustache. [French moustache, from Italian dialectal mustaccio, from Medieval Greek moustakion, from Greek mustax, mustache, upper lip.]

mus-tached (müs'tāsht) adj. Variant of mustachioed.

mus-ta-chio (mə-stāsh'ō, -stāsh'ē-ō', -stā'shō, -shē-ō') n. pl. mus-ta-chios.

A mustache, especially a luxuriant one. [Ultimately from Italian dialectal mustaccio, mustache. See MUSTACHE.]

mus-ta-chioed also mous-ta-chioed (mə-stāsh'ōd, -stāsh'ē-ōd', -stā'shōd, -shē-ōd') or mus-tached (müs'tāsht) adj. Having or wearing a mustache.

mus-tang (müs'tāng') n. A small, hardy wild horse of the North American plains, descended from Arabian horses and brought to the New World by Spanish explorers. [American Spanish mesteño, mestengo, stray animal, from Old Spanish, from mesta, association of livestock owners, from Medieval Latin (animalia) mixta, assorted (animals), from Latin, neuter pl. past participle of miscēre, to mix. See meik- in Appendix.]

mus-tard (müs'tərd) n. 1. a. Any of various Eurasian plants of the genus Brassica, especially B. nigra and B. juncea, which are cultivated for their pungent seeds. b. A condiment made from the powdered seeds of some of these plants. 2. A member of the mustard family. 3. Color. A dark yellow to light olive brown. —idiom. cut the mustard. To perform up to expectations or to a required standard. [Middle English, from Old French mustarde, from Latin mustum, must, unfermented wine. See MUST³.] —mus'tard-y adj.

mustard family (müs'tərd fām'ə-lē) n. A large family of herbs, the Cruciferae (Brassicaceae), characterized by pungent juice and four-petaled flowers arranged in a cross and including important vegetables such as broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower, kale, radishes, and watercress.

mustard gas (müs'tərd gäs) n. An oily, volatile liquid, $(\text{ClCH}_2\text{CH}_2)_2\text{S}$, that is corrosive to the skin and mucous membranes and causes severe, sometimes fatal respiratory damage. It was introduced in World War I as a chemical warfare agent. [From its smell.]

mustard oil (müs'tərd oil) n. An oil obtained from mustard seeds, used in making soap.

mustard plaster (müs'tərd pläs'tər) n. A medicinal plaster made with a pastelike mixture of powdered black mustard, flour, and water, used especially as a counterirritant. Also called sinapism mus-te-line (müs'tə-līn', -līn) adj. Of, relating to, or belonging to Mustelidae, the family of fur-bearing mammals that includes the badger, mink, otter, and weasel. [Latin mūstēlinus, of a weasel, from mūstēla, weasel, probably from mūs, mouse. See mūs- in Appendix.]

mus-ter (müs'tər) v. mus-tered, mus-ter-ing, mus-ters. — v. tr. 1. To call (troops) together, as for inspection. 2. To cause to come together; gather: Bring all the volunteers you can muster. 3. To call forth; summon up: mustering up her strength for the ordeal. See Synonyms at call. — v. intr. To assemble or gather: mustering for inspection. — n. 1. a. A gathering, especially of troops, for service, inspection, review, or roll call. b. The persons assembled for such a gathering. 2. A muster roll. 3. A gathering or collection: a muster of business leaders at a luncheon. 4. A flock of peacocks. See Synonyms at flock¹. — phrasal verbs. muster in. To enlist in military service: She mustered in at the age of 18. muster out. To leave or be discharged from military service: He mustered out when the war ended. [Middle English mustren, from Old French moustrer, from Latin mōnstrāre, to show, from mōnstrum, sign, portent, from monēre, to warn. See men⁻¹ in Appendix.]

muster roll (müs'tər rōl) n. 1. The official roll of persons in a military or naval unit. 2. An inventory; a roster.

musth also must (müst) n. An annual period of heightened aggressiveness and sexual activity in male elephants, during which violent frenzies occur. [Urdu mast, from Persian, drunk.]

must·n't (müs'ənt) Must not.

must-read (müst'rēd') n. Slang. A piece of writing, such as a book, an article, or a salient part of one of these, that should or must be read: Not many must-reads were published this summer. — must'-read' adj.

must-see (müst'sē') n. Slang. Something that should or must be seen: a brief sightseeing tour hitting the must-sees; a movie that's a must-see. — must'-see' adj.

must·y (müs'tē) adj. must·i·er, must·i·est. 1. Stale or moldy in odor or taste. 2. a. Hackneyed or trite; dull. b. Out of date; antiquated. c. Out of use or practice; rusty. [Alteration of obsolete moisty, from MOIST.] —must'ily adv. —must'iness n.

mu·ta·ble (myōō'tā-bəl) adj. 1. a. Capable of or subject to change or alteration. b. Prone to frequent change; inconstant: mutable weather patterns. 2. Tending to undergo genetic mutation: a mutable organism; a mutable gene. [Middle English, from Latin mūtābilis, from mūtāre, to change. See MUTATE.] —mu'ta·bil'i·ty, mu'ta·ble·ness n. —mu'ta·bly adv.

mu·ta·gen (myōō'tā-jən, -jĕn') n. An agent, such as ultraviolet light or a radioactive element, that can induce or increase the frequency of mutation in an organism. [MUTA(TION) + -GEN.] —mu'ta·gen'ic adj. —mu'ta·gen'i·cal·ly adv. —mu'ta·ge·nic'i·ty (-jə-nĭs'ī-tē) n.

mu·ta·gen·e·sis (myōō'tā-jĕn'ī-sĭs) n. pl. mu·ta·gen·e·ses (-sēz'). Formation or development of a mutation. [MUTA(TION) + -GENESIS.]

mu·ta·gen·ize (myōō'tā-jĕn'īz) v. tr. mu·ta·gen·ized, mu·ta·gen·iz·ing, mu·ta·gen·iz·es. To cause or induce mutation in (a cell or an organism).

Mu·tan·chiang (mōō'tän'chyäng') See Mudanjiang.

mu·tant (myōō'tnt) n. 1. An individual, an organism, or a new genetic character arising or resulting from mutation. 2. Slang. One that is suggestive of a genetic mutant, as in bizarre appearance, inaptitude, or genesis in an unhealthy environment: "These... remakes are neither dreams nor recognizable reality. They're mutants." (Vincent Canby). — adj. 1. Resulting from or undergoing mutation: a mutant strain of bacteria. 2. Slang. Suggestive of a genetic mutant, as in appearance, inaptitude, or genesis in an unhealthy environment: gangs of disaffected mutant teenagers. [Latin mūtāns, mūtant-, present participle of mūtāre, to change. See MUTATE.]

mu·tase (myōō'tās, -tāz) n. Any enzyme that catalyzes the rearrangement of atoms within a molecule, especially one that causes the transfer of a phosphate group from one carbon atom to another. [Latin mūtāre, to change, move; see MUTATE + -ASE.]

mu·tate (myōō'tāt, myōō-tāt') v. intr. tr. mu·tat·ed, mu·tat·ing, mu·tates. To undergo or cause to undergo mutation. [Latin mūtāre, mūtāt-, to change. See mei¹ in Appendix.] —mu'ta'tive (-tā'tĭv, -tə-tĭv) adj.

mu·ta·tion (myōō-tā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of being altered or changed. 2. An alteration or change, as in nature, form, or quality. 3. Genetics. a. A sudden structural change within a gene or chromosome of an organism resulting in the creation of a new character or trait not found in the parental type. b. The process by which such a sudden structural change occurs, either through an alteration in the nucleotide sequence of the DNA coding for a gene or through a change in the physical arrangement of a chromosome. c. A mutant.

4. Linguistics. The change, especially an umlaut, that is caused in a sound by its assimilation to another sound. [Middle English mutacioun, from Old French mutacion, from Latin mūtātiō, mūtātiōn- from past participle of mūtāre, to change. See MUTATE.] —mu·ta'tion·al adj. —mu·ta'tion·al·ly adv.

mu·ta·tis mu·tan·dis (mōō-tä'tis mōō-tän'dis) adv. Abbr. m.m. The necessary changes having been made; having substituted new terms. [Latin mūtātīs mūtandīs : mūtātīs, ablative pl. past participle of mūtāre, to change + mūtandīs, ablative pl. gerundive of mūtāre.]

mutch·kin (müch'kĭn) n. Scots. A unit of liquid measure equal to 0.9 U.S. pint (0.42 liter). [Middle English muchekyn, from Middle Dutch mudseken, diminutive of mutse, a kind of measure, from Latin modius, grain measure. See med- in Appendix.]

mute (myōōt) adj. mut·er, mut·est. 1. Refraining from producing speech or vocal sound. 2. a. Unable to speak. b. Unable to vocalize, as certain animals. See Synonyms at dumb. 3. Expressed without speech; unspoken: a mute appeal. 4. Law. Refusing to plead when under arraignment. 5. Linguistics. a. Not pronounced; silent, as the e in the word house. b. Pronounced with a temporary stoppage of breath, as the sounds (p) and (b); plosive; stopped. — n. 1. Offensive. One who is incapable of speech. 2. Law. A defendant who refuses to plead when under arraignment. 3. Music. Any of various devices used to muffle or soften the tone of an instrument. 4. Linguistics. a. A silent letter. b. A plosive; a stop. — v. tr. mut·ed, mut·ing, mutes. 1. To soften or muffle the sound of. 2. To soften the tone, color, shade, or hue of. [Middle English muēt, from Old French, from diminutive of mu, from Latin mūtus.] —mute'ly adv.

—mute'ness n.

mut·ed (myōō'tĭd) adj. 1. a. Muffled; indistinct: a muted voice. b. Mute or subdued; softened: muted colors. 2. Music. Produced by or provided with a mute. —mut'ed·ly adv.

mute swan (myōōt swŏn) n. A white swan (Cygnus olor) native to Europe and Asia and widely introduced elsewhere, having an orange bill with a black knob at the base and being much less vocal than most swans.

mu·ti·late (myōōt'l-āt') v. tr. mu·ti·lat·ed, mu·ti·lat·ing, mu·ti·lates. 1. To deprive of a limb or an essential part; cripple. 2. To disfigure by damaging irreparably: mutilate a statue. See Synonyms at batter¹. 3. To make imperfect by excising or altering parts. [Latin mutilāre, mutilāt-, from mutilus, maimed.]

—mu'ti·la'tion n. —mu'ti·la'tive adj. —mu'ti·la'tor n.

mu·ti·neer (myōōt'n-ĭr') n. One who takes part in a mutiny. [Obsolete French mutinier, from Old French mutin, rebellious. See MUTINY.]

mu·ti·nous (myōōt'n-əs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, engaged in, disposed to, or constituting mutiny. See Synonyms at insubordinate. 2. Unruly; disaffected: a mutinous child. 3. Turbulent and uncontrollable: “mutinous passions, and con- flicting fears” (Percy Bysshe Shelley). [From obsolete mutine, mutiny. See MUTINY.] —mu'ti-nous-ly adv. —mu'ti-nous-ness n.

mu-ti-ny (myōōt'n-ē) n. pl. mu-ti-nies. Open rebellion against constituted authority, especially rebellion of sailors against superior officers. See Synonyms at rebellion. — v. intr. mu-ti-nied, mu-ti-ny-ing, mu-ti-nies. To engage in mutiny. [Obsolete mutine, from Old French mutin, rebellious, from muete, revolt, from Vulgar Latin movita*, from Latin movēre, to move. See MOVE.]

mut-ism (myōō'tiz'əm) n. The condition of being unable to speak as a result of a physical or psychological disorder.

mu-ton (myōō'tōn') n. The smallest unit of DNA at which a mutation can occur; a nucleotide. [MUT(ATION) + -ON¹.]

Mu-tsu-hi-to (mōō'tsōō-hē'tō), Imperial name Mei-ji (mā'jē') 1852-1912. Emperor of Japan (1867-1912) who presided over the transformation of feudal Japan into a modern constitutional state.

mutt (müt) n. Informal. 1. A mongrel dog. 2. A person regarded as stupid. [Short for MUTTONHEAD.]

WORD HISTORY: Clipping not of sheep but of a word having to do with sheep has given us our term mutt for a mongrel dog. Clipping or abbreviating words, a standard process of word formation, sheared mutt from muttonhead, a pejorative term meaning “a stupid person,” based on the notion that sheep are stupid. Mutt in its first recorded use in 1901 is used in the same senses as muttonhead, but it is soon recorded (1904) as a term of contempt for a horse and then (1906) for a dog. We can be reasonably certain that the New Yorker critic writing in 1970 that “The cast includes a Sheepdog... a Mutt Bitch,” had no awareness that a sheepdog would make the ideal mutt.

mut-ter (müt'ər) v. mut-tered, mut-ter-ing, mut-ters. — v. intr. 1. To speak indistinctly in low tones. 2. To complain or grumble morosely. — v. tr. To utter or say in low, indistinct tones. — n. A low grumble or indistinct utterance. [Middle English muttren, possibly from Latin muttīre.] —mut'ter-er n.

mut-ton (müt'n) n. The flesh of fully grown sheep. [Middle English, from Old French mouton, moton, from Medieval Latin multō, multōn-, of Celtic origin. See mel¹ in Appendix.]

mut-ton-bird (müt'n-bûrd') n. See sooty shearwater.

mut-ton-chops (müt'n-chōps') pl.n. Side whiskers that are narrow at the temple, broad along the lower cheek or jawline, and separated by a shaven chin.

mut-ton-fish (müt'n-fîsh') n. pl. muttonfish or mut-ton-fish-es. 1. An eelpout (Macrozoarces americanus) of the coastal waters of northeast North America. 2. Mutton snapper.

mut·ton·head (müt'n-hĕd') n. Informal. A person regarded as stupid; a fool.

[From the proverbial stupidity of sheep.] —mut'ton·head'ed adj.

mutton snapper (müt'n snăp'ər) n. An olive-green snapper (Lutjanus analis) of warm western Atlantic waters, valued as a source of food and as a game fish.

Mut·tra (müt'rə) See Mathura.

mu·tu·al (myōō'chōō-əl) adj. 1. Having the same relationship each to the other: mutual predators. 2. Directed and received in equal amount; reciprocal: mutual respect. 3. Possessed in common: mutual interests. 4. Of, relating to, or in the form of mutual insurance. — n. A mutual fund. [French mutuel, from Old French, from Latin mūtūus, borrowed. See mei¹ in Appendix.]

—mu'tu-al'i-ty (-ăl'ī-tē) n. —mu'tu-al-ly adv.

USAGE NOTE: Mutual is uncontroversially used to describe a reciprocal relationship between two or more things, in which use it can be paraphrased by expressions involving between or each other. Thus their mutual animosity means “their animosity for each other” or “the animosity between them,” and a mutual defense treaty is one in which each party agrees to come to the defense of the other. But mutual is also widely used where one might expect “common,” as in The bill serves the mutual interests of management and labor and particularly in the expression our mutual friend, which was widespread even before Charles Dickens used it as the title of a novel. Critics have often objected to this use, but it is well established in reputable writing. However, mutual in this latter sense is reserved to describe relations that hold between two or more specific parties and a third person or thing. It cannot be used as a substitute for common in the sense “general”: English is the common (not mutual) language of the island. It is commonly (not mutually) believed that Spanish is an easier language than French.

mutual assured destruction (myōō'chōō-əl ə-shōōrd' dī-strūk'shən) n.

Abbr. MAD Severe, unavoidable reciprocal damage that superpowers are likely to inflict on each other or their allies in a nuclear war, conceived as the heart of a doctrine of nuclear deterrence.

mutual fund (myōō'chōō-əl fünd) n. An investment company that continually offers new shares and buys existing shares back on demand and uses its capital to invest in diversified securities of other companies. —mu'tu-al-fund' (myōō'chōō-əl-fünd') adj.

mutual inductance (myōō'chōō-əl ĩn-dŭk'təns) n. Abbr. M The ratio of the electromotive force in a circuit to the corresponding change of current in a neighboring circuit.

mutual induction (myōō'chōō-əl ĩn-dŭk'shən) n. The production of an electromotive force in a circuit resulting from a change of current in a neighboring circuit.

mutual insurance (myōō'chōō-əl ĩn-shōōr'əns) n. An insurance system in which the insured persons become company members, each paying specified amounts into a common fund from which members are entitled to indemnification in case of loss.

mu·tu·al·ism (myōō'chōō-əl-lĭz'əm) n. An association between organisms of two different species in which each member benefits. —mu'tu-al-is'tic adj.

mu·tu·al·ize (myōō'chōō-əl-lĭz') v. tr. mu-tu-al-ized, mu-tu-al-iz-ing, mu-tu-al-iz-es. 1. To make mutual. 2. To set up or reorganize (a corporation) so that the majority of common stock is owned by customers or employees. — v. intr. To become mutual. —mu'tu-al-i-za'tion (-əl-lĭ-zā'shən) n.

muu·muu (mōō'mōō') n. A long, loose dress that hangs free from the shoulders. [Hawaiian mu'umu'u, cut off, muumu.]

Muy·bridge (mĭ'brij'), Eadweard. Originally Edward James Muggeridge. 1830-1904. British-born American motion-picture pioneer noted for his photographs of horses in motion, taken by a series of still cameras.

Mu-zak (myōō'zāk') A trademark used for recorded background music transmitted by wire or radio, as to places of business, on a subscription basis.

mu-zhik also mou·jik or mu·jik or mu-zjik (mōō-zhĕk', -zhĭk') n. A peasant in czarist Russia. [Russian, from muzh, man. See man¹ in Appendix.]

Mu-zo-re-wa (mōōz'ə-rā'wə), Abel Tendekayi. Born 1925. Zimbabwean clergyman and political leader who advocated a peaceful transition from the white-minority government of Rhodesia to an independently ruled Zimbabwe. He served as Zimbabwe's prime minister (1979-1980).

Muz·tag or Muz·tagh (mōōs-tä', -täg') A mountain, 7,286.8 m (23,891 ft) high, in the Kunlun Range of western China near the Indian border.

Muz·tag·a·ta also Muz·tagh A·ta (mōōs-tä'ə-tä', mōōs-täg'-) A mountain, 7,550.9 m (24,757 ft) high, of the Muztagata Range in western China near Tadzhikistan.

Muz·tagh (mōōs-tä', -täg') See Muztag.

muz-zle (mŭz'əl) n. 1. The forward, projecting part of the head of certain animals, such as dogs, including the mouth, nose, and jaws; the snout. 2. A leather or wire restraining appliance that, when fitted over an animal's snout, prevents biting and eating. 3. The forward, discharging end of the barrel of a firearm.

4. A restraint on free movement or expression: had a muzzle put on their high spirits. — v. tr. muz-zled, muz-zling, muz-zles. 1. To put a muzzle on (an animal). 2. To restrain from expression: tried to muzzle the opposition. [Middle English mosel, from Old French musel, from Medieval Latin mŭsellum, diminutive of mŭsus, snout, from Latin mŭsum.] —muz'zler n.

muz-zle-load-er (müz'əl-lō'dər) n. A firearm that is loaded at the muzzle.

—muz'zle-load'ing adj.

muz-zy (müz'ē) adj. muz-zi-er, muz-zi-est. 1. Mentally confused; muddled.

2. Blurred; indistinct. [Origin unknown.] —muz'zi-ly adv. —muz'zi-ness n.

mV abbr. Millivolt.

MV abbr. 1. Mean variation. 2. Megavolt.

MVP abbr. Sports. Most valuable player.

mW abbr. Milliwatt.

MW abbr. Megawatt.

Mwe-ru (mwā'rōō), Lake. A lake of central Africa on the Zaire-Zambia border west of the southern end of Lake Tanganyika.

Mx abbr. Maxwell (measurement).

MX abbr. Sports. Motocross.

mx.d. abbr. Mixed.

my (mī) adj. The possessive form of I. 1. Used as a modifier before a noun: my boots; my accomplishments. 2. Used preceding various forms of polite, affectionate, or familiar address: My friend, you are so right. 3. Used in various interjectional phrases: My word! My goodness! — interj. Used as an exclamation of surprise, pleasure, or dismay: Oh, my! What a tiring day! [Middle English mi, from Old English mīn. See me-¹ in Appendix.]

m.y. abbr. Million years.

my- pref. Variant of myo-.

my-al-gi-a (mī-äl'jē-ə, -jə) n. Muscular pain or tenderness, especially when diffuse and nonspecific. —my-al'gic (-jĭk) adj.

Myan-mar (myän-mär') See Burma.

my-as-the-ni-a (mī'əs-thē'nē-ə) n. 1. Abnormal muscular weakness or fatigue. 2. Myasthenia gravis. —my'as-then'ic (-thēn'ĭk) adj.

myasthenia gra-vis (mī'əs-thē'nē-ə gräv'is) n. A disease characterized by progressive fatigue and generalized weakness of the skeletal muscles, especially those of the face, neck, arms, and legs, caused by impaired transmission of nerve impulses following an autoimmune attack on acetylcholine receptors. [New Latin : MYASTHENIA + Latin gravis, heavy, severe.]

myc (mĭk) n. Any of a group of vertebrate oncogenes whose product, a DNA binding protein, is thought to promote the growth of tumor cells. [Possibly from my(elo)c(ytomatosis virus).]

myc. abbr. 1. Mycological. 2. Mycology.

myc- pref. Variant of myco-.

Myc-a-le (mĭk'ə-lē) A promontory of western Asia Minor. In 479 B.C. it was the site of a major Greek victory over the Persian fleet.

my-ce-li-um (mī-sē'lē-əm) n. pl. my-ce-li-a (-lē-ə). 1. The vegetative part of a fungus, consisting of a mass of branching, threadlike hyphae. 2. A similar mass of fibers formed by certain bacteria. [New Latin : MYC(O)- + Greek hēlos, wart.]

—my·ce/li·al (-lē-əl) adj.

My·ce·nae (mī-sē'nē) An ancient Greek city in the northeast Peloponnesus that flourished during the Bronze Age as the center of an early civilization. It was the legendary capital of Agamemnon.

My·ce·nae·an (mī'sə-nē'ən) adj. 1. Of or relating to Mycenae or its inhabitants. 2. Of, relating to, or being the Aegean civilization that spread its influence from Mycenae to many parts of the Mediterranean region from about 1580 to 1120 B.C. 3. Of, relating to, or being the archaic dialect of Greek written in the Linear B script. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Mycenae. 2. Mycenaean Greek.

-mycete suff. Fungus: basidiomycete. [New Latin -mycētēs, from Greek mukēs, mukēt-, fungus.]

my·ce·to·ma (mī'sī-tō'mə) *n. pl. my·ce·to·mas or my·ce·to·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A chronic, slowly progressing bacterial or fungal infection usually of the foot or leg, characterized by nodules that discharge an oily pus. [Greek mukēs, mukēt-, fungus + -OMA.] —my'ce·to'ma·tous (-tō'mə-təs, -tōm'ə-) *adj.

-mycin suff. A substance derived from a bacterium in the order Actinomycetales: neomycin. [MYC(O)- (so called because the bacteria from which the substances were first derived were originally mistaken for fungi) + -IN.]

myco- or myc- pref. Fungus: mycology. [From Greek mukēs, fungus.]

my·co·bac·te·ri·um (mī'kō-bāk-tîr'ē-əm) n. pl. my·co·bac·te·ri·a (-tîr'ē-ə). Any of various slender, rod-shaped, aerobic bacteria of the genus Mycobacterium, which includes the bacteria that cause tuberculosis and leprosy.

—my'co·bac·ter'i·al adj.

mycol. abbr. 1. Mycological. 2. Mycology.

my·col·o·gy (mī-kōl'ə-jē) n. pl. my·col·o·gies. Abbr. myc., mycol. 1. The branch of botany that deals with fungi. 2. The fungi native to a region. 3. The composition or characteristics of a particular fungus: the mycology of rusts and mildews. —my'co·log'i·cal (-kə-lōj'ī-kəl), my'co·log'ic adj. —my'col·og'i·cal·ly adv. —my·col'o·gist n.

my·coph·a·gous (mī-kōf'ə-gəs) adj. Fungivorous. —my·coph'a·gy (-ə-jē) n.

my·co·plas·ma (mī'kō-plăz'mə) n. Any of numerous parasitic, pathogenic microorganisms of the genus Mycoplasma that lack a true cell wall, are gram-negative, and need sterols such as cholesterol for growth. In human beings, one species is a primary cause of nonbacterial pneumonia. Also called pleuropneumonia-like organism —my'co·plas'mal adj.

my·cor·rhi·za or my·co·rhi·za (mī'kə-rî'zə) n. pl. my·cor·rhi·zae (-zē) or my·cor·rhi·zas. Botany. The symbiotic association of the mycelium of a fungus with the roots of certain plants, such as conifers, beeches, or orchids. [MYCO- + Greek rhiza, root; see wrād- in Appendix.] — my'cor-rhi'zal adj.

my·co·sis (mī-kō'sīs) n. pl. my·co·ses (-sēz). 1. A fungal infection in or on a part of the body. 2. A disease caused by a fungus.

my·co·tox·i·co·sis (mī'kō-tōk'sī-kō'sīs) n. Poisoning caused by ingestion of a mycotoxin.

my·co·tox·in (mī'kō-tōk'sīn) n. A toxin produced by a fungus.

my·dri·a·sis (mī-drī'ə-sīs) n. Prolonged, abnormal dilatation of the pupil of the eye caused by disease or a drug. [Latin, from Greek mudriasis.]

myd·ri·at·ic (mīd'rē-ăt'īk) adj. Causing dilatation of the pupils. — n. A mydriatic drug. [From MYDRIASIS.]

myel- pref. Variant of myelo-.

my·e·len·ceph·a·lon (mī'ə-lēn-sēf'ə-lōn') n. The posterior portion of the embryonic hindbrain, from which the medulla oblongata develops.

— my'e-len-ce-phal'ic (-sə-făl'īk) adj.

my·e·lin (mī'ə-līn) also my·e·line (-līn, -lēn') n. A white fatty material, composed chiefly of lipids and lipoproteins, that encloses certain axons and nerve fibers. Also called medulla — my'e-lin'ic adj.

my·e·li·nat·ed (mī'ə-lə-nā'tīd) adj. Having a myelin sheath: myelinated nerve fibers.

my·e·li·na·tion (mī'ə-lə-nā'shən) n. Variant of myelinization.

my·e·line (mī'ə-līn, -lēn') n. Variant of myelin.

my·e·li·ni·za·tion (mī'ə-lə-nī-zā'shən) also my·e·li·na·tion (-nā'shən) n.

The process of forming a myelin sheath.

myelin sheath (mī'ə-līn shēth) n. The insulating envelope of myelin that surrounds the core of a nerve fiber or axon and facilitates the transmission of nerve impulses. In the peripheral nervous system, the sheath is formed from the cell membrane of the Schwann cell and, in the central nervous system, from oligodendrocytes. Also called medullary sheath my·e·li·tis (mī'ə-lī'tīs) n. 1. Inflammation of the spinal column.

2. Osteomyelitis.

myelo- or myel- pref. 1. Spinal cord: myelitis. 2. Bone marrow: myeloma.

[New Latin, from Greek muelos, marrow, probably from mus, muscle. See mūs- in Appendix.]

my·e·lo·blast (mī'ə-lə-bläst') n. An immature cell of the bone marrow that is the precursor of a myelocyte. — my'e-lo-blas'tic adj.

my·e·lo·cyte (mī'ə-lə-sīt') n. A large cell of the bone marrow that is a precursor of the mature granulocyte of the blood. — my'e-lo-cyt'ic (-sīt'īk) adj.

my·e·lo·fi·bro·sis (mī'ə-lō-fī-brō'sīs) n. Proliferation of fibroblastic cells in bone marrow, causing anemia and sometimes enlargement of the spleen and liver.

my·e·log·e·nous (mī'ə-lŏj'ə-nəs) also my·e·lo·gen·ic (-lə-jĕn'ik) adj. Originating in or produced by the bone marrow.

my·e·lo·gram (mī'ə-lə-grām') n. An x-ray of the spinal cord after injection of air or a radiopaque substance into the subarachnoid space. —my'·e·log'·ra·phy (-lŏg'rə-fē) n.

my·e·loid (mī'ə-loid') adj. 1. Of, relating to, or derived from the bone marrow. 2. Of or relating to the spinal cord.

my·e·lo·ma (mī'ə-lŏ'mə) n. pl. my·e·lo·mas or my·e·lo·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A malignant tumor formed by the cells of the bone marrow. —my'·e·lo'ma·toid' (-toid') adj.

my·e·lo·pro·lif·er·a·tive (mī'ə-lŏ-prə-lif'ə-rā'tiv, -ər-ə-tiv) adj. Relating to or characterized by the proliferation of cells of the bone marrow: myeloproliferative syndromes.

my·ia·sis (mī'ə-sīs, mī-ī'ə-sīs) n. pl. my·ia·ses (mī'ə-sēz'). 1. Infestation of tissue by fly larvae. 2. A disease resulting from infestation of tissue by fly larvae. [Greek muia, mua, fly + -IASIS.]

Myk·o·nos (mīk'ə-nŏs', -nŏs', mē'kŏ-nŏs') also Mí·ko·nos (mē'kŏ-nŏs') An island of southeast Greece in the Cyclades Islands of the Aegean Sea. It is a popular resort.

My Lai (mē' lī') A village of southern Vietnam where more than 300 unarmed civilians, including women and children, were massacred by U.S. troops (March 1968) during the Vietnam War.

My·lar (mī'lār') A trademark used for a thin strong polyester film. This trademark often occurs in print as an attributive: "Mylar star balloons dangle from the ceiling, the pianist strokes her ivories, and waiters... waltz through the crowd" (San Francisco Chronicle). It also occurs in lowercase: "The [printers] use standard fabric ribbon cartridges or high-carbon mylar cartridges" (Byte).

my·lo·nite (mī'lə-nīt') n. A fine-grained laminated rock formed by the shifting of rock layers along faults. [Greek mulōn, mill (from mulē, handmill); see melə- in Appendix + -ITE¹.]

my·na or my·nah also mi·na (mī'nə) n. Any of various starlings of southeast Asia, having bluish-black or dark brown coloration and yellow bills. Certain species, especially the hill myna (Gracula religiosa), are known for mimicry of human speech. [Hindi mainā, perhaps from Sanskrit madanaḥ, from madana-, delightful, joyful, from madati, it bubbles.]

myn·heer also men·eer (mə-nîr') n. 1. Often Mynheer. also Meneer.
a. Used as a courtesy title before the name of a man in a Dutch-speaking area.
b. Used as a form of polite address for a man in a Dutch-speaking area.
2. Informal. A Dutchman. [Dutch mijnheer : mijn, my (from Middle Dutch); see me-¹ in Appendix + heer, lord (from Middle Dutch here).]

myo- or my- pref. Muscle: myograph. [New Latin, from Greek mus, muscle. See mūs- in Appendix.]

myocardial infarction (mī'ō-kär'dē-əl ĩn-färk'shən) n. Abbr. MI Necrosis of a region of the myocardium caused by an interruption in the supply of blood to the heart.

myo·car·di·tis (mī'ō-kär-dī'tis) n. Inflammation of the myocardium.

myo·car·di·um (mī'ō-kär'dē-əm) n. pl. myo·car·di·a (-dē-ə). The muscular tissue of the heart. [New Latin : MYO- + Greek kardia, heart; see kerd- in Appendix.] —my'ocardi·al adj.

myo·oc·lo·nus (mī-ök'lə-nəs) n. A sudden twitching of muscles or parts of muscles, without any rhythm or pattern, occurring in various brain disorders. —my'oclon'ic (mī'ə-klön'ik) adj.

myo·e·lec·tric (mī'ō-ĭ-lĕk'trĭk) adj. Of or relating to the electrical properties of muscle tissue from which impulses may be amplified, used especially in the control or operation of prosthetic devices.

myo·fib·ril (mī'ə-fĭ'brəl, -fĭb'rəl) n. Any of the threadlike fibrils that make up the contractile part of a striated muscle fiber. Also called sarcostyle myo·fil·a·ment (mī'ə-fĭl'ə-mənt) n. Any of the ultramicroscopic filaments, made up of actin and myosin, that are the structural units of a myofibril.

myo·gen·ic (mī'ə-jĕn'ĭk) also myo·ge·net·ic (mī'ō-jə-nĕt'ĭk) adj. 1. Giving rise to or forming muscular tissue. 2. Of muscular origin; arising from the muscles.

myo·glo·bin (mī'ə-glō'bĭn) n. The form of hemoglobin found in muscle fibers, having a higher affinity for oxygen than hemoglobin of the blood.

myo·graph (mī'ə-gräf') n. An instrument for recording muscular contractions.

myo·ol·ogy (mī-öl'ə-jĕ) n. The scientific study of muscles. —my'olog'ic (mī'ə-lŏj'ĭk) adj. —my'ol'ogist n.

myo·ma (mī-ō'mə) n. pl. myo·mas or myo·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A tumor composed of muscle tissue. —my'oma·tous (-ō'mə-təs, -ŏm'ə-) adj.

myo·neu·ral (mī'ə-nŏōr'əl, -nyŏōr'-) adj. Of or relating to both muscles and nerves, especially to nerve endings in muscle tissue.

myo·op·a·thy (mī-ŏp'ə-thĕ) n. pl. myo·op·a·thies. A disease of muscle or muscle tissue. —my'opath'ic (mī'ə-păth'ĭk) adj.

myo·ope (mī'ŏp') n. One who is affected by myopia. [French, from Late Latin myops, near-sighted, from Greek muōps. See MYOPIA.]

myo·pi·a (mī-ŏ'pĕ-ə) n. 1. A visual defect in which distant objects appear blurred because their images are focused in front of the retina rather than on it; nearsightedness. Also called short sight 2. Lack of discernment or long-range perspective in thinking or planning: “For Lorca, New York is a symbol of spiritual myopia” (Edwin Honig). [Greek muōpia, from muōps, near-sighted : muein, to close the eyes + ōps, eye; see ok^w- in Appendix.] —my-op'ic (-ōp'ik, -ō'pik) adj.

—my-op'i-cal-ly adv.

my-o·sin (mī'ə-sin) n. The commonest protein in muscle cells, responsible for the elastic and contractile properties of muscle. It combines with actin to form actomyosin. [Greek muos, genitive of mus, muscle; see MYO- + -in.] my-o·sis (mī-ō'sis) n. Variant of miosis.

my-o·si-tis (mī'ə-sī'tis) n. Inflammation of a muscle, especially a voluntary muscle, characterized by pain, tenderness, and sometimes spasm in the affected area.

my-o·so-tis (mī'ə-sō'tis) n. Any of various plants of the genus Myosotis, such as the forget-me-not. [New Latin Myosōtis, genus name, from Latin myosōtis, mouse-ear, a kind of plant, from Greek muosōtis: muos, genitive of mus, mouse; see mūs- in Appendix + ous, ōt-, ear; see ous- in Appendix.]

my-o·tome (mī'ə-tōm') n. 1. The segment of a somite in a vertebrate embryo that differentiates into skeletal muscle. 2. A muscle or group of muscles derived from one somite and innervated by a single segment of a spinal nerve.

my-o·to-ni-a (mī'ə-tō'nē-ə) n. Tonic spasm or temporary rigidity of one or more muscles, often characteristic of various muscular disorders.

—my'o-ton'ic (-tōn'ik) adj.

My-ra (mī'rə) An ancient Lycian city of southern Asia Minor. A major seaport, it was one of the chief cities of the region.

Myr-dal (mür'däl', mîr'-), Alva. 1902-1986. Swedish sociologist and diplomat. She shared the 1982 Nobel Peace Prize for her role in the United Nations nuclear disarmament negotiations.

Myr-dal (mür'däl', mîr'-), (Karl) Gunnar. 1898-1987. Swedish economist. He shared a 1974 Nobel Prize for work on the theory of optimum allocation of resources.

myr-i-ad (mîr'ē-əd) adj. 1. Constituting a very large, indefinite number; innumerable: the myriad fish in the ocean. 2. Composed of numerous diverse elements or facets: the myriad life of the metropolis. — n. 1. A vast number: the myriads of bees in the hive. 2. Archaic. Ten thousand. [Greek urias, uriad-, ten thousand, from urias, countless.]

USAGE NOTE: Throughout most of its history in English myriad was used as a noun, as in a myriad of men. In the 19th century it began to be used as an adjective, as in myriad men; this usage became so well entrenched that many people came to consider it as the only correct possibility. In fact, both uses have not only ample precedent in English but also etymological justification from Greek, inasmuch as the Greek word urias from which myriad derives could be used as either a noun or an adjective. Both uses may be considered equally acceptable, as in Sammyr·i·a·pod also myr·i·o·pod (mĭr'ē-ə-pōd') n. Any of several arthropods, such as the centipede or millipede, having segmented bodies, one pair of antennae, and at least nine pairs of legs. [From New Latin Myriapoda, class name : Greek murias, ten thousand; see MYRIAD + New Latin -poda, -pod.]

—myr·i·ap'·o·dous (-ăp'ə-dəs) adj.

myr·ris·tic acid (mə-rĭs'tĭk äs'ĭd, mĭ-) n. A fatty acid, $\text{CH}_3(\text{CH}_2)_{12}\text{COOH}$, occurring in animal and vegetable fats and used in the manufacture of cosmetics, soaps, perfumes, and flavorings. [Greek muristikos, fragrant, from muron, perfume.]

myrmeco- pref. Ant: myrmecology. [Greek murmēko-, from murmēx, ant.]

myr·me·col·o·gy (mûr'mĭ-kōl'ə-jē) n. The branch of entomology that deals with ants. —myr'me·co·log'i·cal (-kə-lŏj'ĭ-kəl) adj. —myr'me·col'·o·gist n.

myr·me·co·phile (mûr'mĭ-kə-fĭl') n. An organism, such as a beetle, that habitually shares the nest of an ant colony. —myr'me·coph'i·lous (-kŏf'ə-ləs) adj. —myr'me·coph'i·ly (-kŏf'ə-lē) n.

Myr·mi·don (mûr'mə-dŏn', -dn) n. 1. Greek Mythology. A member of a warlike Thessalian people who were ruled by Achilles and followed him on the expedition against Troy. 2. myrmidon. A faithful follower who carries out orders without question. [From Middle English Mirmidones, Myrmidons, from Latin Myrmidones, from Greek Murmidones.]

my·rob·a·lan (mĭ-rŏb'ə-lən, mə-) n. 1. See cherry plum. 2. See Indian almond. 3. The fruit of any of these plants. [Obsolete French mirobolan, from Latin myrobalanum, fragrant oil of the ben-nut, from Greek murobalanos : muron, perfume + balanos, acorn.]

myrobalan plum (mĭ-rŏb'ə-lən plŭm) n. See cherry plum.

My·ron (mĭ'rən), Fifth century B.C. Greek sculptor of the Discus Thrower.

myrrh (mûr) n. 1. An aromatic gum resin obtained from several trees and shrubs of the genus Commiphora of India, Arabia, and eastern Africa, used in perfume and incense. Also called balm of Gilead. 2. See sweet cicely (n., sense 2). [Middle English mirre, from Old English myrrha, from Latin, from Greek murrha, probably of Semitic origin.]

myr·tle (mûr'tl) n. 1. Any of several evergreen shrubs or trees of the genus Myrtus, especially M. communis, an aromatic shrub native to the Mediterranean region and western Asia, having pink or white flowers and blue-black berries and widely cultivated as a hedge plant. 2. See periwinkle² (n., sense 1). [Middle English mirtille, from Old French, from Medieval Latin myrtillus, diminutive of Latin myrtus, from Greek murtos.]

Myrtle Beach (mûr'tl bēch) A city of eastern South Carolina on the Atlantic Ocean east of Columbia. It is a popular resort. Population, 24,848.

my-self (mī-sĕlf') pron. 1. That one identical with me. a. Used reflexively as the direct or indirect object of a verb or as the object of a preposition: I bought myself a new car. b. Used for emphasis: I myself was certain of the facts. c. Used in an absolute construction: In office myself, I helped her get a job. 2. My normal or healthy condition or state: I'm feeling myself again. [Middle English mi-self, from Old English mē selfum, mē selfne : mē, me; see me-¹ in Appendix + selfum, selfne, dative and accusative of self; see SELF.]

USAGE NOTE: The reflexive pronouns, such as myself, ourselves, yourself, yourselves, himself, and herself, are often used as emphatic forms: Like yourself, I have no apologies to make. The practice is particularly common in compound phrases: Mrs. Evans or yourself will have to pick them up at the airport. These usages have been common in the writing of reputable authors for several centuries: "Let me say to you and to myself in one breath, Cultivate the tree which you have found to bear fruit in your soil" (Henry David Thoreau). The strongest criticism that can be made of these uses of reflexives is that like other emphatic devices they may easily be overused, and when the pronoun refers to the writer or speaker, the result of the emphasis may be an implication of pomposity or self-importance.

My-si-a (mĭsh'ē-ə) An ancient region of northwest Asia Minor. It passed successively to Lydia, Persia, Macedon, Syria, Pergamum, and Rome. —My'si-an adj. & n.

my-sid (mī'sĭd) n. Any of various small, shrimplike, chiefly marine crustaceans of the order Mysidacea, the females of which carry their eggs in a pouch beneath the thorax. Also called opossum shrimp [From New Latin Mysis, Mysid-, type genus, from Greek musis, a closing, from muein, to close the lips or eyes.]

my-so-pho-bi-a (mī'sō-fō'bē-ə) n. An abnormal fear of dirt or contamination. [Greek musos, uncleanness + -PHOBIA.]

My-sore (mī-sôr', -sôr') A city of southern India southwest of Bangalore. Inhabited before the 3rd century B.C., it was the center of a Muslim state after the late 16th century and was occupied by the British in 1831. Today it is an important industrial city. Population, 441,754.

mys-ta-gogue (mĭs'tə-gŏg', -gŏg') n. 1. One who prepares candidates for initiation into a mystery cult. 2. One who holds or spreads mystical doctrines.

[From Latin mystagŏgus, from Greek mustagŏgos : mustēs, an initiate; see MYSTERY¹ + agŏgos, guide, leader (from agein, to lead); see ag- in Appendix.]

—mys'ta-gog'ic (-gŏj'ĭk) adj. —mys'ta-go'gy (-gŏ'jĕ) n.

mys-te-ri-ous (mĭ-stĭr'ē-əs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or being a mystery: mysterious and infinite truths. 2. Simultaneously arousing wonder and inquisitiveness, and eluding explanation or comprehension: a mysterious visitor; mysterious conduct. [French mystérieux, from mystère, secret, from Latin mystērīum. See MYSTERY¹.] —mys-te'ri-ous-ly adv. —mys-te'ri-ous-ness n.

SYNONYMS: mysterious, esoteric, arcane, occult, inscrutable. These adjectives mean beyond human power to explain or understand. Something mysterious arouses wonder and inquisitiveness and at the same time eludes explanation or comprehension: a mysterious noise; mysterious symbols. “The sea lies all about us.... In its mysterious past it encompasses all the dim origins of life” (Rachel Carson). What is esoteric is mysterious because it is known and understood by only a small, select group, as by a circle of initiates or the members of a profession: a compilation of esoteric philosophical theories. Arcane applies to what is hidden from the knowledge of all but those having the key to a secret: the arcane science of dowsing. Occult suggests knowledge reputedly gained only by secret, magical, or supernatural means: occult powers; the occult sciences. Something that is inscrutable cannot be fathomed by means of investigation or scrutiny: an inscrutable smile. “It is not for me to attempt to fathom the inscrutable workings of Providence” (Earl of Birkenhead).

mys-ter-y¹ (mĭs'tə-rē) n. pl. mys-ter-ies. 1. Something that is not fully understood or that baffles or eludes the understanding; an enigma: How he got in is a mystery. Even after all the testimonies, the murder remained a mystery. 2. A mysterious character or quality: a landscape with mystery and charm. 3. A work of fiction, drama, or film dealing with a puzzling crime. 4. Often mysteries. The skills, lore, or practices that are peculiar to a particular activity or group and are regarded as the special province of initiates: the mysteries of Freemasonry; the mysteries of cooking game. 5. Theology. A religious truth that is incomprehensible to the reason and knowable only through divine revelation. 6. a. An incident from the life of Jesus, especially the Incarnation, Passion, Crucifixion, or Resurrection, of particular importance for redemption. b. Roman Catholic Church. One of the 15 incidents from the lives of Jesus or the Blessed Virgin Mary, such as the Annunciation or the Ascension, serving as the subject of meditation during recitation of the rosary. 7. a. One of the Christian sacraments, especially the Eucharist. b. mysteries. The consecrated elements of the Eucharist. 8. a. A religious cult practicing secret rites to which only initiates are admitted. b. A secret rite of such a cult. [Middle English misterie, from Latin mystērīum, from Greek mustērion, secret rite, from mustēs, an initiate, from muein, to close the eyes, initiate.]

mys-ter-y² (mĭs'tə-rē) n. pl. mys-ter-ies. 1. Archaic. A trade or an occupation. 2. Archaic. A guild, as of merchants or artisans. 3. A mystery play. [Middle English misterie, service, craft, from Medieval Latin misterium, craft-guild, from mystery play (mĭs'tə-rē plā) n. A medieval drama based on scriptural events especially in the life of Jesus. [From MYSTERY¹, or MYSTERY².]

Late Latin, alteration of Latin ministerium, occupation, from minister, assistant, servant. See mei-² in Appendix.]

mystic (mĭs'tĭk) adj. 1. Of or relating to religious mysteries or occult rites and practices. 2. Of or relating to mysticism or mystics. 3. Inspiring a sense of mystery and wonder. 4. a. Mysterious; strange. b. Enigmatic; obscure. 5. Mystical. — n. One who practices or believes in mysticism or a given form of mysticism: Protestant mystics. [Middle English mystik, from Latin mysticus, from Greek mustikos, from mustērion, secret rite. See MYSTERY¹.]

mystical (mĭs'tĭ-kəl) adj. 1. Of or having a spiritual reality or import not apparent to the intelligence or senses. 2. Of, relating to, or stemming from direct communion with ultimate reality or God: a mystical religion. 3. Of or founded on subjective experience: mystical theories about the securities market. 4. Of or relating to mystic rites or practices. 5. Unintelligible; cryptic. —mystical-ly adv. —mystical-ness n.

mysticete (mĭs'tĭ-sēt') n. See baleen whale. [New Latin mysticētus, from Greek mustikētos, alteration of (ho) mus to kētos, (the) whale (called) the mouse : mus, mouse; see mūs- in Appendix + kētos, whale.] —mysticetous (-sēt') adj.

mysticism (mĭs'tĭ-sĭz'əm) n. 1. a. Immediate consciousness of the transcendent or ultimate reality or God. b. The experience of such communion as described by mystics. 2. A belief in the existence of realities beyond perceptual or intellectual apprehension that are central to being and directly accessible by subjective experience. 3. Vague, groundless speculation.

mystification (mĭs'tə-fĭ-kā'shən) n. 1. The act or an instance of mystifying. 2. The fact or condition of being mystified. 3. Something intended to mystify.

mystify (mĭs'tə-fī') v. tr. mystified, mystifying, mystifies. 1. To confuse or puzzle mentally; bewilder. See Synonyms at puzzle. 2. To make obscure or mysterious. [French mystifier : mystère, mystery (from Latin mysterium); see MYSTERY¹ + -fier, -fy.] —mystifier n. —mystifying-ly adv.

mystique (mĭ-stĕk') n. An aura of heightened value, interest, or meaning surrounding something, arising from attitudes and beliefs that impute special power or mystery to it: the cowboy mystique; the mystique of existentialism. [French, mystical, mystique, from Latin mysticus. See MYSTIC.]

myth (mĭθ) n. 1. a. A traditional, typically ancient story dealing with supernatural beings, ancestors, or heroes that serves as a fundamental type in the world view of a people, as by explaining aspects of the natural world or delineating the psychology, customs, or ideals of society: the myth of Eros and Psyche; a creation myth. b. Such stories considered as a group: the realm of myth. 2. A story, a theme, an object, or a character regarded as embodying an aspect of a culture: a star whose fame turned her into a myth; the pioneer myth of suburbia. 3. A fiction or half-truth, especially one that forms part of an ideology. 4. A fictitious story, person, or thing: “German artillery superiority on the Western Front was a myth” (Leon Wolff). [New Latin m̄ythus, from Late Latin m̄ythos, from Greek muthos.]

myth. abbr. Mythological; mythology.

myth-i-cal (mīth/ī-kəl) also myth-ic (-īk) adj. 1. Of or existing in myth: the mythical unicorn. 2. Imaginary; fictitious. 3. Often mythic. Of, relating to, or having the nature of a myth: a novel of profound, almost mythic consequence.

—myth/i-cal-ly adv.

myth-i-cize (mīth/ī-sīz/) v. tr. myth-i-cized, myth-i-ciz-ing, myth-i-ciz-es.

1. To turn (a person or an event) into myth: mythicizing the American trucker.

2. To interpret as a myth or in terms of mythology.

myth-mak-er (mīth/mā'kər) n. One that creates myths or mythical situations.

—myth/mak-ing n.

my-thog-ra-pher (mī-thōg/rə-fər) n. One who records, narrates, or comments on myths. [From Greek muthographos, writer of legends : muthos, word, story + -graphos, -grapher.]

my-thog-ra-phy (mī-thōg/rə-fē) n. pl. my-thog-ra-phies. 1. The artistic representation of mythical subjects. 2. A collection of myths, often with critical commentary.

my-thoi (mī'thoi, mīth/oi) n. Plural of mythos.

mythol. abbr. Mythological; mythology.

myth-o-log-i-cal (mīth'ə-lōj/ī-kəl) also myth-o-log-ic (-īk) adj. Abbr.

myth., mythol. 1. Of, relating to, or recorded in myths or mythology.

2. Fabulous; imaginary. —myth/o-log/i-cal-ly adv.

my-thol-o-gist (mī-thōl'ə-jīst) n. A student or scholar of mythology.

my-thol-o-gize (mī-thōl'ə-jīz/) v. my-thol-o-gized, my-thol-o-giz-ing, my-thol-o-giz-es. — v. tr. To convert into myth; mythicize. — v. intr. 1. To construct or relate a myth. 2. To interpret or write about myths or mythology.

—my-thol/o-giz'er n.

my-thol-o-gy (mī-thōl'ə-jē) n. pl. my-thol-o-gies. Abbr. myth., mythol.

1. a. A body or collection of myths belonging to a people and addressing their origin, history, deities, ancestors, and heroes. b. A body of myths concerning an individual, event, or institution: “A new mythology, essential to the... American funeral rite, has grown up” (Jessica Mitford). 2. The field of scholarship dealing with the systematic collection and study of myths. [French mythologie, from Late Latin m̄ythologia, from Greek muthologia, story-telling : muthos, story + -logia, -logy.]

myth-o-ma-ni-a (mīth'ə-mā'nē-ə, -mān/yə) n. A compulsion to embroider the truth, engage in exaggeration, or tell lies. —myth/o-ma/ni-ac' (-āk') n.

myth·o·poe·ic or myth·o·pe·ic (mīth'ə-pē'ik) also myth·o·po·et·ic (-pō-ēt'ik) adj. 1. Of or relating to the making of myths. 2. Serving to create or engender myths; productive in mythmaking. [From Greek muthopoios, composer of fiction, from muthopoiein, to relate a story : muthos, story + poiein, to make; see k^wei-2 in Appendix.] —myth'·o·poe'ia (-pē'ə), myth'·o·po·e'sis (-pō-ē'sis) n.

my·thos (mī'thōs, mīth'ōs) n. pl. my·thoi (mī'thoi, mīth'oi). 1. Myth. 2. Mythology. 3. The pattern of basic values and attitudes of a people, characteristically transmitted through myths and the arts. [Greek muthos.]

myx- pref. Variant of myxo-.

myx·a·moe·ba also myx·a·me·ba (mīk'sə-mē'bə) n. pl. myx·a·moe·bas also myx·a·moe·bae (-bē). A slime mold at a stage when it is an amoebalike free-swimming cell and before it fuses to form a plasmodium.

myx·e·de·ma or myx·oe·de·ma (mīk'sī-dē'mə) n. A disease caused by decreased activity of the thyroid gland in adults and characterized by dry skin, swellings around the lips and nose, mental deterioration, and a subnormal basal metabolic rate. —myx'e·dem'a·tous (-dēm'ə-təs, -dē'mə-), myx'e·dem'ic (-dēm'ik) adj.

myxo- or myx- pref. Mucus: myxoma. [New Latin, from Greek muxa, mucus, slime.]

myx·o·bac·te·ri·um (mīk'sō-bāk-tîr'ē-əm) n. pl. myx·o·bac·te·ri·a (-tîr'ē-ə). Any of numerous gram-negative, rod-shaped saprophytic bacteria of the phylum Myxobacteria, typically found embedded in slime in which they form complex colonies and noted for their ability to move by gliding along surfaces without any known organ of locomotion.

myx·oe·de·ma (mīk'sī-dē'mə) n. Variant of myxedema.

myx·oid (mīk'soid') adj. Containing mucus; mucoid.

myx·o·ma (mīk-sō'mə) n. pl. myx·o·mas or myx·o·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A benign tumor, most often found in the heart, that is composed of connective tissue embedded in mucus. —myx·o'ma·tous (-sō'mə-təs, -sōm'ə-) adj.

myx·o·ma·to·sis (mīk-sō'mə-tō'sis) n. pl. myx·o·ma·to·ses (-sēz). 1. A highly infectious, usually fatal disease of rabbits that is caused by a pox virus and is characterized by many skin tumors similar to myxomas. 2. A condition characterized by the growth of many myxomas.

myx·o·my·cete (mīk'sō-mī'sēt) n. See slime mold (n., sense 2). [MYXO- + MYC(O)- + -ote, n. suff. (from Greek -ōtos, adj. suff.).]

myx·o·vi·rus (mīk'sə-vī'rəs) n. pl. myx·o·vi·rus·es. Any of a group of RNA-containing viruses, including those that cause influenza, typically having an affinity for certain mucins and causing agglutination of red blood cells.

n¹ or N (ĕn) n. pl. n's or N's. 1. The 14th letter of the modern English alphabet.

2. Any of the speech sounds represented by the letter n. 3. The 14th in a series.

4. Something shaped like the letter N.

n² abbr. 1. Or N. Printing. En. 2. Mathematics. Indefinite number. 3. Neutron.

4. Also N or n. Chemistry. Normal.

N¹ 1. The symbol for the element nitrogen. 2. The symbol for Avogadro's number.

N² abbr. 1. Games. Knight. 2. Newton. 3. Also N. or n or n. North; northern.

n. abbr. 1. Latin. Natus (born). 2. Business. Net. 3. Or N. Noon. 4. Note.

5. Grammar. Noun. 6. Number.

N. abbr. Norse.

'n' or 'n' conj. Informal. And: scratch 'n sniff.

Na The symbol for the element sodium. [From New Latin natrium, from French natron, natron. See NATRON.]

Na. abbr. Bible. Nahum.

N.A. abbr. 1. Narcotics Anonymous. 2. National Academician; National Academy. 3. North America. 4. Or n/a. Not applicable.

NAACP or N.A.A.C.P. abbr. National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

nab (năb) v. tr. nabbed, nab·bing, nabs. Informal. 1. To seize (a fugitive or wrongdoer); arrest. 2. To grab; snatch. [Perhaps variant of dialectal nap, to seize, probably of Scandinavian origin.] —nab'ber n.

NAB abbr. New American Bible.

Nab·a·tae·a (năb'ə-tē'ə) An ancient kingdom of Arabia in present-day Jordan. It flourished from the fourth century B.C. to A.D. 106, when it was conquered by Rome. The "rose-red city" of Petra was its capital.

Nab·a·tae·an also Nab·a·te·an (năb'ə-tē'an) n. 1. A subject of the kingdom of Nabataea. 2. The Aramaic dialect of the Nabataeans. —Nab'a·tae'an adj.

Na·blus (năb'ləs, nă'bləs) also Nab·u·lus (năb'ə-lōōs') A city in the West Bank north of Jerusalem. An ancient Canaanite town, it was the biblical home of Jacob and the chief city of Samaria. Population, 64,000.

na·bob (nă'bōb') n. 1. A governor in India under the Mogul Empire. Also called nawab 2. A person of wealth and prominence. [Hindi nawāb, nabāb, from Arabic nuwwāb, pl. of nā'ib, deputy.]

Na·bo·kov (nə-bō'kəf, nă'bə-kōf', năb'ə-), Vladimir Vladimirovich. 1899-1977. Russian-born American writer of poetry, short stories, and novels, most notably the satirical Lolita (1955).

Nab·u·lus (năb'ə-lōōs') See Nablus.

na·celle (nə-sěl') n. A separate streamlined enclosure on an aircraft for sheltering the crew or cargo or housing an engine. [French, dinghy, gondola, from Old French nacele, small boat, from Late Latin nāvicella, diminutive of Latin nāvis, ship. See nāu- in Appendix.]

na·cho (nā'chō') n. pl. na·chos. A small, often triangular piece of tortilla topped with cheese or chili-pepper sauce and broiled. [American Spanish, possibly diminutive of the name Ignacio, or alteration of ñato, pug-nosed, ugly, poor (alteration of Spanish chato, flat, snub-nosed, from Vulgar Latin plattus*, flat); see PLATE.]

Nack·a (nā'kə, -kä) A city of eastern Sweden, an industrial suburb of Stockholm near the Baltic Sea. Population, 59,009.

Nac·og·do·ches (nāk'ə-dō'chīz) A city of eastern Texas east of Waco. Settled in 1779 on the site of a Spanish mission founded in 1716, it is today a processing and manufacturing center. Population, 30,872.

na·cre (nā'kər) n. See mother-of-pearl. [French, from Old French nacle, from Old Italian naccaro, drum, nacre, from Arabic naqqārah, small drum.]
—na'cred (-kərd), na'cre·ous (-krē-əs) adj.

nacreous cloud (nā'krē-əs kloud) n. A cloud resembling a cirrus, showing iridescent coloration when the sun is several degrees below the horizon. [From NACRE (from the iridescent coloring of mother-of-pearl).]

NACU abbr. National Association of Colleges and Universities.

NAD (ĕn'ā-dē') n. A coenzyme, C₂₁H₂₇N₇O₁₄P₂, occurring in most living cells and utilized alternately as an oxidizing or reducing agent in various metabolic processes. [From n(icotinamide) a(denine) d(inucleotide), one of its chemical names.]

Na-Den·e also Na-Dé·né (nä-dĕn'ē) n. A proposed phylum of North American Indian languages including Athabaskan, Tlingit, and possibly Haida. [Haida nāa-, house, to live and Tlingit naa, tribe + Proto-Athabaskan dənæ*, person.]
—Na-Den'e adj.

Na·der (nā'dər), Ralph. Born 1934. American lawyer and pioneer in the field of consumer protectionism.

NADH (ĕn'ā-dē-āch') n. The reduced form of NAD. [NAD + H¹.]

na·dir (nā'dər, -dīr') n. 1. Astronomy. A point on the celestial sphere directly below the observer, diametrically opposite the zenith. 2. The lowest point: the nadir of their fortunes. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin, from Arabic naẓīr (as-samt), opposite (the zenith).]

NADP (ĕn-ā'dē-pē') n. A coenzyme, C₂₁H₂₈N₇O₁₇P₃, occurring in most living cells and utilized similarly to NAD but interacting with different metabolites. [From n(icotinamide) a(denine) d(inucleotide) p(hosphate), one of its chemical names.]

NADPH (ĕn'ā-dē'pē-āch') n. The reduced form of NADP. [NADP + H¹.]

nae (nā) adv. Scots. 1. No. 2. Not.

naff¹ (näf) adj. Chiefly British. Unstylish, clichéd, or outmoded. [Possibly of dialectal origin.]

naff² (näf) v. intr. naff-ed, naff-ing, naffs. Chiefly British. To fool around or go about: “naffing about in a tutu” (Suzanne Lowry). —phrasal verb. naff off. Used in the imperative as a signal of angry dismissal. [Origin unknown.]

WORD HISTORY: In the dual tradition of looking to one’s betters for models of how to use language and American obeisance to British usage, let us look at two British words spelled naff. One is an adjective, meaning “clichéd, unstylish” (first recorded in 1969), that may be derived from dialectal words such as naff-head, “simpleton,” or niffy-naffy, “stupid.” The other naff is a verb, usually used in the imperative in combination with off (first recorded in 1959). This is the delicate injunction that members of the royal family such as Princess Anne have used in requesting members of the press to beat it. The origin of naff is unknown, but it has been suggested that naff may be related to an older English slang term naf, meaning “the female sexual organ.” Naf has been derived from a backward spelling of fan, from fanny.

Na·fud (nä-fōöd′) See Nefud.

nag¹ (näg) v. nagged, nag-ging, nags. — v. tr. 1. To annoy by constant scolding, complaining, or urging. 2. To torment persistently, as with anxiety or pain. — v. intr. 1. To scold, complain, or find fault constantly: nagging at the children. 2. To be a constant source of anxiety or annoyance: The half-remembered quotation nagged at my mind. — n. One who nags. [Probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse gnaga, to bite, gnaw.] —nag’ger n.

—nag’ging-ly adv.

nag² (näg) n. 1. A horse, especially: a. An old or worn-out horse. b. Slang. A racehorse. 2. Archaic. A small saddle horse or pony. [Middle English nagge, possibly of Low German origin.]

Na·ga Hills (nä’gə hīlz) also Na·ga·land (-lānd′) A region on the India-Burma border. Its people were subdued by the British from 1865 to 1880.

na·ga·na also n’ga·na (nä-gä’nə) n. An often fatal disease of African ungulates caused by various species of trypanosomes and transmitted by the bite of the tsetse fly. Also called tsetse disease [Nguni (Zulu) u-nakane.]

Na·ga·no (nä-gä’nō) A city of central Honshu, Japan, northwest of Tokyo. It is a religious center with diverse industries in a silk-producing region. Population, 336,967.

Na·ga·sa·ki (nä’gə-sä’kē, näg’ə-säk’ē) A city of western Kyushu, Japan, on Nagasaki Bay, an inlet of the East China Sea. The first Japanese port to be opened to foreign trade in the 16th century, Nagasaki was devastated by the second atomic bomb used in World War II (August 9, 1945). Population, 449,382.

Na·go·ya (nə-goi'ə, nə'gô-yä') A city of central Honshu, Japan, at the head of Ise Bay east of Kyoto. A fortress town in the 16th century, it was rebuilt after heavy bombing in World War II. Population, 2,116,350.

Nag·pur (näg'pöör') A city of central India northeast of Bombay. Founded in the 18th century, it passed to the British in 1853 and is today an important commercial and industrial center. Population, 1,219,461.

Nah. abbr. Bible. Nahum.

Na·ha (nä'hä) A city of southwest Okinawa, Japan, in the Ryukyu Islands on the East China Sea. It is a port and the commercial center of the islands. Population, 303,680.

Na·hua·tl (nä'wät'l) n. pl. Nahuatl or Na·hua·tls. 1. A member of any of various Indian peoples of central Mexico, including the Aztecs. 2. The Uto-Aztecan language of the Nahuatl. [Spanish náhuatl, from Nahuatl, that which pleases the ear.]

Na·hum (nä'həm, nä'əm) n. Bible. 1. A Hebrew prophet of the seventh century B.C. who predicted the fall of Nineveh. 2. Abbr. Na., Nah. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

NAIA abbr. National Association of Intercollegiate Athletes.

nai·ad (nä'əd, -äd', nī'-) n. pl. nai·a·des (-ə-dēz') or nai·ads. 1. Greek Mythology. One of the nymphs who lived in and presided over brooks, springs, and fountains. 2. The aquatic nymph of certain insects, such as the mayfly, damselfly, or dragonfly. 3. An aquatic plant of the genus Naias. [Middle English, from Latin nāias, nāiad-, from Greek naias, probably from naein, to flow. See (s)nāu- in Appendix.]

Nai·du (nī'dō), Sarojini. 1879-1949. Indian poet and reformer noted for her famine-relief efforts and her delicate, sentimental poetry, written in English.

na·if or na·if (nä-ēf') adj. & n. Variants of naive.

nail (nāl) n. 1. A slim, pointed piece of metal hammered into material as a fastener. 2. a. A fingernail or toenail. b. A claw or talon. 3. Something resembling a nail in shape, sharpness, or use. 4. A measure of length formerly used for cloth, equal to 16 yard (5.7 cm). — v. tr. nailed, nail-ing, nails. 1. To fasten, join, or attach with or as if with a nail. 2. To cover, enclose, or shut by fastening with nails: *nail up a window. 3. To keep fixed, motionless, or intent: Fear nailed me to my seat. 4. Slang. a. To stop and seize; catch: Police nailed the suspect. b. To detect and expose: nailed the senator in a lie; nail corruption before it gets out of control. 5. Slang. a. To strike or bring down, especially with something shot or hurled: nail a bird in flight. b. To gain thorough understanding of; master: a brilliant student who nailed all her courses in thermodynamics. 6. Baseball. To put out (a base runner). — phrasal verb. nail down. 1. To discover or establish conclusively: nailed down the story by checking all the facts. 2. To win: *nailed nail bed (nāl bĕd) n. The formative layer of cells at the base of the fingernail or toenail; the matrix.

down another victory in the golf tournament. [Middle English, from Old English nægl, fingernail, toenail. See nogh- in Appendix.] —nail'er n.

nail-brush (nāl'brüş') n. A small brush with firm bristles used for scrubbing the hands and cleaning the fingernails.

nail file (nāl fīl) n. A small flat file used for shaping and smoothing the fingernails.

nail fold (nāl fōld) n. A fold of hard skin overlapping the base and sides of a fingernail or toenail.

nail polish (nāl pōl'ish) n. A clear or colored cosmetic lacquer applied to the fingernails or toenails.

nail punch (nāl pŭnch) n. See nail set.

nail scissors (nāl sīz'ərz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Small scissors with short, curved blades for trimming and shaping fingernails or toenails.

nail set (nāl sĕt) n. A tool used for driving a nail so that its head is below or flush with a surface. Also called nail punch nain-sook (nān'sōök') n. A soft, light cotton material, often with a woven stripe. [Hindi nainsukh, pleasant : nain, eye (from Sanskrit nayanam, from nayati, he leads) + sukh, pleasure (from Sanskrit sukha-, pleasant).]

Nai-paul (nī'pōl), V(idiadhar) S(urajprasad). Born 1932. West Indian-born British writer whose short stories, travel essays, and novels, such as A Bend in the River (1979), present an increasingly pessimistic view of the Third World.

nai-ra (nī'rə) n. A basic unit of currency in Nigeria. See Table at currency. [Alteration of Nigeria.]

Nai-ro-bi (nī-rō'bĕ) The capital and largest city of Kenya, in the south-central part of the country. Founded in 1899, it became the seat of government for British East Africa in 1905 and capital of independent Kenya in 1963. Population, 827,775.

Nai-smith (nā'smīth'), James. 1861-1939. Canadian-born American sports educator who originated the game of basketball (1891).

na-ive or na-ïve (nä-ēv') also na-if or na-ïf (nä-ēf') adj. 1. a. Lacking worldliness and sophistication; artless. b. Simple and credulous as a child; ingenuous. 2. Lacking critical ability or analytical insight; not subtle or learned: "this extravagance of metaphors, with its naive bombast" (H.L. Mencken). 3. a. Not previously subjected to experiments: testing naive mice. b. Not having previously taken or received a particular drug: persons naive to marijuana. — n. One who is artless, credulous, or uncritical. [French naïve, feminine of naïf, from Old French, natural, native, from Latin nātīvus, native, rustic, from nātus, past participle of nāscī, to be born. See genə- in Appendix.] —na-ive/ly adv. —na-ive/-ness n.

SYNONYMS: naive, simple, ingenuous, unsophisticated, natural, unaffected, guileless, artless. These adjectives mean free from guile, cunning, or sham. Naive suggests the simplicity of nature; it sometimes connotes a credulity that impedes effective functioning in a practical world: “this naive simple creature, with his straightforward and friendly eyes so eager to believe appearances” (Arnold Bennett). Simple stresses absence of complexity, artifice, pretentiousness, or dissimulation; it may imply a favorable quality, such as openness of character, or an unfavorable one, such as lack of good sense: “Those of highest worth and breeding are most simple in manner and attire” (Francis Parkman). “He was one of those simple men that love and sympathize with children” (W.H. Hudson). “Among simple people she had the reputation of being a prodigy of information” (Harriet Beecher Stowe). Ingenuous denotes childlike directness, simplicity, and innocence; it connotes an inability to mask one’s feelings: an ingenuous admission of responsibility. Unsophisticated indicates absence of worldly wisdom: The sights of Paris bowled over the unsophisticated tourists. Natural stresses spontaneity that is the result of freedom from self-consciousness or inhibitions: “When Kavanagh was present, Alice was happy, but embarrassed; Cecelia, joyous and natural” (Henry Wadsworth Longfellow). Unaffected implies sincerity and lack of affectation: “With men he can be rational and unaffected, but when he has ladies to please, every feature works” (Jane Austen). Guileless signifies absence of insidious or treacherous cunning: a harmless, honest, guileless creature; a guileless, disarming look. Artless stresses absence of plan or purpose, as to mislead, and suggests a lack of concern for or awareness of the reaction produced in others: a woman of artless grace and simple goodness.

na·ive·té or na·ive·té (nä'ēv-tā', nä-ē'vī-tā') n. 1. The state or quality of being artless, credulous, or uncritical. 2. An artless, credulous, or uncritical statement or act. [French naïveté, from Old French naivete, native disposition, from naif, artless. See NAIVE.]

na·ive·ty or na·ive·ty (nä-ēv'tē, -ē'vī-tē) n. Artlessness or credulity; naïveté.

Najd (näjd) See Nejd.

na·ked (nä'kīd) adj. 1. Having no clothing on the body; nude. 2. Having no covering, especially the usual one: a naked sword. 3. Devoid of vegetation, trees, or foliage: the naked ground; naked tree limbs. 4. Being without addition, concealment, disguise, or embellishment: the naked facts; naked ambition. 5. Devoid of a specified quality, characteristic, or element: a look that was naked of all pretense. 6. Exposed to harm; vulnerable: “naked to mine enemies” (Shakespeare). 7. Botany. a. Not encased in ovaries: naked seeds. b. Unprotected by scales: naked buds. c. Lacking a perianth: naked flowers. d. Without leaves or pubescence: naked stalks. 8. Zoology. Lacking outer covering such as scales, fur, feathers, or a shell. [Middle English, from Old English nacod. See nog^w- in Appendix.] —na'ked·ly adv. —na'ked·ness n.

naked eye (nā'kīd ī) n. The eye unassisted by an optical instrument.

naked option (nā'kīd ɔp'shən) n. An opening transaction in an option when the underlying asset is not owned by the investor writing the option. If a stock on which such an investor has written a call option is then called by the option holder, the investor must purchase shares in the market for delivery and is therefore caught naked. Also called uncovered option

Nal·chik (nāl'chīk) A city of southwest Russia southeast of Rostov. Founded as a fortress town c. 1818, it is now an industrial center and a health resort. Population, 227,000.

na·led (nā'lēd') n. A nonpersistent chemical, C₄H₇O₄PBr₂Cl₂, used for mosquito control and as an insecticide against crop pests. [Origin unknown.]

na·li·dix·ic acid (nā'li·dīk'sīk əs'īd) n. A compound, C₁₂H₁₂N₂O₃, used to treat infections of the genital and urinary tracts caused by gram-negative bacteria. [Shortening and alteration of naphthyridin, and carboxylic acid, elements of one of its chemical names.]

nal·or·phine (nāl'ər-fēn', nāl-ôr'fēn) n. A drug, C₁₉H₂₁NO₃, derived from morphine, used to treat respiratory depression and other effects of an overdose of narcotics. [Short for N-allylnormorphine, its chemical name.]

nal·ox·one (nāl'ək-sōn', nə-lök'sōn) n. A drug, C₁₉H₂₁NO₄, used as an antagonist to narcotic drugs, such as morphine. [Short for N-allyldihydrohydroxynormorphinone, its chemical name.]

nal·trex·one (nāl-trēk'sōn) n. A drug, C₂₀H₂₃NO₄, used as an antagonist to narcotic drugs. [N-allyl (N¹ + AL(LYL)) + trex- (of unknown origin) + -ONE.]

Nam (näm, nām) Vietnam.

NAM or N.A.M. abbr. National Association of Manufacturers.

Na·ma (nä'mä, -mə) n. pl. Nama or Na·mas. 1. A member of a Khoikhoi people of southwest Africa. 2. The Khoikhoi language of the Nama.

Na·ma·land (nä'mə-länd') See Namaqualand.

Na·man·gan (nä'mən-gän', nə-mən-) A city of eastern Uzbekistan east of Tashkent. It has textile and food-processing industries. Population, 275,000.

Na·ma·qua·land (nä-mä'kwə-länd') or Na·ma·land (nä'mə-) A mostly arid region of southwest Africa divided by the Orange River into Great Namaqualand in Namibia and Little Namaqualand in South Africa.

nam·ay·cush (näm'ī-kūsh', näm'ā-) n. See lake trout. [Cree namekos.]

nam·by·pam·by (näm'bē-pām'bē) adj. 1. Insipid and sentimental.

2. Lacking vigor or decisiveness; spineless. — n. pl. nam·by·pam·bies. One that is insipid, sentimental, or weak. [After Namby-Pamby, a satire on the poetry of Ambrose Philips (1674-1749) by Henry Carey (1687?-1743).]

WORD HISTORY: We are being very literary when we call someone a namby-pamby. This word is derived from the name of Ambrose Philips, a little-known poet who wrote verse that incurred the sharp ridicule of two other 18th-century poets, Alexander Pope and his friend Henry Carey. Their ridicule, inspired by political differences and literary rivalry, actually had little to do with the quality of Philips's poetry. In poking fun at some children's verse written by Philips, Carey used the nickname Namby Pamby: "So the Nurses get by Heart Namby Pamby's Little Rhimes." Pope then used the name in the 1733 edition of his satirical epic The Dunciad. The first part of Carey's coinage came from Amby, or Ambrose. Pamby repeated the sound and form but added the initial of Philips's name. Such a process of repetition is called reduplication. After being popularized by Pope, namby-pamby went on to be used generally for people or things that are insipid, sentimental, or weak.

name (nām) n. 1. A word or words by which an entity is designated and distinguished from others: some of the most famous names of the 20th century. 2. A word or group of words used to describe or evaluate, often disparagingly. 3. Representation or repute, as opposed to reality: a democracy in name, a police state in fact. 4. a. General reputation: a bad name. b. A distinguished reputation; renown. 5. An illustrious or outstanding person: some of the most famous names of the 20th century. — v. tr. named, nam-ing, names. 1. To give a name to: named the child after both grandparents. 2. To mention, specify, or cite by name: named the primary colors. 3. To call by an epithet: named them all cowards. 4. To nominate for or appoint to a duty, an office, or an honor. 5. To specify or fix: We need to name the time for our meeting. — adj. Informal. Well-known by a name: a name performer. — idioms. in the name of. By the authority of: Open up in the name of the law! to (one's) name. Belonging to one: I don't have a hat to my name. [Middle English, from Old English nama. See nō-men- in Appendix.] — nam'a-ble, name'a-ble adj. — nam'er n.

SYNONYMS: name, designation, denomination, title, appellation, cognomen. These nouns all denote the word or words by which someone or something is called and identified. Name is the general term: I can't recall the child's name. "What is friendship but a name?" (Oliver Goldsmith). A designation is a name given principally to classify according to distinguishing characteristics: During the Depression a shantytown was known by the designation "Hooverville." Denomination, also a categorizing term, is applied especially to classes of persons or things: pickpockets, formerly known by the denomination "cutpurse." Title, applied to people, indicates rank or position and generally connotes distinction and respect (a prince who renounced his title when he became an American citizen); applied to entities such as literary or musical forms, it is a distinguishing name (looking for a colorful and evocative title for the book). An appellation is a name other than a proper name that describes or characterizes and that gains currency primarily through use: hasn't yet earned the appellation of expert. Cognomen is frequently used as the equivalent of a first name or a surname or often a nickname: Rufus, an unusual cognomen; a king renowned under the cognomen "the Just." See also Synonyms at appoint celebrity name brand (nām bränd) n. 1. A trademark or distinctive name identifying a product or manufacturer. 2. The product or its manufacturer. —name/-brand' (nām'bränd') adj.

name-calling (nām'kô'ling) n. Verbal abuse; insulting language: "name-calling, mud-slinging, suits and countersuits" (Wall Street Journal).

name day (nām dā) n. 1. The feast day of the saint after whom one is named. 2. The day on which one is baptized.

name-drop (nām'dröp') v. intr. name--dropped, name--drop-ping, name--drops. To mention casually the names of illustrious or famous people in order to imply that one is on familiar terms with them, intended as a means of self-promotion. —name/-drop'per n. —name/-drop'ping n.

name-less (nām'līs) adj. 1. Having or bearing no name: nameless stars.

2. Unknown by name; obscure: the nameless dead. 3. Not designated by name; anonymous: a nameless benefactor. 4. Defying description; inexpressible: nameless horror. —name/less-ly adv. —name/less-ness n.

name-ly (nām'lē) adv. That is to say; specifically.

name of the game (nām ũv thē gām) n. Slang. The essential or indispensable part or quality necessary for success of an activity or enterprise or the fulfillment of a goal: "The name of the game was to get the story" (David Fitzpatrick).

name-plate (nām'plāt') n. 1. A plate or plaque, as on an office door, inscribed with a name. 2. See masthead (n., sense 3).

name-sake (nām'sāk') n. One that is named after another. [From the phrase for the name's sake.]

name-tag (nām'täg') n. A badge of personal identification worn to permit access to areas, such as government installations or industrial plants, or gatherings, such as conventions or sales meetings.

name-tape (nām'tāp') n. A small strip of cloth showing the owner's name, sewn or glued to a garment.

Na-mib Desert (nä'mīb dēz'ərt) A dry region of southwest Africa extending along the coast of Namibia between the Atlantic Ocean and the interior plateau.

Na-mib-i-a (nä-mīb'ē-ə) Formerly South-West Af-ri-ca (south'wēst' äf'rī-kə). A country of southwest Africa on the Atlantic Ocean. A German protectorate after 1884, it was occupied in 1915 by South Africa, which governed it under a League of Nations mandate from 1920 to 1946 but refused to accept the United Nations trusteeship that replaced the mandate. After many years of turmoil, Namibia achieved full independence in March 1990. Windhoek is the capital. Population, 1,099,000. —Na·mib/i·an adj. & n.

Nam·oi (näm'oi') A river, about 846 km (526 mi) long, of southeast Australia flowing generally northwest to a tributary of the Darling River.

Nam·pa (näm'pə) A city of southwest Idaho west-southwest of Boise. It is a processing and shipping center for an irrigated farming region. Population, 28,365.

Na·mur (nä-moor', nä-mür') A city of south-central Belgium on the Meuse River southeast of Brussels. Strategically located, it has been the scene of numerous sieges and battles, notably in the 17th century and in World Wars I and II. Population, 101,860.

Nan (nän) A river of western Thailand flowing about 563 km (350 mi) generally southward to join the Ping River and form the Chao Phraya.

nan·a (nän'ə, nä'nə) n. 1. A grandmother. 2. A nurse or nursemaid. [Of baby-talk origin.]

Na·nai·mo (nä-nī'mō) A city of southwest British Columbia, Canada, on Vancouver Island and the Strait of Georgia west of Vancouver. The Hudson's Bay Company erected a blockhouse here in 1833. Population, 47,069.

Na·nak (nä'nək), 1469-1538?. Indian religious leader who broke from orthodox Hinduism to found Sikhism.

nance (näns) n. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for an effeminate man, especially a gay or homosexual man. [Short for the name Nancy.]

Nan·chang (nän'chäng') A city of southeast China on the Gan Jiang southeast of Wuhan. Dating from the 12th century, it is the capital of Jiangxi province. Population, 1,088,800.

Nan·cy (nän'sē, näN-sē') A city of northeast France east of Paris. The capital of the duchy and region of Lorraine, the city passed to France in 1766. It was heavily bombed in World War II. Population, 96,317.

NAND gate (nänd gät) n. Computer Science. A logic circuit that produces an output inverse to that of an AND gate. [N(OT) + AND.]

Nan·da De·vi (nün'də dā'vē) A peak, 7,821.7 m (25,645 ft) high, of the Himalaya Mountains in northern India. It was first scaled in 1936.

na·nism (nä'niz'əm, nä'niz'-) n. 1. Ecology. The condition of being stunted or dwarfed, as in certain climates. 2. See dwarfism. [French nanisme, from Latin nānus, dwarf, from Greek nanos. See NANO-.]

Nan·ga Par·bat (nüng'gə pûr'bət) A peak, 8,131.3 m (26,660 ft) high, of the Himalaya Mountains in northwest Kashmir.

Nan·jing (nän'jǐng') also Nan·king (nän'kǐng', näN'-) A city of east-central China on the Yangtze River (Chang Jiang) northwest of Shanghai. The capital of China from the third to the sixth century A.D. and again from 1368 to 1421, it was opened to foreign trade by the Treaty of Nanking in 1842. It was Sun Yat-sen's capital from 1912 to 1927 and Chiang Kai-shek's capital from 1928 to 1937, when it was captured by the Japanese. Reclaimed by Chinese forces in 1946, it is now the capital of Jiangsu province. Population, 2,250,000.

nan·keen (năn-kēn') also nan·kin (-kēn', -kĭn') n. 1. a. A sturdy yellow or buff cotton cloth. b. nankeens. Trousers made of this cloth. 2. Nankeen. A Chinese porcelain with a blue-and-white pattern. [After Nanjing.]

Nan·king (năn'kĭng', năn'-) See Nanjing.

Nan Ling (năn' lĭng') A mountain range of southeast China running roughly east to west along the northern border of Guangdong province.

Nan·ning (năn'nĭng') A city of extreme southern China west of Guangzhou. The capital of Guangxi Zhuangzu, it is highly industrialized. Population, 564,900.

nanno- pref. Variant of nano- (pref., sense 1).

nan·no·fos·sil also nan·o·fos·sil (năn'ə-fös'əl) n. A very small fossil organism, especially one of the nannoplankton.

nan·no·plank·ton also nan·o·plank·ton (năn'ə-plăngk'tən) n. Aquatic organisms constituting very small or the smallest forms of plankton.

nan·ny also nan·nie (năn'ē) n. pl. nan·nies. A children's nurse. [Alteration of NANA.] —nan/ny·ish adj.

nan·ny·ber·ry (năn'ē-bĕr'ē) n. See sheepberry. [From nanny goats' taste for them.]

nanny goat (năn'ē gōt) n. A female goat. [From Nanny, nickname for Anne.]

nano- pref. 1. Often nanno-. Extremely small: nannoplankton. 2. One-billionth (10^{-9}): nanosecond. [Greek nanos, nannos, little old man, dwarf, from nannas, uncle, from nanna, aunt.] nan·o·fos·sil (năn'ə-fös'əl) n. Variant of nannofossil.

nan·o·gram (năn'ə-grăm') n. Abbr. ng One billionth (10^{-9}) of a gram.

nan·o·me·ter (năn'ə-mĕ'tər) n. Abbr. nm One billionth (10^{-9}) of a meter.

nan·o·plank·ton (năn'ə-plăngk'tən) n. Variant of nannoplankton.

nan·o·sec·ond (năn'ə-sĕk'ənd) n. Abbr. ns, nsec One billionth (10^{-9}) of a second.

nan·o·tech·nol·o·gy (năn'ə-tĕk-nŏl'ə-jĕ) n. The science and technology of building electronic circuits and devices from single atoms and molecules.

—nan/o·tech/nol/o·gist n.

Nan·sen (năn'sən, năn'-), Fridtjof. 1861-1930. Norwegian explorer, zoologist, and politician who led an Arctic expedition (1893-1896) and directed the League of Nations relief programs for refugees of World War I. He won the 1922 Nobel Peace Prize.

Nansen bottle (năn'sən bŏt'l) n. An ocean-water sampling bottle with spring-loaded valves at both ends that are closed at an appropriate depth by a messenger device sent down the wire connecting the bottle to the surface. [After Fridtjof NANSEN.]

Nan Shan (nän' shän') See Qilian Shan.

Nan-terre (nän-těr') A city of north-central France, an industrial suburb of Paris on the Seine River. Population, 88,578.

Nantes (nänts, nänt) A city of western France on the Loire River west of Tours. Dating to pre-Roman times, it was captured by Norse raiders in the ninth century and later fell to the dukes of Brittany. The Edict of Nantes, granting limited religious and civil liberties to the Huguenots, was issued in 1598 by Henry IV of France and revoked in 1685 by Louis XIV. Population, 240,539.

Nan-ti-coke¹ (nän'ti-kök') n. pl. Nanticoke or Nan-ti-cokes. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting Delaware and eastern Maryland between the Chesapeake Bay and the Atlantic coast. b. A member of this people. 2. The Algonquian language of the Nanticoke.

Nan-ti-coke² (nän'ti-kök') A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, on Lake Erie south-southeast of Hamilton. It is in a resort region. Population, 19,816.

Nan-tong also Nan-tung (nän'töong') A city of east-central China on the northern bank of the Yangtze River (Chang Jiang) estuary east of Nanjing. It is an industrial center. Population, 300,000.

Nan-tuck-et (nän-tük'ët) An island of southeast Massachusetts south of Cape Cod, from which it is separated by Nantucket Sound, an arm of the Atlantic Ocean. Settled in 1659, the island was part of New York from 1660 to 1692, when it was ceded to Massachusetts. It was a whaling center until the mid-1850's and is now a popular resort. —Nan-tuck-et-er n.

Nan-tung (nän'töong') See Nantong.

Naoi-se (nē'sē, nā'-) n. The husband of Deidre in Irish legend.

Na-o-mi (nā-ō'mē) In the Old Testament, the mother-in-law of Ruth.

nap¹ (näp) n. A brief sleep, often during the day. — v. intr. napped, nap-ping, naps. 1. To sleep for a brief period, often during the day; doze. 2. To be unaware of imminent danger or trouble. [Middle English, from nappen, to doze, from Old English hnappian.]

WORD HISTORY: The famous verse 4 in Psalm 121, rendered in the King James Version as “Behold, he that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep,” is rendered in a Middle English translation as “Loo, ha shal not nappen ne slepen that kepeth ireal.” The word nappen is indeed the Middle English ancestor of our word nap. Lest it be thought undignified to say that God could nap, it must be realized that our word nap was at one time not associated only with the younger and older members of society nor simply with short periods of rest. The ancestors of our word, Old English hnappian and its descendant, Middle English nappen, could both refer to prolonged periods of sleep as well as short ones and also, as in the quotation from Psalm 121, to sleepiness. But these senses have been lost. Since the word has become less dignified, we would not find nap used in a translation of Psalm 121 any longer.

nap² (năp) n. A soft or fuzzy surface on fabric or leather. — v. tr. napped, nap-ping, naps. To form or raise a soft or fuzzy surface on (fabric or leather). [Alteration (perhaps influenced by obsolete French nape, tablecloth), of Middle English noppe, from Middle Dutch.]

nap³ (năp) v. tr. napped, nap-ping, naps. To pour or put a sauce or gravy over (a cooked dish): “a stuffed veal chop napped with an elegant Port sauce” (Jay Jacobs). [French napper, from nappe, cover. See NAPPE.]

nap⁴ (năp) n. 1. Games. a. A card game that resembles whist. b. The highest bid in this game, announcing the intention to win five tricks, the maximum number in a hand. Also called napoleon 2. See napoleon (n., sense 2). [Short for NAPOLEON.]

na·pa or nap·pa (năp'ə, nă'pə) n. See Chinese cabbage. [Probably Japanese nappa, greens.]

Nap·a (năp'ə) A city of western California north of Oakland. It is a center of the Napa Valley, a mountainous region that is famous for its vineyards. Population, 61,842.

NAPA abbr. National Association of Performing Artists.

na·palm (nă'pălm') n. 1. a. An aluminum soap of various fatty acids that when mixed with gasoline makes a firm jelly used in some bombs and in flamethrowers. b. This jelly. 2. An incendiary mixture of polystyrene, benzene, and gasoline. [naphthenate, salt of naphthenic acid (from NAPHTHENE) + PALM(ITATE).] —na'palm' v.

Nap·a·ta (năp'ə-tə) An ancient city of Nubia near the Fourth Cataract of the Nile River in modern-day Sudan. It flourished during the eighth century B.C.

nape (năp, năp) n. The back of the neck. [Middle English.]

Na·per·ville (nă'pər-vīl') A city of northeast Illinois, a manufacturing suburb of Chicago. Population, 85,351.

na·per·y (nă'pə-rē) n. pl. na·per·ies. Household linen, especially table linen. [Middle English naperie, from Old French, from nape, nappe, tablecloth. See NAPPE.]

Naph·ta·li (năf'tə-lī') In the Old Testament, a son of Jacob and the forebear of one of the tribes of Israel.

naph·tha (năf'thə, năp'-) n. 1. Any of several highly volatile, flammable liquid mixtures of hydrocarbons distilled from petroleum, coal tar, and natural gas and used as fuel, as solvents, and in making various chemicals. 2. Obsolete. Petroleum. [Latin, from Greek, liquid bitumen, of Persian origin.] —naph'thous adj.

naph·tha·lene also naph·tha·line (năf'thə-lēn', năp'-) or naph·tha·lin (-līn) n. A white crystalline compound, C₁₀H₈, derived from coal tar or petroleum and used in manufacturing dyes, moth repellents, and explosives and as a solvent. Also called tar camphor [NAPHTH(A) + AL(COHOL) + -ENE.] —naph'tha·len'ic (-lĕn'ĭk) adj.

naph·thene (năf'thēn', năp'-) n. Any of several cycloalkane hydrocarbons having the general formula C_nH_{2n} and found in various petroleum. [NAPHTH(A) + -ENE.] —naph·then'ic (-thĕn'ĭk) adj.

naph·thol (năf'thōl', -thōl', -thōl', năp'-) also naph·tol (-tōl, -tōl, -tōl) n. An organic compound, C₁₀H₇OH, occurring in two isomeric forms, alpha-naphthol and beta-naphthol. [NAPHTH(ALENE) + -OL².]

Na·pi·er (nă'pĕ-ər, nə-pîr'), Sir Charles James. 1782-1853. British general who conquered (1843) and governed (1843-1847) Sind in present-day Pakistan.

Na·pi·er (nă'pĕ-ər, nə-pîr'), John Laird of Merchiston. 1550-1617. Scottish mathematician who invented logarithms and introduced the use of the decimal point in writing numbers.

Na·pi·er (nă'pĕ-ər, nə-pîr'), Robert Cornelis First Baron Napier of Magdala. 1810-1890. British general, civil engineer, and colonial administrator in India who also led military expeditions into Ethiopia and China.

Na·pier·i·an logarithm (nə-pîr'ĕ-ən lô'gə-rĭth'əm, nə-) n. Abbr. In Mathematics. See natural logarithm. [After John NAPIER.]

Na·pi·er's bones (nă'pĕ-ərz bōnz, nə-pîrz') pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). Mathematics. A set of graduated rods used to perform multiplication quickly. [After John NAPIER.]

na·pi·form (nă'pə-fōrm') adj. Shaped like a turnip: napiform roots. [Latin nāpus, turnip + -FORM.]

nap·kin (năp'kĭn) n. 1. A piece of cloth or absorbent paper used at table to protect the clothes or wipe the lips and fingers. 2. A cloth or towel. 3. A sanitary napkin. 4. Chiefly British. A diaper. [Middle English : Old French nape, nappe, tablecloth; see NAPPE + -kin, -kin.]

Na·ples (nă'pəlz) 1. Also Na·po·li (nă'pô-lĕ). A city of south-central Italy on the Bay of Naples, an arm of the Tyrrhenian Sea. Founded by Greeks c. 600 B.C., Naples was conquered by the Romans in the fourth century B.C. and eventually became an independent duchy (eighth century A.D.) and capital of the kingdom of Naples (1282-1860). It is a major seaport and a commercial, cultural, and tourist center. Population, 1,210,503. 2. A city of southwest Florida on the Gulf of Mexico south of Fort Myers. It is a resort and has a shrimp-fishing industry. Population, 19,505.

Na·po (nă'pō) A river of northeast Ecuador and northern Peru flowing about 1,126 km (700 mi) east and southeast to the Amazon River.

na·po·le·on (nə-pō'lē-ən, -pōl'yən) n. 1. A rectangular piece of pastry made with crisp, flaky layers filled with custard cream. 2. A 20-franc gold coin formerly used in France. Also called *nap*⁴ 3. Games. See nap⁴ (n., sense 1). [After NAPOLEON I.]

Na·po·le·on I (nə-pō'lē-ən, -pōl'yən), Originally Napoleon Bonaparte. Called “the Little Corporal.” 1769-1821. Emperor of the French (1804-1814). A brilliant military strategist, he deposed the French Directory (1799) and proclaimed himself first consul and, later, emperor (1804). His military and political might gripped Continental Europe but failed to encompass Great Britain. After a disastrous winter campaign in Russia (1812), he was forced to abdicate by a coalition of French marshals (1814). Having been exiled to the island of Elba, he escaped, briefly regained power, and was ultimately defeated at Waterloo (1815) and exiled for life to the island of St. Helena. His codification of laws, the Napoleonic Code, still forms the basis of French civil law. —Na·po'le-on'ic (-ŏn'ik) adj.

Na·po·le·on II (nə-pō'lē-ən, -pōl'yən), Originally François Charles Joseph Bonaparte. Called “the Eaglet.” 1811-1832. Titular king of Rome who succeeded his father, Napoleon I, as emperor of the French (1814) but remained a politically powerless figure.

Na·po·le·on III (nə-pō'lē-ən, -pōl'yən), Originally Charles Louis Napoleon Bonaparte. Known as Louis Napoleon. 1808-1873. Emperor of the French (1852-1871). A nephew of Napoleon I, he led the Bonapartist opposition to Louis Philippe and became president of the Second Republic (1848). After proclaiming himself emperor (1852), he instituted reforms and rebuilt Paris. His successful imperialist ventures were overshadowed by a failed campaign in Mexico (1861-1867) and the Franco-Prussian War (1870-1871), which resulted in his deposition.

Na·po·li (nä'pô-lē) See Naples (sense 1).

nap·pa (näp'ə, nä'pə) n. Variant of napa.

nappe (näp) n. 1. A sheet of water flowing over a dam or similar structure.

2. Geology. A large sheetlike body of rock that has been moved far from its original position. 3. Mathematics. Either of the two parts into which a cone is divided by the vertex. [French, tablecloth, nappe, from Old French, tablecloth, from Latin mappa, napkin. See MAP.]

nap·py¹ (näp'ē) adj. nap·pi·er, nap·pi·est. 1. Having a nap; fuzzy. 2. Kinky; frizzy.

nap·py² (näp'ē) n. pl. nap·pies. A round, shallow cooking or serving dish with a flat bottom and sloping sides. [Probably from dialectal nap, bowl, from Middle English, from Old English hnæp.]

nap·py³ (näp'ē) n. pl. nap·pies. Chiefly British. A diaper. [Alteration of NAP·KIN.]

na·prap·a·thy (nə-prăp'ə-thē) n. pl. na·prap·a·thies. Treatment of disease by manipulation of joints, muscles, and ligaments, based on the belief that many diseases are caused by displacement of connective tissues. [Czech naprava, correction (from Slavic pravŭ, right); see per¹ in Appendix + -PATHY.]

—nap'ra·path' (năp'rə-păth') n.

na·prox·en (nə-prŏk'sən) n. A drug, C₁₄H₁₄O₃, used to reduce inflammation and pain, especially in the treatment of arthritis. [Shortening and alteration of methoxynaphthylpropionic acid, one of its chemical names.]

nap·time (năp'tīm') n. The usual time for taking a nap.

Na·ra (năr'ə) A city of south-central Honshu, Japan, east of Osaka. An ancient cultural and religious center, it was founded in 706 and was the first permanent capital of Japan (710-784). Population, 327,702.

Nar·ba·da (nər-bŭd'ə) See Narmada.

Nar·bonne (năr-bŏn', -bôn') A city of southern France near the Mediterranean coast southwest of Montpellier. Thought to have been the first Roman colony established in Transalpine Gaul (118 B.C.), it was an important seaport until its harbor silted up in the 14th century. It is now the commercial center of a wine-growing region. Population, 41,565.

narc or nark (nărk) n. Slang. A law enforcement officer who deals with narcotics violations. [Short for narcotics agent.]

nar·ce·ine (năr'sē-ēn', -ĭn') n. A bitter crystalline alkaloid, C₂₃H₂₇NO₈, obtained from opium and formerly used in medicine as a substitute for morphine. [French narcéine: Greek narkē, numbness + -ine, alkaloid; see -INE².]

nar·cism (năr'sĭz'əm) n. Variant of narcissism.

nar·cis·si (năr-sĭs'ĭ', -sĭs'ē) n. A plural of narcissus.

nar·cis·sism (năr'sĭ-sĭz'əm) also nar·cism (-sĭz'əm) n. 1. Excessive love or admiration of oneself. See Synonyms at conceit. 2. Erotic pleasure derived from contemplation or admiration of one's own body or self, especially as a fixation on or a regression to an infantile stage of development. [After NARCISSUS.]

—nar'cis·sist n. —nar'cis·sis'tic adj. —nar'cis·sis'ti·cal·ly adv.

nar·cis·sus (năr-sĭs'əs) n. pl. nar·cis·sus·es or nar·cis·si (-sĭs'ĭ', -sĭs'ē). Any of several widely cultivated bulbous plants of the genus Narcissus, having long narrow leaves and usually white or yellow flowers characterized by a cup-shaped or trumpet-shaped central crown. [Latin, from Greek narkissos (influenced by narkē, numbness, from its narcotic properties).]

Nar·cis·sus (năr-sĭs'əs) n. Greek Mythology. A youth who pined away in love for his own image in a pool of water and was transformed into the flower that bears his name.

narco- pref. 1. Numbness; stupor; lethargy: narcolepsy. 2. Narcotic drug: narcoanalysis. [Greek narko-, from narkoun, to numb, from narkē, numbness.]

nar-co-a-nal-y-sis (när'kō-ə-näl'ī-sīs) n. pl. nar-co-a-nal-y-ses (-sēz'). Psychotherapy conducted while the patient is in a sleeplike state induced by barbiturates or other drugs, especially as a means of releasing repressed feelings or thoughts. —nar'co-an'a-lyt'ic (-än'ə-līt'ik) adj.

nar-co-dol-lar (när'kō-döl'ər) n. A U.S. dollar acquired from illegal drug traffic. Often used in the plural.

nar-co-klep-toc-ra-cy (när'kō-klēp-tōk'rə-sē) n. pl.

nar-co-klep-toc-ra-cies. 1. A group of people within a country engaged with drug dealers in large-scale narcotics traffic, theft, corruption, and violence. 2. A country or government in which such activities are widespread. [NARCO(TIC) + KLEPTO(MANIA) + -CRACY.]

nar-co-lep-sy (när'kə-lēp'sē) n. pl. nar-co-lep-sies. A disorder characterized by sudden and uncontrollable, though often brief, attacks of deep sleep, sometimes accompanied by paralysis and hallucinations. —nar'co-lep'tic (-lēp'tik) adj.

nar-co-ma (när-kō'mə) n. pl. nar-co-mas also nar-co-ma-ta (-mə-tə). Stupor induced by a narcotic. [New Latin narcōma, from Greek narkoun, to benumb. See NARCOSIS.]

nar-co-sis (när-kō'sīs) n. pl. nar-co-ses (-sēz). A condition of deep stupor or unconsciousness produced by a drug or other chemical substance. [New Latin narcōsis, from Greek narkōsis, a numbing, from narkoun, to benumb, from narkē, numbness.]

nar-co-syn-the-sis (när'kō-sin'thī-sīs) n. pl. nar-co-syn-the-ses (-sēz'). Narcoanalysis directed toward making the patient recall repressed memories and emotional traumas.

nar-cot-ic (när-kōt'ik) n. 1. An addictive drug, such as opium, that reduces pain, alters mood and behavior, and usually induces sleep or stupor. Natural and synthetic narcotics are used in medicine to control pain. 2. A soothing, numbing agent or thing: “There was the blessed narcotic of bridge, at the Colony or at the home of friends” (Louis Auchincloss). — adj. 1. Inducing sleep or stupor; causing narcosis. 2. Of or relating to narcotics, their effects, or their use. 3. Of, relating to, or intended for one addicted to a narcotic. [Middle English narcotik, from Old French narcotique, from Medieval Latin narcōticum, from Greek narkōtikon, neuter of narkōtikos, numbing, from narkōsis, a numbing. See NARCOSIS.] —nar-cot'i-cal-ly adv.

nar-co-tism (när'kə-tīz'əm) n. 1. Addiction to narcotics such as opium, heroin, or morphine. 2. Narcosis. [French narcotisme, from narcotique, narcotic. See NARCOTIC.]

nar-co-tize (när'kə-tīz') v. tr. nar-co-tized, nar-co-tiz-ing, nar-co-tiz-es. 1. To place under the influence of a narcotic. 2. To put to sleep; lull. 3. To dull; deaden. —nar'co-ti-za'tion (-tī-zā'shən) n.

nard (nărd) n. See spikenard (n., sense 1). [Middle English narde, from Old French, from Latin nardus, from Greek nardos, probably ultimately from Sanskrit naladam, Indian spikenard.]

nar-es (nâr'ēz) n. Plural of naris.

Na-rew also Na-rev (nă'rəf) A river rising in western Belarus and flowing about 442 km (275 mi) to northeast Poland and then generally west and southwest to the Western Bug River near its confluence with the Vistula River.

nar-ghi-le also nar-gi-leh (năr'gə-lē') n. See hookah. [French narghilé, obsolete variant of narguilé, from Persian nārgīleh, from nārgīl, coconut, of Indic origin.]

nar-is (nâr'is) n. pl. nar-es (-ēz). An external opening in the nasal cavity of a vertebrate; a nostril. [Latin nāris. See nas- in Appendix.] — nar'i-al (-ē-əl) adj.

nark¹ (nărk) n. Slang. Variant of narc.

nark² (nărk) Chiefly British. n. An informer, especially a police informer. — v. intr. narked, nark-ing, narks. To be an informer. [Perhaps from Romany nāk, nose. See nas- in Appendix.]

Nar-ma-da (năr-mŭd'ə) also Nar-ba-da (-bŭd'ə) A river of central India flowing about 1,247 km (775 mi) westward to the Gulf of Cambay. Sacred to Hindus, it is said to have sprung from the body of the god Shiva.

Nar-ra-gan-sett also Nar-ra-gan-set (năr'ə-găn'sit) n. pl. Narragansett or Nar-ra-gan-setts also Narraganset or Nar-ra-gan-sets. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting Rhode Island west of Narragansett Bay, with present-day descendants in the same area. The Narragansett were nearly exterminated during King Philip's War in 1675-1676. b. A member of this people. c. The Algonquian language of the Narragansett. 2. Any of a breed of small sturdy saddle horse developed in Rhode Island. [From a Narragansett place name.] — Nar'ra-gan'sett adj.

Narragansett Bay (năr'ə-găn'sit bā) A deep inlet of the Atlantic Ocean in eastern Rhode Island. There are many good harbors and resort areas along its shores.

nar-rate (năr'āt', nă-rāt') v. nar-rat-ed, nar-rat-ing, nar-rates. — v. tr. a. To tell (a story, for example) in speech or writing. b. To give an account of (events, for example). See Synonyms at describe. — v. intr. 1. To give an account or a description. 2. To supply a running commentary for a movie or performance. [Latin narrāre, narrāt-, from gnārus, knowing. See gnō- in Appendix.] — nar'rat-a-bil'i-ty n. — nar'rat-a-ble adj. — nar'ra'tor, nar'rat'er n.

nar-ra-tion (nă-ră'shən) n. 1. The act, process, or an instance of narrating.

2. Narrated material. — nar-ra'tion-al adj. — nar-ra'tion-al-ly adv.

nar-ra-tive (năr'ə-tiv) n. 1. A narrated account; a story. 2. The art, technique, or process of narrating. 3. Computer Science. A comment. — adj.

1. Consisting of or characterized by the telling of a story: narrative poetry. 2. Of or relating to narration: narrative skill. —nar'ra-tive-ly adv.

nar-row (när'ō) adj. nar-row-er, nar-row-est. 1. Of small or limited width, especially in comparison with length. 2. Limited in area or scope; cramped.

3. Lacking flexibility; rigid: narrow opinions. 4. Barely sufficient; close: a narrow margin of victory. 5. Painstakingly thorough or attentive; meticulous: narrow scrutiny. 6. Linguistics. Tense. — v. nar-rowed, nar-row-ing, nar-rows.

— v. tr. 1. To reduce in width or extent; make narrower. 2. To limit or restrict: narrowed the possibilities down to three. — v. intr. To become narrower; contract.

— n. 1. A part of little width, as a pass through mountains. 2. narrows. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). a. A body of water with little width that connects two larger bodies of water. b. A part of a river or an ocean current that is not wide.

[Middle English narwe, from Old English nearu.] —nar'row-ish adj.

—nar'row-ly adv. —nar'row-ness n.

nar-row-back (när'ō-bāk') n. Slang. A person whose parents were born in the United States and who is considered unfit for the hard physical labor typically performed by those in the country of ancestral origin.

nar-row-bod-ied (när'ō-bōd'ēd) adj. Being or designating a jet aircraft having a narrow fuselage with seats for passengers on either side of a single aisle running the length of the fuselage.

nar-row-cast (när'ō-käst') v. intr. nar-row-cast, nar-row-cast-ing, nar-row-casts. To transmit, as by cable, programs confined to the interests of a specific group of viewers, subscribers, or listeners, such as physicians, business-people, or teenagers. [NARROW + (BROAD)CAST.] —nar'row-cast'er n.

narrow gauge (när'ō gāj) n. 1. A distance between the rails of a railroad track that is less than the standard width of 562 inches (143.5 centimeters). 2. A locomotive, car, or railway line of this gauge. —nar'row-gauge' (när'ō-gāj'), nar'row-gauged' (-gājd') adj.

nar-row-mind-ed (när'ō-mīn'dīd) adj. Lacking tolerance, breadth of view, or sympathy; petty. —nar'row-mind'ed-ly adv. —nar'row-mind'ed-ness n.

Nar-rows (när'ōz) A strait of southeast New York between Brooklyn and Staten Island in New York City and connecting Upper and Lower New York Bay. The Narrows is spanned by the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge, completed in 1964 and one of the longest suspension bridges in the world.

nar-thex (när'thëks') n. Architecture. 1. A portico or lobby of an early Christian or Byzantine church or basilica, originally separated from the nave by a railing or screen. 2. An entrance hall leading to the nave of a church. [Late Greek narthē, from Greek, box, giant fennel, of Indic origin.]

Nar-vá-ez (när-vä'ās', -ëth), Pánfilo de. 1470?-1528. Spanish conquistador who was sent to capture and replace the disloyal Hernando Cortés in Mexico but was himself captured and imprisoned by Cortés (1520-1522). He later led an expedition to Florida (1528).

nar-whal also nar-wal (när'wəl) or nar-whale (-hwāl', -wāl') n. An Arctic whale (Monodon monoceros) that has a spotted pelt and is characterized in the male by a long spirally twisted ivory tusk projecting from the left side of its head. [Alteration of Norwegian, or Danish narhval from Old Norse nāhvalr : nār, corpse (from its whitish color) + hvalr, whale.]

nar-y (nâr'ē) adj. Not one: "Frequently, measures of major import... glide through these chambers with nary a whisper of debate" (George B. Merry). [Alteration of ne'er a.]

NASA (näs'ə) abbr. National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

na-sal (nā'zəl) adj. 1. Of, in, or relating to the nose. 2. Linguistics. Articulated by lowering the soft palate so that air resonates in the nasal cavities and passes out the nose, as in the pronunciation of the nasal consonants (m), (n), and (ng) or the nasalized vowel of French bon. 3. Characterized by or resembling a resonant sound produced through the nose: a nasal whine. — n. 1. Linguistics. A nasal consonant. 2. A nasal part or bone, forming part of the bridge of the nose. 3. The nosepiece of a helmet. [Possibly from Middle English nasale, from Medieval Latin nāsālis, from Latin nāsus, nose. See nas- in Appendix.] — na-sal'i-ty (nā-zāl'ī-tē) n. — na'sal-ly adv.

nasal index (nā'zəl ɪn'děks') n. The ratio of the width to the height of the nose, multiplied by 100, used in anthropological measurements.

na-sal-ize (nā'zə-līz') v. tr. intr. na-sal-ized, na-sal-iz-ing, na-sal-iz-es. Linguistics. To make nasal or produce nasal sounds. — na'sal-i-za'tion (nā'zə-lī-zā'shən) n.

Nas-by (năz'bē), Petroleum V. See David Ross Locke.

NASCAR abbr. National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing.

nas-cence (năs'əns, nā'səns) n. A coming into being; birth. See Synonyms at beginning.

nas-cent (năs'ənt, nā'sənt) adj. Coming into existence; emerging: "the moral shock of our nascent imperialism" (Richard Hofstadter). [Latin nāscēns, nāscēnt- present participle of nāscī, to be born. See genə- in Appendix.] — nas'cen-cy n.

NASD abbr. National Association of Securities Dealers.

NASDAQ abbr. National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotation System.

nase-ber-ry (năz'bēr'ē) n. See sapodilla. [Alteration of Spanish néspera, from Latin mespila, medlar. See MEDLAR.] Nase-by (năz'bē) A village of central England near Northampton. Nearby on June 14, 1645, Oliver Cromwell's Parliamentarian forces decisively defeated Royalist troops led by Charles I and Prince Rupert.

Nash (năsh), Ogden. 1902-1971. American writer known for his droll epigrammatic verse, much of which appeared in the New Yorker.

Nash or Nashe (năsh), Thomas. 1567-1601. English writer noted for his witty, often invective literary criticism and for The Unfortunate Traveller (1594), possibly the best Elizabethan narrative work.

Nash·u·a (năsh'ōō-ə) A city of southern New Hampshire on the Merrimack River south of Manchester. Settled c. 1655, it developed as a textile center in the early 19th century. Population, 79,662.

Nash·ville¹ (năsh'vīl') The capital of Tennessee, in the north-central part of the state northeast of Memphis. Founded in 1779 as Fort Nashborough, it was renamed in 1784 and became the permanent capital in 1843. Nashville is a port of entry and major commercial center known especially for its music industry. Population, 488,374.

Nash·ville² (năsh'vīl') n. Music. 1. Country music. 2. The country music industry. [After Nashville¹.]

Na·sik (nă'sīk) A town of west-central India northeast of Bombay. It is a Hindu pilgrimage center noted for its brass and copper ware. Population, 262,428.

na·si·on (nă'zī-ōn') n. The point in the skull where the nasal and frontal bones unite. [New Latin nāsion: NAS(O)- + Greek -ion, diminutive suff.]

Nas·ka·pi (năskə-pē) n. pl. Naskapi or Nas·ka·pis. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting northern Quebec and Labrador. b. A member of this people. 2. The variety of Montagnais spoken by the Naskapi. [French, of Montagnais origin.]

naso- pref. Nose: nasopharynx. [New Latin, from Latin nāsus, nose. See nas- in Appendix.]

na·so·fron·tal (nă'zō-frŭn'təl) adj. Of or relating to the nasal and frontal bones.

na·so·phar·ynx (nă'zō-făr'īngks) n. pl. na·so·pha·ryn·ges (-fə-rīn'jēz) or na·so·phar·ynx·es. The part of the pharynx above the soft palate that is continuous with the nasal passages. —na'so·pha·ryn·ge·al (-fə-rīn'jē-əl, -jəl, -făr'ən-jē'əl) adj.

Nas·sau (nă'sô') 1. (also nă'sou') A region and former duchy of central Germany north and east of the Main and Rhine rivers. The region became a duchy in 1806 and was absorbed by Prussia in 1866. Members of the original dynasty subsequently ruled Luxembourg and the Netherlands (as the house of Orange).

2. The capital and largest city of the Bahamas, on the northeast coast of New Providence Island in the Atlantic Ocean east of Miami, Florida. Settled in the 17th century, it was a haven for pirates in the 18th century. Population, 135,000.

Nas·ser (nă'sər, nă'sər), Gamal Abdel. 1918-1970. Egyptian army officer and politician who served as prime minister (1954-1956) and president (1956-1958) of Egypt and as president of the United Arab Republic (1958-1970). His nationalization of the Suez Canal precipitated an international crisis (1956).

Nasser, Lake. A lake of southeast Egypt and northern Sudan. It was formed in the 1960's by the construction of the Aswan High Dam on the Nile river. The rising waters of the lake submerged many historic sites.

Nass River (näs rĭv'ər) A river of western British Columbia, Canada, flowing about 380 km (236 mi) southwest through the Coast Mountains to the Pacific Ocean north of Prince Rupert.

Nast (näst), Thomas. 1840-1902. German-born American editorial cartoonist whose caricatures in Harper's Weekly contributed to the downfall of the Tweed Ring in New York City. He also established the donkey and the elephant as symbols of the Democratic and Republican parties.

nas·tic (näs'tĭk) adj. Of, relating to, or characterized by the tendency in plant parts to move in a direction determined by an internal stimulus, as an increased rate of cellular growth on one surface or side of the plant part. [Greek nastos, pressed close (from nassein, to press) + -IC.]

nas·tur·tium (nä-stūr'shəm, nä-) n. 1. Any of various New World plants of the genus Tropaeolum, having pungent juice and long-spurred, usually yellow, orange, or red irregular flowers. 2. Color. A brilliant orange yellow. [Middle English nasturcium, a kind of cress, from Latin nasturtium : perhaps nāsus, nose; see nas- in Appendix + tortāre*, frequentative of torquēre, to twist (from its pungent smell); see terk^w- in Appendix.]

nas·ty (näs'tē) adj. nas·ti·er, nas·ti·est. 1. a. Disgustingly dirty. b. Physically repellent. 2. Morally offensive; indecent. See Synonyms at offensive. 3. Malicious; spiteful: "Will he say nasty things at my funeral?" (Ezra Pound). 4. Very unpleasant or annoying: nasty weather; a nasty trick. See Synonyms at dirty. 5. Painful or dangerous; grave: a nasty accident. 6. Exasperatingly difficult to solve or handle: a nasty puzzle; a nasty problem. — n. pl. nas·ties. One that is nasty: "It is the business of museums to present us with nasties as well as with fine things" (Country Life). [Middle English nasti, possibly alteration of Old French nastre, bad, short for villenastre : vilein, bad; see VILLAIN + -astre, pejorative suff. (from Latin -aster).] —nas'ti·ly adv. —nas'ti·ness n.

-nasty suff. Nastic response or change: epinasty. [Greek nastos, pressed down; see NASTIC + -Y².]

nat. abbr. 1. National. 2. Native. 3. Natural.

na·tal (nāt'l) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or accompanying birth: natal injuries.

2. Of or relating to the time or place of one's birth. [Middle English, from Latin nātālis, from nātus, past participle of nāscī, to be born. See genə- in Appendix.]

Na·tal (nä-täl', -täl', -tôl') 1. A region of southeast Africa on the Indian Ocean. First sighted by Vasco da Gama on Christmas Day 1497 and named Terra Natalis, it was acquired by the British in the 1820's and 1830's and settled by the Boers after 1836. Natal became a British colony in 1843 and was later a separate colony (after 1856) and then a founding province of the country of South Africa (1910).

2. A city of northeast Brazil on the Atlantic Ocean north of Recife. Founded in the late 1590's, it was occupied by the Dutch from 1633 to 1654. The city grew rapidly in World War II as a base for flights connecting with Africa. Population, 376,446.

Na·tal brown (nə-täl' broun, -täl') n. Color. A grayish brown.

na·tal·i·ty (nā-täl'ī-tē, nə-) n. pl. na·tal·i·ties. See birthrate. [NATAL + (MORTAL)ITY.]

Na·tal plum (nə-täl' plüm, -täl') n. A South African evergreen shrub (Carissa grandiflora) often cultivated as a hedge plant, having forked spines, white flowers, and an edible scarlet berry.

na·tant (nät'nt) adj. Floating or swimming in water. [Latin natāns, natant- present participle of natāre, to swim. See snā- in Appendix.]

Na·tash·quan or Na·tash·kwan (nə-tāsh'kwən) A river of eastern Canada rising in southern Labrador and flowing about 388 km (241 mi) southward across eastern Quebec to the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

na·ta·tion (nā-tā'shən, nə-) n. The act or skill of swimming. [Latin natātiō, natātiōn-, from natātus, past participle of natāre, to swim. See snā- in Appendix.]

na·ta·to·ri·al (nā'tə-tōr'ē-əl, -tōr'-, nāt'ə-) also na·ta·to·ry (nā'tə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē, nāt'ə-) adj. Of, relating to, adapted for, or characterized by swimming: a natatorial appendage; natatorial birds. [From Late Latin natātōrius, from Latin natātor, swimmer, from natātus, past participle of natāre, to swim. See snā- in Appendix.]

natch (näch) adv. Slang. Of course; naturally. [Shortening and alteration of NATURALLY.]

Natch·ez¹ (näch'īz) n. pl. Natchez. 1. a. A Native American people formerly located on the lower Mississippi River near present-day Natchez. The Natchez ceased to exist as a people after war with the French in the early 18th century.

b. A member of this people. 2. The language of the Natchez. [French, from Natchez.] —Natch'ez adj.

Natch·ez² (näch'īz) A city of southwest Mississippi on the Mississippi River south-southwest of Vicksburg. Founded as a fortified settlement in 1716, it was held successively by France, Great Britain, Spain, and the United States. Natchez prospered especially as the southern terminus of the Natchez Trace, an old road connecting the city with Nashville, Tennessee, that was commercially and strategically important in the late 18th and early 19th centuries. Population, 19,460.

Natch·i·toches (näč'ī-tōsh') A city of northwest-central Louisiana southeast of Shreveport. It was founded c. 1714 as a French military and trading post. Population, 16,609.

NATE abbr. National Association of Teachers of English.

na·tes (nā'tēz) pl.n. The buttocks. [Latin natēs, pl. of natis, buttock.]

Na·than (nā'thən) In the Old Testament, a prophet during the reigns of David and Solomon.

Na·than (nā'thən), George Jean. 1882-1958. American writer, editor, and critic who founded and edited (1924-1930) the American Mercury with H.L. Mencken and was a widely influential drama critic.

Na·than (nā'thən), Maud. 1862-1946. American reformer who was a founder and director (1898-1917) of the National Consumer's League, which pressured industry by the threat of consumer boycotts to institute better working conditions.

Na·than·ael (nə-thän'yəl) See Saint. Bartholomew.

Na·thans (nā'thənz), Daniel. Born 1928. American microbiologist. He shared a 1978 Nobel Prize for the discovery of restriction enzymes and their application to molecular genetics.

nathe·less (nāth'līs) also nath·less (nāth' -) adv. Archaic. Nevertheless; notwithstanding. [Middle English, from Old English nā thē lāes, not less by that : nā, no; see NO¹ + thē, thȳ, instrumental case of se, this, that; see to- in Appendix + lāes, less; see LESS.]

Na·tick¹ (nā'tīk) n. The variety of Massachusett presumed to have been spoken in the mission town of Natick, Massachusetts, and used in the Massachusett Bible.

Na·tick² (nā'tīk) A town of northeast Massachusetts, a residential and industrial suburb of Boston. Population, 30,510.

na·tion (nā'shən) n. 1. A relatively large group of people organized under a single, usually independent government; a country. 2. The government of a sovereign state. 3. A people who share common customs, origins, history, and frequently language; a nationality: "Historically the Ukrainians are an ancient nation which has persisted and survived through terrible calamity" (Robert Conquest). 4. a. A federation or tribe, especially one composed of Native Americans. b. The territory occupied by such a federation or tribe. [Middle English nacioun, from Old French nation, from Latin nātiō, nātiōn-, from nātus, past participle of nāscī, to be born. See genə- in Appendix.] —na'tion·hood' n. —na'tion·less adj.

Na·tion (nā'shən), Carry Amelia Moore. 1846-1911. American temperance crusader who conducted a series of raids on saloons, in which she would break bottles of liquor and destroy barroom furniture with a hatchet.

na·tion·al (nāsh'ə-nəl, nāsh'nəl) adj. Abbr. nat., natl. 1. Of, relating to, or belonging to a nation as an organized whole: a national anthem. 2. Of or relating to nationality: their national origin. 3. Characteristic of or peculiar to the people of a nation: a national trait. 4. Of or maintained by the government of a nation: a national landmark. 5. Being in the interest of one's own nation: Isolationism is a strictly national policy. 6. Devoted to one's own nation or its interests; patriotic.

— n. 1. A citizen of a particular nation. See Synonyms at citizen. 2. Often nationals. Sports & Games. A contest or tournament involving participants from all parts of a nation. —na'tion-al-ly adv.

national bank (năsh'ə-nəl bāngk) n. 1. A bank in a system of federally chartered privately owned banks in the United States, each required by law to be an investing member of its district Federal Reserve Bank and insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. 2. A bank associated with national finances and usually owned or controlled by a government.

Na-tion-al City (năsh'ə-nəl sīt'ē, năsh'nəl) A city of southern California, a residential and industrial suburb of San Diego on San Diego Bay. Population, 54,249.

national debt (năsh'ə-nəl dēt) n. The total financial obligations of a national government.

national forest (năsh'ə-nəl fôr'ist) n. A large expanse of forest that is protected by a government and may be harvested or hunted in only under controlled conditions.

National Guard (năsh'ə-nəl gärd) n. Abbr. NG, N.G. The military reserve units controlled by each state of the United States, equipped by the federal government, and subject to the call of either the federal or the state government.

National Guardmember (năsh'ə-nəl gärd'mēm'bər) n. A member of a National Guard unit.

national income (năsh'ə-nəl in'kūm') n. The total net value of all goods and services produced within a nation over a specified period of time, representing the sum of wages, profits, rents, interest, and pension payments to residents of the nation.

